HUMAN BEINGS TRAPPED BY AVALANCHE OF WATER

When Giant Dam Bursts At Austin, Penn. Number of Dead Placed at 300

Two Towns Blotted Out In An Instant

Austin, Pa., Oct. 2.—Estimates of the loss of life in the flood which overwhelmed the town of Austin happily diminished when an army of volunteer rescuers worked its way into the mass of wreckage.

In the opinion of many on the ground the number of deaths will not exceed 300.

The property loss will exceed $6,000,000, and it is the general opinion that the town never will be rebuilt. Two, at least, of the large plants will not be reconstructed and a majority of the business men of the place have been ruined financially.

State officials in charge of the situation, after a hasty canvass of the population, expressed the belief that not more than 150 dead were in the wreckage. But sixteen bodies have been recovered. Chief of Police Baker, however, believes that fully 300 are dead and missing.

The 500 men who had toiled all day Sunday in a heavy rain storm abandoned their task with the coming of darkness. Although they had moved mighty heaps of debris, fought fire and worked on without food to remove the bodies of the dead, less than a score had been found.

But Three Dead at Costello

Reports from Costello and points farther down the Sinnemahonin river grew more encouraging. At Costello, while there was heavy financial loss, it is said that not more than three persons are dead. Beyond that point no fatalities have been reported.

The survivors will not suffer from hunger or lack of care, as the supplies and medical assistance rushed to the scene seem ample to care for them. E. F. Bicknell, national director of the National Red Cross, also arrived, bringing with him $15,000 in cash for immediate aid to the flood victims. Of the eight injured in the hospitals none are fatally hurt.

The homeless have all been provided with shelter. On the outskirts of Austin is a number of house which were vacated by workers in the Goodyear mill when that plant was dismantled. These houses have been filled with homeless people.

The residents of Keating Summit have taken in the others, several hundred in number. Provisions continue to arrive in large quantities and there will be no suffering for lack of food.

Gap Twenty Feet Wide

The dam, which was 530 feet long, 49 feet high and 32 feet thick at the base, held back more than 500,000,000 gallons of water.

For the first time since its construction, two years ago, the water was running over the top, and many persons went out from Austin, a mile and a half away, to see the unusual sight.

They were horrified when a section about twenty feet wide gave away on the west side. A great volume of water poured through the hole, and the alarm was quickly sounded.

People ran for their lives to the hills nearby, but some were caught in the flood and whirled down the valley. A moment later another break occurred, this time on the east side.

It was much greater and permitted the bulk of the mass of water behind it to rush in a mighty volume toward the lowlands.

Harry Davis, a locomotive engineer of Coudersport, reached a telephone and notified the operator at the exchange. She called as many persons as possible, but the time was short.

The raging flood tore down the little valley, carrying death on its debris-covered crest. Hundreds of women and children—the men were away at work—were caught in their homes and drowned or crushed before they knew what had happened.

Houses went down before the mighty on-rush of water, and gas pipes, bent and broken, released their dangerous fluid.

Fire Adds to Horror

Before the water had passed on its terrible course through the town, a dozen fires were burning in as many places, and the cries of injured and imprisoned persons joined in the terrific thunder of the flood.

Much of the debris lodged against the shops of the Buffalo and Susquehanna railroad, and there the fire raged fiercest. Many men were caught here.

The course of the flood was through the business center of the little village. A majority of the buildings were of wood, and those which were not immediately wrecked by the torrent were soon in flames.

So sudden was the onslaught of water that many persons had no time to flee to the hills, but others received the warning and, believing it was for fire, hastened to the centre of the town, only to be caught in the flood and swept away.

The flood passed quickly, leaving desolation in its wake. Houses had been crushed and tossed about like toys, while hundreds of bodies had been carried down on the crest of the surging torrent.

With the passing of the water, those who had fled to the hills hastened to return to their ruined homes in search of relatives and friends.

Here and there bodies had been cast up along the path of the torrent, and about forty bodies were recovered in a short time. Some of them had

EXPLOSION IN CITY SQUARE

Cover on Man Hole Blown High in the Air

AUTO ESCAPED

Shortly after 5 o'clock, Sunday night, there was an explosion in the telephone man hole near the fountain in City Square and the cover of it sailed high into the air with a loud report. An automobile was passing at the time and had a narrow escape. Fortunately no one was injured. The cause of the explosion has not been determined. It was at first thought that a leak in the gas main may have been the cause but an investigation by employes of the gas company dispelled that theory. The only main the gas company has near the conduit is a small one that feeds the gas light on the fire alarm box. Also there was no odor of illuminating gas in that vicinity.

There is a possibility that sewer gas may have leaked into the conduit and caused the explosion. The man hole was left uncovered all night, lanterns being placed near it and a man put on guard.

GOVERNMENT BUILT SHIPS COST MOST

Advocates of the building of battleships in American navy yards will be dealt a staggering blow when Sec. Meyer submits to congress at its next session figures showing the comparative cost of construction of the dreadnoughts Florida and Utah.

The former is just being completed at the New York navy yard, and it is believed that when all of the figures are at hand it will be shown that the vessel cost almost 25 per cent more than her sister ship, the Utah, built by the New York Shipbuilding Co. at Camden, N. J.

It is believed that this fact will restrain the navy department from undertaking any more ship construction at the navy yards than perhaps one vessel in each of two yards which will serve to give employment to a small number of expert mechanics who might be kept available for an emergency.

GENEROUS CONTRIBUTION.

Charles Francis Adams to whom Quincy is indebted for beautiful Merrymount park continues his generosity in the vicinity of Lincoln where he now resides.

Lee's bridge on the Lancaster road between Concord and Lincoln, a landmark, and so old that it has been condemned, will soon be replaced by an ornamental structure, the expense of which will be borne largely by Charles Francis Adams of Lincoln.

The Middlesex County commissioners, considering the reconstruction of the bridge, had decided to spend $7,000 for the purpose. Mr. Adams came forward, however, and offered to give enough money to make the bridge one not only of lasting qualities but of beauty; and it is understood that his share of the building cost will be $20,000.

Citizens who have an appreciation of civic beauty and show it in the substantial way characteristic of Mr. Adams are a blessing to the community in which they live. Quincy has regretted Mr. Adams change of residence, although he still shows his interest in the home of his ancestors in many ways.

MAY HAVE BEEN MURDER AT E. WEYMOUTH

Authorities Investigating Mysterious Death of Italian on Saturday Night

Nicholas DeCessite lies dead at the undertaking rooms of Willard J. Dunbar, at East Weymouth, having died this morning as a result of injuries received during a fight with his brother late Sunday night at his home on Carroll's lane, East Weymouth. Just what caused the man's death can not be determined until this afternoon, when an autopsy will be held.

It is said that Nicholas and his brother were drinking hard, Sunday and during the evening got into a row. Whether the death of the man was due to a blow or to excessive drinking has not been determined. There is nothing about the body to indicate that the man was shot or that he was stabbed, which would seem to indicate that death was due to a blow received during the scrimmage.

Although the row took place sometime Sunday night, the man did not die until this morning. The brother who is accused of being the cause of the death is reported to have been placed under arrest by Weymouth officers.

BRIEFS

J. A. Campbell and family of Field street, are moving this week to Nantucket.

George H. Ferguson of Payne street has accepted a position at Casey's market Copeland street.

Archie Thayer has taken out nomination papers as an Independent candidate for representative from the fifth district.

Miss Luella Hunt of Miller Stile road has been the guest of her niece Mrs. Malcolm Rich, at her lovely cottage in Gloucester.

Word has been received of the death at Taunton, Sunday of Carl Davison formerly of 19 Nelson street, Quincy, aged about 24 years.

The many friends and members of Maple Lodge K and L of H will be sorry to hear that Mrs. Ellen M. Miller is confined to her room by illness, at her home on High School avenue.

Robert Johnson and family of Maple street, have been sojourning the past week at the farm in New Hampshire recently purchased by them.

At the Saturday evening whist party in Clan McGregor hall the souvenirs were awarded to Miss Allen, Mrs. Lillie and the consolation to Mrs. Turner.

Friends in this city of Miss Ella Wheble, will be sorry to learn that she is to leave Quincy and make her home with her sister who has recently moved to Nantucket.

Edward Spear formerly of this city but now of Lynnfield, has been renewing old acquaintances in this city the past week and has been the guest of his daughter Mrs. Charles Gragg.

D. D. G. P. Agnes G. Fletcher and Rose A. Reed of Maple Lodge K. and L. of H. are to accompany the Grand Officers of Boston, tonight, on their visitation to Pearl Lodge of Worcester.

Citizens day was quite generally observed Sunday by the Women's Relief Corps throughout the state, many corps attending Sunday school services in various towns and presenting the school with the Flag. First Church Sunday school was favored in this city and doubtless prizes the gift. It is a good lesson in patriotism.

While lying at the landing of the Squantum yacht club on Thursday, the power boat Eleanor S. of the Savin Hill Yacht club was nearly destroyed by fire caused by gasoline explosion. Combination 2 of Atlantic responded to a telephone call and extinguished the flames with a chemical stream. One thousand dollars is the estimated loss.

MATTERS TO BE DISCUSSED

By the Galahad Brotherhood of Christ Church

ALL INVITED

As Sir Gareth the prince of Arthur's court rode forth to battle and to free the long imprisoned Lady Lyonors from the castle Perilous, so did the Galahad Brotherhood of Christ church buckle on their breast plates of righteousness at their meeting Sunday.

In order for them to carry out their winter's work which is largely civic topics, to be discussed every Sunday by various members before the meeting, will mean considerable work to those who undertake it.

The organization feels that it cannot live and be of a moral or spiritual benefit either to the church, city or humanity, by being pent up between four walls with the door closed to civic righteousness. This is an ideal deeply rooted within the breast of each member and as the Knights of the Round Table went from before the King to quell injustice inflicted upon the innocent by the lawless, just so far will this organization, to the best of its ability, venture before the people of Quincy with the standard of purity. All are invited to attend the discussion next Sunday at 1: o'clock, which is, "That the city of Quincy equip its fire department with automobile apparatus."

The program of topics for Sunday discussion is as follows:

Oct. 8—Resolved: That the City of Quincy equip its fire department with automobile apparatus.

Oct. 15—That there should be a 5 cent fare between Quincy and Boston.

Oct. 29—That there should be a public dock established and maintained in Quincy.

Nov. 5—That Moving Picture Shows are a moral benefit to the community.

Nov. 12—That history be eliminated from the studies in the public schools.

Nov. 19—That the Public Library of Quincy be kept open till 9 P. M., evenings during the week and on Sunday afternoons.

Nov. 26—That Labor Unions are a menace to the Community.

Dec. 3—Open Sunday.

Dec. 10—That a Mayor of Quincy be elected to serve not more than four years.

Dec. 17—Resolved that Capital punishment be abolished.

Dec. 24—Open Sunday.

Dec. 31—That all Surgical and Medical treatment be free to all inhabitants by the Municipal Government.

AT BROCKTON.

The Brockton Fair management this year have secured Harry N. Atwood, who flew from St. Louis to New York city, and Lincoln Beachey, whose perilous flight under the suspension bridge at Niagara Falls set the whole country talking, to fly each day of the fair October 3, 4, 5, 6. In addition to the usual big program provided, patrons this year will get their money's worth, and then some. This is the first opportunity offered the public to see these famous aviators at a low price of admission. Visitors at the Brockton Fair are always sure of getting the best. Many new features are promised this year, including The Sports of Ancient Rome, a feature never before attempted at any fair in the country.

MAYOR SHEA DECIDES THAT HE WILL NOT RUN FOR RE-ELECTION

Issues Letter At Noon Today Stating His Reasons and Striking "Keynote" For Public Service

MAYOR WILLIAM T. SHEA

All doubts as to whether Mayor Shea would be a candidate for re-election at the coming municipal election have been dispelled, for in a communication made public this noon, His Honor states that he feels that he can not afford to devote any more time to the office of Mayor.

Mayor Shea has held the office for four successive years, the longest term of any previous Mayor the city has ever had. During the past few months there has been much speculation among the politicans, as well as citizens in general, as to whether he would retire this year or whether he would again enter the contest. Newspaper men and others have tried to draw him out, but to all their direct as well as to the catch questions that have been fired at him, from time to time he has simply smiled and said "I have not stated my position yet."

At noon, however, His Honor comes out in the following open letter declining to again be a candidate for the office and again urges his belief that party designation should be removed from municipal offices.

Editor Daily Ledger:

"I want to take this opportunity to thank the Citizens of Quincy for the confidence they have placed in me and assure them that I fully appreciate it. I also wish to thank the citizens who have urged me to be a candidate for another term but I feel that in justice to myself I cannot afford to devote any more time to this office.

Four years of service in the Mayor's Office has more fully convinced me, than ever, of the necessity of electing men to the Council and also the Mayor's Office that will consider the City business from a broad standpoint, regardless of political advantage.

When a man becomes a member of the City Government his first care should be as to whether the City is getting a fair return for money expended; not as to the best waythe can serve his political party. For that reason I urge that party designation be removed from Municipal Office."

Yours truly,
Wm. T. Shea, Mayor.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

The hunting season in Maine is open. Now for a crop of accidental shootings.

A new comet is discovered, but since the Halley fake year, comet insurance can be had cheap.

Italy and Turkey are showing their teeth at each other, but ultimatums cost the tax payer little except the typewriter's bill.

There is another judge to be appointed by Governor Foss. Friends of Judge Avery of the District Court should get busy again in his interests.

As $100 counterfeit bills are reported to be in circulation, the public is warned against the careless habit of stowing away small change in one's pockets without looking at it.

As 40,000 share lots are being tossed back and forth on the stock exchange, the fellow who buys five shares on margin can not expect that his interests will be carefully looked after.

Food prices are the highest ever, and the politicians that have been promising to reduce the cost of living have got to do something more than hire clerks to add up long rows of statistics.

The augurs who interpret the goosebone are predicting an early and a hard winter. The squirrels are garnering unusually abundant supplies of nuts; the mushrats are putting storm windows upon their habitations; the birds have forced the season in southward aviation and October starts in cold and stormy. From Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont come reports of heavy snow fall. Get out your fur coats and fill up the coal bins.

PERILS OF WARSHIPS.

The tragic destruction of the French warship Liberte has sent a shiver through the naval world, and the thrill of fear to the wives and children of all men on board our warships. And it is leading the taxpayer of all countries to ask whether the modern war-ship, with all its impregnable armor, is protected from the greatest enemy of all stored within its own interior.

The flare back on the United States battle ship Missouri, which sent burning powder grains into the turret and killed 32 of our brave boys, the narrow escapes from similar disasters on the Georgia and other vessels—there is a terrible peril here.

With this frightful French disaster the patriotic American is again asking whether our ships are so arranged that in some fateful crisis our deadly explosives would be turned to annihilate our own men.

Our naval critics say: First, it is a fundamental principle recognized even in the old wood frigates, that explosives must not be passed directly up to the gun deck by a vertical shaft. Second, the vertical gun turret of our navy violates this principle. At the top of the shaft the powder is loaded into the guns, at the bottom is the handling room where powder is delivered from the magazines.

It is asserted to be likely, even in the gun practice of peace, that some accident in firing a gun should send burning powder grains into this handling room, where the igniting powder would fill the turret with deadly gases.

In battle, it is argued, our gun-ports are so big that half a dozen twelve inch shells could enter them at one time, with great danger of an explosion.

It is said that when our war vessels visited Europe in 1903, our officers were so fearful lest foreign experts discover this defect, that they set up wood screens in the ports, painted to represent steel.

In favor of large ports, it is claimed that our ships were mercilessly raked in the Cuban war because the guns could not be lifted in the small ports to reach the hill forts.

Our naval engineers insist that the recent vessels have been provided with an automatic shutter separating the room where the guns are loaded from the handling room below, and that the doors from the handling room to the magazines are provided with a metal flap, open only when powder is actually passing, and closing at once by gravity.

But to the layman it looks as if our powder magazines were too closely connected with the turrets. When you think how sparks ignite buildings miles distant on land, it seems the natural thing that they should ignite powder magazines protected by only one or two doors, which are opening and closing.

HARVESTING THE APPLE.

With October's declining suns the apple orchards grow festive with their ruddy fruit. It was not so many years ago that the apple was a despised fruit. It might do well enough as a basis for cider and vinegar, and it was ever popular as raw material for the small boy's stomach ache. But it was too democratic and common a product to be fitted for the educated palate, which would have only oranges and tropical products.

While the last named favorites have lost none of their hold on the popular taste, the enormous improvement in apple culture, by which larger, fairer, and more nutritious specimens have been produced, has made it one of the great American staples.

The apple and the orange are in contrast, and each fills the other's lacks. The orange brings the mellow heart of sunshine to the Northern fireside, the apple the cool tang of the North to the Southern home.

As apples have improved under scientific cultivation, they cost more. But even if a barrel of apples weighing 200 pounds should cost $3 to $5, it is many times cheaper per pound than any meat or even cereal.

HIGH COST OF LIVING.

Answering a correspondent who asks an explanation of the increasing cost of living, the New York Journal of Commerce replies that the influences which create the present high price level are so numerous, complex, and closely interwoven that it is often impossible to estimate their true or relative value, especially when clouded by the maze of self-interest. But, generally speaking, the causes are chiefly economic, though, social and political forces have to be taken into consideration.

The Jorunal of Commerce though putting the increase of the gold supply first as a cause of increasing prices does not give it the importance which is assigned by some economists. Facts, it points out, do not always fit the theory. In immediately recent years there has been a remarkable coincidence of increase in gold supply and values and this has given immense stimulus to the gold theory. Yet that does not prove that the gold output is the principal factor. This judgment will be accepted by nearly all economists, even by those who insist that the enhancement of values depends in large degree on the greater supply of gold. The Journal of Commerce mentions other factors, as a restricted supply of many commodities, and a universal increase in costs of production. Other influences of an economic nature which can be only briefly stated are: Inflation, speculation, increase of population, inadequate crops, restricted production, consumption overtaking production, shorter hours of labor, higher wages, tariffs, trusts, trade agreements, legislative interference, creation of new industries, advance in land and rent, taxation, social uplift, higher standards of living, extravagance, etc.

Some of these like rent and in some cases taxes, appear to us to be effects as well as causes, and probably they would be so considered by almost any economic authority. "Inflation" is only another word for an increased supply of money, which might be in gold, or might be in paper. Speculation sometimes increases prices temporarily, but its permanent efficacy in that direction is to be questioned. A reaction from speculation sometimes depresses prices. But generally speaking, most, if not all, of the influences catalogued by the New York newspaper operate, directly or indirectly, constantly or intermittenly, to increase prices.

That the supplies of many necessities have been relatively low for a series of years is well enough known to students of the markets. These have often been scant enough to make artificial scarcity and speculation easy. Had there been a large increase in the supply of cattle, wheat and corn during the last year or two, the condition would have been far different. Then the drift away from agricultural production has been intense. Agriculture has failed to keep pace with population, a fact emphasized by the last census returns.

A tendency to take advantage of the increased prices is already manifest, but the readjustment between supply and demand will take time, and "until supplies the world over are materially increased, there appears to be little chance for much cheaper food products."

Another highly important influence is suggested by The Journal of Commerce. "Within the last twenty-five years," it says, "a new power of tremendous potency has been developed—the power of organization. The trusts, the trade associations and the trade unions have all organized professedly to 'regulate' but practically to maintain prices and resist any declines whatever in values or wages. This power of organization has operated on a scale, especially in the United States, never before attempted or anticipated.

FREE SCHOLARSHIP.

The New England Conservatory of Music, Boston, is offering a free scholarship for one year in the vocal normal department to young men and women of limited means who have good voices and natural musical ability. All that is required is a personal application and examination at the Conservatory on Tuesday, Oct. 3, at 3 P. M. and on Wednesday, Oct. 4, at 4 P. M.

NATIONAL ISSUES TO DOMINATE.

With Winthrop Murray Crane as commander-in-chief of the Republican forces, and all the leaders from Gen. Charley Hatfield down to the humblest member of the rank and file, pulling together for the election of Frothingham, the campaign ought to be one of the greatest ever waged in Massachusetts. Foss, of course, although he went to sleep in a very discourteous manner on primary night, may now be presumed to be awake, and it is safe to say that he will prove an opponent worthy of Frothingham's steel.

The issues will be framed by the Republicans, despite all that the Democrats can do. The dominant one will be the tariff. In the platform to be adopted by the Republicans in convention assembled on Wednesday next the party will pledge itself to the protection of Massachusetts and New England industries. President Taft's policy of tariff revision, schedule by schedule, based on the report of the tariff board as to difference in labor costs here and abroad, will be reaffirmed. The voters will be asked to uphold the hands of the President, and by the election of Frothingham and the entire Republican ticket to give notice to the rest of the country that Massachusetts is not ready to assist in her own destruction.

It will be made clear to the Republicans who bolted their party last fall that they must be ready for one of two things, either to stand for the industrial welfare of Massachusetts and New England, or brand themselves as traitors and join with those of the West and the South who would put the industries of Massachusetts and New England out of business.—George R. Conroy in Boston Herald.

TODAY'S COURT.

John Nicholson, Walter Sutherbee were fined $10 each and Alexander Aberdeen, Jeremiah McCarthy, John Flaherty $3 each on account of costs for drunkenness at Quincy.

John J. McCarthy was fined $3 on account of costs for drunkenness at Milton.

Domenic Fulciniti was fined $10 for gunning on the Lord's Day and 025 for shooting two grey squirrels at Cohasset.

WHO'S WHO IN QUINCY--WHY!

Some day when casting about for Mayoralty timber, the eyes of the leaders of the local Democracy will rest upon the smiling countenance of James F. Burke, one of Quincy's well known business men. Mr. Burke has held many positions of trust in the gift of the citizens of Quincy, and of him it can be said, he has been tried in the balance and not found wanting.

He is a native of Quincy, where he was born Nov. 2, 1861, and here he has always made his home. Educated in the public schools, he, like most young men of his time took up the granite business, which trade he thoroughly mastered, being a member of the firm of Burke Bros. He first came into the public limelight when he was elected from the Fourth ward, as a representative in the first City Council of the new city. He served in 1889 and 1890.

In 1891 and 1892 he was a member of the state legislature representing, what was then the Quincy-Weymouth district. In the fall of 1892 he became the Democratic candidate for Senator but failed of election. In 1894 he was appointed by the late President Cleveland as postmaster of Quincy which position he held for four years. In 1899 he was appointed by the late ex-Mayor Harrison A. Keith, as City Treasurer, which position he held for one year. In the City Treasurer's office at that time was a very estimable young lady, who now bears the name of Mrs. Burke.

In the fall of 1897 he was elected for a three years' term as a member of the school committee from Ward Four. In addition to this he is a member of the board of trustees of the Thomas Crane Public Library, and for many years has been one of the board of trustees of the City Hospital. He is also the president of the Norfolk County Catholic federation.

Some years ago he opened a real estate office in the Savings Bank building and here he has been remarkably successful. He now has the care of a large number of estates and is also the residential agent of a number of insurance companies.

Socially, he is a fine fellow to know, always ready to greet a friend with a glad hand and always ready and willing to do a favor if it is possible. He is also a member of a number of fraternal organizations and as has often been said is of the timber from which Mayors are made.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

"Well, Hawkins, old man," said Witherbee, "has your wife decided where she will spend the summer?"

"Yep," said Hawkins. "She's going abroad."

"So? And how about you?"

"Well, I don't know yet," sighed Hawkins "I haven't decided whether to stay in town or go into bankruptcy."

Johnny's mother bought him a fire engine. He wanted to see how it worked, and of course in a very short time the wheels were off. She was naturally very angry and punished him. When daddy came home he found his small son sitting in the nursery with very red eyes.

"Why, my poor old man," he inquired, "what is the matter?"

"Nuffig," sniffed the small boy.

"But something must be wrong," persisted daddy. "Do tell me."

"Oh, well, if you want to know," said the little boy, "I have just been having an awful row with your wife.'—Tit-Bits.

"But," objected the purists, "there is no such thing as a 'mutual friend.'"

"I say there is such a thing!" impatiently reiterated Dickens. "I'm writing a book about one!"—Chicago Tribune.

ELECTED DELEGATE TO CONVENTION

Charles W. Hanscom, who has been attending the convention of the National Electrical Workers' Union at Rochester, N. Y., returned home this morning. He says an effort was made at the convention to amalgamate with the seceders but was unsuccessful. Mr. Hanscom was elected as a delegate to the National convention of the American Federation of Labor to be held at Atlanta, Ga., in November.

PEACE CONTEST PRIZES.

Two sets of prizes to be known as the Seabury prizes, are offered for the best essays on one of the following subjects:

1—The opportunity and duty of the schools in the international peace movement. Open to seniors in the normal schools of the United States.

2—The significance of the two Hague peace conferences. Open to seniors in the secondary schools of the United States.

Three prizes of $75, $50 and $25 will be given for the three best essays in both sets. The contest closes March 1, 1912.

Essays must not exceed 5,000 words (a length of 3,000 words is suggested as desirable), and must be written, preferably in typewriting, on one side only of paper, 8-10 inches, with a margin of at least 1 3-4 inches.

The name of the writer must not appear on the essay, which should be accompanied by a letter giving the writer's name, school and home address, and sent to Mrs. Fannie Fern Andrews, secretary American School Peace League, 405 Marlborough street, Boston, Mass., not later than March 1, 1912. Essays should be mailed flat (not rolled.)

The award of the prize will be made at the annual meeting of the league in July, 1912.

ARGENTINA WANTS ARBITRATION

Argentina has actually preceded the United States in recognition of the principle of unlimited arbitration for which President Taft has been striving and embodied in the arbitration treaty between America and Great Britain, now before the United States Senate.

The state department has been advised that when the Argentine Senate ratified the new arbitration treaty with Great Britain it struck out the clause common to the old treaties, excepting questions of vital interest and honor from arbitration.

BANK DIGNITY
It looks well to use checks. Buying a money order or sending a registered letter to pay a bill is expensive, and it doesn't create the impression that you are particularly prosperous. Paying your bills by check helps give you standing. Don't forget, appearances do count for something in this world. For your pride's sake, open a bank account and pay by check.

RULES GOVERNING CONTEST:

Boys and Girls, have you any idea how popular you are? Here is a chance for you to find out; and also secure one of the Six (6) GOLD WATCHES, to be distributed November 4th, 1911 among the Most Popular Boys and Girls under 17 years of age.

HOW TO OBTAIN YOUR VOTES:—For the next sixty days every Green Trading Stamp which you and your parents and friends get, should be pasted in the Stamp Book as usual. You, and your friends who vote for you, will show these stamps to the attendant in the Premium Parlor in the Quincy Department Store. The attendant will count and mark them "VOTED"; register the number of votes (equal to the number of Stamps shown) opposite the name voted for. The Stamps will then be returned to the holder.

The Quincy Daily Ledger will publish a Ballot which, when presented at our Premium Parlor, will entitle the Contestant to five (5) votes.

Various merchants will also publish coupons, each entitling the holder to five (5) votes in the same way.

It is important that you not only urge your friends to get the Stamps whenever they make purchases, but also vote them for you. Get all you can. Vote them for yourself or for someone else in whom you are interested.

Profit by your mother's example in Thrift and Economy by collecting Green Trading Stamps, which bring you so Generous a reward in Beautiful Premiums.

You will materially swell the number of Stamps you get, and the consequent votes you obtain, if you will bring us your HAMILTON BONDS and COUPONS, Tobacco Tags, Soap Wrappers, Labels and Trade-Marks. We will give you Green Trading Stamps for them.

VOTING THE STAMPS DOES NOT IN ANY WAY INTERFERE WITH THEIR BEING REDEEMED FOR PREMIUMS IN THE USUAL WAY.

SUNDAY IN OUR CHURCHES

Topics and Announcements For Coming Week

SUNDAY SCHOOLS

WOLLASTON UNITARIAN CHURCH.

This church accepts the Religion of Jesus, holding, in accordance with his teaching, that practical religion is summed up in love to God and love to man.

The Women's Alliance will meet Wednesday, Oct. 4, at 2.30 o'clock in the vestry. Two papers will be read, one by Mrs. George W. Bennett on "A Look Backward" and teh other by Mrs. W. R. Atwood on "A Look Forward."

The fall meeting of the New England Associate Alliance will be held at Portsmouth, N. H., Thursday, Oct. 5. Mrs. Chandler W. Smith, Mrs. William R. Atwood, Mrs. Carl G. Horst and others from our church will attend.

The biennial fair of the National Young People's Religious Union will be held at Hotel Vendome, Boston, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Nov. 9, 10, 11. Our Union has charge of Doll table and has appointed Misses Simmons, chairman, Marion and Helen Browne, Margaret Hall, Mildred Polk and Ruth Jones.

The proposal to build in Hingham a tower, with a peal of bells, to commemorate the founders of the town of Hingham, has awakened wide interest. October 9 the great mounting stone of Hingham, England, which has lately been brought to this country, will be presented to the Memorial Committee by Right Hon. James Bryce, LL. D. The stone is a large block of flint, measuring about six feet in length, three feet in thickness and three feet in width. For some seven centuries it is believed to have stood in the middle of the village green and the foremothers probably climbed on the pillions behind the forefathers from this mounting block

Rev. Christopher R. Eliot of Boston, gave a most helpful address at the Y. P. R. U. meeting last evening.

Wesley Rhodes will address the Y P. R. U. meeting Sunday evening, Oct. 15.

The first meeting of the Wollaston Unitarian club will be held Tuesday, Oct. 10th. Lafayette G. Blair, the eminent lawyer of Boston and one of the best after-dinner speakers, will address the club on "Giants and Pigmies."

The service of worship yesterday was most helpful. Walter E. Rogers presided at the organ and Waldo F. Bates sang two solos, the thought of which blended most beautifully with the spirit of the hour. The pastor preached a searching sermon from the text "Make the tree good"—Matt. 23-26, saying: "All true reform must touch the inner life of man. Make men vfrtuous and evil haunts will soon close for lack of customers. Make men love sobriety and the saloons will have to shut their doors for want of trade. Make men honest and the gambling halls must go out of business. The machinery that deals with pauperism, crime, lunacy, intemperance has for its material a shameful proportion of those who had they used their minds and bodies rightly, might have been a help to society, instead of a burden, a blessing instead of a curse."

WOLLASTON BAPTIST.

At the morning serivce following the Scripture lesson, the hand of fellowship was extended to Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Colson.

Rev. Joseph Walther's address was a tower of strength and beauty. Subject: "Whose prayer God will hear and not hear."

Immediately following the communion service the Walther and Rand men's classes met, and had a good discussion on "The Prophet Ezekiel a Watchman."

The Junior Endeavor met at 3.30 in the chapel, Miss Ethel M. Campbell in charge.

Y. P. S. C. E. met at 6 in the chapel. Subject: "Lessons from the life of Peter."

Evening worship was held at 7 in the auditorium. The pastor preaching the second of a series of four sermons to men. Subject: "A Weak Strong Man."

Tuesday afternoon at 3.30 the Women's Prayer meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. George H. S. Soule, 127 Prospect avenue and in the evening at 7.45 a cottage prayer meeting will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Roberts, 202 Fayette street. The pastor will lead.

Wednesday evening at 7.45 there will be a church social in the chapel.

Thursday evening at 7.30 there will be a meeting in Kingsley hall, Ford building, Boston, when the funds and properties heretofore administered by the general conference of Free Baptists will be formally transferred to our Baptist Missionary Societies.

Friday evening at 7.45 the regular meeting for praise, prayer and testimony will be held in the chapel and consider the second of several meditations on The Character of Jesus: Subject: "His Sincerity."

FIRST U. P. CHURCH.

There was a good attendance at the morning service. The sermon was taken from Rom 5:10.

An interesting meeting of the Y. P. S. C. E. was well attended.

The Rev. Dr. Lark of England preached in the evening. Topic: "Jesus in Gethsemane." He divided his subject as follows:

1.—The sorrowful Christ.
2.—The praying Christ.
3.—The Reproving Christ.
4.—The victorious Christ.

The address was a simple, earnest, and practical presentation of the truth as embodied in the text. He closed his earnest address with a touching appeal to the unsaved, which brought tears to many eyes.

The choir rendered appropriate music. Had the evening been fair Dr. Lark would have had a packed house, but as it was stormy there were not so many out. Dr. Lark has left behind him pleasant memories of his visit to Quincy.

FIRST CHURCH.

There was an unusually large attendance at the morning service at the First church, Sunday, to welcome Rev. Samuel A. Eliot, D. D. president of the American Unitarian association. Dr. Eliot took his text from Revelations 4:3 "There was a rainbow in the heavens." It was a very scholarly and able address and was listened to with marked attention. After the sermon Dr. Eliot congratulated the parish on the splendid way in which they were supplying the pulpit and the splendid list of pastors, which indicated that the parish was very much alive.

At the session of the Sunday school, there was an attendance of a delegation from Paul Revere Women's Relief corps, who were present to present the school with a handsome silk flag. The opening address was made by Mrs. Emma Marnock, president of the corps and the presentation was made by Mrs. C. P. Gould the patriotic instructor. The flag was received in behalf of the school by Charles H. Johnson, the superintendant. After the reception of it, the school sang "The Star Spangled Banner" and closed with a saluate to the national emblem.

The annual meeting of the Fragment society will be held in the chapel Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

This evening the monthly meeting of the officers and teachers of the Sunday school will be held in the chapel. Important plans for the coming year will be discussed.

FINNISH CONGREGATIONAL.

A business meeting of the church, at which five new members were added, was held on Saturday night. Plans looking to the improvement of the church grounds were considered.

On Sunday, a large number attended the Sunday school, taxing the capacity of the church building to the utmost.

The minister's discourse at the morning service dealt with "Grace and Praise." It was well received. There was a communion service at 4 o'clock and a well attended Y. P. S. C. E. meeting at 5.30.

The pastor leaves this afternoon for a trip to New York and Jersey City, speaking at both places. He returns on Thursday when he will formulate plans to raise the sum of $200 to be applied against the church debt.

BABY GIRL.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Brunton of Great Hill, Houghs Neck, a baby girl, weight 10 pounds. Mother and child are doing well. Mr. Burnton who recently returned from abroad is property manager of the Boston Opera Co.

MEETING TONIGHT.

"Impressions of Our Trip through Europe," will be the subject of a talk by Randolph Frothingham, Esquire, at the meeting of the Men's Club of Christ church, this evening.

—About the only objection which is made against the postal savings bank is heard from in western towns where miners were, in former days accustomed to write checks on commercial banks and cannot do so against the postal bank accounts. The objection comes largely from the saloon men, who complain that when the ready money of the miners is gone they are not able to draw on their savings as formerly. That is passed up as no objection at all. Let the postal banks continue.—Barre, Vt., Times.

ANOTHER WORD ABOUT EVERYBODY'S BIBLE QUESTION BOX

Most strenuous efforts are being made everywhere by people of every shade of thinking to induce persons to study the Bible. The sectarian Christian contends that a thorough understanding of the Scriptures by all would make sectarian Christians of all. The free-thinker contends that such knowledge would make free-thinkers of all. The infidel declares that for all to know the Bible would cause all to consider its writings man inspired, and so on to the end of the category of diverse human opinions.

Our position in publishing EVERYBODY'S BIBLE QUESTION BOX is positively neutral and it must be obvious to all that the publication of explanations of perplexing Bible questions and the possible development of the symbolic language of the Old and New Testaments must necessarily furnish all the opportunity for securing a more satisfactory understanding of the Book that has been subjected to so many various interpretations.

Our object is to give others an opportunity to manifest the truth. Those that firmly believe the Bible to be Jehovah's Law should seek by all manner and means to have a proper understanding of the Book which declares that all Scriptures divinely inspired are for the thorough furnishment of the man of God. To these we offer the medium of EVERYBODY'S BIBLE QUESTION BOX, that they may, by judicious questions, prove the wisdom of their attitude and give good reasons for the faith that is in them. Furthermore, to those that consider the teachings set forth in the Scriptures to be based on Mythology of the past, we say, Now is your chance to prove, if possible, the wisdom of your course. We want every person, believer or skeptic, to know that EVERYBODY'S BIBLE QUESTION BOX is strictly for Bible questions and only the Bible will be considered as a proper authority for answers. No attempt to prove or disprove the fallibility or infallibility of the Bible is desired. What we all should know is, What does the Bible say?

We, in our position of neutrality are not attempting to in any way secure for, or to take away adherents of the Bible, no matter to what denomination one may or may not belong. We believe that Bible adherents should by their Questions be able to prove from Bible authority alone that the Bible teaches the particular doctrines they ascribe to it. If any doctrines are taught as being Scriptural which are not based on the Scriptures, then all should know the fact. We assume that no one knowingly desires to make the Bible appear as authority for unscriptural doctrines. In like manner, if those that have repudiated the Bible because of certain teachings, which they consider as unjust or unreasonable, find as a result of EVERYBODY'S BIBLE QUESTION BOX that they have falsely charged the Bible we assume that they also will gladly reconsider, and agree that the Bible should be its own interpreter and be quoted as teaching only the doctrines contained therein.

SURPRISED BY FRIENDS

Quincy Point Man Tendered Enjoyable Party

THE GUESTS

About fifty friends gathered at the home of Russell Oliver, 14 Souther place last Friday evening and greatly surprised him. The evening was pleasantly spent, games and singing being enjoyed until a late hour. Miss Gertrude Mullen presented Mr. Oliver with a large travelling bag to which the latter responded heartily. During the evening refreshments were served. Among those present were: Misses Mary Kennedy, Mary MacGilvary, Mabel Allen, Ella Mae Melville, Edith Mullen, Beatrice Scoffield, Marion White, Bertha Moran. Gertrude Mullen, Mae Oliver, Marguerite MacDonnell, Catherine Yule, Sadie Mellon, Julia Taylor, Jennie Taylor, Mary Stevens Miss Ruth Dole, and Irene Williams. James O'Toole, James Main, Samuel Yates, Ernest Howell, John MacCarty, John Conway, James Oliver, Edmund Saunders, Edmund Ford, Walter Myatt, John MacIntosh, T. Sullivan, Charles Costello, Steward Sheriff, William Caine, Norman Atlen, Harry Oliver, John and Joseph Pinel, John Delorey, J. Shea, and J. MacGregor . There were many others present.

—Now is the time when American boys should get Cooper's Naval History and read of the brave deeds of our tars in Tripolitan waters in the old times when the Constitution was a new frigate. Cooper tells how the dashing Decatur destroyed our captured Philadelphia under the guns of the Tripoli batteries, and how the devoted Somers and his companions died in the explosion of the Intrepid. Almost every name golden lettered in our naval annals of one hundred years ago is found in the story of our war with Tripoli: Preble, Dale, Decatur, Bainbridge, Somers—a whole host of the brave, real sea-knights. The boyish blood that is not stirred by reading of their achievements is so sluggish that only the "Boy Broker" or How Guy Grabbit Sold His Grandfather Short" is fitted for it. Next let the young student follow Eaton's march across the desert to capture Derne, the first fortress in the old world over which the Stars and Stripes oflated in triumph, an espisode that is real history and stranger than fiction.—Boston Transcript.

BRIEFS

Brockton Fair tomorrow and pleasant weather is wanted.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Fletcher of Granite street are guests of relatives at Pemberton for ten days.

Miss Mabel Wales has given up her room in the Savings Bank building and opened an office in Boston.

Dr. F. S. Andrews of Wollaston is enjoying a brief rest at The Tavern, Grafton, Vermont.

This seems like the old fashioned line storm such as used to arrive the last of September.

Mrs. E. E. Nason is confined to her home on Hall place, West Quincy, seriously ill.

Miss Jennie S. Norrie of Newcomb place, left Saturday for a few weeks visit with friends in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Mitchell of Whitney road have gone to East Weymouth for two weeks.

George H. Brown and family after spending the summer at Kenberma, returned last week to their home on Elm street.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Fairbanks returned Sunday to their home on Granite street after a week's sojourn with relatives at Hull.

Benjamin Johnson and family are preparing to move this week from their summer home at Adams shore, to their home on Hancock street.

At the regular meeting of Maple Lodge K and L of H to be held Wednesday evening in Protection hall Johnson building, a good time is looked forward to, as the entertainment is in the hands of a very able committee. Also a mystery box will be disposed of.

At the annual meeting of the Supreme Lodge K and L of H at Indianaplis last week, Mrs. L. A. E. Harding of Somerville who has held the office of Chaplain for several years, was unanimously reelected and Maple Lodge K and L of H No. 313 of this city as well as friends extend congratulations to her.

—The campaign for lower car steps which is being started is one we are in thorough sympathy with. One would think that street car managers would have enough regard for the comfort and safety of their patrons to look out for such things but they do not seem to. It is almost necessary to carry around a step ladder in order to get on to some of the cars and as to dismounting it is a case of jump and trust to luck.—Waltham Free Press.

ANCIENTS BOAT GETS BUMPED

A pleasant night on the steamer Commonwealth when the 360 officers and men of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company made merry to the inspiring music of the company's band was the forerunner of as delightful a morning as could be wished. The wind was from the West and gives promise of escorting the good ship Oceana well on her journey toward the Bermudas.

The disagreeable march through Boston's streets on Friday afternoon had been forgotten, and only the thoughts of a pleasant continuing voyage remained with the veteran artillerymen. The members of the company had an early breakfast, as the Commonwealth steamed down the East river, and when the pier was made everybody was in readiness to board the Annex boat.

In backing out of the Fall River line pier in New York this morning the annex boat on which was the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company, was forced into a corner of a car float lying at the next pier, carrying away several windows on the port side and tearing up several of the seats in the cabin.

Several Ancients were in the cabin at the time, but they were unhurt. The accident caused but litle excitement and the boat proceeded to Jersey City without further incident.

A short run across the North river and the travellers were alongside the big steamer, and with no confusion the company marched on board and were soon established in their new quarters. At 10 A. M. the Oceana cast off from the wharf and pointed her bow toward the sea.

JUDGE SHERMAN RESIGNS

On Massachusetts Superior Court Bench For Many Years

Boston, Oct. 2.—Judge Edgar J. Sherman, who has been a justice of the superior court since 1887 and is one of the best known justices in the state, sent his resignation to Governor Foss today.

The judge retires under chaper 527 of the acts of 1911, which provides that "a justice of the superior court having attained the age of 75 years, and having served in said court for at least ten consecutive years, may retire from active service, and shall thereafter perform service only with his own consent on the written request of the chief justice of the court.

"He shall during the remainder of his life receive an amount equal to three-quarters of the salary which was by law payable to him at the time of his retirement."

RODGERS RUNS INTO THREE RAINSTORMS

Aviator Lost From View For Hours During Wild Flight

Huntington, Ind., Oct. 2.—Aviator C. P. Rodgers, who is contesting for the W. R. Hearst price of $50,000 in a flight from coast to coast, landed here Sunday afternoon after a day full of thrills and in which his life was endangered several times.

Rodgers ran into three rainstorms while flying 1500 feet high. For several hours he was lost sight of, and even when he landed, all trace of him was lost to his manager and others. He had been carried about twenty-five miles out of his course. At one time he was lost to view in the clouds.

Rodgers expects to reach Chicago this afternoon.

"MAKE-UP" CREATED SENSATION

A man, wearing a straw rat, a pair of sneakers and an overcoat, created quite a sensation on Hancock street last Saturday evening as he was making his way from South Quincy to Quincy square. It seems that he was walking along Water street, when his unique method of vesture attracted the attention of a number of boys and young men who happened to be in the vicinity. He immediately became a great drawing card and within a short time a throng of onlookers was fast closing up the rear as he gradually advanced.

As he wended his way along the business section, he was seen to cast a haggard glance into the windows of the different stores and finally he was seen to make his advent into the five and ten. His stay there was short, and he began to walk back towards the South Quincy section. He had proceeded but a short distance, when his eyes encountered something which seemed to be mostenticing, and by a strange coincidence, he entered a gent's furnishing store, just as the bell in the square was tolling the curfew. He remained there for some time and the crowd that had followed him, evidently assuming that he had decided to get into the fashion of the season, disbursed after a diligent trail. He will in all probability be looked for next Saturday.

BRIEFS

Misses Evelyn Cummings and Margaret Taylor both of whom underwent an operation recently are doing well.

Mayor Shea goes away this week for a ten days trip. He will return however before the regular council meeting Oct. 16.

If Brockton fair weather is to prevail this year, as usual, it will clear up before Tuesday morning, the opening day of the fair.

A regular meeting of the City Council is scheduled to be held tonight. Considerable business of importance wil come up for action.

But for the stormy weather in September, that Hancock job would have been finished long ago. As it is workmen have only been able to work on an average of three days a week.

James Duncan, secretary-treasurer of the Granite Cutters union and vice president of the American Federation of Labor, who has been travelling through Europe for the past two months, returned home Saturday. He reports having had a very fine trip.

AVIATORS AT BROCKTON.

Harry N. Atwood and Lincoln Beachey, probably the best known and most successful of this country's aviators, will both appear in the air at the Big Brockton Fair, October 3, 4, 5, 6. This is a splendid opportunity to see the famous birdmen, together withthe splendid program for which this Fair is justly celebrated. The general attractions have not been curtailed in any way and it will be the same big show with Atwood and Beachey as an added feature.

NEVER SAW HIS WIFE

Man Married Fifteen Years Is About to Take Trip Home

San Francisco, Oct. 2.—Samuel K. Silva, a track walker employed in the snow sheds of the Southern Pacific company, has been granted leave to return to Portugal for his delayed honeymoon after fifteen years of married life, during which time he has never seen his bride.

"I've never seen her and we've been married fifteen years now," Silva wrote to the company, and explained that the marriage with a sweetheart of his boyhood days had been celebrated under the contract form recognized in Portugal.

Silva was placed on pension by the railroad as soon as his remarkable record in its employ was looked up. It is estimated that he walked 603,670 miles in the thirty-one years he has tramped the track under the sheds, and during the whole time he missed but two days.

HUMAN BEINGS TRAPPED

been so badly battered by the tossing debris they were beyond recognition, while others had been carried along with no apparent injury.

Many were caught in burning buildings, and it will be days before the real extent of the calamity will be known.

No Warning of Catastrophe

The flood came without the slightest warning. The principal street of Austin was overwhelmed quicker than it takes to tell of it. The rushing waters filled the valley from side to side.

The fury of the flood was terrific. Houses were torn to pieces and carried away on the crest of the waves. Wreckage was hurled high in the air.

The dam was built of logs. It was located between two hills above the town in such a position the rushing waters could not but sweep over practically the entire community. Some of the houses on the hillsides escaped serious damage. The central part of the town, however, was literally wiped out.

The dam was located on the Sinnamahoning creek. The water caught a number of freight cars near the station and they were carried down the valley with the wreckage of the railroad buildings.

The hotels in the town were destroyed, and as they were located directly in the path of the torrent, no one is thought to have escaped from them.

Buildings Wrecked by Logs

The big pulp mill was right in the path of the flood and a huge quantity of logs was carried against the town, adding to the horrors of the disaster. The impact of the logs likely accounts for the wrecking of the buildings so completely.

The survivors are in a frenzy. There is no organization, the town being dazed by the force of the calamity, which came without a moment's warning. Hundreds of men, women and children searched through the ruins of the village for their families and friends.

The little town of Costello, three miles below Austin, was annihilated. The population is between 400 and 500 persons. Practically every building in the town was levelled by the torrent which came from Austin.

Telephone Girl a Heroine

Huddled among several hundred other refugees on the hills above Austin's valley of death is a modest young girl of 19 years, the heroine of the terrible disaster, to whose presence of mind and bravery probably hundreds owe their lives. She is Pauline Lyons, the operator in the telephone exchange at Austin.

Until noon Sunday the few who gave the girl a thought fancied that she was only one of the hundreds of dead. The girl's experiences as the deluge swept down the ill-fated valley is best told by herself:

"I was just preparing to leave my board when I heard a sound like distant thunder up the valley," said Miss Lyons yesterday afternoon.

"Then I had a call from a station near the dam and a man's voice cried: 'The dam is broken. Tell as many as you can. Tell them at Costello.' I afterwards learned that the man wa Harry Davis, a railroad engineer on the Bulaffo and Susquehanna.

"The first thing I did was to have all the whistles in the town blown and the bells rung, for I thought that the people in Austin still had a chance. The noise became louder and louder, almost deafening. It sounded as though a thousand trees were snapping like twigs right by my ears. I worked as fast as I could, ringing up homes and particularly in party lines.

"The Dam Is Broken"

"'The dam is broken,' was all I called. The exchange was located in the bank building with the postoffice.

"From the window I could see rolling down toward the townsite the great mass of wood pulp and water. We were on higher ground than many buildings, and I felt that my chances were better than the other people in the lower lands. The whistles were blowing and the bells ringing, adding to the frightful roar. So deafening did everything become that I could scarcely hear my own voice.

"I suppose I put about three calls into Costello. I hoped and prayed then that the poor people down the valley would escape to the hills before the flood reached them. Then my board failed to work.

"I remember nothing clearly as to what followed. How I left the building and reached higher ground I never will be able to tell. Probably it was the deafening, rolling thunder that distracted me."

THINGS OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

In this column we publish from day to day recipes and other notes especially interesting to women.

Cut them and paste in scrap book for reference.

VACATION WORK.

Just How to Make a Dainty Little Handkerchief.

ALL READY FOR CHRISTMAS.

The Materials Required and the Best Way In Which to Use Them—The Linen Bag a Charming Accessory For the Summer Gown.

To make this practical though dainty and lacelike handkerchief will not strain eyes nor nerves, neither will it require a great amount of time. In fact, one may turn out several as Christmas gifts during the summer vacation, thus taking "time by the forelock."

Materials needful are an eleven inch square of fine sheer handkerchief linen, two and a half yards of princess lace braid, either one or two kinds—any of the pretty narrow ones are nice—a very little, say, ten yards, of real Battenburg lace thread, No. 500; half a skein of fine white embroidery cotton and a little white cotton, No. 90. To make the handkerchief, hunt up—or buy—an old renaissance lace pattern having graceful small designs, or draw something for corners. Baste your braid over the pattern, "whip" it neatly into shape, work your lace stitches, now press each piece before removing it, rip them off carefully and put aside to be used a little later.

Measure the linen the size you want it, and draw a thread to insure straightness; sew a row of braid to the linen this way; hold the braid toward you, with the linen about six threads beyond the braid; whip it on, taking the stitches closely, with fine thread and fine needle; this is the method employed in convents and on all fine French work; it gives the appearance of a rolled hem without all the tedious work; let the braid be held full at the corners only, and not along the sides, it is newer; join neatly by turning in the edges; overcast a second row of braid to the first one. Baste the finished motifs in each corner, being sure they are perfectly straight, buttonhole them to the linen, taking the stitches very close, but not allowing them to overlap, as that will spoil the best work. With small scissors cut the linen from underneath; place the handkerchief on a damp cloth, face downward; press it on the wrong side (over a soft surface), with a moderately hot iron until thoroughly dry, and if you are at all a neat needleworker you will undoubtedly be delighted with the result.

This handkerchief costs about 50 cents to make and is worth at least $2.50 when finished. Should you care to spend more time on it, and if it is to be used as a gift, an initial or monogram in one corner is a beautiful addition.

The dainty linen bag is a charming adjunct for a summer toilet. The shops carry these bag patterns ready stamped for embroidering. The bag illustrated is of white linen, embroidered in delft shades.

A Use For Fig Baskets.

The little round baskets in which figs are so often sold are worth saving. In most households they are thrown away as soon as the figs are eaten. Often the figs are removed by a servant and the basket immediately thrown away without any one noticing how pretty it is.

A girl who likes to have things served in original ways can make use of these little baskets if she will take the trouble to save them. They are quite flat and much the same shape as a saucer, and berries served in one of these little baskets really seem to taste fresher. Especially does one get the effect of newly picked berries if the basket is first lined with leaves and the berries laid on the leaves. If it is possible to get the leaves of the particular berry that is used it will give the best effect, but if they are not in reach other green leaves will do very well.

A Trunk Rug.

A trunk rug for the guest room will protect a pretty carpet or matting from the disfiguring marks often made by a visitor's trunk. The rug may be of the same material as the floor covering and cut a little larger than a good sized trunk. Take care to see that an incoming trunk is set squarely on the rug.

HOUSEHOLD RECIPES.

Cucumber Pickles. Wash small cucumbers and put in a brine strong enough to bear up an egg. Leave over night. In the morning take from the salt water and put in fresh water with a small piece of alum and a little vinegar, and bring almost to a scald. Do not allow them to boil or the cucumbers will soften. Take from this water and pack in jars. Have ready hot spiced vinegar made in the proportion of one gallon vinegar, one cupful sugar, one tablespoonful each white mustard seed, celery seed and stick cinnamon. Boil a short time, pour over the cucumbers and seal.

Peach Snow. One can of peaches, two heaping tablespoonfuls of powdered gelatine, two cupfuls of peach juice and water, four tablespoonfuls of sugar and one teaspoonful of lemon juice. Strain the peach juice and make it up to two cupfuls with water. Put it into a saucepan with the gelatine then dissolve it over the fire, add the sugar and lemon juice. Strain and when cdol add gradually beaten whites of four eggs, beating all the time, then pour into a wet mold. Turn out at serving time and decorate with the peaches.—Minneapolis Star.

Beef Soup with Okra. Cut a pound of round steak in small pieces and fry in two tablespoons of butter, with an onion sliced, until all are very brown. Put into a soup kettle with two quarts of cold water. Simmer an hour, then add salt, pepper and a can of okra, or a pint of fresh okra sliced. Strain and serve.

Corned Beef Hash. Use one part of meat to two of potatoes, using one-fourth part fat meat. Chop very fine rejecting every bit of bone gristle and skin. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Put a little hot water or beef stock in the bottom of a spider, add a tablespoon of butter, and as soon as melted turn into hash. Simmer slowly until it has absorbed the water and formed a soft brown crust. Do not let it get too dry, but do not stir. Fold like an omlet, or if preferred, serve in a round dish, crust uppermost.

Beefsteak Pie. Beefsteak pie is very good when made from the cold steak left from a dinner. Cut the steak in one-inch pieces. If it does not seem perfectly tender, cook 10 minutes in a pint of stock then place in a deep baking dish with the stock adding more if necessary. Allow two large cold boiled potatoes, diced a very little minced onion and a tablespoon of butter; dredge lightly with flour and cover with a short biscuit dough. Bake about 20 minutes in a hot oven.

Peanut Drops. One cupful of peanuts (one quart)' one-half cupful of confectioner's sugar, one white of egg Roll or pound the peanuts. Mix with the sugar and beaten white of egg. Mould the mixture into balls, and bake on a buttered tin sheet in a hot oven for five or 10 minutes.

CONSPIRATORS CAUGHT

Portuguese Royalists Are Taken After Some Firing by Troops

Oporto, Oct. 2.—More than 100 royalists have been arrested, and other arrests are being made, following the discovery of a monarchist conspiracy here. Considerable firing by the troops attended the arrests.

The government had been informed that the bulk of the royalists were hidden at the crystal palace in Oporto. The place was surrounded by troops and an entrance forced, but the conspirators had been warned and escaped through the palace gardens a short time before the cordon had been made complete.

A number of sergeants of the army accused of conniving with the royalists were arrested.

Murder Suspects Arrested

Agawam, Mass., Oct. 2.—Two Polanders, known to the police only as Anton and Stefan, were arrested here in connection with the murder of Mrs. Rose Umansky at Granville.

Thirteen Years For Romeo

Rutland, Vt., Oct. 2.—Found guilty of manslaughter, Frank Romeo, who shot and killed Vito Montemourro here, was sentenced to thirteen years in state prison.

Why is the soda cracker to-day such a universal food?

People ate soda crackers in the old days, it is true—but they bought them from a barrel or box and took them home in a paper bag, their crispness and flavor all gone.

To-day there is a soda cracker which is the recognized staple — Uneeda Biscuit.

Uneeda Biscuit are the most nutritious food made from flour and should be eaten every day by every member of the family from the youngest to the oldest.

Uneeda Biscuit—soda crackers better than any ever made before—made in the greatest bakeries in the world—baked to perfection—packed to perfection—kept to perfection until you take them, oven-fresh and crisp, from their protecting package.

At the District Court of East Norfolk, holden at Quincy, within the County of Norfolk for civil business, on the eighth day of September, A. D. 1911., Calvin G. Fletcher of Quincy in the County of Norfolk, Plaintiff, vs The Leland Company, a corporation duly established by law, having a usual place of business in the City, County and State of New York, but having property in the County of Norfolk, defendant.

This is an action of Contract to recover Three Hundred dollars alleged to be due to the Plaintiff from the Defendant on the fourteenth day of August, A. D. 1911 as set forth in the Plaintiff's writ of that date.

And it appearing to the Court by the suggestion of the Plaintiff and on inspection of the officers return on the Plaintiff's writ, that the Defendant is not an inhabitant of this Commonwealth, nor resident therein at the time of the service of said writ, that it has no last and usual place of abode, tenant, agent or attorney in this Commonwealth known to the Plaintiff or to said officer; and that no personal service of said writ has been made upon the defendant.

It is ordered by the Court, here, that the Plaintiff give notice to the Defendant of the pendency of this action, and to appear before said Court, on Saturday, the seventh day of October, A. D. 1911, to answer to the same, by causing an attested copy of this order to be published in the Quincy Daily Ledger, a newspaper published in said Quincy, once in a week, three weeks successively; and that this action be continued to the said seventh day of October, or until notice shall be given to the Defendant agreeably to this order.

Loretta B. Crane, Libellant,
vs.
Loretta B. Crane, Libellant,
Libel for Divorce.

Respectfully represents Loretta B. Crane of Quincy in our County of Norfolk that she was lawfully married to said Herbert N. Crane, recently of said Quincy, now of parts unknown to your libellant in said Quincy, on the eighth day of June A. D. 1908, that they continued to live in said Quincy ever since; that one child has been born to your libellant and libellee, Herbert N. Crane, a minor. That your libellant has always been faithful to her marriage vows and obligations but the said Herbert N. Crane being wholly regardless of the same and being of sufficient ability grossly, wantonly and cruelly refused and neglected to provide suitable maintenance for your libellant: that immediately after said marriage said libellee utterly deserted your libellant, said utter desertion continuing for more than three years next prior to the filing of this libel. Wherefore your libellant prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony may be decreed between your libellant and the said Herbert N. Crane and that the libellant may have the care and custody of said minor child free from any interference on the part of the libellee. Dated this twenty-eighth day of August A. D. 1911.

Norfolk ss. Superior Court

On the foregoing Libel, it is ordered that the Libellant give notice to the said Herbert N. Crane the Libellee, to appear before the Justices of this Court, to be holden at Dedham, within and for said County, on the first Monday of November next, by causing an attested copy of said Libel and of this order thereon, to be published once in a week for three successive weeks, in the Quincy Daily Ledger, a newspaper printed at Quincy in the County of Norfolk, the last publication to be fourteen days at least before the said first Monday of November next, and further, by sending through the mail, as soon as may be, by a registered letter addressed to the last known residence of the said Herbert N. Crane an attested copy of said Libel and of this order thereon that the said Herbert N. Crane may then and there show cause why the prayer of said Libel should not be granted.

By the Court,
LOUIS A. COOK, Clerk.

WOMEN'S WORK IN FOUNDRIES

Declared to Be a Menace to State and Nation

MASS MEETING AT BOSTON

Employment of Women at Less Than Half Man's Pay Should Be Forbidden, In the Opinion of Speakers—Assertion That Labor Laws Are Not Enforced—Employers Whitewashed In State Police Report

Boston, Oct. 2.—Faneuil hall echoed with the cheers of people who packed it to overflowing and who sent forth the declaration that it was against the spirit of Americanism, and especially of the commonwealth of Massachusetts and of Boston, to employ women in foundries and in other callings dangerous and and a menace to the social health of the community.

The mammoth meeting was in protest against the continued employment of women in Massachusetts under conditions such as were recently revealed in foundries, as brought to light by J. F. Sheehan, president of the Holyoke Moulders' union, before the state convention at Haverhill, and since investigated by the Boston press and by social workers.

The many speakers, including labor leaders and social workers, told of conditions as they had been found. They declared against the employment of women under these conditions, which they asserted were at best degrading, made for the destruction of womanhood and motherhood, and must eventually be a menace to the state and nation, as well as the immediate community.

It was asserted that, whether the women were willing to work under such conditions or not, it was the right and duty of the commonwealth to forbid it, because in so working they must work for less than half a man's pay, under circumstances tending to ultimate destruction of the family and morality.

It was charged that little by little these women have been called on to do heavier and heavier work, until they threaten to drive out men from the business.

It was alleged that in Massachusetts women have been asked to perform labor the Indians and Eskimos will not permit their women to do.

It was maintained that although Massachusetts has the best labor laws of any state, they are not enforced, because the state police have too many other duties to attend to and are unable to devote the necessary time. It was consequently urged that a factory commission or some other body, whose exclusive duty it shall be to enforce labor laws and inspect factories, is imperative.

Finally resolutions were passed setting forth the present inhuman employment of women in Massachusetts, protesting it, requesting political parties to declare against such conditions in their platforms.

Chief Whitney of the state police, in a report to Governor Foss on the women foundry workers, completely whitewashed the firms that employed them and said the women coremakers were working under healthful, moral and lawful conditions.

His report covered the report of the Walworth Manufacturing company in South Boston, the George F. Blake foundry in Cambridge and the B. F. Sturtevant Blower works in Hyde Park.

CALL IT AN ACCIDENT

Boston Socialists Parade With Union Jack Upside Down

Boston, Oct. 2.—Police headquarters and all the downtown stations yesterday sent out squads of policemen, following information received at headquarters that the United States flag was being carried upside down in the Socialist parade en route for Faneuil hall where a ratification meeting was to be held on the Socialist state ticket.

At the Socialist headquarters it was afterward stated that the incident was beyond a doubt an accident.

The flag, with the stars at the bottom, was witnessed by numerous spectators all along the route. The result has been that prominent members of several patriotic societies have become aroused, and will urge the police to apprehend those responsible.

DROWNS HER BABY AND TRIES SUICIDE

Deed of Wife of Organist Who Suddenly Becomes Insane

Brockton, Mass, Oct. 2.—After drowning her baby daughter, Helen, aged 2 years, in the bathtub, Mrs. Florence Bridgwood was discovered by neighbors as she was trying to end her own life at her home here.

Mrs. Bridgwood is the wife of Fred Bridgwood, who was absent from home Sunday attending to his duties as organist at Trinity Episcopal church in Stoughton. She is 24 years old.

When Mr. and Mrs. Edgar C. Hill, who occupy an apartment under that of the Bridgwoods, smelled gas strongly, they investigated and found Mrs. Bridgwood seated in a chair in her bathroom with a rubber tube in her mouth, connected with an opened gas fixture. The lifeless body of the little girl lay in the bathtub beside the woman.

Mrs. Bridgwood was unconscious but was given medical attention and revived. Later she was examined by physicians and declared insane. She will be removed to the Taunton insane hospital today.

EARLE WINS NOMINATION

Result of Quaker City Fight Is Pleasing to Penrose

Philadelphia, Oct. 2.—George H. Earle, supported by the forces behind Senator Penrose, won the Republican nomination for mayor over William S. Vare.

Tripoli Said to Have Been Bombarded, but No Details Are Permitted to Be Given Out by Italians, Who Have Possession of Cable—They Suffer No Losses In Naval Encounters, While Loss of Life on Turkish Side Is Not Known—Turks' Tactics In Tripoli Will Be Guerrilla War

Constantinople, Oct. 2.—It is officially confirmed that the Italian squadron, under the command of the Duke of Abruzzi, has bombarded Prevesa.

It is announced from Janina that two Italian warships bombarded the port of Roschadie and torpedo boats lying in that harbor, one of which was damaged and landed her crew.

The Italian ships entered the port and shelled the town, several houses being struck.

After taking soundings they left, and later entered Port Musto, taking the captain of the port and three boatmen prisoners.

Official announcement is made that Italian forces have landed near Prevesa.

The porte has notified the powers of the suspension of the lighthouse services in the Red sea, the Mediterranean, the Dardanelles, the Aegean and Adriatic.

The Italian workmen in the government factories have been dismissed.

The Italians employed on the construction of railways in Asia Minor are abandoning work and leaving the country.

Prevesa is a Turkish seaport which has once before been bombarded by a hostile fleet. During the Greek-Turkish war in 1897 the Greeks shelled the town, but failed to compel its surrender. The population of the town is about 7000, mostly Greeks and Albanians. It has three ancient forts, but its main protection is a series of wide sand spits, which prevent large warships from entering the harbor.

Nothing Definite From Tripoli

From Tripoli, which is the foremost objective of Italian aggression, conflicting reports continue to reach the outer world.

The most definite of these is that the Italian fleet began a bombardment, but no details beyond the bald announcement was permitted to be given out.

The Italians have possession of the Tripoli end of the single cable which runs from that port to Malta and Malta describes it as blocked with official messages.

Only the consuls and a few correspondents remain in Tripoli. The rest of the Europeans who lingered to the eleventh hour escaped on merchant vessels when the announcement of the bombardment was given, many fleeing panic-stricken with the few effects they could carry.

The Italian navy is harrassing the Turkish shops whefever they can strike them. Italian destroyers sank a Turkish torpedo boat near Prevesa, captured a yacht and a steamer with five Turkish officers and 162 soldiers aboard, in the same neighborhood.

The Italians suffered no losses in the naval encounters, and the loss of life on the Turkish side is not known.

Prospects of a Fight

If the Turkish squadron is proceeding from Beirut to Constantinople, which some naval officers question, there seems a good prospect of the Italian ships coming to grips with it.

A general army mobilization has been ordered in all the Turkish provinces. From all parts of the interior of the empire, from the Sheiks and the Mussulmen of Tripoli fiery telegrams have been received by the sultan expressing their readiness to shed every drop of blood for th country and Islam.

At Salonica bloody encounters have occurred between the authaorities and the Italians desirous of leaving. Similar scenes are reported from other big centres. An anti-Italian boycott has commenced in many cities.

Great excitement prevails and the grand vizier and his cabinet are accused of sleeping while Italy was making effective preparations. Great indignation is expressed against Germany, whose flag has been hoisted on an Italian dispatch vessel now here and on Italian houses in Tripoli.

Some of the papers are preaching a holy war against the Christians. The Turkish tactics in Tripoli will be simply guerrilla war, as Turkey has no other alternative.

SETTLEMENT WITH SINGER

Cavalieri Agrees to Accept More Than $75,000 From Chanler

New York, Oct. 2.—Lina Cavalieri has accepted a cash sum for all claims upon Robert W. Chanler, his income and his property, real or personal. The exac tsum of the settlement is not definitely known, but it is more than $75,000, and probably something less than $100,000.

That the singer had finally consented to follow the advice of her lawyers and accept a cash settlement was told by one of the counsel involved, who said that when the French court opens the necessary papers will be filed, and then Chanler or Cavalieri or both will get a divorce.

SHOOTING AT BRAINTREE

Italian In Fight Sunday Night Shot In Leg

ASSAILANT ESCAPED

There was quite a serious shooting affray at Braintree about 10 o'clock Sunday night, during which an Italian named Rocco Cstido was shot and seriously wounded.

The shooting is alleged to have been done by Vincenzo Gaglierdo who succeeded in making his escape and up to noon had not been apprehended.

The curious fact about the affair was that although it is alleged to have taken place Sunday night, it was not until late this morning when the police were notified. Chief Loring was in attendance at court in Quincy when he was telephoned about the affair and hastened to Braintree. Although the police have a good description of the man wanted the fact that he had several hours start in which to get away makes it all the harder for the police to apprehend him.

Chief Loring notified the police of Boston and surrounding towns and cities giving them a description of the man wanted and is in hopes that he may be captured.

It appears that the two men were walking along the tracks near South Braintree when they got into a dispute. After wrangling for a time it is alleged that Vincenzo drew a revolver and shot his companion, the bullet entering the right groin. After shooting, Vincenzo ran away. The wounded man walked to his boarding house but did not complain much and did not say anything about the shooting but immediately went to bed. This morning he was in a bad condition and Dr. Brett was called. After dressing the wound the doctor sent the man to the Massachusetts General hospital. Dr. Brett then notified the police.

ADMIRAL SCHLEY COLLAPSES ON A NEW YORK STREET

Popular Hero was Striken Dead When on His Way to Yacht Club

Commanded Squandron Which Destroyed Spanish Fleet

New York, Oct. 3.—Rear Admiral Winfield Scott Schley, retired, dropped dead yesterday afternoon in front of the Berkeley theatre on Forty-Fourth street.

The admiral's death is attributed to cerebral hemorrhage, which attacked him shortly after he and Mrs. Schley had reached New York from a visit to Mt. Kisco, and he had called at the New York Yacht club for his mail.

Admiral Schley, popular hero of the sea battle off Santiago July 3, 1898, and long prior to that famous as the rescuer of Lieutenant Greely and the other survivors of the Greely Arctic expedition in 1884, had a distinguished career as a naval officer. His part in the unfortunate controversy arising out of the destruction of the Spanish fleet off the southern coast of Cuba in the recent war with Spain brought him international attention. Popular feeling generally negatived the claims of the late Admiral Sampson to the credit of the victory and accorded it to Schley.

The latter was born near Frederick City, Md., Oct. 9, 1859. He was appointed to the naval academy from Maryland in 1856, and graduated in 1860. He was promoted to midshipman June 30 of the same year and was rapidly advanced in rank for conspicuous services in the Civil war that followed soon after his advent as a naval officer.

At the outbreak of the war with Spain he was made commander of the flying squaron of Admiral Sampson's fleet. During the temporary absence of Sampson occurred the historic chase and destruction of Admiral Cevera's Spanish fleet off Santiago by the flying squadron under the direct command of Commander Schley.

Bitter controversy followed Sampson's claim of the honors of that battle, and it was not quieted by President Roosevelt's dictum that the fight was a "captain's battle." Sampson, although generally the recipient of official credit for the tactical conduct of the fight, never received popular credit for his undoubted part in planning for the contingency that occurred.

At the close of the war with Spain, Schley was made commander of the South Atlantic squadron and in October, 1901, he was retired. For his services at the battle of Santiago he was presented with a gold sword by the people of Pennsylvania, a silver sword by the Royal Arcanum, a gold and jeweled sword with the thanks of the Maryland legislature, and a silver service.

REAR ADMIRAL SCHLEY

Gained Fame as Naval Leader In Two Wars

He was the author of the "Rescue of Greely," 1885; and "Forty-five Years Under the Flag," 1904. Of the battle of Santiago, he said:

"I know as much about the battle off Santiago as anybody else does, and some day my story may be published. It will not be until after I am dead, though. I don't care to discuss the fight at all. You know that partial writers don't write history. History is written long after partial writers are dead. History will know all about the battle of July 3."

Efforts were made during the controversy to asperse his conduct in directing the course of his flagship Brooklyn when the Spaniards steamed out of Santiago harbor.

WILL GIVE HEARING.

The Board of Health will give at its rooms in the basement of City hall, Thursday evening, on the application of the Wollaston coal company to erect a stable for ten horses on Weston avenue, Wollaston. The hearing is called for 7.30 and as there is considerable opposition to the erection of a stable in this vicinity there is sure to be a large remonstrance.

COMMITTEE APPOINTED TO CONFER WITH GAS CO. AND COMMISSIONERS

Short But Important Meeting of City Council Was Held on Monday Night

Special Committee Also Appointed to Investigate the Street Car Service

A short but important meeting of the City Council was held Monday evening. There were practically no discussions, although several were anticipated upon some of the reports of the Finance Committee.

The absent members were Councilmen Sodergren and Studley.

President Bryant announced the appointment of a committee to investigate the Woodward Fund and Property as provided by the City Ordinances. The Committee is Councilman Branch, Bailey and Cherrington.

President Bryant also appointed Councilman Richards, Nowland and Bailey as the special committee, under the resolution adopted at the last meeting of the Council to confer with the Gas Company and Gas Commissioners relative to a reduction in the price of gas.

President Bryant also appointed Councilmen Duffy, Nowland, Craig, Forde, Leslie and Sodergren as the special committee on the street car service, under a resolution passed at the last meeting of the Council.

W. F. Loud & Co. asked that their application for a permit to transport liquor be withdrawn. The application was taken from the committee and placed on file.

Mrs. W. F. Pyyny asked to have her license as a common victualler transferred. Referred to Committee on Licenses.

The Bay State Street Railway Co. and the New England Telephone Co. petitioned for a joint location of poles on Sea street. Referred to Committee on Streets.

Councilman Gardner presented a petition for the acceptance of a part of Davis street. Referred to Committee on Streets.

Councilman Richards presented a petition for the acceptance of Vernon street. Referred to Committee on Streets.

Councilman Gardner presented a petition for lights on Cherrington road, Thatcher street and Ellerton road. Referred to the Executive.

HEARING ORDERED.

The Committee on Streets reported an order for a public hearing Oct. 16, on petitions of the Telephone Co. and Street Railway Co. for a location for poles. Adopted.

PARK COMMISSIONERS.

The Finance Committee reported an order for $700 to paint and repair bath house. Ordered to a second reading.

NEPONSET BRIDGE.

The Finance Committee reported an amendment to the order for $2,500 to replank Neponset bridge. The amendment added the borrowing clause. Ordered to a second reading.

WATER EXTENSIONS.

The Finance Committee reported to pass on the order for $10,000 for water extensions. Rules suspended and order passed.

CROSSWALK.

The Finance Committee reported an amendment to the order for a crosswalk in City Square, adding the borrowing clause. Ordered to a second reading.

CONTAGEOUS DISEASES.

The Finance Committee reported an order for $7,940.73 for contageous diseases of the Board of Health. Ordered to a second reading.

GARBAGE.

The Finance Committee reported an order for $2,000 for the collection of garbage by the Board of Health. Ordered to a second reading.

SIDEWALK.

The Finance Committee reported to pass on the order for $340 additional for a granolithic sidewalk on West Elm avenue. Ordered to a second reading.

SCAVENGER WORK.

The Finance Committee reported an order for $1,000 for scavenger work. Ordered to a second reading.

GAS MAINS.

The Committee on Streets reported an order granting the Gas Co. permission to lay mains on Fenno street. Ordered to a second reading.

STATE AID.

The Committee on State Aid reported an order granting Soldiers Relief. Adopted.

PUBLIC HEARING.

A public hearing was held at 8 o'clock on petitions of the Electric Light Co. for a location for poles. Supt. Austin stated that the poles were for the purpose of extending the service of the company.

Councilman Craig asked about the poles on Garfield street. He said the new poles set were so near the inside edge of the sidewalk that it would be impossible for a snow plow to get by them. He had measured the width of a plow and the width of the sidewalk and he knew.

PLENTY OF POLITICAL TIMBER

Names Galore Already Mentioned of Candidates to Succeed Mayor Shea

Ledgers sold like hot cakes Monday afternoon, when the bulletin posted in front of the office announced that Mayor Shea had declared himself on the Mayorality question. The announcement of the Mayor came somewhat as a surprise. Many believed that he would again be a candidate and politicians were somewhat at sea as to what the outcome would be. Now that the announcement has been made, however, aspirants to the office need not be backward about declaring themselves.

That there will be a surplus of candidates for the voters at the municipal caucuses from which to select there is no qustion, as the Republicans have already mentioned a number of names. Among these are ex-Councilmen Stone, Hobbs, Nichols, ex-Senator Hultman, John L. Miller, chairman of the school committee, Representative L. F. R. Langelier, Representative W. R. Thomas and others to come.

Among the democrats but few names have, as yet, been mentioned. The most prominent of these is James F. Burke who has held many positions of trust.

The announcement of Mayor Shea was as much of a surprise to the office holders at City Hall, as any one, for they had not been given even a hint as to what was coming. Mayor Shea said, after making his announcement, that he could now have a little peace and could enjoy his vacation.

MURDERER CAPTURED IN BOSTON

Man Who Injured Brother in Quarrel Found By Boston Police

Peter Cassette, who was wanted by the police of Weymouth for the murder of his brother Nicholas, at East Weymouth, during a drunken quarrel Sunday, was arrested by the police of Station 5, Boston, late Monday night.

Monday afternoon Peter went to Boston to see his four children who have been in the St. Vincent de Paul's orphan aslyum since the death of their mother. Here he was found by Boston officers who placed him under arrest. This morning, Chief Fitzgerald and Officer Butler went to Boston and brought Peter to Quincy. He was arraigned in court on a charge of murder in the first degree. He was represented by Frank M. Zottoli who entered a plea of not guilty. Peter was then held without bail until Saturday when he will be given a hearing.

It is alleged that Sunday afternoon, Peter and his brother Nicholas, got into a dispute and during the argument Peter struck Nicholas to the ground and then forced his knees into his stomach. Francesco Cassette, the father, pulled Peter away. The younger brother failed to get up, however, and the two worked over him until late into the evening. An officer who had been notified of the row, went to the house, but Peter had then gone, and thinking that nothing serious had happened the officer went away. Monday morning the young man died and a search was instituted for Peter.

Every dog is entitled to one bite, whether a leg, arm or other part of a human body, before he loses his reputation as kind and gentle, if the decision of Judge Klenent of Patterson, N. J., is a criterion. After Fido has had one bite he is characterized as vicious and can be destroyed if he bites again. Until he has had one bite he is not "vicious."

IN AID OF CHURCH BUILDING.

What is announced as a grand food fair and bazar will be held by the ladies of the Park and Downs Congregational church on Wednesday and Thursday afternoon and evening. The fair is in aid of the new church building in which much local interest is being taken.

NEW NANTASKET BOAT.

A new steamboat costing $200,000 will be built this winter, to go into commission on the Nantasket Beach line June 1st, 1912.

She will be named the Rose Standish after the wife of Myles Standish of the Plymouth Pilgrims.

MEN'S CLUB AT ST. CHRYSOSTOM'S

Annual Meeting And Election of Officers

THE COMMITTEE

The annual meeting and election of officers, which opens the present season of the Men's club of St. Chrysostom's parish, was held on Monday evening.

The following officers and committees were elected:

President—George A. Vibert.
Vice President—T. L. A. Musgrave.
Secretary—Eleazer F. Drew.
Treasurer—George E. Rundlett
Executive Committee—Horace W. Richmond, J. A. Severance and William J. Leslie.

Mr. Vibert who proved popular as last year's president was unanimously re-elected to office. The tellers appointed were Theodore Parker, Horace W. Richmond and Percy L. Davidson.

This being the first meeting of the year a prayer for guidance was offered by Rev. Frederick H. Steenstra.

In the place of Secretary Hamilton who is in Europe, C. E. Manchester was appointed as secretary pro tem. Following the reading of reports and discussions of plans for the year, the meeting adjourned for a social hour during which refreshments were served.

IT IS NOW ACTING MAYOR McANARNEY

It will be acting Mayor John W. McAnarney for the next ten days, or two weeks, as Mayor Shea left this noon on his vacation trip. Just where His Honor is going he did not give out other than his first stopping place would be New York city. Before he left he designated City Solicitor McAnarney as acting Mayor.

It was suggested that he might appoint Commissioner Bainbridge as acting Mayor, but it was thought that he already had all the work he could do.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Mr. Taft is beating the aviators in his cross country flights, anyhow.

Mr. Wickersham says he does not want to hurt "business," and "business" should remain on the side-walk where it will not get run over.

The great question among the Wilson boomers, is how to mate the Princeton tiger with the Tammany tiger so as to give birth to a presidential candidate.

Perhaps the best way to dispose of the enemy in modern warfare, would be to leave one of the battleships around loose, where they would be tempted to take possession of it.

A smuggler's petticoat had 30 pockets. This would have satisfied the longings of the woman of a few years ago. In these skin tight days, no receptacles for a woman's luggage are possible save her hands and her mouth.

Why does the announcement that one of the men at Columbia is to study cookery with 200 girls cause such a ripple of excitement? Why shouldn't a man learn housework. He should prove a useful husband to some suffragette before many years.

The boys who want to call on those Jackson college girls are certainly up against it for the new rules state that calls may be made only between 3 and 6 and 8 and 10 P. M. No man will be allowed to call on the same girl more than once each week.

Braintree is rejoicing over the prospect of having gas before many months the Plymouth Gas Company being actively at work putting in the plant and mains. The town is to have dollar gas which should be another cause of rejoicing, for Quincy has to pay $1.40.

One of the best series of ads put out this season is that of the National Biscuit Company, issued through the large advertising house, of N. W. Ayer & Sons, Philadelphia. The ads are large with plenty of white background and appear in all the leading newspapers of the country. The first of the series in the Ledger attracted considerable attention, the word "Uneeda," which is inseparable with the National Biscuit Company, being divided into three large ads, one on each of three pages successively. It is a style of newspaper advertising that pays.

NO EXCITEMENT.

There is said to be no "excitement over the announcement that the Maine was blown up from the ouside." The announcement in question refers to a story printed in the New York Sun, the other day, from the correspondent at Havana, who wrote that further exposure of the hulk, as mud and water were removed, had revealed such evidences as to demonstrate beyond cavil the nature of the explosion.

In all years that have intervened since the destruction of the Maine, the overwhelming majority of people in this country have been content with the finding of the commission specially appointed to investigate the explosion and report as to the cause. The examination was made immediately following the explosion, and when every available bit of information had been secured the official finding was duly rendered—that the explosion was from the exterior of the ship. These same people are as confident that when the official report of the present investigation is made, the original finding will be confirmed. That, too, will create no excitement.

ADMIRAL SCHLEY.

And now as recorded the passing to the great beyosd of a renounced soldier and a great patriot. A man, not of tact, but of undoubted talent, his brave and creditable deeds will be remembered when his mistakes will have been long stowed away on the shelf and curtained by the charitable dust of time. Says the Boston Journal:—

There was such a mass of technical opinion to smother the plain facts of Admiral Schley's conduct during the Spanish War, and particularly during the battle of Santiago, that the early eclipse of the controversy which raged for a time between the Schley and Sampson partisans was a welcome relief to the country at large.

President Roosevelt summed up for all when he said, in his review of the opinions handed down by the court of inquiry called into being by Schley himself, that if there was something to criticise in the record of the commander of the famous Flying Squadron, there was also much to admire and applaud. Back of all that controversy was a bitterness of which the people in general had little knowledge.

But there was no denying the all-around excellence of Admiral Schley's service on behalf of his country, beginning with his youthful gallantry in the Mississippi river operations during the Civil War, which earned him honorable mention, and ending with his spirited work aboard the Brooklyn when Cervera dashed out of Santiago and started what has aptly been called a "captain's fight." And, between times, there was his splendid race to Cape Sabine to rescue the survivors of the Greely Arctic expedition.

THE HUNTING SEASON.

With the hunter's moon and October frosts, the game laws begin to come off in the several states. But the enormous increase in the number of hunters has depleted many covers where game used to abound.

Where the farmers' boy uesd to find wild life within sight of his father's barn, the successful hunting trip of today is apt to mean an expensive and tiresome railroad journey.

There is not game enough to go around until you get a long distance from the haunts of man. The rapacious demand for the great metropolitan hotels, the commercialized murder of the pot hunter, the destruction by the more ignorant alien, these are causes that are leading hunting to be an almost forgotten sport among those unable to afford the price of a long distance railway ticket.

The sportsmanlike sentiment of the future will require metropolitan epicures, if they must have game suppers, to get out in the woods on their own account and take pot luck with the natives. Hunting serves a useful purpose in drawing tired men into the healing influences of the forest. But where it merely fills the purse of some ne'er do well and tickles the palate sated with the luxuries of city restaurants, there is no compensation given the public for the slaughter of wild life that is common property.

DR. WILEY AT HEAD.

Dr. Harvey W. Wiley's ambition to be in control of the administration of the pure food laws is to be realized so far as Secretary Wilson is concerned. When the President returns to Washington and takes the Wiley case up with Secretary Wilson he will turn the enforcement of the pure food laws over to Dr. Wiley. If Dr. Wiley wants control in such matters and the President is agreeable, Secretary Wilson will propose that a new bureau be created, with Dr. Wiley at the head, preferably in the department of commerce and labor.

FORMER QUINCY PASTOR.

The Rev. Dr. Maurice Howland Turk, pastor of the Congregational church in Natick for the past eight years, has filed his resignation, to take effect the first of the new year. It was a complete surprise to the members of the church. Dr. Turk will travel for eight months in European and Asiatic Turkey at the invitation of the American board of foreign missions for the purpose of studying the christian missions.

During his pastorate Dr. Turk took an active interest in civic affairs and did much toward putting the town in the no-license column. With three other pastors he secured the prosecution of several violators of the liquor laws. Under his direction the church held classes and services for foreign spoken residents and his energy added many new members to the church.

Mr. Turk was for several years pastor of the Washington Street Congregational church at Quincy Point, where he was active in the parish and city work.

—An opinion has been handed down by a Missouri court affirming the right of a woman to scold her husband. Nothing is said about her right to scold him when he doesn't need it. The presumption seems to be that it will do him good at any time.—Christian Science Monitor.

CITY COUNCIL

Supt. Austin said that the new poles were supposed to have been set in exactly the same location as the old poles. He further said that he would take the matter up with his engineer and if the poles were not right he would have them moved.

There was no opposition to the location and the hearing was closed.

SIDEWALK WANTED.

Councilman Bailey offered an order for a granolithic sidewalk on Marion and Park street. Referred to Committee on Streets.

POLICEMEN DAYS OFF.

Councilman Cherrington offered an order accepting Chapter 219 of the acts of 1911 as amended by Chapter 625. Referred to Committee on Fire and Police.

This act provides upon its acceptance by the City Council and Mayor, that permanent policemen shall be given one day off in fifteen. As it is now the police are given one day off in every 30 days.

DOG ORDINANCE.

On motion of Councilman Bailey the dog ordinance was taken from the table.

Councilman Smith moved to amend by adding the following words, after the word "Provisions," "after having been warned by the Chief of Police."

Councilman Smith said this ordinance was the same as in several other cities. He believed that it was fair that the Chief of Police should first notify the owner before he was hailed into court. The amendment was accepted and the ordinance passed.

Later the vote was reconsidered and Councilman Smith moved to further amend, at the suggestion of the City Solicitor, by adding the words "that he is owning or keeping a dog contrary to the provisions of this ordinance "Amendment accepted and the ordinance passed.

The ordinance as it now reads is as follows:

Section 1. No person shall own or keep in this city any dog which by barking, biting, howling or in any other manner disturbes the quiet of any person.

Section 2. Whoever violates the foregoing provision, after having been warned by the Chief of Police that he is owning or keeping a dog contrary to the provisions of this ordinance, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding ten dollars.

ELECTION.

Councilman Smith offered an order designating the polling places for the election Nov. 7. Adopted.

GAS LIGHTS.

Councilman Ericson offered an order for gas lights as follows:

Corner Chestnut street and Cottage avenue.

Corner Francis court and Spear street.

Corner Orchard place and Spear street.

Extreme end of Merrymount road near Valley street.

Order adopted and referred to Executive.

Councilman Duffy offered an order for a light on Silver street. Order adopted and referred to Executive.

Councilman Histen offered an order for light on Watson road. Order adopted.

Councilman Branch said that earlier in the season he had taken occasion to object to the sending of these orders to the Executive. He noticed that tonight the President had adopted a new plan of accepting the order and then referring to the Executive. It seemed to him that if new lights were to be put in, the location should be taken up and carefully studied. Now we get lights where one person thinks they ought to be. The many orders for lights means a large increase in the budget for lights next year. We ought to carefully consider this matter and decide how much we intend to expend for new ones.

Councilman Smith asked if he simply objected to the order or the method of its adoption, to which Councilman Branch replied, both.

Councilman Cherrington asked the Mayor what chance there was for the order.

Mayor Shea replied, very little. The Mayor said that he considered it an expression of approval by the Council when it sent an order for a light to him, but he was not obliged to carry it out as no money was provided.

This plan has been going on all the year and it gives the Councilman a chance to say, it is up to the Mayor to put the light in.

Councilman Gardner believed the plan a good one. The more lights the better.

The order was then referred to the Executive.

PUBLIC LANDING.

The order appropriating $2,000 for a public landing at Houghs Neck took its second reading, the rules were suspended and the order passed.

Adjourned at 8.35 until Oct. 16.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

Departures from the old way in things educational come in for hard raps, first and last, but not often are they assailed as in this letter which a glowering boy handed to his teacher:

"Madim you kepe telling my son to breeth with his dierfram I sepose rich boys and girls all has dierframs but how about when their father makes only 2 dollers a day and theres 4 younger I tel you its enough to make everybody socialists first its one thing and then its another and now its dierframs its too much."—Woman's Home Companion.

DARK.—Mary—Mrs. Talkem detained me for 15 minutes at the telephone just as I was starting out.
Alice—What did she want?
Mary—She didn't say.—Life.

HE WORKED.—"You refused me 10 years ago."
"I remember," said the heiress. "You said it would wreck your life."
"It did. I have had to work for a living ever since."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

STRANGE.—"Talk about luck!"
"What happened?"
"I found a 10-dollar bill in my last summer's suit."
"Gee! Why, I thought you were married."—Toledo Blade.

UNLIKE.—"Is this really chicken soup?" asked Mr. Starboard.
"Of course," snapped Mrs. Starvem. "Doesn't it taste like chicken?"
"Why, no; it's positively tender."—Catholic Standard and Times.

A RAISE.—Jack—"Why did you give up your bachelor quarters?"
Tom—"Because I'm going to marry dollars."—Birmingham News.

DIDN'T SUIT.—"Jennie had her fortune told yesterday, but she doesn't believe a word ofit."
"Why not?"
"Because the fortune-teller didn't say that she is going to marry a rich man."—Detroit Free Press.

KEEPING AFLOAT.—"That hotel is rotten," declared the traveling salesman.
"You've been saying that for years," said his customer. "Why do you keep going to it?"
"Well, it has a new name every time I come."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

GOOD WIFE.—"Is your wife a good housekeeper?"
"Well, she's a fine housekeeper," but not of the old-fashioned kind. Instead of messing around the kitchen, she earns enough money at bridge to pay the grocery bills."—Washington Herald.

INDUSTRIAL EXPOSITION.

New England's great Educational and Industrial Exposition opened Monday at Mechanics building, Boston, with a record breaking attendance. No exposition held in New England has ever attracted such widespread attention and interest as this one, and no other ever promised so much, and so fully fulfilled its promise to interest old and young, and arouse enthusiasm in every day work and occupations, and their possibilities. This is due to the character and variety of the exhibits and the opportunity opened to the public to see the numberless processes and manufacturing methods which are part of our modern industrial world.

No one who is interested in New England can visit Mechanics building once, without wanting to go again. No one can go there without realizing how much this exposition will mean to New England's industries and enterprizes, and every one will come away with a clear idea of New England's importance in the commercial and industrial world.

Every commodity of every day life is to be seen at this exposition; people with widely different interests meet here on a common ground to study and compare, and benefit from the various displays. This was proven by the character and enthusiasm of the crowds that went from exhibit to exhibit. Every department had its many visitors, whose comments and expressions of appreciation showed that the success of this exposition is assured from the beginning. No exposition has ever been so comprehensive, covering and illustrating all the things of vital importance to the manufacturing and industrial progress of business interests. The Woman's department shows every thing that a woman could wish for, in its most attractive form.

The success of the Educational department of the exposition has exceeded even the expectations of the committee which had it in charge. Over twenty schools are represented, among them business schools, auto and aero, and the trade and industrial schools. This department takes a large space on the second floor. Near it is an art exhibition that would not be out of place in an Art Museum. This department justifies the faithful work and thought given to it by the educational committee. The Exposition as a whole is the broadest, most enjoyable, and educational movement that has ever been held in New England, and no one who is interested in New England's present or future progress can afford to miss it.

Chester I. Campbell, general manager, has supplied a fitting setting for the various exhibits, and the music supplied in grand hall by the American band, and in the exhibition hall by Edna Frances Simmons were excellent features in connection with a very wonderful exhibition of New England's various industries.

FALLING LEAVES.

Amidst the Indian-summer haze
The forest's regal hues unfold
With richest crimson, cloth of gold,
Russet and scarlet, all ablaze.

How quickly have the days flown by Since Spring her first faint colors threw
In pure relief against the blue
Of charming April's sunny sky!

The budding white oak's rosy tint
The summer changed to vivid green;
The slender birch's silvery sheen
Was heightened by the sunbeam's glint.

Now soon each leaf all sear and browned,
With cutting wind and biting frost,
By ruthless autumn torn and tossed,
Will fall and wither on the ground.

But tiny rosebuds are hidden there
To show forth beauty by and by;
Sheltered from winter's winds they lie,
Although each limb and branch be bare.

And so our lives must bud and grow,
Warmed by the sunshine of God's love,
Showered by mercies from above,
Till we in health and beauty glow.

Thus 'mid the frosts of sorrow, still
We shelter those lives yet to come.
And when we fail, our voices dumb,
They live to do the Father's will.

BERMUDA WELCOMES ANCIENTS

More than 5000 people, including the entire military force of Bermuda, amid booming of cannon and headed by Mayor Musson Wainwright gave a rousing reception Monday to the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Massachusetts, as Colonel Benton led the Bay State battalion up the wharf from the New York boat.

FREEDOM OF CITY.

Lieutenant-Colonel W. L. Brook-Smith, Vice-Governor of the island, headed a detail of troops, which escorted the Ancients to the Hamilton Hotel. The streets were thronged with people, nearly half of whom were Americans and more than 200 from Boston.

At the hotel the Mayor, in a speech, gave the visitors the freedom of the city. Colonel Benton responded, expressing his gratitude. The company then disbanded for luncheon and spent the afternoon in informal tours about the island.

Tomorrow much of the time will be devoted to sightseeing, as the climate here is delightful and its scenery at its best.

MESSAGE OF WELCOME.

Before starting in escort Lieutenant-Colonel Brook-Smith addressed the visitors. He carried a message from Lieutenant-General F. W. Kitchener, Governor of the island, who was suddenly called away on imperial business to Montreal two days ago.

The voyage from New York on the Oceana was propitious. Not a case of illness was reported among the entire company. The tide being low and the harbor studded with coral reefs the visitors disembarked into tenders a half mile from shore and thence were conveyed to the government pier.

All the troops of the island, both regular and volunteers, were drawn up to receive the Boston contingent. They included the second battalion of the Bedfordshire regiment, under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel T. Longridge; the Royal Garrison Artillery, under Lieutenant-Colonel William L. Brook-Smith; the Bermuda militia, under Captain A. C. Heaslop; the Royal Engineers, under Lieutenant-Colonel H. B. H.Wright; the Army Service Corps, under Mayor F. S. Atkinson; the Royal Army Medical Corps, the Volunteer Rifle Corps and the School Cadets.

READ LEDGER ADVS.

COST OF MILITARISM.

For the eight years preceding the war with Spain our average annual expenditure for the army was less than $24,000,000; for the eight years following the war the annual average leaped to more than $83,000,000; and now for the current year the army appropriation is $95,440,567. The navy has done even better For the eight years preceding the Spanish war the average annual expenditure was a little more than $27,500,000; for the next eight years it averaged $102,400,000, and this year the navy gets $131,350,854. Adding the navy and army appropriations gives the sum of $226,791,421, which is rather a neat price to pay for imitating the antics of those ghost dancers on the farther side of the Atlantic. But that isn't all by any means. To this sum must be added the current appropriation for the military academy, $1,856,249; the appropriation for forts and fortifications, $5,617,200; and the pension appropriation of $155,758,000, making a grand total of $390,022,870 as the cost of militarism for one year, or at the rate of $1,068,555 a day for every day in the year.

This enormous sum is paid out of the United States Treasury, a beneficient instution which seems too remote and intangible to concern the average man. But when you bear in mind, as you should that even the United States Treasury cannot pay out what it does not take in and that its insatiable maw is fed, but never filled from your pocket and mine and from every one else's the matter assumes quite a different aspect. The reality of your contribution is in no wise affected by your inability to perceive when you pay for it. Every mouthful you eat, every thread you wear, every need of your life, bears its tax which goes to make up the vast aggregate of Government expenditure.

Three hundred and ninety million dollars is $4.24 per capita for the inhabitants of the United States exclusive of our "possessions." But this counts in the women and children the idle and the incapacitated. Getting down to an average for heads of families would multiply this per capita tax by five, at least, or $21.20 as the sum that each head of a family, speaking in averages, must contribute out of his earnings, whether he want to or not, toward the support of the army and navy and the frills that go with them this year. Next year the forced contribution will be larger; for the year after that still larger; for the succeeding year larger yet, for once the military craze gets started there is no limit to its extravagances.

Many men consider themselves lucky when they are able to squander $21 on one suit of clothes. Lots of them do not get that much for a week's work. Few can lose that much even in a poker game, without winching, inwardly if not outwardly. Twenty-one dollars would provide porterhouse steak for two persons for forty-two meals, or it would pay the hired girl's wages for a month, or it might pay the premium on $1,000 life insurance for a year. Twent-one dollars, in short, is a most useful sum of money. When it is multiplied by 18,400,000, the number of families here assumed, its potentialities for good are almost incomprehensible.—From "Military Maniacs," in Technical World Magazine.

Many Uses For Salt.

A pinch of salt on the tongue, followed by a drink of cold water, will cure sick headache.

It hardens the gums and makes the teeth white.

By adding a little salt to the water cut flowers may be kept fresh much longer.

By using very fine, dry salt as one would snuff for colds hay fever may be relieved.

A shallow teaspoonful of salt dissolved in a cupful of hot water will relieve dyspepsia and indigestion.

Strong salt water will revive an unconscious person quicker than brandy or whisky.

Salt and pineapple juice will cure mild cases of gastritis.

Salt added to water in which colored dresses are washed will prevent fading.

Smooth flatirons by rubbing over dry salt.

Sprinkle dry salt on carpets and rugs before sweeping.

—"New York and Boston have arrived at the parting of the ways and the crisis has been brought about by the new styles in women's hats," said one of the Hub's smartest milliners. "I came over here, as is my periodic custom to get ideas of the new autumn creations with a view to working them into the headgear of my patrons at home," she continued, "but, good gracious, Boston women won't wear such hats as are now seen in New York shops! Down East we make no attempt to conceal the fact that we copy New York styles, which in turn have filched from Paris. But there are some things in wearables at which a Boston woman will balk, and this season's mode in millinery is one of them. It means that Boston women are going to wear last season's styles or go without."—New York Hotel Reporter.

RED CROSS SEAL NOT ABOLISHED

No Official Order Issued--New Design Will be Used--Agents in Every State

QUINCY INTERESTED

"Not only will the sale of Red Cross Christmas Seals be continued this year, but it will be carried on along broader lines, and will be larger and more comprehensive than ever before," says Dr. Livingston Farrand, Executive Secretary of The National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, in a statement issued by the Press Bureau of that organization.

Dr. Farand denies absolutely the statements which have appeared recently to the effect that Postmaster General Hitchcock had forbidden the sale of Red Cross Seals. "No official order has been issued on this matter," says Dr. Farrand. "On July 1st the Post Office Department decided that they could no longer carry mail matter which bore stamps or seals which resembled postage stamps. Our design of the Red Cross Seal, however, has been approved definitely by Postmaster General Hitchcock and the Department, and it does not come within the prohibitions of this order of July 1st. It hardly looks as if we were going to abandon the sale, when we have already placed the order for the printing of fifty million seals and for large quantities of advertising matter.

"The Red Cross Seal this year will be from a new design drawn by an artist in Washington, D. C. Every effort has been made to get as far away from the conventional design of stamps and seals as possible. The new seal will depict a very pretty winter scene. In the lower right hand corner will appear a snow-covered house with a pine tree, also snow,covered, in the foreground. The scene is at night and the windows are lighted. In the back ground are trees and snow capped hills. In the upper left hand corner will appear a small read cross. The entire design is enclosed with a heavy red circle. The year is expressed in Roman numerals. The only other words on the seal are, "American Red Cross, Merry Christmas, Happy New Year." The corners of the seal, which will be square, are in white, thus giving the effect of a circular seal when it is affixed to letters and packages.

"It is very important that every one bear in mind that the Post Office Department will not carry any letters bearing these seals or any other non-postage stamps upon the face of the letter. Red Cross Seals may and should be placed on the back of letters and packages.

"Agents for the sale of Red Cross Seals have now been appointed in every large state of the United States. More territory will be covered this year, and more agents will sell seals than every before. We need and want a million dollars from the sale of Red Cross Seals in 1911."

TODAY'S COURT.

The questions sent to the Editor of EVERYBODY'S BIBLE QUESTION BOX develop many curious and interesting conditions of mind. One writes, "I am a widow, past forty years old, with a small income. Will I do the right thing if I accept a present opportunity to marry?" The answer to this question in the near future in EVERYBODY'S BIBLE QUESTION BOX will be based entirely on the Scriptures and will therefore not be the opinion of John Jones or Bill Smith. If the inquirer believes and desires to be guided by the Bible we believe she will, as a result of the QUESTION BOX, be enabled to come to an intelligent understanding of the Scriptural injunction. If she does not accept Bible teaching as a fixed rule for action, she will, nevertheless, receive the Bible view, which will be good to have in the way of general knowledge.

The Editor of EVERYBODY'S BIBLE QUESTION BOX will not in any case venture nor intrude upon his questioners or readers his own personal opinion on the questions submitted. He fulfils his promise to all when he furnishes a Bible answer to Bible questions, and to further elaborate, by quoting other authorities, he positively refuses to do.

Every Bible question sent in will be answered within sixty days, either in EVERYBODY'S BIBLE QUESTION BOX or privately, by mail, providing address for reply is given.

BAKER—SOUTHWORTH,

A quiet home wedding was celebrated at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Baker of North Newport, N. H., Oct. 2, when their daughter Myrtle Louise and Clarence Southworth of Braintree, Mass., were united in marriage by Rev. Mr. Ineson . They were attended by the bride's brother Wallace Baker of Newport, N. H., and her sister Mrs. Alice Moore of Somerville, Mass. The bride was charmingly gowned in white nun's veiling over white silk and the matron of honor wore blue messaline. Owing to illness in Mr. Southworth's family the wedding was quiet only the family being present. The house was prettily decorated with autumn leaves and asters.

The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Southworth of River street, Braintree. He is one of the active members of Monatiquot lodge, Knights of Pythias, and has been through the various chairs..

It is hoped that the bride and groom will make Braintree their home where they have many relatives and friends.

—A newspaper man says the Boston Herald who is something of a stranger in Boston gave one of his staff as assignment a day or two ago to get an interview with Mrs. Louis Frothingham and she reported back to her chief: "They ain't none such, yet."

FROTHINGHAM WILL WIN.

Said Governor Foss, when interviewed Tuesday night on the result of the primaries: "I went to bed when I heard that Frothingham had won his nomination. I am not enough interested to make any comments." We take it that this must have been a night shirt interview, or else the governor merely wished to convey the impression that Mr. Frothingham's nomination would give him so little trouble that he might just as well sleep through the compaign.

Governor Foss is plainly worried, as he has good reason to be. The Republican party, or rather the voters of this State, will elect Mr. Frothingham governor on Nov. 7. We make that prediction with the utmost confidence.

The Republicans that voted for Governor Foss last year were sorry for it the day after, and they have been growing sorrier every day since. The exhibition that the governor has made of himself has not increased their admiration for him, and the assault that the Democrats in Washington tried to make on the industries of Massachusetts has not heightened the respect of Republicans for the free trade party.

The business interests, and the wage-earners that are so dependent on the prosperity of business are going to think twice before they give another indorsement to Governor Foss and the policies he represents. This fall they are going to get behind the Republican candidate for governor and elect him by an old-time Republican plurality. If you doubt this be in front of the Union office on the night of Tuesday, Nov. 7, and watch the returns come in. It will be the same story from Cape Cod to Berkshire. On that night Governor Foss can be excused if he goes to bed early and is not sufficiently interested to comment on the result.—Springfield Union.

BRIEFS

Mrs. Joseph G. Jacobs of Nashua, N. H., formerly of Wollaston died on Saturday. The burial was at Nashua.

Funeral services for the late B. E. Fish of 192 Arlington street are to be held in the Wollaston Unitarian church, Thursday morning at 11 o'clock.

Miss Mabel E. Adams formerly of Quincy is to address the Parents and Teachers association of the Adams school, at the school on Thursday evening at eight o'clock on "the use of English in the home."

Lysander S. Richards of Marshfield Hills, formerly of this city presided at the meeting of the ministers and laymen of the Plymouth and Bay Unitarian conference in All Souls church, Braintree on Sept. 26.

There will be a good representation from Quincy tonight among the 500 descendants of prominent colonial families, expected to attend the banquet at six o'clock in Ford hall, Boston. The banquet will be preceded by meetings of the various family associations and a reunion social hour in Kingsley hall. Dean George Hodges of Cambridge, president of the society, will preside and make the principal address.

Burden of Flesh Causes Death of a Jersey City Man

Jersey City, Oct. 3.—The burden of carrying around 650 pounds of his own flesh and bone caused the death of George S. Schober at the age of 50 years.

Schober, as far as is known here, was the heaviest man in the United States. His obesity brought on an illness which began a year ago. He was six feet tall.

—Josiah Quincy, former mayor of Boston and member of the transit commission has the name of being one of the busiest men in the city. Many persons who see him daily in the vicinity of Beacon Hill note his invariable "hot foot" gait. He is said to walk faster habitually than any other well known citizen of this city. He always walks at top speed.—Boston Herald.

EXAMINATION FOR ASSISTANT FOREST RANGERS

Washington, D. C., October 2.—The Civil Service Commissios will hold an examination for Assistant Forest Ranger on October 23-24, 1911. The U. S. Department of Agriculture estimates that 400 eligibles will be needed during the field season of 1912. Assistant Forest Rangers are paid an entrance salary of $1,100 per annum.

The examination will be held at National Forest headquarters in Alaska, Arizona, Arkansas, California, Colorado Florida, Idaho, Kansas, Minnesota, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Oregon, South Dakota Utah, Washington and Wyoming. No examination will be held in Michigan.

The law requires that, when practicable, Forest Rangers must be qualified citizens of the State or Territory in which the National Forest on which they are appointed is situated. Since the list of local eligibles must be exhausted before eligibles residing in other States can be appointed, the chance of citizens of outside States who go to the National Forest States and take the examination to secure an appointment is small.

The requiremets and duties of Forest Rangers are thus described in "The Use Book," which contains the regulations and instructions for the use of the National Forests:

"A ranger of any grade must be thoroughly sound and able-bodied, capable of enduring hardships and performing severe labor under trying conditions. He must be able to take care of himself and his horses in regions remote from settlement and supplies. He must be able to build trails and cabins, ride, pack, and deal tactfully with all classes of people. He must know something of land surveying, estimating and scaling timber, logging, land laws, mining, and the livestock business.

"On some Forests the ranger must be a specialist in one or more of these lines of work. Thorough familiarity with the region in which he seeks employment, including its geography and its forest and industrial conditions, is usually demanded, although lack of this may be supplied by experience in similar regions.

"The examination of applicants is along the practical lines indicated above, and actual demonstration, by performance, is required. Invalids seeking light out-of-door employment need not apply. Experience, not book education, is sought, although ability to make simple maps and write intelligent reports upon ordinary Forest business is essential.

"For duty in some parts of Arizona and New Mexico the ranger must know enough Spanish to conduct Forest business with Mexicans.

"Where saddle horses or pack horses are necessary in the performance of their duty, rangers are required to own and maintain them. The Forest Service furnishes no personal or horse equipment.

"Rangers execute the work of the National Forests under the direction of Supervisors. Their duties include patrol to prevent fire and trespass, estimating, surveying, and marking timber, the supervision of cuttings, and similar work. They issue minor permits, build cabins and trails, oversee grazing business, investigate claims report on applications, and report upon and arrest for violation of Forest laws and regulations."

The examination will consist of questions regarding the use of the Forest, supplemented by a field test to show the applicant's fitness to do the actual work of a ranger. Education and experience will be rated on the answers to the questions on these subjects in the application form and on the applicant's use of English in the written test. Horses for the tests in riding and packing will be provided by the Forest Service.

The examination is under the control of the Civil Service Commission, and not of the Forest Service. Information in detail regarding it, including the names of the places at which it will be held, will be sent to anyone applying to the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C.

—The wicked world ought to tire of wars, they are so frequent. In the press and from the pulpit we hear the present time spoken of as an era of arbitration and yet in the past fourteen years Turkey has fought Greece, the United States has waged war with Spain, South Africa has been battlefield for Boer and Briton and Japan by its triumph over Russia has changed the map of the Eastern world. Now Italy and Turkey are fighting, and the possibility of the struggle setting the Balkan lands ablaze cannot be dismissed. Then there have been a number of those little wars which the Duke of Wellington said no great Power should ever indulge in. Thetime is ripe for the friends of peace to buckle on their armor to fight for it. The doors of The Hague Tribunal are not besieged by a crowd of suitors.—Boston Transcript.

ART OF NETTING.

An Industry That Was Fostered by Catherine de' Medici.

SIMPLE DESIGNS THE BEST.

Modern Adaptations That Are Being Made Nowadays Are Attractive For Household Decoration—Bible Stories Pictured.

In view of the important revival which is taking place in the making of darned net laces, it is interesting to note that very early in its history large quantities of it were used for household purposes. In the possessions of Queen Catherine de' Medici a coffer is enumerated containing 381 squares of the net ready for embroidering; another chest contained 538 squares, "worked with rosettes or with blossoms, and others with nosegays."

We are told that the maids of the queen's household consumed much time in making squares of this reseuil. These plain net grounds were continued in the same manner as are garden or fishing nets of the present day. The square mesh, according to an old pattern book, was made by commencing with a single thread and increasing a stitch on each side until the required size was obtained. Then the piece was finished off by reducing a stitch on each side. This plain net ground was much used for bed furniture, window curtains and valances and was usually quite unornamented. The plain character of the net also rendered possible most elaborate designs—life sized portraits and representations of Bible stories whose scenes in the lives of saints and heroes, together with lettering descriptive of the same, are not infrequently to be met with in old examples of this lace. This darning stitch of ancient origin is so easy to accomplish and the results are so beautiful that the modern embroideress has taken up the work with enthusiasm. Illustrated is a table cover, the design to be darned with colored silks. The fabric used is a cream colored crash.

Present For the Bride.

Nobody can fail to make delicious mayonnaise dressing with this clever new mixer, which removes all the responsibility from the cook's shoulders. In the measuring device are cups of just the right size for the appropriate amount of salt, mustard, vinegar and powdered sugar. When these have been blended with the yolk of a raw egg the oil is poured into the funnel attached to the beater and is delivered drop by drop into the mayonnaise. Of course every good housewife knows that vinegar should not be allowed to touch the mayonnaise dressing until the very last minute and then only a little should be added.

GETS SECOND DIVORCE

Former Countess Is Now Freed From an Automobile Racer

Norristown, Pa., Oct. 3.—Mrs. Frances H. Padula won in her second fight for matrimonial freedom when she was granted a divorce from Vincent Padula, an automobile driver who has taken part in racing contests throughout the country.

Mrs. Padula is the daughter of Charles W. Holmes of this place. Her marriage to Count Torres took her temporarily from the country and was terminated, after a brief wedded life, by a suit for absolute divorce, which was won.

Not long after her resumption of her maiden name Miss Holmes was married to Padula. The wedded life of the former countess was interrupted a few months ago by a suit for absolute divorce which Mrs. Padula filed in the Montgomery county court. It was this action which was decided yesterday in favor of the libellant.

WILSON SOON TO RETIRE

Secretary Has Done Much For Farmers of United States

Washington, Oct. 3.—Intimate friends of Secretary of Agriculture Wilson believe he does not intend to remain much longer at the head of the department—probably not beyond the fourth of next March, when he will have completed fifteen years in the cabinet.

Mr. Wilson is 76 years old and although he is still doing great work for the farmer, he is not the man he was when he stared to transform the humble and comparatively inefficient department of agriculture into the greatest organization of its kind in the world.

This rank is accorded freely by its rivals in foreign countries and is appreciated by the farmers of the United States, who have been almost pampered by the generosity of the government.

WOMAN CANNOT ACT AS TRUANT OFFICER

Decison Will Have Far Reaching Effect In Massachusetts

Boston, Oct. 3.—The civil service commission has made public an opinion of Attorney General Swift that women may not serve as truant officers in this state.

The opinion was requested by the commission as a result of the efforts of the Malden school board and the friends of Mrs. Mary K. O'Sullivan of Winthrop, the social settlement worker and women's trade union leader, to have her appointed a Malden truant officer.

The attorney general bases his opinion upon the assumption at common law that a woman cannot perform the duties of a public officer. The opinion is most comprehensive, and will have far reaching effects, for he decides that no woman may be appointed to any public office in Massachusetts without special statutory authority.

MEETS POPULAR APPROVAL

Lack of Evidence Against One of Alleged Coatesville Lynchers

West Chester, Pa., Oct. 3.—On the ground that the commonwealth had not sufficient evidence to convict, the first defendant to be placed on trial for murder in connection with the burning to death by a mob of Jack Walter, a negro, in Coatesville, on Aug. 13, last, was ordered acquitted by Judge Hemphill in the county court.

The defendant was Chester Bostick, 16 years old. District Attorney Gawthorp informed the court that he had not sufficient evidence.

Bostick was given an ovation on the streets of this city by the citizens of Coatesville.

HARD ON POOR PEOPLE

No More Coffee at Two Cents a Cup In New York

New York, Oct. 3.—Coffee at 2 cents a cup is a thing of the past in New York. Every coffee house and restaurant in the city where the drink is sold to poor people yesterday put the price up to 3 cents.

The high price of sugar and coffee is the reason for the advance. Formerly coffee and a doughnut went for 3 cents. Now the man with only 3 cents must give up his doughnut.

One restaurant keeper reports that his trade has fallen off 30 percent since the rise in price.

Awaits Naming of Successor

Boston, Oct. 3.—Judge Sherman will not retire from the bench of the superior court until his successor has been appointed and has qualified. He has sent his resignation to the governor.

ROOSTER COAL BRIQUETS
THE NEW ANTHRACITE COAL
ROOSTER BRIQUETS are made from the choicest small Scranton Anthracite coal mined in Pennsylvania, called TWENTIETH CENTURY CHESTNUT size
Just consider for a moment what we offer here in this 20th CENTURY CHESTNUT.
First, 2000 pounds of clean, pure, hard coal without a rock or a piece of slate.
Second, fuel that cannot form into a clinker, by any known method of firing, consequently the linings and grates last indefinitely.
Third, they are made in nut size, being equally convenient for furnace heaters, open grates, as well as stoves; therefore, only one storage bin is necessary.
Fourth, and very IMPORTANT, the quality of this fuel is the SAME EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR, not a good ton today, and nothing like it the next time, in other words, when you once learn how to regulate your drafts you have nothing more to learn about burning BRIQUETS.
Fifth, no more sifting ashes these Briquets burn out clean. They require less wood to kindle.
Be sure to ask for "ROOSTERS" and get the Briquet made from pure Scranton Coal, from the largest Briquet plant in the country. They are better than coal, will last as long and cost less.

RICH MEN FINED AS JEWELRY SMUGGLERS

Another Gets Prison Sentence For Undervaluing Goods

New York, Oct. 3.—Nathan Allen, the millionaire leather manufacturer of Kenosha, Wis., entered a plea of guilty to all the counts in an indictment charging him with smuggling jewelry into the country. John R. Collins of Memphis, organizer of the Southern Coal company, also pleaded guilty to the last count in the indictment charging him with smuggling jewelry. Allen was fined $12,000, while a fine of $4000 was imposed upon Collins.

Allen and Collins were indicted in connection with the smuggling of jewelry valued at $150,000, which, it is alleged, was given to Mrs. Helen D. Jenkins, who appeared as the principal witness against them before the grand jury.

Abraham Lichtenstein, president of the Lichenstein Millinery company, entered a plea of guilty to charges of undervaluing importations and was sentenced to four months on Blackwell's island and to pay a fine of $1.

Burglars Rob Safe In Maine Town and Escape Undetected

Brunswick, Me., Oct. 3.—The safe in the postoffice at Pejepscot was blown by burglars, who escaped without attracting attention, and stamps to the value of $512 were taken. No one heard the explosion, so far as known.

The force of the explosion was so great that the building was badly damaged. The doors were jammed and it was necessary to force them open.

The work, which was cleverly done, is credited to professionals. The break was effected some time between 11 p. m. and 7 a. m.

A BIT OF ADVICE

First—Don't Delay. Second—Don't Experiment.

If you suffer from backache; headaches or dizzy spells; if you rest poorly and are languid in the morning; if the kidney secretions are irregular and unnatural in appearance, do not delay. The kidneys are calling for help. Slight symptoms of kidney trouble are but fore-runners of more serious complaints. They should be given attention before it is too late.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure kidney trouble. They are recommended by thousands. Can Quincy residents desire more convincing proof than the statement of a Quincy citizen who says that the cure Doan's Kidney Pills effected years ago has proven permanent?

W. Charlesworth, 33 Cranch St., Quincy, Mass., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills are certainly an effective kidney medicine. They fixed me up in good shape some years ago, and since then I have had no kidney trouble."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

LAND COURT

To Herbert F. Miller, Nellie M. Weeks, Mary H. Bates, Arthur B. Hillman and William E. Rowe of Quincy, in the County of Norfolk, and said Commonwealth; John M. Raymond and Andrew F. West, Executors under the will of Isaac C. Wyman, late of Salem, in the County of Essex, and said Commonwealth; Mary C. Jones now or formerly of Boston, in the County of Suffolk, and said Commonwealth; or her heirs, devisees or legal representatives; any heirs, devisees or legal representatives of Lewis Mason, late of Binghamton, in the State of New York, who have not released their interest in the premises hereinafter described; and to all whom it may concern:

Whereas, a petition has been presented to said Court by Adam P. Holden of Newton, in the County of Middlesex, and said Commonwealth, to register and confirm his title in the following described land:

A certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon, situate in said Quincy, bounded Southeasterly by South Central Avenue seventy five feet; Northeasterly by land of Nellie W. Weeks one hundred fifty feet; Northwesterly by land of William E. Rowe seventy five feet; and Southwesterly by land of Mary H. Bates and land of Arthur B. Hillman one hundred fifty feet; containing 11,250 feet.

The above described land is shown on a plan filed with said petition, and all boundary lines are claimed to be located on the ground as shown on said plan.

You are hereby cited to appear at the Land Court to be held at Boston in the County of Suffolk, on the ninth day of October A. D. 1911 at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause if any you have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted. And unless you appear at said Court at the time and place aforesaid your default will be recorded, and the said petition will be taken as confessed, and you will be forever barred from contesting said petition or any decree entered thereon.

Witness, Charles Thornton Davis, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this sixteenth day of September in the year nineteen hundred and eleven.

Attest with Seal of said Court.

Italy Delaying Attack on Tripoli For the Present

OFFER OF MONEY INDEMNITY

Likely to Be Offered Turkey After Military Occupation of Tripolitan Coast Has Been Accomplished—Germany May Bring About Peace Before Fighting Is Begun—Italy Will Not Carry War Into European Turkey—Arabs In Strong Position Behind Tripoli

London, Oct. 3.—From present appearances the Turco-Italian war promises to be the shortest and most bloodless war in history.

Thus far its distinguishing characteristic has been the absence of fighting, and with Germany acting as peacemaker, it may be ended before fighting occurs.

It is concluded that no mediation will be accepted by Italy until she has accomplished the military occupation of the Tripolitan coast.

After that negotiations will be much easier and are not unlikely to be successful, if Turkey will accept a money indemnity for allowing Italy to establish herself in Tripoli, as Great Britain did in Egypt.

The news filtering in from various points continues to be of a negative kind. Evidently Tripoli has not been bombarded, and is not likely to be, if the Turks do not oppose the Italian landing.

The warlike operations are confined to a blockade and the capture on either side of a few small vessels.

It is now admitted from the Turkish side that Prevesa, in European Turkey, is not occupied. Italy's announcement that she has no intention of carrying the war into European Turkey will do much to allay apprehension over Balkan or other complications.

Turkey's ministerial difficulties have not been solved, but generally the situation looks more hopeful.

Turkey Calls on Reserves

Constantinople, Oct. 3.—It is stated that the war ministry has ordered the mobilization of seven classes of reserves, and made provision for calling out nine additional classes.

A report from the military commander at Prevesa denies an Italian landing there. The report explains that attempts to land were made, and the statement that a landing had been effected probably originated in the capture of the prefect of the port by an Italian warship while he was proceeding to the warships to ascertain the object of their presence.

Arabs Ready to Fight

Malta, Oct. 3.—Word just received from Tripoli says that the Turks and Arabs are intrenching behind the city. Sixty thousand Arabs, said to be armed with Mausers, hold a strong position fifty miles behind the town, in a country which is an excellent natural stronghold.

An advance guard is stationed twenty miles from Tripoli. The Turkish garrisons have left for the forts.

But Four Italians In Tripoli

Tripoli, Oct. 3.—No bombardment of Tripoli has yet occurred. The correspondents are under the strictest censorship and are not permitted to disclose the names of the blockading ships or the military movements. Of all the Italian colony in Tripoli there remain only two monks and two nuns, who are caring for the invalids in the hospitals.

Turkish soldiers guard the Italian consulate and the Italian business houses. When the last of the Italian colonists left the consulate on Saturday, where they spent the night under the protection of the German flag, the streets were strongly lined with Turkish troops.

Transport Reported Sunk

Rome, Oct. 3.—A dispatch to the Tribuna from Malta says that a steamer, which arrived there last evening brought the news that the Turkish transport Derna had been shelled and sunk in the harbor of Tripoli. It confirmed the other advices that the bombardment would not begin until Tuesday, this, in order to give the population time to withdraw to a place of safety.

MADERO WINS IN MEXICO

Uncertainty as to Who Has Been Elected Vice President

Mexico City, Oct. 3.—The returns from the elections are coming in slowly and indicate that General Madero has received a practically unanimous vote for the presidency.

No vice presidential candidate seemingly has a sweeping victory. From claims advanced by the progressives and the Catholic party it appears that the race between Suarez and De La Barra is close, but the Vasquistas are unwilling to concede the defeat of Gomez.

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 3.—President Taft received a cordial non-partisan welcome to Nebraska and to Lincoln. William J. Bryan, at the luncheon given here in Mr. Taft's honor, proposed a toast to the President of the United States.

Pleads Guilty of Manslaughter

Farmington, Me., Oct. 3.—A plea of guilty of manslaughter was made by Audubon S. Wilson during his trial in the supreme court for the alleged murder of Gideon Chase, a Wilton farmer, on May 29. He will be sentenced later.

Twenty Sailors Drown

London, Oct. 3.—The British steamer Hatfield was in collision near Rotterdam with the British steamer Glasgow. All the members of the Hatfield's crew, numbering about twenty men, were drowned.

Anti-Jew Riot In Warsaw

Warsaw, Oct. 3.—There was a "cheaper food" riot directed against the Jews in the suburbs of the city. Three Jews and two Christians were wounded. The police resored order.

Settling Moroccan Difficulty

Paris, Oct. 3.—The cabinet met yesterday afternoon and Foreign Minister DeSelves reported that the negotitions with Germany concerning Morocco were proceeding satisfactorily.

—Mr. Lawson believes that he had a legal right to dispose of the horse and carriage in that manner, and will not be convinced otherwise until he hears from the supreme court. If the case is decided against him it will mean that the lottery law will have to be enforced against church fairs and all parties or organizations that dispose of goods or articles by any system of drawing.—Springfield Union.

FLOOD VICTIMS MAY REACH 150

Buried Beneath Piles of Wreckage In Austin, Pa.

PROPERTY LOSS $8,000,000

Paper and Lumber Industries Completely Wiped Out—Protective Measures Determined Upon to Remedy Defects In Dam Were Never Carried Out—Two Towns Practically Obliterated by Terrible Momentum of Flood

Austin, Pa., Oct. 3.—Twenty-four known dead and eighty-six missing and believed to be buried beneath the debris, is the census of Austin's loss of life in the flood of Saturday.

It is conceded, however, that several if not many, visitors and strangers were in town that day, and they undoubtedly perished. Including them and allowing for inevitable errors in compilation the total of dead will probably reach 150.

Twenty-one of the twenty-four bodies recovered from the ruins have been identified and of the missing, hope is entertained that some may yet be accounted for.

The problem of the hour is how to recover the dead from the tons of debris choking the narrow valley. To do so before it becomes necessary to burn the ruins and save the living from an epidemic, an army of labor must reach the town within the next thirty-six hours, officials say. Otherwise, the torch may transform the wreckage into the pyre of most of those who have perished.

Still Working on Census

The most essential matter in hand here, aside from the work of clearing away the ruins, is the completion of a census of the living Austin citizens. Two such censuses are being worked upon. The results, however, have as yet supplied insufficient data for the formation of any reliable opinion as to the total death list in Austin. If the death list aggregates anything like the enormous number some have estimated, state board of health officials realize that conditions demanding prompt attention will arise within a few days in the ruins.

The best informed investigators, however, are unprepared to learn that more than 200 have perished. There is, indeed, a possibility that 150 will be the total. There is little hope that any of the bodies remaining in the wreckage will be found intact.

Cleaning Away Debris

Good progress in the work of clearing up the wrecked town is being made. Health Commissioner Dixon says his division chiefs, engineers, physicians and nurses are all at work and that the sick and wounded are being cared for. Dr. Dixon states that there is sufficient food and housing at present. He is organizing all forces for systematic search for dead and injured and will arrange for disposal of the dead as well as for sanitary measures.

Austin, Costello and the valley beyond look like dead towns. The valley side hills in which they lie are still littered by the shattered homes of the people and the remnants of prosperous places of business.

No reliable estimate of the property loss has been or can be soon made, but it is safe to say it will not be less than $8,000,000. The paper and lumber industries are utterly destroyed. The supply of timber, however, was rapidly nearing exhaustion and at the best it was thought five years from now the industry would be practically at an end.

Dam Was Unsafe

Questioned as to the cause of the sudden failure of the Bayliss Pulp and Paper company's dam, citizens and business men recall the scare a year ago last January, when a considerable leak was discovered in the immense cement structure. Although two feet along the rim of the dam were removed to relieve the pressure and a fourteen foot patch was placed where needed, the alignment of the upper edge of the dam gradually became a slight arc instead of a straight line. This bulge caused a worry on the part of the citizens and led to a somewhat recent inspection. Certain protective measures were determined upon, but the delay was fatal.

Costello, three miles away, is proportionately as shattered as Austin. But for the loss of the flood's momentum and the timely warning given by telephone operators who risked their lives to do so, the death list would have been much larger.

The immediate scene of obliteration covers an area of three-eighths of a mile wide and ane and three-quarters miles long. This comprised the business section and the valley residence portion. A mile above was the mammoth concrete dam of the Bayliss Paper and Pulp company, 600 feet long, 52 feet high and 30 feet thick at the bottom, tapering to a thickness of three feet at the top. Back of this dam Saturday lay a reservoir of water 1½ miles long with an average depth of 35 feet.

Directly in front of the dam stood the plant of the Bayless company with four main buildings. Stacked high nearby was 700,000 cords of 50-inch wood and slabs, and also a portion of the company's immense timber stock, totalling in the Austin valley, 15,000,000 feet of hard wood and 25,000,000 feet of hemlock. This was a five-year supply, practically the last large cut of the region, valued at $2,000,000.

The wreckage of the dam was as utter as it was sudden. Two immense sections from top to bottom, 150 feet wide, were hurled out bodily as if they had been the gates of an immense canal lock. The outward swing was more than fifty feet and on either side the remaining structure began to crumble aawy. Repairs last spring had consisted of a patch of cement fourteen feet square. One of the severed sections Saturday began at that patch.

The greatest loss of life by fire occurred at a sharp turn of the valley, where the debris was caught up and compressed with terrific power by the circling sweep of the flood. The wreckage of the busiest portion of the town was carried to the point, and it caught fire from upset stoves and lamps.

Coffins Reach Austin

Twenty-five coffins reached Austin yesterday and 100 more, ordered by wire, are expected here today. Burial permits are issued as rapidly as identification proceeds. Outgoing trains carried several bodies to nearby towns, but most of the victims will be laid away in Austin's burial ground, which was untouched by the flood.

A gaunt old man, with sunken eyes, clad only in shirt and trousers, plucked at the sleeve of an officer of the state police.

"Can't you lend me an overcoat for my wife?" he asked. "She's up the line here, where we took her Saturday. She just left the hospital Friday—had been there six months—and I'm afraid she will die if I can't get some clothes for her."

"How about yourself?" questioned the officer, looking down at the applicant's unshod feet.

"I just want to borrow a coat for my wife," the old man replied.

"Here," answered the officer, removing his own coat, "take that to your wife, and here," as a trooper nearby removed his, "is one for you."

FURTHER ACTIVITY IN TEXTILE CENTRES

Many New England Woolen Mills on Full Time

Boston, Oct. 3.—Further activity is reported by New England textile centres. The woolen mills, which curtailed during the summer even more extensively than the cotton mills, are busier than for months, although considerable maghinery is still idle.

The American Woolen company, which operates thirty plants in the New England states and New York, has increased the number of active looms by nearly 10 percent since Sept. 1. Many of the independent woolen mills are also busier.

The Atlantic woolen mills, Providence, have gone on practically a full time basis, and the Hudson Worsted company's plant at Hudson is in operation day and night.

The Dudley woolen mills at Webster have adopted a day and night schedule, and a section of the Wuskanut mills, Farnumsville, is running overtime three nights weekly.

AEROPLANE TURNS TURTLE

Rodgers Meets With Mishap In His Coast to Coast Flight

Huntington, Ind., Oct. 3.—C. P. Rodgers, the only flyer left in the coast-to-coast air race for the $50,000 Hearst prize, came to grief here when his aeroplane turned turtle in a high wind and crashed to earth. The machine was demolished, but Rodgers was not seriously hurt, though painfully bruised.

Despite the fact that a dangerous wind was blowing, Rodgers took the air at 12:10, intending to reach Chicago. He had been in the air only two minutes when a gust caught the planes of his machine, tilting them and causing the machine to drop.

HOLY GHOSTERS HUNGRY

Yacht Coronet, on Way to Portland, Is Short of Provisions

New York, Oct. 3.—The steamer Lapland, which has just arrived here, sighted on Friday afternoon, flying the signal "Short of provisions, starving," the schooner yacht Coronet, owned by Frank W. Sandford, leader of the "Holy Ghost and Us" sect. The Lapland supplied her with a boatload of provisions, but the steamer's officers were unable to learn the circumstances which caused the Coronet's predicament.

The Coronet had on board thirty-two persons, including eight women and two children. The yacht was bound from African ports to Portland.

Vaudeville Actress a Suicide

London, Oct. 3.—A verdict of suicide by gas poisoning while the victim was of unsound mind, was returned at the inquest into the death here of Mrs. Jean Haswell, an American vaudeville actress, whose body was found in her apartments.

THE UMANSKY MURDER

Police Think They Have Man Who Killed and Robbed Woman

Westfield, Mass., Oct. 3.—Charged with the murder of Mrs. Rose Umansky in Granville, Stafan Borasky was held without bail for a continued hearing on Oct. 12 after he had pleaded not guilty in the district court here.

It is charged that Borasky and a companion, known only as Tony, killed Mrs. Umansky at the farmhouse of her son and threw her body into a well. It is alleged that robbery was the motive for the crime, Mrs. Umansky having been known to have had a considerable amount of money in her possession.

Peter Targunsky was held in $1000 bail as a witness for the state. Tony has not been captured.

GERMANY SCHAEFER A REAL HUMORIST.

Herman Schaefer can always have a job on a team that Jimmy McAleer manages. The Washington manager says he could not get along without Herman.

"He's been a big help to us this year, both in batting and fielding," says McAleer. "And then 'Schaef' constantly keeps the team in good humor.

SCHAEFER.

"Whenever I have an all star team I engage 'Schaef,' and before the first game is over 'Schaef' will have assigned more work to himself than any other man on the team has.

"When I got up a team to play against the Athletics last fall, after the American league season closed, I included 'Schaef' in the squad.

"In the first game in Philadelphia Cobb did not play. He lost a wheel on his auto coming to Philly, so I had Schaefer in right.

"Of course the crowd wanted to see Cobb above all others, and they continually asked Schaefer, 'Where's Cobb?' Finally 'Schaef' turned to the mob in the bleachers and yelled:

"'Cobb, Cobb! Who the deuce is Cobb? Ladies and gentlemen, keep your eyes focused on me and you will witness the greatest exhibition ever staged on a ball field. Cobb? Why, if that guy would see me play he'd burn his uniform.'"

GREAT HITTERS HAVE FANNED THREE TIMES.

Those discussing the relative merits of the big league batsmen, Ty Cobb, Larry Lajoie and Hans Wagner, can no longer remark in any argument against Cobb that the world's greatest ball player has been fanned three times in one game while Lajoie and Wagner never underwent that torture.

Manning, who used to pitch for the New York Highlanders, set down Tyrus three times in a game played in New York. That was some time ago. Still, Wagner and Lajoie never experienced the same displeasure until recently, and a peculiar coincidence was that both Larry and Hans fanned three times on the same afternoon.

George Suggs, former Tiger, pitching for Cincinnati, handed it to Hans, while Ed Walsh, who won fame this season by pitching a no hit-no run game, struck out Larry in three out of four times at bat.

Seybold Holds Home Run Record.

"Socks" Seybold holds the American league record for home runs. He established it in 1902. The former Athletic in that year made sixteen.

OPENING EVENT OF SEASON

Proves Most Enjoyable at the Quincy Catholic Club

THE PROGRAM

The first social event of the season of the Quincy Catholic club was held Monday evening in the rooms of the Knights of Columbus club, in the Savings Bank building. The attendance was unusually large and the evening proved to be one of the most delightful the club has held for a long time. The enthusiasm of the members also showed that they are fully alive to the purposes for which the club was formed, leaving no doubt that the good work which the club has done in other years will be excelled the coming season.

The evening was styled an evening with Thomas Moore, the Irish poet, and a delightful program had been arranged for the entertainment of the ladies. It opened with an introduction by Miss Elizabeth Powers and was followed by a melody of Irish airs by the Keating orchestra, composed of Miss Teresa Keating, Miss Ruth Keating, and Miss Eileen Kennally. Miss Mary W. Dinegan gave a synopsis of Lalla Rookh and a quartette composed of Miss Mary R. Lyons, Miss Anna J. Walsh, Miss Helen Galvin and Miss Josephine T. Collagan sang "Believe me" and "The last rose of summer."

Miss Mary Parker gave short readings from the works of Moore and the program closed with snatches of Irish songs by Miss Helen Galvin.

Home made confections were served at the close of the evening.

Career of Player Ten Million.

Ten Million, center fielder of the Victoria (British Columbia) club in the Northwestern league, recently purchased by Cleveland, is one of the best fielders and fastest runners in that section. He is a fair hitter and a fine thrower.

He was born in Mount Vernon, Wash. His family moved to Seattle, where he came into prominence with the Seattle high school team that toured the country. He went to the University of Washington and became captain of that team. His father, Judge Million, named him Ten Million. There is no nickname about it.

KUTINA IS WHITE HOPE.

St. Louis Browns' First Sacker Is Also Wrestler and Neighbor of Gotch.

Kutina, the former Saginaw first baseman, who is now holding down the initial sack for the St. Louis Browns, is a wrestling partner of Frank Gotch during the winter months Kutina owns a farm adjoining the Gotch estate near Humboldt, Ia., and the ball player and wrestler are great friends.

Kutina is also a boxer of local fame in his home district. He is big enough to go for heavyweight honors, and it may be that some time he will be the hope of the Caucasians.

Brooklyn Has Worried Leaders.

That Brooklyn team has been a thorn in the sides of the leaders in the National league race this year simply because it has some high class pitchers who insist on being in form against the teams that are fighting for the pennant. Though down in the race, Brooklyn has had something to say which teams should battle for the flag, and to its good work against the leaders the present close race must be attributed.

BASEBALL STARS WHO STILL STICK

Diamond Shining Lights of 1910 Twinkle Brighter Than Ever.

M'GRAW FOOLS WISE ONES.

Showing of Rube Marquard This Season Surprised Many Experts—Many New World Beaters Make Good, but Fail to Usurp Many Vets.

With the end of the major league season in sight, this seems as good a time as any to review some of the points which will make 1911 history in the annals of the game, if there really be any annals. We do this to beat some of the real baseball historians like George Moreland, Pop Morse and Hughie Fullerton to it. Now for the fatal plunge:

Ty Cobb of Detroit further strengthened his hold on the honor of being the world's greatest ball player. Charley Comiskey, owner of the Chicago White Sox, called him this in a famous interview last year. Nothing the Georgia Cracker has done so far can take this remarkable title from him. He has been largely responsible in keeping the Tigers in their high estate. In batting, base running and fielding he has been premier in all that that much overworked word indicates.

After having been panned by New York critics for two years and more McGraw of the Giants now has the satisfaction of seeing his $11,000 beauty, Rube Marquard, develop into one of the best southpaws in the country. Getting off to another punk start, this former American association star has blossomed out into a world beater, and it is due to him in a great measure that the Giants are very, very formidable contestants for the National league title. The changeable New York critics now are extolling McGraw's foresight. So hats off to the Giant's manager, please!

Player Stovall of the Cleveland Naps has proved himself a first rate manager for "one so young." The Naps have really played better ball under him than they have in years. The players seem to want to make his regime as much of a success as possible, which accounts for the very commendable manner in which they have been playing the past two months. They have risen out of the depths to a position which is not half bad, being contestants with the White Sox, the Yankees and the Speed Boys of Boston for third notch.

Ed Walsh of the Sox has pitched his first no hit game after knocking at the door for years. This caps his truly great career, and he now can rest in content. It would have broken his heart to retire from the game without that honor. Ed has pitched several one hit games. One tough one in particular, played some four years ago in Chicago grounds against the Naps, was a cruel blow to Edward. The one hit was a mighty dinky one in the eighth inning. Then another hit that might have bene knocked down occurred a couple of weeks ago against Boston. But the best game Walsh ever pitched was against Chesbro of the Yankees six years ago. That former spitball king held the Sox to one hit and lost, 1 to 0, which is going some.

Another Ed—Reulbach of the Cubs—retains his unchallenged title of the wildest man of the leagues. For years the Cub fans have shuddered to see him ascend the box. As it generally happened there were half a dozen men passed, one or two hit, and then Edward was called to the bench. Most of the Chicago fans wonder why he has been kept this long time. But perhaps the Cub management feels compelled to retain one who is so consistent. And we still have the same old headlines in the papers—in fact, it happened only recently—"Reulbach Wild, Cubs Lose."

The grand form shown by the St. Louis Cardinals and their amazing spurt earlier in the season are one of the year's best offerings. It is possible that next year St. Louis will have a winner.

The Boston Nationals, with two comebacks—Kling and Donlin—have been jarring several of the "hopes" of late. The Cubs were severely jolted on their last visit to Boston. This is noteworthy enough to deserve mention here, inasmuch as Boston generally is satisfied with one victory a year from Chicago.

Carrigan Has Collection of Gloves.

Bill Carrigan, the Boston American catcher, carries a series of gloves and a valet to supply them. Some he uses with men on bases and others when the sacks are unoccupied. Cicotte's spitball influences Bill in his change of mitts.

Players Who Made Five Bingles.

Players who have made five hits in one game this season are Devore, Byrne (twice), Tenney, Bescher, Simon, Bill Sweeney, Mike Mitchell, Cobb, Dan Murphy, McInnes, Barry and Eddie Collins. Four of the twelve are Mackmen.

Sweeney Has Developed Into Star.

Infielder Bill Sweeney of the Boston Nationals is fast getting into the class of A1 ball players of the country. He never was so much in the game as since he took to playing second base.

SPORTING "DOPE"

By B. A.

Don't Knock, Just Boost.—B. A.

The members of the local High school eleven were put through some hard practise Monday afternoon preparatory to encountering Weymouth High at Merrymount Park this afternoon. The changes put into effect by Coach Staff, evidently seem to have been productive of much good, for the team worked yesterday with greater speed and accuracy and it is also expected that the defensive side will be considerably improved.

Maurice Blackmur will start in at quarterback, while Larkin, who has not shown the desired form in this position this year, will be tried on one of the ends. Trask, being an exceptionally fast man on his feet will likewise be given a chance to show his ability as a general and will run the team during part of the game. Bill will be placed in the backfield, and Prout may also be in the lineup, although he has not had any practise to speak of, as yet.

Weymouth High has a good eleven this fall and a high class struggle should be in order on the local grounds this afternoon.

The amateur boxing bouts, scheduled to take place in St. Mary's Hall on the evening of October 16, have already met with great favor among the fans and wiseacres of the city, and since they are to be conducted under the sanction of the amateur athletic association, everything gives promise of being run smoothly and there is no doubt that some great cards will be billed for the attraction. A number of entries have already been received and as the time for the closing of the same has been set for Oct. 13, it would be well for any local boy desirous of entering the contest, to submit his name as soon as possible before that date. Charles C. McCue of 18 West street has charge of the entries and he is especially desirous, of giving every opportunity to any local boy who is a registered amateur.

The project of running amateur boxing bouts seems at present to be a good one and it is sincerely hoped that nothing will come up that will deter the members of the Quincy A. A. from billing high class shows each week. The organization is now a most flourishing one, and since all kinds of athletic enterprises will be attempted, it should become one of the leading athletic organizations in the state. New members are daily coming in and the time is now ripe for any one who desires to become affiliated with a progressive body of young men, to have his name enrolled among the list of members. No one, but members, will be allowed to witness the bouts, and every local sport should see to it that he takes advantage of the chance afforded.

"Charlie" Knight, the well known local twirler will report to Brockton of the New England league next season. Knight was with Brockton for a short period this year, but was let go in order that he might acquire more experience. His playing in the Nova Scotia section this summer has caused him to create a sensation and it is highly improbable that he may be able to maintain a permanent birth with the Brockton team.

The Quincy runners in the Brockton races will be watched closely next Thursday.

The Quincy A. A., formerly known as the Wollaston A. A. football team, will play its first game of the season at Merrymount park next Saturday against the Orients of East Boston. The members of this local team have been putting in some hand practise this week and should round out into one of the best 160 pound football teams in the state.

A number of roller skating races are under consideration by the management of the Coliseum and some warm contests may be expected this season.

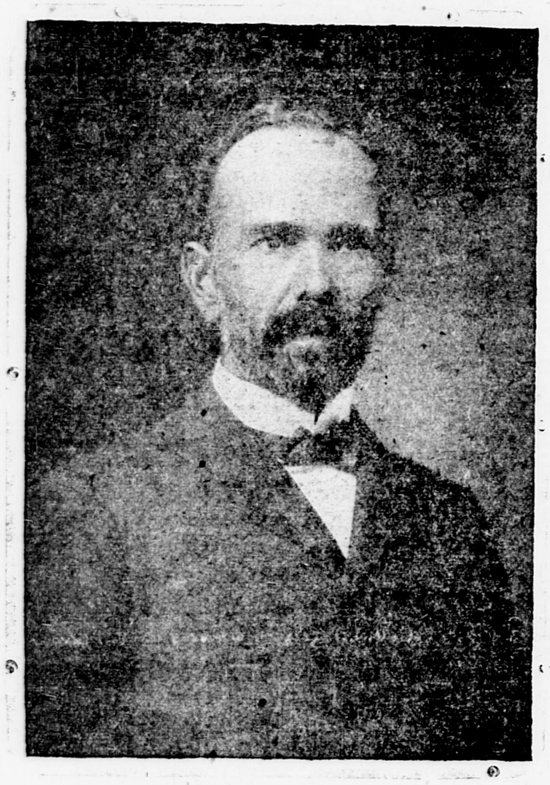
WILL ACCEPT REPUBLICAN NOMINATION FOR MAYOR

John L. Miller, Prominent Man of Affair, Will Allow His Name to go Before the Republican Caucus



JOHN L. MILLER

The first citizen to publicly declare himself as a candidate for the Republican nomination for Mayor at the coming caucus is John L. Miller, who this morning, informed a committee of citizens that he would allow the use of his name as a candidate.

Tuesday, several citizens waited upon Mr. Miller and urged him to become a candidate for the nomination. He refused to give his answer at that time however saying that he would consider the matter and reply this morning.

Today he informed the Daily Ledger, that after due consideration, he had decided to allow the use of his name.

Mr. Miller is almost too well known to residents of Quincy to need any introduction, for he has been prominently connected with the business interests of the city for many years. His business is that of a granite manufacturer in which he has been actively engaged for many years. He has always been a staunch Republican and a supporter of the party principles.

He was for several years the active and energetic president of the Granite Manufacturers' association. He has also been a member of the School Committee for several years and is the present chairman of the board.

HARRIS SOUNDS THE KEYNOTE FIGHT TO BE ON NATIONAL ISSUES

Congressman Presided at the Republican State Convention Held in Tremont Temple Today. His Address Deals With Industries of the Bay State and Draws Lines Along Which Campaign Will Be Fought

Boston, Oct. 4.—Congressman Robert O. Harris of East Bridgewater presided at the Republican state convention, which was held in Tremont Temple today. His address follows:

Mr. Chairman: Members of the Convention: Candidates: Fellow Republicans:

I thank you sincerely for this great honor. No Republican should decline it. Everyone would esteem it: but its acceptance brings always a due sense of its importance and responsibility.

This year we nominate no candidates, for they have already been directly selected by the people and the work has been well done; but this convention is not thereby left to perform merely a perfunctory and unimportant ceremony. Here the platform is to be proclaimed. Here we as representatives of the Republican party are to make solemn declaration of faith and, officially, are to present these, our candidates, to the voters for their endorsement and support.

We are told that this is a state campaign only; but I would impress upon you that, try as we may, nothing can stop the nation from looking on and giving its own significance to the result of our contest.

About the Candidates

Our candidates are Republicans without prefix or suffix either on or off the ballot. They are our candidates because the people know they not only will maintain the standard of Massachusetts government but will, also, represent and uphold the national policies of the Republican party.

No man will question their character, their capacity or their fitness to fill the offices to which they have been nominated. After their election, no man will spend time in gloomy foreboding as to what is to become of the state of Massachusetts. Massachusetts has always been so well governed that she has been able to survive an occasional Democratic governor, without being very much the worse for him or it, though never conspicuously better.

In a sense this is indeed a state campaign; for as Massachusetts is a part of the United States, so she has her great stake in the prosperity of the people of the nation, as well as in that of her own citizens.

The annual product of her manufacturing industries rises to the immense total of about one and a quarter billion dollars. It represents the labor of the brains and the hands of those who work in mill and shop and factory. Massachusetts pays to her labor in her manufactories two hundred and fifty million dollars a year.

Industries Not Local

Our great industries are not merely local. We are not an isolated community. Our prosperity is that of the nation, and not ours alone; if the people of the nation do not prosper, neither will the citizens of Massachusetts.

As a political detail, this campaign may be a state campaign, but as a matter of larger fact, in its purposes and effect it is national.

Under these circumstances, and out of a profound conviction, I shall take advantage of this generous audience now helpless before me, to preach a little Republican doctrine as it is given to me to understand and to believe and to tell you what it means to Massachusetts and the nation.

Having in mind the genealogical fact that on my maternal and grandmaternal side there were two sturdy, and possibly long winded, ministers, I shall endeavor to express my views without resorting to the old New England ministerial style of proceeding from firstly to twenty-fourthly, and then some more for good measure. I hope, however, to be understood.

Once more we are meeting the old Democratic doctrine, sometimes called Free-Trade, and at other times "Tariff for revenue only: with incidental protection." We have encountered it before and have made some costly and depressing experiments with it. Now again the leaders of the Democratic party ask the country to accept and apply to the affairs of the country this policy of theirs.

About Free Trade

Free-trade, I mean real free-trade, is the dream of the closest economist; the ultimate theory of the philosopher who ignores present world-wide facts and conditions. When every individual of every nation accepts his condition as the best to which he can attain, when he ceases to dream of and struggle for other and better conditions; when every nation does the same, the ultimate theory may become the ultimate fact.

So long, however, as individuals and nations do dream of better things and better conditions, each man and each nation of virility and courage will endeavor to hold and protect that which it has, and strive for that which it has not, but which it greatly desires. It seems to me that we can dismiss free-trade from this campaign.

"Tariff-for-revenue only, with incidental protection," is the real thing, and to that we may well pay attention.

Our southern Democratic friends who urge this policy upon us can have no objection to our considering their situation, examining the reasons for their cry, deciding what it means to them, and to us.

DEMOCRATIC CITY COMMITTEE HOLDS IMPORTANT MEETING

Was Called to Order on Tuesday Evening by Chairman Smith

Plans to Secure Quarters Near City Square

The first meeting of the fall for the members of the Democratic City Committee was called to order Tuesday evening by Chairman John D. Smith, in the rooms of the Quincy Athletic Association on Temple street. All the members of the committee were present and at the conclusion of the gathering, one member, who has been connected with local democracy for eighteen years, said that the meeting was the best that has been held by such a representative body during that period.

The Democratic candidates for office were present and plans were made to use every effort to aid them in securing election. Chairman Smith outlined the policy that had been adopted last year and presented for consideration the many things that were under consideration this year. He told of the success met by the Democratic members last year and predicted even greater success this fall, in the event of united effort being forthcoming from the members of the party.

"It is generally conceded, continued Councilman Smith, that the City of Quincy is Republican by the ratio of 4 to 1, but when we consider that in the state election of last year a Democratic governor emerged in this city from the gubernational contest with a substantial lead over his Republican opponent, that the city was also carried by a Democratic candidate for senator, and that our candidates to the General Court were only defeated by less than three hundred votes, it can readily be seen that the local voters are open to argument and will willingly abide by any reasonable and feasible proposition that may be presented." Mr. Smith then went on to show how the candidates this year could gain victory.

He was followed by Peter M. Sullivan, secretary of the committee who made an eloquent plea for organized effort and urged all to take advantage of the many opportunities that were at their disposal.

Michael T. Sullivan, candidate for the house from the fifth Norfolk, was the next speaker. He told of what he had already accomplished in the line of getting votes and said that while he realized he had a hard fight on, nevertheless, he was getting good results at the present time and expected to be pronounced a winner at the state election.

Ex-Councilman John J. McDevitt, the Democratic representative candidate from the sixth Norfolk followed Mr. Sullivan. Mr. McDevitt has already started an active campaign and while he admits that his opponent is to put up a hard fight, he feels that his showing against Representative Langelier last year should warrant his being elected as the representative from Wards 4, 5 and 6. Mr. McDevitt presented many propositions to the committee and advanced many ideas relative to the means that should be used to aid the Democratic candidates. He spoke of the many issues that were on hand and outlined that matters upon which he was basing his candidacy. He was roundly applauded at the conclusion of his remarks.

SUCCESS OF CHARITABLE MOVEMENT IS ASSURED

Popularity of Organization is Shown by Quick Response to Appeal for Financial Assistance. Still Time to Send Subscriptions

Great was the rejoicing of the finance committee of the Associated Charities of Quincy, Inc., to find at their meeting at 4 o'clock on Tuesday at the High school, that the sum of pledges already received amounted to over the $1000.00 which the society agreed upon at its meeting two weeks ago was the minimum on which to go ahead with the work The City of Quincy is to be congratulated on having so many citizens who by their prompt and generous pledges have shown that they have the best interests of all the helpful organizations for all the people so closely at heart.

It shows a strong belief in the idea that there is great need of closer cooperation and a more confidential interchange between those most deeply interested in the welfare of the needy in our midst in order to make the best plan for raising the needy above the need of relief; to do constructive work which shall not simply relieve, like pouring water into a barrel with the spigot open, but which shall find out the causes, remove the disability where possible, and to build up from within the wish and the will to stand alone. This is the vision of the new philanthropy, says Dean Hodges, which is, that the blessing to the giver comes not only from giving much and often but more from the care and wisdom with which the gift is bestowed and its help or harm to the person receiving. This is really economical giving in its truest sense. For there may be great waste in charity with the best of intentions from lack of knowledge. It is a greater sin to give sometimes than to withold. Here is where the trained worker is greatly needed and who is now possible for Quincy.

Our Mayor has struck a high note with no uncertain sound in asking that party names be forgotten in the best service of the city. Let us, in this work, Jew and Greek, rich and poor Catholic and Protestant, Syrian and Italian, work shoulder to shoulder for the best good of our common brotherhood.

The committee will continue their work hoping to reach the $1500 mark before Oct. 10, the time limit set. As their number is small it will be impossible to reach all who may wish to be counted among the Founders,—Guarantor, sustaining or annual member of the associated charities of Quincy. $25 is a Founder's pledge; $10 a Guarantor; $5 a Sustaining member and $1 an Annual Member. Contributions sent to Rupert F. Claflin, the Treasurer, will be gratefully acknowledged.

The pledges to date are:

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

In spite of all the delights of the aeroplane, it will probably never supplant the closed buggy for taking your best girl to ride.

Before an aviator entertains hopes of a coast to coast trip, he should be able to make regular flights down town to buy a yeast cake.

Kane county, Ills., is to have a public school spelling match, in which 14,000 pupils will take part. Can they tell what Bac kac he spells?

Residents of the Downs want to know if the ordinance passed at the City Council meeting Monday night about barking dogs applies to roosters also.

Mr. Taft says the "back to the land" movement will greatly increase, but we notice they still have to hire brass bands and balloons to convince city people that it is wise to buy lots in the suburbs.

Eleven thousand "voters" in Newark N. J., could not be found at their addresses. The politicians must perform the duties for which they are elected by getting out to shake hands with real voters now.

The Ledger has offered the English department of the Senior class at the High school the use of a column in its Thursday edition each week to be used in the interests of the school as a feature of the school page. ITALY, TRIPOLI, AND TURKEY.

Italy, fighting Turkey over her colonies in Tripoli, is letting off some dangerous fireworks in the powder magazine of European diplomacy.

The Hague court of arbitration was established to create machinery for settling precisely such disputes. The representatives of Italian power signed the treaties establishing this machinery. The laws of all civilized lands punish severely the man who signs an agreement to pay $5 in cash, and then backs out of it. But diplomats violate agreements involving the sacrifice of millions of the people's money and thousands of lives, besides threatening the stability of Europe's fragile balance of power. And no police power above them exists that can punish such breach of faith.

Nevertheless, it would be a blessing to poor seedy and forsaken Tripoli if Italy or some other Christian nation walked in and took possession It is a paradise gone to seed. It has been called the Cinderella of Africa, sitting in her dust and ashes and menial clothes, waiting for some Prince to come along with the golden slipper of modern science and enterprise.

In the time of the Roman empire, it was a country of great fertility, with prodigious shipments of olives, grains, etc. And the golden soil is still there.

Turkey, with centuries of misrule, has farmed the country for the benefit of the Sultan, submerging all industry under staggering taxes, until even the wild Mohammedan Arabs might not regret the coming of a Christian power.

Under a system of grafting and absentee Turkish officials, the land has been reduced to the dull apathy of Egypt before the days of English control. Had the game been played with the weapons of diplomacy instead of gun play, the powers might well have handed over this dismantled wreck of a nation to the teeming colonists of sunny Italy.

ARRANGEMENTS MADE FOR "TAG DAY"

Largely Attended Annual Meeting of the Quincy Day Nursery Association

The annual meeting of the Quincy Day Nursery Association on Tuesday afternoon was largely attended and was an unusually enjoyable meeting being held at the home of Mrs. Clarence Burgin, Presidents hill, instead of at the clubhouse of the Quincy Women's club as is the monthly custom. Interesting reports were given showing the Association to be actively at work all through the year. Plans were made and committees chosen for "Tag Day" to be held Saturday, Oct. 14.

The hospitality of the hostess was enjoyed and the social hour after the meeting. Yearly reports and the election of officers for 1911-1912 were as follows:

SECRETARY'S REPORT.

In some respects the year just closing, the eighth in the history of the nursery, has been a trying one. The serious epidemic which so alarmed our whole city did not spare our Nursery. That it has recovered itself and is now able even better than ever to care for the children of needy mothers is a great tribute to the wisdom, devotion and the steady hand of the president of this Association.

And surely the thoughtful care and loving service of the matron did much towards the suppression of the epidemic and greatly relieved the hardships of those in quarantine.

The nursery mothers owe to her a debt of gratitude greater than they realize. The nervous and physical strains for Mrs. Loring was very great it was thought best to close the Nursery for two weeks in June so that she might have an absolute rest. Owing to the season of quarantine of the Nursery and the longer quarantine for the families afflicted the aggregate attendance of children for the year is much smaller than last year although up to February the number was larger each month than the corresponding month of 1909-10.

A visit to the Nursery during the summer months would have convinced one that it had come into its own again and a happier, healthier set of children would have been hard to find. They lived in the open air when the weather permitted having their lunches and substantial dinners on tables spread in the covered summer houses with their wooden floors. There the playthings were also and the large shady yard with the swings afforded endless amusement for the children.

One of the swings of generous size and with a canopy top was given by the Kathryn Crane Memorial club, a club of little girls who had before given generously to the Nursery.

THE PROBLEM

Of combining two pairs of glasses in one has been solved in Kryptok Bifocal lenses.

THE SOLUTION

Does away with the objectionable "line" between the distance and the near vision parts of the lens.

THE ADVANTAGE

No separate pasted-on segment to become cloudy and scale off.

Looks like a single lens, is thin and light.

Can be worn with comfort when the ordinary bifocal cannot be tolerated.

We have worked out a complete and result-giving system of testing the eyes for glasses.

5 VOTES

RULES GOVERNING CONTEST:

Boys and Girls, have you any idea how popular you are? Here is a chance for you to find out; and also secure one of the Six (6) GOLD WATCHES, to be distributed November 4th, 1911 among the Most Popular Boys and Girls under 17 years of age.

HOW TO OBTAIN YOUR VOTES:—For the next sixty days every L.H. Green Trading Stamp which you and your parents and friends get, should be pasted in the L.H. Stamp Book as usual. You, and your friends who vote for you, will show these stamps to the attendant in the L.H. Premium Parlor in the Quincy Department Store. The attendant will count and mark them "VOTED"; register the number of votes (equal to the number of Stamps shown) opposite the name voted for. The Stamps will then be returned to the holder.

The Quincy Daily Ledger will publish a Ballot which, when presented at our Premium Parlor, will entitle the Contestant to five (5) votes.

Various merchants will also publish coupons, each entitling the holder to five (5) votes in the same way.

It is important that you not only urge your friends to get the L.H. Stamps whenever they make purchases, but also vote them for you. Get all you can. Vote them for yourself or for someone else in whom you are interested.

Profit by your mother's example in Thrift and Economy by collecting L.H. Green Trading Stamps, which bring you so Generous a reward in Beautiful Premiums.

You will materially swell the number of Stamps you get, and the consequent votes you obtain, if you will bring us your HAMILTON BONDS and COUPONS, Tobacco Tags, Soap Wrappers, Labels and Trade-Marks. We will give you L.H. Green Trading Stamps for them.

VOTING THE STAMPS DOES NOT IN ANY WAY INTERFERE WITH THEIR BEING REDEEMED FOR PREMIUMS IN THE USUAL WAY.

STATE FEDERATION PRESIDENT.

Mrs. Henry Coolidge Mulligan of Natick the newly elected president of the State Federation of Women's clubs is entering actively into club work. She has accepted many invitations to club meetings and receptions have been arranged in her honor in the program of several clubs.

Mrs. Mulligan says the underlying motive in all club work is to accomplish all the good possible. "I believe that if the 40,000 club women in Massachusetts and the 800,000 club women in the United States were intelligently interested in the vital questions of our modern civilization and would work together simply and purely for the betterment of humanity, they would prove such a power as the world has never dreamed of.

"Through the efforts of my predecessors the organization of the federation has been brought to a high state of efficiency and I feel that future work should be along the line of developing in the individual members an intelligent interest in the great problems of the day and a sense of responsibility for their right solution. They might well take for a motto: 'The best of all is the pure joy of service. To do things that are worth while; to be in the thick of it; that is to live.'"

YOUNG LADIES' CHARITABLE ASSOCIATION

Organized In 1891. Interested In Free Home For Consumptives in Boston

BIG DEMONSTRATION

The Young Ladies' Charitable Association was organized in 1891 and its object is to care for the sick poor of all diseases, nationalities, creeds and colors in their own homes, to supply nourishment and delicacies and to promote other works of benevolence and charity among the sick and poor. The burying of the friendless dead is and has been an important branch of the work as many patients worry over the prospect of a pauper's burial.

For the more practical fulfilment of the work this association divided later into branches, each with its board of officers, subject to the board of government. The membership consists of women of good recommendations and the dues $1 per month or 10 cents from 10 contributors.

In 1892 was seen the necessity of a free home for poor consumptives, there being no non-sectarian general abode. At this period, the disease was not considered so contagious and little had been done to stop its progress. A number of young women just from school, held a fair and realized $4,000. With this amount and a first and second mortgage purchased an estate of nearly four acres in Dorchester and opened for 30 patients July 30, 1892.

The Free Home for Consumptives opens its doors to poor consumptives of every age, stage, nationality, creed and color; no pay patients admitted. The best physicians give their services to the cause, and graduate nurses are in attendance. Numbers from all over the State have been cared for. Many have, through its administration, been restored to health and those too late for a cure are made happy and comfortable while they live. Some have remained a number of years. If patients are friendless respectable burial and religious services are provided according to their creed.

To secure funds, Mr. Mitchell, vice president of the American Federation of Labor is to come from New York and address the public on Sunday, Oct. 8, in the evening on the grounds of the Home. An open-air theatre has been arranged for the purpose. Mr. Mitchell is known the world over as "Peacemaker of the Mines," as he a few years ago settled the important strike of the miners. He is a man of great ability and like all truly great men, is modest and unassuming and has a fascinating personality.

Hon. John Hays Hammond who was special ambassador of America to King George's coronation will be present and give a description of the coronation. Gov. Frederick Plaisted of Maine is expected to speak also Gov. Foss and Mayor John F. Fitzgerald and many other men of prominence. Band concerts in the afternoon and evening will be given by the First Corps Cadet band. The affair is under the auspices of the Boston Central Labor Union. The Massachusetts State Branch of the American Federation of Labor will also co-operate and Dennis Driscoll and President Wall will speak.

Miss Elizabeth A. Power, president of the Home and the Young Ladies' Charitable Association and the members will act on the Reception committee and serve refreshments.

GRANITE CITY CLUB'S WHIST TOURNAMENT

The weekly whist tournaments of the Granite City Club, which have been so popular during the winter months, will commence tonight and be continued every Wednesday evening through the season. Prizes are given for the best weekly, as well as for the best monthly percentages. There is also a prize for the best season's playing.

Q.—Did Ananias tell the first lie, nd is that the reason why we often speak of an "Ananias Club" whose members are reputed to be notorious liars?

Answer.—The Lord Jesus declared that Satan told the first lie, saying, "He was a murderer from the beginning and abode not in the truth because there is no truth in him. When he speaketh a lie he speaketh of his own; for he is a liar and the father of it." (John viii, 44.) The first lie told was by Satan in Eden when he said unto Mother Eve, "Ye shall not surely die." (Genesis iii, 4.) This was false because a contradiction to God's plain statement, "Thou shalt surely die." (Genesis ii, 17.) It may truly be said that all the false doctrines of "Heathendom" and "Christendom" have had their foundation in this falsehood told by Satan. Satan's falsehood was the cause of the disobedience of the first man which resulted in the sentence of Adam to death, and which death sentence by inheritance has passed upon all of his offspring. (Romans v, 12.) Ananias was an offspring of Adam. He was born under the condemnation of death, shapen in sin and brought forth in iniquity. (Psalm li, 5.) Therefore, the natural tendency was downward, hence all who would be honest and upright must fight against evil.

Q.—The Bible says "The earth abideth forever" (Ecclesiastes i, 4). How do we harmonize this with the conclusions reached by scientists that the solar system is gradually running down and that eventually the earth will become cold and lifeless?

Answer.—Even if the conclusions of scientists were realized as suggested above it would not be out of harmony with the Bible statement, for the earth would still be "abiding" although in a lifeless form. Various have been the speculations as to the ultimate fate of the earth. Some have conjectured that the earth would eventually drop into the sun and thus be consumed. Others have suggested that a collision would occur with some comet or with another planet, and in this way the earth would be disposed of. The suppositions of scientists have served to amuse a not too credulous public and, we believe, not many have taken them seriously as to their wild guesses. How reasonable and consistent the Bible teaching to the effect that the Creator formed the earth to be inhabited, and that while it is still in an imperfect condition as a habitation for mankind, yet eventually it is to be made glorious and perfect and in its beautified state will form an everlasting dwelling place for the regenerated human race! See Isaiah xlv, 18.

Anty Drudge on Marriage.

Miss Dolly Dainty—"I certainly do love James—but he's far too poor for us to get married. I'm not strong enough to do the family washing myself, and we cannot afford a girl."

Anty Drudge—"Get married right away if that's all that stops you. You're plenty strong enough to wash clothes the Fels-Naptha way. Fels-Naptha is easy on the woman; easy on the clothes."

Easy on the woman: easy on the clothes! That, in a nutshell, is the Fels-Naptha way of washing.

Fels-Naptha soap does away with all the hard and disagreeable part of washing clothes. Little rubbing, no steaming suds to bend over, no keeping up fire to boil the clothes, no nauseous odor from cooking soiled garments.

Then, clothes last longer with no boiling to weaken their fiber and no hard rubbing to wear them thin.

Look for the red and green wrapper.

$100 REWARD, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

ATTENDANCE LARGE AT EVENING SCHOOLS

Evening schools opened at the Willard, Adams and High school buildings Monday evening with fully as large an attendance as at any time last year. At the Willard school there were 89 in attendance at the opening and what is somewhat remarkable, nearly all of the students were Finnish people. Two native teachers are employed, and are of great assistance.

At the Adams school the attendance was 78 which is about the same as last year.

At the High school there was an attendance of 70 in the freehand and mechanical drawing classes, 38 in the commercial department, 20 in the sewing department and 10 in the cooking department. The cooking course will probably be discontinued unless the attendance is larger.

BRIEFS

Miss Edith Delory of Pray street has returned from a two weeks' trip through New York state.

At William C. Caldwell's forty-five party Tuesday evening 35 games were played. Thomas Sloam won 23, Ed. Pemberton 22 and William Grady 22.

The Brockton fair people got one good day for the fair and will probably get other before the week is out, although it did not look very inviting this morning.

Today is New England day at the Brockton Fair and Thursday Boston day and Friday as usual will be Governor's and firemen's days. There were over 25,000 school children in attendance Tuesday the opening day.

Loyal Temperance Legion will hold their next regular meeting in Protection hall Thursday afternoon at 4.15. It is hoped all the children will turn out and parents are also most cordially invited to be present.

NEW SUBMARINES.

Secretary of the Navy Meyer has awarded contracts for four new submarines to the Electric Boat company of New York and Quincy. When construction of these vessels starts, the United States will have a total of 21 submarines in building.

TIN SHOWER TENDERED BRIDE-ELECT

The young girls' sewing society, the Dorcas of the Swedish Lutheran church, held their regular meeting at the home of Miss Olive Larson, Prospect hill. A program was rendered and refreshments were served after which Miss Nanna Anderson was tendered a tin shower. An hour of fun was enjoyed by the reading of the messages to the bride to be, attached to each article. At a late hour the party broke up and the whole society helped Miss Anderson carry her presents home.

GALAHAD BROTHERHOOD.

Stop! Listen! What was that? The Turks advancing, or a shell bursting from the gun of Italy? There it goes again, louder and stronger than ever. Will it ever cease? No never, for its a midnight session of the Galahad Brotherhood of Christ church clearing their decks for action. Never before in its history have they been so over whelmed with work. Church fair, Sunday meetings, man and religious movement keeps them at their tasks until late at night. This proved to be the case at their business meeting last night, until the refreshment committee took charge.

DAY NURSERY

Individual friends have been most thoughtful and kind. Mr. Patch has followed his yearly custom of furnishing the Nursery with ice. One friend has sent daily to the Nursery four quarts of splendid Jersey milk. Another has about supplied the Nursery family with potatoes after the large quantity given at the time of the provision shower was exhausted. As the children use a peck a day one can see this gift was most welcome. Others have sent fruit, vegetables of all kinds, jelly, fruit and cooked food.

Many have sent clothing which the matron has given wisely and impartially. During the year she has given out 153 pieces of clothing all mended and ready to wear.

Perhaps the Red Letter day to the children was that of Dec. 31, the date of the annual Christmas and New Year's celebration for the Nursery children and mothers. All was sunshine and cheer without and within. The children fairly radiant with joy and contributing in no small degree to success of the day by their songs and little recitations. The Universalist Sunday school gave the tree with its beautiful ornaments and many friends helped to load it with gifts.

The efforts of the Association for raising money have been successful as in years past. Tag day brought into the treasury $500. A good sum when we remember that represents half a day's work as the rain sent all home soon after noon. The annual provision shower was held in Bethany chapel through the courtesy of Bethany circle who also served as hostesses at the social tea hour. The shower was as usual a generous one and aided very materially in keeping down the grocery bills for the year. The Valentine parties suffered a little on account of the scarlet fever scare but nevertheless netted the substantial sum of $162.70.

The Day Nursery Association has held ten regular meetings but with an attendance below that of last year. Several very stormy days account in part for the small numbers but still it seems that more might attend the monthly meetings, which are held rain or shine on the first Tuesday of every month, if the effort were made and memories taxed a little. Perhaps the apparent indifference on the part of members and directors comes from the comfortable feeling of absolute confidence in the president and matron, but active participation in the good work would be a satisfaction and benefit to all and certainly a great encouragement to those who assume the responsibilities of management.

Through the courtesy of the Women's club the meetings have been held in the club house.

With a Nursery in such admirable running order and a public willing to respond to its needs the management earnestly wishes for a larger usefulness. More children to be cared for and more mothers to be helped and encouraged.

For the fulfilment of this wish we look confidently to the help of the proposed paid secretary of the associated charities.

With gratitude to all who have so nobly helped the Nursery and trusting in a continuance of their favor the Association enters a new year full of hope and vigor.

Until a short time ago, scarcely one person in a thousand had ever tasted a really good soda cracker—as it came fresh and crisp from the oven.

Now every man, woman and child in these United States can know and enjoy the crisp goodness of fresh baked soda crackers without going to the baker's oven.

Uneeda Biscuit bring the bakery to you.

Millions of people know these perfect Soda Crackers in their original goodness. More millions will enjoy them daily when once they know how good they are.

A food to live on. Stamina for workers. Strength for the delicate. Bone and flesh for little folks.

It will cost you just 5 cents to try Uneeda Biscuit. Never sold in bulk, always in the moisture proof package.

ROOSTER COAL BRIQUETS

THE NEW ANTHRACITE COAL

ROOSTER BRIQUETS are made from the choicest small Scranton Anthracite coal mined in Pennsylvania, called TWENTIETH CENTURY CHESTNUT size

Just consider for a moment what we offer here in this 20th CENTURY CHESTNUT.

First, 2000 pounds of clean, pure, hard coal without a rock or a piece of slate.

Second, fuel that cannot form into a clinker, by any known method of firing, consequently the linings and grates last indefinitely.

Third, they are made in nut size, being equally convenient for furnace heaters, open grates, as well as stoves; therefore, only one storage bin is necessary.

Fourth, and very IMPORTANT, the quality of this fuel is the SAME EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR, not a good ton today, and nothing like it the next time, in other words, when you once learn how to regulate your drafts you have nothing more to learn about burning BRIQUETS.

Fifth, no more sifting ashes these Briquets burn out clean. They require less wood to kindle.

Be sure to ask for "ROOSTERS" and get the Briquet made from pure Scranton Coal, from the largest Briquet plant in the country. They are better than coal, will last as long and cost less.

FLOOD DEATH LIST LOWERED

Victims in Austin Will Not Run Much Above a Hundred

PROGRESS IN RELIEF WORK

Austin, Pa., Oct. 4.—State authorities are continuing energetic steps for the relief of the suffering people and the cleaning up operations at Austin. The death list will not run much more than 100. Effective organized relief is well under way and help is being offered from many communities in the state.

Great inroads have been made into the mass of tangled debris. A steam log roller at work along the tracks of the Buffalo and Susquehanna railroad, whose tracks lay through the middle of the wreckage, cleared large spaces. Indications are that by the end of the week the railroad will be opened through to Costello, enabling the carting away of useless wreckage.

No reports of any illness prevalent because of privations suffered have been made to the relief headquarters. The state constabulary is effectively policing the section. Eight arrests for petty thieving have been made.

Health Commissioner Dixon said: "We expect to have the ruins cleared by tonight. Under no circumstances will we burn the debris until the last body there has been recovered. What we need most is food. Please urge the public to send foodstuffs. We have word from our representatives in Costello that the situation there has improved."

DEMOCRATIC COMMITTEE

Ex-Representative Rednor P. Coombs next spoke. Mr. Coombs said that he felt sure he could carry this city at the coming election by a larger majority than he did last year. He told of the different parties that are working in his interests in the towns that comprise the district and presented arguments relative to the means that should be used to enable his being elected over Senator Barnes.

The question of new quarters came up and it was decided to secure such at once. The headquarters will probably be in the vicinity of Quincy square. A list of speakers was drawn up and a number of rallies have already been scheduled. It was regretted that Mayor Shea had gone south and was therefore unable to be present, but it is expected that he will be back in time for the rallies that have been billed in the interests of the Democratic candidates.

Others who spoke were Alfred LaCroix, James H. Grant, Thomas Griffin, Charles C. McCue, William Ferguson, William Kelley and Thomas Walsh. It was decided to have candidates for every office in the municipal election and it was also stated that the mayoralty contest would bring forth some strong Democratic timber, but it was deemed best not to divulge the names at the present time. The credentials for the Democratic state convention to be held at Faneuil hall, next Thursday, were also given out.

HARRIS SOUNDS KEYNOTE

which is both the need and the desire of the world, cotton. They raise 60 percent of the world's supply which is available for factory purposes. They raise this amount in a territory which makes it accessible to all the world, easy to be gathered into central markets, easy to transport and distribute to points of consumption. The remaining 40 percent of the world supply is raised in different portions of the world, in countries having different forms of government and varying sores of population. It has to be collected almost piecemeal. Our southern friends have, therefore, both by the situation of their terirtory and by their larger production of this staple, a natural monopoly of it. No one grudges them this monopoly. Every good citizen of the United States ought to rejoice that a section of this country enjoys so great a natural blessing.

As to Sugar

In sugar they have another natural product of the soil. Not, however, one in which they have or can have any monopoly of production.

Their territory in its utmost capacity does not, and can not yield anything more than a fraction of the amount needed for the consumption of the people of this country, to say nothing of the demands of the rest of the civilized world. Four southern states produce seven hundred and fifty million pounds. In addition to that amount the people of this country have to import some five or six billion pounds. Of late years the farmers of the west have been raising beet sugar; they have managed to produce more than the cane sugar states, yet together they have been able to produce enough to supply only one-fifth of our needs. Last year we imported sugar and paid duties on the imported supply to the amount of fifty-three million dollars. The value of the southern sugar crop, exclusive of considerations of duties, was between seventeen and eighteen millions. The people paid fifty-three millions in duties to protect it.

"Tariff-for-revenue only, with incidental protection," begins to assume visible form and to appear as a demand for absolute protection.

The needs of the nation, both for food and for revenue, make it possible to impose a "triff-for-revenue," and at the same time to give a protection which is guaranteed by human needs.

Taxing According to Needs

Rice is another southern product. Insufficient in amount to supply national demands, it can be made the basis of a large revenue, and an absolute protection to the planter. Tobacco and lumber stand in the same list. Behold their policy! They produce things that we have got to have, but not in quantity sufficient. By taxing according to our needs they find a governmental guaranty of profit to themselves, and complete protection.

"Tariff-for-revenue only" is a beautiful thing, with its "incidental protection" attachment. It does not seem good for the rest of the people who have products of farm and ranch, who have products of the toil of their hands, to supply other needs of people than those of the table.

Being so protected, our southern statesmen cry that it is beyond the legitimate scope of the powers of government to legislate to protect an industry, or the capital and labor engaged in it. Their contention is that the powers of government can go on further than the imposition of taxes upon its people.

Right of Protection

This is not the accepted doctrine of the world. Every nation not only claims the right, but asserts that it is a duty to protect and foster the industries of its people. The method of protection may vary with the circumstances and conditions of a people, but the right, the duty to protect is everywhere asserted and performed.

Every community and every nation claims the right of police power to protect life and property. Why the right to protect industry should not exist also, I cannot see. Republicans have always asserted that it does. They now assert that it does, and that it is a natural, legitimate and proper power of government.

Our Democratic brethren, after telling us that they will raise what revenues they need the money for, by taxing our necessities, with grandiloquent phrase and magnificent wave of the hand, point proudly, but vaguely, outward, and say: "Go sieze the markets of the world."

Outside the United States what are these markets? England alone offers a free market. That market is not so large, and filled with possibilities as our own. It is a home market, well supplied with the manufactured products that we have to offer it, and exporting much more than it has capacity to consume.

Every colony and dependency of England has a tariff-protected market of its own, but one giving a preferential reduction to British goods, or imposing a surtax upon goods not English.

France and Germany protect their home markets, and their colonies and dependencies likewise give preferential rates, or impose surtaxes.

No Great Free Markets

In plain language, the great free markets of the world, in which we are invited to compete, and for which we are to make a present to the world of ours, do not exist. Free-trade England offers us only the already occupied market of England alone, but excludes us from her own markets for her exports by duties, and preferences or surtaxes.

We are told that the superior skill and intelligence of the American workman will enable him to overcome the competition of the cheap, abundant, but unskilled and less productive labor of Japan, of China, of India, and of other foreign countries, and enable him to sell his goods in those markets.

Be not deceived or led astray by this cry. The cheap, abundant but unskilled labor of those countries has not yet been able to withstand the competition of the cheap, abundant, but highly skilled and intelligent labor of England, France and Germany, our three great competitors.

Whenever the smaller and more helpless countries of the world show any signs of becoming either commercially independent, or of furnishing a profitable market, somehow it happens that they become the centres of "spheres of influence," and England, France and Germany decide their fate.

Our competitors in foreign markets will be these three nations, whose manufacturers are as shrewd as ours, whose labor is as skillful, but whose scale of living and of wages is half of ours.

Republican Achievements

Has the Republican party no other achievements than those of the tariff to point to? As we have progressed commercially and financially have we not also progressed along higher intellectual and moral lines?

Can we not point with pride to our position among the nations of the earth as the one which has made its progress by the arts of peace?

American wares have not been blown into foreign markets at the mouth of cannon; no warships or regiments have been the advance guard for our salesmen. In no spot of earth have we shown the covetous spirit. We have gained that respect which is always given to a strong man, who in his strength respects himself, as well as his neighbor.

Humane and efficient administration in our foreign possessions are among our achievements. The carrying on towards comparatively early completion of the Panama canal, with a record of skillful engineering work, and honest administration that has never been equalled, is another. We can find many things that have come to pass that are subjects of praise under Republican rule.

SEN. BARNES ENTERTAINED INFORMALLY

Republican Leaders Join Him to Discuss Quincy Affairs

Senator George L. Barnes, of Weymouth, candidate for relection as Senator from the first Norfolk district, entertained quite a party of Quincy friends at an informal dinner Tuesday evening at Young's hotel, Boston. Senator Barnes had invited a few of the party leaders of Quincy to meet him, to go over the situation of the approaching campaign. Several of these brought friends with them so that the party numbered fully thirty all of which were from Quincy. Among them were: Albert L. Whitman, Eugene R. Stone, Louis K. Badger, Baron J. Thomas, Louis F. R. Langelier, Ernest E. Sodergren, William J. Leslie, Harry F. Nichols, William R. Thomas, Arthur W. Rohn, J. W. Sweeney, Alfred O. Diack, Felix Favoritte, Herbert S. Barker, Frank J. Kessler, Oscar S. Sandberg, Willis J. Middleton, Frederick E. Tupper, Harry S. Crane, Edward J. Sandberg, Charles H. Owens, John R. Richards, Walter E. Piper, Edward E. Jameson, Eugene C. Hultman and Richard R. Freeman.

The Board of Trade will consider the proposed etxension of the street railway line from East Milton to Adams Square, Dorchester, at its meeting tonight.

☞ Attention is called to notice in another column that an amateur orchestra is being formed under the direction of one of Quincy's best musicians to meet weekly for pleasure; an excellent opportunity is offered for musical enjoyment.

MR. BLANCHARD WILL BECOME BOYS' DIRECTOR

Former Newspaper Man To Assume Important Position at Y. M. C. A.

The Quincy Young Men's Christian Association has secured as its Boys' Work Director, Alden H. Blanchard, who for the past twelve years has been a resident of Quincy and thus needs no introduction to the people. Mr. Blanchard was graduated from Adams Academy in 1904 and from Amherst college in 1909. During the past year he has been reporting for the Ledger and the last of August resigned this position with the intention of going into business in another part of the State. The work of the Young Men's Christian Association appealed to him so strongly, however, that when the call came from the Quincy Association he accepted without hesitation. Although Mr. Blanchard has not had much experience in Association work, he has been actively engaged in Christian Endeavor work for several years and during the past year has served with great efficiency as president of the East Norfolk C. E. Union. He is a member of the Bethany Congregational church. The new director is well known throughout the city and has been interested in its social life as well as in the religious work and other branches. He has also been well known in athletic circles. The directors of the local association believe that they have secured the right man and feel confident that the work will go on with the same success that was apparent under Mr. Clee's direction. The association had secured Cyril D. Bond who was a resident at the association building for a number of years. Owing to a misunderstanding this engagement had to be cancelled and Mr. Bond has gone to Lawrence as assistant to Mr. Gay, former secretary of the local association.

QUINCY HIGH BEATS WEYMOUTH

Changes In Lineup Tend To Improve Team

STILL A LITTLE SLOW

The failure of the visiting players to regain a punted ball that landed on their own 5 yard line, enabled Larkin to get possession of the pigskin and run between the goal posts for the only touchdown, in the game played Tuesday at Merrymount Park between the Weymouth High and Quincy High football contingencies. Johnson kicked a very pretty goal and as a result the local players emerged in triumph from the contest with a 6 to 0 victory.

While the game was marked by a few good features, still the work of the local eleven has not yet reached the standard desired, and when it is considered that the ball was in the territory of the local lads during the greater part of the game, the performance on the whole cannot be highly complimented.

The one play of the sensational order was contributed by Doble, the plucky left half back of the Weymouth team. In the last part of the fourth period, he captured the ball and circled left end for 60 yards before being downed. Had he been able to run a little faster, he would have undoutedly scored a touchdown. Finlay played the best backfield game for Quincy High, and although he sustained a rather serious injury to his eye at the start of the game, managed to play throughout. He repeatedly netted gains of 15 and 20 yards.

Almost the entire local squad was seen in the lineup from time to time. Halvosa and McDonald played in fine style in the backfield and deserves to be worked in more games. Blackmur was changed from end to quarter back, and he, too, showed up to better advantage, as did Larkin, who was placed at right end.

Wall, the quarter back for the visiting eleven, played a fine game in the general position. The Weymouth line was not so heavy as the line of the local team, yet the visitors played a consistent game, and managed to keep the honors about even.

The backs of Quincy High were slow to get started, and failed to avail themselves of the opportunity to rush through the openings in the line.

Considerable improvement can be made in the work of the backfield and when this is forthcoming the local team will present a very formidable appearance.

FIRST PERIOD.

Quincy kicked off to Weymouth. The visitors rushed the ball for about forty five yards, where they were held for downs. On the first rush Finlay of the local team came in contact with referee Hill and sustained a cut over his right eye. Quincy advanced the ball to the middle of the field. Page gained ten yards. Holmes was thrown back for a loss of ten. The forward pass was tried, but offside play caused a penalty to be imposed on Weymouth. Punting was resorted to by both sides and Quincy gained possession of the ball on Weymouth's 25 yard line. Here the local eleven lost the ball, but when Weymouth tried a forward pass, it was intercepted by Page. Page went round the end for five yards and the ball on the next plays was placed on the visitor's 15 yard line. Quincy had the ball on the two yard line, but could not score.

Weymouth got the ball and punted to Blackmur, who ran about five yards to the 25 yard line. The forward pass was tried but struck the ground and was coveted by Weymouth. A series of punts was then in order and when the period ended the ball was on Weymouth's 35 yard line.

SECOND PERIOD.

In the opening of the second the visitors were penalized for holding. Quincy punted the ball from the twenty-five yard line and it landed about eiyht yards from the goal posts. Larkin gained possession of it and ran over the first and only touchdown of the game. The goal was kicked by Captain Johnson.

Weymouth punted and the ball was fumbled by Blackmur. Page, however, regained it by a clever play. Holmes gained ten yards. Page failed to gain. The forward pass was very carefully executed by Blackmur and Johnson, who enabled Quincy to gain 25 yards. The ball then changed hands a couple of times, and punting played an important part. The onside kick was tried by Quincy but was taken by Weymouth on its own 10 yard line. Weymouth punted. Blackmur signalled for a fair catch, but fumbled. thereby allowing Weymouth to get possession of the ball.

THIRD PERIOD.

In the third period, Weymouth punted. The ball was taken by Blackmur and Umpire Manning claimed he was tackled before he had the ball. A penalty was imposed but after some argument the decision was revoked. The ball was now in the middle of the field and in Weymouth's possession. Weymouth punted to Page, who ran twenty yards. Finlay gained twenty more. Larkin on a criss cross play gained ten yards. Finlay and Larkin went through for successive gains. McDonald was placed in as back and on the first rush gained fifteen yards. Quincy again intercepted a forward pass, and Weymouth, on the next play was penalized for holding. The playing was about even in the remainder of the period.

FOURTH PERIOD.

The visiting team played a better game in the last quarter. The ball was interchanged several times, and finally came in Quincy's ownership. Quincy punted to Weymouth on forty yard line. The ball was taken by Doble who made a sensation run of sixty yards before being tackled. He was running up hill all the time, and this was a serious drawback to him in his endeavor to gain a touchdown. Finlay did some good gaining for Quincy and the game ended with the ball in the centre of the field.

DEMOCRATS WANT CURTIS AS CANDIDATE

City Treasurer John Curtis is one of the gentlemen being considered by the Democrats as candidate for Mayor The name of James F. Burke was also mentioned but it is understood that Mr. Burke has declined to allow his name to be considered. Mr. Curtis is well known to the citizens of Quincy, having held several offices in the city. It is understood that a committee will wait upon Mr. Curtis and urge that he allow his name to be used in the caucus.

BASKETBALL AT WOODWARD

A movement has already been started to form basket ball teams in the various classes at the Woodward Institute. Every year it has been the custom to have a series of games placed for a cup which has been donated and which bears the name of the winning team and the members of which said team has been comprised.

Last year the senior class won the cup and the seniors of this year, thinking that they can accomplish the same feat, have already tarted active work in behalf of their team. A meeting of those interested was held Tuesday afternoon and Miss Amy Fallon was elected captain. Miss Fallon is one of the most popular students at the Institute and has always taken an active part in the various athletic movements. She is an exceptionally fine athlete and has frequently brought home laurels to the class of 1912.

BUSINESS MEETING.

The regular Makaria business meeting was held Tuesday evening at the Makaria rooms, about 30 members being present.

It was voted to have a basketball team. Mr. Phillip Rice was elected manager. Among the candidates are "Billy" Manning, Finlay, Jenkins, Glover, Tweed and the Chapman brothers. It is expected that a strong team will be made up from these men.

The Bowling tournament will start about the middle of November. Four teams will be organized and match games will be played every Friday night at the Y. M. C. A.

The annual banquet will be held sometime during November. After the meeting refreshments were served.

ANNUAL VISITATION

Of the Twenty-sixth Masonic District to Wollaston Lodge

THE COMMITTEE

The annual visitation of Rt. Wor. Hartley L. White, District Deputy Grand Master of the twenty-sixth Masonic district to Wollaston lodge, took place Tuesday evening and was the occasion for a large attendance of brothers of Wollaston lodge, as well as many visitors from other lodges in the district and throughout the state, the visitors book showing guests from Lynn, Norwood, Weymouth, Braintree, Hanover, Randolph, Boston, Sandwich, Cambridge, Abington, Brockton, Riverside, R. I., Fair Haven, Vt. and Chester, Vt.

The district deputy was escorted to the lodge room by a committee composed of Wor. A. W. Fay, Wor. Eugene F. DeNormandie, Wor. Walter S. Pinkham, Wor. Lewis D. Witherell and Bro. West, and were received with due honors. Rt. Wor. Bro. White was accompanied by Wor. Joseph P. Prout as District Deputy Grand Marshal, Wor. S. W. Howard of Paul Revere lodge, Brockton, as Grand Senior Warden, Wor. Albert M. Parker of Rural lodge Quincy, as Grand Junior Warden, Wor. Gardner R. P. Burnham, Wor. Edward F. Stirling of Delta lodge of Braintree, Wor. Charles Sampson of Rural lodge Quincy, Wor. O. S. Abbott of Olive Branch lodge, Chester, Vt. and Bro. Frank Reed, Senior Warden of Rural lodge, Quincy.

The work of the evening was the second degree which was exemplified by the officers of Wollaston lodge in a manner that called for many words of well merited praise, for it was beautifully rendered.

The District Deputy congratulated the lodge of its excellent condition and on the good work which it was doing. He also had a word to say about the Masonic home, in which all brothers are deeply interested, and on the growth of the lodge which in the twelve years of its existence had reached a membership of 225.

Refreshments were served at the close of the evening, after which the brothers gathered about the piano and sang from the lodge song book for an hour or more.

CHURCH MORTGAGE BURNED

An Autumn surprise party which might also have been termed a Thanksgiving party, was held at the Hall Place M. E. church, Tuesday evening, the occasion being the celebration of the paying of the church debt and the burning of the note.

From eight to nine o'clock a social hour was enjoyed. At nine o'clock the pastor, Rev. T. C. Martin, called the assembly to order.

The service opened with congregational singing led by Mr. Charles Goucher, with Miss May Williams as pianist, followed by prayer by the pastor.

The pastor then briefly told of the efforts to raise the money to pay off the debt on the church contracted some seven years ago, and spoke highly of the readiness and willingness with which the people helped, in this important matter by freely pledging their money to this worthy cause, the understanding being that the entire amount should be paid on or before Oct. 1st, 1911, in which case the holder of the note would remit one year's interest. The entire amount of three hundred and seventy dollars, was reliably subscribed over a month ago. Eighty-four persons contributed toward the amount. Mr. Martin then announced that the debt had been paid and the treasurer of the church held the note.

He then told of the work being done in planning for a course of stereopticon lectures to be given by talented people during the winter months. Various ways of furthering these plans were suggested by those present which the committee took under advisement.

There were only four of the men present who signed the note when it was drawn, Charles A. Goucher, H. W. Williams, F. W. Fuller and M. P. Fuller. The treasurer of the church, Mr. C. S. Jose laid the note on the table and the four members present each lit a corner of the note while the standing audience sang the doxology. A vote of thanks was extended the pastor for the faithful work he had done in raising the money.

Fruit of all kinds was served by the Ladies' Aid.

Great credit is due the pastor for the work he has done in helping to meet this great emergency. At no time since the debt was contracted has it been possible to raise this amount of money without seriously handicapping the efficiency of the work, and yet it has become more and more plain to the members of the church that the debt was of itself a serious handicap in the work. Mr. Martin came to the church a practical stranger in April and set to work at once to clear the "deck for action." A considerable part of the money has been raised through his own personal efforts and the culmination of his untiring work came in the paying of the debt. Two other members of the church were also largely instrumental in this work, Mr. Charles A. Goucher and Mr. Henry Williams, who were members of the committee and who helped in securing the money.

In addition to raising the debt the pastor also raised money enough to put a new bath room into the parsonage, which is all completed.

BRIEFS

The striking of the fire alarm bells this morning was due to the wind which caused a cross on the lines.

A newsy Ledger today varied enough to suit every one. Are you reading it every day? Now is the time to subscribe and keep posted on home news.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Larkin of Berlin street entertained at dinner Monday evening in honor of the Misses Florence and Alice Chenoweth of Newark New Jersey. Covers were laid for nine, the decorations were pink carnations.

THE QUINCY DAILY LEDGER

LARGEST GUARANTEED CIRCULATION IN THE CITY

Vol. 26 No. 230 | QUINCY. MASS. THURSDAY EVENING OCTOBER 5, 1911 | PRICE TWO CENTS

MANY UNIQUE AND PLEASING FEATURES

At the Grand Food Fair and Bazaar Given by Ladies of Park and Downs Church

The grand food fair and bazaar held by the ladies of the Park and Downs Congregational church opened successfully on Wednesday afternoon and evening.

Around the room were many attractive booths filled in the main with well known manufacturers lines of staple food products.

In the evening a pleasing program of food, tableaux, songs and music was given. Deserving of mention were the Gold Dust Twins who were loudly applauded.

An original "food song" was sung by Guy Sass which brought down the house. This was written for the occasion by Charles Chase and proved exceedingly clever.

The program was as follows:

Solo—Violin and piano.

Mellens Food—The Matchner babies.

Horlicks Milk—Marie Brown.

Bordens Milk—Mrs. C. L. Gilliatt.

Vocal Solo—Miss Eva Rice.

Gold Dust Twins—Hayden Chase and Robert Voight.

Food Song—Guy Sass.

Magazines — Freda Klingenhagen, Gertrude Sass and Ruth Page.

Reading—Mrs. Fernald.

Dutch Cleanser—Lydia O'Neill.

Dioxygen—Mrs. A. N. Barstow and Wilson Barstow.

Reading—Mr. Ames.

The decorations of bunting and Japanese lanterns were pleasing, while the trimming of the booths proved effective.

Mother Goose and her bird kept the children, large and small, amused. This attraction was in charge of Miss Fannie Fraser and Mrs. F. K. Bussler.

Hot chocolate, sandwiches, cake, coffee, ice cream, candy and magazines were on sale while in the vestry, Miss Ernine Baker sang and sold the popular songs of the day.

The fair was well patronized, both in the afternoon and evening and a large sum will probably be realized to swell the building fund of the new church building for which it was held.

The affair was in charge of a general committee consisting of Mrs. J. L. Earney, Mrs. T. H. Irving, Mrs. F. W. Mac Mulkin, Mrs. William Colby, Mrs. C. A. Boynton and Miss Fannie Fraser. Composing the entertainment committee were: Mrs. A. J. Podbury, Mrs. C. L. Gilliatt and Mrs. Charles Chase.

Following is a list of the booths and other committees:

Groceries—Mrs. E. M. Brown, Miss C. L. Hurd, Mrs. E. A. Muir, Mrs. Geo. Sallender, Mrs. A. H. McFadden, Miss Angie Rose.

Cake—Mrs. W. S. Kirshaw, Mrs. A. W. Dingwell, Mrs. F. C. Blake, Mrs. A. V. Bissett, Mrs. B. G. Letson, Mrs. E. Lyons.

Coffee and Sandwiches—Mrs. C. C. McKay, Mrs. L. I. Mossman, Mrs. William Atkins, Miss Marion Brown.

Hot Chocolate—Mrs. A. N. Barstow, Miss Ruth S. Page, Miss Gertrude M. Sass, Mrs. William H. Sass.

Pickles and Preserves — Madame Knowlton, Mrs. Charles F. Bryant.

Magazines—Mrs. William B. Holmes, Mrs. James D. Wilson.

Music—Miss Ernine Baker.

ATTENTION !!! Y. M. C. A. JUNIORS

Boys' Secretary Will Conduct "Hike" Next Saturday

The Y. M. C. A. Juniors will take a "Hike" to the Blue Hill Reservation on Saturday, under the direction of the new Boy's Secretary, Alden H. Blanchard. All the Juniors who want to have a good outing, with a chance to get chestnuts, try out Scout work, etc., are urged to be at the association building Saturday morning at 9 o'clock armed with a lunch. The start will be made at 9.15 and the better part of the day will be spent on the Reservation with the return at 4.30.

All the members of the boys department are urged to come to the building and meet the new boys' secretary as soon as possible. There will be a meeting for boys in the association building, Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock to talk over plans for the year's work as well.

RALLY DAY IN WOLLASTON.

Sunday will be observed as Rally day in the Wollaston Methodist church A special sermon will be given by the pastor at the morning service, followed by reception of members. There are a large number of new ones to be received into the church At 12 o'clock the Sunday school will hold a rally and the session will be devoted to an interesting program of different phases of Sunday school activity. A. F. Bromley the new secretary of the Y. M. C. A. is to give a 10 minute talk on "The relation of the Sunday school to the Community." The Epworth League at 6 o'clock has prepared a special service to be led by Mrs. F. H. Morgan. The music to be in charge of Harry Brooks. The evening service at 7 o'clock will take the nature of an address by Wesley Rhodes who is to speak on the subject of "Render unto Caesar." The services promise to make the day of some interest to the attendants and friends of that church.

FURNITURE VAN HIT.

A loaded furniture van belonging to Tilden of Cohasset, was run into about midnight, Wednesday night, by an electric car at Atlantic. The car was going toward Boston and the wagon was covered with a light colored canvas. The street was dark at the particular point of the accident and the motorman could not see the van until right near it.

A man was riding on the rear end of the van when the car struck it, and he was cut up somewhat, but after being attended by Dr. Sweeney was taken to his home in Jamaica Plain. The van was but little injured although the front of the car was badly smashed.

AUTO IN COLLISON.

The automobile of Nathan Ames came into collision with an electric car, head on this morning, nearly opposite Saville avenue, on Hancock street. Just who was to blame, for the accident is in doubt. It seems that Mr. Ames was coming up Hancock street in his automobile, running on the outward car track. Approaching him was a car headed for Neponset. One claims that the automobile skidded but Mr. Ames claims that he came to a dead stop on the tracks and that the car ran into him. The front of the automobile was smashed.

—Three Chicago men have organized a corporation at Springfield, Ill., having for its object the preservation of the birthplace of Daniel Webster at Salisbury, N. H. No doubt they have a hearty reverence and admiration for antiquities in the West, but it is to be hoped that the present movement will not result as one did a few years ago, when the famous Libby prison at Richmond, Va., was moved to Chicago and used as a museum.—Medford Mercury.

CREDIT FOR PROGRESSIVE LEGISLATION IS CLAIMED BY MASS. DEMOCRACY

Sherman L. Whipple in Speech at Democratic State Convention Today Said That Practical Results Followed Foss' Election, Though Hampered by Hostile Legislature and Council

Boston, Oct. 5.—Sherman L. Whipple of Brookline was the permanent presiding officer of the Democratic state convention, which was held in Faneuil hall today. His address follows:

Gentlemen of the Convention:

When the polls closed at the end of the campaign of 1910 the united, progressive and aggressive Democracy of Massachusetts had triumphed.

It had elected its chief candidate, His Excellency Eugene N. Foss, governor of the commonwealth.

At the time, the election of the head of its ticket seemed to measure the full limit of the Democratic victory. The legislature was Republican by a modest majority, while the executive council was overwhelmingly so.

Hedged about, therefore, by a hostile legislature and a more hostile council, the victory in the election of governor seemed to be chiefly a moral one—a rebuke administered by the people to the Republican party, and a repudiation of the things for which that party stood. The prospect that any practical results, either executive or legislative, should follow from the election of Governor Foss seemed very slight.

When, however, the legislature convened it was promptly seen that despite the apparent Republican majority, the prospects for progressive legislation in the interest of the people were far from hopeless.

SHERMAN L. WHIPPLE

It then was clear that a substantial number of legislators had been chosen as Republican whose conscience stood above party fealty, and whose progressive ideas made them distinguishable from progressive Democrats only in party label. They were believers in the great principle for which the Democratic governor stood and on which he had been elected—the principle of equal right and equal opportunity for all and special privilege to none.

Furthermore, it was at once obvious that the Republicans of the legislature were without a definite policy; that their councils were weakened and demoralized and that they were unable to develop strong or effective leadership.

The hot rivalry of different candidates for nomination as governor occupied their attention and still further distracted their organization and rendered them inefficient for disciplined or effective public service as a party in majority.

Able Democrats Chosen

On the other hand, it transpired that the Democracy had not only elected senators and representatives in larger number than for many years

CHURCH SOCIAL AT WOLLASTON

Pleasing Program at Baptist Church Wednesday Evening

THE PROGRAM

The opening church social for the season was held in the chapel of the Wollaston Baptist church on Wednesday evening. A pleasing program of music and readings was enjoyed by a large number of parishioners.

To more largely introduce those present and to increase the good fellowship, as each one entered a card with his or her name upon it was attached.

A piano duet by Miss Louise Thatcher and Mrs. Charles Roach came first on the program and was followed by readings by Miss Renee Geddes entitled "A chance encounter" and "Sweet parting." Both numbers were highly applauded.

"The vulcan's song," a solo by C. H. Kempton, was well sung and "Calm as the night" was given as an encore.

Two readings "A bit of old Ireland" and "Just a song at twilight" were given by Miss Geddes. The latter accompanied on the piano by Miss Ethel Jackson was particularly pleasing.

A game of conversation closed the evening during which the following questions were discussed with different partners: Summer vacation, Most helpful thing about our church, What is the best kind of a church social, music, Motor boat, airship, automobile, which, How can we best help the church, Outdoor exercise, Amusements.

In charge of the evening was a committee among whom were Mrs. H. L. Wilson, Mrs. J. A. Jewell, Mrs. C. H. Kempton and Mrs. William Wade. Refreshments were served.

ROLAND TRIED NEW WAY TO GET A SUIT

Roland DeChamers, a Wollaston barber, tried a new way to get a suit of clothes this morning with the result that a few hours later he found himself facing Judge Avery, charged with larceny. It seems that Roland had a suit of clothing sent him from Boston by express C. O. D. When the expressman delivered package he forgot to collect C. O. D. This morning he discovered his mistake and visited the tonsorial artist to collect. The money not being forthcoming the expressman took the package back. When it was opened it was found not to contain the suit that had been sent but one that Roland had discarded. The police were notified and Lieut. McKay went down and brought Roland to court. He promised to make restitution and after paying $5 on account of costs the case was placed on file.

"MART" ENJOYED SURPRISE PARTY

Was Presented With Fine Gift by Friends

THOSE PRESENT

A few of his many friends, tendered Martin Anderson, of Cranch street, the surprise of his life at his home Wednesday evening. The party met at the corner of Granite and Hancock streets and paraded quietly up to the house and into the parlor. Martin happened to be in the upper apartments at the time. He was hastily called and on his appearance, was almost overawed by beholding the throng of merry makers in front of him. He was hailed with great shouts as he joined the ranks.

The fellows then started the fun and singing, dancing and various comical sketches held sway for the remainder of the evening. Reminiscences of the happy days were gone over and every one joined in the festivities. Refreshments were served in abundance and in the midst of the affair, Richard Roache stepped forward and in a few well chosen words, presented "Mart" with a gold scarf pin. Martin was greatly overcome, but he managed to respond very touchingly.

The concert was then in order. George Shortell presided at the piano and rendered several selections. Perry Galvin sang the "Wearing of the Green." Leo Sullivan rendered a number of songs and was compelled to respond to several encores. Philipine O'Neil sang "Winter," while Sherman Hayden made a great hit with his "I wonder who's kissing her now." Steven Eaton gave many violin selections. Among those present were, Walter Anderson, "Shrimp" Eaton, Steven Eaton, Sherman Hayden, Geo. Shortell, Joseph Sweeney, Richard Roache, John Edgren, Walter Nordquist, Harry Kemp, John Keefe, John Rooney, Ralph White, Perry Galvin. James Nichols, Philipine O'Neil, Leo Sullivan, Henry Lindquist, Charles Smith. The gathering disbursed with George Shortell at the piano, James Rooney on the violin and Charles Smith with his cornet playing while the all present joined in singing "Auld Layne Sayne."

IMPORTANT MATTERS AT MOOSE MEETING

The regular weekly meeting of the Order of Moose was held on Wednesday evening and the charter that has been open for 90 days, closed. L. C. Claflin was elected Deputy Organizer. A substantial donation was voted in aid of the sufferers of the flood at Austin, Pa. It was decided to hold the first anniversary in Alpha Hall on Dec. 7th. Among other important matters was the appointment of Brother Cleaves as press representative, assuring a report each week, on Thursday, of the "doings" of the last meeting.

BOARD OF TRADE GIVES STREET RAILWAY COMPANY A FRIGHTFUL "LASHING."

Unanswered Communication Gives Members an Opportunity to State What They Think of the Service Given to Quincy. Meeting Addressed by Capt. Samuel E. Perry of Atlantic City on "Deeper Waterways"

No mercy was shown to the Bay State Street Railway Company at the meeting of the Board of Trade, held in the rooms on Hancock street, Wednesday evening. A few minor matters were briefly discussed, but the greater part of the evening was devoted to the hurling forth of objections, sometimes accompanied by a reluctant compliment, against the railway system that now predominates in local circles.

The president of the association was absent, and in his stead William P. Thompson, the vice-president assumed the chair. At the opening of the meeting, the presiding officer announced that the gathering was being graced by the presence of Capt. Samuel E. Perry of Atlantic City, New Jersey, a ceaseless agitator on the matter of deeper waterways.

THE PUBLIC ARE STILL FISHING FOR A MAYOR

SEVERAL GOOD "CATCHES" REPORTED AT BERRY BROTHERS

Quincy, Mass., Oct. 5, 1911. A reporter from "The Daily Ad," visited the food store run by Berry Bros. today and endeavored to draw out the auburn haired manager, sometimes known as "Tender" of the FISH ANNEX. Finally "TENDER" admitted that he was not a candidate, but was working in the interest of the following candidates, any of which are "Tasty" fellows and deserve the consideration of the public vote.

FRIED SMELTS

Clean the fish, trim the fins and remove the gills, wipe very dry, dust with flour, then brush over, coating them entirely with beaten egg, roll in fine white bread crumbs, seasoned with salt and pepper, then immerse in plenty of smoking hot fat for a few minutes until brown and crisp; drain on white paper, serve hot, garnish with parsley. They are nice with lobster sauce. To fry properly it is necessary to have in a saucepan as much fat as will cover the fish, either lard, dripping or oil. This must be heated until all bubbling has ceased and thin bluish vapor is visible rising from the surface. When in this condition it is known as "smoking hot fat."

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

It is certainly about time to smoke out the tobacco trust.

It is said that Mr. Taft is missing his occasional week ends at Washington.

Mr. Taft's train was flood bound, and probably Mrs. Taft failed to pack a pair of rubber boots in his trunk.

Champ Clark's famous remark about reciprocity and Canadian annexation will be classed by historians as among the useless noises.

It is always safer for a candidate for public office to dodge to the other side of the street if he sees a corporation officer or attorney drawing near.

From the amount of rain that has fallen in this country in the last few months, some new excuse for drinking rum will have to be invented this winter.

The men who in these days of stock market decline are seen reading the Wall street reports instead of their own ledgers are good fellows to collect your bills from.

The trouble with the Republican attitude on the tariff all these years has been that the manufacturer's own statement of what he needed for protection has always been trustfully accepted as gospel truth.

It is complained that there has been a shrinkage of $800,000,000 in stock values. But we are simply having an economic wash day, in which a great deal of water is being squeezed out in the wringer.

THE AUSTIN TRAGEDY.

The cases have been so numerous where great dams, supposed to be constructed with the best engineering advice and supervision, have slid out like packing cases on an office floor

It is a matter in which the ordinary mechanic or business man is so absolutely helpless. All dams and all engineers look alike to him. The man who builds one of faulty construction may be tagged with just as many technical school degrees as the other.

The Austin, Pa., dam had shown suspicions of weakness. Investigation may determine that its continued use should not have been permitted without reconstruction. But where such reconstruction means stoppage of an industry and throwing mechanics out of work, it is not a light matter to require it.

With the increasing use of water powers, a constantly larger number of people are living in the perilous traps like that in which unhappy Austin was caught. The heaviest kind of a responsibility lies upon the corporations whose location requires their work people to live under the shadow of this menace.

But when you read that the Austin dam was anchored four feet deep in rock foundation, and that in January 1910, it slid 44 inches on its bed, due to rock fissures, it looks as if the standard calculations of the best engineers did not take account of all the perils of this interference with the face of nature.

If we were selecting a home in a narrow valley underneath some such stoppage of nature's forces, a location well up on the sides of the valley would look very good to us. But so great is the reluctance of the average person to the exercise of leg power, that no doubt the closer the house lot to the path of the flood, the higher price it would bring.

Engineers say that hundreds of crudely built dams can be found in this country. Many of them are of pure masonry, a type of dam which has gone by. Reinforced concrete is favored by modern engineers. No corporation that is not willing to spend every dollar needed to eliminate the last chance of collapse should be permitted to flow back any stream. At the great Croton dam they spent $500,000 to change the design for one supposed to be a little more secure.

STRAIN OF STOCK MARKET.

The wildest scenes for years were witnessed in Wall street on the recent shake down. Twenty-five thousand lots were tossed around as if it were penny ante, and the mob of brokers surged as if every one of them were members of a foot ball line.

Few of us who live lives of simple toil, where our success depends mostly on our own industry and fidelity, can realize how moral standards fade away under such strain.

Fragile human nature was not built to stand sudden shocks. It is a slow and orderly evolution, and when the telephone boy acquires a $5,000 apartment on Riverside drive in six months and later sinks to the seedy and unshorn vulture of the bucket shop, the orderly processes of nature's growth are shattered.

Soon or late the speculator runs up against this proopsition. He recognizes that he is ruined if he sits tight. Why not as well be hung for a flock of sheep as one measly old mutton? Why not as well fail for a million as a hundred thousand? Can he feel any worse at the tears of one hundred ruined widows than from those of ten? So he stakes all on one turn of the wheel.

And yet, all the projects for prohibiting speculation have so far come to naught. Much was made at the start of the effort of Germany in 1896 to check it. Speculators were required to be registered as such. It was believed that this would drive merchants off the Bourse, as the discredit would hurt their business. But they soon found ways to deal in securities through banks and foreign brokers.

On the produce exchanges the results actually were harmful in important particulars. There being no reliable quotations, the farmer sold grain in a disorganized way, and local middlemen bought below real value and made inordinate profits. The law was unsuccessful enough so that its more drastic features were repealed in 1900.

So our national Monte Carlo has to go on, but the true nature of the game should be better realized.

SHOOTING AFFAIRS.

There is no getting away from the conclusions which the Boston Advertiser sensibly reaches in the subjoined editorial:

Shooting affairs, or duels in the public streets, whether precipitated by private grudge or Black Hand demands, are preventable by only one method, and that is to restrict more forcefully the possession of firearms. This state lags behind in the matter. When a man draws a revolver and begins firing in the street, every one within range is in imminent danger. It is not a "duel" at all. The Sullivan law in New York has just been shown to have teeth, one man receiving a year's sentence of imprisonment for vigiating it. We should have some such law in Massachusetts. It would interfere with no rights of personal liberty and would hamper the criminal and the too-easily-excitable individual who menaces his neighborhood by the very fact of possessing and carrying a gun.

A law that has teeth, and will bite hard, is needed in Massachusetts, as elswhere. Propose it, however, and at once certain influences are set at work to negative the project, says an exchange.

When it comes to legislative action, a lot of jelly-backed representatives and senators will hem and haw, look wise, and prate about the folly of being "stampeded" into the adoption of sweeping regulations that will "injure established business." Massachusetts is not a frontier state. Again, it has a highly perfected machinery for the administration of justice. For all that, thousands of people go about with revolver or dirk on the person, just as if the code of the border settlement prevailed, with no adequate legal machinery for the righting of injuries or for the punishment of law violators.

In considering such a subject as the one under discussion, let us not forget the terrible shooting on a trolley car in North Adams, a few months ago, when a foreigner suddenly whipped out a revolver, in a fit of anger, and began shooting indiscriminately, after having killed the motorman.

He had one of the very best automatic weapons. It was pleaded that he was not so bright mentally as he might have been, and that view subsequently determined the judicial disposition of his case. But weak-minded or vicious, he had no difficulty in securing the weapon with which he killed several persons and wounded several others, men and women alike. Men just as weak mentally, can as easily procure revolvers (nobody ever remarked any peculiarity on the part of the North Adams man until he had committed his slaughter,) and there is no telling in what quarter the ugly or the frenzied foreigner or native may draw his revolver and begin shooting right and left.

Academical discussions will not help along desirable changes in this particular abuse, with its menace to life and safety. There is altogether too much so-called pistol toting, and more drastic regulations in restraint of it ought forthwith to be adopted, namby-pambyists and those who make money by opposing such regulations to the contrary notwithstanding.

KANSAS.

President Taft said at Hutchinson, Kansas: "The trials through which the state has come have given a character to its inhabitants. They are bold and original in thought, courageous in action. One may differ with their conclusions, but he must respect the sincerity and courage and independence with which they support their conclusions, and carry them to their logical result."

Few ofthose who live outiside the borders ofthat state realize the romantic, moral and emotional elements of a community that has been called the "Paris of America." But that comparison was always inapt. The emotions of Paris are dominated by the froth and glitter of life. Kansas draws its emotional inheritance from groups of men from both North and South, who came with the rifle in one hand and the Bible in the other, to defend certain convictions.

The conglomerate pioneer stock of the state is described by a leading historian, as consisting of "patriots, hirelings, philanthropists, adventurers, blatherskites, fanatics and reformers."

While some of the early settlers made the pilgrimage to Kansas drawn by the fertile soil, yet the self seekers were soon eliminated by the hardships and social turbulences. Agriculture did not look good seen from the view point of a log cabin that would collect six inches of snow in one night. And the faint hearted were soon sent home by coats of tar and feathers, the burning of barns and hay stacks and stealing of cattle, which were every day occurrences in the rough days of anti-slavery conflict. Those who remained were men and women of iron. The fruits of these ideals tinged by emotionalism are seen in many ways today.

It has been said that no state in the union of its size has so many newspaper workers who have acquired national reputation. The files of the Kansas papers of twenty years ago reveal the story of their inheritance even more clearly than those of today. Conviction was the key note, and there would be four columns of burning editorial utterance to two columns of mere news.

It is in its schools that modern Kansas expresses herself most clearly. With 15,000 to 20,000 young people taking the higher education in her own schools, the Kansas of the future will not merely possess moral ideals, but the sweep of emotionalism will be restrained by a back ground of world learning.

MARRIED AT NEPONSET

Miss McConarty Becomes Bride of Michael J. Histen

WILL LIVE IN MONTELLO

Miss Helena Frances McConaty, daughter of Peter McConaty of Quincy, and Harry J. Histen, son of Michael J. Histen of Quincy, were married this afternoon at 3 o'clock in the rectory of St. Anne's church, Neponset, by the Rev. John McKone, the pastor. Miss Mary McConaty, a sister of the bride and organist of St. Anne's church, was the bridesmaid, and Councilman Edward P. Histen of Quincy, a brother of the groom, was the best man. Following the ceremony there was a reception and luncheon at the home of the bride's uncle on Walnut Park street, Neponset.

The groom, who is secretary to the president of the Brockton Rand Company, was formerly a well known amateur athlete, holding state championship of the Y. M. C. A. for the shot-put for two years. They will live at 67 Martland avenue, Montello.

HOME WEDDING AT WOLLASTON

Waterman-Parcher Nuptials a Dainty Affair

WILL RESIDE IN LYNN

A pretty home wedding took place Wednesday evening at 7.30 o'clock at 181 Arlington street, Wollaston, when Miss Louise Williams Waterman daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Harmon Waterman and Dr. Leon Earl Parcher of Lynn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Parcher of Fitchburg, were married by the Rev. Carl G. Horst of the Unitarian church.

There were many guests present from Worcester, Fitchburg, Brockton, Whitman, Bridgewater and Auburndale. The house was artistically decorated with potted plants, cut flowers and white clematis. The fire place being filled with scarlet salvia. In the dining room where a collation was served the color scheme was pink.

The bride, who is tall and lithe and a decided brunette, looked charming in a gown of white silk radium, cut en traine, over white satin with over drapery of chiffon and trimmed with heavy silk embroidery, her tulle veil was fastened with lilies of the valley and she carried a shower bouquet of the same flowers combined with bride roses. Her attendant Miss Alice Stanton Gurney of South Weymouth, formerly of Standish avenue, as her maid of honor wore light blue silk and carried a bouquet of pink chrysanthemums. Marcus Newell Wright of Gardner, was best man and the ushers were Everett Linwood Meserve of Whitman and Dr. Arthur Dudley Hall of Boston. William E. Weston played the wedding march from Lohengrin as the bridal party entered the room. Following the ceremony Miss Gurney and Mr. Wright assisted in receiving and during the reception from 8 until 9.30 o'clock, the couple were assisted by their parents. They received beautiful gifts including silver, cut glass, linen, hand-painted china and an exquisite china dinner set.

Mr. and Mrs. Parcher left 'mid a shower of rice and confetti on a honeymoon trip to Atlantic City which will also include Philadelphia and New York, after which they will make their home in Lynn.

AWAITING EXTRADITION

"Duke" Accused of Passing Worthless Checks Held Without Bail

New York, Oct. 5.—Philip Lee de Clemecy, who says he is entitled to be known as Duc de Clemecy, Count du Nevers and by other titles, was held without bail pending the arrival of extradition papers from Massachusetts. The man with the numerous names was arrested here on information from Boston that he was wanted there on a charge of passing worthless checks.

In police court there were several other persons who desired to enter complaints against de Clemecy, but the Massachusetts complaint was given precedence.

RECEIVES CALL FROM YARMOUTH

Popular Clergyman Considering Flattering Offer

HIS WORK HERE

Rev. R. J. Davis, one of the most active of the younger pastors in this city has recently received a call to the First Baptist church in Yarmouth, Maine. Although he has not accepted the call as yet, he will in all probability do so in the near future although the people of his parish are exerting their best effort to convince him to stay. Mr. Davis came to Quincy two years ago and took up his duties as pastor of the Calvary Baptist church with energy and enthusiasm. The church and Sunday school have grown wonderfully in size and efficiency during these two years, the people have received the great truths in a way that has broadened them and stirred them to better service. The young people have been set to work alsd and a Christian Endeavor society has been formed.

Mr. Davis' mission here in Quincy has been fulfilled in a most capable manner and there can be no doubt but that his life is fully consecrated to his chosen work.

If the call is accepted, Quincy will lose one of its hardest working and most earnest pastors.

The town of Yarmouth, although with a population of but 5,000, is a splendid field for labor. In it were born such men as James G. Blaine, Thomas B. Reed and others of equal prominence. The spirit and lives of these men have been reflected back to their birthplace and have made it a brighter and better spot to live in.

A link which connects it with Quincy to some extent, is the fact that John O. Hall, Jr., is principal of the Yarmouth High school.

If Mr. Davis departs from Quincy it will be with the best wishes and the deepest regrets of the community as a whole. He has interested himself not only in his own parish but has taken an active part in all the movements for civic righteousness and the uplift of mankind throughout the city. Mr. Davis' class of young men has made a name for itself which is at least city-wide.

Although we would not influence him in his choice, it can be said without hesitancy that if he should go, his loss would be felt keenly by the city and his able and earnest preaching and his "big brotherliness" to the young men of the city will be greatly missed.

The consecrated life of Mrs. Davis has been an important factor in the life of the church as well. In the Sunday school and Christian Endeavor and the Ladies' Circle she has been the animating spirit. In a word she has done for the women what Mr. Davis has done for the men of the church.

QUINCY HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

Quincy High school played their third game of football, with Weymouth High School, at Merrymount Park, Tuesday, Oct. 3. Capt. Johnson's boys outweighed the Weymouth boys, but the latter put up a fast game and held Quincy to six points.

Quincy secured their touchdown in the first quarter of the game. Larkin, Quincy's fast end, got the ball on an on-side kick and carried it over the goal. Johnson kicked a neat goal.

Quincy made many long gains but were held on downs, five yards from the goal at one time.

Finley, Quincy's full back, received slight injuries but stuck to the game and made many long games. Holmes, Chapman, Crane, Johnson and Blackmur played exceptionally good games for Quincy.

The next game will be Quincy vs. Brighton at Merrymount Park, Oct. 6, 1911.

An illustrated lecture on California was given yesterday afternoon and evening, at the Quincy High school, by James E. Erwin of that state.

This lecture was given for the benefit of the Athletic Association. There was a good attendance both in the afternoon and evening, and the talk was very interesting, as well as instructive. There were about two hundred beautiful views in color, as well as many unique and interesting motion pictures.

Mr. Erwin opened his talk with a description of the water trip from New York to the golden gate, mentioning and illustrating all the interesting places along the route, such as the cotton fields and sugar plantations of the south. The body of the lecture, however, was devoted to an ample description of the natural beauties of California, namely the orange groves, the wealth of fruits and flowers, and the battle of flowers. In addition to this full account of the natural beauties of the state, Mr. Erwin spoke of some of the chief hotels and public buildings of San Francisco, and of the fleet in the harbor.

At the close, the motion picture of the Stars and Stripes stirred the heart of every American, and it was met with loud applause.

ADAMS SCHOOL.

There will be a meeting of the Parents' and Teachers' association this evening and the gathering will be addressed by Miss Mabel Adams, whose topic will be "The use of English in the home." Miss Emma Perkins will sing in connection with the address.

Miss Adams is well known locally, for at one time she was a teacher in the school where she is to give a discourse tonight. The talk should prove a most instructive one, for Miss Adams has made a thorough study of the subject. The speaker is now an assistant master in one of the schools in Boston.

ATHERTON HOUGH SCHOOL.

The soccer football team is scheduled to play the Washington sc-hool on the grounds of the latter next Monday. The Houghs Neck boys have been putting in some hard practise during the past week and they expect to give their opponents a lively contest in their first game of the season.

CODDINGTON SCHOOL.

The Coddington school soccer team is not the least discouraged over its defeat last Tuesday, and it is expected that a fast aggregation will be in line when the grammar school league games are in order.

CRANCH SCHOOL.

A meeting of the Parents' and Teachers' Association, is scheduled to take place next Tuesday evening in the school Hall. The speaker for the occasion will be Dr. George H. Ryder and his subject will be "General considerations of school children's eyes." Mrs. Andrew Slade will sing.

Miss Igo's third class had the highest percentage for attendance during the past week.

MASSACHUSETTS FIELDS

There will be a meeting of the Parents' and Teachers' association next Thursday.

Considerable congestion has become evident in the school classes and a division has already been made in grades four, five and six.

The evening school started with an enrollment of 82 students, and last evening reached a total of 97, of this number 93 are of the Finnish race, none of them being able to speak English.

WOLLASTON SCHOOL.

The soccer football team defeated the members of the Coddington school combination by a 3 to 0 score last Tuesday and expects to annex a victory against the Atherton Hough boys next Monday.

Thomas McNally is captain of the team.

WASHINGTON SCHOOL.

The first regular meeting of the Parents' and Teachers' Association will be held in the school hall next Monday evening. A. W. Gibson, state secretary of the Y. M. C. A. will talk on "Boys." All meetings will be held in the evening, on the second of each month so as to give the parents ample opportunity to be present.

The Benevolent Committee of the Wollaston Association met at the home of Miss Clara Thayer last Tuesday and outlined plans for the coming year.

WILLARD SCHOOL.

Miss Clara M. Shaw, teacher in grade seven, has resumed her duties after a week's absence at her home in Bridgewater owing to the illness of her mother.

The ice cream sale proved very successful about twenty dollars being cleared. A small part of this will be used to defray the soccer football expenses, but the larger part will serve as a nucleus toward a new piano.

The soccer foot ball team met the Gridley Bryant eleven in a practice game on Robinson field Tuesday after school, Mr. Craig acting as coach.

Miss Lucy H. Atwood, master's assistant, is to have charge of one of the commercial classes in the evening high school course.

The sight and hearing tests have been completed at the Willard school.

KIDD—PERCY.

At Bath, Maine Tuesday evening, the wedding of Miss Alice Clement Percy and David Kidd of Quincy, took place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew J. Percy. The officiating clergyman was Rev. George C. DeMott of the Congregational church, and the ceremony was followed by an informal reception. Mr. and Mrs. Kidd will reside in Quincy, where they will be at home after Nov. 6 at 33 Edison street. Mr. Kidd is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Kidd of Greenock, Scotland, and became acquainted with his wife when employed in the hull draughting department of the Bath Iron Works. After living at Bath for ten years he entered the employ of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company.

BRIDGE CLOSED TO TRAVEL.

Weymouth Fore River bridge is to be closed to travel on or about Oct. 16 for the rebuilding of the draw which will require about 90 days. There will be a temporary foot bridge for pedestrians but closed entirely to vehicles. It will be an inconvenience to street railway passengers and drivers of autos and carriages but as it is a necessity it cannot be helped.

"A SOULLESS ANIMAL"

Women Will Not Be Granted Right to Vote In Persia

Teheran, Oct. 5.—A woman's suffrage bill was introduced in the Persian parliament by one Dowlah, a brave champion of women's rights. An acrimonious discussion followed and a free fight had begun, when the president, making himself heard with difficulty, declared that the bill was sacrilligious and against the teachings of the Koran, which distinctly says that women have no souls and in every way are inferior to man; and that a soulless animal cannot have the vote.

The house wildly applauded him and threw out the bill.

The mere fact that such a bill was introduced into the Persian medjilis at all shows that a great change has come over the minds of some of the leaders.

HELD IN QUARANTINE

Crew of Steamer In Boston Harbor Are Cholera Suspects

Boston, Oct. 5.—The British steamer Kioto, Captain Smith, arrived at the lower harbor yesterday from Calcutta, but is being held at quarantine because of the death of one of her Lascar stokers on the voyage, possibly of cholera.

The crew of about sixty men were taken to the quarantine station at Gallup's island and will be examined thoroughly before they will be allowed to land.

BABY ALONE IN HOUSE

When Fire Broke Out. Was Rescued Unharmed

SMALL BLAZE

The alarm from Box 136 at 7.17 Wednesday night, was for a fire in the upper part of a house on Water street, owned by Louis Grossman and occupied by Jake Grossman. The only person in the house at the time of the fire was a baby which had been left alone. Persons passing the house saw smoke coming from the upper part of the house and gave the alarm. The first persons on the scene rushed into the house and rescued the baby which was unharmed.

The department made short work with the blaze but the fire did a damage of $75. After the department had taken its departure the fire broke out again but was extinguished in a short time.

BOSTON'S BUSY COURT

Municipal Judges Disposed of 43,180 Cases During Past Year

Boston, Oct. 5.—The total number of cases handled by Boston municipal court for the court year ending Sept. 30 was 43,180, according to the court report issued last evening. This is a decrease of 960 from the 44,140 cases handled in the previous year.

Drunkenness had 31,358 cases. Larceny had 2476. Results of some of the police crusades are apparent. There were only eighty-five "spitting" cases in court in 1910, but in 1911 the courts passed on 772 cases.

Lord's day violations were followed up so sharply that the 1910 record of 193 cases jumped to 651 for 1911. Only two warrants were issued in 1910 for seizure of hypnotic drugs.

WHALES SHOULD BEWARE

Roosevelt Is Going After Them Off Coast of California

Long Beach, Cal., Oct. 5.—After hunting bear in Colorado, elephants in Africa, and various other game in his own country, Theodore Roosevelt, it is intimated, may come to Long Beach to hunt whales.

Captain Loop, whose power boat is fitted up for the pursuit, is authority for the announcement that Roosevelt intends to come here to harpoon the sea mammals.

Accused of Murdering Woman

Saugus, Mass., Oct. 5.—Antonio Tianetti of Boston was held for the grand jury without bail in the police court here charged with the murder of Mrs. Carmelia Tianetti of Saugus, who died as the result of eleven stab wounds.

"Sherlock Holmes" Original Dead

Edinburgh, Oct. 5.—Dr. Joseph Bell, the famous Scotch surgeon from whom A. Conan Doyle drew his famous detective character, "Sherlock Holmes," died here. It was the reasoning and deductive methods of Bell, impressed upon Doyle when he was a medical student, that inspired the "Sherlock Holmes" stories.

POLITICAL NOTES.

The "grand old war horse," Dr. Galen Vinton Bowditch was greatly missed at the meeting of the democratic city committee last Tuesday evening. "Doc" had been scheduled to deliver a G. O. P. invective.

Just as he was about to make his entrance into a tailor shop on Depot avenue, yesterday, Representative William R. Thomas was accosted by a local scribe and asked if he had anything for the press, with regard to his candidacy for Mayor. "For the press?" mused "Billy" with an equivocal smile. "Yes, he quickly answered, I have." Immediately the note book was drawn and the pencil swung between the fingers of the right hand of the reporter, who had expected a fine interview in the matter. But the ardent hopes of the local scribe were quickly dampened when the fifth Norfolk representative retorted, "I am going to leave a suit of clothes for the tailor to press and I expect that the pressing will be done within a short time." Mr. Thomas after doing as he said, ran for a train and the reporter was obliged to withdraw without any further information.

Evidently James will be a conspicuous name in the mayoralty contest on the democratic side, but will it be James F. Burke, or James E. Wall?

While the fight for Mayor will be close and interesting, the contest in the sixth Norfolk will elicit no less anxiety, for it is to be a nip and tuck struggle throughout between Councilman Leslie and ex-Councilman John J. McDevitt. Mr. McDevitt has already expressed a willingness to meet Councilman Leslie in a debate and the voters of Wards 4, 5 and 6 can expect some interesting features to develop before the campaign is drawn to a close.

If the talk that is prevalent in political circles bears any weight, Councilmen Branch, Bolster, Smith, Nowland and Erickson will not be candidates for re-election to the City Council.

Many are wondering what the attitude of Councilman Gardner will be in the coming municipal elections. Mr. Gardner is rather quiet at the present time but will assume activity when the time comes.

The "Cobble stone" argument will not be used in the coming campaign nor will the "veto power," but other weapons of strong calibre will be forthcoming.

If the voters of Houghs Neck continue along the same lines, an entire ticket from that section will be noticeable at the City elections.

PROMISING CANDIDATE.

One of the most promising candidates for Republican Mayoralty nomination is ex-Senator Eugene C. Hultman. Mr. Hultman has not yet decided whether he will become a candidate He is considering the question and may announce himself in the near future. Mr. Hultman is eminently qualified for the office as he has served the city as a member of the City Council. He has also served as Representative in the general court and as senator from the First Norfolk district. He is a member of the city committe and has been for a number of years.

Aviator Probably Fatally Hurt

A WOMAN'S BACK

The Aches and Pains Will Disappear if the Advice of this Quincy Citizen is Followed.

A woman's back has many aches and pains.
Most times 'tis the kidney's fault.
Backache is really kidney ache;
That's why Doan's Kidney Pills cure it.
Many Quincy women know this.
Read what one has to say about it

Mrs. F. Curtis, 18 Quarry St., Quincy, Mass., says! "We used Doan's Kidney Pills in our family with good results and in 1908 publicly endorsed them. At the present time I am pleased to confirm that statement. A member of my family was in bad shape from kidney complaint. He used plasters and several well-known remedies. but did not improve until he began taking Doan's Kidney Pills, which were obtained at Cox's Drug Store. They effected a cure in two weeks and restored him to better health than he had enjoyed for years. I have also taken Doan's Kidney Pills myself and have found them excellent for strengthening the kidneys."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Q.—How shall we understand the Savior's words—"Let the dead bury their dead?". (Matthew viii, 21, 22.)

Answer.—When our first parent, father Adam, disobeyed the Divine commands the death sentence passed upon him, and in the legal sense and from the Creator's standpoint, he was dead although he lived for nine hundred and thirty years afterwards. The dying process began and was consummated when Adam passed into the tomb. The entire race was involved with Adam in this death sentence, as the Scriptures declare—"As by one man sin entered into the world and death by sin and so death passed upon all men." "As in Adam all die" (Romans v, 12; I Corinthians xv, 22), From this view of the matter we may understand the Lord's word, "Let the dead (the legally dead) bury their dead (the actually dead)." It is because all were condemned to death in Adam that all will be made alive in Christ (see Romans v, 18, 19). Corroborating the words of the Lord Jesus the Apostle says, "For the love of Christ constraineth us; because we thus judge that if one died for all then were all dead" (II Corinthians v, 14). Jesus, in the laying down of His life, was giving Himself "a ransom for all"—those under the sentence of death and those who have entered into the great prison house of death, the tomb.

Q.—Since Jesus is to reign until all enemies are put under His feet, and the last enemy to be destroyed is death (I Corinthians xv, 25, 26) would it not prove that Satan and his hosts would be destroyed before death is destroyed, and that both would be destroyed during the reign of Jesus?

Answer.—The Apostle's argument is so clear and convincing in this fifteenth chapter of First Corinthians relative to the reign of our Lord Jesus and the object or purpose to be accomplished by that reign, that there is but one answer to the question and that one in the affirmative. It is apparent to all thinking minds that Christ's reign has not yet begun, for the Scriptures declare that during the reign of the Lord, the great adversary of the race, Satan, will be bound, and that in the close of that reign he will be loosed for a little season. A single glance over the conditions existing in the world will serve to convince anyone that Satan is still a very active personality. However, conditions in the next Age, the period of Christ's reign, will experience a radical change as gradually the evil, selfish elements are eliminated. The last of the evil things that have so long afflicted the race, death, "and him that had the power of death" shall be destroyed (Hebrews ii, 4; Revelation xxi, 4).

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

BRIEFS

In Wollaston Oct. 4th a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius U. Tirrell of Standish avenue.

Another holiday a week from today, Columbus day. The local lodges will take part in the parade in Boston.

The will of Mrs. Abigail L. Gregg, late of Braintree, which was allowed by Judge Flint at Dedham, Wednesday, leaves $1,200 to Christ church, Quincy.

The Committee on Streets of the City Council were out on an inspection tour this week looking over the proposed widening of Hancock street between Granite and School streets.

Mayor Shea is getting a much needed rest in Virginia, where he is free for a time from the cares of business as well as the cares of his office as Mayor. The duties of Mayor rest lightly upon the shoulders of the City Solicitor.

Quite a crowd of Quincy people attended the Brockton fair Wednesday, but were disappointed as the stormy weathermade it decidedly unpleasant One special train of eighteen cars passed through in the early morning for Brockton and it looked as though the train was packed.

The interest in the proposed erection of a stable for ten horses in the residential district of Wollaston, means that there will be a large attendance of residents at the hearing before the Board of Health tonight. It is understood that the remonstrants will be represented at the hearing by counsel.

It is said that there was a mild explosion in the office of the Secretary of State, Wednesday morning, when the only Galen went up to find out why he had not been sent his credential for Democratic tSate convention. It had been forwarded to the Democratic city committee, however, and reached Galen in due season.

ITALIAN SHIPS REDUCE FORTS

Turks In Tripoli Show White Flag of Surrender

VICTORS LANDING 4,000 MEN

Defenses Silenced Upon Resumption of Bombardment—Sultan's Gunners Poor Shots, While Warships Escape Engagement Unharmed — Report That Italy Demands Surrender of Tripoli and Payment of $12,000,000

Rome, Oct. 5.—The city of Tripoli was surrendered to the Italian war fleet under Admiral Aubrey by the acting Turkish governor general, Bessim Bey, after a terrific bombardment had reduced the Turkish fortifications to a mass of ruins and the Turkish garrison, which had made a second stand on the heights above the city, had been routed by shells charged with shrapnel.

The bombardment yesterday was a continuation of that of Tuesday. From 3:39 until sunset Tuesday afternoon the cannon on Aubrey's warship pounded the Turkish fortifications in the harbor until more than half of them were in ruins.

Yesterday the work of destruction was completed by the Italian cannon and the Turks driven from the town were forced to surrender it to their foes. This puts Italy in formal possession of the city and paves the way, it is believed, to peace negotiations.

The fire of the Italian ships, when the bombardment was resumed, was deadly in its accuracy, and the heavier outer forts of the Turkish garrison were soon in ruins.

The Turks then removed their guns to the heights above the town and reopened fire. The Italian ships replied with shrapnel, which sent the Turks flying in all directions and caused their commander to order the white flag of surrender to be run up.

When this dispatch was sent the fleet was preparing to land a force of 4000 men to take formal possession of the city.

News of the surrender came to Rome by wireless from Aubrey, on board the flagship Giuseppe Garibaldi, and when the news was officially announced the crowds in the streets went wild with enthusiasm.

With Tripoli in the hands of the Italians, it is now believed that the Turks will not try to hold out longer, and will accede to the demands of Italy, unless other powers intervene to save Turkey from this humiliation.

The Italians were surprised that the Turks put up such a spirited resistance. It is believed that many of the Turkish soldiers were killed. The garrison was composed of men who had practically been banished from Turkey. It was a half starved, ragged army. About all the pay they got was two loaves of bread a day, one of which they sold to obtain spending money.

Still, they declined to surrender, even when they must have known that to fight back was uesless, if not foolish.

The Italian warships did not use their heaviest guns in bombarding Tripoli, as they were considered unnecessary. The Italians fired concerted volleys at long intervals, expecting between each volley to see the white flag run up. The Italian gunners showed excellent marksmanship. As the Turks showed no sign of hoisting the white flag, the firing from the warships became more rapid. Destroyers patrolled the offing to seaward to prevent the Italian fleet being surprised by Turkish warships.

The first shot was fired by Admiral Aubrey's flagship, the Giuseppi Garibaldi. The shot struck the governor general's palace, almost reducing it to ruin. The two Turkish forts immediately replied. The Turkish gunners were evidently excited, for their shots all went wild.

Following the report that Tripoli had fallen and that the Italian flag floats over that city was the news from Constantinople that the sultan's advisers, discouraged by failure of appeals to the powers, have prepared to yield Tripoli, if Italy will pay a reasonable compensation and also agree to a suzerainty by the sultan. This latter condition would be of no practical effect, but would help the Sultan save his face in the Mohammedan world.

The great powers of Europe have been slow to step in at Turkey's suggestion to put an end to hostilities. It looks as though Turkey is to be allowed to meet her fate alone.

One report is that Italy will not lay down her arms unless Turkey surrenders Tripoli entirely and pays Italy $12,000,000.

The Tribuna, the official government newspaper, says that before Admiral Aubrey began to fire he gave the Turkish government, as represented by the detachment of soldiers at Tripoli, an opportunity to surrender.

The Turkish commander had asked for twenty-four hours for the purpose, he said, of communicating with his government. At the expiration of that time he declined to surrender, and the word to fire was given.

BOARD OF TRADE

Captain Perry is at present the guest of Frank Fessenden Crane in this city, and it wa son the suggestion of the latter that the former appeared and spoke on "Deeper Waterways" before the members of the organization. Captain Perry, like Mr. Crane, is a member of the Atlantic Deeper Waterway's Association, and besides being a delegate to all conventions, has been empowered with a special position in the matter by the Governor of New Jersey.

Captain Perry entertained the members with an instructive talk that lasted about thirty minutes. He was a very forceful speaker and commanded a ready delivery. He spoke of the many benefits to be derived from deeper waterways, and also gave a brief resume of the different industries that had already benefited by the project.

He showed many instances where the value of deeper waterways was of almost inestimable account and brought his remarks to a close by stating the many improvements that would be forthcoming to Quincy in the event of a proper dock system being installed. He was heartily applauded at the conclusion of his remarks and was given a vote of thanks for the courtesy he had extended to the members of the Board.

He finished speaking about half past eight and for two hours the meeting re olved into one of the warmest ever entertained by the members of the association. A communication was read from the Associated Charities of the City of Quincy and the policy which they had adopted and the plans which were now under consideration were divulged. The assistance of the Board of Trade was solicited.

A communication was also read from the Board of Selectmen of Milton, in answer to one sent out recently by the secretary of the local Board of Trade, and dealing with the so-called "missing link." The Selectmen of Milton stated that the matter would receive careful consideration at the next Town meeting.

A letter similar to the one sent to the Milton Selectmen, was also forwarded to the local division superintendent of the Bay State Railway Company, but the failure of the latter to reply caused the members of the Board of Trade to consider the actio as a reflection upon them. The letter had requested the local railway authorities to be present at the meeting and give their views as to what could be done in the matter of extending a car line from East Milton to the Boston line. The majority of the members were indignant over the way the communication had been treated and words immediately began to wax warm in all quarters.

A. L. Whitman scored the railway officials, not only for ignoring the Board of Trade communication, but for the system, as well, that is in vogue in Quincy. He said that in the Quincy Point section, the cars fail to run on schedule time and suggested that the officials of the Elevated road be communicated with in regard to the "missing link." He said that he had traveled upon practically every railway in the United States but never encountered a worse system than that which is prevalent in Quincy.

Charles Austin was not in favor of being too antagonistic with the railway and preferred having a communication sent to the head officials of the road, for it is from them, he said, that any and all action in the matter would emanate.

John L. Miller, a Republican candidate for Mayor this fall, was the next speaker. He said that a business proposition would demand a communication being sent to the head of the officials of the Railway company and not to any of the subordinates. He also stated that a railway will undertake an enterprise on the supposition that the furtherance of the same will be of added gain from a monetary standpoint.

He was followed by Ex-Representative Peter T. Fallon, who flayed the railway for ignoring the letter and furthermore added that the local system was the "most neglected and slowest system in the Commonwealth." He cited the case of the trolley freight and the great fight that ensued with reference to having a station established on Washington street.

Mr. Fallon said that when the railway company wanted anything it was sure to appear before the Board of Trade, accompanied by its attorney, but added that when the people wanted anything that it was another question.

He then went on to show the great benefits that would accrue if the "missing link" line were established. He deplored the condition of the South Quincy section, as caused by the local railway. He said that some definite action should be taken in the matter and urged the members of the Board to get busy at once.

John L. Miller again took the floor and said that in his travels over the country he had become convinced that the "the local railway system was the rottenest in the United States." He told of the express cars that were in Ohio and the facilities that were in the cars. He advocated quicker time on local cars and said that it takes too long to go from East Milton to Neponset. William H. Teasdale cited his experience in getting from West Quincy to the Square, Wednesday evening, it taking him thirty-five minutes, owing to the trolley freight and another car blocking traffic. Ex-Mayor John O. Hall thought that the Brockton Fair might have had something to do with the local officials not answering the letter and urged the members to be more lenient.

Councilman John R. Richards considered the ignoring of the communication as a "rank discourtesy to the Board of Trade." He also stated that the local railway obtained whatever was desired and the least that could be done was to give the matter some consideration. Arthur Stetson, the secretary, said he had used the same means of communication in the past and saw no reason, since other letters have been answered, why the last communication should have been ignored. Mr. Miller and Mr. Fallon engaged in a little discussion and the gentleman from Ward Four charged that the mayoralty candidate was "yielding to the railway," but the latter quickly retorted "not a bit of it."

It was voted to have a committee confer with the head officials of the Bay State Street and the Boston Elevated Railways in regard to the "missing link." The matter of a comfort station came up and was discussed at length by Councilman Sandberg and Arthur Stetson.

It was also voted to have the matter of the "comfort station" taken up by the same committee. A communication was read from a Mattapan Association and was laid on the table. After the talk on the railway had subsided the gathering disbursed after a most exciting meeting.

EX-KING MANUEL

He Entertains Hope of Returning to the Throne

PREDICT END OF REPUBLIC

Portuguese Royalis!s Say That It Will Come Today

ANNIVERSARY OF REVOLUTION

London, Oct. 5.—Portuguese Royalists declare that the monarchy will be re-established in the northern part of Portugal today, the anniversary of the revolution that overthrew King Manuel. A member of the colony which establishes itself around Manuel at Richmond states that cablegrams just received announced that in the greater part of North Portugal are bands of Royalists who occupy the towns of Chaves, Guimaraes, Barra and Baranca. On the other hand Republican circles say that Chaves and the other parts of the north are quiet.

The Richmond colony has been watching with interest the recent attempts on the northern frontier to re-establish the monarchy. Several times success was believed to have been in sight, only to be frustrated at the last moment either through interference of the Spanish authorities or by the premature disclosure of their plans.

So sure are the Royalists of the present movement that most of the men left Richmond last week to take an active part in the rising.

Manuel, who has been the guest of the Earl of Lonsdale at Lowther Castle in Penrith, brought his visit to an unexpected early termination, leaving the castle at midnight for Richmond, where he arrived yesterday afternoon.

ROOSTER COAL BRIQUETS

THE NEW ANTHRACITE COAL

ROOSTER BRIQUETS are made from the choices small Scranton Anthracite coal mined in Pennsylvania, called TWENTIETH CENTURY CHESTNUT size

Just consider for a moment what we offer here in this 20th CENTURY CHESTNUT.

First, 2000 pounds of clean, pure, hard coal without a rock or a piece of slate.

Second, fuel that cannot form into a clinker, by any known method of firing, consequently the linings and grates last indefinitely.

Third, they are made in nut size, being equally convenient for furnace heaters, open grates, as well as stoves; therefore, only one storage bin is necessary.

Fourth, and very IMPORTANT, the quality of this fuel is the SAME EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR, not a good ton today, and nothing like it the next time, in other words, when you once learn how to regulate your drafts you have nothing more to learn about burning BRIQUETS.

Fifth, no more sifting ashes these Briquets burn out clean. They require less wood to kindle.

Be sure to ask for "ROOSTERS" and get the Briquet made from pure Scranton Coal, from the largest Briquet plant in the country. They are better than coal, will last as long and cost less.

MEETING OF EPWORTH LEAGUE

The regular monthly business meeting of Epworth League of Hall Place M. E. church was held in the vestry of the church Monday evening. In the absence of the president, the meeting was opened by the first vice president. After the usual devotional services conducted by the first vice president, the various devotional services conducted by the first vice president, the various officers rendered reports for the past months' work which were accepted.

An invitation was received from the Wollaston Epworth League inviting this League to a camp meeting to be held in the Wollaston church Tuesday evening, Oct. 3. Owing to previous arrangements for the Surprise party on this same night at the church it was with regret that the League could not accept the invitation and attend.

A committee of three persons were elected to represent the Epworth League in the contest between the Sunday school and the League to purchase hymn books for use throughout the church services and to confer with the superintendent in making further plans for the contest. Rev. T. C. Martin, Miss Maud E. Hodgkinson and Miss Hilda Francis were elected as the committee.

Miss Catherine Hodgkinson, Miss Edna Burke, Miss Mary J. Williams and Miss Florence Manhire were appointed by the pastor to act as a committee in conjunction with him to have charge of the new curtains to be placed in the Sunday school. The pastor also asked the co-operation of the League in arranging for an "Old Folks' Day" and the matter was left in the hands of the fourth vice president.

Permission was given the third vice president to draw on the treasury for funds for use in furthering the work of her department. An invitation has been extended to the Wollaston League to attend a Hallowe'en party to be given by the Hall Place Epworth League Tuesday, Oct. 31. At the close of the business session a social hour was enjoyed in charge of Miss Catherine B. Hodgkinson, fourth vice president.

GOVERNOR VISITS STRICKEN AUSTIN

State Authorities May Ask For Flood Investigation

Austin, Pa., Oct. 5.—In a drizzling rain, with roads washed by mountain streams, Governor Tener started on his tour of inspection of the flood devastated district, including the dam of the Bayless Pulp and Paper company.

Stronger than ever is the general opinion that the governor's visit indicates that the state officials are looking over the situation with a view of ascertaining their authority in conducting an investigation as to the liability and responsibility for the condition of the dam.

Aside from the governor's sojourn, the situation has assumed the routine of clearing away wreckage, the search for more bodies and renewed efforts to get men, not only as laborers, but as cooks, whose services are sorely needed. The replenishing of food supplies, too, is taxing the energies of the commissary as well as the railroads.

Lynn Doctor Sues Engineer For Loss of Wife's Affections

Lynn, Mass., Oct. 5.—Social circles of this city are greatly interested in the suit for the alienation of his wife's affections brought by Dr. Harold A. Johnson against Frederick A. C. Boyd, an electrical engineer. Johnson sues for $30,000 and has attached Boyd's property to that amount.

Both the men are well known in Lynn society, as both men are members of the most prominent clubs. Johnson refuses to discuss the case and both Mrs. Johnson and Boyd have left this city. The former has gone to visit her mother in Denver and the engineer is in Boston.

SAY THEY WILL WIN AT POLLS

Massachusetts Republicans In Harmonious Convention

LODGE IN THE BACKGROUND

Speakers Express Determination to Rid State of Foss—Platform Says Democratic Governor Has Proved Falsity of Charges Against Republicans—Expression of Regret Over Defeat of Reciprocity Omitted

Boston, Oct. 5.—At the Republican state convention held in Tremont Temple everything was harmonious, and confidence in victory for the party at the polls in November was expressed by the various speakers. The nominees:

Governor, Louis A. Frothingham, Boston; lieutenant governor, Robert Luce, Somerville; secretary of state, Albert P. Langtry, Springfield; treasurer and receiver general, Elmer A. Stevens, Somerville; auditor, John E. White, Tisbury; attorney general, James M. Swift, Fall River.

Senator Lodge was rather in the background, the dominant figures being Senator Crane, Congressman Weeks and Samuel J. Elder. It was the first state convention held under the new direct nominations law, and was largely a ratification of the candidates of the party named at the primaries last week.

Throughout the proceedings, in speeches and platform, there was expressed a determination to rid the state of Governor Foss and to show the country at large that Massachusetts, as a great industrial centre, has no use for the tariff reform program of the Democratic party.

Both Frothingham and Luce received enthusiastic receptions.

Congressman Harris was permanent chairman. Samuel J. Elder read the platform which he had written, and which the delegates present seemed to think would prove a strong campaign document. Both state and national issues were covered by it.

The name of President Taft was loudly applauded every time it was uttered.

Although the convention was entitled to 2000 delegates, only 1018 were present, according to the credential committee's report. The platform committee met before the convention and decided to omit the plank that expressed regret over the defeat of Canadian reciprocity. Crane, Weeks and others opposed it on the ground that it was unnecessary, the pact having been defeated by the Canadians.

Chairman Elder of the platform committee is a great friend of President Taft and would have liked to have the plank go in but he yielded in the interest of harmony.

The platform declares for a sane tariff revision and contains these features:

"The Republican party has been in control of the state government for more than half a century. Institutions for the poor, the sick and the insane have been created and maintained; great roads and boulevards have been built. For years it has been a favorite charge of our opponents that there was mismanagement, extravagance and graft. It has been reserved for a Democratic governor to prove the utter falsity of these charges.

"It will be Republican policy to continue the work undertaken by the Republican legislature in such matters as the making of good roads, the improvement of Boston and other harbors, and the development of park and boulevard systems.

"It is Republican policy to encourage technical education in all directions.

"The prosperity of Massachusetts depends upon the skill of her artisans, her mechanics, her farmers.

"We must keep ours the best in the land with just and progressive laws to adequately protect them in their advancement and prosperity."

FIGHT ON STATE ISSUES

Democratic Platform May Declare For Canadian Reciprocity

Boston, Oct. 5.—Governor Foss will make his campaign on state issues. This is indicated by the Democratic platform which will be presented to the state convention today.

The only reference in the platform to national issues is contained in a plank favoring a reduction in the tariff on raw materials and on foodstuffs.

It is possible that a plank will be inserted for Canadian reciprocity. Foss said that he favored such a plank, and believed that as soon as the Canadian people found out that the annexation talk was a bugaboo they would favor trade relations with the United States.

"I believe the people are just as anxious as ever for reciprocity," said the governor.

George F. Williams drew up the platform and all of the candidates on the state ticket met with him and Governor Foss last evening for the purpose of making amendments to it.

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION

before, but, what is vastly more important, had elected men who have become notable for ability, for earnestness of purpose and for devoted loyalty to the public interests.

These Democrats soon found themselves a well organized, cohesive, aggressive body, led by a man of dominating personality who developed qualities of legislative leadership and efficient public service such as Beacon Hill had not seen for years.

To a legislative body so constituted Governor Foss sent an inaugural message ringing with those principles of progressive Democracy which had been the foundation of his victory at the polls.

The result which has followed from these conditions and operating forces has been little short of marvelous.

Under the guidance of a chief executive of large business experience, a man of practical, sound judgment and efficiency in achievement of practical results, a minority party composed of able, conscientious, high minded legislators has dominated the legislative policy of the commonwealth.

Measure after measure recommended by the Democratic governor, formulated under Democratic leadership, has been carried by Democratic votes, with the aid of a few men of conscience nominally Republicans, against the opposition of the "old guard" of Republicanism.

Such domination of a party, nominally in a majority, by the ideas and principles of an earnest and able minority is unique, I believe, in the history of legislative bodies.

Legislation Affecting Labor

The fundamental line of difference between the Democratic and Republican parties today rests in the fact that while Democracy stands for equal opportunity and equal right before the law, the Republican party stands upon the principle of special legislative privilege to the few. Republicans may deny this as often and emphatically as they please, but history shows it with unerring certainty.

That the trusts and monopolies which so dominate the industries and commerce of the country have been built up and fostered by legislative favors of the Republican party, is beyond contradiction.

Attitude Toward Labor

The position of the Democratic party as to labor legislation cannot be better stated than in the terse words of Governor Foss in his inaugural address:

"Labor is the foundation upon which the structure of popular government is built, and as such it must be recognized, its just demands met, its rights guarded and protected. It must have every legislative safeguard that capital has."

For years, representatives of labor had appealed to successive Republican legislatures for the enactment of legislation, but their appeal had fallen on deaf ears.

The party that is founded upon the principle of special privileges to individuals could but feel that the interests for which they stood were jeopardized by legislation which tended to give to labor a fairer and more equal opportunity.

But at the instance of a Democratic governor a legislature of Massachusetts, dominated by Democratic leadership and guided by the principles of progressive Democracy, have enacted a succession of labor measures which will do more for the uplifting of the dignity of labor and the promotion of its highest interests than all the legislation hitherto enacted upon the statute books of the commonwealth.

Legislation For Capital

It is not labor alone, however, that has sought legislation during the present year. Those representing great interests of capital have also applied for legislation extending their privileges in the development of public utilities.

The West End merger bill was introduced at the instance of the Boston Elevated Street railway, one of the largest public service corporations of the commonwealth. It provided for the investment of millions of capital, the building of extensive subways and the development of a unified and useful system of transportation for our great metropolitan city.

The interests of capital also urged the passage of a dock bill, involving the expenditure of nine millions of dollars for the improvement and development of Boston harbor.

These two measures were of momentous importance to the city of Boston and the commonwealth, and while involving gain for private investors they comprehended public benefits of the first magnitude.

And to the credit of the commonwealth and our party be it said that these measures, involving the disposition of millions of public and private capital, were enacted with no lobby scandal and without the slightest suggestion of motives on the part of any legislator voting therefor, otherwise than honest and patriotic.

Without referring to other measures it is safe to say that never, at least in recent years, has a Massachusetts legislature enacted legislation more important, more momentous as affecting the interests of our commonwealth and every class of citizen, than has been enacted by our last legislature.

Judicial Appointments

Nor is this record of promotion of wise and benencent legislation the sole creditable activity of our chief executive. Fate has also thrust upon Governor Foss the duty of making more important judicial appointments than have ever before fallen to a governor of Massachusetts.

Within the short period of nine months he has been called upon to fill eleven vacancies in the higher courts of the commonwealth. He has appointed a chief justice and an associate justice of our supreme judicial court and nine justices of our superior court.

His judicial appointments have been of a character that challenges criticism. They have been received with satisfaction and approval by every citizen interested in our courts. They have even extorted words of commendation from the bitterest and most implacable enemies of our chief executive.

I say, therefore, that the record of the year's achievements is one of which the Democracy of the commonwealth and our governor may well be proud. It is a record of faithful, efficient and patriotic public service. It is a record which in and of itself not only entitles Governor Foss to re-election, but it entitles the party to the election of every candidate for executive office and control of the legislature.

The record has so far met the approval of the electorate that but recently it was declared in journals bitterly hostile to Governor Foss that his re-election was inevitable.

No "Pink Tea" Campaign

This admirable record of administration has inspired great confidence—possibly too great confidence—in the members of our party.

The prediction has been ventured that the campaign before us would be a sort of "pink tea" affair. But the Democrat or citizen who for one moment believes that the impending contest is to partake of the "pink tea" shade reckons without his host.

The trusts, the monopolies, the money power, the beneficiaries of an exorbitant tariff, are fighting with their backs to the wall.

It is vital to these interests that they win this battle. Without it, all hope of their continued domination and the perpetuation of special legislative privilege is gone.

Consider for a moment the scheme as the Republican managers have already outlined it in the public press. They have selected as their standard bearer a young man of honorable antecedents, of pleasing personality and attractive manners—the sort of figurehead useful to conceal the designs of those behind who control him.

Confessedly he is the candidate of the Republican machine, of the "stand-patters," of the reactionaries, of the tariff-fed interests.

He is a gentleman of whom a Republican adversary for the nomination said, without contradiction, that in his entire legislative record there was never a single vote in the interests of the people, or otherwise than in the interests of corporations.

Trusts at Bay

The sullen, bitter monopolies and trusts, at bay at last, smarting under criminal prosecution instituted or threatened, will pour out in this commonwealth their ill-gotten dollars with lavish hand, to the end that they may, if possible, stem the tide of popular disfavor and indignation which has set against them.

Not only for the protection of their vested privilege to tax the people, but for their personal safety from criminal prosecution, they must at all hazards win this opening fight in the commonwealth of Massachusetts.

It is little wonder that the hopes of our Republican friends are high. Past masters of the political art are in control. The unlimited funds of frightened and desperate trust magnates are at their command. The good old times are here again.

The old cry that has so often terrified the voters of this commonwealth is to be raised again. We are to hear again that the election of a Democratic governor and legislature in Massachusetts will be a menace to her industries, and that the promised rule of the people will mean mob rule; that the right of equality and equal opportunity before the law to all our citizens—the wealthy and the humble alike—and the destruction of the privileges enjoyed by the few, mean national disaster.

Our Republican opponents declare that the issues in this campaign are national. They declare that they are again to renew, under a slightly different name, the fight for special privilege and the right of monopolies to sustain high prices for the people's necessities—a fight in which last year they went down to ignominious defeat.

It would seem that they intend once more to stand to the defense of that infamous Payne-Aldrich tariff bill which the people have alread repudiated.

Issues Ignored

They intend to ignore the fact that a great Republican president has declared that schedule K in that tariff is indefensible, that the cotton schedule is too high, and that other schedules should be reduced.

They propose to ignore the fact that the insurgents within their own party cry out against the iniquities of this tariff bill.

With a deluge of oratory, domestic and imported, and with floods of gold from the coffers of monopoly, they believe they can create a panic which will reverse the verdict of a year ago and will again bring the people of this great commonwealth under the yoke of special privilege.

And so our opponents enter upon this campaign full of hope—desperate and bitter hope—but hope. They are confident.

But I believe they mistake the temper of the people and of the times.

The movement for popular control and the destruction of special privilege which last year swept the country like a tidal wave was no sudden or sporatic impulse. It has been slowly but steadily gathering force and intensity for years. It has split the Republican party of this nation into hopelessly hostile camps. It has united a militant and progressive Democracy.

It is a spirit which is world-wide in its results. It is the spirit that in England, under the enlightened leadership of Lloyd-George, has sent vested privilege down to defeat and has exalted the just rights of the common people. It is the spirit which in this fair land has sounded the defeat of monopoly and plutocracy, and has raised aloft the standard of control of government by the people and an equal right and opportunity for all alike.

The people will not again submit their necks to the yoke!

And so with a full knowledge of the desperate might of the forces opposing us and the seriousness of the impending struggle, the Democracy accepts the challenge and stands with confidence serene as the champion of the equal rights of all the people against the champion of the special privilege of plutocracy.

The Democrats of Massachusetts are unafraid. "Thrice armed is he whose cause is just," and the cause of Democracy in this campaign is just. The principle for which Democracy contends is right, everlastingly right, eternally right; and right must and will prevail!

TOURNAMENTS INAUGURATED

Sensible Gifts Offered For Leading Scores

WILL PLAY COCHATO

Weekly whist tournaments under the auspices of the Granite city club, were inaugurated Wednesday evening with nine tables in play. Twenty-five hands of progressive whist were played. As usual there were some good and some bad scores. The best scores, however, did not run as high as usual. Mark L. Read, Jr., was high man with 67-7 percent; and John Curtis second with 66 per cent. Ice cream and cake were served by the entertainmnt committee after the play. At the beginning of play it was announced that two silver spoons would be given each week for the two best scores. For the two best monthly scores, a 25 and 12 ride ticket to Boston would be given and for the lowest monthly score a consolation prize of a five ride ticket to Boston. For the best season score $10 in gold will be given and for the second best, $5 in gold.

Arrangements are to be made within a few days for a tournament of whist, pool and billiards between the Cochato club of Braintree and the Granite City club.

BOYS WERE FEASTING.

About 2.30 this morning, Officer Avery was attracted by an unusual light in the restaurant of George Irwin, opposite the car barn and started to investigate. He found two South Boston boys on the inside having a "feed." Entering, he placed them under arrest. The boys had a large bunch of keys, and entrance had been gained by the use of one of them. The boys also said that the third boy was in hiding behind the bill board, near by. Here he was found by Officer Avery and the three were sent to the police station.

From what the boys said, it seems that they live in South Boston and had been attending the Brockton fair during the day and were walking home. In court this morning they were put in charge of the probation officer until next Tuesday. The boys' parents will be notified to come after them.

WAR ON COAL TRUST

It is Started Along New Lines In United States Supreme Court

Washington, Oct. 5.—Attorney General Wickersham, by filing a brief in the supreme court of the United States, began his fight before that tribunal to have the principal coal and carrying railroads and coal owning companies in the anthracite coal regions adjudged to be in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law.

An entirely different attack was made on the corporations from that in Pennsylvania, where the government lost on nearly every point.

NOT WHEELS BUT AIRSHIPS IN CRANIUM

Fellow Seeing Aeroplane Land on Housetop Starts Investigation by the Chief

Stimulants sometimes create queer impressions on the brain of the man who has been indulging, but Chief Engineer Williams would like to know what particular brand had entered the person of Richard Hennesey this morning. The Chief met Hennesey on School street shortly before 9 o'clock and spoke to him in a friendly way. He then drove on to the central fire station. Hardly had he arrived before Hennesey was seen hurrying toward the fire station jumping fences in his rush. Reaching the station, all out of breath, he said that an aeroplane with a man in it had landed on top of the Priests house on Gay street and that men and ladders with tackle were needed at once.

An emergency wagon was sent to the residence of Father Coan in a rush, only to find that the story was a hoax. It was learned however, that the said Hennesey had been to the residence a few minutes before and had used some very abusive language. He disappeared after telling the firemen the aeroplane story and has not been seen since.

CELEBRATORS COME TO GRIEF

Disorderly Crowd Heavily Fined This Morning

LIQUOR SOLD

The sum of $133 was imposed by the court this morning on a party of celebrators, arrested by the police at 3.30 this morning at a house at 82 River street. From what could be gathered from the fragments of the story told in court, Lillian Willis and her husband came to Quincy Wednesday evening to visit Mrs. Alice Seagrave, who is said to run the River street house. Willis said that he bought the drinks several times, paying Mrs. Seagrave between $4 and $5. Soon after a "rough house" was started and Willis claims that Charles Worral knocked his wife down and began to beat her. He jumped out of the window and ran for the police, going to the house of Chief Burrell who lives near by.

A few minutes later Mrs. Seagrave came running after an officer. By this time, however, the patrol auto with Officers Thorne and Whalan had arrived and they proceeded to clean out the place. They found things rather "mixed up" in the house, and when the wagon returned to the station it had as passengers Lillian Willis, Alice Seagrave, Charlotte Lewis and Charles Worral all of whom were locked up for drunkenness. The Willis woman was bailed later, however.

This morning in court, the parties were all charged with drunkenness. In addition to this Worral was charged with assault on the Willis woman, and the Seagrave woman was charged with the illegal sale of liquor, the Lewis woman with being idle and disorderly.

It seems that the police have been watching the house for sometime, but the raid Wednesday night came before the police had determined to move.

On the witness stand, Willis testified that he bought the drinks of the Seagrave woman and paid for them. The woman, however, who was still under the influence of liquor said that she had but two small drinks. That Willis had brought the liquor with him in his automobile and that she never sold a drop of liquor in her life.

As a result of the hearing fines were imposed as follows:

Alice Seagrave $15 for drunkenness and $50 for violation of the liquor law.

Charles Worral $15 for drunkenness and $10 for assault.

Lillian Willis $3 on account of costs for drunkenness.

Charlotte Lewis $15 for drunkenness and $25 for being idle and disorderly.

Total $133.

After the cases had been disposed of in court, Willis informed Chief Burrell that when he went to the Seagrave house, he had a suit case and that his wife had $50 in money which he did not now have, and which he would like. According to Mrs. Willis she became sick and went to bed placing the money under her pillow.

Chief Burrell accompanied Willis to the house this noon asd strict search for the fifty was made, but it had taken wings and flown, no one knows where. Whether some of the party arrested got the money or whether it fell into the hands of two other men who were at the house, but who left earlier in the evening is a mystery. Any way it is gone. So was the suit case.

TODAY'S COURT.

Alice Seagrave was fined $15 for drunkenness and $50 for violation of the liquor law at Quincy.

Charles Warral was fined $15 for drunkenness and $10 for assault at Quincy.

Lillian Willis was fined $3 on account of costs for drunkenness at Quincy.

Charlotte Lewis was fined $15 for drunkenness and $25 for being idle and disorderly at Quincy.

Foss Names New Justices

Boston, Oct. 5.—Governor Foss sent to the executive council the nominations of three justices to the superior court bench. One was that of Nathan B. Pratt of Lowell, another was that of Frederick H. Chase of Lawrence and the third was that of Richard W. Irwin of Northampton.

HEADED BY WATERMAN

Democrats of Rhode Island Place Their Ticket In the Field

Providence, Oct. 5.—The entire slate as proposed by the Democratic central state committee of Rhode Island was ratified at the convention held in Fay's hall. The ticket is as follows:

Governor, Louis A. Waterman of Providence; lieutenant governor, Alberic A. Archembault of Warwick; secretary of state, Fayles B. Steers of Gloucester; treasurer, Albert M. Steinert of Providence; attorney general, James A. Cahill of East Providence.

The platform adopted by the convention attacked President Taft for his attitude on the tariff question, favored the direct election of United States senators, a federal income tax amendment and the reasonable regulation of trusts, and mentioned besides the state issues.

CURE FOR RHEUMATISM

Connecticut Man Finds That Bee Stings Are Effective

Ansonia, Conn., Oct. 5.—Hopelessly crippled for two years by rheumatism, William P. FitzGerald, a wealthy brewer here, has been cured by daily exposing himself to the attack of bees. Leaving a hospital a month ago when all remedies failed, FitzGerald tried the bee experiment as a final resort.

A hive of bees quartered in the garret of FitzGerald's home daily divided their time between gathering honey and burying their weapons in their owner. At times the bees would not sting until angered by poking. Their stabs caused severe pain in the patient's arms and legs, but he suffered heroically. After three weeks of the treatment he is able to walk without crutches.

DEATH SENTENCE TO BE COMMUTED

Murderer Cook Was to Have Been Electrocuted Next Week

Boston, Oct. 5.—After a long hearing Governor Foss and council voted to commute the sentence of Edward F. Cook, sentenced to be electrocuted some time next week for the murder of Herbert E. White of Ludlow, to life imprisonment.

The petitioners based their case mainly on the claim that the prisoner was mentally defective and introduced a letter from Dr. Scribner of the Worcester insane hospital.

While this letter would not say that the man was insane, it said that he was of weak mentality and that that if the sentence was commuted he would expect the prisoner to show signs of insanity in the course of a few years. In conclusion it favored commutation.

Taft Also Reviews Troops and Talks About Tariff Vetoes

Rawlins, Wyo., Oct. 5.—President Taft spent Wednesday in Wyoming and left Rawlins last night for Salt Lake City. During the day the president stopped at Cheyenne and Laramie.

At Cheyenne a miniature reproduction of the "stunts" made famous at the annual frontier day celebration had been arranged. Mr. Taft watched the bucking bronchos, the races between cowboys and the roping of wild horses with great interest.

He reviewed several thousand soldiers from Fort D. A. Russell, inspected the town from an automobile, and spoke on tariff vetoes to a good sized crowd.

IRISH STRIKE SETTLED

Railroad Employes Abandon Their Original Grievances

Dublin, Oct. 5.—The strike declared on he Irish railroads by the Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants Sept. 21 has been finally settled. The strikers abandoned their original grievances, which was their objection to handling lumber shipped by a firm which was having trouble with its employes.

By the final agreement the companies agree to reinstate 90 percent of the strikers at once and the remaining 10 percent when vacancies occur. They will not dismiss the new men who were taken on during the strike.

Not Purely Curiosity.

Among the passengers in one of the cars of a train running between Springfield and Boston was a nervous little old man who evinced a keen interest in a sinister looking person who took a seat beside him.

"How do you do?" said the nervous little old man to the sinister looking person. "Now, what might your name be? Do you live in Boston or beyond?"

"What business is it of yours where I live or who I am?" growled the other.

"Strictly speaking, it ain't none of my business," admitted the old gentleman mildly, "but it's jest like this: I've got a cousin in this part of the state that I've never seen, and I've always thought I might come upon him some time jest by asking folk their name and so on."—Harper's.

CLUB MANAGERS LOST STARS

Often Turn Down Players Who Later Make Good.

MILLER NOW HELD FOR $10,000

Chance, Clarke and Griffith Could Not See Player Whom Montreal Wants Fancy Price For—Comiskey Tells Story on Joe Cantillon.

Some of these men who buy and sell ball players certainly do have some bad half hours.

What would you think if you had purchased a ball player for $300, had sold him for $1,500 and then wanted him back and was asked $7,000 and several players? Wouldn't you feel like swearing?

A couple of years ago a fellow named Ward Miller became the property of the Chicago National league team, was drafted from a small minor league and cost $300. Manager Frank Chance looked him over and figured he wasn't quite right. Asked for a waiver, the Pittsburg club refused to allow him to go. That was in the days when you had to sell a man for whom you asked waivers—no pulling back. Well, Miller went to the Pirates. Manager Clarke looked him over. After awhile he decided Miller wouldn't do, and the latter went to Cincinnati on a trade that made Blaine Durbin, the former Cub pitcher, a Pirate.

Griffith Passes Judgment.

Clark Griffith looked over Miller and backed the judgment of Chance and Clarke. He figured Miller would not do in the majors, and he went to the Eastern league.

Well, this year he struck his stride. He is hitting over .300 for the Montreal club and running bases like a wild man. George Huff, the Cub scout, went to look him over. Huff wired President Murphy that Miller could be secured for $7,000 and two players.

Photos by American Press Association.

O'TOOLE AND KELLY, PITTSBURG'S NEW COSTLY BATTERY.

"Stick around until tomorrow—maybe they will come down," was Murphy's answer by wire to his scout.

The next day the Cub president received an answer. It read like this:

"Price has gone up—now they want $10,000." and the telegram was signed Huff.

"Catch the first train or they'll boost the price to $20,000." were the instructions of President Murphy.

Don't you suppose the Cub magnate feels like bottling himself when he thinks of the time when he had this fellow at a cost of $300?

One on Cantillon.

And these same baseball men will give you a warm time if you attempt to convince them that O'Toole, the St. Paul pitcher, cost Barney Dreyfuss $22,500 in real money. Here's one that President Comiskey of the Sox tells on Joe Cantillon. Joe, it will be remembered, was formerly the manager of the Washington team in the American league and then went to Minneapolis to boss that team.

"Joe had heard that somebody had offered Lennon $12,000 for O'Toole," said President Comiskey. "So the next time that Joe saw Lennon he opened on him:

"'I understand that you have been offered $12,000 for O'Toole,' said Joe.

"'Yes,' was Lennon's reply.

"'Well, I guess I'm the biggest fool of all,' said Joe. 'In the first place, I didn't know there was anybody in baseball so crazy as to offer that much money for any ball player. And, in the next place,' said Joe, 'I would have sworn there was nobody in baseball crazy enough to have turned down such an offer once he had it.'"

Which shows you that the fans were not the only ones to gasp at the price. Even practical baseball men had a difficult time believing that any magnate would separate himself from that amount of money for a ball player. In fact, there are a lot of them who still do not believe it.

SPORTING "DOPE"

By B. A.

Don't Knock, Just Boost.—B. A.

Brighton High is down to oppose the local High school eleven at Merrymount Park Friday afternoon and it is earnestly hoped that considerable improvement will be noticeable in this coming game as compared with the performance displayed last Tuesday against the Weymouth boys. Coach Staff seems unable to account for the poor showing the boys have made in their two games thus far, for in practise they seem to accredit themselves in fine style.

The line, generally speaking is apparently strong, yet the desired strength was not exhibited in the last game. The same lineup will be used against Brighton, Blackmur staying at quarterback and Larkin shifting to right end. Finlay will in all probability be unable to play and Trask will be given a chance to show his ability in the position, although Halvosa will be given a try in the birth. Brighton High is not favored with a very strong eleven this year and Quincy, if the right form is forthcoming, should experience no difficulty in annexing a victory.

William Harkins, a well known local boy is playing in the backfield for the St. John's Preparatory school eleven of Danvers.

It was at first announced that the Orients would play the Quincy A. A. team next Saturday, but the East Boston boys refuse to play unless the game is played in the Noddle Island section.

The Adams A. A. will be represented by a fast football team this fall and it is expected that the Ward Three playground will be the scene of many a warm gridiron contest, if the plans that are now under consideration materialize. Duncan McLennan has the matter in charge and he expects to have a team in the field that will average about 140 pounds. There are a number of good football players in that section of the city and with a fast team accommodating the fans there it now begins to look as if we will have a successful football season in local circles.

The Coliseum will re-open Saturday with a roller skating race of the first class order.

THE QUINCY DAILY LEDGER

LARGEST GUARANTEED CIRCULATION IN THE CITY

Vol. 26 No. 231 QUINCY, MASS. FRIDAY EVENING OCTOBER 6, 1911 PRICE TWO CENTS

LOCATION OF THE NEW ADAMS SCHOOL

Was Discussed by Parents' and Teachers' Association

MISS ADAMS SPOKE

Fully two hundred people were in attendance at the meeting of the Parents' and Teachers Association, held Thursday evening in the hall of the Adams school. The gathering was presided over by the president of the association, Alfred Diack and the meeting itself proved to be one of the most enthusiastic ever entertained by the members of the association.

The subject of a location for the new Adams school commanded the attention of those present for a considerable length of time and the principal speaker of the evening was John L. Miller, chairman of the school board. The consensus of opinion, however, of those present, seemed to favor the Madison avenue location but Mr. Miller favored the location on Water street and proceeded to give his reasons why this would be the most desirable situation.

Mr. Miller said that the erection of a school on Water street would greatly relieve the congestion which is prevalent at the present time in the Washington school district and said that the new school, if erected in that vicinity would be open for the reception of pupils from different points. He added that a twelve room structure, with an assembly hall, could be erected on Water street, whereas an eight room building would be the best the Madison avenue location could accommodate.

In conclusion he stated that the Water street section was continually developing, that Water street was favored with a street railway and within a short time would become a main thoroughfare. He advocated that a building be erected similar to that of the new school house recently built in Wollaston.

Mr. Miller was interrogated by a number of those present and agreed to be on hand for the discussion of the same question, at the next meeting of the Association.

After discussion on the matter had closed, Mr. Diack introduced the speaker for the occasion. Miss Mabel E. Adams, who gave a very instructive discourse on "The Use of English in the Home." Miss Adams was formerly a teacher at the school, which bears a name identical to her own, and her presence was greeted with great applause by those present. Miss Adams is now connected with the Boston schools as an assistant principal.

At the conclusion of her talk, refreshments were served by the hospitality committee composed of Miss Eliza Sheahan, of the eveuth grade, chairman, Mrs. Alfred Diack, Mrs. Newman Savage, Mrs. Robert Williams, Mrs. Tupper Miller, and Mrs. George Prout.

QUINCY ELKS ARRANGING FOR PARTIES

Quincy lodge of Elks is arranging for a series of dancing and whist parties to be held the coming winter months. The entertainment committee having the evenings in charge will meet at the club house Sunday afternoon to make the necessary arrangements.

A regular meeting of the lodge will be held next Tuesday evening, at which time action will be taken on the ratification of several important amendments to the constitution of the order as adopted by the grand lodge.

FIRE LAST NIGHT AT NO. WEYMOUTH

The office and stable of Clements' express situated on Neck street, North Weymouth, owned by Kenneth McKenzie of Quincy, was gutted by fire shortly after 6 o'clock Thursday night. The fire started from some unknown cause in the hay loft. Employees of the express were seated in the office when they heard a crackling sound up stairs. Going up to investigate they found a brisk fire in progress. The fire had made good headway and the top of the building was gone before the fire was subdued. Water also went down through the building to the lower floor and did considerable damage. Chief Engineer Jones estimates the loss at $400.

LOST CHILD CALL.

The lost child call from Box 171 at 5.51 Thursday night, was to summons searchers for a little three year old girl named Fostello of Taft street. The child was found half an hour after the alarm sounded near Patch's ice house at Quincy Neck.

N. E. HISTORIC GENEALOGICAL SO.

The New England Historic Genealogical society opened its year with a large meeting in Pilgrim hall, Boston, Wednesday. President J. P. Baxter presided.

Miss Helen Burnham Merchant of Gloucester delivered an address on "The Old Days in Gloucester." Henry W. Cunningham, vice-president and Charles E. Mann, clerk of the board of railroad commissioners, made short speeches.

The society last spring accumulated $30,000 toward the fund for the new building, and this fall hopes to double that amount. As soon as the funds are sufficiently large, the plans for the new building will be acted upon. A large fire-proof building is planned. It will be at the rear of 9 Ashburton place, with an ornamental entrance leading out to the place. In it will be located the library of the society and its publications.

Mrs. Thomas A. Addison of Quincy Point is an active member of this society but was unable to attend the meeting on Wednesday.

CIVIL SERVICE AND FIREMEN

Chief Williams Says That it is Big Mistake

HIS REASONS

Chief Engineer Williams agrees with Chief Montgomery of North Adams when he says "Civil service makes bad firemen." The statement of Chief Montgomery was made Thursday to the members of the civil service examination who had come to North Adams to make an examination of applicants for the fire service. Chief Williams has always claimed that the educational and physical tests for firemen are all wrong. A man may be able to get a very high per cent in educational examination and be all right physically, yet he will make a poor fireman for the reason that he knows nothing about horses. What is wanted in the fire department according to Chief Williams are good drivers.

A man may be a first class driver and a good fireman yet when he comes to take the civil service examination he "falls down." That is, he fails to get the required per cent to go on the eligible list or even if he does pass his per cent is so low that he is so far down on the list that he can not be reached, while some man who has a good education and gets a good per cent for that and the physical test and must be taken, when he is really no earthly good as a fireman and becomes an ornament to parade with a uniform.

The complaint of Chief Williams has always been "I want good drivers." Fire horses are spirited animals and it takes a good man to get them through to a fire without accident. As for the physical test some men may be too fat and some too lean to meet the requirements of the civil service commission, yet when put to the actual test as firemen they might be just what is wanted.

What is true with North Adams is true with Quincy. There are many incidents in Quincy where men who are known to be good drivers would be unable to pass the examination. One case in mind, that will illustrate, is of a certain man who was brought up in a stable and has worked about and driven horses all his life and can as readily handle a two, three, four or six horse hitch as most men can a single driver. Yet this man never had the advantage of even a common school education and can do but little more than write his name He would have made a good driver for the fire department, yet the Chief was unable to get him for the reason that he could not pass the examination. It might also be said that the men in his younger days had been a member of the fire department and was an all round good fireman.

Some two years ago the civil service commission realizing that the educational test was hardly essential practically eliminated that qualification, so that the only educationl test now is that of writing and the physical test. In addition to this the new rules provide for a series of questions as to the applicant's experience, special qualifications for the fire service and as to their experience in the care and driving of horses.

BOOKS WANTED.

CITIZENS OF WOLLASTON ENTER PROTESTS AGAINST ERECTION OF OBJECTIONABLE BUILDING

Unanimous in Their Opinions Regarding Building of Stable. Clarence F. Burgin, Esq., States That an Objectionable Building in that Locality Would Depreciate Property and Cause Bank to Require Readjustment of Loans and Mortgages

The Council Chamber at City Hall was the scene of a very animated meeting, Thursday evening, as a result of a hearing given by the Board of Health with regard to an application from the Wollaston Coal Company, asking permission to erect a stable to contain ten horses, on Weston avenue, near the Wollaston depot. About a week ago several complaints were entered to the Board of Health against granting such a license, and in order to arrive at a definite conclusion it was deemed best to hold a public hearing on the matter.

Fully seventy-five residents of the section where the erection of the stable is desired, were in attendance. Many of them were direct owners of property, while others entering spoke in the interests of property owners, or were else directly interested in property themselves. All the members of the Board of Health were present and the meeting was presided over by Cornelius A. Duggan, chairman of the Board. Acting Mayor John W. McAnarney was also present, but took no part in any discussion.

The remonstrants evidently came fully prepared for the occasion, for they were accompanied by Paul R. Blackmur, who acted as their counsel. The meeting was opened at 7.30, and Chairman Duggan, after reading the contents of the license requested, threw open the meeting to those present and asked those who favored having a stable erected on the spot proposed, to come forward. No one appeared at this time in favor of granting the license.

Attorney Blackmur was the first to speak when those who desired to enter protests were called. Mr. Blackmur stated that he was the attorney for the residents of the immediate vicinity who were strenuously opopsed to having a stable erected on Weston avenue. He said that the erection of such a building with ten horses contained therein, would be a menace to the healthful conditions of the community. "It would be a nuisance to a residential section, he continued, that is fast developing." He also asserted that it was in close proximity to the depot tracks, and would be a considerable bore to numerous residents. "In view of the fact that nobody has appeared to support the granting of this license, he added, and that all present here are opposed to it, I should think the Board of Health would feel constrained to refuse the license." The members of the Board of Health thought it would be a good plan to hear the arguments of the various remonstrants.

Councilman Arthur C. Gardner was the first speaker. He said that he lived within two minutes' walk from the place where the ten horses would be located, and that considerable trouble would ensue if that number of animals were located there. The filth that would arise, would be a serious detriment, not only to the health of those in the immediate vicinity, but to the property as a whole, and to the development of the community. "We are endeavoring to make our section the banner locality of the Wollaston district, and we sincerely trust that nothing will arise that will deter us from carrying out this idea," continued the speaker.

"The vicinity is a very beautiful one at the present time, and the many flower beds that have been set out, show that the residents of the neighborhood, don't want their hopes, to make it an ideal locality dampened by the erection of a stable which is to contain ten horses." He further added that many of the people would move out if the stable was eretced and that the interests of Quincy, as well, warranted the license being refused. He was here interrupted by the counsel who asked "Are you a property owner, Mr. Gardner." The latter answered in the negative, but said he represented a lady who does own a house and who lives within two minutes' walk from the place where the stable is desired.

Mr. John E. Poland, who owns considerable property in the section, said that the fact that all present were opposed to it, was conclusive proof that nothing further was needed.

George Stevenson claimed it would be an outrage to have ten horses located there. Councilman William J. Bailey said that he appeared in protest in the interests of the residents of the section himself being a councilman from the Wollaston district. He said that while the station environment was not a beautiful one, yet the surroundings were such, that the erection of a stable thereon would prove a serious drawback in many ways. He said that here were a number of houses in the vicinity and that the place was developing fast. From consideration to the residential section, and to the numbers that were opposed to it, he thought the Board should refuse to grant the license.

J. W. West said that he owned two houses, one of which directly overlooks the site where the ten horses would be, in the event of the license being granted. He was not opposed to anything conducive to the betterment of the locality, but felt that the erection of a stable in that locality would be a great menace to all residents there.

Thomas Fenno spoke in the interests of his wife, who owned considerable property in the vicinity and for Edmund B. Taylor, another large property owner. He strongly objected to the granting of the license. At this moment of the hearing Temple A. Winslow, who has asked for the license appeared on the scene and the floor was yielded to him on the suggestion of Chairman Duggan.

Mr. Winslow stated that he appeared in the interests of the Wollaston Coal Company and had asked for the license in that name. "The place where we desire to have a stable erected he added, is a most advantageous one from various considerations. I wish to have it strictly understood that we intend to conform strictly to any rules enjoined by the members of the Board of Health. We would erect a concrete block stable, and would have ten box stalls. It is, furthermore, our intention to do away with the horses, and in the near future convert the stable into a garage, as soon as we see our way clear to bring about this change. The stable would contain no more than ten horses, and you can rest assured that all obligations imposed upon us by the Board of Health would be thoroughly carried out. The health, drainage, sewerage and other requirements would be the best, and everything would be done to prevent the least menace to the health of the community.

I have already interviewed several residents ofthe section in the matter, and from the ten or twelve houses on

HINTS ON COOKING

VEGETABLE SOUP.

The Italians, from time immemorial, have been brought up to understand that a liberal supply of green vegetables conduces to good health. Consequently, vegetable soup made from the following recipe frequently finds a place in the menu, the ingredients consisting of a few sticks of celery, a large onion, a carrot, a turnip, a pound of cabbage cut into strips, a pint of split peas and a pound of streaky bacon. These are boiled in a gallon of water, and after the fat has been skimmed off, two ounces of butter, a little sugar and pepper are added. The bottom of the tureen is then covered with slices of bread, over which the soup is poured. This soup is wonderfully "filling at the price," and, for that reason finds favor with Italians whose appetites are out of all proportion to their purses.

OUR LAMB.

We have a contract with the "New England Dressed Meat and Wool Company" to furnish us with strictly fresh lamb. When buying lamb from us you are safe on quality. It is not "Cold Storage Stuff" for it is killed at Brighton Stock yards, say today, dressed and shipped to us tomorrow and sold to you on that garanteed basis. You know what you are getting "IS THE OTHER FELLOW" KEEPING "THINGS YOU OUGHT TO KNOW" FROM YOU?"

"MY WAY"

Address your cooking recipes to "Ad Dept." Charles E. Decker, Berry Brothers, and we will have them printed. Help your friends by good suggestive cooking.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

It appears to be finally decided that Maine went for prohibition. There is lots of dry humor about those Down Easters.

No matter how angry Kansas gets, if a fellow with a large sweet smile comes along, the old state becomes sunshiny again.

The fact that Mrs. Suydam preferred a plumber to a millionaire shows that she is financially clear headed.

The concert of Europe is being all upset by the determination of the Italian horn to play a solo that was not down on the program.

A telephone girl was the heroine of the Austin dam collapse. Central gets very familiar with dams, with her frequent occasion to remark that line is busy.

The Italian statesmen understand perfectly that the way to reconcile the people to bad government is to get up a foreign war with martial enthusiasm and high taxes.

Why shouldn't the Harriman lines recognize the union? Then Mr. Kruttschmitt can communicate with his men by using a two cent postage stamp, while now he must write personal letters to 30,000 of them.

The victims of the Austin, Pa., tragedy are buried with eulogies and flowers, and the blame laid on God, and then the engineers will go on building a lot of dams just like that or worse.

The Wall street newspaper organs think the government is going to destroy business. They seem to believe the theory that the way to succeed in journalism is to have an intelligent anticipation of things that never happen.

Melrose wants an "L" extension so badly that a petition six feet long has been sent to the city authorities with the expectation that it will be sent to higher official. Quincy needs the "L" also or some service that will give quicker and more frequent connections with Boston.

The decision of the alert trustees of the Brookline Public Library to keep their splendid new building open an hour later at night for two or three months, as a sort of experiment to determine whether there is any considerable demand to be met after 9 o'clock, is a step in the right direction for a library to be of benefit to a community must be run to accommodate its patrons. There is a question in the minds of many users of the Quincy Library as to whether the trustees are making the most of our splendidly equipped building. Eight o'colck closing seems early.

MAN WHO IGNORES ADVERTISING

William E. Gladstone once said that he first examined the advertising pages of American publications, because they told him of American progress, and kept him in touch with our manufacturers and improvements.

In its infancy, advertising was injured by a class of quacks and charlatans whose reckless promises were not met by the delivery of the goods. The common sense merchant of today has cut out all that. His first aim is not so much to argue and persuade, but to state facts, and let the reader draw his own conclusions.

The man or woman who ignores advertising was once compared by the magazine Good Housekeeping to Robinson Crusoe on a desert island, surrounded by many useful and life giving foods, but compelled to determine the value of each by laborious experiment.

There is little misinformation in the modern advertisement. The merchant has learned the peril of it. He cannot always educate all his clerks to give absolutely accurate information, and where lapses from fact are made in that way, the offence, while damaging, is at least not conspicuous.

But a false statement of fact in cold type returns to plague the merchant for many long days. It is the text for disquisitions by his rivals on his unreliability. Consequently what the clerks may say colloquially over the counter, and what the advertisement says in the white light of the newspaper, are apt to be as different as what you say in an off hand moment, and what you write when you draw up a legal document.

The merchant who avoids the lime light of newspaper publicity and tries to make his way amid the obstacles of obscurity, must lack faith in his product. If he confidently felt its superiority, he would be apt to proclaim it from the house-tops.

CITIZENS OF WOLLASTON ENTER PROTESTS

the opposite side of the street, there have approached me about seven or eight who have asked me to place them in positions of various kinds, provided the license is granted for the establishment. It has come to my attention that many who are here tonight opposed to the granting of this license by the Board of Health, have come here in the interests of the Quincy Coal Dealers, in order that no new concern may enter into competition with them. What truth there is in this information I know not, yet I have been informed to that effect." Here the speaker was put through a volley of questions. Mr. Duggan asked him if he would be willing to abide by the obligations demanded by the Board and the requirements that the Board would lay down. He answered in the affirmative.

Mr. Duggan: "You say that you would abolish the use of horses in the near future, provided this license were granted." "Yes, sir, and I think that such action would be taken in less than six months."

Mr. Blackmur: "Do you not realize that when once you were granted this license, you could maintain it for an indefinite period." Answer, "I have not made application for it with that intention." Other questions were put to him by the counsel and when asked how many houses were within a radius of 300 yards from the desired site of a stable, Mr. Winslow answered that he thought there were about 25. He was asked a few questions relative to the condition of the land, and claimed that in the erection of a stable, piles would have to be driven in certain sections. Here Mr. West arose and stated that he had written to Mr. Patch a local coal dealer to come and register his protest against the erection of such an establishment but the latter responded that it would be poor policy for one coal dealer to appear in opposition to another. This, said the speaker, was what Mr. Winslow was referring to in his remarks.

Henry M. Faxon entered a protest as an owner of four houses in the neighborhood. Herbert A. Smith claimed that he had lived there for four or five years and added that the erection of a stable would be a great detriment to the advance that had already been made.

Clarence F. Burgin, treasurer of the Quincy Savings Bank, stated that there were over 1,300 depositors in the bank who resided in that vicinity. He added that over $200,000 had been loaned out by the bank to residents of the immediate section. and claimed that any objectionable feature that would spring up in that part of Wollaton would be a serious detriment. He said that the erection of a stable there would mean that the loans would either have to be called or else the mortagages would have to be foreclosed, if not paid. He also claimed that the erection of a stable for horses would depreciate the value of property.

It was also claimed by some of the speakers, that the character of the men who frequent stables is not always the sort desired. It was also said that considerable taxes were netted by the City of Quincy from that vicinity. A remonstrance was offered from Alice M. Carr, an owner of 18 houses in the vicinity.

Others who were recorded in opposition were: Charles C. Maxwell, Frank L. Merrill, George Weston, G A. Rust, James H. Broughton, John E. Poland, F. P. Larkin, Charles F. Tusker, Charles G. Swenning, Abbie M. West, G. A. Gordon, C. J. Endicott O. N. Estes, R. P. Walker, Mrs. Appleton West, H. S. Bean, H. L. Beale, George A. Stevenson, Thomas Fenno, Charles F. Tupper.

A vote was taken on the matter and about 75 stood up in opposition. The matter was taken under the advisement of the Board of Health.

Here's Something New

No more ashes to lug. No clumsy pan to spill dust and dirt on the kitchen floor.

The Glenwood Ash Chute

solves the problem. It is located just beneath the grate and connected by a sheet iron pipe straight down through the kitchen floor to ash barrel in cellar. No part is in sight. Not a particle of dust can escape. Just slide the damper once each day and drop the ashes directly into the ash barrel.

The Dust Tight Cover

to barrel is another entirely new Glenwood Idea and is very ingenious. The Ash Chute is sold complete with barrel and all connections, as illustrated, at a moderate price to fit any cabinet style Glenwood. This is only one of the splendid improvements of the Plain Cabinet Glenwood the Range without ornamentation or fancy nickel, "The Mission Style" Glenwood. Every essential refined and improved upon.

Up-To-Date Gas Attachments

This Range can be had with the latest and most improved Elevated or End Gas Range attachments. It has a powerful hot water front or for country use a Large Copper Reservoir on the end opposite fire box. It can be furnished with fire box at either right or left of oven as ordered. ROAD TO HEALTH.

It was something like three years ago that an ambitious bookkeeper complained to the writer of his inability to keep his eyes open the moment he applied them to books of an evening after work. Since boyhood he had contributed to the support of a family of seven, and now at the age of twenty-four he desired to take up shorthand and to carry a correspondence course or two. If by hook or by crook he did manage to work until eleven or twelve o'clock his mind would be dull and heavy next day. At one time he was so ill advised as to try drinking strong tea for supper. Tea kept his eyes open all right, but head aches began to manifest themselves, and sleeplessness and other symptoms of nervousness put in appearance. The young man dropped the tea, and the headaches and nervousness disappeared almost immediately, but evening work was still impossible. The writer suggested to him that he discontinue his suppers, eating at most an apple or other fresh fruit, or perhaps a small bowl of cereal flakes with the juice of a stewed fruit. He adopted the suggestion, adding to it one of his own devising—that he be careful at all meals to choose only the digestible foods—and before a year had elapsed his knowledge of shorthand had gained him a private secretaryship to the president of his concern, and he is now a small stockholder. He had capitalized his time.

An eminent political economist recently ventured the assertion that not more than one person in ten is healthy—meaning by "healthy" not "just so so," but positively, vitally, actively, radiantly so. The other nine sort of worry along, some in positive ill health, the others neither sick nor well, both classes a burden to themselves, and to those who are obliged to live and work with them. And inasmuch as these persons are so preponderatingly in the majority it is pertinent to ask, "Can health come back?"

The answer is most emphatically, i can if you are willing to deny yourself accustomed luxuries. Self-denial —that is the price of getting well. I sounds a good deal easier than parting with good gold, but most people prefer contributing to the support of a physician to giving up one of their three or four daily meals, or a cup of tea. A drug trade journal recently descanted upon what it was pleased to call "the ivory-headed public." The burden of the editor's satire was this: "In their ability to resist the letting in of information concerning matters of health, the heads of a remarkably large portion of the general public seem to be made of solid ivory, bone or wood. . . . Patronize the restaurants and hotel dining rooms and note how many stuff their stomachs full of unmasticated food, making it go down with ice-water, coffee, beer, or wine, instead of the natural digestive fluids of the mouth." If these strictures seem severe try a little experiment. Select a dozen persons who for financial reasons are in particular need of the mental efficiency that comes of vigorous health, and persuade them to adopt the suggestions contained in the following pages, and then observe how few of them persevere. When a week of proper eating fails to correct the results of a lifetime of indulgence they give up in despair and go back to the fleshpots of the Nile with a suspicion that you are a crank.—Technical World.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

NOT TO LOSE.—"What do you do when you answer a call and find that the patient isn't injured enough to take to the hospital?"

"In a case of that kind," replied the ambulance surgeon nonchalantly, "on the way back we generally pick up one of the pedestrians we ran over."—Life.

TOO ARDENT.—"Why did you dismiss the duke?"

"Well, I knew he wanted to marry me for my money. That was all right. But he was so ardent in his wooing that I feared he would sandbag me before the wedding could take place."—Washington Herald.

ON THE FACE.—"Who is the leather-lunged speaker?"

"Some soap-box orator."

"Judging from the appearance of his countenance, he needs a better acquaintance with his platform."—Judge.

PREFERENCE. — "Marriage is a lottery," said the ready-made philosopher.

"No, it isn't," replied Mr. Growcher. "In a lottery you can lose once and forget about it, instead of having to put up alimony."—Washington Star.

ROACHES Citiman—"Yes; I'm looking for a house. The roaches in the house where we are now scare my wife almost to death."

Subbubs—"That so? Nothing scares my wife but mice."

Citiman—"That's just it: these roaches are as big as mice."—Catholic Standard and Times.

NO OLD DISHES.—Mrs. Newly Rich—"Did you fall heir to any of your mother's first china dishes?"

Mrs. Blue Blood—"No, indeed, my mother always kept help."—Judge.

USUAL.—"I shall never ask him for his advice again."

"What's the matter?"

"He never thinks what I have made up my mind to do is right."—Detroit Free Press.

SUBURBS—Church—"Some of your neighbors have got a phonograph, I hear."

Flatbush (listening intently) "Gee! that's no phonograph! That's those pesky bees swarming again!"—Yonkers Statesman.

LONGER—"He's the man of the hour."

"Isn't there ever a woman of the hour?"

'Yes; but it takes her an hour and a half."—Chicago News.

VALUE—"The vermiform appendix is of no real value to a human being, is it?"

"Well," replied the physician, "it's a good deal of a financial help to the doctor who takes it out."—Washington Star.

"My garden didn't turn out very well this year. I think I'll have the soil of my back yard analyzed.

"I can give you an offhand analysis right now. That soil contains too much tin, glass, putty and builder's lime."—Washington Herald.

—A Boston woman had her husband brought into court recently for refusing to work and support their two children. She declared that for herself she could get along without her husband, but she felt that he ought to be compelled to assist at least in the support of their offspring. The man was sent to the house of correction for a year, and the woman is doubtless wondering how such a disposition of the case helps her or the children, unless perchance it removes one from her list of dependents. It is altogether probable that the man deserved the punishment given him, but the sentence fails utterly to accomplish the purpose for which the complaint was made. Instead of adding another to the non-productive class, to be supported at the public expense, some means should be available to compel the negligent father of a family to work and provide for those who otherwise must be dependent to a greater or less extent on public or private charity.—Milford Gazette.

AMUSEMENTS

DOINGS ON THE STAGE OF

LOCAL AND BOSTON THEATRES

MAJESTIC THEATRE.

Charles Klein's latest play, "The Gamblers," which remained in New York for over 200 consecutive performances and was conceded the finest play among the dramatic offerings last season, has fairly electrified Boston audiences at the Majestic, where it opens its second week, Monday. In this play the defaulter's act is not condoned, in spite of the fact that he is made lovable. The methods of bank looters are bared and the folly of crime in business is forcibly shown in the personal abasement that comes to each participant. The climax of sentimental interest is the coming together of the defaulter and the wife of the attorney for the prosecution who formerly had been lovers, and had been torn apart through circumstances. Thus it is not primarily a drama of moral purposes although that lesson is not absent, but one of sentiment. In other words, the sentimental situation is not unfamiliar, but the circumstances and the treatment are. The incidents and detail are so cumulative that the action is instinct with life and character, emotion and comedy as well. "The Gamblers" had the benefit of the author's personal stage direction and promises to be one of the successful dramatic offerings of the present season. There will be an extra matinee on Columbus day, October 12.

SHUBERT THEATRE.

Quite the sensation of many seasons is The Original Winter Garden Company, which is now appearing at the Shubert Theatre, Boston, presenting "The Musical Revue of 1911." This entertainment is a colossal combination of circus, spectacle, musical comedy, ballet, extravaganza, pageantry, burlesque, variety, fun and beauty. It is undoubtedly the biggest amusement combination that has ever come into Boston, and next to the New York Hippodrome is the mightest aggregation of players appearing on the stage today.

"The Musical Revue of 1911" is now already in its second week at the Shubert, and the indications are that it will break all records for attendance at this theatre. The press and public have united in declaring that it is the most brilliant and the most lavishly costumed and most splendidly equipped production that has ever been seen here. It has been called "A show containing something for everyone," and rightly it does so.

As the engagement is only for a limited period, it behooves those who wish to see this marvelous entertainment, to secure their reservations early. The usual Wednesday and Saturday matinees will be played during this engagement. There will be a holiday matinee on Thursday, Oct. 12.

NATIONAL THEATRE.

Another big all-star-bill will be seen at the new National Theatre next week. It will surpass any previous bill at Boston's new playhouse. The big attraction will be the first American appearence of Frigoli, the sensational Italian character actor, who is conceded to be the world's best impersonator. Frigoli has just completed a wonderful record in the music halls of Europe, and his American debut will be made at the new National Theatre. When playing in Italy, King Victor Emmanuel occupied the royal box. Frigoli impersonated the King and occupied the opposite box. It was impossible for the spectators to tell who was who. Frigoli's impersonations are marvelous. He was the great novelty act in Europe. He is but one of the many big features. The Clayton-Drew players will present an interesting and amusing act, while Cook and Steven's "The Chinee and the Coon" are screams. The Mozarts, in their spectacular transformation act, introducing the big vaudeville feature of dancing on snow shoes, are sure to be a sensation. There will be numerous other big features that will make a strong all-star bill.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE.

A genuine novelty is promised for next week at Keith's Theatre in Charles Kellog, "the man who sings like a bird." Mr. Kellog unquestionably knows more about wild animal life than any other living person. He is considered by many to be even greater than John Burroughs in his own particular field and is the only human being in the world who can sing like a bird. He is also the inventor of "The Dancing Flame," a tiny blade of light that responds to a tuning fork or bird notes given by the inventor in any part of the auditorium, but is indifferent to the ordinary singing or speaking voice. Kellog will also show how the American Indians of primitive times lighted fires by means of friction between two sticks of wood. Gus Edwards' big Song Revue, which has proved one of the most popular attractions ever presented at B. F. Keith's, will be held over for a second and positively last week, and all those who have not heard "My Italian Romeo," with the big Italian village scene; "Look Out For Jimmy Valentine," with the unique burglar dance; and the great finale, "I want to spoon to the tune of the silvery moon," will not want to miss these splendid features. The surrounding bill is exceptionally strong.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.

It is something out of the ordinary for the scene of a thrilling melodrama to be laid in rural New England, and it is still more remarkable that such a play should also reflect the purely rustic atmosphere of the small country village, but this is the combination that has made such a gigantic success of "Another Man's Wife," which will be next week's attraction at the Boston Grand Opera House, with matinees on Tuesday, Thursday (Columbus Day), and Saturday. The plot deals with a wealthy young scrapegrace who has inveigled the daughter of a well-to-do country grocer into what he believes to be a mock marriage, aided by his ally, a half-witted boy but it turns out that the boy engaged a real minister after all, and there are many startling denouements and thrilling dramatic climaxes. The devotion of the half-wit to the country girl after he comes to know her leads to a tragic conclusion. There is a strong element of rustic humor pervading the piece, and a secondary love story that is particularly appealing. Several of the principals have splendid singing voices that divert attention at times from the pathos and thrills with their catchy songs and beautiful melodies, while the specialties introduced by the versatile company are unusually attractive and pleasing.

CORONATION PICTURES.

The Coronation pictures seem destined to go on forever at Tremont Temple. Their tenth week begins next Monday, and the management naturally takes great pride in the emphatic praise heard on all sides, and especially in the number of letters received thanking them for the wonderful treat of bringing the great events of the Coronation ceremonies three thousand miles across the ocean. Such an entertainment has never before been given in Boston, combining as it does all the pleasures of sight seeing at home with one of the most marvellous exhibitions of the wonders of modern color photography. The entertainment lasts for two hours, and is given twice daily, at 2.30 in the afternoon and at 8.15 in the evening.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

Another week of "Forty-five Minutes from Broadway," at the Castle Square Theatre beginning Monday, means its immediate and unqualified popularity. In its blending of melodrama and music it brings before the audience much clever humor, possessing all the interest and entertaining qualities of both. Mr. Craig made no mistake in putting on this play of George Cohan's and the appreciation of the public is his reward. With Mary Young in the part of Mary Jane Jenkins, originally created by Fay Templeton, a rollicking performance is assured. Miss Young scored her first emphatic musical comedy as Lucile in "The Circus Girl," and she is repeating that success in "Forty Five Minutes from Broadway." Morgan Wallace as Kid Burns is proving himself a clever comedian, and George Hassell, Walter Walker, Mabel Colcord, Al Roberts and all the others in the cast add to the all around completeness of the performance. In addition there is an attractive chorus which sings and looks well, and the orchestra is under the able direction of Joseph Marr.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE.

Acclaimed by both the press and public as the most wonderful organization that Boston has ever witnessed, the Irish players, from the Irish National Theatre, Dublin, now playing at the Plymouth Theatre, will begin on Monday the third week of their engagement at this new and beautiful playhouse. Because of the pre-arranged dates of their limited tour of America, the management of the Plymouth Theatre has been unsuccessful in prolonging their stay, consequently but two more weeks remain, therefore if you have not witnessed the remarkable ingenuity of this clever and extraordinary company, you should not miss, what may prove the last opportunity offered. The simplicity, life-like and unconventionality of their plays is the treat presented every audience that has taxed the capacity of this perfect theatre since the beginning of their engagement. The astonishing ease with which the members assume portrayal of the various roles in deep tragedy and comedy has never before been demonstrated in Boston. It is simply an obvious illustration of their wonderful versatility. To quote the Boston Traveler: "here is no acting but life itself." The bill the coming week will be the most interesting of the entire repertoire. Presenting eight different plays, a record unparallelled in the history of the American stage.

TODAY'S COURT.

Earl Davidson and Lawrence Barrows were fined $5 each for taking a tree from the Metropolitan Park reservation.

William E. Coombs was fined $10 for exceeding the automobile speed limit on the Metropolitan reservation.

John Cullen was fined $3 on account of costs for drunkenness at Quincy.

Heine and Hugo.

Heine had a preconceived idea that Victor Hugo, called by him "the French poet in whom all is false," had a hump on his back. He was delighted when he was told that one of Hugo's hips protruded owing to malformation.

ENTERS SUIT AGAINST DRUGGIST

Suit has been entered at Dedham against Paul J. Brown, the Norfolk Downs druggist, by Charles T. Kelley, as administrator, to recover the sum of $10,000 for the death of his daughter Ruth Kelley an infant of between two and three months who died in 1910. It is claimed by the plaintiff that on May 15 that year, the defendant when asked for sugar of milk, a medicinal food, gave something else, which he claims was so injurious to the health of the child that the infant died.

At the time of the death of the child criminal action was begun against Brown and he was held for the grand jury and is now under indictment by the September grand jury in the superior court for manslaughter.

BRIEFS

Souvenir postals have been received from Mayor Shea dated Old Point Comfort. Va.

An ideal day for the Brockton fair and many Quincy people will be numbered among the thousands in attendance today.

The executive committee of the Democratic city committee held a meeting Thursday evening and planned for a vigorous campaign.

There was a very large attendance of members and many visitors at the regular communication of Rural Masonic lodge Thursday evening.

Thursday was a big day at the Brockton Fair, an attendance of over 75,000 being recorded. Today will be another record breaker.

The Ledger is informed that the charter of the Quincy lodge of Moose has not been closed, but has just been reopened for a period of ninety days.

A largely attended meeting of Quincy council Knights of Columbus was held Thursday evening, at which plans were made for the parade on Columbus day. Quincy Council will turn out nearly 200 men.

D. D. G. P. Mrs. Rose A. Reed of South Quincy accompanied by Mrs. Anna J. Gould of Adams street paid a visit to Jewel Lodge, K. & L. of H. of Roxbury, of which Mrs. Reed is deputy, Wednesday evening and report a very enjoyable time.

Col. H. L. Kincaide is to address members of the Rand class of the Wollaston Baptist church, on Tuesday evening. His subject will be, "Incidents and impressions of his recent trip to Europe, with the Boston Chamber of Commerce party."

Mrs. Margaret Walsh and family who have been summering at Houghs Neck, returned Tuesday to their home on Quincy avenue. Miss Kittie Walsh who met with an accident some four weeks ago while at the beach is still confined to her home and obliged to use crutches. Her friends hope she will soon be able to attend to her duties for her pleasant voice is missed by telephone subscribers.

AIMS AT A MINISTER

Would-Be Assassin In Reichsrath Proves a Poor Shot

Vienna, Oct. 6.—Four shots were fired from the gallery in the lower house of the reichsrath in the direction of the ministerial benches, where the ministers of justice and education were seated. No one was injured. The man who fired the shots, who proved to be a Dalmatian workman and who admitted that he fired at the minister of justice, was arrested.

There was much excitement for a time and the session was abruptly adjourned. It is supposed that the attack was the result of the bitterness engendered against the government during the campaign against the increased cost of living.

POLITICAL GHOST DANCING

Only Thing That Is Troubling the Country, According to Hill

Tacoma, Wash., Oct. 6.—Chairman Hill of the Great Northern railroad board, who several months ago predicted hard times, has become an apostle of prosperity. While here he said:

"Nothing is the matter with the country, save political ghost dancing. There is plenty of money in banks and it only awaits complete resumption of confidence before we shall have a period of prosperity never before excelled."

Gunbusta—"A bursting hose recently caused Mrs. DeStyle a loss of three thousand dollars."

Mrs. Gunbusta—"Serves her right; that's an awful lot of money to keep in one's stocking."—Lippincott's Magazine.

—POLITICAL— NOTES, NEWS AND NOVELTIES

By N. N.

It was understood that a committee of Democrats invaded City Hall last evening with a view to soliciting the candidacy of Treasurer Curtis on the Democratic ticket. Mr. Curtis did not happen to be about and as a consequence nothing definite was accomplished.

Dr. F. Raymond Burke is the latest name suggested by a number as a possible candidate for Mayor.

Messrs. Sullivan and Piper seem to be conducting a rather quiet campaign, or is it that all the excitement seems to be centered on the Leslie—McDevitt contest?

It is expected that a meeting of the Republican City Committee will be called for next week, and then we may expect to see "something doing."

"A full slate for all municipal offices," is the slogan of the Democrats this year.

The "dark horse" may yet play a prominent part in the coming elections.

Councilman Charles A. Ericson says that he intends to become a candidate for the reelection at the coming municipal caucuses.

WILL GIVE DRAMA IN AID OF CHURCH

The old St. John's Dramatic club is in active rehearsal for the presentation of the stirring drama entitled "Past Redemption" which will be presented next Wednesday evening at Music hall for the benefit of St. John's church. In the cast of characters are John Bradley, John Phelan, Michael T. Walsh, Edward McGinty, Matthew Fay, Richard Gray, Thomas Shea, David Warner, David Curtin, Jane Griffin. Julia Duffy, Mildred Phelan and Annie Connors, the huskers and the Quincy Point quartette.

MONEY HIDDEN IN NOOKS AND CORNERS

"Poor" Woman Found to Have Owned About $12,000

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 6.—Nearly $4000 in gold and paper currency and three bank books, each showing deposits amounting to $1600, were found by A. J. Wellington and a squad of policemen who searched the late residence of Miss Catherine B. Park, who died on Sept. 4 in the Cambridge city home.

Shortly after her death two bank books, showing balances similar to those just found, were found in the house. Until the bank books were disclosed it was supposed that the woman was dependent upon charity. Wellington was appointed special administrator.

The search yesterday afternoon was very thorough and the money was found in various places—mattresses, books, vases and clocks.

When stock was taken the total amounted to $3730 in money and the three bank books, showing total deposits of $4800. Thus the woman who was cared for at the expense of the city was worth something like $12,000.

—We are believers in the coming of a world-wide peace, though we are not able to forget that we have lived all our life long under the shadow of threatened war. There may be conflicts yet; but these treaties if concluded, with the six nations named will, so far as we in the United States are concerned, make war so difficult and in the view of that world's opinion on which more and more depends make aggressive war so hateful and impossible that the whole color of the situation will be changed. Those who want war are few. They are growing fewer. Most of us trained warriors or followers of peaceful pursuits, will respond with sympathy to the words that Admiral Togo spoke of these treaties: "The treaty is a mighty good thing for the powers of the world. I have the reputation of being a fighting man, but I love peace among nations more than anything in the world."—The Congregationalist.

Q.—"In that day shall there be an altar to the Lord in the midst of the land of Egypt, and a pillar at the border thereof to the Lord. And it shall be a sign and for a witness unto the Lord of hosts in the land of Egypt." (Isaiah xix, 19, 20.) What may we understand by this Scripture?

Answer—There is but one structure in all the earth that could by any possibility fulfil the requirements of the text, and that is the Great Pyramid in Egypt. The whole of northern Egypt forms a sector shaped country the center of which is marked by the Pyramid. To mathematicians and scientists the center of a sector is also at the border thereof, and thus, as to location, the Pyramid is clearly indicated. It has always stood as the greatest wonder in the world because of its enormous dimensions, great antiquity and marvelous exhibition of engineering skill. With its original casing-stones in position, all highly polished like white marble, and so accurately joined together that it was almost impossible to distinguish the joints, this immense structure of solid masonry, covering over thirteen acres of ground and nearly five hundred feet in height, was truly a magnificent spectacle as it glittered in the rays of the dazzling Egyptian sunlight. To the ancients it was known as "The Terrible Crystal." Recent investigation of the interior passage ways and chambers has revealed the fact that these form a wonderful system of symbols in which the entire plan of salvation as presented in the Scriptures is outlined. Because it is such a great "witness," in that it so clearly corroborates the teachings of the Lord's Word, it is now becoming generally known as "The Stone Bible." Melchisedec, "a Priest of the Most High God," is reputed to have been the builder, and the date of its construction has been well established as being the year 2170 B. C. It is, therefore, the oldest building on earth.

Q.—The Lord Jesus taught the Christians to pray, "Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth." Does that mean that all Christian people should join together and vote for the election of only Christian men to office in order that God's will might be done on the earth?

Answer.—The true footstep followers of the Lord Jesus are called to a "heavenly calling" (Hebrews iii, 1) to the "high calling of God" (Philippians iii, 13.) They are running for the office of joint heirship with Christ Jesus in his Kingdom. The Apostle Paul was one of these runners. He realized that a man cannot well run for two offices at the same time. He said, "Do not be conformed to this world." (Romans xii, 2.) That is to say, do not become entangled with the things of this world. Again he said, "This one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus" (Philippians iii, 13, 14); and in harmony with this Jesus said, "Ye are not of this world;" and again, "My kingdom is not of this world," meaning this present evil order of things; therefore we come to the conclusion that the chief duty of the Christian is to avoid entangling alliance with worldly systems, and to devote himself to preparing for the kingdom of our Lord when he comes. All good citizens should desire righteous men in office, but a righteous government cannot be established by imperfect men, hence the hope of the Christian is in the Bible teaching that Christ Jesus, the great Messiah, will, in God's due time, set up His kingdom, and establish righteousness in the earth.

DAMNING EVIDENCE.

"Madame," said the agent of the Black hand, "we have a photograph of you and Count de Gayleigh riding in an automobile. Send $10,000 to us or we will publish the picture."

"What care I?" haughtily says the lady. "The count is a gentleman in every way, and, besides, he is going to marry my daughter. There can be no scandal connected with my riding with him.

"That's not the point. It was a 1908-model car?"

With a low moan the unfortunate woman sank to the floor, after giving a feeble indication that on reviving from her faint she would write a check for the hush money.—Life.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

LONG A FIGURE IN PUBLIC LIFE

Canadian Commissioner Strathcona to Quit Office

HAZEN NAMED AS SUCCESSOR

New Brunswick's Premier Offered Post of Adviser In Great Britain—Retiring Official Most Striking Figure of Dominion—Active and Vigorous as of Old, Although Past Four Score and Ten

St. John, Oct. 6.—J. D. Hazen, premier of New Brunswick, has been tendered the office of Canadian high commissioner at London with a salary of $25,000 annually. The position has been held for many years by Lord Strathcona, now over 90 years of age.

It s stated that Hazen has the alternative of accepting a place in the federal cabinet as minister of railways and canals.

Should the premier resign, it is though his successor as leader of the New Brunswick government will be J. K. Fleming of Woodstock, head of the financial department of the provisional government.

With the resignation of Donald A. Smith, Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal, there passes from the public life of the Dominion, if not from that of the British empire, its most striking and notable figure. Appointed at the age of 76 years to the lord high commissionership of Canada at London, Strathcona has for the past fifteen years put in an untiring industry that would be hard to equal for a man of half his years.

Even now at the age of 91 he is still as active and as vigorous as of old. Only last week, following the news of the Canadian elections, he returned from London in order to tender his resignation to the coming premier of the Dominion.

There have been few careers more romantic than that of Strathcona. In fact, were it found in fiction, it might be open to criticism as being overdrawn. In 1838, when Van Buren was President of the United States, when Victoria of England had held the throne but a year, he came into the life of Canada. At that time he was 18 years of age.

He was born in Scotland, of Highland parents, and he came to the new country to seek the fortune his own land had denied him. For nearly thirty years he labored in the hardest service of the continent, the service of the Hudson Bay company.

In the early days, as a trader, he tramped the mighty north from end to end, barraining, planning, bartering. For month on month he traveled the dreadful wastes where the great Mackenzie river tumbles across the Arctic Circle.

The last resident governor of the Hudson Bay company, he was appointed in 1870 a member of the first executive committee of Northwest Territory, and subsequently became a Canadian legislator.

He is a director general in several railway companies, is president of the Bank of Montreal, and holds several degrees honorary from universities. In 1897 he was given the rank of baron.

CLEARING AWAY WRECKAGE

No More Bodies Are Found In the Debris at Austin

Austin, Pa., Oct. 6.—The crash of falling buildings resounds over the debris strewn plain where Austin stood before it was swept by Saturday's disastrous flood.

As fast as the wreckage is torn apart, sledges or drays are piled to their capacity and the debris is drawn away. No additional bodies of victims were recovered as a result of yesterday's work.

While satisfactory progress is being made, the work of clearing up is necessarily slow. One of the worst obstacles is the thousands of cords of hemlock slabs, or pulp wood, which were swept down from the Bayless Pulp and Paper mill.

TAKES FIFTH HUSBAND

Woman of Twenty-Five Has Buried Three and Divorced One

Chicago, Oct. 6.—With a record of a wedding every two in eight years and another in the ninth, Mrs. Bonnie M. Clark of this city, known on the opera stage as Lillian Marr, celebrated her fifth marriage in Kenosha, becoming the bride of Joseph H. Engleman.

Mrs. Engleman has wept over the biers of three husbands and has stood in the divorce court with a fourth, and is not yet 26 years of age, yet she declared that her experiments in matrimony had in no manner discouraged her.

LOCKED IN AIR-TIGHT SAFE

Tramp Cat Utilizes $16,000 In Bank Notes For a Bed

New York, Oct. 6.—When Frank Allstrom, treasurer of the Waldorf-Astoria, opened the inner doors of the big safe in his private office he was greeted by a stray black cat which jumped from a vault containing $16,000 in fresh, crisp banknotes.

Allstrom could not explain how the tramp cat happened to be in the safe. Although the massive steel vault is air-tight and burglar-proof, the cat seemed none the worse for his sixteen hours of confinement.

"After unlocking the safe," Allstrom said, "I reached into where I had placed the banknotes. I was never more surprised in my life than when the big, black cat yawned and looked at me as though to ask, 'Is my breakfast ready?'"

Allstrom says no one has been able to ascertain how the cat gained access to the safe.

SAYS WAR MEANS COMING OF CHRIST

Seventh Day Adventist Gives Basis For His Belief

Washington, Oct. 6.—The second coming of Christ and the end of the world are presaged by the war in which Turkey and Italy are engaged. This is the view held by the Seventh Day Adventists, according to Rev. Kit C. Russell of Takoma Park, D. C.

"The Adventists have maintained for many years," said Russell, "that the refusal of the powers to help the Turk, his final expulsion from Europe and the scramble for his territory by the nations would be the signal for the second appearance of Christ. The basis for this belief is the prophecies in the Bible. In the book of Daniel is found:

"'And he shall plant the tabernacles of his palace between the sea and the glorious holy mountain; yet he shall come to his end, and none shall help him.'"

COINS HAD RIGHT RING

Brothers of Tender Age Said to Be Clever Counterfeiters

Washington, Oct. 6.—James Leonard, 11 years old, and his brother Henry, 14, were brought here last night from West Virginia to serve two years in the government reform school for making spurious coins. The boys, despite their tender age, are said to be clever counterfeiters.

The boys are alleged to have given their coins the ringing quality by using antiflixon, which they are said to have been the first to use for that purpose.

The brothers were captured in a raid by secret service men in the West Virginia mountains, together with "Jack" Wilson, an old offender, and the boys' parents, James and Emma Leonard. Wilson was sentenced to ten years and James Leonard to two years in the Leavenworth penitentiary.

THE VENTRELLI MURDER

Maine Jury Finds That Two Men Committed the Deed

Farmington, Me., Oct. 6.—A verdict that both men were guilty of murder was reported by a jury which heard the evidence against Giovanni Nota and Giuseppe Castiglio in the supreme court for the murder of Dominico Ventrelli at Chisholm on the night of May 6.

Sentences will be imposed later. The penalty provided for murder is life imprisonment at hard labor in the state prison.

FLAG OF ITALY IS FLOATING

Her Warships Lying Near Dismantled Fortifications

BUT FEW TURKS ARE KILLED

Landing Party Finds Tripoli Deserted by Inhabitants—Sensational Rumors Unconfirmed—How Germany and Great Britain View Peace Negotiations—Popular Enthusiasm as the Troops Embark In Italy

London, Oct. 6.—The Italian flag floats over Sultania fort at Tripoli, which is occupied by landing parties. Part of the fleet is anchored in the harbor, and the other warships lie a short distance from the dismantled fortifications. Few bodies of Turks have been found among the ruins of the forts, and apparently no great number of Turks were killed by the bombardment.

The cruiser Giuseppe Garibaldi entered the harbor and Italian officers visited the Hamidieh battery. They found that the Turks had removed the sights from the guns and evacuated.

It appears that even after the demolition of the forts the Turkish gunners continued to serve such guns as were available. It became necessary for the warships to train their guns upon the ruins. Several private houses were destroyed by fire, but none were struck by the shells. The town has been entirely deserted by the inhabitants.

The garrison is gradually retiring to the interior, occupying several places on the outskirts and evidently fortifying. The delay in the bombardment was not only due to the Italian desire to avoid bloodshed, but also to the fact that the harbor had been extensively mined.

According to a Constantinople report, not yet confirmed, thte Italian warships bombarded Benghazi and Derna yesterday. Various rumors concerning a naval engagement in Turkish waters, an attack against Mytilene and the blowing up of the Italian battleship Conte-di-Cayour at Tripoli have not been confirmed from any quarter.

An interesting report is current in Constantinople that, while Germany favors the adoption of the Italian ultimatum as the basis of peace negotiations, Great Britain proposes that Tripoli shall become a privileged tributary Turkish vilayet under joint Turko-Italian administration, and thus retain the suzerainty of the sultan.

Italians In Aegean Sea

London, Oct. 6.—The correspondent of The Evening News at Constantinople telegraphs that a division of the Italian fleet is cruising in the Aegean sea. The inhabitants of the Turkish islands are without protection and attacks on Mytilene island and Chios island are feared.

Enthusiasm In Italy

Rome, Oct. 6.—Troops are being embarked at Genoa, Leghorn, Ancona and Brindisi. These ports are the scenes of animation and great popular enthusiasm. The British, German and French and even the Austrian steamers in those harbors, join in the manifestations, saluting the Italian flag, while their bands play the Italian national anthem.

Italians Are Landing

Malta, Oct. 6.—Fugitives from Tripoli who arrived last night say that small parties of Italians are landing all along the coast from Tripoli to Benghazi. It is believed, however, that there will be no landing in force until the main expedition arrives.

RUNS INTO OPEN SWITCH

Passengers Shaken Up When Train Crashes Into Empty Coaches

Great Barrington, Mass., Oct. 6.—A southbound express train, carrying about 150 passengers, ran into an open switch here and crashed into four empty coaches that were on the siding.

Engineer Dougherty applied the brakes as soon as the train left the main track, but he was unable to slacken the speed of the heavy train. He clung to the reverse lever and escaped with little injury.

Two train hands were seriously bruised and the passengers on the train were hurled in all directions, several of them sustaining slight injuries.

New York, Oct. 6.—The draft of the American Tobacco company's plan of reorganization has been placed in the hands of the printer.

Soda crackers are extremely sensitive to moisture.

Before the advent of Uneeda Biscuit the only persons who ever tasted fresh, crisp soda crackers were the people in the bakeries.

Imagine their trip from bakery to your table; exposed to air and moisture—kept in grocers' boxes and finally in a paper bag on the shelf in your pantry. Could they be the same as they were the day they were baked?

Now that we have Uneeda Biscuit—we have perfectly baked soda crackers—perfectly kept.

No moisture can reach them—no contaminating influences can affect their flavor—their goodness is imprisoned only to be liberated by you for you when you open the package.

Always in the moisture proof package. Never sold in bulk. 5 cents a package.

ROOSTER COAL BRIQUETS

THE NEW ANTHRACITE COAL

ROOSTER BRIQUETS are made from the choicest small Scranton Anthracite coal mined in Pennsylvania, called TWENTIETH CENTURY CHESTNUT size

Just consider for a moment what we offer here in this 20th CENTURY CHESTNUT.

First, 2000 pounds of clean, pure, hard coal without a rock or a piece of slate.

Second, fuel that cannot form into a clinker, by any known method of firing, consequently the linings and grates last indefinitely.

Third, they are made in nut size, being equally convenient for furnace heaters, open grates, as well as stoves; therefore, only one storage bin is necessary.

Fourth, and very IMPORTANT, the quality of this fuel is the SAME EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR, not a good ton today, and nothing like it the next time, in other words, when you once learn how to regulate your drafts you have nothing more to learn about burning BRIQUETS.

Fifth, no more sifting ashes these Briquets burn out clean. They require less wood to kindle.

Be sure to ask for "ROOSTERS" and get the Briquet made from pure Scranton Coal, from the largest Briquet plant in the country. They are better than coal, will last as long and cost less.

DEMOCRATS HARMONIOUS

No Dissension In Their Convention at Boston

RECIPROCITY TO BE REVIVED

Foss Proclaims Views Which Carried Him to Victory Last Year—Platform Calls For Downward Revision of Tariff, Home Rule For Cities, and Has Plank For Working Women of the State

Boston, Oct. 6.—The Democracy of Massachusetts in state convention ratified the renomination of Governor Foss by voters of the party and set its approval upon the complete state ticket.

The ticket: Governor, Eugene N. Foss of Boston; lieutenant governor, David I. Walsh of Fitchburg; secretary of state, Frank J. Donahue of Boston; treasurer and receiver general, Augustus L. Thorndike of Brewster; attorney geneeral, George W. Anderson of Boston; auditor, Charles B. Strecker of Boston.

It was a great event for Foss. Everybody acted and spoke in concord, and expressed the belief that a Democratic victory would be recorded in November. It was as harmonious a convention as Democrats ever held in this state. Delegates expressed confidence that the landslide which elected Foss last year was still moving.

Governor Foss got a reception which developed the Foss smile to the fullest. He scored Republicans for violating downward revision promises and for plutocratic tendencies, and answered their contentions that his re-election will injure Massachusetts industries in a way that won cheers as a response.

He told of the advantages of reciprocity and said he is not convinced that Canada has definitely decided against it. He predicted an agreement with Canada on broader terms, but minus the annexation issue.

The first great demonstration was when Chairman Whipple read a tribute to the patriotic motives that prompted the governor in selecting eleven members of the judiciary, given to Whipple, in a private chat, by one of the most conspicuous jurists in the state.

The applause was deafening. The governor was called upon to stand up. The band played "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," and the delegates sang. Again and again the governor bowed.

There was nothing for the convention to do but to ratify the nominees of the people and adopt a platform. The platform, drafted by George F. Williams, calls for tariff reduction, an equal suffrage referendum, a state finance commission, abolition of party enrollment in primaries, the initiative and referendum, direct election of United States senators, reform in prison and other state institutions, development of seaport and inland waters, home rule for cities, a public utilities board, better transportation facilities, federal income tax, lower telephone rates, protest against lynchings, and covers many other subjects.

One of the planks was in behalf of the working women of this state. It referred to wage-slavery in foundries and reads:

"A committee is now making inquiry into minimum wages for women and minors. We request this commission to report fully upon the employment of women and children at heavy labor with recommendations of legislation for the care of any abuses."

LIQUOR UNDER WATER

Cargo Sunk Forty-Five Years Ago Now Valued at $45,000

Elk Point, S. D., Oct. 6.—A great deal of interest is being manifested in the recovery of the cargo of the old steamboat Leadora. In 1866 the Leadora caught fire and sank in the Missouri with a cargo of merchandise and whsky.

The boat is fifty rods north of the present course of the river and is four miles south of Elk Point.

There are supposed to be 100 barrels of old whisky in the hold of the boat, valued by the present owners at $45,000. Cole Brothers of Alcester and E. E. Winner of this city are trying to raise the cargo.

Draft of Home Rule Bill Drawn

Dublin, Oct. 6.—A rought draft of the home rule bill has been presented for submission to the cabinet. It provides for a grant of $50,000,000 to start the new parliament. The Nationalists asked for $75,000,000.

PRAISER REPROVED

Taft Says Introducer Is Better Republican Than Prophet

Salt Lake City, Oct. 6.—President Taft politely but firmly reproved President Bryce of the Young Men's Republican league of Utah, when the latter, in introducing him to a crowd at the state fair, made a bitter partisan speech.

It was as the prospective Republicandidate for the presidency in 1912 that Bryce presented Taft, and after predicting that he would be 'triumphantly elected" and that November next would find the "Democracy of Utah in its customary place, deep down in the 'slough of despond,'" he introduced the chief magistrate of the nation as "William Howard Taft of Ohio."

"I am here," said the president, emphasizing each word significantly, "as President of the United States." Mr. Taft humorously closed the incident by saying:

"My friend is probably a better Republican than he is a prophet." The president then entered into a discussion of his tariff vetoes, repeating the arguments and explanations he has made at other places during his trip.

HOTEL CLERK MISSING

Boston Merchants Have Checks Returned Marked "No Funds"

Boston, Oct. 6.—Bertram H. Gallegher, until recently room clerk at the Hotel Touraine, is now being sought by the Boston police, charged with uttering worthless checks by several Boston business firms.

While he was at the Touraine, Gallegher was well known about town. He is of fine appearance, and his position with so prominent a hotel, together with frequent hints he dropped concerning his expectations, established for him ample credit with some of the city's best known business houses.

The merchants were congratulating themselves that they had extended liberal credit to the likeable young clerk, until checks were returned to them marked "no funds." Immediately there started a cry for Gallegher. Warrants were sworn out against him, but so far they have been to no avail.

DENIES INVASION BY MONARCHISTS

Portuguese Government Says Tranquility Prevails

Lisbon, Oct. 6.—Complete tranquility prevailed at the capital on the first anniversary of the revolution that overthrew King Manuel and the day which, according to recent reports, had been set for a monarchial uprising in the north.

The declarations from English sources that the monarchists occupy northern Portugal are without the least foundation in fact, according to the government.

London, Oct. 6.—Private advices received here from Badajos, on the Portuguese-Spanish frontier, state that monarchists in northern Portugal have proclaimed a monarchy, with the capital at Oporto.

Captain Couceiro, the commander-in-chief of the royalist troops in northern Portugal, is reported to have been proclaimed military governor of Oporto.

JAPS HAVE DISAPPEARED

Many Were Employed as Servants at Newport a Year Ago

Newport, R. I., Oct. 6.—Unusual significance is being given to the fact that during the past few months the Japanese servants of navy officers stationed here have disappeared one by one until now there is not a single servant of the nationality employed here.

A year ago the Japanese were very numerous and were often seen in Newport marketing and about the fortifications. It is known that one servant was detected by a navy officer who employed him in sending reports of affairs at the Newport station home to Japan, and he was summarily dismissed, and it is generally believed that all the Japanese were given their notices to leave.

TRAILED 3000 MILES

Couple Arrested on Charge of Passing Worthless Checks

Bridgeport, Conn., Oct. 6.—Frank Mohler and Alice Black were arrested here at the request of detectives of a private agency on the charge of passing worthless checks, involving $1750, in New Orleans.

The couple did not resist and were taken by private detectives for their return to the southern city. According to the latter there are charges of a similar nature pending in cities from San Francisco to the Atlantic coast.

The couple had been trailed 3000 miles since Sept. 18 and were about to leave here when apprehended.

PAPER BAG COOKERY.

Chance For Housewife to Throw Away Her Pots and Pans.

"Throw away your pots and pans, discard your broilers and roasting dishes and do your cooking in paper bags. Do not hesitate. Do not marvel. Do all of your cooking except maybe the brewing of your tea and the boiling of your soups in paper bags." So advises M. Soyer, chef of a smart London club and the inventor of paper bag cookery.

"Paper bag cooking for dwellers in flats and single rooms is the solution of many a difficulty. One of the chief drawbacks to flats has been the difficulty of avoiding the smell of cookery. With the paper bag there is no smell. In the small flat kitchen there is little space for pots and pans. None is needed for paper bag cookery."

The chef does not claim that the use of his paper bag alone guarantees perfection in the finished product. Good cooking requires time, skill and a proper attention to the mixing of the concomitants whether one cooks in a saucepan or a paper bag. The use of the bag does not abrogate any of the rules for perfect cooking; it only simplifies and perfects the methods. To use the bag grease slightly the inside of the bag except in case of vegetables or when water is added. For beginners it is advisable. Butter, lard or drippings may be used.

When the food has been prepared for the bag place the same on the table and lift the uppermost edge of the bag while you insert the contents.

Fold the mouth of the bag two or three times and fasten with a clip. It is desirable to fold the corners of the bag so as to secure as near as possible a hermetical closing.

Any oven will do for paper bag cooking, the discoverer asserts. There is little difference whether the oven be heated by coal, gas or electricity. To find out when the food in the bag is cooked all one has to do is to make a little hole in the paper and look in. In the case of many articles a slight touch on the bag will instruct the experienced cook as to the condition of the cooking food within.

CORD INSTEAD OF RIBBON.

It Is Just as Pretty For Lingerie and Will Stand Laundering.

So many advantages has the twisted cord of white mercerized embroidery cotton over any variety of narrow ribbon for running through the beading or worked eyelets of lingerie that no one who has tried it will willingly go back to her former servitude to ribbons that have to be run in after each laundering. The initial cost is about the same as that of a good quality of ribbon, but when the attractive appearance and wearing properties of the twisted cord are considered there is no comparison.

If a fairly heavy number of embroidery cotton is chosen four strands should be sufficient, but of a fine cotton eight strands will be needed. Measure loosely around the top of the corset cover or chemise, add twelve inches tying and "take up" in twisting. Forty-five to fifty inches is generally good measure for a corset cover. A nightgown may require more. Measure either four or eight times this amount. Double the thread, let somebody hold the end firmly or fasten it to something secure. Twist the other end until the strands are tightly wound around each other, then very carefully double the twisted cord and twist the other way. If eight strands be used repeat this process. A little practice makes the work easy. Run this cord through eyelets or beading, finish with a tassel of the mercerized cotton at each end, and the garment will have no more need of the tape needle. The cord will last as long as the garment, and the tassels prevent it slipping out in the washtub. It will tie in quite as attractive a bow as does narrow ribbon and is no more apt to knot. Pale pink or blue cotton can be used instead of white.

How to Remove Tar.

To remove tar from clothes rub butter or lard over the tar spots, then wash with soap and water. Apply oil of turpentine and let remain for one hour, then wash again and the tar will be removed. To remove tar from the hands rub with outside of fresh orange or lemon peel and wipe dry immediately.

How to Make a Cheap Bleach.

When boiling white clothes cut up a small lemon with rind in three or four slices and put into boiler. It will remove stains and make linens, handkerchiefs and frocks beautifully white.

BURIAL OF ADMIRAL SCHLEY

More Than Two Thousand Men Act as Funeral Escort

Washington, Oct. 6.—Rear Admiral Schley was laid to rest in Arlington national cemetery. Behind his flag-draped casket marched more than 2000 men, ranging from grizzled old comrades of the famous sea fighter to young middies from the naval cademy.

Details from the army, the navy, members of the Loyal Legion and the Spanish-American war veterans, hundreds of personal friends and Scottish Rite Masons followed the funeral cortege to the grave, where a seaman bugler blew the last "taps" and a farewell volley was fired over the remains. Masonic rites were carried out at the grave after the religious services at St. John's Episcopal church.

The casket, covered with the national colors, was borne on an artillery caisson. Six stalwart seamen were the active pallbearers.

Washington has never seeen a more impressive funeral. As it passed through the streets every head was bared, white all government flags flew at half mast.

POLICE RAID STREET CAR

When the car due from Brockton at 8:40 arrived at the junction of School and Franklin streets, Thursday night, it was met by Chief Burrell and a squad of blue coats, who made a raid on it and captured ten South Boston toughs whom they placed under arrest for creating a disturbance on a public conveyance. The gang boarded the car at Brockton and immediately attempted to run things to suit themselves. As the car passed through Holbrook word was telephoned to Quincy of what was "doing" and the police were informed and requested to meet it.

When it arrived at the junction of the two streets named, it came to a stop and while some of the blue cats entered by the front door, others entered by the rear. There was a great scrambble to get away but the police grabbed ten of the gang and locked them up. They gave their names as James Daily, John Foley, Fred Lynch, Thomas Sheehan, Frank Motoy, John Quilty, William Martin, Stephen Strauss, George Hogan and Henry Tippenhan. They were all arraigned in court this morning for creating a disturbance on a public conveyance.

OLD FOLKS HAPPY.

The annual reunion of the Old Folks Association of South Weymouth, Wednesday afternoon and evening, was attended by many people, whose ages ranged from 70 to 93, the oldest present being Cornelius Tirrell. In the afternoon there was a concert, consisting of organ selections by Dr. W. P. Pratt and vocal solos by Miss Annie Deane and the Puritan quartet. Addresses were made by the Rev. A. V. House and the Rev. Henry C. Alvord. The usual gift of peppermints was received from the Rev. Dr. D. W. Waldron of Boston.

The officers elected were: President H. Wilbur Dyer; vice-president, Howard H. Joy; secretary and treasurer Miss Florence Howes; executive Committee, A. B. Raymond, Mrs. J. F. Torrey, Frank Thomas, Mrs. Nathan Bates, H. S. Stowers and Frank E. Loud.

Sweaters and aviation caps are specialities at D. E. Wadsworth & Co. for Saturday.

ASSAULT CASE BEING TRIED TODAY

The cases of Domineco and Luigi Milinazzo who were charged with assault with intent to murder Fran Mariana at Quincy are being heard today before Judge Avery in the district court. A large number of witnesses are being examined for both sides and it will be late this afternoon before the case is finished.

This is the case where Mariana was shot at a house on Brackett street, Sept. 6. The parties were engaged in playing an Italian game, similar to croquet, when one of the balls accidently hit Domenico, who became angry, drew a revolver and shot Mariana. The wounded man was taken into the house, where it is alleged that Luigi attempted to complete the job started by his brother.

Domenico got away but was later captured in Boston. Luigi was arrested later the same evening on Adams street by Officer Avery.

NEW ENGLISH BATTLESHIP.

It had been hoped in England that the King would be able to perform the christening ceremony for the new superdreadnought King George V. which is to be launched early in October. His majesty, however, will be unable to attend and the launching and naming ceremony will be performed by Princess Christian of Schleswig-Holstein.

The new battleship is similar to the Orion, a detailed account of which appeared recently in these columns, but it is understood that the 13.5-inch guns forming her main armament will be somewhat more powerful than those of her sister ship.—Christian Science Monitor.

VALUABLE PAPERS.

Under the will of Mrs. Abigail L. Gregg, late of Braintree, which was filed for probate in the Norfolk probate court, a letter from Thomas Jefferson to Mr. Huntington, inviting him to dine with Lafayette at Monticello and an original copy of Washington's farewell address were bequeathed to her granddaughter, Mrs. Henry M Faxon of Quincy.

VOTING CONTEST.

Every Tuesday the Ledger publishes a list of the boys and girls who are hustling for the watches offered in the S. & H. Green Stamp contest. The contest will end in four weeks and each day adds vigor to the canvass for Ledger ballots and stamp books. WEDDED AT WOLLASTON

In the presence of only relatives and a few intimate friends Miss Clara Wentworth Lingley, daughter of Mr, and Mrs. Jhn William Lingley, formerly of Newton street, Wollaston, and Mr. George Leon Knox of Watertown were married Wednesday noon at the home ofthe bride's parents 96 Sanford street, East Orange, New Jersey, the Rev. Thomas Spencer of Ridgewood officiated. The bride looked charming in a gown of white silk over messaline, trimmed with point lace. Her tulle veil was fastened with a wreath of orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley, a pearl brooch a gift of the groom was her only ornament.

After a trip int heir automobile Mr. and Mrs. Knox will be at home to their friends at 208 Auburn street, Auburndale, Massachusetts, after January first.

WARSHIPS FOR SALE.

When the war between Italy and Turkey is over it is expected that the latter country will immediately cast about to secure a navy strong enough to enable her to make some use of her magnificent army, now practically impotent. The American navy department stands ready to furnish almost any such country with a ready-made navy of respectable strength, though not of the latest type, if Congress is willing to authorize the transaction.

The whole fleet of ironclads that distinguished itself in the Spanish-American war is now practically obsolete, according to high standards prevailing in the modern navy. Sampson's flagship, the New York (rechristened Saratoga,) Schley's flagship Brooklyn, even the battleships Oregon, Iowa, Indiana and the like, while all in excellent condition, are no longer regarded as fit for service in the first line of battle.

The older ships are too good to be broken up or dismantled, so they have been put in a secondary class. The navy department would gladly sell them to another nation and could get a good price for them. But the department is unwilling to do so unless Congress will authorize the money realized for their sale to be applied to the construction of new battleships.

—Turkey has only three modern battleships, and those are "bargains" it bought of Germany last year at a marked-down sale. On the other hand the Turkish navy does not suffer from a shortage of officers for it has six vice admirals, eleven rear admirals and 208 captains. The Turkish navy rather recalls the Kentucky militia of twenty years ago, which was rather shy of enlisted men but had eighty-two colonels.—Boston Transcript.

COMEBACKS TO BE QUITE NUMEROUS

Many Players Once In Fast Company Are to Return.

THEY WERE NOT QUITE RIPE.

Through Draft and Purchase Both Major Leagues Hope to Be Benefited Next Spring by the Additions—Some Veterans to Be Given Another Trial.

"Comebacks" will be numerous at the big league training camps next spring—not aged "comebacks" of the class of Tom Hughes and Jimmy Callahan, but youngsters and semi-vets who were up before and failed to make good because of inexperience or accidents. Their relegation to the minors did not mean that they did not have the stuff in them. On the other hand, it simply meant that they were not quite ripe for fast company.

Consequently he goes back to develop. Well, there were many such men pulled back by the draft or purchase during the last few weeks. Cleveland has seven of them, in fact. Catcher O'Neill of Worcester was an Athletic recruit, as were Pitcher Collamore of Scranton and Utility Player Hyde Barr of New Orleans. Third Baseman Manusch of New Orleans has been a member of the New York Giants as well as the Athletics. Outfielder Williams was with the Browns last spring, while Catcher Konnick of Dayton was given a trial by Cincinnati. Third Baseman Bunting of Worcester was taken south by Brooklyn last spring.

Detroit gets a "comeback" in Pitcher Dubuc of Montreal, who was with Cincinnati for a season. Chicago gets a pair in Pitcher Hovlik, formerly of Washington, and Third Baseman Rath, who was tried out by the Athletics and Naps. St. Louis will try out First Baseman Danzig of Sacramento, once with Boston, and Pitcher Brown of Akron, who was a Cincinnati recruit a year ago.

Washington gets First Baseman Flynn, late of Pittsburg; Shortstop Foster, formerly a Yankee, and Outfielder Moeller, once with the Pirates.

There are more "comeback" recruits in the National league, the list being headed by Otto Hess, bought by Boston. The Rustlers have also hooked First Basemen Houser of Indianapolis, who used to be with the Athletics.

Brooklyn has taken the most men. Ebbets' recruits are Paige, formerly of the Giants and Naps; Infielder Reilley, formerly of the Chicago White Sox; Outfielder Welchonce, a former Philadelphia National; Vedder Sittin, once a Nap; Pitcher Carmichael, tried by Cincinnati; Earl Yingling, another ex-Nap; Jerry Downs, with Detroit for several years; Catcher Bob Higgins, another former Nap, and Catcher Shaw, a veteran who played with at least four big league clubs before he landed with Toronto.

Other National league "comebacks" are Pitcher Maxwell of New York. Outfielder Hyatt of Pittsburg. Outfielder Cravath of Pittsburg. Infielder Kirke of Boston and Pitcher Compton of Cincinnati.

SPORTING "DOPE"

By B. A.

Don't Knock, Just Boost.—B. A.

Number 26 in the Brockton Marathon today is Frank Bruce of this city, who is representing the Italian America A. C.

No local boys are entered in the Armory A. A. amateur boxing contests. Evidently they are all waiting for the opening show of the Quincy A. A.. scheduled to take place in St. Mary's hall on the evening of October 16.

We hope the local High school eleven will have better luck this afternoon against Brighton High, although we realize that they are up against a tough proposition.

George Barry, "Joe" Desmond, and "Skiley" Kelley are the latest additions to the Nova Scotia regions for next season. All of the above well known local players have already been signed up and will report to their new field in the latter part of the spring together with the many other local ball tossers who have been cavorting in those sections this year.

Mrs. J. A. Philbrick, wearing the colors of the Montclair Golf Club, is to participate in the Women's National Golf championship games, to be held next week on the Baltusrol links in New York.

George A. Sullivan, a well known local sprinter, was a member of the B. A. A. relay team that defeated the Brookline gymnasium team in a one mile relay in the fast time of 3 minutes 38 4-5 seconds.

GRAND MEET GIVEN ON COLUMBUS DAY

The Old Colony Gentlemen's Driving club is arranging for a grand meet to be held at South Weymouth park, Columbus day Oct. 12. Efforts are being made to get some of the best drivers in the state to enter and as the events will be open to all whether members of the club or not, some good cards are looked for. The proceeds of the day will be given to the Weymouth Agricultural society.

FEELEY WINS BOGY PLAY.

E. J. Feeley of the Woodland G. C., with a handicap of 18, won the handicap vs. bogy competition in the second day's play at the Wollaston G.C., Montclair, Thursday, by 4 up. B. S. Evans of Brae-Burn had a medal score of 80, the lowest made by any of the 45 players who competed. F. Sargent of the Essex County club, with a handicap of 6, finished 3 up and turned in a score of 81 for his round, B. W. Estabrook of Brea-Burn also got an 81.

FORE RIVER EAGLES.

Fore River Eagles have on exhibition this week a capital poster calling attention to their game on Saturday with J and P. Coats of Pawtucket. The poster is done in pencil by S. G. Young of North Weymouth and represents three eagles soaring high up in the air with the American cup their destination. The Eagles of Fore River are giving a great exhibition of football just now and thoroughly deserve support of all true lovers of the game. The games of the last three weeks show far beyond doubt that Fore River can play the game as it should be played in all in cleanness and fairness. The game on Saturday is the last but one on the home ground in the New England League series and as they are at top just now and intend to remain so, will be represented by their strongest team. viz.: Goal, Sharples; backs, Hendry and Melville; half backs, Elliot, Campbell and Boyd; forwards, Moran, Rennie, McDonald, Harrison, Carruthers.

The game is sure to be fast and exciting and a record attendance is requested.

The McGregors play Brockton on Saturday at the Water street grounds. Game will be called at 3.30. The line-up of the home team is as follows:—Malcolm, Cummings, Wilson, Meldrum, Robertson. McDonald, Boyd, Carruthers, Ross, McDonald, Melrose.

The Sperm Whale's Oil Tank.

Professor R. C. Andrews believes that the oil tank in the head of the sperm whale is a provision of nature to save the monster from starvation when food is scarce. He says that his experiments show that the oil from the tank is absorbed by the whale's body at times when adequate food is unobtainable.—London Telegraph.

QUINCY HIGH WINS FROM BRIGHTON BOYS

Marked Improvement Shown in Good All Around Work of Local Players

Coach is Bringing Men Out in Fine Shape

Brighton High school has always been considered a dangerous opponent among the interscholastic teams, but the football aggregation that invaded Merrymount Park under that name yesterday afternoon placed no terror in the members of the local High school eleven, for when the contest was ended Quincy High was the victor by the overwhelming score of 26 to 0. The local boys played better than at any stage of the season and the many endeavors that were made the past week to put the team in proper shape, were productive of the desired results. New formations and new plays were tried to advantage and in nearly every department the local boys proved their superiority over their inexperienced Brighton opponents.

The Brighton boys were much lighter than the local eleven and were at a loss to tackle the Quincy backs, who repeatedly experienced little difficulty in netting gains of from ten to fifteen yards on every play. Brighton would have the ball in its territory, only to lose it on a misplay or a fumble. O'Neil was about the only player on the opposing eleven who seemed to show up to any advantage. It was the first game of the season for the visitors and their coach tried out every member of the squad in an effort to determine his best material.

All the players on the local eleven were in the game every moment and there was not a man on the team who did not play well. The weaknesses, noticeable in the past two games, were not in evidence yesterday. The backfield showed up strongly and each man was seen to get a much quicker start than he did in the two previous games. Finlay was not in the lineup, owing to injuries, but he could have done no better than Crane, who went through the opposing line for fine gains, every time he was given the ball. Holmes and Page displayed great form throughout, and Halvosa showed his ability during the short interval he was placed in the fullback position.

The tackling of Larkin was a noticeable feature of the game, while the work of the sensational order was contributed by Johnson, Holmes, Blackmur and Page. The plucky local quarterback gave a fine account of himself yesterday and the way he varied his plays, together with the cool, yet active manner in which they were delivered, showed that he has now attained that efficiency that was needed and should be a valuable asset to the local eleven in the future games. Holmes seemed to get away with the ball with great alacrity and the tackle plays that were executed were of the high class variety. The forward pass tried in the last quarter was about the best ever seen on the local grounds and netted the local boys forty yards and a touchdown.

Forty yard runs were contributed by Johnson and Holmes and Ginty of the opposing team made a gain of the same distance on a kickoff.

The local boys lost no time in getting right into the game and in less than three minutes had scored the first touchdown.

First Period.

Brighton High won the toss and chose to receive the kick. The ball was rushed back but a few yards and Quincy got possession of it on the second down as a result of a fumble. Page went around the end for eight yards and the ball was now on Brighton High's own 25 yard line.

Holmes circled right end for 15 yards. On the next rush Johnson, Quincy's tackle was given the ball, and by a fine burst of speed went over for the first touchdown of the game. In attempting to kick a goal, the ball touched the ground, and was declared in play,

Brighton kicked to Quincy, and the ball was fumbled in the 30 yard line. A series of rushes advanced the ball and enabled the local boys to get first downs twice. Holmes played well and every one of his runs netted from 10 to 15 yards. Page was injured in this period but was able to continue play.

Brighton next got the ball on a punt, but lost it to Johnson on a fumble on the next play. Holmes circled right end for 18 yards. Page was thrown back for a loss of 5. An outside kick was tried and was captured by a Brighton man, but because he was tackled after having signalled for a fair catch, Quincy was penalized 15 yards. Brighton tried to punt but fumbled, still retaining the ball. Quincy got the ball and a fumble on the next play resulted. At the end of the period the ball was on Brighton's 45 yard line.

Second Period.

Quincy High started the second period in the same stirring manner as the first. Holmes circled the end for 10 yards. Page gained the same distance. The tackle play was again called, and Johnson was given the ball by Blackmur. The former circled right end, and after wading through the opposing eleven ran 40 yards for a touchdown. He failed to kick the goal. Score Quincy H. S. 10, Brighton H. S. 0.

CHURCH SOCIAL

Was Held on Friday Evening in First Pres. Church

THE SPEAKERS

An interesting and helpful congregational social was held on Friday evening in the First Presbyterian Church. The numbers on the program were all delightfully given and were as follows:

Selection—Orchestra.

Selection—Granite City Quartet.

Duet—Miss Nettie Miller and Miss Margaret Morrison.

Solo—Miss Minnie Miller.

Following the musical features, remarks were made by Mr. Clark on Sunday school work, George Wilson on Brotherhood, Wendall Clark on Christian Endeavor, Mr. Matheson on Ladies Aid, Forbes Craig the Trustees and Andrew Milnes on Building Fund.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

Sunday will be Rally day for the Bible School at 10:30 A. M. A large attendance is hoped for and expected.

COAL COMPANY WILL NOT BUILD STABLE

Board of Health Has Given Petitioners Opportunity to Withdraw

RESIDENTS OBJECTED

The Board of Health, who were petitioned by the Wollaston Coal Co. for a permit to erect a stable for ten horses near the railroad track at Wollaston, have given the petitioners opporunity to withdraw. The Board of Health gave a public hearing on the petition Thursday evening, at which a large number of residents of that part of Wollaston in the vicinity of the proposed location of the stable, appeared against granting the permit. As a result of the hearing, as stated above, the Board took action as noted.

It is understood that the Coal Company have also petitioned the Inspector of Buildings for a permit to erect coal sheds or pockets on the property. This application is still pending. Whether in view of the company being unable to erect a stable, will cause them to withdraw this application is not known. There is fully as much objection by the residents and property holders in that section against coal pockets as there was against the building of a stable.

PREPARING FOR BUSY TIME.

Manet encampment I. O. O. F. is preparing for a busy season. On Monday evening, Oct. 23rd, the officers will go to North Cambridge and work the Golden Rule degree before the board of grand officers. On Oct. 26th, the encampment will hold a barn dance and on Oct. 13, they will exemplify the Patriarchal degree upon a number of candidates.

COLLECTION OF ASHES.

The Board of Health gives notice, today, that the collection of ashes will begin Monday Oct. 16. On Monday, teams will collect on the east side of the railroad tracks in Wards 1, 5 and 6. On Tuesday collections will be made in Wards 5 and 6 west of the railroad track and north of Beale street, Wednesday in Wards 1 and 5 west of the railroad track between Beale and Granite streets, Thursday Wards 1, 3 and 4 west of the railroad, Friday and Saturday in Wards 2 and 3 west of the railroad.

HELD FOR GRAND JURY.

The cases of Domenico Milianzzi and Luigi Milianzzi who were charged with assault with intent to murder Frank Mariana at Quincy Sept. 6th and which were heard Friday, occupied the greater part of the day. At the conclusion of the hearing Domenico was held in $300 cash bail for the grand jury and Luigi was discharged.

HOURS AT POST OFFICE.

On and after next Monday, the hours at the Quincy post office will be from 6.15 A. M. to 9 P. M. daily. Holidays from 6.15 A. M. to 10 A. M. On Sundays the corridor will be open to box holders from 9 to 10 A. M.

NORTH WEYMOUTH MAN ELECTED

The famous "Fighting Fifth" battery of the Federal Army gathered at New Bedford Tuesday, September 12th for their annual reunion. Twenty-five members of the battery were present, twenty of whom were with the original battery as it left New Bedford in 1861. The regular business meeting was held at 11 o'clock and George L. Newton, selectman of North Weymouth, was elected as president for the ensuing year.

—Eighty-five years ago today the first horse-power railway in the United States was completed . This was located at Quincy, Mass., and for quite a while horse cars were considered quite classy. ROWDIES ARE FINED

Five Unable To Raise Cash Are Sent To Jail

DISORDERLY ON CAR

It was late Friday before the cases of the ten South Boston toughs, who were arrested on an electric car the night before for creating a disturbance, had their cases heard. It seems that three of the gang were juveniles, viz: James Dailey, John Foley and Fred Lynch. Their cases were continued until next Tuesday.

The others of the gang who answered to the names of Thomas Sheahan, Frank Matoy, John Quilty, William Martin, Stephen Strauss, George Hogan and Henry Tippenham were fined $10 each.

Only two out of the party could raise the necessary fine, Henry Tippenham and William Martin. The others were committed to Dedham jail to work theirs out.

BAPTISTS UNITE.

The Free Baptists formally united with the Baptist church at a meeting in Ford hall, Boston, Thursday night. Since 1780 there has been a Free Baptist sect and its merger with the parent body gives it six million communicants in the United States. It is claimed that this is more than any other Protestant church possesses.

Mortgages, securities and cash to the amount of about $170,000 will be turned into the Baptist treasuries by the dissolved Free Baptists. Fifty-five per cent of this is transferred to the American Baptist Foreign Mission society, about thirty-nine per cent to the American Baptist Home Mission Society and a small balance is held for further distribution for purposes of ministerial education and relief. The subscriptions to Free Baptist Sunday school publications were transferred to corresponding Baptist institutions, and the subscriptions to the Morning Star, for eighty-six years the Free Baptist paper, have been transferred to the Watchman.

The college freshmen are now being hazed for infringing on the exclusive rights of the other classes to be fresh.

BLAZE CAUSES $150,000 LOSS IN BROOKLINE

Electical Company's Plant in Heart of Town Practically Destroyed

Aid is Asked of Boston Fire Department

Brookline firemen had a hard battle last night in extinguishing a fire in the big electrical works to Holtzer Cabot Corporation, located on Station street, in that town.

Two alarms in quick succession called the department to the fire, and on reaching the big five-story building and finding it a mass of flames, help was secured from Boston.

The fight againts the flames was a difficult and dangerous one, because of the character of the contents of the structure. The firemen were cautioned against entering or approaching too near the blazing structure because of explosion of chemicals and the dense poisonous smoke, almost sure death if inhaled.

It was spectacular, the leaping flames making a beacon that lighted the sky and was seen for miles around.

The fire spread to the Brookline Storage Warehouse at midnight, an immense structure adjoining the Holtzer Cabot Manufacturing Company's factory and the firemen had all they could do to stop its spreading further.

The fire started in the wooden building in rear of the five story stone structure of the electrical manufacturing company's plant and spread rapidly through the stone building. The first alarm was sounded shortly after 11.30 o'clock and was followed closely by a second. The Boston department was then called on for assistance from Roxbury and Jamaica Plain, as well as from Brighton.

By midnight the entire town was alarmed. It looked at that time as if the firemen would fail in confining the blaze because of their inability to cope with it at close quarters. But the rain had so thoroughly drenched the roofs surrounding the structure that they were successful in holding it largely to the electrical works.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

The prudent man never rakes up his leaves. He leaves them for the wind to dispose of on his neighbor's lawn.

Italy has declared war on Turkey, but the entire population of the United States will do that the last Thursday in November.

The newspapers are discussing the future of aviation, but if it is anything like the future of aviators, it will soon end in an untimely grave.

An Albany newspaper asks why there are so many fat women now-a-days. Our observation is that adipoae tissue increases as the manipulation of the broom and dish towel decline.

Mr. Taft says the anti-trust law must be enforced, though the big corporations always looked at it as of the nature of a comic suppelment to the Congressional Record.

Jack Johnson says the preachers are putting the first class fighters out of business, which shows a commendable effort on the part of the parsons to earn their salaries.

Postmaster General Hitchcock has been carrying mail by aeroplane, but he might have had lots more fun gossiping with the farmers wives if he had gone out with a rural carrier.

Italy is talking up very bold to Turkey, and the people who think the Italians never did anything but live in tarred paper shacks and dig sewer ditches may learn something they did not know before.

Mr. Taft asks for a more kindly feeling toward great corporations. In view of all their sufferings, it does seem about time to get up a benefit dance or theatrical entertainment for Mr. Rockefeller and Mr. Morgan.

ABOUT DRUNKENNESS.

When the late Rev. W. H. H. Murray, over 30 years ago, in one of his Music hall sermons declared that drunkenness was a disease and should be treated as such, he created a sensation in religious and temperance circles, says an exchange. The brilliant preacher was criticised severely; but time has served to strengthen the truth of his statement.

Nowadays, the best physicians and others conversant with this subject believe that drunkenness is a disease which can be treated successfully. The general health of an unfortunate inebriate must be restored before he is in condition to exercise self-control and abandon the drinking habit.

There is no better way for anyone desiring to get rid of this habit than to engage in some outdoor occupation, especially on a farm, away from all the usual temptations. Police Commissioner Waldo of New York city appreciates this fact, and is so interested that he has given to the new Board of Inebriety 80 acres of land in Flushing for the establishment of an industrial farm, where inebriates can be sent for treatment instead of to penal institutions. This experiment is a wise one, and will be closely watched throughout the Union.

NEWSPAPER MIRROR CIVIC LIFE.

It is a constant experience in our office, and other newspapers as well, to have requests for sample copies of this journal, from people who want to get some idea of the business conditions of our town.

No other agency forms so complete a reflection of our civic and business life.

A newspaper that is sloppy in its typographical exterior, that presents little news, and is written and made up in a slovenly manner, is never found in a hustling town.

On the contrary, if you find an attractive sheet in an unattractive town, it never lives long. It can not in the long run rise higher than its environment.

Our townspeople every week send away copies of this paper to give outsiders an impression of our community life. Thus unconsciously we are all the time revealing ourself to our neighbors. Every time you advertise in the home newspaper, every time you subscribe for it, or buy job printing of it, you assist that newspaper to improve its appearance, add new features, and thus advertise the whole community as a progressive town.

OUR DEPENDENCE ON HARVESTS.

However young America may make fun of Uncle Reuben, the success or the failure of the latter in storing away the products of the soil in his granaries determines the question whether living shall be easy or hard in the country for the coming year.

The flippant attitude of the city people toward the rural population, therefore, is very much as when a man makes fun of his own mother.

Not merely is it poor taste to deride classes of our population on whose efforts we are all so dependent. But actually the ridicule showered upon people living in rustic surroundings comes back to straighten the lives of all of us, whether we indulge in these cheap flings or not.

It is not unlikely that the biggest single cause of high food prices is the drift of young people to the cities. Farms have gone to seed, and demand for agricultural products has exceeded supply. It does little good to berate Congress and Legislatures, when by our contemptuous attitude, we are doing the best we can to kill the goose that lays the golden eggs.

Many country people testify that one of the most efficient means for driving young people off the farm is the jokes and cartoons aimed by cheap wits at the farmer.

FINANCIAL NEWS.

Special.

The stock market appears to have reached a stopping point after the headlong fall in September. Fortunately, the collapse was arrested by strong banking support, by large purchases to cover on short contracts and by good investment buying from institutions and wealthy investors who picked up the better class of securities without difficulty, and are apparently confident that such purchases will afford good profits in due season. The outlook has consequently distinctly improved.

Aside from this artficial support, there is a much better undertone to the stock market than a week or two ago. In the first place the decline has put the market upon a safer and sounder basis. Then many of the disturbing influences, such as the Moroccan incident, the crisis abroad, etc., have either distinctly improved or been fully discounted for the time being. Without doubt the technical position of the market has positively improved, and though the clouds have not by any means rolled away and left clear sunshine, a fair rally in values has been distinctly warranted Whether it will make further progress or not depends largely upon events. Should these prove favorable still higher prices may be expected for those who bought freely two weeks ago to stop the decline want better profits than the market yet offers before letting gotheir surplus holdings

The efforts to trace causes for the recent financial depression still continue. They are numerous enough to cause amusement were it not for the serious consequences involved. The majority of opinions are based upon conditions with which their authors are chiefly familiar. Some blame Mr Roosevelt, some hold hold President Taft responsible others Mr. Wickerham Some say politics, others say too much speculation is at the bottom of present difficulties. Some blame the tariff others the anti-trust law. Some say high prices are responsible, others partial crop failures. A few say too many securities, many say too much inflation. The stock market has largely discounted all the adverse conditions. It may go momentarily to lower levels when the political pot again begins to boil. The tariff will shortly be a subject of keen agitation but probably nothing will be done until after another Gubernatorial election. In any event conditions are conflicting enough to produce sharp fluctuations. The fact thathe market has already had a very unusual fall and the existence of a considerable short interest afford excellent basis for sharp recoveries. The influence of easy money must also be taken into consideration. Funds are accumulating in spite of crop demands, and lenders find it difficult to secure good rates and safety combined. Easy money is invariably a potent stock market stimulant.—Henry Clews, Banker, New York.

BROOKLINE FIRE

An estimate of the loss because of the valuable machinery and electrical material in the factory was given as over $150,000.

The fire while at its height endangered spectators, for as the roof and floors fell in, burning brands were thrown high and fell in showers all about the place.

More than 300 men were employed in the factory, where electrical supplies, motors and fine steel work formed the output. Charles W Holtzer of Brookline, president of the company, was on the scene during the fire.

The company manufactures many articles for the United States Navy Department. The company has another plant on Atlantic avenue.

All the office furnishings, books and the safe were removed from the office at the end of the building which was most seriously damaged.

The flames were practically confined to the Holtzer, Cabot factory at 1 o'clock this morning and the firemen prepared for several hours' brisk work to put out the last vestige of fire.

Watchman George McGovern was on the second floor when he noticed the smoke and found a room filled with flames. He had a narrow escape and ran downstairs. On his way he heard the automatic alarm. Then he opened all the doors to ventilate the building and give the firemen easy access.

Patrolman Patrick Brogan who was standing on the Washington street railroad bridge, sounded box 52.

IN NEW FIELD.

Quincy friends of Mr. and Mrs John O. Hall, Jr., nee Burns, will be interested to know that they are now living at Yarmouth, Maine, where Mr. Hall has accepted the principalship of the North Yarmouth academy, taking up the work Sept. 19th. The academy is one with an honorable career dating back to 1814 and at present stands well among the New England preparatory schools, its membership comprising both boys and girls. The school buildings comprise a recitation building, three-story dormitory and a residence for the principal all facing on a pleasant campus in the centre of Yarmouth.

Mr. Hall is the elder son of Mr. and Mrs. John O. Hall of Upland road. He taught for a few years at Adams academy and the past seven years has been principal of the High school at Millbury, Mass., resigning this summer.

MILTON NOT OPPOSED.

The Milton Selectmen have notified the West Quincy Improvement association that they are not opposed to an extension of the street railway through Granite avenue to connect with the Boston Elevated system, a project upon which the West Quincy association has been working for a long time.

J. WARREN FAXON.

Word has been received in Quincy of the death at his home in Oak Park, Illinois, of J. Warren Faxon in his 75th year. Mr. Faxon was the son of Job and Judith (Hardwick) Faxon of Quincy and a brother of J. Franklin Faxon of Adams street.

CHASE—GALLAGHER.

Miss Ruth Gallagher, a well known Milton young lady, was united in marriage Friday afternoon at her home to Fred Chase. The bride was attended by Miss Emily Emerson, a daugher of Dean Emerson of Dartmouth college and a classmate of the bride in the class of '05 at Smith college. The groom is a graduate of Dartmouth in the class of '05. Among those present was Karl Skinner, private secretary to President Nichols of Dartmouth and Miss Fanny Hazen and Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Chase of Hanover, N. H.

AMBASSADOR AT HINGHAM.

The British Ambassador Bryce will visit Hingham on Monday, Oct. 9, and present the stone sent from Hingham, England, to go into the memorial in commemoration of the settlement of Hingham. There will be a large meeting in the Armory for the event over which Hon. John D. Long will preside and be one of the speakers. There will also be singing by a large chorus. The celebration will be at eight P. M. and seats will be reserved for the Weymouth Historical society which is specially invited.

ARRANGE FOR FAIR.

The Cemetery Circle will hold a meeting on Thursday, October 12, in the Pilgrim church vestry, North Weymouth at 10 o'clock. A large attendance is desired to make arrangements for the coming fair.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

COMPARISON—"Say, mamma! my teacher'd make a bully highwayman!" exclaimed a boy as he rushed in from school.

"Why, Freddy, what in the world do you mean?" inquired his astonished mother.

"Why, she's always telling the children to "hold up their hands."—Judge.

HURRIED—"I haven't heard from my son, who is touring Europe. I am somewhat worried."

"What is his next stop?"

"Monte Carlo."

"Then you'll hear from him."—Washington Herald.

EASIEST Mrs. Grammercy—"If you work for a living you'll never have much money.",

Mrs. Park—"That's so. I think I'll take up bridge and live on other women's alimony."—Pluck.

EDUCATED—"Any fish in this brook?"

"Government stocked it with trout once," replied the old timer.

"But they won't come near a hook."

"They do seem smarter than other fish. I reckon maybe they had to pass a civil service examination 'fore the government would notice 'em."—Washington Star.

COMPENSATION—Flub— "And you are satisfied to be making only $15 a week?"

Dub—"Sure. If I made more than that, some girl would come along and want to marry me."—Life.

Experience.—"I won't pay another penny of your debts for you, you disgrace. You must either go brankrupt or get married. I had to do the same."—London Opinion.

Citizen—"It's just the "hope that springs eternal in the human breast." Our baseball team is at the bottom of the league, and the Reverand Gude is going to preach on "The last shall be first."—Puck.

INTERESTING EXHIBIT.

One of the most attractive and interesting of the many fine exhibits at the Chamber of Commerce Industrial exposition at Mechanic's building, Boston, is that of the Bay State Street Railway Co. The company has endeavored not only to show the extent and scope of its lines as the largest street railway system in the world, but has in many ways presented the attractiveness of the territory it serves as available for the location of the new industries and homes.

Probably the most striking feature of the exhibit is a mammoth water color, perspective map showing the entire territory. The routes covered by the passenger cars are outlined with red lights and those served by the electric express in blue lights, which flash alternately with a beautiful effect.

Illuminated transparencies showing the workings and development of the electric express type of cars and equipment, typical parks and charming scenes are shown. A steromotergraph machine shows other views and occasional injunctions to the observer to locate in this territory and giving good reasons why it is the best in the country.

The key-note of the exhibit which has been carried through everything is that the person seeking for a new home, for a farm, or for a location for any industry should not go west but stay at home, that there is plenty more room in eastern Massachusetts, southern New Hampshire and northern Rhode Island with opportunities and advantages that are unexcelled.

The greatness of the territory industrially and the vast diversity of successful industries now established showing its pre-eminence for this purpose, is especially emphasized by another feature of the exhibit which shows, sample products in infinite variety from practically every kind of an establishment producing goods in all parts of the big field covered by the company's lines.

This is in line with a new plan being inaugurated by the passenger department to assist in every way possible to develop this territory industrially and residentially by putting the advantages of the section before the people who might be interested in locating here, which it is hoped will be of benefit not only to the company but the towns and cities along its lines.

STOPPED IN THIRD ROUND

Boston "Tar Baby" Easily Disposes of Heavyweight from Chicago

New York, Oct. 7.—Sam Langford, the Boston "Tar Baby," used Tony Caponi, a Chicago heavyweight, as a chopping block in a scheduled ten-round bout here last night. Referee White had to stop the fight in the middle of the third round—Caponi was helpless.

Langford knocked Caponi down twice in the second round and battered him around in the third.

Fire Destroys Sardine Plant

Eastport, Me., Oct. 7.—Forty thousand dollars loss resulted from a fire which destroyed the plant of the Eastport Sardine company last night. Nearly 100 hands are thrown out of employment by the burning of the factory.

RIGHT TO THE POINT.

Former Gov. Draper goes to the point, when, in commenting on the comparative conditions of American and English workmen, he says:

For every dollar that is paid the English workingman there is paid the American in the same occupation $2.30 and when all deductions necessary because of the difference in the cost of food and house rent have been made the American is still far better off than is the Englishman. Also the American has more comfort, he eats more meat and a greater variety of food.

It is a truth which has been preached from the housetops for many years, but it can't be preached too often, and it can't be insisted on too strongly at this time, when Mr. Foss and his followers would take steps which would tend to pull down the American workingman.—Boston Herald.

TODAY'S COURT.

Thomas A. Nolan was fined $25 for operating an automobile at Milton while under the influence of liquor.

Patrick Moffat was fined $10 for drunkenness at Quincy.

Thomas Sheahan, Frank Matoy, John Quilty, William Martin, Stephen Strauss George Hogan and Henry Tippengam were fine $10 each for creating a disturbance on street cars at Quincy.

Domenico Milianzzi was held in $300 for the grand jury for assault with intent to murder Frank Mariana at Quincy. Luigi Milianzzi who was arraigned for the same offence, was discharged.

The continued case of Peter Cassette for manslaughter in causing the death of Nicholas Cassette at Weymouth was called, and the case continued without bail until Nov. 18.

—People may applaud the Government ringmasters now for making the corporations roll over, play dead, and jump through the hoops, but wait until the hat is passed at the end of the performance.—Wall Street Journal.

It was charged that he Jew did not receive a square deal at the hands of the chief executive of the State. A special committee of ten prominent Hebrews of Boston has been placed in charge of the local campaign.

TEN THOUSAND KILLED

Terrible Conditions Reported as Result of Rebellion In China

Pekin, Oct. 7.—American Methodist missionaries at Cheng-tu, the recently besieged capital of Sze-Chuan province, telegraphed that they estimate that 10,000 persons were killed during the fighting between the insurgents and the government troops. Of the dead 2000 were soldiers and the other rebels.

Ten thousand rebels are in possession of several cities southwest of Cheng-tu. Soldiers are marching against them.

The Methodists state that as a result of the uprising thousands of natives are homeless and many, becoming desperate, committed suicide. The Methodists appeal for funds from America to be distributed under their supervision in the work of relief.

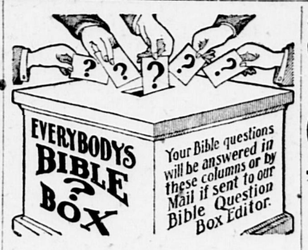
SUNDAY 12 TO 1—SHARP

Bethany Church, City Square

If YOU are a young man, and not associated with any other Quincy church, YOU are most cordially invited to come to our meeting.

A warm welcome—Hearty singing—A helpful hour together.



Q.—If Moses and Elijah were actually dead, how could they appear on the Mount of Transfiguration with our Lord Jesus? (Matthew xvii, 1-3.)

Answer—While Moses and Elijah both passed from the scene of earth's experiences under peculiar and mysterious circumstances, yet we are assured that both died. (Deuteronomy xxxiv, 5; Hebrews xi, 13.) The Scriptures everywhere represent the dead as being in a condition of unconsciousness, "asleep" in the tomb, the grave,—"The dead know not anything," "for there is no wisdom, nor device, nor knowledge in the grave whither thou goeth," (Ecclesiastes ix, 5, 10.) We must carefully examine the text under consideration, for the true meaning, recognizing that all of the expressions of the inspired Scriptures are in complete harmony. The ninth verse of this same chapter explains the matter, where we note the words of the Master—"Tell the vision to no man." What the Apostles saw therefore was merely a "vision" of Moses and Elijah with the Lord, just as St. John on the Isle of Patmos saw visions of beasts, angels, etc., and not the actual things themselves. Moses surely had not been resurrected and made perfect at that time, for we are informed that our Lord Jesus was the first to rise from the dead and be glorified. Note also the Apostle Paul's words in Hebrews xi, 39, 40, where he sets forth that Moses and the other ancient worthies of the past have yet to be made perfect by those of the Church class when glorified in the heavenly Kingdom with Christ.

Q.—The Apostle says—"We are fools for Christ's sake!"—what did he mean by this expression? How are Christians made fools? See I Corinthians iv, 10.

Answer.—The Apostle Paul, because of his zeal and earnestness in the cause of Christ, had suffered opposition and persecution of various kinds and had even endured hunger and thirst and hardships, as he proceeds to narrate in this same chapter. To those without faith in Christ and His teachings this was all foolishness on the part of the Apostle. To them he seemed to be a religious fanatic,—a fool. And evidently some of the Christian brethren at Corinth got this same idea, deeming it needless to endure so much contempt and hardship for the Master's cause. These conditions have prevailed all down throughout the Christian Era, the consecrated, devoted people of the Lord, who have given their all, sacrificing ease, comfort and wordly fame and riches in their desires to serve Him who endured so much for their sakes, have ever been ridiculed and despised by the common lot who, because oftheir diminutive mental and moral calibre, could not appreciate the grandeur and the nobility of the characters and teachings of these who truly deserve the name of Christian. Well has one expressed the matter in the following lines—

"The few by whom high truth was recognized
Who foolishiy their full hearts left unguarded
Revealing to the crowd their noble vision
Have always banished been and crucified."

MEMORIAL CHURCH.

At the meeting of the officers and teachers of the Sunday school on Wednesday evening all expressed the greatest satisfaction with the graded lessons. Frederick M. Burditt is to start a young people's class between the ages of twenty and thirty, and the pastor an adult class. The Ladies' Benevolent society hold their harvest supper Oct. 18. This has been the most popular supper of the season, and the committee hope to make this year's supper equal to any ever held in the old church. It is gratifying to church members to see so many new faces in the Sunday congregations and the optimistic spirit seems to pervade the whole atmosphere of church and Sunday school. The Christian Endeavor society started its meetings Sunday.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

PAUL RAINEY
Makes a Record In African Regions on Hunting Trip

KILLS THIRTY-TWO LIONS

Rainey Also Bags a Lot of Other Big Game In Africa

London, Oct. 7.—J. C. Hemment, the photographer who accompanied Paul Rainey's hunting expedition to Africa, has returned to London on his way to America, bringing two lionesses, two leopard cubs, one full-grown leopard, one wild dog, one striped hyena, two Egyptian geese and several Nile monkeys and blue monkeys, all of which are to be presented to the Bronx zoo by Rainey.

Hemment reports that Rainey killed thirty-two lions with the aid of his Mississippi bear dogs, which is the record for British East Africa.

WHOLE TOWN MAY BE WIPED OUT BY FLOOD

Serious Situation Arises From Breaking of Dams

La Crosse, Wis., Oct. 7.—The situation at Black River Falls, a prosperous town of 2000 inhabitants which was swept by a flood yesterday, when the waters of the Black river washed through the embankment of the La Crosse Water Power company's dams at Hatfield, is very serious.

Half of the business section has been destroyed, as has been a part of the residence district, and it is feared that the town will be wiped out. Townspeople have taken refuge on the high lands.

Whether or not lives have been lost is not yet certain. Thus far two persons have not been accounted for.

MAN WHO NEVER WORKS

Never Had Any Money, as He Can Get Along Without It

Worcester, Mass., Oct. 7.—"I never have done any work in all my life and I don't intend to; never had any money and don't want any as long as I can get along without it."

Such is the statement made by Frank Jones, 25 years old, who claimed he didn't know where his home was when arraigned before Judge Utley on a charge of vagrancy.

Jones was arrested by an officer who found him asleep in a doorway, and after he had told the court his story of free life, without work or money, he was sentenced to serve ten days in the house of correction.

REFUSES TO TESTIFY

Official of Pulp Mill Before Coroner's Jury at Austin

Austin, Pa., Oct. 7.—Frederick Hamlin, superintendent of the Bayless Pulp and Paper company, owners of the dam which broke a week ago at the expense of many lives and the practical destruction of Austin, refused to testify, on the advice of counsel, at the coroner's inquest.

Further inquiry was adjourned to an indefinite date. After the adjournment District Attorney Nelson said that the inquest would not be resumed for at least two weeks, because of the necessity of obtaining expert testimony.

INVITED OUT IN THE OPEN

President Assails His Critics In No Uncertain Tone

DECISIONS OF SUPREME COURT

They Have His Hearty Support as Relating to Enforcement of Anti-Trust Statute—Broad Challenge to Those Who Have Attacked Rulings In Oil and Tobacco Cases—His Attitude Toward Railroads

Pocatello, Ida., Oct. 7.—In the most vigorous speech he has delivered on his trip, President Taft defied those who have attacked his course in respect to corporations to come forward with facts to discredit him.

Mr. Taft said: "If competition is impossible, let us go to Socialism, for there is no way between. I, for one, am not discouraged as yet in the hope that we may return to a legitimate and independent competition. I am an individualist, not a Socialist."

President Taft declared that the law amply covers all corporations. He said the anti-trust statute will be enforced, that business must reform, and that the executive cannot stay any kind of prosecutions.

The president declared against "muckraking" and insisted that the time has come when men ought to get down to sober reason. He stoutly defended the supreme court against recent criticism by William J. Bryan in the Standard Oil and the tobacco cases, saying that the court had performed a distinct service to the country. He vehemently defied Bryan and others who have found fault with the supreme court to come out in the open and particularize rather than to indulge in generalities.

The president's speech, delivered with all the fervor at his command, was taken by the throng that heard it as an open challenge to critics of his administration to bring a definite bill of particulars against him.

The president outlined the decision of the supreme court in the Standard Oil and tobacco cases and reverting to the attacks made upon the decisions, went on:

"Now, I challenge any publicist or jurist to state to me a case that any reasonable man would say ought to be condemned under the law which would not be condemned under the rule of construction that the supreme court has laid down. It is time to come down to facts."

Mr. Taft said it was unfortunate that the country had got into a condition that had required a remedy like this. A remedy of any evil, he added, was bound to produce for a time, not business disaster, but a difficult situation that might make business slow. But, after the solution had been worked out, he saw no reason why the country should not go on to greater and greater prosperity.

Speaking of the administration's attitude toward the railroads Mr. Taft declared that he proposed to stand by them when they maintained a course of strict obedience to the law and "kept out of politics."

"They are entitled to be considered the arterial circulation of this country and we ought to protect them in their rights and save them from the attack of demagogues or the man who would seek, by the position of his victim, to climb over his shoulder into popular esteem," exclaimed the president.

WOMAN WOULD NOT ELOPE

Admirer Shoots Her and Puts Bullet Into His Own Head

New York, Oct. 7.—A man's unrequited love for a married woman caused a double tragedy here. Joseph Speilman, 36 years of age, met Mrs. Flora Kirsch, eleven years his junior, on the street, and after an argument shot her twice while the woman tried to get away.

When a crowd surrounded him and prevented his escape Speilman fired a bullet through his head. Both probably will die.

Friends of the Kirsch family said that Speilman had tried unsuccessfully to induce the young wife to run away with him.

RESIGNATION IS ACCEPTED

Cook No Longer a Captain In the United States Army

Washington, Oct. 7.—The resignation of Captain Frank A. Cook, recently court martialled at San Francisco for conduct unbecoming an officer, has been accepted by the president, it was announced at the war department.

The findings of the court martial were not made public. Acceptance of the resignation, it is believed, will end the case. Cook is a native of Rhode Island.

BANKER KILLED BY HANDLING BILLS

Blood Poison Developes From Soiled Paper Money

Waltham, Mass., Oct. 7.—Handling large sums of money cost George H. Farnum, treasurer of the Waltham Co-operative bank, hundreds of dollars in doctors' fees and, after a battle for ten months, his life. He died from complications arising from blood poisoning, caused by germs from bills he counted in the bank.

Last December, while at work, he scratched a pimple back of his ear. Within a day it became greatly irritated and blood poisoning developed. This spread through Farnum's system and his life was prolonged only after heroic treatment by specialists.

Mr. Farnum had been treasurer of the bank only a year when he met with the misfortune. He was 44 years old.

PLANNING AN AIR ROUTE

Postal Service Expenses the Coming Year Will Be $260,938,463

Washington, Oct. 7.—Provision for the establishment of a parcels post and the transportation of mail by aeroplane has been made by Postmaster General Hitchcock in his annual estimates of postoffice department expenditures submitted to the treasury department.

According to Hitchcock's estimates the appropriations necessary to meet the expenses of the postal service at large during the coming fiscal year will be $260,938,463, an increase of $2,585,740 over the appropriations for the current fiscal year, or less than 1 percent, the smallest on record.

PASSED OVER HIS VETO

Baldwin Fights Pension Law Enacted by Connecticut Legislature

Hartford, Oct. 7.—Governor Baldwin has asked the attorney general to pass upon the validity of the law recently passed which would give all Civil war veterans resident in Connecticut a yearly pension of $30.

The governor vetoed the bill on the ground that it would incur heavy expense. He also questioned its constitutionality, but the general assembly passed the bill by the veto, a tie in the senate being dissolved by the lieutenant governor.

ACKNOWLEDGE IT

Quincy Has to Bow to the Inevitable Scores of Endorsements Prove it.

After reading the public statement of this fellow-sufferer given below, you must come to this conclusion: A remedy which cured years ago, which has kept the kidneys in good health since, can be relied upon to perform the same work in other cases. Read this:

J. Fortin, Montello St., Brockton, Mass., says: "I was troubled for over two years by attacks of backache. If I arose from a sitting position or stood any length of time, I was caused great pain. There was a feeling of weariness present and if I did a hard day's work, I was bothered by Lameness and soreness across my bac k. I finally saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, for such complaints and I got a box and began their use according to directions. They went directly to the seat of my complaint, relieving me of severe backaches and restoring me to good health. It has given me pleasure on several occasions to recommend this remedy." (Statement given June 13, 1905.)

A SECOND STATEMENT.

On July 26, 1911, Mr. Fortin was interviewed and he said: "I willingly verily my former endorsement of Doan's Kidney Pills. You may continue to use my reference, as the relief this remedy brought me has been permanent."

Theatrical Manager—"Your costume bill is appalling! Three $400 gowns in two weeks!"

Star—"Well, they got grease paint on them, and you can't expect Juliet to appear in a white tunic that's spotted."

Anty Drudge—"Just buy a cake of Fels-Naptha, Mr. Manager, and you can make every one of them tunics as white as ever. Fels-Naptha will take out grease paint, grease and every other kind of stain, and it won't harm the most delicate fabric."

Moral stains are the only kind Fels-Naptha won't take out. Coffee stains, fruit stains, ink stains, blood stains and grease spots are easy for it. While the soaped clothes are soaking in cold or lukewarm water, Fels-Naptha dissolves the matter that makes the stains into tiny particles. A light rub in rinsing sends them flying, leaving the clothes white and pure. All this without boiling or hard rubbing.

ROOSTER COAL BRIQUETS

THE NEW ANTHRACITE COAL

ROOSTER BRIQUETS are made from the choicest small Scranton Anthracite coal, mined in Pennsylvania, called TWENTIETH CENTURY CHESTNUT size

Just consider for a moment what we offer here in this 20th CENTURY CHESTNUT.

First, 2000 pounds of clean, pure, hard coal without a rock or a piece of slate.

Second, fuel that cannot form into a clinker, by any known method of firing, consequently the linings and grates last indefinitely.

Third, they are made in nut size, being equally convenient for furnace heaters, open grates, as well as stoves; therefore, only one storage bin is necessary.

Fourth, and very IMPORTANT, the quality of this fuel is the SAME EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR, not a good ton today, and nothing like it the next time, in other words, when you once learn how to regulate your drafts you have nothing more to learn about burning BRIQUETS.

Fifth, no more sifting ashes these Briquets burn out clean. They require less wood to kindle.

Be sure to ask for "ROOSTERS" and get the Briquet made from pure Scranton Coal, from the largest Briquet plant in the country. They are better than coal, will last as long and cost less.

UNCLE SAM RECEIVES A NOTE

Italy Disregarded Request For Further Explanation of Demands, According to Ottoman Government—Italian Governor of Tripoli a Participant In Blockade of Venezuela and Rescuer of Russians

Constantinople, Oct. 7.—At a meeting held in the Mosque of St. Sophia, a telegram of protest against Italy's declaration of war on Turkey was formulated and sent to all the parliaments of the world, peace and arbitration societies, universities, Socialist organizations and The Hague peace tribunal.

The telegram says the occupation of Tripoli is unjustified and that Italy is unworthy of a place among the great powers. It asks whether western civilization has considered the effect upon the eastern mind of Italy's brigandage.

The meeting also sent the following message to King George of England:

"How can a power like England, ruling between 80,000,000 and 90,000,000 of Moslems, regard with complaisant silence the declaration of war against the Ottoman nation and the blockade of Tripoli? Is such policy in harmony with the present and future interest of England?"

Turkey Explains Her Position

Washington, Oct. 7.—The state department received from Youssouf Zia Pasha, the Turkish ambassador to the United States, the first formal note of explanation of Turkey's attitude in the present war with Italy.

The note reviewed the action of Italy, setting forth that war was proclaimed without regard to Turkey's request for a further explanation of Italy's demands.

Accompanying the "aide-memoir" addressed to the American government was a letter from the ambassador, making it clear that Turkey desired to be set right on the charge that she did not give due weight to Italy's final twenty-four-hour ultimatum.

The statement reviews the action of Italy in sending a note to Turkey Sept. 23, pointing out the dangers to which the security of the Italian subjects at Tripoli and in Cyrenaiac were exposed, a note in which it insinuated that it would be induced to take military measures.

"The imperial Ottoman government answered that no danger whatever existed," continues the memoir; "that the state of those regions was perfectly normal; and that it would guarantee the security of the Italian subjects. On Sept. 26 Italy sent an ultimatum in which she announced her decision to occupy the territory of Tripoli and Cyrenaiac and fixing a delay of twenty-four hours in order that the imperial Ottoman government should permit the occupation without resistance.

"The imperial government answered in very conciliatory terms, asking to know the desiderata of Italy. By a document handed to the Turkish government Sept. 29 the Italian government, without examining this proposal of the Ottoman government, signified a declaration of war.

"While inviting the Ottoman agents who were in Italy to return immediately, the imperial government asked the intervention of the great powers."

Veteran Commands Tripoli

Rome, (via frontier), Oct. 6.—Rear Admiral d'Olmo, who has been appointed Italian governor of Tripoli, is a distinguished naval officer. He commanded the cruiser Elba, which participated in the blockade of Venezuela, and witnessed the battle off Chemulpo during the Russo-Japanese war, when he rescued 200 Russian sailors after their cruiser, the Variag, was destroyed.

Captain Cagni, who was made commander of the landing parties, is president of fthe international polar commission and was a companion of the Duke of the Abruzzi on the latter's Alaskan and North Pole expedition. He was one of the few officers at Messina at the time of the great earthquake who remained calm when others lost their heads.

It is understood that Rear Admiral Aubrey is maneuvering in the Aegean sea, intending to have his warships so placed that he can capture without destroying the whole Turkish fleet if it dares to emerge from its hiding place.

Sweden Has New Liberal Cabinet

Stockholm, Oct. 7.—K. Staaf, Liberal leader, succeeded in forming a Liberal cabinet to replace that of Premier Lindaman, which resigned Sept. 30. The Socialists declined to participate in the formation of the new ministry.

Sent Poor Meat to Boston

Portland, Me., Oct. 7.—In the United States circuit court Moses Chapman of Porter was convicted of shipping unwholesome meat to Boston and was fined $100 and costs.

A BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET.

Lead Soldiers Assail Hub—They Came in German Toy Ship—Druggists Hold Jolly Convention—A Sensible Suburb Orders Quietus on Roosters' Matutinal Crowing and Dog's Midnight Baying—New England's Art and Music Centre Continues to be Thronged—Interpretation of Common Law Prevents Woman from Becoming Public Officer.

Christmas is coming! Early to announce the comedy, but here at Boston's front door is a big steamer from Hamburg laden with toys for Christmas trade. About 900 cases were consigned to the local Santa Claus, the boxes containing every variety of doll and toy. The dolls slept and talked and sang on the way across the big pond, aeroplanes flew about the ship and all kinds of mechanical toys performed their stunts. Now they are on their best behavior waiting to catch the eye of the early shopper who has his or her Christmas list all made out and the wherewithal in pocket.

The Hub glowed with pennants, armbands and badges during the convention of the stockholders of the United Drug Company at the ninth annual foregathering. These purveyors of things to cure humanity's woes were almost as gay as the advertising men of the summer convention. Several hotels flung forth the English flag in honor of the Canadian delegates who were many in number, Scottish pipers signalized the approach of members from Scotland, and Ireland, Bermuda, the Hawaiian Islands, Dawson and many other places were well represented. Combined with the festivities attendant upon the opening of the Chamber of Commerce's big Industrial Exhibition at Mechanics hall the convention of drug stockholders filled the streets and hotels, to such an extent that some unprepared travelling men found it necessary to make several attempts before locating a lodging place among the busy hotels.

Boston's Latin quarter has resumed its wonted aspect now that the schools and colleges are all open, and the throngs of students in and around Huntington avenue and the Fenway lend vivacity to the staid old town. One wonders where they all come from—if, indeed, a sharp ear does not quickly discover the delicious drawl and slur of the southerner and the breezy spontaneity of the west as contrasted with the Yankee twang of most of our nearer neighbors.

Hit the lady again; that's the common law's perpetual counsel. She's only in the class of idiots and criminals, anyway. Under the assumption at common law that a woman cannot perform the duties of a public officer, Attorney General James M. Swift, has decided that women may not serve as truant officers in this State. He also decides that no woman may be appointed to any public office without special statutory authority. This interpretation, if taken seriously, may have a far reaching effect. At any rate, Mrs. Mary Kenney O'Sullivan, well known as a social settlement worker and women's trade union leader, has been defeated in her effort for appointment as a Malden truant officer. The Malden officials were so anxious to have Mrs. O'Sullivan's services that they attempted to set aside all objections as to her being a non-resident, and to permit her to take the examinations in defiance of the Civil Service Commission, but the question had to be finally submitted to Attorney General Swift, whose decision has aroused considerable interest outside of Massachusetts.

What must it be to live in Quincy! The city fathers of that worthy suburban city among the granite hills show a spirit of tenderness toward the sensibilities of their constituents. Only recently a raucous voiced rooster, accustomed to crow in the middle of the night to the disturbance of slumber loving citizens, was doomed by the authorities to a summary execution. Now an ordinance has gone into effect suppressing the noisy canine, and for every disturbance made by the barking dog its owner will have to produce ten hard earned dollars. Neither shall the dog bite, says the ordinance, under the same penalty. There are many other suburban towns where similar action would contribute much toward the health and good disposition of the populace. Boston's bedrooms, without public regulation, tend to grow noisier every year.

The chance to study with Ramon Blanchart, versatile baritone of the Boston Opera Company and with Arnaldo Conti, its eminent conductor, is one of those awaiting a few at least of the thousands of music students from every part of the globe who are foregathering at the Hub this autumn. Of all the announcements for the musical season of 1911-12 none sounds more alluring to the average young American than this, that at the New England Conservatory of Music there will henceforth be conducted a "school of grand opera" with the two eminent gentlemen just named as instructors and with a curriculum bearing directly on the professional singer's metier. This is the newly organized operatic enterprise. Mr. Conti, besides being a tower of strength at the operatic performances has already had experience with American students. During the first years of his conductorship he coached a number of young artists, nearly twenty of whom subsequently appeared in performances of the Company. He is a native of northern Italy who became conductor of the Symphony concerts at Padua at the early age of 16 and who has since then conducted in Rome, Paris, Buenos Ayres and London. Such long experience in presenting opera has given Mr. Conti a position of unusual authority as an interpreter of all the leading national operatic schools ancient and modern. Mr. Blanchart is a Spaniard who since his debut at Barcelona a few years ago has become one of the world's leading baritones. He has sung at practically all the opera houses of civilization and is said to have one of the most extensive repertoires of any living baritone. With such a teaching force backed by the progressive and successful management of the Conservatory the school of grand opera is likely to be a very important addition to the educational facilities of this great school city that is upbuilding along Huntington avenue and the Fenway. HINTS ON COOKING

VEGETABLE SOUP.

The Italians, from time immemorial, have been brought up to understand that a liberal supply of green vegetables conduces to good health. Consequently, vegetable soup made from the following recipe frequently finds a place in the menu, the ingredients consisting of a few sticks of celery, a large onion, a carrot, a turnip, a pound of cabbage cut into strips, a pint of split peas and a pound of streaky bacon. These are boiled in a gallon of water, and after the fat has been skimmed off, two ounces of butter, a little sugar and pepper are added. The bottom of the tureen is then covered with slices of bread, over which the soup is poured. This soup is wonderfully "filling at the price," and, for that reason finds favor with Italians whose appetites are out of all proportion to their purses.

SEPTEMBER WEATHER.

Blue Hill Observatory Reports Month Cooler Than Usual with Much Cloudiness and rain.

The weather during September was generally cooler than usual with much cloudiness and frequent rains. The mean temperature for the month of 60.3 degrees was 1.0 degree below normal and 1.0 degree lower than that of September, 1910. There were few warm days, the highest temperature reached being 81 degrees on the 2nd and 25th. The minimum temperature of the month was 34 degrees on the 14th and this is the lowest recorded in September since 1904.

Rain fell on 16 days in generally moderate amounts, the total for the month of 3.36 inches being 1.04 inches less than normal. The most in one day was 1.07 inches on the 9th. In September, 1910, the total fall was 2.29 inches. There was more than the usual relative humidity, an excess of cloudiness and 18 per cent less than the average amount of sunshine. There were five days with no sunshine.

There was less wind than is customary and the mean hourly velocity for the month was 16.4 miles per hour the normal for September being 16.9 miles per hour. The maximum velocity was 40 miles per hour from the northwest on the 30th. The prevailing wind direction for the month was northwest. Thunderstorms occurred on the 11th and 25th and there were killing ffosts in the neighboring lowlands on the 14th, 27th and 29th. Auroras were observed on the nights of the 19th and 24th. L. A. Wells, Blue Hill Observatory.

SOME GOOD BOWLING.

The Bowling league, recently organized among the different departments of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company, has already met with great success in the games played and many a warm contest is bound to ensue at the Granite street alleys before the season comes to a close. The race for honors is at present headed by the Apprentices, who are being closely pushed by the members of the Railroad team and the players of the Machinists team of the gallery. The standing issued last night is as follows:

Team	Won	Lost	P.C.
Apprentices	4	0	1000.
Railroad	3	1	750.
Machinists gallery	3	1	750.
Pattern Makers	1	3	250.
Timekeepers	1	3	250.
Machinists (floor)	0	4	000.

The highest total for a single string has been made by McQueen, of the Apprentices, who has bowled for 99. Tirrell of the gallery machinists comes second with 98, while Welch of the Apprentices and Sullivan of the floor machinists are tied for third place with a total of 93 each.

For three strings, McQueen also takes the lead, his total being 259. Tirrell is second with a sum total of 253, while Boyle of the Apprentices is a close third with 252.

At a meeting of the league held last evening, the secretary, Frank Callahan resigned, in order to play with a bowling team in Boston. His place was taken by William Butler, who was later elected to the position. It was decided that no man would be allowed to compete on any of the teams who has not been sanctioned by the advisory committee. Even though a man, should resign work at the Fore River, he is still eligible to play, but no outsider can compete unless his name had been acted upon by the committee. The following names were qualified to play on the various teams.

Floor machinists—Floyd, Littlefield, Ackroyd, Sullivan, Monks.

Gallery Machinists—McGrady, Coyle Moran, Hessernie, Pearl.

Apprentices—Boyle, McQueen, Williams, Welch, Manning.

Timekeepers—Smith, Lally, Fallon, Randall, Mullen.

Railroad—Howard, Mills, White, Geiser, Anthony, Woodman.

Pattern Makers—Names have not yet been passed upon.

Chaloner Holds His Family and Friends Responsible

AN ATTACK ON RUTHERFORD

Says He Had Evidence Which Reflected on Astronomer Placed In Safe Deposit Box Which Was Afterward Blown Open and Contents Destroyed—Names and Attacks Woman In New York Society

Charlottesville, Va., Oct. 7.—Sensational charges against friends and members of his own family, the Cnanlers of New York, marked John A. Chaloner's deposition in his suit for the recovery of $1,500,000 held for him by a committee in New York on the ground that he is insane.

Chaloner declared that his relatives had him committed to Bloomingdale asylum in 1897 because they had learned that he had ignored his brothers and sisters in his will and because he had in his possession facts that would be very damaging to the late Lewis M. Rutherford and others.

The head and front of an alleged conspiracy against him he considered to be Rutherford, the astronomer, and one of America's most famous scientific men.

Chaloner had, he asserted, come into possession of information which he considered reflected on the astronomer, and had written to him about it. Rutherford replied to him, the witness alleged, and the correspondence was put in a safe deposit box in a New York bank. This safe deposit box, Chaloner went on to declare, was blown open while he was confined in Bloomingdale in order to permit the late Prescott H. Butler, who was the committee of his person, to take these incriminating documents and destroy them. The witness continued to denounce well known persons. Referring to members of his own family he said:

"For years I had wondered how Lewis S. Chanler and Winthrop A. Chanler had ever managed to conceive the really clever scheme by which I was suddenly railroaded to the asylum. It was such a magnificently contrived and executed piece of rascality, involving such complete knowledge of the complicated lunacy laws of New York, that I was astounded that the Chanlers could plan it out.

"Not until 1898, when I found that the bank had permitted Prescott H. Butler to act like a yeggman and blow up my safety deposit box where important letters lay, was the veil lifted from my eyes. Then I understood that the great brain of old Rutherford had been the first plotter, and that Henry L. Morris had been the engineer of the underground railway which shot me from City Hall park to the Bloomingdale asylum." Morris, a former lawyer and manager of the Chanler estate, was a director of the Bloomingdale asylum.

Chaloner, at the end of his testimony yesterday afternoon, said: "Let me put it in the record whom it involves."

He then proceeded to name a number of women well known in society, saying of one of them:

"If married already, I may not know of it. I have been too busy with my own affairs to follow the details of the lives of the self-advertising New York 400, in whose holy of holies I am carrying the war by exposing what sort of man these people are sprung from."

BESSETTE HELD IN $25,000

Former Bank Teller an Alleged Embezzler of Nearly $25,000

Providence, Oct. 7.—Hermengilde Bessette, who was indicted by the grand jury on four counts charging embezzlement amounting to nearly $25,000 from the People's Savings bank of Woonsocket, pleaded not guilty to each count when arraigned in the superior court here. He furnished bonds for $2500.

Bessette's appearance on the embezzling charges followed his alleged confession of the peculations to Bank Commissioner Goodwin. Bessette had been teller of the bank for ten years.

KILLED BY SIX-FOOT FALL

Fate of Man Accustomed to Working High In Air

Providence, Oct. 7.—After risking his life for years working high up in the air on the iron frames of tall buildings, Walter Bergman, an iron construction worker of Cambridge, Mass., met his death by a fall from a six-foot fence.

Bergman was employed on a new building here and fell from the fence head foremost, dying before an ambulance reached him.

SPORTING "DOPE"

By B. A.

Don't Knock, Just Boost.—B. A.

There was a record breaking attendance at the Quincy High-Brighton High football game yesterday, caused by the appearance on the scene of millions of those "pesky" little fellows called mosquitoes. Never before have such swarms of these insects been noticeable at Merrymount park and it is doubtful if any of them, or even their ancestors, ever attended a football game. During the game, the spectators were kept busy swinging branches in an effort to ward off the stinging attacks.

Quincy High, as a whole, was at its best yesterday and if the local boys can display the same form next Tuesday against the strong South Boston High combination, they surely will annex another victory. The coming contests promises to be a warm one and Coach Staff will spare no efforts to round out the team into the proper shape for the occasion.

Holmes showed considerable improvement and each rush of his netted from ten to fifteen yards. That tackle play which was tried out, proved to be most successful and Blackmur and Johnson know just how to carry it out. The tackling of the local line players was exceptionally good and the team should now do some work before the season is drawn to a close.

The entries for the first amateur boxing exhibition, for St. Mary's hall, Monday evening, October 16, under the auspices of the Quincy A. A. are already coming in fast and it is expected that a number of prominent amateurs will participate in the various bouts. A number of those who participated in the Armory A. A. tournament last evening have already signified their intentions of competing in the local series, and the fans of the city are sure to see some fine contests at this coming attraction.

De Mar, as predicted by the Ledger, won the Brockton Marathon, and it now seems that he is worthy of being sent as an American representative to the Olympic games in Sweden.

Frank Bruce of the Italian American A. C. quit the Marathon race yesterday just as he reached the fair grounds. At this time he was ninth man and would have received a medal had he finished the race under the conditions required.

The St. John's A. A. football team has organized for the season and practise has been called for today. The first game will be played next Saturday against the South Quincy team.

END OF LAURIER CABINET

Borden Conservative Regime About to Begin In Canada

Ottawa, Oct. 7.—The Laurier ministry has resigned and Premier-elect Borden has accepted the call of Earl Grey to form a cabinet.

The resignation of the Liberal government took place at government house yesterday afternoon, following a cabinet sitting. Laurier conferred with Grey for only a short period, after which the governor general sent a messenger to the residence of the incoming premier and asked him to undertake the task of forming a new government. Borden requested a few days to complete the selection of a new ministry.

It is announced semi-officially that the personnel of the Borden cabinet will be published on Monday.

QUINCY HIGH WINS

Brighton kicked to the local boys and a series of rushes enabled them to place the ball in the middle of the field. Holmes circled right end for 40 yards. On the next rush Crane went through centre for 5 and the same distance was gained on the succeeding play on a tackle rush by Johnson. On the next rush, Page went over for a touchdown. Score Quincy H. S. 15, Brighton H. S. 0.

Third Period.

In the third period the visitors seemed to play a better game. On the kick off Ginty, the full back rushed the ball 40 yards before being downed. The ball was given to Quincy on the failure of Brighton to gain downs and punting was resorted to by both sides. Quincy had the ball in its possession during the greater part of the period, but the best that could be done was a gain of ten yards by Johnson on his tackle play. Towards the end of the period, successive rushes by the local boys, enabled them to place the ball within striking distance of the goal.

Fourth Period.

The last period was the most exciting part of the game. Quincy worked a successful onside kick, and "Pete" Chapman went over for a touchdown. In trying to tackle him, Ginty, the clever fullback of the opposing eleven, struck against a post and was dazed for a considerable length of time. Johnson kicked a very pretty goal.

Score—Quincy H. S. 21, Brighton H. S. 0.

Brighton kicked to the local boys again. The ball was interchanged but Quincy on next acquiring it began to make great gains. It was now on the middle of the field, and on the first rush Holmes gained 10 yards. Halvosa went through for five. The forward pass was tried and, was most carefully executed. Johnson got the ball on the pass and went over for the final touchdown of the game. The kick for a goal failed, and the contest was over about a minute afterwards.

LARGEST GUARANTEED CIRCULATION IN THE CITY

Vol. 26 No. 233 QUINCY, MASS. MONDAY EVENING, OCTOBER 9, 1911 PRICE TWO CENTS

SMALL BLAZE THIS MORNING

Fire in Cellar of House in Russel Park Quickly Extinguished

LOSS TRIFLING

The alarm from Box 126 at 9.05 this morning, was for a slight fire in the cellar of the house at 33 Russell Park, owned by Miss Annie L. Prescott and occupied by Mrs. Edward Russell. Mrs. Russell had been burning some rubbish in the furnace and among it was an old book. This did not burn very well and it was taken out. After what fire there was in the book had been put out, as she supposed, it was thrown into an ash barrel.

A little later quite a blaze had been started, causing quite a thick smoke which gave warning of the fire. Just at this time Councilman Nowland and John Lynch were coming up the street and seeing the smoke, Mr. Lynch ran for the fire alarm box and sounded the alarm. Mr. Nowland ran into the cellar and filling a coal hod with water succeeded in putting the fire out. He was none too soon however for the flames had communicated to the bottom of the floor and a few minutes more and a good fire would have been in progress.

The fire damage was slight, although the house was filled with smoke. The auto chemical arrived at the fire after the recall had sounded.

NEW BOAT LANDING

Is Sure to be Built at Houghs Neck by the City

$2500 APPROPRIATED

The public landing to be built at Houghs Neck, for which the City Council has appropriated the sum of $2,500 will be much appreciated by the summer residents of this resort as well as by others who desire to visit the place in yachts. As it is now, there is no place where a stranger can make a landing except on private property. While visiting yachtsmen are always made welcome at the Quincy yacht club float, there are many who are not affiliated with any of the yacht clubs of the state and are therefore in the nature of trespassers when they make a landing, even if they were allowed to do so. There are some other landings at the beach but they are also private so that it is impossible to use any of them.

While the appropriation made for the landing will probably not be expended this year, the season is so far advanced, it will be done early in the spring of 1912. This is an assured fact as the Mayor has approved the order for the amount stated above.

The new landing is to be located at the shore end of Bay View avenue on land recently purchased by the city for that purpose. Knowing to what use the city intended to put the land the owners sold it at a very small price.

Along the shore end of the landing, a stone wall is to be built. This will protect the embankment from being washed away. The high tides of the winters have made great inroads into this embankment and if a retaining wall was not built, as contemplated, it would not be many years before the shore end of the landing place would be entirely gone.

The landing consists of a run and two floats which will be located just south of the steamboat wharf, and they extend into the water to near the end of the present steamboat wharf. In a way the steamboat wharf will be a protection for the landing, and yachts and other boats which tie up there during a storm will be in the lee and therefore considerably protected. As the channel also extends by the end of the steamboat wharf yachts will have little difficulty in making a landing at any tide.

Turkey has a very good army, but she can't do anything to Italy with it, other than capture such banana stands as may be found about Constantinople.

ANCIENTS HOME FROM BERMUDA

Celebration Declared Most Successful Affair Ever Held

THOSE ON TRIP

The celebration of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery, held at Bermuda last week, and at which a number of Quincy people were in attendance, was pronounced by all present to have been a delightful one and all agreed that it was the most successful affair ever attempted by the members of the military organization. Everything was done by the inhabitants of Bermuda that would add to the pleasure of the visitors.

The members of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery marched through the streets in full uniform, carrying guns, without shells. It was the first time that such an occurrence took place in Bermuda, and the fact that King George and King Edward had been members, had a tendency to create great anxiety among the natives with regard to the event. Colonel J. Stearns Cushing, a member of the governor's council from this district was chief of staff.

On Tuesday evening a monster banquet was held in the Hamilton hotel. The regular military band, together with the Salem Cadet Band furnished the music and all local people acknowledged having spent the time of their lives. Many of the Quincy residents present spent the greater part of the time visiting various points of interest.

The local members of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company present were:

Lieutenant William F. Hall,
Lieutenant Frank O. Dean,
George Huey,
Henry Cavanaugh,
Sergeant George H. Wilson.
Alfred Remick,
Dr. Alonzo Durgin,
Benjamin Johnson.

Henry P. Kittredge, prominently known in political circles, took the trip with the Ancients and arrived home Sunday. Mr. Kittredge has travelled extensively throughout the United States and he asserted that the Bermuda celebration was about the best he had ever attended.

IMPORTANT MATTER WAS CONSIDERED

The Galahad Brotherhood of Christ church discussed, yesterday, the topic, "That the city of Quincy should equip its fire department with automobile apparatus," with such mildness and sobriety that even the most modest of men would be unable to become embarrassed. While much of the discussion proved to be in favor of the subject, it concluded that the city under the weight of its present debt should not undertake to change the present system. If the present debt could be removed and the tax rate decreased, then the city may entertain the motion.

The topic for next Sunday will not be taken up until October 22, as the Brotherhood are to participate in the Men's Bible class parade of greater Boston, scheduled to start at 3.00 P. M. Sunday, October 15. They are assigned to Division 6 in charge of S. D. Abbott.

This is the third annual demonstration and it is hoped that Quincy will be well represented. The parade will start from the Boston Common ending at the American league baseball grounds where the men will listen to special speakers. The grand stand at the grounds will be opened at 2.30 P. M. for the lady friends of the organizations. The Brotherhood was also very fortunate in having with them at its Sunday meeting a visitor from the Davis class, Calvary Baptist church, Quincy.

BODY FOUND IN QUARRY HOLE

Supposed to be That of Gus Neimi Missing Three Weeks

MAY HAVE BEEN SUICIDE

The body of a man, believed to be that of Gus Neimi, was found Sunday afternoon floating in the Shawmut quarry, which is located between East Milton and West Quincy. From appearances the body had been in the water for two weeks. A search of the clothing brought to light a gold watch, $160 in money and a ticket to Finland. Men near by when the body was found claim that it was that of Neimi.

The man boarded on Station street and had been employed for some time by the Granite Railway Co. as a quarryman. At his boarding house it was said that he had been absent for about three weeks and that it was supposed that he had gone to Finland, where it is said he had a wife. He has a daughter who is reported to live at 8 California avenue. Neimi was about 42 years of age.

Medical Examiner Jones gave it as his opinion the man had committed suicide. The body was taken to Hall's undertaking rooms.

SPREADING RAILS CAUSE CAR TO LEAVE TRACK

Passengers "Shaken Up" When East Weymouth Car Crashes Into Large Tree

Two Reported to Have Been Cut by Flying Glass

The rear trucks of the 3.05 car out of Quincy for East Weymouth left the iron Sunday afternoon, as the car was rounding the curve between River and North streets, the forward end of the car crashing against a large elm tree. The car was in charge of Conductor John Esson and Motorman Charles Battson. When the omtorman felt the car leaving the track he tried to apply the emergency brake but was unable to do so before the car struck the tree. The force of the blow filled the front vestibule with broken glass, but the motorman stuck to his post and shut off the power.

The force of the blow also broke some of the windows in the car throwing it over the passengers and creating quite a little excitement for a few minutes.

There were fifty passengers in the car at the time and they were considerably shaken up. Two passengers are reported to have been cut by flying glass. They were Roy Elms of Mattapan and George Guston of 124 Upland road. Elms had several cuts about the face caused by the flying glass and Guston suffered from a nervous shock. He was taken to the office of Dr. W. J. Middleton nearly opposite where the accident happened.

The front of the car was somewhat damaged and most of the glass in the windows was broken. Another car was sent to the scene and the passengers were transferred. Traffic was delayed but a few minutes. The cause of the accident is said to have been due to the spreading of the rails.

CLERGYMAN ACCEPTS CALL TO YARMOUTH

Rev. R. J. Davis of the Calvary Baptist church, who the Ledger announced last week had received a call to become the pastor of a church at Yarmouth, Me., tendered his resignation as pastor of the Quincy chuch, Sunday. His letter of resignation was read at the close of the morning service by John Mundie, clerk of the parish. The letter stated that he would begin his duties at his new charge the first Sunday in November. No action was taken on the resignation, Sunday, but it will be considered at a meeting of the parish to be held later.

LOOK UP OLD TICKETS.

A railroad ticket purchased nearly a quarter of a century ago was accepted on the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad between Hanover and North Abington recently. It was issued by the Old Colony railroad, June 16, 1888, and was numbered 649. It was fresh in appearance.

SAFETY IN QUINCY.

Those fearing the canine tribe should find Quincy a safe place. The city council has just passed an ordinance forbidding dogs to bark or bite.—Brockton Times.

REPUBLICAN RALLY ON WEDNESDAY

A meeting of the Republican City committee and the local Republican club will be held at Union hall, Wednesday evening. The meeting will be addressed by Mayor Charles E. Hatfield of Newton, who is also chairman of the Republican state committee. The rally is called for eight o'clock. Mr. Hatfield is a brilliant speaker and the meeting will therefore be an interesting one. Other leaders in the party from out of town are also expected to be present and address the meeting.

NAMES REQUIRED.

Someone asks, how many names is it necessary to get to become a candidate for Mayor at the coming municipal caucuses under the new primary law. It is understood that only five names from each ward are necessary, either for Councilmen at Large or for Mayor, while but five names are required to place a man in nomination for the office of Ward Councilman. This will probably mean that there will be candidates to burn for all offices to be nominated at the municipal caucus.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

The dispatches from Tripoli were wired from Djerba. This makes a djerky djolt in our ears.

With the hunting season just opened in Maine comes the report of an accident; a guide mistaken for a deer and killed.

Like other children with a new toy, Italy thinks she will go out in the back yard and play with her modern warships.

The Vali's palace at Tripoli was laid in ruins by the Italian bombardment, and the Vali may be thankful that he can sleep out of doors and avoid house cleaning.

Enforcement of the Sherman law throttles business, says George Perkins. No doubt a slightly tighter collar will prevent the swallowing of so many mergers.

The greatest naval display in our history takes place at New York, Nov. 1, but every elevator boy will know all about the mistakes that were made in placing the armor belt line.

The fortifications of Tripoli might have been useful to prevent the boys from getting over into the orchard, but they do not seem of much use against modern guns.

The English Suffragettes are coming over to visit us, and if the features of their English campaign are reproduced here, Mr. Taft will have to tie down his door bell.

The county fair crowds who insist that the aviator shall give them their money's worth by going up in a gale seem to think a man's life is worth no more than a fifty cent ticket.

The automobilists complain bitterly of the New Jersey laws, but many of the people of that state feel that some folks can't be trusted on the public roads with anything higher powered than a wheel-barrow.

Now that Dr. Wiley is the whole thing in the bureau of chemistry, we wish he would take up the matter of these frozen wind desserts which house keepers are substituting for good honest old pie.

Three thousand Bibles to be distributed among the hotels in Boston would indicate that Boston homes are all right but that visitors to the hotels of the Hub stand in need of spiritual help.

The railroad companies took all possible pains for Mr. Taft's trip, except that they omitted the most necessary thing of all. That was to deport the local reception committees and keep them in solitary confinement until the president got by.

ADMIRAL SCHLEY.

The unfortunate controversy of ten years ago centering about Admirals Schley and Sampson is now so forgotten that all of us can unite to lay a tribute of honor on the grave of the gallant officer who has just passed away.

Admiral Schley was a typical sea fighter of the old school. Had he lived in the days of Captain Kidd, he might either have been a pirate or a destroyer of pirates, but he would have been the first to place his foot on the enemy's deck.

Admiral Schley was a man of warm impulses and eager action. He was not one of the modern school of strategists who do their fighting from the rear of the line and issue orders by signals or telephone.

When he commanded the Greeley relief expedition to the Arctic ocean, he himself occupied the crow's nest on the mast head, an enclosure about the size of a barrel. He would not go down to the warm cabin for his meals, but had a cold bite brought up to him.

His tendency to be in the thick of the fighting appeared back in 1871, when he led an expedition to deal with Koreans who had captured a trading ship. At the head of his men he descended into a ravine, ascended a hill and scaled a fort,—all the way unprotected from the fire of the brown men behind the intrenchments. A heavy stone knocked him over, but he picked himself upand entered the fort with the first of his men.

When he came back from the Greeley expedition, the president unexpectedly made him chief of the Bureau of Equipment. Schley modestly stammered, "But I didn't suppose,—I don't think—I've merited an honor like that." But Schley had the gift of command, and always had the reputation of having a "happy ship."

He may have had the faults that go with his impulsive temperament, but he was a gallant soldier and high minded gentleman, and his easy accessibility and winsome manners made him a popular idol.

MASSACHUSETTS CORN SHOW.

A Great Educational Feature—What It Means to Massachusetts—the Program.

Massachusetts farmers are supporting the managers of the Corn Show to be held in Springfield November 7, 8 and 9, in a way and with an enthusiasm which argues well for the success of his effort to show what the old Bay State can do in the production of the king of grains. There is every indication that every inch of available space in the big State Armory at Springfield, the use of which has been secured for the show, will be taken.

The cash prizes offered amount to more than $3,000, so divided that every part of the state will be represented on the list of winners. Special attention has been given the boys and girls in the prize list, and there is promise of a heavy junior entry list.

Headquarters for the Corn Show have been opened in the Board of Trade rooms at Sprinfield, this organization lending every possible assistance to make the show a success. Mr. F. W. Hatch, a man of wide experience in the management of similar undertakings in the Middle West has been secured as manager. As assistant manager and corn expert, Mr. A. D. Farrar, a practical agriculturist and graduate of the Massachusetts Agricultural College brings to the work a wide acquaintance throughout the state and a knowledge of corn growing in Massachusetts.

The significance of this first Corn Show by the old Bay State alone is made clear in the slogan which the managers and those behind the idea have adopted "For the Advancement of Massachusetts Agriculture."

"We want Massachusetts farmers to realize the tremendous possibilities undeveloped on their own farms and we want the remainder of the citizens of the Old Bay State to get a true idea of what farming in Massachusetts means and can be made to mean," says Prof. Hurd of the Massachusetts Agricultural College, who is Secretary of the Corn Show and who is spreading his enthusiasm broadcast throughout the state.

FOOL NUMBER 7,144.

A fool there was, and he went away—
Even as you and I.
His home was a pleasant place to stay
A dandy place for a holiday—
But the fool was a fool, and he went away—
Even as you and I.

Oh, the wits we've lacked, and the grips we've packed
In summer time and fall,
And the times when having had our fling
We've come home gravely wondering
Just why we went at all!

A fool there was, and his savings spent—
Even as you and I.
The roof of a Pullman for his tent,
And lived the life of an emigrant—
But a fool will follow his natural bent—
Even as you and I.

Oh, the fools we meet, and the dust we eat,
And the tendency to roam,
The hardships that we all abhor—
And the rest that we are looking for Awaiting us at home!
—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

—One-thord of the buildings erected in Chicago the past year are of concrete construction. Seattle is the next city to insist most on the concrete building and Philadelphia holds third place. The entire country is making more of the fire-proof methods of building than ever before, and the effects will soon be noted in the reports of losses from fires in cities.—Worcester Telegram.

WHO'S WHO IN QUINCY--WHY!

One of the prominent citizens of that part of Quincy known as Atlantic is Frank L. Badger, where he has resided since 1888. He was born in Milton in 1853 and received his early education in the public schools of his native town. He learned the business of a steam and hot water fitter although for many years he has followed the occupation of surveyor of lumber, and he holds the position as deputy surveyor of lumber, at which he is still employed.

He has been a member of the Republican ward committee from Ward Six for many years. His first public office was that of Councilman from Ward Six where he served three years, namely in 1895, '96, and '97.

In 1900 he was appointed by Mayor Hall as a member of the board of Sewer Commissioners and served for three years being chairman of the board in 1902. In 1901 he was elected as a representative in the general court from the Fifth Norfolk district and served during the years 1901 and 1902.

He is an enthusiastic yachtsman and a member of the Squantum yacht club. He is also an Odd Fellow, being a member of the lodge and encampment and a member of the Ancient Order of United Workmen. In his local ward he takes especial pride, and was one of the prime movers in the citizen's committee who for several years have had in charge the celebration of the national holiday.

SILENCE THE MUFFLER.

Sidney S. Gorham, the Western Automobile Expert, Urges oh the Crusade Against Unnecessary Noise.

"Since the motor car has come into such general use and the early antagonism against it has so largely disappeared, it is most unfortunate that the use of the muffler cut-out is not prohibited by law in every city and heavy penalities provided for the violation of the statute or ordinance governing the subject."

This is the view of Sidney S. Gorham, of Chicago, author of the present Illinois automobile law, organizer of the Illinois State Automobile Association, and recognized as the leading expert in automobile law in the West Mr. Gorham's practice has included almost every phase of automobile law and he couples with this a wide experience as a practical motorist.

"The muffler cut-out," Mr. Gorhan continued, "is in a great measure responsible for the existing antagonism of the public abainst the motorist As a practical motorist of ten years experience, my opinion is that the muffler cut-out is not a necessary feature of the equipment of the modern moto car and that its use as a warning signal should not be permitted.

"In many sections of the country, the subject of the regulation of warnin gsignals is being considered by the various legislative bodies and on this subject experience has left no room for experiment. The adequate warning signal must have a harsh, abrupt note, that gives the impression of imminent danger. A warning signal is not a play-toy. It has a serious mission and I believe it unwise to use as a warning signal any device which lacks the harshness, the abrupt note that is immediately recognized as a warning of danger.

"It is not so much the character of the warning signal as its unnecessary use which is objectionable. That the use of an adequate warning signal upon motor cars is a necessity is almost universally recognized. and. indeed, required by law in Illinois and nearly all of the United States. That this signal should be capable of producing a sufficient volume of sound to be heard under all circumstances is equally necessary, and that the bulb horn is both undependable and so feeble in sound that the rattle of surrounding traffic frequently makes it impossible to be heard, is a matter of common knowledge.

"The continuous use of any sort of warning signal is uncalled for and objectionable and should be prohibited by law. It is, however, just as reasonable to prohibit the use of a given warning signal, admittedly adequate for the purpose for which it is used, merely because its improper and unnecessary use may amount to a nuisance, as it would be to sever a man's vocal cords in order to prevent him from being guilty of disorderly conduct or a breach of peace by shouting or singing in public places.

"The solution of both problems is not to deprive the individual of the power of speech, nor to prohibit the use upon a motor car of an adequate warning signal, but to regulate the use of each by law. As in cases of reckless driving the ill-considered and unnecessary use of a warning signal of any sort by the irresponsible motorist results in the introduction and frequent passage of unnecessarily drastic laws and ordinances."

ROOSTER COAL BRIQUETS
NO SLATE NO CLINKERS
THE NEW ANTHRACITE COAL
ROOSTER BRIQUETS are made from the choicest small Scranton Anthracite coal mined in Pennsylvania, called TWENTIETH CENTURY CHESTNUT size
Just consider for a moment what we offer here in this 20th CENTURY CHESTNUT.
First, 2000 pounds of clean, pure, hard coal without a rock or a piece of slate.
Second, fuel that cannot form into a clinker, by any known method of firing, consequently the linings and grates last indefinitely.
Third, they are made in nut size, being equally convenient for furnace heaters, open grates, as well as stoves; therefore, only one storage bin is necessary.
Fourth, and very IMPORTANT, the quality of this fuel is the SAME EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR, not a good ton today, and nothing like it the next time, in other words, when you once learn how to regulate your drafts you have nothing more to learn about burning BRIQUETS.
Fifth, no more sifting ashes these Briquets burn out clean. They require less wood to kindle.
Be sure to ask for "ROOSTERS" and get the Briquet made from pure Scranton Coal, from the largest Briquet plant in the country. They are better than coal, will last as long and cost less.

At 7.45 a cottage prayer meeting will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Roberts, 202 Fayette street and also at 7.45 the Rand class of young men will hold their first social of the season in the chapel. Col. Henry L. Kincaide of Quincy will give an address on "The Recent European Trip of the Boston Chamber of Commerce." All the men of the church and community invited.

Wednesday afternoon at 3 the regular business meeting of the Social and Benevolent society will be held in the chapel. As the year's program will be discussed it is hoped that every member will be present. All the ladies of the congregation are also invited to be present.

Wednesday evening at 7.45 the Nearer and Farther Lights society will meet at the home of Miss Eleanor Dunn, 251 Newport avenue. Subject: "Being a Missionary." Leader, Miss Marion Corey.

Friday evening at 7.45 the meeting for praise prayer and testimony will be held in the chapel. We will consider the third of several meditations on The Character of Jesus: Subject: "His Reasonableness."

WOLLASTON METHODIST.

Sunday was a rally and red letter day for the Wollaston Methodist church. At the morning service there was a very large attendance. After the sermon by the pastor, a baptism was held. The following were received into the church: Mr. and Mrs. Rhodes, Mr. and Mrs. Carter, Mrs. Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Heath, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Painten, Mr. Allen Painten, Miss Blanch Rhodes, Miss Florence Palmer, Miss Mildred Dhuman, Miss Marion Clifford. As the official board gave the hand of welcome to these new members, the choir sang "Blest be the Tie that Binds."

The Sunday school had the largest attendance in its history and seven new names were added to the roll of members. There was inspiring singing and Miss Mildred Dhuman and Miss Florence Bennett sang a duet. Mr. Bromley, the new secretary of the Y. M. C. A. spoke. He said that the Sunday school should train the scholars to attend church. Mrs. Dewsnap's class was given the banner for the best per cent attendance in the last four weeks. This banner can be won by other classes in the same manner and by adding new members to the class and help in reaching the 300.

Miss Marion Nevers, the new Deaconess spoke in the Junior League. Miss Chamberlin led this service. Mrs. F. H. Morgan led the Epworth League. She gave a very inspiring talk. At the close of the service she conducted an altar service.

Mr. Wesley Rhodes spoke in the evening. He showed how each and every one were paying too much to the things of the world and too little to Christ.

Mr. Brooks led the praise meeting and sang solos at both services.

Large audiences were in attendance at both meetings.

CHRIST CHURCH.

The regular services were held in Christ church Sunday and were as follows:—Holy Communion at 8.00 A. M., Morning prayer and sermon at 10.30. Sunday school and Galahad Brotherhood at 12.05. Evening prayer and address at 7 o'clock. At the evening service, the rector, Rev. R. E. Armstrong delivered an introductory address, preparatory to a series of addresses to be delivered on Sunday evenings on the subject, "Confirmation." In brief, he outlined, what Confirmation means and the mistakes usually made in considering this sacred rite. Confirmation means, the strengthening in body and religious life. It has great spiritual power.

In considering Confirmation, first there should be the preparation of the heart, and secondly the preparation of the mind. These are very important factors.

The excuses usually made are, first, youth. Some say that they are too young and therefore cannot clearly understand the real meaning of this serious step in life. The second excuse is that they are not good enough. None of us are perfect, but it is to make us better, to strengthen our souls and bodies, to keep us from temptation, etc., that we receive this sacred rite, (the laying on of hands) or Confirmation.

Some think of Confirmation as merely a matter of form and after being Confirmed fail to be regular in their Communion. It is not the Confirmation that strengthens us, but the bread and wine, the body and blood of our Lord Jesus Christ, received in the Lord's Supper.

Classes for Confirmation will be held in the rectory on Wednesday at 4 and 8 o'clock. The class at 4 o'clock is for the juniors and at 8 for the adults and juniors that cannot attend at 4 o'clock. On Sunday evenings the rector will outline briefly the substance of the Confirmation talks given on Fridays.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

Rally day exercises were observed at the morning service yesterday in the First Presbyterian church by the scholars of the Bible school. About 250 scholars, teachers and officers being present. The program consisted of chorus singing and responsive reading by the school and chorus by the primary department.

Rev. Mr. Matheson gave a short talk to the scholars and remarks were made by Mr. Clark.

The scholars after the exercises marched down to the vestry of the church and received little celuloid Rally day flag pins and the usual Sunday school papers.

The Christian Endeavor and evening services were well attended this being the last of Rally week, the different departments and organizations now start on their winter's work.

FINNISH CONGREGATIONAL.

The pastor returned from his trip to New York on Saturday reporting an active time in church engagements.

An important meeting of the C. E. was held on Saturday night at which time it was decided to have the Finnish C. E. become a part of the regular Norfolk Union. This will be done at a meeting on Tuesday night at Wollaston.

Sunday school on Sunday at 10.30. The pastor gave a long talk about his trip to New York.

At the regular morning service the subject of the sermon was on "Imitations." The talk was enjoyed by a large congregation, as was the one at 7.30 P. M., on "Three Crowns."

On Thursday evening the Men's club will give a "Something Good" party. This is in the nature of a surprise which will be greatly enjoyed by all attending. The admission will be twenty-five cents.

Saturday night a social C. E. meeting will be held.

Next Sunday the Rev. John J. Walker will deliver an address in the afternoon at 4 o'clock. Mr. Walker is a noted churchman, at present secretary of the Home Missionary society.

WOLLASTON UNITARIAN CHURCH.

This church accepts the Religion of Jesus, holding in accordance with his teaching, that practical religion is summed up in love to God and love to man.

We cordially invite to our working fellowship any who, while differing from us in belief, are in general sympathy with our spirit and our practical aims.

The first meeting of the Wollaston Unitarian club will be held in the vestry tomorrow, Tuesday, Oct. 10th. Dinner will be served at 6.30 P. M. Lafayette G. Blair, the well known attorney of Boston, will speak on Giants and Pigmes." The club, as in the past, so now is in flourishing condition having a full membership and a waiting list.

Rev. Carl G. Horst gave an address at the monthly meeting of the Women's Alliance of Hyde Park this afternoon.

The National Conference of Unitarian and other Christian churches meets in Washington, D. C., Oct. 23-26. The delegates from our church are the Rev. Carl G. Horst, Miss H. E. Turner and Mrs. Charles L. Monroe.

Miss Mildred Polk will conduct the devotional service of the Young People' Religious Union meeting next Sunday evening and Mr. Wesley Rhodes of the Fore River Works will give an address on "The Joy of the Task."

The Neighborhood Church of Christ in Stratford, Conn., has voted to join the Unitarian Fellowship.

After careful deliberation the Boston Benevolent Fraternity of Unitarian churches has voted to withdraw from active participation in the management of Morgan Memorial.

During the Provincial Exposition in Calgary, the Untarian church, of which our former minister, the Rev. Frank Wright Pratt is pastor, established a temporary day nursery and mothers' rest. They put up a large tent (40x28 feet), furnished with cots, chairs, ice-chest, etc., where babies and children were fed and tended and mothers supplied with a cheering cup of tea.

The Unitarian Church Helpers will hold the first meeting of the season Wednesday, Oct. 11 at 2 o'clock.

The Young People's choir and Orchestra will meet with Mrs. W. E. Rowe, 132 Winthrop avenue, next Saturday evening.

A special collection will be taken next Sunday morning to help defray the expenses of the National Conference of Unitarian churches in Washington, D. C.

FIRST CHURCH.

Rev. George Hale Reed of Belmont, occupied the pulpit at the First church Sunday morning and preached an interesting sermon on "Ambition," before a large congregation. After the church service he made an address to the Sunday school on "Responsibility."

The first meeting of the Women's Alliance was held in the chapel this afternoon and the meeting of the Junior Alliance will be held this evening at 7.30.

FRATERNAL SPIRIT GROWING.

Rev. William R. Taylor, minister of the Brick church in Rochester, N. Y., one of the largest Presbyterian societies in the country, invited Rev. J. H. Crooker, minister of the Roslindale Unitarian church, to preach in his pulpit Sunday. At that time a week's campaign of religious effort was inaugurated in the church Institute. This is probably the first time a liberal preacher has been asked to address a gathering of Presbyterians. The reason given by Dr. Taylor is the desire of the pastor and people to hear the author of "The Church of Today." —Transcript.

WOMAN SENDS AUTO OVER EMBANKMENT

Occupants of Machine Barely Escape Instant Death

Boston, Oct. 9.—Smashing through a wooden fence at the foot of Cumberland street, an automobile containing three women last night plunged over a twelve-foot embankment onto the tracks of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad before a moving train.

The women were hurled ten yards from the wrecked automobile on the outbound express tracks a fraction of a second before a local thundered by on the first track, shearing the rear parts of the tonneau from the machine. Only one of the three women was severely injured.

Mrs. Frank Kenney was operating the car and escaped with lacerations of the hands and limbs and possibly a broken rib.

Miss Louise Marston was seriously shaken up and her right leg was lacerated and contused. The most seriously injured is Miss Katherine Sutherland who is in a semi-conscious condition, suffering from concussion of the brain and painful contusions on her hips.

CENTRALIZES WORK

Meyer Adopts British System of Navy Yard Management

Washington, Oct. 9.—Casting aside all scientific systems of navy yard management advocated in this country, because he believed they involved too much detail and required serious changes in the civil service rules of employment, Secretary of the Navy Meyer will import from England the system of management in use by Vickers, Limited, at the Barrow-in-Furness ship engine and ordnance works. This, in substance, was officially announced at the navy department. The secretary studied this system during his recent inspection of European naval works.

In the effect, the new system will provide for the centralization of work, and allows the commandant of a yard to know just what is being done on a particular job without having to seek the information from others having the work under their charge.

NO TRACE OF "PROOFS"

Cook's Polar "Record" Box Secured

Copenhagen, Oct. 9.—A message from Greenland says that Knud Rasmussen, the Danish explorer, failed to discover any traces of Captain Elmar Mikkelsen and his companions, who, after having been rescued on the coast of East Greenland last year, left their party to search for traces of the lost Explorer Erichsen.

Fruchen, another Danish explorer, who accompanied Rasmussen, obtained from Cook's Eskimo assistant, Etukishuk, the box which Cook left at Etah, and alleged to contain the instruments and papers which would prove his polar discovery claims.

The box contains only a broken sextant and other instruments, but no papers. According to Fruchen, Etukishuk said that Cook's story of his trip to the pole was absolutely untrue.

250 CHILDREN SAVED BY NUNS

Flames Rapidly Sweep Through a Haven For Girls

WATER SUPPLY IS INADEQUATE

Wheeling, W. Va., Oct. 9.—Fire destroyed the Home of the Good Shepherd, at Edgington lake, two miles east of this city and drove 250 scantily clad girls and nuns into the streeets. The blaze is supposed to have been caused by a spark of incense used in benediction in the chapel. The loss will exceed $50,000, and is covered by insurance.

The nuns performed many feats of heroism and daring in rushing through the dormitories arousing the girls, and, in many instances, carrying and dragging the young ones to safety. Two of the nuns are seriously ill from the nervous excitement of their work in rescuing their charges.

The home is a haven for girls ranging in age from 5 years upward. The structure was of wood and the flames spread with almost incredible rapidity, so that the children, when aroused from their sleep, had barely time to escape.

When the fire was discovered, all the girls were asleep in the dormitories. The only ones awake were the watchmen and the nuns in charge of the dormitories.

As soon as the fire was seen, the signal for the fire drill was given. Under the nuns in charge, the girls in each dormitory formed in line. High on the hill, the building was swept by a strong wind and it was seeen in a few minutes that the structure was doomed.

Its position, so far above the rest of the city, made it impossible to get anywhere near an adequate supply of water. So swift was the spread of the flames that the girls had only time to snatch up blankets from their beds, in which to wrap themselves, as the nuns ordered them to file out.

The priests attached to the institution aided in marshalling the girls through the corridors and down the broad main stairway in good order.

Nearly all of them were safely out of the building and standing in line on the lawn when it was found that several of the girls from the upper dormitories had been cut off by the flames, beginning to sweep the stairway.

They reached the windows on the second floor in safety. They were told not to jump until the priests and watchmen got some blankets, which they held for the girls to jump into. None of them was seriously hurt by the leap.

For a time it was thought several of the girls had perished, but a search of the ruins and a count of the inmates showed that all had been saved. All were given food and clothing and shelter in homes in the vicinity of the fire.

WHITNEY AGAINST FOSS

Former Candidate For Governor Will Support Frothingham

Boston, Oct. 9.—Henry M. Whitney will support Louis A. Frothingham for governor. He is opposed to the re-election of Governor Foss. The news that the former candidate for governor, one of the big leaders of the Democratic party in this state, will support Frothingham, is easily the most sensational development of the campaign.

Whitney sent out a statement last night that he would vote for Frothingham because of Foss' stand on the revision of the tariff.

Whitney favors the tariff commission plan of President Taft and the determination of protection from the difference here and abroad in the labor cost of each protected article.

ACTRESS SEEKS DIVORCE

Lulu Glaser Claims That Husband Beat Her "Black and Blue"

Chicago, Oct. 9.—Mrs. Lulu Glaser Herz, known to theatregoers as Lulu Glaser, a singer, has brought suit for divorce from Ralph C. Herz, also known in musical comedy. She charges that he beat and choked her until she was "black and blue," and threatened to kill her.

They were married in New York May 23, 1907, and have been separated since Nov. 10, 1910.

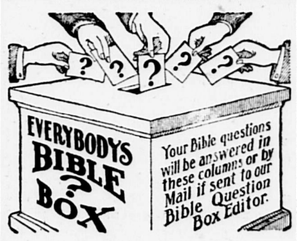
IT'S GREAT FOR GRATES

C. PATCH & SON, Inc.

Office, 1422 Hancock Street, Quincy



Q.—Were Adam and Jesus in any sense representatives of the race?

Answer.—Adam, as the federal head of his family, was its representative in Eden. This is demonstrated by the fact that all of his posterity are involved in everything effecting him; thus the sentence of death which directly passed upon Adam effected and impaired every one of his offspring. Jesus was not a representative in this sense; He was made a man, a "little lower than the angels, that He might, by the grace of God, taste death for every man" (Hebrews ii, 9). He becomes Adam's substitute, his Redeemer. He pays for Adam the penalty demanded by divine Justice. He gave His life "a ransom for all, to be testified in due time" (I Timothy ii, 6). Since Adam was the representative of the whole human family, therefore all of the human race must share with him in the benefits to accrue through the redemption provided by Jesus, his substitute. Thus the death of Jesus is made efficacious to all who will accept the benefit thereof, by believing on the Lord Jesus Christ, as we read: "As in Adam all die, even so all in Christ shall be made alive" (I Corinthians xv, 22).

POLITICS CLASSIFIED.

A politician who is a great walker was out enjoying his favorite recreation. After going a few miles he sat down to rest.

"Whant a life, mister?" asked a good natured farmer driving that way.

The two rode on in silence for a while. Presently the farmer asked:—"Professional man?"

"Yes," answered the politician, who was thinking of a bill he had pending before the house.

After another long pause the farmer observed:—"You ain't a lawyer or you'd be talkin'; you ain't no doctor, 'cause you ais't got a bag, and you ain't a preacher from the looks of you. What is your profession?"

"I am a politician," was the reply.

The farmer gave a snort of disgust. "Politics ain't no profession; politics is disease," said he.—Utica Globe.

"Who is that youngster?" asked the visitor to the sanctum.

"That," replied the editor, "is just the new office boy."

"Oh! I thought his face seemed familiar—"

"Perhaps it is, but his manner is more so."

IN INTEREST OF HEALTH

Indiana Free Lunch Counters and Soda Fountains Are Watched

Indianapolis, Oct. 9.—The free lunch counters of saloons in Indiana are the next targets in the "clean up" fight being waged by the state board of health. Hereafter free lunch counters in saloons must be safeguarded from flies by glass cases, and the utensils used in the distribution of food must be cleaned by methods which will minimize the chances of spreading bacteria.

Soda fountains also are to be watched closely. Glasses, dishes and spoons used in serving soda water and other fountain concoctions will be washed in an entirely different way from the "cold water splash" if the proprietors desire to escape prosecution, the state officers declare.

SAILS IN FOUR STATES

Balloon of Small Capacity Makes Two-Hundred-Mile Trip

Pittsfield, Mass., Oct. 9.—Blown through the night under the beams of a full moon, Jay B. Benton and William Van Sleet, in the little balloon Boston, sailed across Massachusetts, over Connecticut into New York and thence well into New Jersey, landing near Lakewood, having covered the 200 miles frim Pittsfield in eight hours.

The trip was the longest ever made in the balloon Boston, which is of but 30,000 cubic feet capacity, and the most extensive trip made in or from New England the present year.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

BRIEFS

Legal holiday Thursday, Columbus day.

Thomas M. Philbrick of Boston spent Sunday visiting friends in Quincy.

Some great catches of smelts are being made off Houghs Neck and Adams Shore.

Richard M. White of Stoughton visited relatives on Independence avenue Sunday.

Frank Carle has resumed work on the sewer department after a two weeks' vacation.

Joseph Delaney of North Payne street has gone to Philadelphia for a two weeks' sojourn.

The City Council will not meet tonight. The next regular meeting will be held Monlay, Oct. 16.

Mrs. George Marchand of Lowell has been visiting her aunt, Mrs. Mary Rice, on Manet avenue this week.

Frank E. Wall of Dorchester, was the guest of his cousin James E. Wall, on Manet avenue, Sunday.

Wonder what the polls will have this year for a campaign argument. Last year it was the Hancock street paving blocks.

The entertainment committee of the Granite City club are planning for a ladies' night to be held the latter part of October.

A granolithic sidewalk has been built on the west side of Washington street between Maple street and the Y. M. C. A. building.

Only one thing was needed to improve that widening job on Hancock street between Saville and Dimmock streets. The building on the corner of Hancock and Saville streets should have been moved back a few feet.

DEFEAT FOR MONARCHISTS

Portugal's Republican Troops Drive Invaders Into Mountains

Lisbon, Oct. 9.—Semi-official intelligence regarding the monarchist incursion fixes the number of royalists who crossed the Spanish frontier near Vinhaes at 1250.

The Republican troops garrisoning Vinhaes drove the invaders, after fighting an hour and a half, to the more mountainous district in the direction of Spain. The Republican losses were insignificant.

YOUNG TURKS BEGAN WELL

But Their Doom Is Sealed by Taking Wrong Course

PARTITION OF THE EMPIRE

Sir William Ramsay Says It Will Be Accomplished by European Nations —Thinks Italy Is Right In Trying to Stop Stupid Ruin In Tripoli, Where Barbarians Would Shoot a Christian For Mere Pleasure

London, Oct. 9.—Sir William M. Ramsay, discussing the Turkish outlook, declared the dividing up of Turkey among the various nations was proceeding steadily. The first stage of the partition was the arrangement between Germany and Russia about railways in Eastern Asiatic Turkey. The next is the Tripoli affair. He added:

"The Young Turks came into power in 1909, and were gladly welcomed by most of the nations of Europe on the understanding that they would put an end to the helpless and ruinous incapacity of the old Turkish system. A new era was to begin. Brotherhood, peace and prosperity were to reign in Turkey. That hope has been disappointed. There has been nothing but a series of small wars since March, 1908.

"The Young Turks had no possible chance of success without twenty-five years of unbroken peace. When the Young Turks chose in 1909 the wrong course and set to work to Ottomanize the empire, forcibly assimilate separate nationalities to the Ottomans, and spend all their strength in holding outlying parts of the empire where they could exercise no real authority, where all Turks were detested, and where they could derive no benefit, the doom of their attempt, at first so galant and in the sequel so foolish, was sealed.

"The fact is that the Turks' inability to administer or organize has reduced the eastern and southern Mediterranean littoral to a desert, where it was formerly a garden. The European nations will not stand this any longer. Cyrenaic aand Tripoli were once prosperous and fertile. Parts of that region were extremely rich and useful to the world.

"Now the whole country except four or five small townships is at the mercy of Arab barbarians, who would shoot a Christian for pleasure and any man for 5 cents. The land, as a whole, lies uncultivated and useless. No project for improvement has been permitted or passed by the Turks since February, 1909. Such projects for improvement are labelled 'concessions' by important newspapers and by persons who call themselves friends of Turkey, but are not her real friends.

"Italy is going to try to stop this stupid ruin in Tripoli, and Italy is right. An outbreak of war, however, between Turkey and any Christian power is a great misfortune to the whole of Europe and most of all to Turkey, and its evils are so great that I still do not despair of peace being arrived at."

FIVE SLAYERS SENTENCED

Three Get Life Terms, One Fifteen Years and One Five

Farmington, Me., Oct. 9.—Sentences were imposed in the five murder cases considered at the term of the supreme court.

Marshall Taylor of Freeman, for killing his wife, was sent to Thomaston for life.

Giovanni Notta and Giuseppe Castiglio, who were found guilty of the murder of Dominico Vontrelli at Chisholm, were given life imprisonment.

Audobon S. Wilson, for the killing of Gideon Chase, a Wilton farmer, and Ernest H. Swain, who was convicted of mansiaughter for the killing of Lewis A. Phillips, were sentenced to fifteen and five years, respectively, in state prison.

A MARTYR TO HEALTH

Society Woman Killed by Removal of Appendix While Well

Baltimore, Oct. 9.—Believing that she had better have her appendix removed while feeling strong and well, Mrs. R. D. Coale, noted as the most beautiful woman in Baltimore society, and wife of Dr. Coale, dean of Maryland Medical university, underwent the operation at her husband's hospital and died. Her husband is confined to his bed, overcome by the shock of her death.

Mrs. Coale was a daughter of Captain John W. Howison of the United States revenue cutter service, and was born in New Bedford, Mass., in 1874.

Street Car Runs Away

Quincy, Mass., Oct. 9.—Two men were severely injured and forty-eight passengers were shaken up in a street car runaway on Washington street. A split in the rails threw the car off the track and it became uncontrollable, until it ran into a tree. The front of the car was smashed and nearly all the windows broken.

M'NAMARAS INNOCENT?

Mitchell Says He Would Doubt Guilt Even If Convicted

Boston, Oct. 9.—The trial, which begins at Los Angeles, Cal., this week, of the McNamara brothers, accused of dynamiting The Times building and causing the death of nineteen men, will have far-reaching effects to the labor union movement, and is even more important than the Haywood, Moyer and Pettibone trial in Idaho four years ago, in the opinion of John Mitchell.

The Post says the labor leader told one of its reporters at the Parker House last night that he is so convinced of the innocence of the two brothers that he would still have grave doubts should the jury find them guilty.

He declares that every resource of the labor unions of America will be behind the brothers in their fight for life.

FELT LIKE KISSING STATUE OF LIBERTY

Edison Is Glad to Get Back to His Own Country

New York, Oct. 9.—Thomas A. Edison returned to New York after a two months' tour in Europe. He was in a happy mood when the vessel docked.

"I tell you, boys," he said, "I felt like kissing the Statue of Liberty when I came up the bay. I am glad to get back home. After my visit abroad, I must say I am satisfied with my own country."

The inventor's wife, son and daughter toured Germany, France and Switzerland by automobile, Edison said, traveling 2000 miles over splendid roads—much better than American highways.

Although the European governments were very progressive, the inventor declared, none could approach the United States at any angle of human endeavor, except in road building.

ARRESTED IN ITALY

Cille Is Wanted For Murder of a Rhode Island Policeman

Providence, Oct. 9.—In the arrest in Italy of Gaetano Cille for desertion from the Italian army, the police of this city believe they have located the murderer of Patrolman Walter McQuarrie, who was shot at Apponaug, June 27.

On receiving the information, consultation was entered into with Marlono Vervena, Italian consul here, in the hope of having the prisoner brought to this state for trial.

The police allege Cille killed McQuarrie after being questioned about a bundle which he carried and which contained cloth stolen from a mill where Cille was employed. Cille escaped and is thought to have sailed for Italy.

WINTER UPON UPPER YUKON

Boats Arriving From North Crowded With Homecomers

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 9.—The last steamer has left White Horse for Dawson and the upper Yukon river will be closed to navigation within a week. The smaller streams already are frozen over.

Boats arriving at White Horse from the north are crowded with persons leaving Alaska to spend the winter in milder climates.

Travel to and from Fairbanks and the Iditarod will be by dog and horse conveyance and by foot until the ice breaks up next spring.

Home Ruler Wins In Tyrone

London, Oct. 9.—In the election in the north division of Tyrone for the seat in parliament made vacant by the appointment of Redmond Barry as lord chancellor of Ireland, Thomas W. Russell, Liberal, defeated E. C. Herdman, the Unionist candidate.

FEMININE FANCIES

THINGS OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

In this column we publish from day to day recipes and other notes especially interesting to women.

Cut them and paste in scrap book for reference.

A Kitchen Convenience.

This is perhaps the most convenient piece of furniture the housewife can install in her kitchen. It might be called a traveling cupboard, for it is possible to push it about in any part of the room. Different kinds of cooking utensils are fitted into round openings designed for their reception.

Clean the Feed Plate.

Your sewing machine will last longer and run more easily if, especially after working on woolen goods, you clean out the feed plate. Take out the screw that holds it down and lift it off, then with a long pin pick out the lint and clear the needle slot. You will be amazed at the amount of lint that can accumulate there and, when you have replaced the plate and the screw, at the increased efficiency of the machine.

How to Restore Chairs.

To clean and restore the elasticity of cane bottom chairs, turn the chair and with hot water and a sponge saturate the cane work thoroughly. If the chair is dirty use soap. Afterward set the chair to dry out of doors and the seat will be taut as when new.

HOUSEHOLD RECIPES.

Green Tomato Chow Chow. Chop fine one-half bushel green tomatoes, one-half dozen green peppers and one dozen onions. Sprinkle with a pint of salt and let stand over night. In the morning drain, cover with good cider vinegar, cook slowly one hour. then drain and pack in jars. Take two pounds sugar, two tablespoonfuls cinnamon, one tablespoonful each allspice, cloves and pepper, one-half cupful ground mustard and one pint grated horse radish with vinegar enough to mix well. When boiling hot, pour over the pickle in the jars and cover tightly. This will keep for years.

Squash Pudding. To one pint of finely mashed cooked squash, add one cupful of sugar, one teaspoonful of cinnamon, a little salt, the juice and grated rind of one lemon, and then add slowly one quart of boiling milk, stirring well. When partly cooled, add five well beaten eggs. Bake in a pudding dish set in a pan of hot water, in a moderate oven, until firm in the centre. Serve with cream.

Marlboro Pie. Stew and sift enough good apples to make two cups, and while hot stir in two rounding tablespoons of butter. Add also a pinch of salt, the beaten yolks of two eggs, a cup of sugar, the juice of one lemon, and the grated rind and one-half cup of cracker crumbs. Line a plate with rich pastry and build a scalloped rim round the edge. Fill with the mixture, bake and cover with a meringue made from the whites of four eggs and half cup of powdered sugar. Set in a cool oven to color a little.

As the fatalities in the Austin disaster are reduced from 1,000 to less than 100, the Austin people are evidently good sprinters.

GALLAGHER IN MORE TROUBLE

Boston Hotel Clerk Arrested In New York

CASHED WORTHLESS CHECKS

Chief Detective of Waldorf-Astoria Prefers Charges Similar to Those Made by Boston Merchants and Police, Who Have Been Seeking Him —"Bequest" Left Him by Relative May Have Been a Myth

New York, Oct. 9.—Charged with passing two worthless checks amounting to $100 on the cashier of the Waldorf-Astoria, where he was registered, Bertram Gallagher, 23 years old, was arested here and locked up.

Joseph E. Smith, chief detective of the Waldorf-Astoria, whi appears as complainant, says Gallagher went to the hotel on Oct. 2, bringing with him a hand bag. He had been a guest there before and had no trouble in getting cash for checks drawn for $25 and $75 on the Exchange Trust company of Boston.

The hotel management got word Saturday that Gallagher's account at the Exchange Trust company had been closed on Sept. 4. Gallagher was well dressed. He said he was born in Canada and had a wife living in Boston. He gave his occupation as a clerk.

Tailors, bootmakers, haberdashers and motor car concerns in Boston have been looking for Gallagher anxiously. The Boston police also have been searching for him. He was wanted on the charge of having passed several worthless checks on the business firms. The checks totalled about $500.

Gallagher was up till a short time ago room clerk at the Hotel Touraine in Boston. He resigned about a week ago. He said he was going west and that the outlook was bright for him. To his friends it is understood he confided that a bequest had been left him by a wealthy and kindly disposed relative, who died recently.

After resigning, it is alleged he visited various stores and concerns where he had been known before and where his credit was good. He paid for his purchases with checks drawn on the Exchange Trust company. They took the checks, but the checks came back marked "no funds."

Friends of the young man have heard of a romantic life story about him. He told the story himself. His father being a prominent business man in Montreal, he moved in select circles there, so the story goes, but love came and marred his relations at home. He and his mother's beautiful manicure eloped and the parental forgiveness failed to come. So he started work in the hotel business.

MISTAKEN FOR A DEER

Guide Did Not Respond to Hunter's Whistle and Is Killed

Bingham, Me., Oct. 9.—Mistaken for a deer by the man whom he was guiding through the woods near the base of Mosquito mountain, Harold Fright of Bingham, aged 26, was shot and killed.

He and Dr. Brooks of New York started out from camp near Lake Moxie with the understanding that if either saw a deer he was to whistle to the other. Brooks thought he saw one and whistled. No answer came and he fired. The bullet struck the guide in the back of the neck, and he died shortly afterward.

Dr. Brooks has visited this section annually for years. The fatality was the first of the fall hunting season, which opened Oct. 1.

TWO CHARGES ARE MADE

Criminial Action to Be Brought Against Steel Trust Officials

Washington, Oct. 9.—There will be criminal prosecution of officials of the steel trust, according to a statement made at the department of justice. Who these officials are the department would not make known.

Meanwhile, on the desk of Attorney General Wickersham are the papers in a suit in equity ready for filing against the United States Steel corporation.

In the bill of complaint two specific charges are made. First, the violation of that section of the Sherman anti-trust law prohibiting unreasonable combinations in restrain of trade; second, a violation of the Elkins interstate commerce law.

Eight New Postal Banks Open

Boston, Oct. 9.—Eight more postal savings banks were opened to the public this morning in the Boston postal district. The postal savings depository, which was opened Aug. 1, has proved a success, with 3060 depositors and $100,000 in deposits up to date.

Moroccan Outlook Favorable

Paris, Oct. 9.—At a meeting of the cabinet Foreign Minister de Selves explained the latest aspects of the Moroccan negotiations with Germany. In his opinion the outlook continued favorable.

BROKER ARRESTED ON LARCENY CHARGE

Said to Have Wrongfully Kept Money of Investors

Boston, Oct. 9.—After weeks of auditing and investigating by the police and experts into the books of the dissolved partnership of Gavett & Porter, stock brokers, Louis F. Gavett was arrested on a secret indictment at his home in Danvers.

Three charges are made in the warrant, totalling more than $2000. The larceny of $1000 is alleged from George A. Bunton of Arlington. The other charges are of unlawful conveyance.

When the firm was dissolved Porter assumed all liabilities and continued the business. It was estimated then that the firm had lost about $100,000, largely due, it is said, to poor investments. Some of these investments, according to Porter's counsel, were made without his partner's knowledge.

TASTE FOR WATERMELONS

Acquired by Coyotes In South Dakota at Expense of Growers

Sioux Falls, S. D., Oct. 9.—The coyotes of western and central South Dakota have developed a great taste for watermelons, and have caused heavy losses to growers. They appear to know by instinct when a melon is ripe.

One melon grower has surrounded his melon patch with a single strand of binder twine, which he has placed about one foot above the surface of the ground, the twine being supported at intervals by sticks stuck into the ground.

The coyotes, it is said, will not jump over the string or crawl under it, due to their cunning, which leads them to believe the twine is some sort of trap.

WED AT TENDER AGE

New Jersey Boy of Fifteen Years Takes Bride of Fourteen

South Orange, N. J., Oct. 9.—After trying vainly for a week to find a clergyman who would marry them, Arthur E. James, aged 15 years, and Ruth J. Day, 14, succeeded. With the consent of their parents, the ceremony was performed in the rectory of an Episcopal church by Rev. Dr. George A. Hanna.

The couple will start housekeeping, and next Saturday a football game will be played by two boy teams, the proceeds of which will be devoted to helping provide a furnished apartment. The groom is in his father's employ as a painter.

Killed by Fall From Piazza

FOR WORKING STEAM ROLLER

Braintree's Official in Court in a Funny Case

MAY BE POLITICS

A funny case from Braintree was heard in the district court this morning when Henry M. Strom, chairman of the Board of Selectmen was arraigned for allowing the town's steam roller to be run by Robert Gibson, who did not have a license as an engineer, and Robert Gibson was arraigned for running the machine without one. The complaint was made by Frank C. Harlow, a state deputy.

Mr. Strom is not only the chairman of the Board of Selectmen, but he is also the highway surveyor. Under the law the owner of the roller must be summoned into court. As the town of Braintree is the owner of the roller Mr. Strom as Chairman of the Selectmen was summoned as the owner.

Charles E. Mellen, town counsel, appeared for the two defendants and after a conference with the court, in which frequent consultation of statutes was had, the two defendants entered a plea of nolo contendere which was accepted, and the cases placed on file. Gibson however was fined $10 on account of costs and Chairman Strom was fined $2.27 the costs in the case.

Whether or not there are politics back of the cases did not appear this morning, but it is said that someone who wanted the job to run the roller and did not get it is responsible for the complaints.

BRIEFS

Next week, Thursday, is the birthday anniversary of President John Adams.

Inspector Goodhue was on duty at the Brockton fair last week on the lookout for the light fingered gentry.

Four weeks from tomorrow is the state election. Some of the spellbinders will probably visit Quincy in the mean time.

The Quincy Yacht club house is being kept open for a time to accommodate the members who desire to go after smelts.

Ex-Councilman Richard R. Freeman of Wollaston has been mentioned as a possible candidate for the Republican nomination for Mayor.

Work on the new court house building on Coddington street is going on apace and it will not be long before the outside brick work is completed and the roof is put on.

Confirmation classes will be held in Christ church rectory on Wednesday at 4 o'clock for the Juniors and at 8 o'clock for adults and Juniors that cannot attend.

A meeting of the South shore branch of the Sunday school teachers association will be held in Brockton this afternoon and evening from 4 until 8. Supper will be served at six.

City Clerk McGilvary is getting the Republican and Democratic nomination papers ready for aspirants for office. They will be in shape in a few days.

There seems to be a little bashfulness on the part of candidates for the office of Mayor announcing themselves. There will probably be a surplus a little later on.

At the Saturday evening whist party in Clan McGregor hall the souvenirs were awarded to Mrs. C. L. Lewis, Mrs. D. McLennan, Mr. Harley Smith, and the consolation to Lucy L. Brault.

The Education committee of the Quincy Women's club is to have an exhibition of the work of the vacation schools in sloyd and sewing at their room at the club house at the meeting tomorrow afternoon of the Quincy Women's club.

A dredger is at work off the Quincy yacht club house digging a channel and basin. This will be found very convenient for yachtsmen who desire to come to the club float during low tide. As it is now yachts must anchor outside and come to the floats in tenders, at low water.

☞Clean house with a vacuum cleaner. No dust, no hard labor. Electric cleaners, $2.00 a day. Hand cleaners, $1.50 a day. Henry L. Kincaide & Co.

WHO WILL BE HERO OF SERIES?

In Every World's Contest Some Star's Playing Has Shone.

MAYBE MATTY OR BENDER.

Two Great Pitchers Will Lock Horns In Coming Games—Latter Has an Old Score to Settle—History of Those Who Starred In Big Series.

Not the least interesting feature of the world's series of the past has been the flashing of some star or stars in the firmament of baseball. Dopists always find a considerable amount of pleasure, not to say interest, in wondering who will be the next star that will dazzle a multitude and sparkle for a nation.

In the first world's series, played between the Boston and Pittsburg teams in 1903, it was Bill Dineen. The latter's great work in the box practically captured the honors for Boston. In 1905, when the New Yorks defeated Philadelphia for the premier honors of the diamond, Billy Gilbert's great batting and Christy Mathewson's brilliant pitching were the features. In 1906 George Rohe's work at third, and particularly at the bat, made the Chicago Americans' victory certain over the Cubs. Frank Isbell of the Chicago White Sox was another to shine that year. It was his four two base hits in the fifth game of the series that helped to put the Cubs to rout.

O'Leary and Rossman of the Detroits were the heroes of the Tiger games in 1907. In 1908 Johnny Kling of the

TWO OF GAME'S GREATEST TWIRLERS, ONE OF WHICH MAY PROVE TO BE HERO.

Chicago Cubs was the big show; in 1909 it was Pitcher Babe Adams of the Pittsburgs. His great work in the box enabled the Pirates to defeat Detroit. Last year Coombs, Bender and Baker divided the honors.

Now that the Giants and Philadelphia Athletics are to play for the premier baseball honors, who will be the hero?

Of course no one can dope it out, but many experts think that it will be Mathewson or Bender. The men have an old score to settle. In 1905 Matty eclipsed Bender in the box, and now the Indian is out for revenge. Bender is in fine shape and has asked Manager Mack to use him as often as possible against the Giants. On the other hand, New York rooters believe Manager McGraw will depend mostly on "Big Six" to deliver the goods. Though no doubt the two twirlers will do some fine mound duty, it does not necessarily mean that one of the pair will turn out to be the hero. Some other player may spring into eternal fame. Who will it be?

History of the World's Series.

The coming world's series will be the seventh clash between the American and National league clubs' champions.

The Boston Americans won the first series from the Pittsburgs in 1903. The New York Nationals beat Philadelphia in 1905.

The Chicago Americans scored over the Chicago Nationals in 1906. The Chicago Nationals then turned in and redeemed themselves by whipping the Detroit Americans in 1907 and 1908.

In 1909 the Pittsburg Nationals beat the Detroit Americans. Last year the Athletics defeated the Chicago Nationals.

This makes four wins for the National league and three for the American.

NEW YORK PLAYERS WHO WILL FIGURE IN THE WORLD'S SERIES.

Photos by American Press Association.

The full roster and probable lineup of the New York Giants when they stack up against the Philadelphia Athletics in the first game of the world's championship series Oct. 13 will be: Devoe, left field; Doyle, second base; Snodgrass, center field; Murray or Becker, right field; Merkle, first base; Herzog, third base; Fletcher, shortstop; Meyers, catcher; Mathewson, Marquard, Ames, Wiltse, Crandall and Drucke, pitchers; substitutes, Devlin, infielder; Wilson, catcher.

Batting Comes Natural to Some.

Ping Bodie of the Chicago White Sox hits because he's a hitter and not because he outguesses pitchers. Bodie made a single against Eddie Plank in the recent White Sox-Athletic series, but when he reached first Stuffy McInnis said, "What did you hit, Ping?" "A spitball," said the fence buster. "Ed Plank never threw a spitter in his life," said McInnis. "Well, then, t was a straight one," said Ping.

SPORTING "DOPE"

By B. A.

Don't Knock, Just Boost.—B. A.

Franz Marceau of this city, now connected with athletics at Dartmouth College was one of the heaviest points winners on the B. A. A. track team this season. The results show him in the fifth position among the well known runners of the association, with a total of 52 1-4 points to his credit, and 14 prizes.

The season has been about the best the Boston organization has had, and with Marceau doing such splendid work, and George Sullivan wearing the colors of the B. A. A. on the record breaking relay team, Quincy has come in for its full share of representation.

"Fay" Phelan was at the Park yesterday doing some training preparatory to a few meets which he intends to compete in within a short time Phelan is running in fine style at the present time and bids fair to accomplish great things in the century dash.

Quincy High encounters another tough proposition tomorrow afternoon at Merrymount park, when it lines up against the strong South Boston High eleven. The peninsular lads have always put a fast team on the field, and the game tomorrow should be a warm one.

Coach Staff appears satisfied with the way the local boys are performing at the present time, and feels confident that Capt. Johnson and his team mates can annex another victory. The changes recently made in the lineup have done much good and many a surprise may be sprung by Quincy High before the end of the season.

There was nothing doing in the line of sports in local circles last Saturday. A football game had been scheduled, but was cancelled at the eleventh hour. Two soccer games had also been carded, but the rain of the morning had placed the grounds in a bad condition, and these games were postponed until next Saturday.

POLICE RAID THREE PLACES AT BRAINTREE

Chief Loring accompanied by Officers Hunt, Gallivan, Wentworth and Thayer raided three places at Braintree late Saturday night. The places visited were those of Nicola George, on Granite street, Antonio Santuosso, Granite street and Pietro Millozzo on Pond street. Liquors were found at the first two places but none at the latter place.

JOHNSON GREATEST PITCHER.

Catcher Street Says He Is Performing Better Now Than Ever.

"I have been catching Walter Johnson since the day he came out of the woods in Idaho, and you can take it from me he is today a better pitcher than he has been at any other time in his career." Thus spoke Charley Street of the Washington Americans recently. "Walter came in for some pretty hard roasts at the beginning of the season, when he was not himself. He was suffering from an attack of malaria that was enough to take the sap out of any one, but he has rounded to, and now he is ready to stop any team that he faces. You know he always had speed and control, and every day since he has been in the league he learned more about the batters until today he stands ahead of all of them. Give Johnson an average of three games a week and he will make one of the greatest records in history."

NO PROOF THAT MAINE RETURNS WERE WRONG

Town Clerks Fail to Appear. Public Hearing Next Step

Gov. Has Until Dec. 1st to Make Decision

Augusta, Me., Oct. 10.—The possibility of correction of the official figures of the state's vote of Sept. 11 on the question of the repeal of the constitutional prohibitory amendment rests entirely upon the ability of the town clerks of Athens, Limestone, Matinicus island and Westfield, and other interested persons, to prove to the governor and council that their original returns were wrong, for yesterday marked the close of the period during which requests for corrections could be made and no other towns had been heard from.

The governor and council were in session to receive such requests, those of the four towns named having previously been made, but they were not forthcoming. The next step will be the holding of a public hearing, at which all persons interested for or against the acceptance of corrections will be given an opportunity to be heard.

The date of this hearing is expected to be announced shortly. After the hearing Governor Plaisted has until Dec. 1 to make his final announcement of the outcome of the election.

R. E. Philbrook, clerk of Matinicus plantation, who did not appear at the previous session of the council when the formal request for the correction of his returns was made, was examined at some length yesterday. His return to the governor and council gave the vote of the plantation as 36 for repeal and 2 against, but he maintained that it should have read just the reverse, 2 for repeal and 35 against.

He had with him the original notes which he took at the town meeting when the vote was announced and from which he later wrote the record of the election in the town's book. The record was also in evidence.

The applications for corrections have been filed at the instance, in a large measure, of the no license organizations, for the allowance of corrections by the governor and council would mean the overthrowing of the present majority of 26 votes for repeal, as indicated by the official returns, and the establishment of a substantial majority against repeal.

HAD NARROW ESCAPE WHEN THROWN BY HORSE

Nicholas T. Murphy, the expressman, had a narrow escape from a serious injury this morning, at West Quincy. His team was standing in front of Mayo's hardware store when a passing stone team frightened his horse. It started to run and Mr. Murphy made a jump for it. As he did so the animal threw him violently against the curbing.

In addition to receiving numerous cuts and bruises about the body, he was severely cut about the head. He was taken to the office of Dr. Ash and after receiving treatment was taken to his home.

TODAY'S COURT.

Robert J. Drummey was fined $25, Harry E. Adams $25 and Charles A. Gallagher $15 for exceeding the automobile speed limit at Milton.

John Cullen was fined $15 for drunkenness at Quincy.

MOHAWKS GIVE ANNUAL DANCE

Largely Attended Affair In Alpha Hall Monday Night

THE COMMITTEE

The annual dance of the Mohawk A. C. an organization composed of young men of this city, was held in Alpha hall, Monday evening and was largely attended. Moore's orchestra furnished the music and dancing was in order until midnight.

The affair was in charge of the following committee:—John Housenberger, John Flaherty, Joseph Wade, James Hogan, William Hadie, James O'Brien, Warren Blanchard and Jeremiah Moynihan.

WAS "WOUNDED" BY HUSBAND SHE CLAIMS

Charges that her husband "wounded" her are contained in the divorce suit which Mrs. Matilda Madeline Macleod of Boston has filed in the Suffolk superior court against Neil Murdock Macleod of Quincy. She also asks that his property be attached to satisfy her claims for alimony.

Mrs. Macleod alleges that she was "wounded" while living in Quincy in November, 1909. She also alleges that she was assaulted, beaten, bruised and cruelly and abusively treated then and at other times. She says he also neglected to provide her with the necessaries of life in food, clothing and shelter, though being of sufficient means to do so.

The Macleods were married in Chicago on Nov. 28, 1908, and lived afterward in Quincy and Boston.

BRIEFS

Archie F. Baird of Sea street has gone to New York on a business trip.

Court Officer W. M. Marden is having a few days vacation this week.

A large number of juvenile cases were heard in the juvenile session of the district court this morning.

The registrars of voters will meet in Ward Six tonight to revise the voting lists.

Business will be generally suspended in Quincy Thursday, for this reason the local stores will be open Wednesday evening.

Colonel Jonathan Keyes of Cincinnati has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Wilson of Revere road the past week.

Mrs. Thomas Magee who has been at North Scituate beach for the summer has returned to Quincy for the winter months.

W. E. Warmington of Quincy street left Sunday for New York, where he has accepted a position with an optician.

Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Gould and daughter of Adams street, leave today on a ten days' visit with her mother and sisters in Reading, Pennsylvania.

A number of Quincy Knights Templars attended the public installation of South Shore commandery at East Weymouth Monday evening.

Boston bound street cars were delayed somewhat Monday night, when the forward wheels of a wagon load of bags, collapsed on the inward rail near the Neponset bridge.

An important meeting of St. Stephen's chapter will be held Wednesday evening. In addition to the election and installation of officers action will be taken on a proposed amendment to the by-laws.

A regular meeting of the West Quincy Improvement association will be held Thursday evening at St. Jean hall. Although the day is a legal holiday, it is expected that there will be a large attendance of members as considerable business will come up for discussion.

HINGHAM'S GIFT FROM ENGLAND

Ambassador Bryce Presents Stone at Town's Celebration

SPEAKS OF CLOSE TIES

The presentation by Ambassador James Bryce in the armory Monday evening before more than 2,000 people of the ancient "mounting stone" of old Hingham, in England, was the most notable event of the celebration of the 275th anniversary of the town of Hingham.

The British Ambassador, in a felicitous address, made the occasion one of some international importance in the warmth of his expressions and the significance of the blood relationship which such a gift and such an event brought forth.

In addition to the "mounting stone," which weighs about 600 pounds, the Ambassador also presented a bit of woodcarving from the old church in Hingham, Eng., and in return for those gifts the town fathers presented Ambassador Bryce the freedom of the American town which was founded by settlers from and named after old Hingham in England 275 years ago.

The State Armory was handsomely decorated for the occasion and about the platform were the British and American colors. The platform was also decorated with autumn maple. In the center of the platform was the large stone and beside it was a model of the memorial tower in which it is going to be placed.

There was a chorus of 100 voices, more than half of them women, under the leadership of Frank Otis Nash. There were present in the hall representatives of about all of the old families in this section of the country and descendants of the first settlers from far distant parts of the country.

Ex-Gov. John D. Long was master of ceremonies and when shortly after 8 o'clock he and Ambassador Bryce came up the main aisle arm-in-arm, followed by the committee and the town fathers, the entire audience arose and greeted them.

The exercises began with the singing of an old hymn by the chorus, followed by the singing of "The Recessional." Ex-Gov. Long introduced Ambassador Bryce, who presented the mounting some to the chairman of the Board of Selectmen, Walter W. Hersey. The latter presented the stone to William L. Gifford, chairman of the Memorial Committee, and then came the presentation of a scroll—the freedom of the town—to Ambassador Bryce after which "America" was sung, and then a reception to Ambassador Bryce.

MRS. SARAH E. HARPER.

Mrs. Sarah Elizabeth Chesley, widow of Alfred Harper passed away Monday at her home in Weymouth, in her 76th year. Mrs. Harper was a daughter of Mr. William and Mrs. Susan K. Chesley of West Quincy, where she resided until her marriage. Funeral services will be held from 136 Summer street Thursday at 2.30.

CELEBRATE BIRTHDAY

Friends of Miss Baird Have Delightful Time

THOSE PRESENT

A number of friends of Miss Harriett Baird daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archie F. Baird, of Sea street, gathered at her home Monday evening in observance of her eighteenth birthday. The homestead had been prettily decorated for the occasion and the birthday party was a gala one from every consideration. A handsome birthday cake, bearing a candle for each successive year of her life, was presented to the young girl by her mother, and after the repast, games of all sorts were in evidence.

Among those who participated in the affair were the Misses Cecil Hayes, Gertrude Scott, Harriett Baird and Mr. Frank Kenney, Mr. Reginald Pepper and Mr. Frank Haverty; also Mr. and Mrs. Baird, Mr. and Mrs. Blanchard and Mr. and Mrs. Hennessey. Miss Baird was also the recipient of many beautiful presents.

Miss Baird is widely known in local circles and while at the Quincy High school, where she completed her studies last June, was considered one of the most prominent students. She is a great lover of athletics and is very proficient in the various branches. She also is a talented pianist and is at present a student at the New England Conservatory of Music.

INTERESTING MEETING.

An interesting meeting of Clan McGregor was held Monday evening. The entertainment committee made its report of a program for the coming winter months which was approved by the Clan. This program provides for something for every meeting, either the reading of a paper on some subject of local interest or an entertainment program.

The report of the treasurer showed the Clan to be on the best financial standing it has ever been.

WILL CANVASS VOTE.

The returns from all over the country that have been taken by the different branches of the granite cutters' union on the question of whether or not the contsitution should be revised, have been received at the union headquarters in Quincy and the vote will be canvassed tonight at a meeting of the council.

"GREATEST PLEASURE REALIZED WHEN WORK IS MASTERED"

Says Admiral Bowles at the Opening Exercises of Apprentices School

Company Giving Boys Great Opportunity

The opening of the school for apprentices at the Fore River Shipbuilding Company, for the year 1911-1912, was officially ushered in this morning, when addresses were made by Admiral Bowles and Naval Constructor Bankson. The exercises took place in the school room and were attended by a large number of those who have enrolled in the apprenticeship course.

In his address to the boys, Admiral Bowles exhorted them to be mindful of three things, viz: the opportunities that were before them, the responsibility placed upon the company for which they were working and the thrift that should be employed in order to round out efficient mechanics. He said that the purpose of the school was to turn out mechanics, whose ability would be more than the ordinary.

He told the boys to be energetic and conscientious in their work, and urged them to be ever mindful of the fact that their accomplishments elicited the same reflection upon the company as upon themselves. He said that good work on the battleships

HOLIDAY NOTICE.

Thursday has been set apart as a National holiday to be known as Columbus Day. It is to be generally observed in Quincy therefore the office of the Daily Ledger will be closed all day no paper being issued that date.

If the stock market crowd really want our sympathy for their losses, their wives must somehow manage this winter to get along with their last year's diamonds.

If we were a coast to coast aviator we should load the craft on a commodious wheel-barrow, and start out over the highway, with some hopes of getting there.

From the extensive vocabulary employed by Senator Bailey of Texas, we feel sure that he would have been a success as an Erie canal driver or a Mississippi river pilot.

It used to be customary to tell every American boy that there was a chance of his being president, but now they stimulate his ambition much more by saying he might become a foot ball coach.

Woodrow Wilson condemns frivolous church music. Good. You can't make a coon song into a psalm tune merely by changing the names of "Rastus" and "Chloe" into "Noah" and "Jonah."

The tax payers who growl about the short life of a $10,000,000 war ship should be consoled. Even if they last but five years, the navy will find them handy afterwards as targets for the jackies to practise shooting at.

There is a hasty looking over of power plants since the Austin disaster, but a dam can not be properly inspected merely by sitting in the office and smoking the proprietor's cigars of delicate aroma.

Dr. Charles W. Eliot for forty years head of Harvard University and since his retirement active in the lecture field and social work is to enjoy a real vacation. He plans to make a tour of the world being away nearly a year.

If the war of Italy on Turkey results in the suppression of slavery in Tripoli, perhaps after all it will prove a benefit. Tripoli is the only port on the coast of Africa where slavery still prevails and it is a blot on christianity and the world, and a nation that permits it deserves to be warred upon.

Currency reform is coming; at the next session of Congress, which meets in December, the subject will occupy a conspicuous place on the program. Former Senator Aldrich's plan has been before the country for months, Pierre Jay explained it in Collier's February 18, bankers have pressed upon the business people the necessity for action, and the leaders in business are active. There is practical agreement as to the necessity for legislation; and some plan similar to that proposed by Mr. Aldrich suits the great majority.

TAFT AND BRONCHO BUSTERS.

There is something about the rarefied air of Wyoming's wind swept hills that nerves both man and beast with the lust of conflict. The typical "frontier day" which Mr. Taft witnessed at Cheyenne reflects a red blooded past. It is a picture of a life that is passing away. If we don't see one of these performances within the next decade, we can never see one. For the cow boys of the typical wild west show are a very pale reflection of real old Wyoming.

The cow boy was the natural evolution of the struggle between the outposts of civilization and the untamed force of the prairies. Winter scattered the cattle over a thousand hills. Only by heroic endurance of man and beast could they be rounded up alive. The Eastern horse, bred among the luxuries of stables and shelter, could not stand this strain. Only when the wild mustang of the prairies could be subjected to human will, could man contend against death and the desert.

Anybody who never saw one of these real frontier shows can realize the lithe wickedness of these rearing and plunging bronchos, nor the incredible skill acquired by the cow-man in reducing them to his control.

A character of immeasurable daring and unconventionality has been the result of these conditions. The cow boy handles his gun as you or I do a match. As we take reasonable precautions not to throw a burning match into a waste basket, so he takes a little pains that the bullet does not land in your anatomy.

Ten years from today, say the prophets, there will not be left a cattle ranch of over 1000 acres in the United States. The cow boy will fit the new conditions about as well as cabby takes to the work of an automobile chauffeur.

Turning him into an intensive farmer will be about like putting an eagle into a canary bird's cage, and feeding him on bird seed.

There is a pathos about the disappearance of this manly type. To use his words, it is too bad that he can't be "roped respectable like and thrown fair for a finish."

MEN AND RELIGION.

"The Men and Religion Forward Movement—Its Relation to the Sunday School," was discussed by more than 200 men and women at the meeting of the Sunday School Superintendents' Union of Boston and vicinity in Kingsley hall Monday night. Ernest S. Butler presided.

Prof. T. N. Carver of the economics department at Harvard University opened by a definition of social service, particularly in its relation to church activities.

"In what way can the church give its life for the service of the community?" he asked. "It has been serving the community in the past. We hope, however, that as a result of this movement the possibilities of social service shall be clearer to the church and the Sunday schools.

"It is social service to care for the sick. It is also social service to care for the community in order that sickness may be prevented, and the enforcement of laws which tend to protect public health. That is where we Protestant churches have an excellent opportunity. We have been shown an excellent lesson by our Catholic brethren in the care of the sick and in the establishing of hospitals, and we have a great deal to learn yet.

"It is a social service to save the soul from sin. It is a greater social service to create such an atmosphere of spiritual environment than it is easier for men to be righteous. Social service does not consist entirely in philanthropic work of various kinds.

"It is social service for the church to inspire every man to do his regular work better than he has ever done it before; to inspire the worker in his regular work with the idea that he is working for the glory of God whether he is making shoes or shoveling streets or planting corn."

Walter S. Shutz, a Hartford lawyer, asked: "Why isn't the boy in greater numbers in the Sunday School? My only answer is that the men, the fathers, have not gone to church. The father has not made Christianity and church interests vital in his life. The boy has not felt that it was quite manly enough to be allied with the Sunday school and church."

Rev. George L. Cady, pastor of the Pilgrim Congregational church, observed:

"The trouble with Boston today is not Boston's environment nor Boston's politics; the trouble is with the Bostonian, and until you can change the Bostonian you cannot change Boston's social life.

George E. Briggs, chairman of the committee of 100, said that the whole movement meant a job for every man in the church and every man on his job. He said there was a committee of five in every church which should get the most effective men to do the thing that was needed in that church.

Every man should do something and then meet with the five men in the nearest church on either side and get the men in the several churches to oing something for the community, until every man in every church shall be actively engaged in Christian work.

—The Board of Trade of Brockton held its first fall meeting Monday night and discussed the proposition of uniting with the Brockton Retail Merchants Association.

CURRENCY REFORM.

Our American system of finances is a bridge across which we all are trying to travel to prosperity. It is a long bridge, and a strong bridge, but its piers are all in boats—boats that move every minute.

There is a country banker with a memory over four years long who has a list of banks in various reserve cities that he views with anger because of the fight they made in a time of stress for real money. In 1907 the customers of the big banks were asking for cash—many times for cash they did not need, but feared that they might need. Whenever for instance, the New-Fangled National Bank of Colonville, Ohio, got a big check which it had paid for by drafts and clearing-house certificates, it looked to see where it was payable. If the bank was in some country town, or payable by some banker who carried no account with the New-Fangled National, it turned that check over to the express company to collect in legal-tender money; it fought bankers for the supply of real money without giving real money in return, even when the very names of the bankers were to it unknown.

Now, such a fight for money is expected, and is, in fact, forced upon all bankers. It is a part of the present system. It reaches every banker, everywhere. It reaches every man, everywhere. It menaces the business prosperity of every man, whether as a proprietor or as a laborer he depends upon the product of industry.

No man is so far from the money centers that his own bank may not be drawn into a fight for money—the express companies, in their capacity as the collectors and transmitters of actual money, put every village in the thick of the fight; and in the hour of trouble all must know that there is no more real money than there is in the hour of prosperity, when the real money must all be invested to keep up the prosperity!

Legislation is the first thing to which an American turns for any relief. Shall it not be enacted that in the hour of trouble banks shall go right on loaning money as usual, and offering to their customers a little more help than in prosperous times? Yes, indeed—if they can get the reserves of money and credit to pay when the customers use their loans; otherwise the bank must close its doors, panic or no panic!

But the banks must not be allowed to fight for money when money is scarce! That fighting for money means called loans, and that means closed factories, and that means no pay-rolls, and that means the crippling of merchant and farmer by removing his customers! Do all nations act as we?

In the one thing of foicing trouble on our banks, and thereby on ourselves, we have neglected the experience of all the world. If we could but get all the reserves in one common and well-protected reservoir of safety, we would be protected. If John Smith, in the National Bank of Finn's Corners, was compelled ot pay ten thousand dollars to the New-Fangled National Bank of Colonville, there would be nothing for the New-Fangled National to do but to place the money from John's bank back in the main reservoir. The change would mean nothing for safety and everything as to profit. John would simply have to sell notes where there wa smoney to buy now such a thing is impossible.

The central banks of other countries keep the reserve money of all the banks. This prevents the banks fighting fiercely to build up reserves unreasonably large in the face of a panic, as we compel our bankers to do in order to live through the panic. Against this unitel cash reserve the central bank issues money in a limited amount, and with it buys the good notes of the bank which suddenly needs cash. Hence the banker sees the folly of calling his loans to get money—he carries the loans till he needs the money, and then sells the notes to the place where all the money goes.

We have thousands of banks issuing money in this country, yet here such a system will not work. None of these banks has any definite hope of receiving cash again if it is withdrawn—if it buys notes of another bank it does it on exactly the same chance as the original bank, and not like a bank whose sole business was to receive the cash coming into the banks!

But that is not all. Bank-notes are issued only on the deposit of Government bonds. When such notes are issued, they do not take the place of bank reserves with the banks, though they serve as money with the people.

The bank with all its money loaned can not get relief through this, for it can make no money in buying Government bonds at 2 per cent with money for which it pays the deposi- for 2 per cent to use! When it needs money it must be able to sell ordinary, safe, profitable commercial notes which bear interest at 5 or 6 per cent, and which furnish the profits of its business.

When the American people awake to the fact that nothing else but a way for every bank to turn its good notes into money will ever make business as safe from panic as is the rest of the world, the problem will be solved, for the American nation has business judgment enough to see the danger to the weakest and the poorest which grows out of these bankers' fights for money and life!—Frederick I. Barrows in Collier's Weekly.

"Is your wife a good housekeeper?"

"Well, she's a fine housekeeper, but not of the old-fashioned kind. Instead of messing around the kitchen, she earns enough money at bridge to pay the grocery bills."—Washington Herald.

"Mabel, did you go down to the drug store for that cold cream?"

"Yeth, ma'am."

"Well, where is it?"

"I ate it, of course."

"Ate it? Why, child, what kind did you get?"

"Chocolate ice cream. It was the coldest kind I could get."—Youngstown Telegram.

The rich father looked the young man over with an inventorying eye. "You say you believe you can make my daughter happy," he said. "And have you any reason for believing she loves you?"

"Why, yes," replied the young man briskly. "I was just coming to that. She married me last week."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Mother—"You and Willie Jones seem to play together a good deal."

Little Girl of the Period—"Yes, but I assure you it's purely platonic. We're both interested in mud pies, that's all."—Life.

Mistress—"Bridget, I told you not to put these silver knives in with the steel ones again."

Bridget—"Sure, mum, I didn't, the silver ones were already there when I put the steel ones in."—Woman's Home Companion.

Wicks—"He changed counten ance."

Hicks—"Well, that must have been an improvement for him, anyway."

Travelling Man—"I wonder if the landlord doesn't know that it's against the law to use roller towels now."

Regular Boarder—"Oh, yes, he knows it; but that law wasn't passed when this towel was put up."—Chicago Tribune.

A CELEBRATED WOMAN.

Mme. Paree Gibbons Rountree, who has been chosen to represent the Royal Order of the Crown and Rose, composed exclusively of Americans of royal descent, at the historical pageant to take place in England in 1914, is one of the few women in America whose forebears were kings of England and France. She went to Spokane from Boston a year ago in search of health. She found it living the simple life amid the balmy ping and fir trees, and will continue her residence there indefinitely.

Madam Rountree, who is a member of more organizations than she can recall off hand, rarely speaks of her ancestry, holding such claims to be at variance with the democratic spirit of most American communities. But she discusses freely her connection with American societies.

"I am a member of the Founders and Patriots of America," she said in an interview, "as well as of many other organizations of national importance, including the Colonial Dames, the Pilgrim society, the Daughters of the American Revolution, Society for the Preservation of New England Antiquities and United Daughters of the Confederacy. I also belong to the Copley society and American Art league of Boston, the National Newsboys' association, the Actors' Church alliance, New England Historic and Genealogical society, several Egyptian archaeological societies, the Empire club of England, Las Savants de la Republique, and other organizations in Europe. I am a member, active or honorary, of 50 organizations."

Despite her quiet life, Madam Rountree is widely known in Spokane, as she is throughout the New England and other parts of the United States. She addressed the Esther Reed Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution upon "History and Heraldry" last February, and was one of the guests of honor at a Colonial luncheon in the Hall of the Doges the same month. She is a member of the Alpha Beta Tau sorority. The Phi Delta Theta fraternity has elected her an honorary member.

"Pearl Craigie, better known as John Oliver Hobbes, was one of my dearest friends," Madam Rountree remarked. "She often asked me to look over the writings and I think I was the last person to whom she wrote before her sudden death. With Alice Freeman Palmer I was for years an intimate friend. We did all sorts of work together, sometimes nursing the sick, helping the unfortunate and meeting perhaps at a large social function a few hours later."

Madam Rountree has been a widow 12 years and rumor has coupled her name with prominent men of different nationalties. She disclaims any intention of remarriage, saying: "Devotion to my family, friends and numerous interests aside from my many social duties keep me well in bond.

Madam Rountree also is a musician. Her teachers wished to have her study for the operatic stage, but her parents objected. Her musical education was obtained in Leipsic and Rome. Among her numerous treasures is a small Arabian rug, the work of three generations, father, son and grandson. It was obtained in Egypt for a son. It was obtained in Egypt for a trifle, but its great age and unique history make it one of her most prized possessions.

Suffragists Are Busy

Pittsfield, Mass., Oct. 10.—A band of militant suffragists in a big touring car made campaigning uncomfortable in Berkshire country for Lieutenant Governor Frothingham yesterday. They heckled him from early morning until late at night, following the Republican party for nearly 100 miles, several times interrupting the speeches. The suffragists held two rallies here last night.

APPRENTICES SCHOOL

meant more contracts and greater gain to the Shipbuilding Company.

He said that the trait of being thrifty was an exceptionally fine asset and that it could be employed in a large measure in an apprenticeship course. He concluded his remarks by stating that the greatest pleasure would come to boys when they once realized that they had mastered their work.

Naval Constructor Bankson dwelt at some length on the marvellous works of the ancients, specimens of which can be seen at the Art Museum and he urged the boys to have such ideals as are embodied in their works of perfection. He said that there was no work being done at the present time like was accomplished by the ancients, but insisted upon approaching that perfection as nearly as possible. Both men were warmly applauded at the conclusion of their remarks.

The remainder of the day was given over to assigning the boys to the different departments and in drawing up the plan of work for the coming year. James E. Neary, instructor of the Apprentices, was in charge of the opening exercises.

—POLITICAL— NOTES, NEWS AND NOVELTIES

By N. N.

Ex-representative Rednor P. Coombs, democratic candidate for senator from this district, has already started active work and intends to conduct a strenuous campaign. Mr. Coombs will hold rallies in every town in the 1st Norfolk district, and intends to make the record of Senator Barnes, the present incumbent the one issue of the campaign.

Many well known democratic spell binders will accompany him on the different rallies and the ex-representative figures that he can win out handily this year. It will be remembered that a year ago he carried Quincy by a substantial margin, and he now figures that diligent work in the outside regions will enable him to be pronounced a winner.

The first rally is scheduled for next Wednesday and will be confined to the factories at Randolph and Holbrook.

Mayor Shea has been billed as a guest at the annual banquet of the Ward 6 Democratic club of Somerville next Monday evening, but it is highly improbable that his honor will be in attendance.

Many have been wondering why something concerning the mayoralty contest has not been forthcoming from the Eugene C. Hultman class but when the ex-senator returns home in the course of two weeks, we may then expect to have our anxiety appeased.

Ex-councilman McDevitt will begin his open air rallies next week and from then until the closing of the polls on election day his efforts to land as a member of the House will be ceaseless. Mr. McDevitt will issue a challenge to meet his opponent, Councilman William J. Leslie, in open debate and the admirers of both men are hoping that they may come together and make things lively.

Who will be the first to take out nomination papers? It is expected that they will be ready within a short time.

Edward P. Powers, republican candidate for Councilman from Ward One, is supplied with a place to hold all the rallies he desires, for he is now conducting a roller skating rink at the Coliseum.

WILL HAVE "HIKE" ON THURSDAY

The hike for Y. M. C. A. Juniors, which was postponed last Saturday, will be held on the holiday. The boys will go to the Blue Hills Reservation, starting at 9 o'clock and returning in the latter part of the afternoon. Chestnutting, scoutcraft and scout games will be among the attractions. The boys are to take their lunches with them and will eat in true scout style in the woods.

B. P. O. E. MEETING.

An important meeting of Quincy lodge of Elks will be held tonight in Electa hall. Action will be taken on a proposed amendment to the constitution. Announcement will also be made by the entertainment committee about a series of whist and dancing parties to be held during the coming winter months. There are several candidates on the list for initiation at the meeting.

THE GLOOMY DAY.

When the weather's gloomy,
That's the time t' smile;
That's the time you'll find a grin,
Really wuth yer while;
That's the time t' sing a song,
Shake yer heels an' dance;
When th' weather's gloomy,
Give Old Joy a chance.

When the sun is shinin'
Any one kin grin,
All the world is cheerin'
The one who's goin' t' win.
But th' cheer that really Does some good, I find
Is th' brother 'way behind.

When th' weather's gloomy,
An' th' world looks sad,
Put yer old umbrella up
An' sing a song that's glad.
Travel down th' highways,
Journey mile an' mile,
Answerin' the raindrops
With a cheery smile.

RUN OVER BY AUTOMOBILE

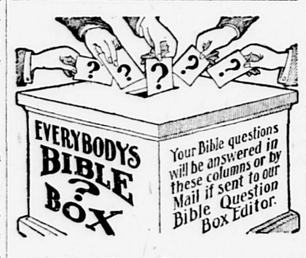
John Evans May Have Received Fracture of His Knee

WAS SEVERELY BRUISED

John Evans, one of the well known residents of West Quincy, was severely injured Monday when he was run over by an automobile owned and operated by John Lavers. Mr. Evans had been to the granite yard of Mr. Lavers and was just coming out of the yard as he approached in his automobile. Mr. Lavers turned suddenly into the yard and before the car could be stopped it ran into Mr. Evans who was thrown to the ground, the machine passing over him. He was severely bruised and shaken up.

He was taken to his home nearby and a physician summoned who found that he had suffered a severe injury to his knee. Just how serious it is can not be told as yet, but it is feared that the bone may have been fractured.

An X-ray examination will be made of the knee today to find out if possible the extent of the injury



Q.—According to Revelation xx, 6; 1 Thessalonians iv, 16, will the Millennium be before or after the coming of Christ? It is claimed by some that the Millenaium began in the year 799, and ended in the year 1799 A. D.—Millennium meaning one thousand years—and is known as the Papal Millennium. Is that the Millennium mentioned in the Bible?

Answer.—The Scriptures above referred to, together with many others, show that Christ will reign during the Millennium, and we all know that Christ has not reigned yet. If Christ was reigning now we would not have the great systems of evil in the earth, for the Scriptures declare that when "His judgments are in the earth then the people shall learn righteousness" (Isaiah xxvi, 9). The Scriptures in your question declare that "the dead in Christ shall rise first" at His coming. In harmony with this we see, that then He will take unto Himself His great power and reign, as set forth in Revelation xi, 17, 18. Jesus Himself declared (Matthew xxv, 31) that His reign would follow His second coming.

Q.—Is hell a condition of eternal remorse and heaven a condition of eternal happiness?

Answer.—The word hell is an old Anglo-Saxon term and signified the concealed or hidden state. When applied to those who had died it meant that these were hidden or concealed in the grave. In the original word there is not the slightest thought of torment or sorrow or remorse. This is also true of the Hebrew word sheol and the Greek word hades, the former occuring in the Old Testament and the latter in the New Testament. The term hell, used in translating these words from the old manuscripts into the English, really signifies the state of the dead, a condition of rest, unconsciousness. The Bible says—"The dead know not anything." The word heaven in the original manuscripts signified an elevation, a lofty place, the sky, or by implication, the abode of the Deity, who "dwells in the high and lofty place." In the teachings of Christ and the Apostles, the Christians (the earnest, devoted footstep followers of the Lord Jesus) are assured of heavenly rewards on the Divine, spirtual plane of existence in the presence of God, and in this state will enjoy eternal conditions of "glory, honor, and immortality." Hell (death, destruction) is the condition reserved for the incorrigibly wicked, while Heaven (life, immortality) is the condition reserved for the righteous and obedient.

HAVE NOT APPLIED.

Inspector of Buildings Warren S. Parker says that the Wollaston Coal Co. has not applied for a permit to erect coal pockets at Wollaston. He says that an application was made to erect a stable on the property which was refused by the Board of Health. Nothing more has been heard as to the question of coal pockets.

FATALITIES IN WRECKS.

Manchester Disaster Recalls Disasters of Late Years.

319 KILLED SINCE 1907.

In the United States and Canada—179 Deaths In Railroad Accidents In 1909—List of the Wrecks With Statistics.

The recent wreck of the Lehigh Valley train at Manchester, N. Y., when more than thirty persons were killed and twice as many injured, recalls the fact that in thirty-nine railroad wrecks in this country and Canada in the last three years 319 persons were killed. In this list the greatest number of fatalities, 179, occurred in 1909. Here is the list:

Feb. 7.—Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad train wrecked on Hackensack meadows; one killed.
Feb. 16.—Toledo and Western Traction line car hit by train of Michigan Central; seven killed.
Feb. 24.—Stage wrecked by Ontario and Western train at Nyack; six killed.
July 5.—Head-on collision on Rome, Watertown and Ogdensburg railroad near Boonville; five killed.
July 17.—White Mountain express on New York, New Haven and Hartford wrecked at Greenwich; one killed.

Jan. 17.—Head-on collision on Denver and Rio Grande railroad between Dotsera and Spruce Creek, Colo.; twenty-one killed.
Dec. 13.—Twentieth Century Limited of New York Central runs into rear of delayed express at North East, Pa.; six killed.

MAMMOTH SUNFLOWER.

Forty-two Inches Across, With Fringe of Twelve Inch Petals.

A woman living near Asotin, Wash., has grown a sunflower the center of which measures forty-two inches across, with twelve inch petals, making the total diameter of the sunflower bloom sixty-six inches, or five and a half feet. This giant flower is supported by a stalk that has expanded and grown under the weight of the bloom until it is five inches in diameter at the base and about four inches thick at the height of five feet. It was grown at the top of a filled up well.

Recently a mushroom appeared from this well and reached the abnormal size of nearly three feet. It cracked under the pressure of rapid growth and rotted before it could be preserved.

MONEY FOR CROP-MOVING.

This is the poorest season to borrow money because the price is highest. A tabular statement of the average interest rate on prime commercial loans at New York for each week in the year over a period of nineteen years shows that the borrower in the latter part of September and the early part of October pays fully one per cent more than the borrower in February, May or June. The New York interest rate in this respect is a fair index to that for the country at large. As bank loans in the United States amount to some fifteen billion dollars, the higher rate on autumn loans represents a considerable tax.

The reason for the higher autumn rate is, of course, that money is then required to move the crops. The Eastern banks, in September and October, ship out nearly two and a half times as much currency as they receive. Chicago and St. Louis also are then shipping currency into the country at a brisk rate. Reserves fall; interest rates advance.

The money, having moved the crops, speedily comes back however. In January and February the Eastern banks receive nearly two and a half times as much currency as they ship. Reserves rise; interest rates fall.

From time to time other causes conspire with this seasonal dislocation to produce an acutely distressing situation, as happened in October, 1907. There is no sound reason for shunting a considerable part of the country's ready cash back and forth between the reserve centers and the harvest fields, while there are a number of sound reasons aganst it.

Will Congress, by any lucky chance, have a little spare time this winter for the consideration of banking and currency?—Saturday Evening Post.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

KEEP TO THE RIGHT.

There are people of a certain class who always run "against traffic." If it be on the sidewalk they steadily keep to the left regardless of the number of shoulders they bump and regardless of the extra effort entailed. If it be on the highway they are equally regardless of what common and legal parlance agree in calling the rule of the road. Sometimes the obsession results from heedlessness, sometimes from recklessness and sometimes from native obstinacy. On the sidewalk the effect is merely annoying. On the road, especially where motor cars are involved, the consequences are apt to be serious.

But of all the tribe of drivers who zig-zag about the road, disregard the rules in general and evince no respect for the inalienable though seldom enforcible rights of the other fellow, perhaps the most dangerous rascal is he who deliberately "cuts corners" and as deliberately seeks excuse for the practice. The worst of the habit is that it has some slight foundation, albeit one that countenances direct violation of the law in two important respects. As a disciple of road racing explains, "It is easier on the tires." And he succinctly explains:

"You must keep the orbit of your wheels the same throughout the turn. In making a turn to the left, for example, begin on the right side of the main road, taking the widest possible radious so as to cut the corner and land at the outside of the intersecting road. Thus by changing your direction only once and making as wide a sweep as the road will permit, you can get around without slackening speed and with a minimum of strain on your casings."

Which is true, very true, but evil counsel. Likewise it is cheaper to steal a loaf of bread than buy a sandwich. The rule of the road and the laws of most states demand that all traffic be kept to the right save at the moment of passing other traffic that is moving in the same direction. Similarly it is written that no corner shall be taken save at reduced speed. The wisdom of the plan is made apparent in the success of traffic controls of great cities. The dangers of its contravention are demonstrated with alarming frequency and with growing frequency as motor traffic on the highways multiplies.

The idiot who struggles to reverse the movement of a turnstile door is merely funny, his brothers who persist in doggedly butting the crowd instead of keeping to their own side of the walk are annoying and hardly more. But the corner-cutting motorist and his blind half-brother, Mr. Wrong-Side-of the Road, are a menace in the land.—Automobile Topics.

TO BRING ABOUT PEACE
United States Taking Steps to End Italian-Turkish War

London, Oct. 10.—The Chronicle's Constantinople correspondent says the American ambassador, W. W. Rockhill, has been instructed from Washington to use his influence for peace. The ambassador will have an interview with Said Pasha. Russia is joining with the United States in this action.

Turkey has sent another note to the powers, asking for intervention, and offering to grant every reasonable concession to Italy.

According to reports from Rome, Italy, which at one time was ready to pay Turkey a large compensation, will now pay nothing to Turkey, although she would not impose a war indemnity, if peace were concluded forthwith.

Italian reports tell of the sinking of two Turkish torpedo boats, with a loss of 300 Turks, at San Giovanni di Medua, but the Turkish versions minimize the affair.

Bergdoll Wins Big Auto Race and Breaks Records

Philadelphia, Oct. 10.—Erwin Bergdoll, the young millionaire amateur automobile driver, captured the fourth annual 202½ miles road race over the Fairmount park course here. He drove a ninety-horse power Benz.

Bergdoll gained additional fame by reducing the record for a lap and also for the race distance. He covered the distance in 3 hours 18 minutes 41 35-100 seconds, about 11 minutes faster than it was ever done before, and reduced the lap record from 7 minutes 38 seconds to 7 minutes 28 seconds. The lap is 8 1-10 miles. Bergdoll's average speed for the race was more than sixty-one miles an hour.

Boston, Oct. 10.—Frederick J. Herthel, a former well known real estate dealer of Boston, was sentenced to three years in the house of correction by Judge Sanderson in the superior criminal court for the larceny of $12,000 from Mrs. Clara E. Vance of Salem.

Herthel, who has been out on $12,000 bail since last May, pleaded guilty to the indictment. Two other indictments, charging larceny of $9000 from the estate of Julia A. Eckerly, were placed on file.

Herthel left Boston in 1904 and was extradited last spring from Oakland, Cal. He is 56 years old.

TAFT REVEALS A SECRET
First Ship Will Go Through Panama Canal July 1, 1913

Bellingham, Wash., Oct. 10.—President Taft predicted here that the Panama canal would be ready for use on July 1, 1913. "The canal," he said, "is the greatest constructive work since the Christian era.

"If nothing untoward happens," Mr. Taft further declared, "you can count on that canal on July 1, 1913. It has been promised for July 1, 1915, but I'll let you into the little secret when I tell you you may see the first ship go through that canal on July 1, 1913."

LOST WITH ALL HANDS
British Barkentine Founders North east of Cape Cod

Boston, Oct. 10.—Helpless to render assistance because of the sixty-mile gale that was blowing, Captain Goodwin and the crew of the bark Good Luck saw a British barkentine and her crew of twelve or fourteen men sink 140 miles northeast of Cape Cod, Oct. 1.

The doomed barkentine hailed them just before dusk, flying a signal that read: "Leaking badly. Can you send aid?" Goodwin ran the Good Luck within hailing distance of the barkentine and spoke her through a megaphone. It was hopeless to launch a dory.

When night fell Goodwin passed the word to the barkentine to raise a light and he would stand by during the night. When darkness fell the light could be seen, tossing on the waves. The Good Luck cruised back and forth, standing as near as possible. But about 9 o'clock the light dipped suddenly beneath the waves. The barkentine had sunk.

Because of the noise of the wind, Goodwin was unable to understand the name of the vessel. He caught the word "Bridgton," and so believes that the barkentine hailed from Bridgeton, N. S.

NO STEEL TRUST SUIT
Wickersham and Lehmann Both Make Emphatic Denial

Washington, Oct. 10.—Emphatic denial of the statement that a bill of complaint had been prepared by the department of justice in a proposed civil suit against the United States Steel corporation for violation of the Sherman anti-trust law is authorized by Attorney General Wickersham, who has returned to Washington from New York city.

Frederick W. Lehmann, solicitor general, likewise denies that he made any statement regarding the criminal prosecution of officials of the steel trust.

It was declared most emphatically by both Wickersham and Lehmann that no one with authority to speak for the department of justice had made any statement regarding the intentions of the government in connection with the steel corporation.

FAVORS HOME RULE ON LIQUOR QUESTION
German Alliance In Opposition to "Blue Laws"

Washington, Oct. 10.—Condemning prohibition laws and urging the restoration of the canteen to military posts and soldiers' homes, the National German alliance in session here adopted a number of resolutions offered by the committee on personal liberty.

These declared that "blue laws, prohibitory enactments and legislation which dictates what the individual shall eat, drink and wear, and how and when he shall enjoy himself, are being fostered and promoted by mercenary agitators, who, in a moment of organized hypocrisy, disguised in the cloak of the church and the mantle of patriotism, are hurting true temperance by causing the clandestine and surreptitious use of strong drinks."

The resolutions "congratulate the people of Maine and the nation at large upon the liberal trend of thought in that state," and favor giving cities, towns and incorporated villages home rule on the liquor question.

KING GEORGE V. LAUNCHED
Britain's Largest Warship Has Displacement of 23,000 Tons

Portsmouth, Eng., Oct. 10.—Great Britain's largest and best armored battleship, King George V., was launched successfully. The warship was christened by the king's aunt, Princess Christian of Schleswig-Holstein.

The vessel has a displacement of 23,000 tons and her principal dimensions are: Length, 555 feet; beam, 89; draft 27½. The armament consists of ten 13.5-inch guns and twenty-four four-inch guns. Engines of 31,000 horsepower are expected to furnish a speed of twenty-one knots an hour.

More Than 1,500,000 Barrels In Annapolis Valley This Season

Kentville, N. S., Oct. 10.—Exceeding 1,500,000 barrels, the apple crop in Annapolis valley, the most prolific apple producing section in the world, is larger this year than ever before known in the history of apple growing in this country.

The problem which now confronts the growers is to get enough barrels to hold the supply. Farmers are finding it hard to purchase barrels at 40 cents each and can obtain only a limited supply.

OLD CHELSEA DESIGN.
An Up to Date Idea For the Needlewoman.

This delightful old Chelsea design on the cushion illustrated presents a beautiful and gorgeous piece of coloring. It is composed of a bird and rose and is reminiscent of a piece of old Chelsea china, from which it takes its name. The design also resembles this beautiful old china in coloring, and the embroidery is carried out in a new brilliant thread which is now so popular. The most brilliant and yet the softest tones of coloring are obtained in this thread, and they are blended in such a way in this design as to give a most beautiful effect. The ordinary black and white illustration is quite useless for showing this, and although the design itself and the light and shade in the finished work are extremely well illustrated in this picture these are only a part of the beauty of the cushion when finished.

Arranging Pictures.

Many people make the mistake of thinking that a good picture will look well in any place and in any style of frame. Others recognize the fact that fruit pictures look well only in the dining room and that pictures of authors belong in the library or wherever books are kept. Even when the subject of the picture is in accord with the room, such particulars as the angle at which the light will strike the picture, the height to hang it, the background and the kind of frame must be considered. Few pictures can be shown to advantage against a large flowered, highly colored wall paper. Test out the pictures and see which ones are most effective hung flat against the wall, for tilting destroys the high lights in some pictures. Find out whether the light will make a glare on the picture, making it almost invisible at certain hours of the day. Notice, too, whether shadows in the picture point away from the light, as would be natural. Two hooks are better than one for hanging, avoiding the break in lines caused by having the wire come to a point on one hook. Many things go to make up the study of picture hanging, but once understood, pictures seem to take on a new meaning and value.

Flummery Up to Date.

Put one and a half cupfuls of fine oatmeal to steep for a day and a night in cold water, then pour it off clear and add as much more water and let it stand the same time. Strain it through a fine sieve and boil till it is thick, stirring it well all the time. When first strained add two tablespoonfuls of sugar and two tablespoonfuls of orange flower water. Pour it into shallow dishes and serve with sugar and cream.

A Mother's Advice.

A mother who has discovered a cure for quarreling children wants to pass it along to other mothers at a loss to stop the sharp words and peevishness passed among their little ones. When quarrels become too frequent and complaints come thick and fast, she tries separation. She sends one child to spend the day with an aunt in another neighborhood, gives a second permission to visit a playmate and keeps another busy at home. When the little reunion occurs all three are happy to see each other again, eager to tell of the things that happened while the others were away and more tolerant of each other's faults. Children tire of things easily, so that a change of environment is needed to set them right.

ROOSTER COAL BRIQUETS
NO SLATE NO CLINKERS

ROOSTER COAL BRIQUETS
THE NEW ANTHRACITE COAL
ROOSTER BRIQUETS are made from the choicest small Scranton Anthracite coal mined in Pennsylvania, called TWENTIETH CENTURY CHESTNUT size
Just consider for a moment what we offer here in this 20th CENTURY CHESTNUT.
First, 2000 pounds of clean, pure, hard coal without a rock or a piece of slate.
Second, fuel that cannot form into a clinker, by any known method of firing, consequently the linings and grates last indefinitely.
Third, they are made in nut size, being equally convenient for furnace heaters, open grates, as well as stoves; therefore, only one storage bin is necessary.
Fourth, and very IMPORTANT, the quality of this fuel is the SAME EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR, not a good ton today, and nothing like it the next time, in other words, when you once learn how to regulate your drafts you have nothing more to learn about burning BRIQUETS.
Fifth, no more sifting ashes these Briquets burn out clean. They require less wood to kindle.
Be sure to ask for "ROOSTERS" and get the Briquet made from pure Scranton Coal, from the largest Briquet plant in the country. They are better than coal, will last as long and cost less.

FOR WRECKING BANK IN IDAHO

Bernard O'Neill Is Placed Under Arrest In Vancouver

WAS LOOKING FOR A JOB

Newsboy Who Was Sent West by Children's Aid Society and Became Powerful In Financial and Political Circles Is Now Penniless—Says His Luck Changed When Carnegie Trust Company Failed

Vancouver, B. C., Oct. 10.—Bernard F. O'Neill, who started life as a newsboy in New York and came to be a director of the Carnegie Trust company there, as well as president of the State Bank of Commerce at Wallace, Ida., with a fortune well beyond the $1,000,000 mark, was arrested here on a warrant charging him with liability in the wreck of the Wallace bank. O'Neill was penniless when he was arrested and had come here to start life over again.

O'Neill is 50, and a year ago was a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor of Washington. He was defeated in the convention, but not until he had lost $100,000 in financing the Inland Herald, an afternoon paper in Spokane. The Herald suspended publication a few months ago. In the meantime O'Neill's troubles were piling up at Wallace.

The bank there lent large sums of money to the Lane Lumber company. It advanced such sums, indeed, that before the company even began the repayment of them the bank was compelled to suspend. In the crash O'Neill lost the rest of his fortune, and two weeks ago he came to Vancouver, "looking for a job," as he told the officers who routed him from bed to put him under arrest.

Indictments were found against several other wealthy men of eastern Washington when action was taken against O'Neill in connection with the Wallace bank failure.

Charge of Aid Society

New York, Oct. 10.—O'Neill went west as a charge of the Children's Aid society when he was a lad in knickerbockers selling papers along Park Row. He worked for a time for a farmer in Iowa; next moved on a ranch in Nebraska, and at 19 was working in a bank. Then he went to California, and in 1901 went to Idaho, with the foundation of his fortune already laid.

As a banker O'Neill soon began to attract attention, and it was not long before he had been added to the list of out-of-town directors of the Carnegie Trust company. At about the same time he was made a member of the executive council of the American Bankers' association.

The failure of the Carnegie Trust company marked the beginning of his trouble, and his luck changed immediately, he wrote his friends.

WILEY IS NOW BOSS

Has Doolittle as Associate on the Pure Food Board

Washington, Oct. 10.—Dr. Harvey W. Wiley's regime as chief enforcer of the nation's pure food laws began yesterday afternoon when the reorganized board of food and drug inspection met at the agricultural department.

Dr. Doolittle of New York, the new member appointed at Wiley's suggestion to take the place of Solicitor McCabe, was present, as was also Dr. Dunlap, the associate chemist, whose leave of absence, however, began yesterday.

Dr. Dunlap, who has been secretary of the pure food board, turned over all pending business to Wiley and Doolittle. The latter will be secretary of the board.

BOSTON BROKER MISSING

Men With Whom He Did Business Trying to Locate $40,000

Boston, Oct. 10.—Captain McGarr of the bureau of criminal investigation is trying to locate Richard L. Freeman, a bond broker, who until recently had desk room in the State Mutual building on Congress street.

Taylor & Carmichael, dealers in bonds, Providence, and several others with bonds to sell, are trying to locate about $40,000 which Freeman had collected from customers to whom he sold bonds. The warrant charges $10,000, but much more is said to be missing.

NAMED HIS OWN PRICE

Plant Received $6,000,000 From United Shoe Machinery Company

Boston, Oct. 10.—Thomas G. Plant received $6,000,000 for his shoe machinery inventions and the 60 percent which he owned in his shoe factory from the United Shoe Machinery company, it is stated by the Boston News Bureau, and the news has become public for the first time. It is said that Plant named his own price and the company paid it.

Plant was paid $3,000,000 in cash and the same amount in shares of the United Shoe Machinery. The News Bureau says that St. Louis interests were trying to buy out Plant and were looking for a financial advantage that "would have harnessed in Plant."

SHORTAGE OF $3,288,271

Loose Bookkeeping Methods In Washington Navy Yard

Washington, Oct. 10.—A discrepancy of over $3,288,271 between the material on hand and that called for by the books of the Washington navy yard was shown by the inventory of that yard, just completed, according to an announcement by Secretary of the Navy Meyer.

The navy department officials say explicitly that there is no indication whatever that moral turpitude is involved in the discrepancy and that it is undoubtedly due to the antiquated bookkeeping methods.

Poisoned by Mesh Bag

Trenton, Oct. 10.—Miss Beatrice MacConnell is undergoing treatment for blood poisoning which she contracted from handling a mesh handbag. Miss MacConnell squeezed a fever blister on her lip after she had held the bag.

Four Deaths In Explosion

New York, Oct. 10.—Four men were blown to death and six others seriously wounded when an explosion occurred sixty feet beneath the ground in a narrow shaft sunk at the west drive of Sixty-Sixth street and Central park.

ARTIFICIALLY RIPENED FRUIT

Bureau of Chemistry Asked to Prevent Trade In It

FLORIDA HAS STRINGENT LAW

Indications That Efforts Will Be Made to Break It by Running Blockade—Fruits Shipped Green and Left to Ripen Naturally Not Under the Ban—Close Watch Is Being Kept For Illegal Cargoes

Washington, Oct. 10.—The bureau of chemistry has been requested to exercise its vigilance to prevent interstate shipments of artificially ripened fruits. Complaints come from legitimate growers in Florida, California and other states where fruit growing is a specialty and are directed against the practice of so "sweating" green fruits, like bananas and citrus fruits, that their skins take on the golden hue of richness while the fruit itself remains unfit for consumption.

Florida about a year ago passed a stringent law forbidding the exportation of unripe fruit. This law has been rigorously enforced and it is said that only three or four carloads of the forbidden fruit has left the state for Boston, New York and other northern markets.

The story reaches Washington today, however, that a serious attempt to run the blockade is to be made this week. The bureau of chemistry will be notified by its correspondents in Florida the moment an illegal cargo is shipped and seizures will be made promptly.

It is not a crime under the food and drugs act to ship unripe fruit, nor in fact is green fruit like bananas, oranges and apples a contraband article of commerce. Fruits of this kind shipped green and left to ripen naturally are wholesome and not under the ban. Neither can the federal government act where fruits are "processed" and sold only within the state where the artificial ripening is done.

For instance, a shipment of fruit from Florida which had been processed in Massachusetts could not be penalized in that state unless it were shipped to another state and thus had become a part of interstate commerce.

It is believed that with the sharp work of the department of agriculture and the agents, aided as they are by information supplied by growers who conform to the law, shipments of unhealthful fruits will be reduced to a minimum.

Warning Sent to Bay State

Boston, Oct. 10.—In response to a telegram received from the Florida Citrus Exchange, Governor Foss sent word to the state board of health to be on the lookout for shipments of green oranges from Florida dealers. The Florida Citrus Exchange offers a reward of $100 to the inspector who discovers the first carload of these green oranges.

The state board of health has no authority to order such shipments destroyed, but may communicate with health authorities in cities and towns throughout the state, warning them.

DR. SNOW SENTENCED

Receives Total of Three and a Half Years In Prison

Alfred, Me., Oct. 10.—Pleading guilty to an indictment for breaking and entering and assault with intent to kill, "Dr." Fred B. Snow of Dayton, who was alleged to have been connected with household thefts in that section of York county, received a sentence of one year on each of two indictments for breaking and entering and also got eighteen months for assault with attempt to kill a deputy sheriff.

Edward Bragdon, alleged to be a member of what was known as the "Doc Snow Gang," pleaded guilty to breaking and entering and got a sentence of eighteen months.

FROM RICHES TO POVERTY

Widow of Wealthy Merchant Arrested as a Vagrant

New Haven, Oct. 10.—Penniless through unwise investments, and weak from the effects of exposure, Mrs. Mary A. Smyth, widow of a wealthy and prominent merchant of New Bedford, Mass., was arraigned in the police court on a charge of vagrancy.

She was arrested in a shed near East Rock and in court told a pitiful story of how she had lost her money a few years after her husband died, and being too proud to beg started to support herself as a domestic.

EXPLOSION OF MERCURY

Boston Police Officials Injured While Testing Fuses

Boston, Oct. 10.—Inspector Morrisey of police headquarters and Edwin P. Cochran, an employe of the police signal service system, were painfully injured by an explosion of fulminating mercury in a room at police headquarters. Morrisey lost the middle finger of his right hand and was burned. Cochran was bruised and burned about the chest and left hand.

The men were testing several small fuses encased in copper tubes which were found in Samael Ullian's jewelry store the morning after the safe was rifled, for which crime three men will go on trial today. The men, who were recently brought from Russia and Austria, are Joseph Goldberg, Jacob Goldberg and Harris Rotastein.

INK ON DOLLARS IS GOOD ENOUGH TO EAT

No Poison In It, According to Washington Authority

Washington, Oct. 10.—Interest in the reported blood poisoning of George K. Farnum, treasurer of the Waltham Co-operative bank of Waltham, Mass., from handling money is shown by officials of the treasury department.

Director Ralph of the bureau of engraving and printing scouted the idea that there is poison in the ink used in the printing of money.

"One can eat the ink," said Ralph. "It is composed of grapevine charcoal, bone charcoal and pure linseed oil."

"I have frequently heard bank officials express fear as to old money," said George E. Roberts, director of the mint, "but I cannot see how any one could be poisoned through new money."

PIGEONS IN LONG FLIGHT

500 Released at Herkimer, N. Y. Last Sunday

FIRST ARRIVES

Five hundred carrier pigeons were released at Herkimer, New York, last Sunday with the intention of having them fly from there to the pigeon house of John Clark on Willard street. The distance is 288 miles and the first pigeon arrived home Monday afternoon, followed by a second pigeon which arrived two hours later.

The pigeons have all been raised at the pigeon farm of John Clark, and are the property of various sporting men, who frequently have them shipped to different distant points, in order to test their flying capacity. Mr. Clark owns a considerable number of the birds himself, and was especially pleased when he discovered that the pigeon which was the first to return home Monday was his own property.

Thomas Skinner of Whitwell street is enjoying his annual vacation.

Frank Foy, son of the well known grocer, is now enrolled as a sophomore at Holy Cross college.

Mayor Shea is expected home from Old Point Comfort the latter part of the week.

Several of the young ladies at City Hall are on a sight seeing trip to New York.

Probate court for Norfolk county will be held by Judge Flint in Quincy tomorrow, Wednesday.

Sometime, in the sweet bye and bye, that Hancock street widening job will be completed.

The Eastern Star sewing party will be held with Mrs. James M. Gibb, 33 Edison park, Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

James Skinner of the United States Battleship Maine, is home for a few days and is staying with his folks on Whitwell street.

Russell Sullivan of South street, has resumed work at the local office of the Bay State Railway Company, after a two weeks' vacation.

John Shaw Mitchell has returned home to Hunt street, after an extended business trip through the middle and western states.

Dr. Harold F. Curtis, the well known baseball player and Dr. Albert Bonney are to leave next week for Alexandria, Egypt, where they will engage in dentistry.

If there is any one place about City Square that needs a cross walk it is at the head of Coddington near Washington streets. In stormy weather it is almost impossible to cross at that point without going over the shoes in mud.

Thomas F. Green of the South end, Boston was sentenced to three months in the house of correction by Judge Bennett in the municipal court Monday for laceny at the South station of a traveling bag from Henry Jordan of 500 South street, Quincy.

The degree team of Mt. Wollaston lodge of Odd Fellows will work the first degree tonight on candidates from its own lodge as well as candidates from John Hancock and Neponset lodges. Frank L. Carleton is the noble grand of the degree and P. G. Charles S. Jones, degree master.

The special committee of the City Council to consult with the Citizen's Gas Co., relative to a reduction in the price of gas furnished the citizens of Quincy, is having a conference on the question with President Richards of the Gas Company this afternoon at his Boston office.

Saturday promises to be a busy day at the district court for a large number of cases have been continued until that date. Among the important ones that will come up, is that of Royal W. Gill for causing the death of the Whitcomb boy at Holbrook, Sept. 2. The boy was run over by Gill's automobile.

SOMEBODY'S BABY IS LOST

Little Fellow Picked Up on Granite Street Today

AT POLICE STATION

Up to the time of going to press, there was at the police station, a little chap of about 2 1-2 years, presumably of Swedish descent, who had not yet been claimed. The child was found on Granite street, in the vicinity of the coal shed, by John Wheaton of 23 Cranch street, about noon today.

Albert Flowers, a driver had noticed the child in the earlier part of the morning and upon seeing the child in the same spot a couple of hours afterwards concluded that it had strayed from home.

The Boston papers this morning advertised a lost child and it was at first thought that the boy might be the one wanted, but on close observation it was discovered that the descriptions did not tally.

The child was taken to the police station in the auto and the police feel sure that the little one resides somewhere in the vicinity. The little fellow cannot talk so as to make himself understood the only thing of intelligence he imparts being the word "grandma."

EVANS OF CARDINALS A GREAT JOKER.

Steve Evans, the clever outfielder of the St. Louis Nationals, is a live one. The last day of the recent trip of the Cardinals to Pittsburg about 7,000 fans hied themselves to the ball yard to see Marty O'Toole. Incidentally they went out to see the Cardinals and Pirates play. Anyhow it rained, and they were doubly disappointed, as O'Toole didn't even warm up. Coming back on the car, which was crowded, everybody was talking about O'Toole.

EVANS.

Steve Evans hopped on and found Ivy Wingo standing in about the middle of the car. Ivy has red hair and looks a great deal like O'Toole. This was Steve's cue.

He braced Ivy with extended mit and spieled in a stage whisper:

"Hello, Marty! How do you like Pittsburg?"

The crowd ate it up. One public spirited citizen introduced himself to Wingo (rather, O'Toole) and invited him (Wingo) to call around for lunch the following day. Then Steve asked Wingo about his great pitching feats in St. Paul, and in the meantime many passengers rode past their intended destinations.

Steve never overlooks a bet.

ROBBERS CARRY OFF SAFE

Caught In the Act and One Is Shot Through the Heart

New York, Oct. 10.—Six burglars carried a small safe from one of the United Cigar company's uptown branches, and were preparing to dynamite it in the cellar when one of the tenants of the building heard them.

Two policemen tried to stalk the safebreakers through doors at opposite ends of the cellar, but one of them dropped his club and the men ran, knocking the policeman over in their wild rush. They were fleeing over fences when the other policeman opened fire and shot one of the fugitives through the heart.

The dead burglar has not been identified and one of his companions who was captured refused to talk. The others got away.

BRIDE 13 YEARS OLD

Yields to Short but Ardent Wooing of Patriarch of 89

Sergent, Ky., Oct. 10.—The local poet says "Winter lingers in the lap of very early spring" in this affair of the heart.

"Uncle Jim" Norland, 89 years, was married to Miss Sallie Brown, 13, a schoolgirl, yesterday.

"Uncle Jim," who is as young as he feels, met Miss Sallie for the first time on the roadside three days ago, followed her to school and proposed marriage to her. She hesitated, but her veneration for a man about seven times her age yielded to his ardent wooing.

WHY THE ATHLETICS SHOULD DEFEAT THE GIANTS IN THE WORLD'S SERIES

By TOMMY CLARK.

NOW that the National and American league pennant races are over all there is to figure on the 1911 baseball campaign is the outcome of the world's series. New York, it would seem, makes the Giants the favorites more because they represent New York than that their class warrants it. It is but natural for New Yorkers to figure the Giants invincible. Having won the National league gonfalon and humbled both Cubs and Pirates, New York is not able to see any other team.

But of course all followers of baseball do not share this belief. There is a team in Philadelphia over which a long, lean gentleman of quiet demeanor presides that also has a following. It may not have as many noisy adherents as its rival, nor are the claims for it as extravagant, but when these games are played it is apt to be very much in evidence.

Philadelphia Stronger Than Ever.

The Athletic team of 1911 is unquestionably the strongest ball club in the American league. The team is stronger than the Athletic champions of 1910. McInnis at first base is a vast improvement over Davis, who played the bag last year. He is a much faster man and a better hitter than his predecessor. Barry, the Athletic shortstop, has displayed improved form this year. Collins, the second baseman, and Baker, the third sacker, are two great ball players.

Collins is probably the most valuable player in the American league, with the exception of Ty Cobb.

Mack's outfield consists of Lord, Oldring and Murphy. It is a better combination than the New York crew, which consists of Devore, Snodgrass, with Becker and Murray alternating in right field.

The Athletic infield has an edge on the Giants' quartet. Merkle and McInnis measure even up; Collins has it on Doyle in every way; Barry is a more seasoned and smarter shortstop than Fletcher; Herzog is a wonderful fast third baseman and probably holds Baker safe, but give me the latter for his long drives.

Myers will probably do all the catching for New York. Bresnahan caught every game for the Giants back in 1905. Myers is no Bresnahan behind the bat. He is a heavy hitter and a good mechanical receiver, but not a quick thinker.

The Athletics have a corking good pair in Thomas and Lapp, as the Cubs and seven American league clubs will vouch for.

Now for a glance at the twirling corps of the two teams. The Giants have Mathewson, Marquard, Wiltse, Crandall and Ames. Matty is not as good as he was a few seasons ago Still, he is one of the best twirlers in the country, but he cannot be expected to do all the pitching in the coming series. Marquard up until a short time ago was the man picked to down the Athletics; but, judging by his recent showing, he is not as good as he was earlier in the season. Wiltse has been ailing for some time, and so has Drucke. Crandall is a hard worker, but is not in the same class with Marquard or Mathewson.

The Athletics have three strong right hand pitchers in Bender, Coombs and Morgan and two good southpaws in Plank and Krause. Mack thinks Plank will prove an insurmountable obstacle to the Giants in the world's series. Krause has not been very effective in the American league this year, but Mack is confident that the kid will make trouble for New York.

New York Weak Against Southpaws.

Another known weakness of the New York team is its inability to hit left hand pitchers. McGraw has a bunch of left hand stickers. Devore, Becker and Doyle are left hand clouters. Sallee, Bucker and other good southpaws have proved the greatest obstacles in the Giants' progress pennantward.

There can be no denying that the Giants will tackle a sturdier opponent than any they have met in the National league this season when they stack up against the Athletics. Besides having a stone wall infield and a powerful pitching staff, the team has a number of heavy batters. Barry is the only regular of the team who is not batting over the .300 mark. When Lapp and Coombs are the battery Mack can send eight .300 clubbers against his opponents.

There is another point of advantage the Athletics have over the Giants, and that is possibly a generally higher standard of baseball intelligence. McGraw's men are not rated as intellectual giants and have given some very bad exhibitions on occasions when the manager has been absent from the side lines.

They have speed, plenty of good batting strength and two good pitchers, though Marquard in a big series is, of course, an experiment. Mathewson will pitch good ball whether he wins or loses. He has brains and is thoroughly game and cool. Wiltse, the Giants' southpaw, is one of the best in the game, but has not been in the best of shape of late. He will not be used in the series unless in case of an emergency.

One of the questions most debated by the experts is the extent to which the Giants will continue their base running when they meet the Athletics. There is an interesting angle to the pathwork of this team which has been brought to view by claims of some National leaguers that the New Yorks' base running is overrated. The scores and averages of course show that they have run more sacks than any other club in the country.

But the contention is that they have run the bases foolishly at times, stealing third with two down and making all sorts of moves that are frowned on by the orthodox and not calculated in the ordinary course of events to gain anything in the way of runs if opponents do not follow the steals with errors.

In this contention it is noteworthy that with all of its stolen bases the New York team has not scored nearly as many runs as Pittsburg this season. The Giants have stolen over two and one-half times as many bags as the Pirates, but the latter club has chased more runners all the way round. This would serve to back the assertion made by those who refuse to give the Giants all that is claimed for their base running. The argument is that it is a waste of effort and unproductive.

If so it may not gain so much in the coming series. Ira Thomas is a wise catcher, who will profit by any false moves, and he will be catching a couple of crafty pitchers, who may let a few men on and who will watch those who do get there. Under Mack Thomas has developed into one of the best catchers and throwers in the country. His accurate pegging last fall prevented the Cub runners from pilfering many sacks.

Mack will send into the world's series the best balanced club in either league. It is not showy, but it is a consistent, evenly playing outfit.

Athletics Ought to Win.

After going over the real conditions of the two teams an unbiased person cannot help but select the Athletics as winners of the series. They seem to have everything in their favor. The team has an edge in the backstopping department and pitching; its infield collectively is stronger, and the outfield is better than that of the Giants'. They have the best batting team and the advantage of having a chance to rest up and then tackle the all stars to tune themselves up for the world's series.

To be pitted against a high class ball team such as the all stars and to be forced to bat against pitchers like Johnson, Walsh, Ford and White have furnished the greatest kind of practice, as after this sort of experience pitchers of the ordinary type look decidedly easy.

It was so with the Athletics when they faced the Cubs last year. They had been batting against Walsh and Johnson for nearly a week, and when they tackled the Cubs their pitchers did not seem to have enough to fool them, the result being that the Athletics did some very hard and timely hitting in that series.

Of course all this may sound entirely one sided to many fans, and one might think that the Giants' chances of winning were hopeless. But such is not the case, although all the dope favors the Athletics. Baseball is the most uncertain of all sports. Oftentimes clubs that appear very weak on paper come through and wallop the daylight out of a championship team.

It is argued that McGraw is a great baseball general. Granted. But is there any one better qualified to outline a defense or attack than Cornelius McGillicuddy? There is no trick of the game, no science of the sport, that Mack is not familiar with. Many of the plays and strategic moves are of his invention, and if it comes down to a battle in which heads are to count Mack will not finish second to McGraw.

The Giants must use offhand aggressive methods, while the Athletics will work every man to the limit and get more runs out of hits they make than the Giants, although the New York men will probably score the greater number of total bases. The Giants are not as well drilled as the Athletics, but the chances are that their style of play will please the fans.

Comparison of Old and New Teams.

The Giants of 1905 were a scrappy aggregation. They were cocky from the start of the season until the end. It was a case of bring along your team and we'll trim 'em. Compare Bresnahan, Bowerman, catchers; Matty, McGinnity, pitchers; McGann, Gilbert, Dahlen and Devlin, infielders; Donlin, Seymour and Mertes with the team of today and you will find it more powerful in every way.

For the past month the Giants have been playing beyond their speed and naturally are keyed up to a high pitch. When the men tackle Philadelphia they will be playing on the nerves.

On the other hand, the Athletics of today are stronger than the team of 1905, which was composed of Schreckengost and Powers, catchers; Bender, Plank, Coakley, pitchers; Davis, Murphy, Monte Cross and Lave Cross, infielders; Lord, Seybold and Hartsel, outer gardeners.

SPORTING "DOPE"

By B. A.

Don't Knock, Just Boost.—B. A.

Brighton High and Quincy High today at 3.30.

The first football game of the season for the Quincy A. A. has been billed for Columbus day morning with the strong Hingham A. A. as the attraction. The Quincy A. A. is composed of the members of the Wollaston A. A. team of last year, and the performances at that time should speak sufficiently well for the calibre of football that should be displayed in the initial contest. The game will be called at 9 o'clock and every fan who is desirous of seeing the real article of pigskin work, should make an especial effort to be present.

One of the most promising competitors in the boxing tournament, to be held under the auspices of the Quincy A. A. on the evening of October 16th, will be Johnny Fallon, the little bell hop from the Boston City club, who won the American 105 pound championship last spring. Many other well known fistic artists have been billed for the occasion, and the opening event gives every promise of being a gala one.

McGREGOR FOOTBALL CLUB.

The McGregors of Quincy are to play two games on Columbus day, one at 10.30, between the old team of Quincy, including all the old players.

The Old Quincys are to be dressed in fancy dress (masquerade game) The afternoon game will start at 3 o'clock at the same place, Water street grounds. The opposing team being the strong Riverdales of Brighton. Both games will be top-notch and are sure to draw large crowds.

Vol. 26 No. 235 QUINCY. MASS. WEDNESDAY EVENING, OCTOBER 11, 1911 PRICE TWO CENTS

FALL RALLY OF Y. P. S. C. E.

Of East Norfolk District Took Place Tuesday Evening

FINNISH SOCIETY WELCOMED

The fall rally of the East Norfolk Christian Endeavor Union took place in the Wollaston Congregational church, Tuesday evening. Societies were present from Braintree, East Milton, Holbrook, Randolph and all parts of Quincy. A hearty round of applause greeted the admission of the society of the Finish Congregational church of Quincy to the ranks of the Union.

In the absence of the president the meeting was in charge of the vice president C. A. Boynton. Devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. Edward A. Chase of the Wollaston Congregational church.

At the roll call the Wollaston Congregational society lead with 86 per cent present, but as that society was the host the attendance banner went to the First Presbyterian society with 71 per cent present.

Carle R. Hayward of Quincy was the speaker of the evening and took for his subject the recent convention of Christian Endeavors at Atlantic City.

The trip to the convention was outlined in detail and mention was made of the famous speakers who addressed it such as President Taft, Champ Clark, Judge Lindsey and others.

Mr. Hayward laid special stress on the efficiency campaign which is to be the keynote of Christian Endeavor for the next two years and whose results will be seen at the Los Angeles convention.

The question, said the speaker is what can you and I do? Under the three heads of the union the individual societies and the individual members Mr. Hayward proceeded to give some excellent advice along those lines.

Mr. Hayward voiced a protest that so much of the life of the young peoples societies were being sapped by the demon pleasure. Not that I do not believe in having a good time, he said but it is a sad day when we put pleasure on a throne and sacrifice to it time, money and strength.

In closing the speaker drew a realistic nature picture, saying that when clouds seem to obscure the face of the Divine Being we should not turn our faces down and forget to look up for the clouds soon roll away and we once more see the beautiful sunshine.

"Onward Christian Soldiers" was sung in closing and the rally concluded with a benediction by Rev. J. M. Lilliback of the Finnish Congregational church. During the meeting several selections were sung by the young peoples choir of the Park and Downs church.

NEGRO TROOPER RUNS AMUCK WHEN ARRESTED

Murders Two and Gives Battle for Nearly Half an Hour at Fort Ethan Allen

Shot in Leg Brings Him To Terms

Burlington, Vt., Oct. 11.—Matthew Carlyle of A Troop, Tenth cavalry, negro, U. S. A., in a frenzy brought on through being arrested for failure to report to duty, shot and killed Andrew C. Fox, of C Troop, in the same regiment, and Clara Washington, a negro woman, in a house to which he fled.

The negro trooper, obsessed by a lust for blood, also shot and fatally wounded Beatrice Stewart in the same house, and was captured in a most spectacular manner by troops sent after him. By employing Indian tactics they drew his attention and allowed Lieutenant Blaine to creep up through the underbrush and place a well-directed bullet in his groin.

The house had been riddled by the bullets of the troops and Carlyle had paid no attention, but the sight of blood spurting from his own body was too much for him.

Shouting to those below that he would surrender, he came down, gave up his rifle, and was taken back to the fort under guard.

Armed with a high power army rifle, together with a belt of ammunition, Carlyle stood off a detachment of troops in charge of Captain Suplee, officer of the day, for nearly half an hour, shooting the mount from under Captain Godson of L Troop, but surrendering immediately upon sustaining a wound.

Residents of Burlington are in an uproar, as the engagement took place within half a mile of Fort Ethan Allen, which is a comparatively short distance from the centre of the town.

There was a strong and concerted protest made when it was announced that the Tenth cavalry had been ordered to Burlington, about two years ago, many of the citizens fearing just such an occurance as has taken place.

The shooting of Fox took place on the reservation, from which Carlyle ran to Blueforts, a resort less than a quarter of a mile from the post. It was here that the engagement took place between the negro desperado and soldiers from the fort. The rattle of shots was audible for nearly a mile and brought fear and consternation to the minds of Burlington citizens.

The Washington woman was shot as she lay in bed suffering from rheumatism, while Beatrice Stewart was shot through the back as she stood at the foot of the stairs.

The trouble is said to have started when Carlyle, who had been assigned to special duty as a painter, failed to report for work, and was reported the officer of the day by Fox, at the time in charge of the work. Carlyle was in placed under arrest in barracks, which meant that he was allowed to roam about in the vicinity of the barracks, and also allowed him to secure his rifle for cleaning.

Fox had been the cause of Carlyle being arrested several times, it is said, and it was against him that the especial hatred of the man was directed.

The federal government now has Carlyle in its hands, but it is believed that the state of Vermont will take some action, as the battle took place outside of the reservation.

PARENTS COME FOR LOST BABY

The little child found Tuesday morning on Granite street, remained at the police station until 5.39 that night before its parents came after it. It seems that the child was the daughter of James Millian of Scammell street. Tuesday morning the child was taken to its grandmothers house on South street to spend the day. While out at play it wandered away. When it did not come back the grandmother supposed that she had gone home. Early in the evening the mother went to the grandmothers house and was surprised to find her daughter not there. The police were communicated with and the parents came and took the little girl home.

TODAY'S COURT.

Mary Santasawessa, Nicola Guidice and Vito Merluzzo were arraigned for violation of the liquor law at Braintree. Cases continued until Oct. 18.

Edward W. Ellis was fined $10 for exceeding the automobile speed limit at Milton.

Peter Hand was fined $5 for drunkenness at Randolph, Patrick Murphy $10 for drunkenness at Milton.

CUBA'S NAVY.

Four daughters of President Gomez of Cuba were in Philadelphia Tuesday to participate in the launching of two Cuban vessels at Cramp's shipyard, the protected cruiser Cuba and the training ship Patria. The Cuba is an 8,000 ton cruiser, and when completed will cost $510,000. The Patria, a schoolship of 1,800 tons, is to be used in training recruits for the new navy. She will be completed at a cost of $238,000.

COL. KINCAIDE ADDRESSES RAND CLASS

Of the Wollaston Baptist Church on Tuesday Evening

Discusses Recent Trip of Boston Chamber of Commerce

At the social of the Rand class of the Wollaston Baptist church Tuesday evening, Colonel Henry L. Kincaide of Quincy delivered an address upon "The recent European trip of the Boston Chamber of Commerce," before an appreciative audience.

The speaker's talk was filled with interesting and instructive descriptions and his close observation of the business, social politic and economic conditions abroad was noted at every stage.

He was especially enthusiastic over the military training in force in Europe and which in his mind should be installed in the public schools here. This would not only do no harm but would teach obedience and respect to superiors.

By this system in Europe you receive a civil answer to your question and the people are taught to respect the law, their superiors and the government.

Mr. Kincaide took up comprehensively the visits of the Chamber of Commerce to the various European cities. Among other things the railway conditions in London came in for praise.

The German method of city government was declared by the speaker to be especially efficient. In this the mayor is generally elected for twelve years by the aldermen, politics being entirely removed from the office.

In this manner certain men make it a life study with the office in view and large cities think nothing of selecting the mayor of a smaller city for their head or of advertising for one.

Social conditions were discussed and Mr. Kincaide explained how the German manufacturer attempts to make up for the small wage paid his employes by the betterment of housing conditions, the giving of bonuses.

The contentment of the laboring man abroad, however, is coming to and end and the higher wage is bound to come there as it has already in this country.

In conclusion, said the speaker, there was a great deal to profit by and we brought home many lessons. As a whole the people are fairly happy. They take things easy and there is not the hustle and bustle there is in this country.

At the conclusion of his talk Mr. Kincaide invited the asking of questions and the hearty manner in which this was taken advantage of showed the interest aroused by the address.

In addition to the Rand class, men of the community were invited and present. Several vocal solos by William Bullock accompanied by Carl P. Foss were enjoyed by the audience.

Following Colonel Kincaide's talk refreshments were served and those present looked over some of the souvenirs the speaker brought with him.

REPUBLICANS GETTING IN LINE FOR ACTIVE CAMPAIGN

Enthusiastic Meeting of City Committee Was Held Last Night

Arrangements for Rally Next Monday

A largely attended and important meeting of the Republican city committee was held Tuesday evening at the new headquarters, 11 Cottage avenue, President Louis F. R. Langelier presiding. The committee had just got down to business when an automobile pulled up to the door and in walked Mayor Hatfield of Newton, chairman of the Republican state committee, H. Clifford Gallagher state committee man from this district, George L. Barnes candidate for senator form the first Norfolk district, Louie E. Flye, a candidate for County Commissioner at the recent caucuses and Herbert W. Burr who was one of the candidates for state auditor.

Chairman Hatfield on being introduced, spoke briefly. He said that he was glad to meet the city committees, because they were the people who do the real work and to whom the party looks to get out the vote. He wanted to impress upon them the necessity that each should feel, an individual responsibility to get out the vote. To talk it over with those who were about to become voters and to guide them in their first steps of citizenship. We must meet these men half way and make them undertsand that the Republican party is the party of the masses and not the party of the classes as some of the Democrats would make them believe.

It means something to get hold of these men, making their first steps and make them feel that the party wants them. As a rule the Democrats play the game while we are asleep. They are working all the time.

There has been a tremendous change in feeling in regard to the present Governor and the people are going to vote for such a man as we have this year as a candidate. You owe it to these men whom you have nominated to see to it that they are not knocked down. Get out and talk Republicanism and let the people know what it means. If you are not willing to work, it is your duty to get off of the committee and let someone else do it. After you have nominated a man for office it is your duty to fall into line and work for him. Get together boys, you have got a candidate worthy of your support.

Senator Barnes in opening, said that he knew that there were some differences last year but that had passed and gone. If you believe that I ought to go back to the senate, I can only ask your cordial support. We want to take every opportunity to talk up the state ticket. We have got to tell the people why they should vote the Republican ticket. It seems that we have got the whole argument this year. The Democrats have all of the theories in the basket, weaved into their platform. They are using one argument in one place and something else in other places. He rather imagined that on election day Mr. Foss would find the people not with him. In the old days, such men as Russell and Douglas represented principal but today, the idea seems to be to slam the Republican party and not to attack our principals. This year we have as clean, straightforward, and honorable a man for our candidate for Governor as was ever nominated. There is not a blemish on him in any way and form and there is no reason why he should not be supported and elected. A reduction of the tariff means a reduction of the wages paid to the men in the shoe factories and the people of his town were doing a lot of thinking. They realize that they are working in competition with the English workmen and that if the tariff is removed, their standard of wages will be the same as that of the English workmen.

Senator Barnes then said that he understood that Mr. Foss was to make a personal fight against him in the district. If he wants to start a fight, the First Norfolk District is a good place to begin it. Senator Barnes said that he favored a certain measure in the Senate the past year upon which Mr. Foss sent a message that was beneath the dignity of any executive and that he had taken occasion to comment on it, saying that he regretted that such a message must be recorded upon the records. If he is to attack me I suppose that there will be a merry fight and I ask you to support me.

It is important that the senate and house shall be Republican this year and in closing he urged that all Republican candidates be supported.

Louie E. Flye said this was the first time that he had attended a political meeting in Quincy. He had been led to believe that since Quincy had elected a Democratic Mayor, all the Republicans were either dead or had sought shelter. But when the votes were counted at the recent caucuses he had found that they were very much alive and "on the job." Although he had been defeated at the caucuses he felt glad to be present in any event and pay a tribute to the townsman whom you have been pleased to nominate. He wished that we had more of the Hatfield enthusiasm throughout the state. There was nothing like enthusiasm to bring us to ourselves. He then spoke a good word for Senator Barnes, who was one of the strong men of the senate and he thought that Mr. Barnes had been a little bashful, for there was a strong sentiment to make him its president. We will all work for him and Foss can not take away from him the splendid record that he has made.

He then spoke of some of the acknowledged good bills that had been passed by the Republican house and senate which Foss had vetoed. One of these bills was in the interest of the health of the mothers and children. That is the so called milk bill, but Foss, in order to get the support of the farmers, vetoed the bill. Mr. Flye then spoke at length on the tariff question and closed by urging

MAY HAVE BEEN SUICIDE PACT

Mrs. Hilda Davidson Tries to End Life by Taking Poison

HUSBAND MET TRAGIC END

As a result of what is said to be a suicide, Mrs. Hilda Davidson aged 24 years of 17 Nelson street, attempted to take her life Tuesday night by swallowing corrosive sublimate tablets. Medical Examiner Jones was called and after administering first aid, ordered her removal to the City Hospital. When found, the woman had a bag clutched tightly in her hands which was found to contain a few more of the tablets.

Mrs. Davidson's husband committed suicide at the Taunton Insane hospital a few days ago by hanging himself.

It appears from investigation made by Overseer of the Poor Elcock after his death, that it had been agreed between the husband and wife when he went to the asylum that if he did not come out that she would commit suicide and join him in the great beyond It is supposed that she attempted to carry out her part of the pact when she took the tablets.

JOHN EVANS BETTER.

John Evans who was run over by an automobile Monday, was reported as resting comfortably this noon. He had quite a restless day Tuesday and was in considerable pain that night. It was not found necessary however to use the X-ray on his knee. Unless new complications set in, he will be able to be out in a few days.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

HOLIDAY NOTICE.

Thursday has been set apart as a National holiday to be known as Columbus Day. It is to be generally observed in Quincy therefore the office of the Daily Ledger will be closed all day no paper being issued that date.

About now ambitious politicians begin to price the offerings in ready to wear senatorships.

The great economic problem of the day is how to make John D's right hand pocket compete with his left hand pocket.

In view of the fatalities already recorded from the deer season, it will not be needful to offer any bounty for the heads of Adirondack guides.

The deputy sheriffs tried to arrest Miss Moisant, the aviator, for going up Sunday, but evidently failed because they had no fly cops.

The Italian warships kindly arrange their bombardments so that the moving picture men can get their machines all ready.

The Turks are anxious for peace. In view of the speed with which their public buildings at Tripoli are being reduced to kindling wood, this shows good judgment.

Mr. Taft says the trusts are feeling the heavy hand of the law, in spite of the fact that they trousers had been carefully padded by the smartest legal tailors.

Hans Gericke, the German balloonist, has carried off the Bennett cup. With this handy, he won't have to feed the fishes when it gets rough on the boat going home.

William Butler Yeats says a man to do anything must have some "chaos" in him, but it would seem more useful to feed him on good nutritious hash.

A 58 foot whale has come ashore on the Jersey coast, but it is not true that he was hanging around expecting that Woodrow Wilson would be offered him as a Jonah.

The Supreme Court has reassembled after a four months recess, although back in the Little Red school house a 30 minute recess was considered liberal.

HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL.

If High school football is recognized formally or tacitly, as a distinctive high school activity, and a member of the faculty is assigned to its direction, outside interference ought not to be allowed, says an exchange.

There would be exactly as much excuse for some officious person to walk into the Latin class-room and take the conduct of class out of the hands of the teacher, as is for one to walk into the training ground and elbow out the officially designated coach. Whether the teacher or the coach were inferior in ability to the interloper, or whether pupils or players were fascinated by the intruder's personality or genius, has nothing to do with the case. Nobody would ever dream of tolerating such a performance in connection with studies; the fact that some persons are inclined to favor it in connection with football is only another proof of the exaggerated and disproportionate importance which is given to this phase of athletics.

BEAUTIFUL ISLE OF SOMEWHERE.

The disapproval of the hymn "The beautiful isle of Somewhere" expressed the other day by Gov. Woodrow Wilson, created a stir in church and choir circles.

The rejoinder might be very properly made, that when a man believes in "The beautiful isle of Somewhere" instead of "The beautiful isle of Nowhere" he has crossed the line that separates a deathly pessimism from a sunshiny optimism, which is similar to the line that separates skepticism from faith.

Apart from the merits of that particular hymn, however, there is justice in Gov. Wilson's criticism of a certain type of church music that might be classed under the head of "religious coon songs."

The type of church music known as the "gospel song" was a natural reaction from the passive and colorless, not to say gloomy, choral music prevailing up to some fifty years ago. When the mournful strains of "Plunged in the gulf of dark despair" or "Hark from the tombs a doleful sound" proceeded from the choir seats, it was not surprising that the corners of the deacon's mouth sank down a notch further, and that the children shuddered and longed for the sunlight of God's out-doors.

When "Hold the fort" and "Pull for the shore" and all their imitations came along, it seemed like a breath of oxygen amid the clammy atmosphere of the tombs. Once again religion seemed a live human force that welcomed merriment and greeted the unseen with a smile.

But it was only a passing phase. Today "Hold the fort" and "Pull for the shore" are never sung in our churches. Every year a new crop of imitations of that style is ground out, but they are as dead the year after as the "Merry Widow" waltz.

Meanwhile splendid old tunes like "Portuguese hymn" "The son of God goes forth to war" "Hark, hark my soul, angelic songs are swelling" are sung every Sunday, and will be indefinitely, just as "America" and "The star spangled banner" will always be played at our band concerts.

In order that a tune remain permanently in our hymn books, it needs to have the rhythm, the march feeling, the flowing melody that gave the gospel songs their temporary hold, and which most of the solemn old church music never had. In addition to that it needs to have a dignity, and a poetic elevation of sentiment that the gospel songs rarely possessed.

PROMINENT BOSTON ATTORNEY

Addresses Opening Meeting of Wollaston Unitarian Club

Clever Remarks from the Subject Giants and Pygmies

At the opening meeting of the Wollaston Unitarian club Tuesday evening, Lafayette G. Blair, a prominent Boston attorney, well known as a clever after dinner speaker delivered an address upon "Giants and Pygmies."

The speaker, being felicitously introduced by President C. S. Adams, declared that he knew nothing about the subject at hand. He always spoke at random but being told he must have a subject had chosen this on the spur of the moment.

He was told that Wollaston was the swell part of Quincy and that no one thought themselves bigger. Such being the case he was willing to play pygmy to their giant.

Mention was made of the French savant who computed Adam to be 123 feet, 9 inches in height and Eve 118 feet, 9 inches. The speaker had never believed in the fall of man but this puts new light on the subject. If Adam was 123 feet no wonder his fall shook up the human race.

Adam's fall really meant something for from that time we find the human race beginning to dwindle and when we reach the age of Moses we find him a diminutive fellow of 13 feet.

This accounts for Moses' bad luck and proves that if you would be a giant at all you must not be 13 feet. In all history you will not find a giant 13 feet tall who had good luck.

While the Bible makes many references to giants, there is but one made to dwarfs or pygmies. This appears in Leviticus and forbids a dwarf to make any offering to the Lord. This

DR. RYDER'S IMPORTANT REMARKS

Before the Parents' and Teachers' Association of Cranch School

The opening meeting of the Parents' and Teachers' association of the Cranch school, was held in the school hall, Tuesday evening and was largely attended. The hall itself had been very prettily decorated for the occasion, autumn leaves being strewn about in abundance, while a red color scheme adorned the platform.

The president of the association George Pfaffman was in charge of the exercises and gave an address of welcome to those present. He introduced Mrs. J. H. Slade, as soloist of the evening, who charmed the audience with her sweet voice. She was ably assisted at the piano by Mrs. George Pfaffman.

Various topics, pertaining to the welfare of the school, were discussed at length and a new committee was appointed to exert its influence in having the matter of grading about the school given careful attention. It seems that the former committee appointed to attend to this matter, had done diligent work along these lines, and was successful in securing an appropriation from the city authorities.

Material was deposited in the school yard, evidently for the purpose of bringing about the desired result, but the first storm that came, washed it all away. The matter commanded the attention of the many present for some time, and no efforts will be spared to have the school yard placed in the proper condition. The new committee comprises Clarence Burgin, (chairman) Councilman Charles Ericson, and Andrew Stuart.

The speaker of the evening, Dr. George H. Ryder, who gave a very instructive discourse on "Some general considerations of the eyes of school children." Dr. Ryder illustrated his talk with black board illustrations and brought home forcibly to those present the imperative need of having the eyes given the proper attention. The speaker gave many valuable hints to those who do considerable reading, and depected the effects that oftentimes result from reading in an improper position.

He included in his remarks, considerations on near sightedness, far sightedness, stigmatism, eye twitching eye squinting and finally blindness.

The speaker then went on to say that many pupils are classed as stupid, who in reality are merely suffering from some eye affliction. He said that the care of the eyes was an imposing one, and urged the parents to have their children's eyes tested thoroughly each year. He concluded by saying that proper attention to the eyes was conducive to sound health and good physical condition, and also was a great factor in maintaining a high standard of efficiency among the pupils. He was warmly applauded at the completion of his discourse.

Refreshments were served under the direction of Miss Elsie Turner, teacher of the sixth grade, assisted by some of her pupils. While the repast was in order solos were rendered by Miss Olive Allen, Miss Julia Holteen, Clarence London and Albert Parkr, all graduates of the Cranch school. It was one of the most enjoyable meting ever held by the association and a most successful year is now being eagerly awaited.

Mr. Pfaffman brought to the notice of those present, an exhibit of several wall photographs and prints of paintings to be seen at the Art Museum, and which had been loaned for a week to the Cranch School.

ATLANTA'S BIG DAY

Soldiers Participate In Unveiling of Peace Monument

Atlanta, Oct. 11.—Soldiers of three wars, from seven states of the north and south, and a great host of other spectators saw unveiled in Piedmont park a peace monument to commemorate the mission of peace undertaken by the Gate City Guards of Atlanta in its trip north in 1879.

Governor Baldwin of Connecticut was the principal speaker. Preceding the unveiling of the monument there was a parade of crack military organizations of the country.

REPUBLICANS GETTING IN LINE FOR CAMPAIGN

all to support and work for the party candidates.

Herbert W. Burr said that he wanted to take the opportunity to thank the boys for what they had done for him, also for the enthusiasm that was shown in his nomination. We have got to enthuse our neighbors. We have got to fight and fight hard. Last year was a remarkable year. Foss told how much necessities would be reduced, but such is not the case. It was equally as absurd to say that Foss was responsible as to say that the falling in the price of chickens and turkeys after the caucuses was due to the nomination of Frothingham.

In closing he said that he hoped that they would work hard for the election of the party candidates and he wanted them to know that the fellows that got left, as he did, would also work and give Frothingham a splendid majority.

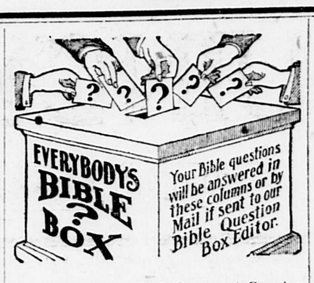
After the speakers had taken their departure, arrangements were made for the caucuses and for the grand rally that is to be held in Alpha hall next Monday. The caucuses are to be held Nov. 14th, and papers may be obtained at the store of Henry P. Kittridge. They will be received by the committee on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings, Oct. 31, and Nov. 1 and 2 up to 7.39 at Republican headquarters, 11 Cottage avenue at which time they will be opened.

Tonight, Chairman Hatfield and Senator Pierson of Brookline will visit headquarters and talk to the committee, and to the Republican club.

On Monday evening a grand rally will be held at Alpha hall, and for this rally a fine array of speakers have been secured. First and foremost will be Louis A. Frothingham, the candidate for Governor, Joseph Walker president of the senate, Senator George L. Barnes, Representative James F. Cavanagh of Everett, and State Treasurer Elmer A. Stevens.

Monday noon, Mr. Frothingham will address the workmen at the Fore River yards. From now on to the election a progressive campaign will be carried on.

—John Hays Hammond at the rally of the Dorchester Free Home for Consumptives predicted the federal government must take over the fight over tuberculosis at the expense of $50,000,000 a year on the ground that suppressing the disease would save the nation $200,000,000 a year. Meantime the states are conducting a most inspiring contest against the white plague, and nowhere has Massachusetts shown her leadership more clearly.—Boston Record.



Q.—Why does God the great Creator who has all power and wisdom permit the reign of sin and evil in the earth? When we see all of the sorrow and misery existing in the world because of the evil we wonder that a just and loving Creator would permit these things when He has the ability to put an end to them at any time?

Answer.—This is a very important question and one that thinking minds have pondered over for ages past. We believe that it can best be answered by using a fact of history to illustrate the matter. In ancient times, during the reign of a wise and just ruler over a large part of the earth, a rebellion occurred in a certain portion of the empire. A usurper arose and, misrepresenting the character of the emperor, succeeded in inducing the people of this particular province to no longer render obedience to their rightful sovereign. Although the emperor had the power to suppress the rebellion at once, he permitted the tyrant to rule over the province, and in this way let the people experience the hardships and evils of misrule, that they might the better appreciate the advantages of the wise and beneficent reign of the monarch. Also it would furnish an object lesson to the people of the other provinces. And thus it turned out, the people in time grew exceedingly weary of the woe and sorrows inflicted by the usurper, and when the opportunity finally presented itself to escape from his dominion, they gladly returned to complete harmony with their emperor, expressing their allegiance and full submission to his just commands. Satan, "the God (ruler) of this present evil world," is to be bound eventually and the people, liberated from his dominion and tyranny, and instructed in righteousness, for, when "the judgments of the Lord are in the earth, the inhabitants of the world will learn righteousness," will then appreciate the wise and just commands of their Creator, their rightful Sovereign.

—Judge Michael J. Murray, speaking under the auspices of the Holy Name Society of St. Peter's Parish, Cambridge, Sunday evening, commented on crime among young men, and said he believed that the lack of home influence was largely responsible. He urged his hearers to enforce discipline at home, especially for the guidance of boys.

QUINCY WOMEN'S CLUB.

Fair weather always seems to favor the Quincy Women's club on its opening day of club activities and Tuesday was no exception for it was an ideal day in every way and club women seemed glad to come together again. Bouquets of pink pinks adorned the president's desk and tea tables. The meeting opened with the new president Mrs. Eben W. Sheppard presiding and after the singing of the club hymn she welcomed the club members as follows:

It is with the greatest of pleasure I welcome you, fellow members, to this our first meeting of the year. I am indeed grateful for the privilege, not only of speaking a word of greeting, but for the pleasure I expect to derive in working with you for the best interests of this club. We have much to encourage us as we take up the work anew knowing that in the past this club has stood for high ideals, has year by year broadened and increased its usefulness until today, it can truly be said of the Quincy Women's club that their work is vital, influential and a power for good. It is a working club in every sense of the word and has set itself to be useful not only to its members, but to the community at large. We have a feeling of assurance, that each member of our club, who comes into the work, comes not with a desire for personal benefit or recreation exclusively, but with a purpose, not for what they can get out of the club, but what they can put into it. With this assurance, I would simply add. That it is well to be ambitious the twentieth century stands for so much, yet to my mind a club to do its best work, along business lines, should be sure to see first its best and finished effects, in the maintenance of work already begun. With this hopeful attitude, and with the true club spirit in each individual member all things would seem to point to a successful and flourishing year.

Regular routine business was then taken up. Mrs. Percy H. Holman, recording secretary pro tem gave a fine report of the annual meeting in May and also of the recent meetings of the executive board. Through the summer Mrs. Holman has not only done the work of her office as corresponding secretary but in the absence of Miss Randall abroad, also acted as recording secretary, a duty so well done that later the club extended her a rising vote of thanks.

Mrs. Herbert W. Pinkham, treasurer, gave a full report of the club and committee finances from the annual meeting in May to date.

The president made the announcement that the Custodian and her committee had guest tickets, to sell and advised members to buy a few to have on hand to use for their guests. Those not having guest tickets will be obliged to register in the club book before entering.

Mrs. Albert Maynard Parker gave quite a full report of Federation work and meetings, especially the 19th annual at New Bedford some of which we give below:

The delegates to the meeting at New Bedford were instructed as follows: "Do not take up valuable time and space in your reports in setting forth the beauties of Fairhaven and the hospitality but give the time to facts." In club work the chairman of the Civics department deplored the fact of indifference of the clubs on juvenile courts which were declared of primary importance. Mrs. Parker said she hoped the speaker would learn that one of the speakers on the Quincy club program this year was an earnest worker in this line in our city, Judge Albert E. Avery. In Library extention work the Fitchburg club has helped in the story hour at their library for 15 mornings 15 ladies dividing up the work . The Quincy club had helped start a branch library. In Art, clubs were doing much. The Copley society, the Museum of Fine Arts and the Publi Library in Boston all have collections of photographs to loan to clubs and schools. There was an exhibition this week at the Cranch school worthy a visit. Mountain laurel was selected as the national flower of the Federation. There was much that Mrs. Parker brought back to the club that space will not permit us to quote.

In the reports of chairmen of committees, Mrs. Oscar Allen Blaisdell for the civics said they had during the summer contributed from their friends $50 for the Ward One playground and $25 for the Fresh Air Camp; Mrs. Charles R. Safford for the Education told of the summer schools and how well keeping the minds and hands of children busy worked for their good. She invited club members to visit the exhibition of the sewing and sloyd classes in the Education room. It was well worthy a visit for the work was remarkable, the sewing being beautifully done and the sloyd showing skill; Mrs. Stanley Bone for Home Economics referred club members to the set of books placed in the public library by the previous committee. She also said her committee had no funds to work with and so were to have a table of kitchen novelties on sale the next two club meetings. It would be a good time to stock up the kitchen and help her committee at the same time. Mrs. Mary H. Abel who was to address the club on Nov. 28 on "Home Economics" is the editor of the Home Educational Journal and was coming all the way from Baltimore to give the lecture; Mrs. A. N. Murray for Visiting Nursing set forth the needs of greater work very clearly as follows: During the four months past the Visiting Nurse work in our city has gone on much the same as in previous months with the encouraging feature that a larger number of calls have been made than for the corresponding period in any of the previous years. This growth in the work can be rightfully attributed to the faithful endeavor of the past six years.

In June the resignation of Miss Robinson was accepted, and Miss H. McEwan, a graduate of the Massachusetts General Hospital who had been doing probationary work, was permanently engaged. The salary of the nurse has been increased to $70 per month—that is, $60, with rooms at the club house.

The possibilities for the development of Visiting Nurse work in our city are so apparent, that the committee feels it is accomplishing but little. A nurse should be employed for contagious cases, which are not taken care of now; and there should be another for obstetrical work. The prenatal work and the social service work should form a large part of Visiting Nurse service, yet it cannot be attempted when one nurse is covering a district nearly large enough to require four nurses. The extent of territory to be covered can perhaps be better understood by stating that some days calls have included, Atlantic and West Quincy, Houghs Neck and Quincy Point, and all these calls are answered.

A word regarding the financial end of the work: The committee think that if a large number of our people could be interested in the Visiting Nurse work, much more could be accomplished than if large contributions came from a limited circle, so the past three weeks the committee has been busy in securing subscriptions to the Visiting Nurse Fund. Just enough formality has been attached to this work to show contributors the object of the fund and to build up a sufficient number of supporters to make this small yearly contribution. This work is being carried on among both members and non-members, and the response to our call has been cheerful and generous.

The estimated support of a Visiting Nurse is $1,000 per year, but the budget for the year's work here is but $800. Towards this the club voted $200 and $150 is received from fees, so the amount to be raised is $450. The committee feels it is far better to have 450 people conversant with this work (to the extent of $1.00 per individual) than to raise the money by more popular methods.

It is hoped that among all the other good things our club is trying to do, the Visiting Nurse may not be forgotten, but that every member may have a vital interest in what Dr. Eliot has termed "the best and most practical of all charities. Mrs. John O. Short for the Literature committee said the class in Current Events by Mrs. May Alden Ward would be continued this season and it was hoped to have an even larger attendance. Also there was to be a class in modern literature conducted by Mrs. Herbert J. Gurney at the homes of members which promised to be largely attended and enjoyable. The first meeting would be on Oct. 18 at the home of Mrs. Sheppard, Greenleaf street; Mrs. Williams Ward Whitcher for the Legislative committee said it was hoped to form a class in parliamentary law with Mrs. Sherman of Boston as teacher. The cost for the series of ten lessons would be about $30 which would not be individually expensive. A gentlemen's night had been arranged by the committee for Jan. 8 at the club house. The committee planned to attend hearings at the State House and work for measures for the betterment of women and children; Mrs. John B. Worster of Music committee said the annual musicale would be held at Alpha hall, Dec. 12, the Weber Male quartet and Grace Sanborn Cole, reader, having been secured. It was also hoped to give an operetta later in the season; Mrs. Chandler W. Smith for the Philanthropy committee said her committee had been active in the early summer in the work of incorporating the Associated Charities of Quincy and now felt that it had accomplished its object and were ready to take up a new work and would welcome suggestions at its meeting on Tuesday; Mrs. Edward B. Marsh of the Program committee said the year books just issued contained the program, an ocular demonstration of the work of the committee.

Mrs. G. B. Bates for the Woman's Exchange announced a food sale at the clubhouse on Oct. 24 at two o'clock and that consignors could leave goods at her house on Dimmock street in the morning or at the clubhouse before the meeting. This closed the reports.

The resignation of Miss Edith Randall as recording secretary was read and accepted with regret and Mrs. Henry W. Tirrell was elected to fill the vacancy.

Since the annual meeting in May and the entering upon the new year 24 new members had been admitted to the club and there were over 100 on the waiting list. The new members are:

Mrs. Frederick Barnicoat, Mrs. Sylvester W. Brown, Mrs. Frederick H. Breslyn, Mrs. William Burrell, Mrs. Frank A. Collett, Mrs. William G. Curtis, Mrs. Arthur R. Fitts, Mrs. C. L. Gilliatt, Mrs. David Goodspeed, Miss Mary Griffin, Mrs. Albert L. Hall, Mrs. John E. Higgins, Miss Grace Howe, Mrs. Franklin P. Horton, Mrs. Fred Jacobs, Mrs. Harry McDonough, Mrs. Lonine J. Mossman, Mrs. Edith Cary Page, Miss Harriet B. Pierce. Mrs. Alfred Podbury, Mrs. George H. Ryder, Mrs. Harry A. Stevens, Mrs. James C. Whiting, Mrs. T. L. Williams.

The afternoon closed with a reception by the officers of the club and the greeting of new members. During the reception Mrs. Merchant, the pianist and Mrs. Thomas, violinist, both from Weymouth, played most delightfully adding much to the enjoyableness of the occasion. The Hospitality committee, Mrs. Herbert S. Barker served punch and cake the pourers being Mrs. George W. Hinkley, Mrs. Nichols, Mrs. H. H. Kitson and Mrs. Albert M. Parker and a large committee assisting.

Several guests were present, among them Mrs. Mary J. Lincoln of Boston and Mrs. Joseph Dorety of California.

QUINCY ALLIANCE.

First Church parlor was decorated with fall flowers; large bouquets of salvia, astors, dahlias and chrysanthemums, lending their color to add to the pleasure of the first meeting of the fall, of Quincy Alliance. There was a large attendance and the new officers were in their places with Mrs. George G. Saville the new president presiding.

Following the usual devotional service and welcome by the president there were reports from chairmen of committees. Mrs. W. B. Nichols spoke of Cheerful Letter work and made an appeal for reading matter; Mrs. John Christiansen for the Religious Intelligence committee gave an interesting report; the president announced an operetta to be given Nov. 3 by the young people under the direction of Mr. Weston, she also spoke feelingly of the death of a member, Mrs. George L. Gill. Barrels of clothing would be sent south as usual and members wishing to contribute were asked to send to Miss Dora A. French, Adams street for Snow Hill and to Mrs. Saville, Saville avenue for Calhoun. A letter was read from Mrs. E. C. Butler expressing her interest in the Alliance and regretting her inability to be present at the opening meeting, a pleasure she had enjoyed for seventeen years. Mrs. John W. Sanborn presented the matter of aiding in the work of the Associated Charities of Quincy by a contribution to help defray the expenses of a paid secretary and ten dollars was voted.

Mrs. George Lewis of East Walpole who will speak at the next meeting of the Alliance, will be remembered in our city as Miss Emma Foster, daughter of the late Charles Foster.

The speaker of the afternoon was Mrs. Prescott Keyes of Concord, a vice president in the National Alliance, and especially enterested in appeals and assistance of struggling churches and kindred societies. This was the subject of her talk and she told of the larger work all over the country, of the helpfulness and usefulness of the Alliance; of the sympathy and cooperation in responding to appeals and read letters showing the appreciative spirit in which the help was received.

The singing by Mrs. Frank A. Page of Wollaston was greatly enjoyed. She accompanied herself at the piano and sang several songs in her own sweet harmonious way that is always a pleasure to her listeners.

A social hour closed the meeting the hostesses being Mrs. J. Henry Emery and Miss Heaton.

JUDGE BUMPUS TO LECTURE.

The first of a series of special lectures to be given at Boston University Law school during the present school year was given this afternoon. Judge E. C. Bumpus of this city will deliver a series of four lectures in the first course. This course will consist of the consideration of the law of water rates, the valuation of the public utility works, and some phases of the law and the practice thereof at Panama and in the Philippines. Judge Bumpus has recently been appointed counsel for the United States in the trial of water cases before the International Boundary Commission under the treaty between the United States and Canada.

WILL PARADE IN BOSTON.

Quincy Council, Knights of Columbus, will attend mass at St. John's church Thursday morning at 10 o'clock after which a lunch will be served in the club rooms. From there they will march to the depot to take the 12.19 train for Boston, a special car will be attached to the train for them. After taking part in the parade they will return to Quincy.

LOST BOY FROM LYNN.

Early Tuesday evening Officer Avery found a little 9 year old boy wandering on Adams street and sent him to the police station. From the boy it was learned that his name was Herbert Leach, and that he lived at 88 Clarendon street, Lynn. It seems that the boy had been visiting with his mother in Wollaston and had wandered away. The boy's mother was notified and came after her son.

Anty Drudge on the Farm.

Mrs. Farmer—"I 'spose all you fine city folks are 'way ahead of us who live in the country."

Anty Drudge—"Goodness, no, Mrs. Farmer. I see you use Fels-Naptha; your hands are white and you have plenty of time for reading and music. You can't get ahead of the woman who uses Fels-Naptha, whether she lives in the country or city."

Do women cling to delusions longer than men? That's an open question. In China, men do the washing and they have been doing it in the same old way for 4,000 years.

In America more than a million women have broken away from the old-fashioned traditions, and have adopted the Fels-Naptha way of washing. That means cold or lukewarm water—never hot—no boiling, no hard rubbing, a saving of time, temper, trouble, fuel, clothes and health.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

BRIEFS

Miss M. Lizzie Furnald of Whitney road is the guest of friends in Roslindale for a week's visit.

Master Lester Fleming of Euclid avenue has returned from a three weeks' trip in New York and New Jersey.

Leon H. Vincent is to speak on Nathaniel Hawthorne at Livermore hall, Quincy Mansion school this evening at 7.45.

Members of Quincy Nest of Owls have been invited to attend the Waltham field day outing tomorrow, leaving Quincy on the 7.33 A. M. train.

The serial story, "The Fighting Hope" which was to have begun in the Ledger today has been crowded out by much local matter.

At William C. Caldwell's forty-five game Tuesday evening a good score was made by W. M. Dorley 25, J. McDonald 22. J. Delorey 21, Mr. Wester 21, with four tied at twenty. Thirty-five games were played.

A meeting is to be held in the Calvary Baptist church this evening at 7.30 under the auspices of the Ladies' Missionary society. Miss Emily Payne a returned missionary from Burma is the speaker. The public is invited.

A lecture will be given in the Swedish Methodist church, Fort street, on Thursday evening at 7.30 o'clock by Dr. A. Hallen, a well-known New Hampshire physician. The subject will be,—Different languages, their origin and development.

Mrs. W. E. Bennett of New Haven, is the guest of her mother, Mrs. John Christiansen of Irving place. On Monday Mrs. Bennett assisted in serving at the meeting of the Alliance and on Tuesday was a guest at the meeting of the Quincy Women's club.

The first meeting of the Y. M. C. A. Auxiliary will be held Friday afternoon at three o'clock in Association hall. Mr. Richard D. Chase, president of the Association, and General Secretary A. F. Bromley will speak. All members and friends are urged to be present.

Harold M. Gore of Newport avenue and Warren Baker of Lincoln avenue, both students at the Massachusetts Agricultural college at Amherst and members of the football team, spent the week end in Wollaston following the game with Brown University on Saturday.

Mrs. Charles H. Johnson had the misfortune yesterday at the the meeting of the Quincy Women's club to lose her coat, some one mistaking hers for theirs as they were similar in style. The one left for Mrs. Johnson was too small but fortunately the day was warm so she was not inconvenienced in getting home.

A letter received by Henry P. Kittredge from Lieut. Daniel R. McKay, states that the local police official arrived safely at Savannah, Georgia, in company with the other police detectives who had been consigned to take seven prisoners to the penitentiary located there. The party arrived at the destination Sunday afternoon. "Dan" is staying at the Elks' club in Savannah and states that he weather in that section is hovering between 85 and 90 degrees. He will visit Washington before he returns home.

WOLLASTON UNITARIAN CLUB

must account for the slimness of the contribution box at the present day for those who are short do not dare to contribute.

Reference was made to the Patagonian giants of the Straits of Magellan who are described by Captain Bourne as of a thievish, malignant and brutish nature.

It has been said by some that Rockefeller and Morgan were Patagonians, but as the latter have enough to answer for I will not add this last affliction.

In the world there are really no such things as giants or pygmies, as everything in the universe is relative and only by comparison is one great and the other small. Some call the great small and others the small great.

Dean Swift in that most marvellous satire in the English language: "Gulliver's travels" shows how in a small way the Lilliputians had as comprehensive view of life as the larger man. In the visit to the giant Brobdingnags, he also showed that what was fair to them was coarse and repugnant to Gulliver.

While Swift's book was a satire on the government of England in particular it nevertheless contains a wonderful lesson for us.

It is not as a thing really is but as it appears to us. Well may we agree with Longfellow that "to him with ear finely attuned a symphony of sweetest music fills the air and reaches to his soul, entering unheard to those of duller hearing."

By applying this lesson to every day life we may draw useful and elevating conclusions.

We live in a world of constant change and marvelous unfolding. Things undreamed of 100 years ago are the commonplaces of today.

To them the world we know was a land beyond the skies—unknown, undreamed. Thus by comparison are the great made small.

If our own minds were broadened, deepened and strengthened by higher conceptions, things as they are would appear differently and we would be glad to extend a hand to the pygmy and would not always bow to the giant.

When the Great Leveller lays both giant and pygmy in the cradle of the earth there is really no difference.

When that great levelling process comes and the hand of the artisan lays the wall with his own cement it will make no difference whether one forms the foundation or capstone. Each is as necessary to human progress as the other.

And so although the text has gone far afield I trust that my few words will give the nucleus of a thought to take with you and abide with you.

As the kernel in the heart of the acorn may through sunshine and rain germinate and culminate in a giant oak whose shade will be for the comfort of a nation, so I hope some little thought will remain in some more fertile soil than my own, germinate and become a beautiful tree.

ROOSTER COAL BRIQUETS
THE NEW ANTHRACITE COAL
ROOSTER BRIQUETS are made from the choicest small Scranton Anthracite coal. mined in Pennsylvania, called TWENTIETH CENTURY CHESTNUT size
Just consider for a moment what we offer here in this 20th CENTURY CHESTNUT.
First, 2000 pounds of clean, pure, hard coal without a rock or a piece of slate.
Second, fuel that cannot form into a clinker, by any known method of firing, consequently the linings and grates last indefinitely.
Third, they are made in nut size, being equally convenient for furnace heaters, open grates, as well as stoves; therefore, only one storage bin is necessary.
Fourth, and very IMPORTANT, the quality of this fuel is the SAME EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR, not a good ton today, and nothing like it the next time, in other words, when you once learn how to regulate your drafts you have nothing more to learn about burning BRIQUETS.
Fifth, no more sifting ashes these Briquets burn out clean. They require less wood to kindle.
Be sure to ask for "ROOSTERS" and get the Briquet made from pure Scranton Coal, from the largest Briquet plant in the country. They are better than coal, will last as long and cost less.

Soda crackers are more nutritive than any other flour food. Uneeda Biscuit are the perfect soda crackers. Therefore, Uneeda Biscuit.

Five cents spent for a package of Uneeda Biscuit is an investment—an investment in nourishment, in health, in good eating.

Though the cost is but five cents, Uneeda Biscuit are too good, too nourishing, too crisp, to be bought merely as an economy.

Buy them because of their freshness—buy them because of their crispness—buy them because of their goodness—buy them because of their nourishment.

Always 5 cents. Always fresh and crisp in the moisture-proof package. Never sold in bulk.

MEETING ON TUESDAY OF CHORAL SOCIETY

The Quincy Choral Society held its first business meeting of the season at Colonial hall, Tuesday evening. There was a good attendance and President Pollard greeted the members most cordially. After the formal opening of the meeting, the first business was the adoption of the letter sent by the Executive Board to the family of Conductor Arthur S. Wonson, at the time of his death, as an expression of the true sentiments of the society as a whole, and the vote that, as such, it be written in the records. While Mr. Wonson's death is felt as a personal loss by the members in general, the knowledge that he would be the first to voice the sentiment of united effort to hold the position in music now attained, to "look forward not back," is a strong factor in turning all to this thought.

The Society has been particularly fortunate in securing Mr. Osbourne McConathy of Chelsea to conduct this season. In him they have a successor fully capable of continuing work on the same high plane of excellence already established. Members, and friends of the society as well, will be glad to know that they can greet Mr. McConathy not only as an able musician, but also as a friend of one who was as much respected by all, the man whom Mr. Wonson himself would have chosen to continue his work.

The fine concerts of the last three years are a foundaton which must meanlarger growth in the future. All the methods which helped their success will be continued, that the society may come to be depended upon in the same familiar fashion year after year. All singers with good voices will be welcomed heartly in the chorus if they join early in the season. Only trained voices will be acceptable after that. The yearly fee will be moderate and instruction of the best. It is likely that two concerts will be given this season, the first in January and the second in March or April. The first work presented will be "The Golden Legend" by Sir Arthur Sullivan, and rehearsals will begin next Tuesday evening.

The Executive Board of seven members was enlarged by the election of two directors making the number five instead of three in accordance with an amendment to the constitution voted upon at the last business meeting in the spring. The new members are Dr. D. B. Reardon of Quincy and Lewis B. Weston of Wollaston.

W. R. C. SUPPER.

A well attended supper was held at G. A. R. hall Tuesday evening under the auspices of W. R. C. No. 103. About one hundred enjoyed the appetizing viands consisting of baked beans, salads, cold meats, rolls, fancy pies and coffee.

After the supper whist was enjoyed thirteen tables being in play. The souvenirs were awarded to Mrs. Annie Grant, Charles Cummings, Forest Hayden, Miss Bessie Grant, Mrs. Cora Carman and consolation to Miss Lena Allen.

COMMITTEE MEETING.

The special committee of the City Council composed of Councilman Richards, Nowland and Bailey, appointed to consider the question of a reduction in the price of gas furnished the citizens of Quincy, had a conference Tuesday afternoon with John L. Richards president of the gas company at his Boston office, The comittee said that they had nothing as yet to give out for publication on the conference.

QUINCY'S JOHNSONS.

Three of Quincy's 150 Johnsons will hereafter be known by other names, petitions to change them having been allowed by Judge Flint in the probate court this morning. The three who desired to change their names were Gunna Johnson, Gottfried Johnson and August Johnson. All three were born in Sweden. Gunna on April 21, 1889, Gottfried on Aug. 29, 1885 and August on Dec. 13, 1885. In their petition they ask that their names be changed for the reason that there are so many Johnsons in Quincy as to lead to serious complications in business and that mail for one Johnson frequently is delivered to some other member of that popular name. Their petition was allowed and they will hereafter be known as Gunna Henry Dattman, Gottfried Dattman and August Henry Morton.

UNION WILL REVISE THE CONSTITUTION

The vote of the granite cutters' union on the revision of the constitution was canvassed at the headquarters of the union in Quincy. Tuesday night, when it was found that the unions had voted practically 2 to 1 to revise the constitution. Next month the unions will vote to see if the revision shall be done by a committee or in convention. For the last six times, since 1880, the revisions have been doen by committees. If done by such it means that the committee will be composed of nine members. Of this number seven will be cutters, one tool sharpener and one polisher. If by convention, it will be done by a body composed of one delegate from every branch of 25 or more members but branches having 500 members will be entitled to three delegates.

BRIEFS

The Ledger office will be closed all day tomorrow in observance of Columbus day.

The registrars of voters met in Atlantic Tuesday night and added 36 names to the voting lists.

A new fire alarm box was cut into the circuit this morning. The box is numbered 18 and is located on the corner of Sea and Palmer street, near the fountain.

The Republican City Committee has hired the store at 11 Cottage avenue for its headquarters and the rooms will be open every evening until after the elections.

A dancing party will be given in Alpha hall, Thursday evening, November 9th, by the Quincy Lodge, Nest of Owls. A committee composed of Thomas F. Flaherty, William J. Nott, Percy Taber and C. H. Finn is in charge of the affair.

Five applications or membership were received by Quincy lodge of Elks at its meeting Tuesday evening. A committee composed of John D. Smith, Leo J. McMaster and James W. Sweeney was appointed to arrange for the annual memorial service the first Sunday in December. The committee hope to secure Mayor Fitzgerald of Boston to deliver the main address.

QUINGY HIGH LANDS HARD ON SO. BOSTON

Plays All Around Visiting Team Winning By Score 26-0

White Makes Spectacular Run of 95 Yards

Displaying the same form that characterized its playing against the weak Brighton High team, Quincy High lined up against the South Boston High eleven at Merrymount Park, Tuesday afternoon, and succeeded in blanking its opponents to the tune of 26 to 0. The South Boston boys were without the services of their captain, who had been declared ineligible to compete for the peninsular lads, but even his presence in the lineup could not have deterred the local boys from rolling up a large score, for the weight of each player on the opposing eleven, was far lighter than the average weight of the local boys.

As a rule, the South Boston boys have always had a rather light team, yet the fast and aggressive movements that have been exhibited by the bootball warriors have worn the colors of that school from time to time, have been sufficient to offset the onslaughts of a more heavy team. Yet this was not the case with this year's eleven, for the entire team seemed to be made up of an inexperienced combination of players, a contingency, too, vastly inferior to the local eleven.

The game gave the coach of the Quincy eleven a fine opportunity to see the progress that the local boys were making and the various plays that were made, and gains that were reaped, proved conclusively that the team is playing a far different game from the exhibition made against the Cambridge Latin eleven in the opening game of the season. The back work has been considerably improved and the rush work is about as good as can be expected.

There is still much room for improvement, especially with regard to interference work. Page seems to be about the only back on the Quincy team, who gives interference for the player who is carrying the ball. On every occasion that the ball was given to Holmes or Finlay, he was right in the midst of the rushes, using every endeavor to aid them in making considerable gains. Yet, when he was given the ball, there was no interference forthcoming, and he was compelled to attack the opposing players on his own resources.

There was not so much fumbling on the part of the local boys, as was noticeable in the last game and Blackmur directed his plays with greater accuracy. The work of both ends was also conspicuous. Holmes netted great gains on every rush, and the work of the local line enabled Finlay to acquire great distances every time he was given the ball. His spectacular run of 65 yards, whereby he broke through the entire opposing eleven, was one of the features of the game. The onside kick was tried, but has not yet been successfully developed. The forward pass was carefully executed and the local boys seemed to have mastered this play.

The one great play of the game occured in the second period when White, right tackle for the local eleven received the ball on a kick off and ran 95 yards for a touchdown. It was a most sensational piece of work and the interference given him was of the best kind. The tackling of Captain Johnson was of the high order and the passing of the ball by Bill, is also to be highly commended. Connell and J. Cronin played well for the visitors.

The tackle rush play has been a potent one for Quincy High in rushing the ball down the field and if the onside kick can be developed to the same degree, the local boys should be able to cope with the fastest teams to be found in interscholastic ranks. The subs too, seem to be able to fill in very creditably, while the work of the officials in the past two games, has made the game command the close attention of those present.

First Period.

Quincy won the toss and defended the north goal. The visitors kicked to Quincy on the latter's 15 yard line. Finlay caught the ball and advanced ten yards before being downed. Page went through for a gain of 3 yards. Holmes was given the ball and gained 12 yards.

South Boston was offside and a penalty of 5 yards was imposed. Finlay was given the ball, presumably to go through right tackle, but on seeing big openings in the other side of the line, chose to try his endeavors in that vicinity, with the result that an almost clear field enabled him to run 65 yards with the ball. The tackle play of the local boys was next used, and Johnson went over for 15 yards, scoring the first touchdown of the game. Score Quincy H. S. 5. South Boston H. S. 0.

South Boston kicked to Blackmur who ran the ball back for a distance of 10 yards. A series of rushes on the part of the local boys netted great gains and it looked as if another touchdown would soon be in order. The forward pass was tried, but failed and the ball went to the visitors on their own 45 yard line. The South Boston players were offside on their first rush, and were penalized. The peninsular boys failed to get in three downs, and were forced to punt.

Blackmur received the kick and ran back 15 yards. At this point J. Cronin, the plucky little quarterback of the opposing eleven, was knocked out for a few moments, but resumed play. On the first rush Finlay went through for 5 yards. Holmes gained 10 yards around right end.

In the scrimmage Banks, the left tackle for South Boston High was struck in the back of the head and was compelled to be carried off the field. He seemed to be in a rather precarious condition, and it was feared that medical attendance would have to be rushed to his aid. He stayed on the side lines during the remainder of the game, and felt somewhat better when the contest was ended.

Second Period.

The work of the local eleven was still consistent and great gains were acquired on each successive rush. The ball was now on the visitors' 25 yard line, and on the next rush Holmes went over for Quincy High's second touchdown again, the local lads failed to kick a goal. Score Quincy High 10, South Boston High 0.

South Boston again kicked but the ball failed to go 10 yards, and the referee ordered the pigskin to be kicked again. This time it was kicked to better advantage, for White, the star right tackle for the local aggregation, coveted the oval on his own 15 yard line and did not stop until he had landed the ball over the goal posts for the third touchdown of the game. It was one of the greatest plays ever executed on the local gridiron, and the interference given to White caused him to pull off the sensational play of the game, a 95 yard run. This is a feat seldom accomplished in interscholastic circles, and the local boy certainly used fine judgment in rushing the ball down the field. It now seemed as if a goal would be kicked but the ball went outside the goal posts and the score was 15-0 in favor of the local eleven.

Considerable gains were reaped in the next few plays by the local boys and they finally decided to punt. The ball was fumbled by one of the South Boston players, but was quickly regained by another one of that team. This prospective ground gainer did not advance very far, however, for he was almost immediately tackled by one of his own men. This stunt elicited great laughter on the part of the spectators, but the similarity in uniforms had caused the South Boston man to think that a Quincy boy had gained possession of the ball.

Third Period.

On the first rush Finlay gained 10 yards. Holmes was given the ball and went through for 15 yards. A series of interchange rushes between Holmes and Finlay were put into play and gains of from 10 to 15 yards were rolled up on each occasion. Quincy was penalized for holding. The local boys punted, but the failure of the visitors to get first down, caused the ball to again go to the local eleven. The line was hit hard several times by the Quincy fullback, and he seemed to be able to go through the opposing players at random. Holmes went around right end for 20 yards and the ball was now within striking distance of the goal. Finlay was plunged through and made the last touchdown of the game. Quincy failed to kick the goal and the score was 20 to 0 in favor of Quincy High.

Fourth Period.

The visitors acquired the ball in the last period, but their efforts to rush it down the field for gains, were fruitless because Troy seemed to be the only man who could reap any gain at all, and even he could do no better than go 5 yards. A penalty was again imposed on the visitors, yet it must be stated that the game was played very fairly throughout and no "roughhouse" tactics were employed. Quincy tried its second forward pass of the game, and this time was very cleverly executed. The ball was received by White, who ran 25 yards before he was tackled. Johnson's tackle play was again called in, and the captain of the local team gained 15 yards on it. A second time it was used and 10 yards were gained. The ball in this period, just as in the other three, was in the local boys territory during the greater part of the time; and another touchdown would have undoubtedly been secured had not time for the game been called when the pigskin was within 15 yards of the goal. The next game will be played against Medford High, at Medford Saturday and a large number of students are planning on taking the trip. It will be the first real hard game for the local boys, and a warm contest is sure to take place, as Medford High is one of the fastest interscholastic teams to be found.

ST. JOHN'S DRAMATIC SOCIETY PRESENTS "PAST REDEMPTION"

Ably Acted Drama Enjoyed by Large and Appreciative Audience

Proceeds in Aid of St. John's Parish

"Past Redemption," a New England drama in four acts, was presented before a large audience in Music hall, Wednesday evening, by the members of the old St. John's Dramatic club. The members who played in the different parts of this drama some years ago, created a reputation that still lingers in the minds of many to the present day, and great anxiety was manifested when it was learned the revival of "Past Redemption" was to take place for the benefit of St. John's parish.

The play was ably presented and the various characters were portrayed in a splendid manner, John Maynard, a New England farmer, impersonated by John J. Bradley was a most conspicuous figure throughout and this part was looked upon with great intensity.

In the first act, a husking scene at the old farm was shown. Harry Maynard, son of the New England farmer, who was none other than John J. Phelan, becomes influenced by the guile and chicanery of Robert Thornton, a speculator, portrayed by Edward H. McGinty, and leaves home in search of a fortune.

In the secon dact Tom Larcom other farmer, impersonated by ex-Councilman Michael T. Walsh, created great roars of laughter assisted by Mathew Fay, as Nat Harlow, and Annie T. Connors, as Kitty Corum, the girl with two strings to her beau. Thorton returns home and states that Harry has fallen into the depths of ignominy and disgrace and is past redemption. Jessie Maynard, an adopted daughter, a part taken by Mildred B. Phelan refuses to believe the story and determines to go in search of Harry in company with Mrs. Charity Goodall, who was Miss Julia B. Duffy.

In the third act is shown the search for Harry in the city. Capt. Bragg, cleverly impersonated by Thomas F. Shea, discovers Harry in a bar room on the verge of madness. Capt. Bragg believes himself to be the discoverer of Harry, but is afraid of him and doesn't stop to drink. Finally Harry Larcom, and Stub, a negro rescue him.

In the fourth act is shown a Thanksgiving reunion at the homestead and the death of Thorton.

In the third act, in the bar room scene, Dr. Edwin Donovan, W. Russell Sullivan and Peter Malone Sullivan rendered trio selections and were accorded great applause. Music was furnished by Keating's Ladies' orchestra.

The cast of characters was as follows:

John Maynard, New England Farmer
John J. Bradley
Harry Maynard, His Son
John J. Phelan
Robert Thorton, a Speculator
Edward H. McGinty
Tom Larcom, a Farmer
Michael T. Walsh
Nat Harlow, a Country Trader

INTERESTING TALK ON "OUR RAILROAD"

Given by Timothy E. Byrnes Esq. Before Men's Club of All Souls' Church at Braintree

The first meeting for this season of the Men's club of All Souls' church, Braintree, was held in the parish hall Wednesday evening with a very large attendance of members and their guests. The beautiful hall and the well appointed tables with their floral decorations were a fitting accompaniment to the bountiful repast which had been provided. After a social half hour, supper was announced and was thoroughly enjoyed by all, the viands being both well cooked and served, and of such variety as to please all tastes.

Immediately afterward, cigars were lighted and Rev. D. Roy Freeman the pastor outlined the plans which are being discussed relative to the formation of a Y. M. C. A. or something very similar in the town of Braintree. The idea originated in the civic club, an organization of the boys of Braintree and Mr. Freeman voiced the need and even the necessity of such an association in the town.

About 7.45 o'clock the speaker of the evening, Mr. Timothy E. Byrnes, vice president of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad, arrived via automobile from his home in Cohasset. He was introduced in a brief but comprehensive speech by Alva Morrison, president of the club, and for an hour and a half entertained the gentlemen assembled with a very interesting and highly enlightening talk on "Our Railroad."

As is well known, Mr. Byrnes is the local head of affairs of the New Haven road with offices in Boston and is naturally a very busy man. He stated that while much flattered at being invited to speak on such an occasion he had been two years redeeming his promise to that effect on account of the pressure of business.

SURPRISE PARTY IN W. QUINCY

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gosselin were tendered a surprise Wednesday evening at their home on Filbert street, by their many relatives and friends it being the 25th anniversary of their marriage. They received a handsome silver service and many other choice gifts. Just a short while ago Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Larandeau, parents of Mrs. Gosselin celebrated their golden wedding.

SHIP-ENGINE CO. DECLARES BIG DIVIDEND

Remarkable Progress Shown at End of First Quarter

LOCATED AT NEW LONDON

Within less than a year from the date that ground was broken for its plant in Groton and very little more than four months after the first wheel turned in the spick and span new factories across the river, the New London Ship and Engine Co. has done what very few such new industries have ever done—declared a fully warranted dividend at the rate of 8 per cent. a year.

The dividend was declared at a stockholders' meeting held October 10 afternoon at the company's offices at the Groton plant. It is a 2 per cent. dividend for the quarter ending October 20 and is on the preferred stock. All the stock held by New London investors is preferred. The holdings of New Londoners aside from officials who came here with the concern amount to nearly $70,000 while the total holdings of present residents of the city will exceed considerably $100,000.

It is rarely that an industrial company, immediately after beginning business, finds itself in a position where it can safely apply its earnings to the paying of dividends, good policy requiring the acquisition, first, of a surplus guard against unforeseen necessities. The New London Ship and Engine Co., however, enjoys the novel experience of seeing its future so clearly writ that even the most conservative financiering can find no flaws in the policy of this early division of earnings. Contracts already on hand and absolute guarantee of extensive production through relations with the Electric Boat Co., give positive assurance of large legitimate profits for a long time to come; so that the business is already on a much firmer basis than that of many concerns of the first class which have been in existence for years.

New Londoners have never doubted the importance or possibilities of the New London Ship and Engine Co. But the declaration of the dividend and the circumstances of its declaration cannot well fail to make assurance doubly sure and bring added realization that the success of the concern is not a matter of the future but of today.

At present about 200 men are employed at the plant, which is operating day and night, not counting the 15 or 20 employes of the Vanadium Metals Co., which is a separate company though closely associated with the Ship and Engine Co. Within six months, and just as soon as the building can be finished for the hous-

ALL NATIONS REPRESENTED

Even Chinese Flag in Columbus Day Parade in Boston

THIRTY THOUSAND IN LINE

Boston, Oct. 13.—An army of more than 30,000 paraders did homage to the memory of Christopher Columbus yesterday afternoon, and over half a million applauding citizens thronged the streets to watch them.

It was one of the most skilfully handled parades which ever moved through the streets of Boston. The head of the parade left the starting point only four minutes after the scheduled time. There were no stoppings and no hesitatings. Three hours sufficed for it to pass a given point.

A more cosmopolitan parade has never been seen in this city, in all probability. Side by side with the Stars and Stripes flew the flags of Italy, of Ireland, of Portugal, of Spain, and even of China.

Military experts who witnessed the parade declared that they had never before seen such a large body of civilians as well drilled. "The alignments and the cadence of these men could not be improved upon," declared one of these experts. "If a city the size of Boston can turn out such a body of men with only two weeks' drill, America need never fear for results if it becomes necessary for her to engage in a war with any other nation."

The parade was reviewed by Governor Foss, Mayor Fitzgerald and Archbishop O'Connell, all of whom united in declaring it unusually impressive and in praising the soldierly bearing of the participants.

Brilliant costumes and skilfully built floats did away with any possibility of monotony. Kings, queens and courtiers in silks and satins rode side side by side with rough riders and Indians in full panoply of war paint and feathers. Citizens of ancient Rome gathered their togas around their shoulders and fraternized with warriors of medieval Italy and Spain in glittering chain mail.

As the Chinese Catholics passed in review there was an outburst of handclapping by some which soon became quite general, but the Chinamen looked straight ahead without noticing the outburst, as if they did not know it was intended for them.

Prizes were awarded as follows for floats:

First prize, "Columbus Giving Thanks to God," produced by Bunker Hill council 62, Knights of Columbus.

Second prize, "Innocence," produced by the United Italian societies.

Third prize, "Our Country's History," by Woburn, Lexington, Arlington, Winchester and Concord councils, Knights of Columbus.

For the best marching body: First prize awarded to the Mission Church society.

Prize for the most attractive feature goes to Waltham council, Knights of Columbus.

The observance of the day did not end with the disbanding of the afternoon parade. In the evening the Charles river basin was a fairyland spectacle when the motorboat carnival and illumination attracted thousands to the pretty spots set aside for the enjoyment of the public.

The parade of motor boats was more than a mile long. It started from the upper part of the basin between the Cottage Farm and Harvard bridges.

The procession moved down stream, keeping close to the Boston shore. This gave everybody a chance to see the decorative features, note the numbers and even distinguish the features of the occupants of the boats.

Reaching the Cambridge side, the procession turned up stream and, keeping about twenty feet from the Cambridge embankment, proceeded until the vicinity of the Cottage Farm bridge was reached, when it disbanded.

This is the second time Columbus day has been officially celebrated in Boston as a state-wide legal holiday. Oct. 12 has now been set aside in twenty-nine states of the union as a legal holiday in honor of the great admiral.

STRONG REPUBLICAN CLUB IS PLANNED FOR QUINCY

Geo. H. Brown, Presiding Officer at Meeting Wednesday Night Spoke Strongly In Favor of Party Candidates

Invitation to Join Club Accepted By Large Number

A largely attended meeting of the Republican club and Republican city committee was held Wednesday evening in Union hall. In the absence of George A. Sidelinger, president, Geo. H. Brown presided. In opening the meeting he said he regretted that absence from the city prevented Mr. Sidelinger from being present. He was glad to see so many present. There was great need of a strong Republican club in Quincy and this meeting argued well for it. The question is, are we going forward and elect our candidates or are we going to lag behind and allow the other side to win? He spoke of his personal experience with Gov. Foss, when he headed a committee that waited upon him in the interest of the appointment of a certain man to the superior court bench. Gov. Foss had told the committee he would not appoint anyone that was not endorsed by the Boston bar, yet he has appointed several that the Boston bar disapproved. Frothingham was a straightforward honorable man, and if we bring out the vote Quincy will go strong for him. Mr. Brown also had a good word to say for Senator Barnes whom he introduced.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Did you know that today is not only Friday but the thirteenth of the month? Better watch out that the bogey man don't catch you.

Mr. Taft would better hand out a few kind words to the trusts, or they may foreclose their mortgage on Uncle Sam's farm.

They are discussing how Senator Stephenson spent $107,793 to get elected. It takes a good many foggy nights to instill political economy and statecraft into the modern voter.

Black River Falls, Wis., is the latest town to be flooded by a breaking dam. Cleanliness may be godliness, but this attempt to give the whole town a bath all at once is too radical.

The Harvard union has abolished beer nights, but the Harvard boys won't care, as it is well known that everyone of them sits up until 2 A. M. to get his lessons perfect for next day.

Our Hebrew fellow citizens have been celebrating their harvest festival, the triplets of gilt balls might well have been displayed among the yellow pumpkins.

The balloonists in the Gordon Bennett race ran into a storm, but anyway they were out of reach of the friends who ordinarily borrow their umbrellas.

The Italians feel better having let off some of their superfluous fire crackers. Now let them return and operate the bucksaw a while, instead of trying to chase all the bad boys from under the chestnut trees in the back pasture.

Columbus day was observed Thursday in 29 states and it will not be long before it will be a national holiday as the sentiment for it grows. We wonder if it is all sentiment or just the wish for a holiday in October it being the only month after the summer vacation season without one.

Oh how they howled at that thick coating of tar and oil that was spread on the street in City Square Wednesday. The kick was the more forcible because there was more oil on the crossings, in many places than on the street. Thursday morning the condition was remedied considerably by the application of a coat of fine gravel.

At the meeting of the Framingham Board of Trade this week it was the sense of the meeting that the present closing hours of the stores are satisfactory, viz.: close at 6 P. M. Monday, Tuesday, Wednesdays and Thursday and Friday at 10 P. M. and Saturday at 11 P. M. On legal holidays the stores will close all day, after keeping open on the evening before. The closing is similar to that maintained in Quincy except here we keep open Monday nights.

With the coming of frosty evenings and the close of the base ball season, the theatres begin to fill up. A great army of players, from the glowing stars of tragedy and comedy down to the latest bit of froth from Broadway, is getting out on the road.

The tremendous vogue of moving pictures, however, is such that a journey that begins in a Pullman car sometimes ends in a pedestrian tour over the railroad ties.

Moving pictures have not altered the demand for the theatre that shows real folks as they are in real life.

But the moving picture show "puts it all over" the barn stormer type of company. The reproduction of stage work through picture films is far less expensive, and the evening's entertainment appeals to a wider range of human interest.

The public is sick of the tearing of a passion to tatters by men and women who would have made good blacksmiths or nursemaids, but whose minds are not nimble enough for the stage. No profession calls for more brainy, penetrating, and scintillating genius than the stage, and all but the few possessing such genius should have their coat tails forcibly pulled by kind mammas.

A MATTER OF CIRCULATION.

Any doubt existing regarding the diversity of The Ledger's circulation would seem to be dispelled by reading the following letter which we take great pleasure in publishing.

A few days ago this paper, along with numerous others, received with its news service an item saying that Booker T. Washington, the great southern educator, in his trip through Texas, had refused to ride in the compartment reserved for negros and had hired a special car.

This paper used the item in only 17 lines, yet from far off Alabama comes the following personal communication. Surely our columns are far-reaching. The letter is as follows:—

October 7, 1911.

To The Editor Quincy Ledger,

My dear Sir:—Regarding the enclosed, which was published in your newspaper, I would state that it serves to create an entirely wrong impression.

For four years, at the request of colored people and white people, in various Southern states I have been making educational tours covering during this time Arkansas, Mississippi Tennessee, Delaware, Virginia, North Carolina and South Carolina.

Recently, on the invitation of the Negro Business League of the state of Texas, composed of leading colored people of that state, I made a ten days tour of Texas. Everyone can well understand that it would be impossible from a physical point of view for any individual to endure ten days of constant travel, speaking three or four times a day without some provision for sleeping at night. On the Texas trip, I had to travel practically every night to reach the engagements which had been made for me, speaking two and three times a day at meetings composed of from one thousand to eight thousand persons, and shaking hands with hundreds of them after the meetings. Because of the physical strain, the colored people of Teras, themselves, at their own expense, provided a Pullman car for me and for the two dozen other colored people, most of whom lived in Texas, who accompanied me. So far from getting away from the colored people, I was with two to three dozen colored people all the time. The white people and colored people throughout Texas understood the situation and registered no objection. I did not hear a single word of adverse criticism during the ten days I was in Texas. On the other hand, the newspapers in Texas were most cordial and generous. The theatres or halls where meetings were held were largely provided by the white people themselves. There was a most cordial feeling manifested at all of these meetings and I was thanked over and over again by Mayor, Judges and other public officials, as well as by hundreds of the leading white people of Texas, for my visit to their state.

The harm that such publicaitons as at attached can do grows out of the fact that they give the impression that there is constant strife and misunderstanding between white people and black people in the South, which does not exist. When I came back, returning through the states of Louisiana and Mississippi, the railroad authorities, on their own motion, kindly put at my disposal a day coach giving as their reason that they wanted to make me as comfortable as possible after my ten days hard work.

So far from getting away from the colored people, my whole life has been spent in direct contact with them, except during the time when I am compelled to be in the North for business purposes and this the colored people thoroughly understand. My purpose in using the Pullman car provided for me by the colored business men of Texas was not as it has been assumed to get away from my own race, because in the special Pullman car used I was really in contact with more colored people than I possibly could have been in the regular day coach set aside for the use of colored people.

Yours very truly,
Booker T. Washington.

COLUMBUS DAY.

The Knights of Columbus on Thursday celebrated Columbus day for the second time as a legal holiday. With 35,000 men in line, the parade yesterday was one of the finest ever seen in Boston. The fact that the affair went off without a hitch or an accident reflects great credit on the chief marshal and his able assistants.

It was a beautiful day for such a parade, and this was especially fortunate for the 300,000 or more spectators that lined the streets and witnessed the splendid marching for nearly four hours. It was a question which was the more attractive in the great column that marched through the streets——the military or the civic bodies—for both presented an excellent appearance. And not the least significant feature of the parade was the variety of nationalities represented, all marching in honor of the eminent Italian discoverer who gave to the world a new continent.

ABOUT VENTILATION.

A physician writes in the Engineering Magazine to urge upon the management of industrial establishments a greater heed for preventive health measures and a more direct concern for the physical welfare of employes. He endorses the advice of the Boston Chamber of Commerce for the maintenance of a preventive clinic in shops and factories, with nurse and physician always available, as a move with a decided economic bearing, arguing that increased profit is represented by a more healthy, energetic attitude of the employe toward either his work or the purchasing public." says an exchange:

This doctor has also something to say on the desirability of watching out that working conditions be kept fit, not only on the score of prevention of physical disturbance but from the economic aspect. "If ventilation, temperature, and humidity are improved," he says, "physical action as well as mental action must necessarily be greater."

Managers of factories, shops, stores, offices, and all places of employment should certainly note this. Now with the change from the outdoor atmosphere of the summer season to the artificially heated air of the winter time, conditions of temperature and atmosphere at the best are inevitably trying. With the unconcern usually accorded them, they are a trial of physical and spiritual endurance that the employes themselves are usually helpless to remedy but that they ought to be spared, in the name of humanity, health, and achievement. It is not enough that heating apparatus should be installed and the results be accepted without observation. A generous spirit in the matter of heat may seem commendable but too much heat may be an actual offense against the employes. Active attention in the matter of ventilation and temperature should be made the rule wherever human beings are employed.

BIG BUSINESS IN NEW ENGLAND.

The Boston Chamber of Commerce News says: In Boston, Cambridge, Springfield and Providence are 746 printing establishments with an invested capital of $26,591,000, producing a total output valued at $38,159,000 and giving employment to 17,318 persons who earn $13,811,000.

Some 1,250 newspapers and periodicals are published in 494 cities and towns of the six New England states The number includes 797 weeklies 189 monthlies, 171 dailies and nearly a hundred tri-weeklies, semi-weeklies fortnightlies, semi-monthlies, bi-monthlies and quarterlies. More than half of these publications are issued in Massachusetts. More than 10 per cent of the total number have a circulation of 10,000 or over and 20 have 100,000 or more circulation.

PASTOR'S FRIENDS AROUSED.

Public sentiment in the vicinity of Wollaston Park is much wrought up over the action taken in regard to the pastorate of Rev. William Bingham Ayers of the Park and Downs Congregational church. Rumor has it that owing to factional difficulties arising within the church, a small portion of the people have attempted to sever his pastorate with the result that the matter is to come up before the governing board of the Congregationalists in the near future.

This action has so aroused the remaining church members that they have raised a petition of protest. Another petition of the same trend has been circulated to which over 300 signatures have been attached. Although these are not of church members they included the names of many of those who attend the church and persons interested in the church and community. The general feeling seems to be strongly in favor of retaining in the community the services of one so manifestly successful in his work with the church.

Since his installation a year and a half ago the society has grown with leaps and bounds. The beautiful new stone church now nearly completed stands as a mute testimony of his good work and untiring energy assisted by the loyal co-operation of the parish.

Rev. Mr. Ayers began preaching in 1900 and has held various partorates the last three preceding his coming to Wollaston being in New York state and of the Methodist denomination.

In 1909 he left his previous pastorate at Cape Vincent, New York, to take up special courses at Harvard University and Andover Theological Seminary. These he continued until his ordination and installation as pastor of the Park and Downs Congregational church on March 29, 1910.

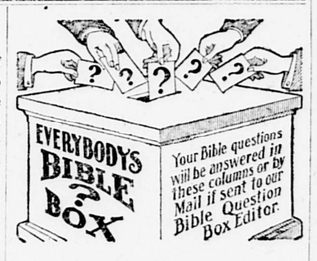
Since its formation in 1895 the society has had but three regular pastors: Rev. Fred T. Knight serving from 1897 until 1900 and Rev. Henry G. Megathlin from 1900 until 1909. From this time until the advent of the present pastor the pulpit was supplied by Rev. Edward Norton of Quincy.

The church is in a healthy condition at the present time and is in the midst of a section that is rapidly growing. The church has among its activities a flourishing men's club that is quite a factor in the locality.

RANDOLPH CHIEF DEAD.

Chief of Police John Haney of Randolph, died Wednesday at Emerson hospital at Forest Hills, aged 62, after a short illness. He was taken to the hospital Saturday, and two days later underwent an operation. He had served as chief of police 12 years. For more than 30 years he was annually elected a constable and for 40 years had been a fireman. He is survived by one son and two daughters, John T. Haney of Pittsburg and Misses Helen M. and Josephine M. Haney of this town.

HOME TRADE WILL HELP QUINCY AND EVERYONE IN QUINCY.



Q.—What does it mean to be born of the spirit? What happens when that takes place? Some have said that I am not saved unless I have been born of the spirit, and received some miraculous evidence of this. This has made me a trifle anxious, as I earnestly desire to be saved, and thus far I haven't experienced anything remarkable in the way of supernatural demonstrations, although I am endeavoring to live a Christian life.

Answer.—The Scriptures abound with illustrations which were intended to portray the varying conditions of the Christian's experience, and, unless we give careful attention to the details of these word pictures, we are liable to become confused as to their true significance. In the conversation which Nicodemus had with our Lord Jesus, (John iii, 1-8) the Master, in explaining the matter of spiritual regeneration, used the natural order or arrangement to represent the spiritual—"That which is born of the flesh is flesh: and that which is born of the spirit is spirit." Just as there is the begetting of the fleshly being, then the quickening and finally the birth, so also with the spiritual ones. The Christian is first begotten of the spirit (begotten again —I Peter v, 3), then quickened by the spirit (Romans viii, 11) and then having attained to full development as an embryotic "New Creature" he will be "born of the spirit" in the resurrection,—"changed" from a fleshly, human being to a heavenly spiritual one,—See I Corinthians xv, 50-53. All who experience the new birth will be invisible, powerful, even as are the angels and all spirit beings. Observe the force of the Master's words—"Marvel not that I said unto thee, ye must be born again. The wind bloweth where it listeth, and thou heareth the sound thereof, but canst not tell whence it cometh, and whither it goeth: so is every one that is born of the spirit."

A Goodyear Welt Shoe contains more value for the money than any other article of daily use you buy.

The masses of the people are wearing better shoes today than ever before.

The United Shoe Machinery Company by steadily reducing the machinery cost of making shoes, improving the machines on which shoes are manufactured, placing them in factories on reasonable terms and giving manufacturers an efficient service has made this possible.

The Boot and Shoe Recorder says: "One day's work will buy a better pair of shoes in the United States than it will anywhere else in the world by more than 30 per cent."

The item of machinery is the only item of cost in the manufacture of shoes which is lower today than in 1899, when the United Machinery Company was formed.

The products of the shoe factories of Massachusetts have greatly increased in value since the Company was formed in 1899. In 1900 they were valued at $117,000,000; in 1908 (the latest year for which statistics are at hand) at $170,000,000; and that was the year after a panic.

The operatives on the Company's machines in shoe factories are much more regularly employed and receive higher wages than operatives received under the conditions which prevailed before the formation of the Company.

At the New England Fair in the Mechanic's Building, Boston, you will see a complete shoe-making plant, with the machines of the Company in actual operation making Goodyear Welt Shoes.

Sixty different machines out of the 300 manufactured by the Company are shown at work there, each needed in the manufacture of a high-grade Goodyear Welt Shoe.

Some of these machines are sold; some are leased; some are sold or leased as the shoe manufacturer may prefer. Most shoe manufacturers had rather lease than buy.

Visit the fair and learn for yourself the terms upon which the shoe manufacturer enjoys the use of each machine.

Ask questions. They will be answered.

AMUSEMENTS

DOINGS ON THE STAGE OF

LOCAL AND BOSTON THEATRES

BOSTON THEATRE.

Another Werba and Luescher success following on the heels of their unrivalled productions of "The Spring Maid" and "Little Miss Fix-it" was the pleasing announcement flashed over the wires when this young firm of artistic managers secured "Miss Dudelsack."

This European sensation, with its fascinating melodies played last year in nearly 200 continental cities, is the new opera selected for Miss Lulu Glaser's starring tour. Its charming title-role proved to be exactly what Miss Glaser had been seeking ever since her well-remembered triumph in "Dolly Varden." The American musical stage has not been graced by a more captivating or popular artist than Lulu Glaser. At all times an irresistable comedienne as well as a brilliant prima donna, she dominates every role she has ever played. In "Miss Dudelsack" her managers supplied her with a gorgeously tuneful work that ran a year in Berlin and Vienna and is now in demand at every stock opera house in Europe. Its heorine is a saucy little orphan Scotch lassie who dances in kilts and whose witty tongue and youthful beauty are the envy of all the women of the McHumber clan of Highlanders.

The opera calls for a more elaborate production than Werba and Luescher gave "The Spring Maid." Miss Glaser is supported by an all-star cast and an orchestra of thirty so that the presentation of "Miss Dudelsack" promises one of those rare musical treats that come only occasionally during a season.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE.

Unless the management can succeed in prolonging their stay, the Irish Players, now appearing at the Plymouth Theatre, Boston, will begin on Monday the fourth and farewell week of their engagement at this new and beautiful playhouse. As a special feature the management has chosen for the attraction for the entire week, "The Playboy of the Western World," a comedy in three acts by the late J. M. Synge, one of the most noted of Irish playwrights. The play is said to be the strongest of the list of plays written by this eminent author and without question the most interesting of the entire repertoire presented by this wonderful organization. It is safe to say that the success achieved by these remarkable players has never before been equalled in Boston. Their versatility and natural acting, depicting Irish life, has captivated both the press and public of Boston, and as a mark of the latter's esteem and appreciation the players have been greeted with capacity houses at every performance. Never in the history of the American stage has the theatre-going public of Boston been treated with such rare and artistic acting. The company is booked for a brief tour of America and will not play any other city in New England, outside of Boston. Therefore if you are the lover of natural acting of plays tinged with an element of rich humor and tender pathos, you should not miss the opportunity of witnessing the "Irish Players."

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.

Nevt week will be a veritable Old Home Week at the Grand Opera House, for it will mark the return of this country's sweetest-voiced contratenor, Richard J. Jose, the old-time minstrel, whose beautiful rendering of the grand old song classics has made him the idol of music-lovers for the past two decades. "Silver Threads," a domestic drama of New England life, with a beautiful story, charmingly told, has been especially written for Mr. Jose around the old song, "Silver Threads Among the Gold," by Martin V. Merle, whose great work, "The Light Eternal," is recognized as the best of all religious plays in recent years. Around the lives of John Laurie, his brother Ben, and John's two daughters, Ruth and Kathleen, has been entwined a story that is replete with dramatic and comedy situations, and into it has been woven the songs of old—the songs that have made Jose famous. In Ben Laurie, the big lovable country blacksmith, he has created a character that stands alongside of Denman Thompson's Uncle Josh in "The Old Homestead" and Herne's Uncle Nat Berry in "Shore Acres." There will be matinees on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

LULU GLASER IN THE VIENNESE OPERA "MISS DUDELSACK," At the Boston Theatre, beginning Oct. 16th.

CORONATION PICTURES.

For ten weeks the Coronation pictures have been shown twice a day in Tremont Temple, and the eleventh beginning Monday will continue to offer them to the multitudes of people in and around Boston who should not fail to see them before the engagement is over. It will not do to delay too long, for their run is limited. Especial interest is given them by the frequent addition of new scenes, thus enabling persons to see them over and over again with the constant assurance of watching something new closely associated with the Coronation of the King and Queen of England. Nothing so marvellous has recently been seen in Boston, and these pictures mark a great advance in the science of color photography. The pictures are given every afternoon and evening, and the entertainment lasts two hours with instrumental orchestral music, and a descriptive lecture by Eugene Farnsworth.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

Everybody likes a detective story, and everybody likes to witness the exciting scenes of a detective play. The latter will be offered at the Castle Square next week in "Arsene Lupin," one of the strongest and most entertaining of dramas that have been produced in this country in many a long season. It is a dramatization from the novel of the same name, and its plot involves the adventures of an audacious French thief who delights in robbing the mansions of the rich of their treasures. It is in three acts and four scenes, and it was presented with unexampled success in the theatres of Paris before being offered to the theatre-goers of England and America. The action of "Arsene Lupin" begins in the palatial mansion of M. Gournay-Martin, a plebeian Frenchman who has grown tremendously rich, and soon the hunt is on, and the detective after the thief in full cry. Those who have been entertained by "Sherlock Holmes" and Raffles" will be sure to like "Arsene Lupin" for it is a continuous succession of scenes that keep the audience guessing till the very end. At the Castle Square next week Mr. Craig will appear in the title role, Mary Young will play the heroine, and there will be a large cast, special scenery, and a perfect all-round production.

B. F. KEITH'S.

Madam Sumiko, a dainty little Japanese woman who is known in her own country as "The Mary Garden of Japan," will be feature attraction at B. F. Keith's Theatre next week. Mme. Sumiko is the prima donna soprano of the Imperial Opera House in Tokio, and was brought to this country by one of Mr. Keith's agents in the Orient. She sings in both Japanese and English, one of her numbers, "Steamboat Bill," being sung in both languages. During her recent engagement in New York Mme. Sumiko had the honor of singing before Admiral Togo at the banquet given the famous sea fighter by the Nippon Club. The famous admiral complimented his little country woman most highly after her performance and expressed himself as greatly interested in her. Mme. Sumiko is assisted in her act by two real geisha girls from the flowery kingdom, and carries her own musical director, B. S. Takaori, who leads the orchestra for the Madam's songs. A beautiful stage setting, designed by C. W. Falls, of the art staff of Collier's Weekly, representing a palace garden across the harbor from Fujiyama, is also carried. Other big features of the week will be Paul Dickey & Co. in "The Comeback," an uproariously funny farce of college life; the Hein Children, juvenile wonders; Morris & Allen; Hickey's comedy circus; Louis Stone, the upside down dancer; the R. A. G. trio of rathskeller entertainers; and the Rials, novelty equilibrists.

COMING PLAYS.

Harry Lauder will sing at the Boston opera house Friday evening, and Saturday afternoon and evening, Oct. 20 and 21.

Monday, Oct. 23 comes to the Hollis Blanche Bates in Avery Hopwood's amusing light comedy, "Nobody's Widow," telling the story of the quarrels and reconciliations of a newly married pair.

"Madam Sherry" comes to the Tremont Oct. 23 with Lina Abarbanell, "Every Little Movement," and all the rest.

Monday, Oct. 30 at the Colonial the attraction will be Elsie Janis in "The Slim Princess," a musical comedy made by Henry Blossom and Leslie Stuart from George Ade's like-named tale.

Of the many manuscripts submitted in the contest for the John Craig prize, the judges after a month of reading and consultation, have selected another drama by a Radcliffe student as best suited for professional productions. The play bears the tentative title of "The Product of the Mill," being a strong drama of present day conditions in a Southern cotton manufacturing town, and it is the work of Miss E. A. McFadden, a special student in Radcliffe college.

The play will involve an elaborate production, bringing into the plot many characters, in direct contrast with "The End of the Bridge," Miss Florence Lincoln's play, which won the John Craig prize last year, and it will be made ready for production at the Castle Square some time in the coming winter. Mr. Craig, Miss Young and all the company will be in the cast, including Miss Henrietta McDannel, who will have a role in strong contrast with the part of the Peter that she acted last spring in "The End of the Bridge."

JOHN A. DAVIS.

John A. Davis, an old time resident and business man of South Boston, died suddenly Thursday morning, at his home 725 East 4th street. Mr. Davis was a native of Quincy, having been born in this city 70 years ago. He left when a young man and has since resided in South Boston. He was a prominent Mason and Odd Fellow.

SUPPER SERVED

The opening church social of the Wollaston Congregational church was held in the vestry on Thursday evening, supper being served at 6.30. Owing to the nature of the day the national colors formed a part in the decorations.

The evening's entertainment consisted of an interesting stereopticon lecture by Rufus B. Tobey upon his recent trip through the Yellowstone National Park.

Mr. Tobey's first trip through the Park was made in 1884 when conditions were very different from what they are today. Nothing had been known of the territory until 1870 and it was not until 1872 it was set aside as a national reserve.

The speaker described in detail the many natural wonders of the place including its many geysers, falls, canyons and beautifully colored rocks.

The careful policing by limited States troops and the friendliness of the wild animals were points that came in for mention. The lecture closed with views of the many pretty wild flowers that grow in profusion there. An interesting exhibit was a horse shoe encrusted with a deposit left by the waters of the geysers.

Composing the committee in charge of the supper were: Mrs. Bonney, Mrs. Charles L. Seavey, Mrs. W. Parker Gould, Mrs. G. F. Perry. Mrs. Louis S. Bugbee, Mrs. John L. Payson. Mrs. William Patterson, Mrs. Rufus B. Tobey, Mrs. Charles Campbell.

WILL ATTEND MEETING.

The local committee of the Board of Trade on the Greater Boston Telephone association composed of Messrs Richards, Sandberg and Teasdale will attend the meeting of the association this afternoon at 4 o'clock in the Old South building. The matters that will come before the meeting will be to take action on having a member of the association appointed to fill the vacancy on the highway commission, to elect a larger executive committee and to plan for a legislative campaign next year.

COST CONGRESS.

The printers and allied trades of New England will hold a convention and cost congress at the American house, Boston, Tuesday, Oct. 24 to consider the various phases of cost and methods connected with the many branches of the printing industry. A large representation is assured of the printers, electrotypers, photo engravers and paper jobbers of this section of the country, and the interest already shown promises as great enthusiasm and results as came from the conventions held in Chicago, St. Louis and Denver. The program now being prepared assures a series of meetings which will be of immeasurable value to all who attend, as some of the best known men in the country have already been secured.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

INTERESTING TALK

Mr. Byrnes while being a man of unquestioned capacity and ability is also generously endowed with tact supplemented by a never failing fund of good humor. In addition he is a thorough optimist and believes in the persuasive possibilities of a smile when dealing with people.

Although having no previously prepared address, he held the close attention of his audience and his remarks punctuated with witty remarks and humorous stories while at the same time outlining the policy and plans of the railroad company were a treat to all who were privileged to listen.

In the beginning Mr. Byrnes spoke of the original Old Colony Railroad from Boston to Plymouth covering approximately a distance of thirty-seven miles and built at a cost of $2,000,000. It cost the same amount of money to abolish the grade crossings and complete the big "fill" from Savin Hill to Atlantic and to continue the same scheme to Braintree would mean an outlay of another two million dollars.

The present New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad uses 6000 miles of track in New England and employs an army of employees numbering 32,000. While some people describe the system as "Morgan's railroad" it may be interesting to know that there are many men who have larger holdings than Mr. Morgan and that a great part of the stock is owned by Massachusetts people.

The road is capitalized at $500,000,000 and the total value, although not listed as such, is about twice that. In other words the grand total foots up to the stupendous figure of one billion doillars.

There are 18,000 stockholders and of these two-thirds are women and children and the remainder is made up largely of trustees and guardians.

Mr. Byrnes paid a glowing tribute to Mr. C. S. Mellen, president of the New Haven system, and said that in his opinion Mr. Mellen is today the greatest railroad president in the country. He described him as aggressive, ambitions, and idealist, one who sees great possibilities and quick to take advantage of them. Mr. Mellen is a native of Massachusetts and has reached his present high position by hard work and his faculty from boyhood up of being always "on the job."

In these days of graft, swollen fortunes, etc., it is astonishing at least to know that Mr. Mellen is comparatively a poor man. In other words, as Mr. Byrnes stated, although the railroad in question does an enormous business and Mr. Mellen controls millions of dollars a month yet he is a man of strictest honesty and integrity and has never yet taken one dollar of the road's earnings beyond that paid to him as salary.

Since Mr. Mellen took control of the New Haven road there has been a wonderful expansion and many great improvements so that from being a one horse road and way behind the times it is now one of the great systems of the country and if President Mellen's dreams are realized it will within the next five or six years give New England the finest transportation facilities in the world.

By the merger with the Boston and Maine railroad Mr. Mellen secured a combination which can defy the aggression of the railroads west of the Hudson river and make New England a factor to be reckoned with in many phases of trade relations. Mr. Mellen believes in New England and its possibilities and intends that the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. shall be a contributing factor to her advancement. He could have sold the Boston and Maine stock for twice what it cost him, to rival companies but refused to do so believing that a combination of the two great railroads would benefit this section of the country.

This week the New Haven has acquired a steamship line operating between Boston and Europe which will handle the great grain shipments from the Canadian Northwest. Thus the links are being forged in this great transportation chain and while some refer to the road as an "octopus" yet it would seem that it is a beneficent one and has the welfare of New England in mind.

Mr. Byrns quoted many figures relative to freight rates and his witty reference to those delicious Vermont turkeys brought every year from Texas by the railroads at three quarters of a cent per pound occasioned much laughter.

The fact that it costs as much to cart flour from the freight house to the home as it does to haul it from Minneapolis to Boston was a revelation to many. Another interesting fact disclosed by Mr. Byrnes was contained in the statement that in spite of the prevailing high prices for everything, railroad fares and rates are cheaper than ever.

Mr. Byrnes is a very easy and convincing speaker and can tell a good story or quote statistics with equal ease. His address was full of interest and in it he showed that the railroad company which he serves is not all bad or made up of crooks and grafters as perhaps some people would have us believe. He shed much light upon many points in the business which are little understood by the average citizen and showed what a tremendous and powerful corporation the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad is, how great are the responsibilities of those who conduct its affairs and how if the public will cooperate with it, both will be benefited.

The remarks of Mr. Byrnes were applauded to the echo and at the close he very kindly answered various questions concerning railroad matters propounded by several interested auditors. To each and all he was uniformly courteous and answered all queries fully and at length. Mr. Byrnes made a most favorable impression on all who were privileged to hear him and the evening will go on record as one of the finest in the history of the club.

The committee in charge were: Alva Morrison, president; F. P. Rhoades, vice president; H. W. Bond, secretary; G. M. Keating, treasurer; E. L. Emerson, H. M. Gage, G. H. Hamblett and George O. Wales.

ing of the necessary machinery the present force is to be doubled. And that it will be doubled again before long is practically certain.

The first step in the impending enlargement of the plant is the building of the additional office structure, now under way, and an idea of the scale of which things are being planned may be gained from the fact that this new building is to be 85 by 32 feet in dimensions and three stories in height.

Following the stockholders' meeting there was an interesting demonstration of the new crude oil engine, which is an especial product of the Ship and Engine Co. The engine, the first one to be completed here, was set up on the testing floor and ran as smoothly as a sewing machine. Its workings delighted the stockholders. —New London Telegram of Oct. 11.

STRONG REPUBLICAN CLUB

Senator Barnes in opening thanked the presiding officer for his kind words and the reception given him. He had not heard of the incident spoken of by the chairman but it was similar to many others that had come to his notice, so that it seemed at times as though the saying of Abraham Lincoln, "that you can not fool all the people all of the time" was wrong. He thought however that the people were recognizing the bluff. The Democrats are doing everything to catch the voters. The platform appeals to the radicals and Gov. Foss in his speeches appeals to the conservatives. He had opposed the appropriation of $100,000 to investigate the state institutions, for he believed them all right. They so proved to be for the experts found nothing but what redounded to the credit of the Republican party. The only sign of graft found was when these experts rendered their bills for expenses. In closing Senator Barnes hoped all would get together and give Frothingham a rousing vote. As for himself he had no apology to make for any of his votes during the last session.

Senator Pierson of Brookline spoke briefly as to why Frothingham should be elected and Foss defeated. If Foss was the abler man, this year, every Republican and Democrat should vote for the Republican candidate. In the last congress three tariff bills were passed that were a direct blow to New England industries and only Taft stood between them and us. Thank God that he was there to veto the bills. The Wilson-Gorman bill, bad as it was, did not compare with these three bills, as they would have paralized New England industries. It is for us to say whether we approve of President Taft's action by electing Republicans and continue our prosperity or to say we disapprove of his action and elect a Democrat. He then spoke of the great good which a Republican club could do. The influence of such a club was far reaching. With a good active club every voter in the city is known and reached and he urged the formation of a club in Quincy such as they have in Brookline.

Chairman Hatfield of the state committee said he liked Quincy for he had been here the night before. It gave him great pleasure to meet the Republican clubs. He believed in politicians for they took an interest in their town, city, state and national government. It is through the Republican clubs that we must disseminate knowledge to the voters, especially the new voters. There was no doubt of Quincy's Republicanism in state and national affairs but you get away from it at times in municipal affairs. He believed in party designations. If you want the best man you have got to have party designations. If you must have a Democrat let the Republicans nominate him. The Democrats do not want it. They want to go into our caucuses and nominate our candidates. If you watch the Democrats you will see how sincere they are for direct primaries. What happened to the Democrat party recently? They had been howling for direct primaries yet Foss & Co nominated the whole ticket from top to bottom. I do not blame them for wanting to weaken the Republican party. It is united action by organization that brings results. There is not a hamlet in the commonwealth that does not have a Republican committee.

It is up to us to see to it we have a chance to run our caucuses and nominate the men we want. That is why you want a full ticket at your municipal caucuses. Do not go away from here with the thought that by attending a meeting you have done your duty. If you nominate men for office it is your duty to elect them Get together and you will have a vote that will astonish you. I want to see you have a Republican Mayor in Quincy. Your present Mayor is a good fellow. I have nothing against him, but hang it he is a Democrat. Get the young men who are casting their first ballot interested. If you do not get after him some other fellow will. In closing Mr. Hatfield said he hoped Quincy would have a rousing good club.

Walter E. Piper candidate for representative from the fifth district said he was glad to see so large an attendance. He was glad to see the splendid spirit shown. That get together spirit, is with us, and argues well for the success of the state ticket and for the municipal ticket. We have got the nucleus for a good Republican club in Quincy. We need more. A club of 500 would be a power for good in Quincy. Let us get together and have a rousing Republican club in Quincy.

A. L. Whitman spoke a good word for Candidate Leslie who was confined to his home by illness. He hoped everybody would get out and work for him.

A general invitation was extended to all to join the club and after the meeting a large number affiliated themselves with it.

ROOSTER COAL BRIQUETS

THE NEW ANTHRACITE COAL

ROOSTER BRIQUETS are made from the choicest small Scranton Anthracite coal, mined in Pennsylvania, called TWENTIETH CENTURY CHESTNUT size

Just consider for a moment what we offer here in this 20th CENTURY CHESTNUT.

First, 2000 pounds of clean, pure, hard coal without a rock or a piece of slate.

Second, fuel that cannot form into a clinker, by any known method of firing, consequently the linings and grates last indefinitely.

Third, they are made in nut size, being equally convenient for furnace heaters, open grates, as well as stoves; therefore, only one storage bin is necessary.

Fourth, and very IMPORTANT, the quality of this fuel is the SAME EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR, not a good ton today, and nothing like it the next time, in other words, when you once learn how to regulate your drafts you have nothing more to learn about burning BRIQUETS.

Fifth, no more sifting ashes these Briquets burn out clean. They require less wood to kindle.

Be sure to ask for "ROOSTERS" and get the Briquet made from pure Scranton Coal, from the largest Briquet plant in the country. They are better than coal, will last as long and cost less.

Uneeda Biscuit never disappoint!

You have never heard anyone say—"The Uneeda Biscuit in that last package were not as good as usual."

You have never said it yourself.

It is one thing to make soda crackers that are occasionally good.

It is quite another thing to make them so that they are not only always better than all other soda crackers, but always of unvarying goodness.

The name "Uneeda"—stamped on every one of them—means that if a million packages of Uneeda Biscuit were placed before you, you could choose any one of them, confident that every soda cracker in that package would be as good as the best Uneeda Biscuit ever baked.

IN FASHION'S REALM.

French Gownmakers Cling to Short Skirts.

Coats Are Longer Than Those of Summer.

If you know your Paris, or that part of it that deals with clothes, you are well aware that all the fashions written about are not worn by the people at large but by the mannequins. It is they who parade up and down the long salons of the great dressmaking houses.

At these private exhibitions one cannot think about anything but the subject in hand, and if one is a dressmaker or a buyer the brain goes like a whirligig.

And so when the people ask you what others are wearing in Paris early in the season the only available answer is that the mannequins are projecting what others wi'' wear when the season begins. This year, even at the September races, no one wore new autumn frocks because of the heat, but the gowns that were worn were lovely and new enough to be copied by us for house affairs.

Among the most attractive ones were the changeable taffeta frocks or those of a queer old satin that has body and yet is not heavy. These are made up with coats and one-piece suits, and the costume in whole or in part would serve us very well during the Indian summer and even under a heavy wrap when the cold weather comes.

The skirts were short and were not ashamed of their old-fashioned knife plaitings that were put at the hem, the knees, and in between. The economical woman will at once say that knife plaitings of taffeta crack and split. So they do; but she can also remember that knife plaitings of taffeta may go out of fashion before they crack, which is one of the defects of the modern sartorial system.

And then, again, if a woman does not like plaitings, she can substitute them by pinked ruchings, which also have a mild Victorian flavor. The bodices of these little skirts are V-shaped back and front, with immense fichus of wash tulles or of maline lace, and the sleeves are ornamented with the plaitings and finished with the three-inch kind.

The coats are longer than the ones worn all summer, and they are tightly fitted below the waist and are frankly gathered across the back into a thick cord about a half inch above the normal waist line. Sometimes there is a belt instead of a cord, which comes over the side seams and is fastened with a huge filigree button. The sleeves are quite long and finished at the wrist like a glove, wrinkled and closely buttoned.

The fronts are a mass of revers or collars or whatever you may call the voluminous drapery that reaches from shoulder to waist and that broadens every blouse and coat now won. The blouse under the coat, by the way, has a V-shaped guimpe with a high collar made of Alencon tulle, which is nothing but an excellent quality of wash net, that is unlined most of the way down and shows a narrow band of pink satin above the waist line.

This wedge-shaped lining of pink satin, is something one sees on all the summer frocks. The effect sought on every gown is that of a transparent top piece, and when this is not possible as in a silk blouse, then the V-shaped guimpe is of the finest material and shows this low lining of pink satin or china silk for a few inches above the waist.

Other very clever frocks that were worn at the late September races that would serve us for indoors were of black lace over white chiffon cloth, or the other way around. There was a wonderful gown of white lace over green taffeta, the lace arranged into a long overskirt caught up at the waist in the back with a bow of green and then falling in two cascades to points on a small square train.

The blouse was folded fichuwise over green chiffon cloth, which had a low lining, without any shoulder straps, of flesh pink silk. The sleeves were gathered into an armhole and fastened by long tight wrinkled cuffs of the green mousseline, with deep flounces of the white lace over the hand.

A Directoire bonnet was worn with this of black tulle faced with green velvet and trimmed with a towering pyramid of small ostrich tips. White pumps were worn with green stockings, and these same pumps, were without ornament of any kind. This is another feature that has been introduced this autumn. Both suede and satin slippers have neither buckle nor rosette; the vamps are long—quite too long to the American eye, and the heels are high.

It is rather strange that the crinoline sleeve isn't being talked about over here as much as one would think.

If you want to know about this sleeve in detail, it is easy enough to describe it. First, a low armhole resting in the most ungainly fashion on the arm itself two inches below the shoulder proper; then the elbow sleeve, which has a featherbone at its edge to hold it well away from the arm, and a finish of two-inch fringe. The arm is not left bare at this spot, for elbow sleeves are not in fashion, except for dinner gowns, so a loose sleeve of white lace or tulle is added, and this is gathered into the wrist and flares again into a ruffle.

One saw this sleeve at several places, and while it is not probable that it will be worn exactly as it is for months to come, it emphasizes two things—that we are on the verge of ugly clothes and that the sleeves are to be long and full.

The only question of the day is whether or not our cultivated tastes will prevent us from becoming grotesque again. Will the present influence on clothes drift down through the next influence and modify their ugliness?

Truly, there is not a pretty sleeve to be seen in Paris. The long tight cuff is surely the forerunner of the sleeve that balloons over the elbow, and if one does not think of it in this way, there is the new crinoline sleeve to suggest the thought. The low hanging armhole is a destroyer of the lines of the upper part of a woman's body, and even when the regulation armhole is used there is a shoulder drapery that slopes away from the neck and ends half way between the elbow and shoulder, to give this drooping effect.

The ruffles over the hand, which are in all modern sleeves, are pretty, even if expensive and uncomfortable. No one especially objects to them, except that they are a part and parcel of an ugly reign in sleeves. They look very well on the Directoire sleeve, which, fortunately, redeems the situation by its use here and there in the slim Directoire gowns which Worth and some of his imitators are keeping true to.

Your smart shirtwaist for morning, as well as for afternoon, will be fastened up the front, will have long sleeves gathered to an emphasized armhole, and will have a high stock.

The truth must be confessed that Americans are taking homeward-bound steamers with joy; it is also true that they have left a pretty pile of American money over here, but it is whispered among those who buy and those who receive that less money has changed hands this season than for ten or fifteen years.

The American buyers feel, however, that it may be the beginning of the end; not that any one is so fatuous as to believe that the revolution is at hand and that Americans will be able soon, or ever, to disregard the French supremacy in clothes, but we will take back ideas and inspirations and make the bulk of the clothes at home. It is open comment that the success here this season of a dressmaker who has a New York house, a tailor from Vienna, and a dressmaker from Chicago, is a rather strong suggestion that creativeness is beginning to bud outside of Paris.

Whatever the reason, or combination of reasons, that has brought about this lessened buying, the gossip goes that Americans have bought two gowns where before they bought six.—Paris Letter in New York Times.

A NEW "GREY DUCK."

The 90-horsepower gasoline yacht Grey Duck, built for Thomas L. Sturtevant of Adams street was launched from the yards of the Murray & Tregurtha Company, South Boston. at high tide Tuesday. There was no launching party, the boat being slipped into the water without ceremony.

This boat. the third of the same name built for Mr. Sturtevant, is 83 feet over all. 75 feet water line and 12 1-2 feet beam. She is fitted with a five-cylinder engine, with a single shaft. The engine is forward in the crew's quarters. Just aft of the engine room is located the galley, the whole width of the boat, and then comes the main saloon, 20 feet long. The entrance to the saloon is on the starboard. Aft of the saloon is the owner's cabin. Forward amidship there is a small pilot house, which will be used also as the captain's stateroom.

The Grey Duck will be finished in mahogany and brass throughout. The hull is of wood, and will be painted gray. She will carry two motor tenders and two rowing tenders and will be equipped with the usual masts and awnings found on such boats. The builders expect to have the boat completed in about two weeks when her owner will start on a cruise through southern waters, to be gone all winter. Mr. Sturtevant will return in the spring and use the boat in northern waters during the summer.

MR. VINCENT LECTURED AT MANSION SCHOOL

Mr. Leon Vincent, a well known lecturer, with residence at Trinity Court, Boston, spoke before a large gathering of the students and friends of the Quincy Mansion school in Livermore hall, last Wednesday evening. His topic was "Hawthorne" and the manner in which he dealt with subject was both interesting and instructive.

The speaker gave a resume of all the important developements in the life of the great author. He dwelt at some length on his literary career, his trials and tribulations, and upon the fidelity and devoted feeling of his kind wife. He also told the position the author occupied in the literary world and gave brief descriptions of his merits acquired from time to time.

COLONIAL INN, CONCORD.

The Colonial Inn at Concord, Mass., which long has catered to tourists and automobile parties has changed hands and will be managed by Frederick Sutter, formerly of the Rathskeller, in the American house, Boston. The Inn, which is one of the Colonial buildings of Revolutionary times, has grown immensely in popularity, of late years. The former managers, Mr. and Mrs. W. Rollins Abrams, will spend the winter in Los Angeles, Cal. Mr. Abrams has been a sufferer from muscular rheumatism, which is the reason for disposing of the management.

The Abrams a few years ago had charge of The Greenleaf in this city and Mr. and Mrs. Abrams and daughter have many Quincy friends.

AT MERCY OF SEA IN BROKEN BOAT

Man and Two Sons Rescued In the Nick of Time

Boston, Oct. 13.—After drifting for hours about the bay in a broken down motor boat, without lights and in imminent danger of being run down by shipping or tossed by the brisk wind on the jagged teeth of the Graves, while the life savers from Nahant and Hull searched for them through the darkness, Henry Nicholas, 54 years of age, of Beachmont, and two sons were rescued just before midnight within 200 yards of Split rock.

Surfmen Wiggin, McIntyre and Lewis found them lying in the bottom of the litttle 21-foot motor boat, tossing at the mercy of the waves. They were taken to the Nahant life saving station in the lifeboat and after a short rest sent home early this morning by Captain Hayman.

It seemed a miracle to the veteran life savers that the craft had not been driven by the stiff northwest wind straight onto the Graves.

SENATOR DAVIS MARRIED

Already Has Family of Three Sons and Four Daughters

Ozark, Ark., Oct. 13.—United States Senator Jeff Davis of Little Rock and Miss Lelia Carter, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Wallace A. Carter of this city, were married at the Carter residence yesterday afternoon.

LECTURE ON LIFE AND VOYAGE OF COLUMBUS

"The life and voyage of Columbus" was the subject of a most pleasing discourse, delivered on the evening of the holiday to the members of the Houghs Neck Catholic Lyceum and their many friends, in the clubhouse, by Rev. Fr. Patrick J. Scannell, curate at St. John's church. The speaker readily adapted himself to the subject and gave a complete history of the attempts and successes met by the great American explorer.

He also depicted the many experiences encountered and praised the devoted spirit that was displayed by the followers of Columbus. This was the first of a series of talks to be given under the auspices of the Lyceum and the members considered themselves fortunate in having such an able orator as Fr. Scannell for the occasion.

At the conclusion of his remarks an entertainment was in order, in which many local talent participated. Refreshments were served and the event concluded with dancing which was enjoyed till midnight.

BROCKTON BOYS LOSE BANQUET.

A member of the school committee in Brockton recently promised a banquet to the players of the Brockton High football team, if they defeated the strong Somerville High aggregation. The game was played yesterday and Somerville was victorious.

Evidently the gentleman in question felt very safe in making such a gratuitous offer, yet the fact that Brockton High held its opponents to a close score, should warrant, at least, a pink tea celebration at the expense of the Brockton school committeeman.

BRIEFS

Mayor Shea is expected home from the south, Sunday evening.

City Square was rather dusty this morning until it was watered.

Charles H. Spear of Franklin street, who has been seriously ill, is reported as being more comfortable.

The clock dials on the First church are very attractive since the hands and figures have been guilded.

Miss Nellie Lane who has been at the Eliot hospital, Boston, returned to her home on Conant street Thursday

Box 225, located on the corner of Field and Brackett streets, was cut into the fire alarm circuit this morning.

Things were very quiet in police circles during the holiday. Only one arrest was made and that was for drunkenness.

Court John Ericson, Foresters of America held a rousing meeting Wednesday evening and initiated five candidates. Plans were made for a masquerade to be held in the near future.

Elmer, the 10 year old son of Chas. Norling of Hillside street was taken suddenly ill at the corner of Franklin and Water streets Thursday afternoon and collapsed. He was taken home in the police ambulance. It is thought that his illness was caused by watching moving pictures the vibration of the pictures affecting his head.

HUNDREDS ARE DROWNED

Disastrous Tidal Wave Sweeps Part of West Coast of Mexico

Mexico City, Oct. 13.—Hundreds of lives were lost and hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of property destroyed in a hundred mile wide area on the west coast of Mexico by a cloud burst, hurricane and tidal wave, according to reports just received here.

Practically all the adobe houses were destroyed, the frame and stone buildings alone standing. Scores of lower class Mexicans were caught beneath the falling walls and drowned before they had time to escape.

The custom house at Guaymas, containing more than $200,000 worth of imports, was destroyed. Launches, sloops and two schooners were hurled high on the shore back of Guaymas. The stone facing of the harbor and all wharves were wiped out.

George F. Stanton of Boston, a former minister of the church. The bride and groom were unattended and the ceremony was witnessed by the relatives and a few intimate friends. The ushers were Mrs. George L. Barnes, Mrs. David N. Crawford, Mrs. Arthur B. Tirrell, Miss Lina Loud, Miss Lillian Blanchard and Miss Alice Barnes all of the bride's Sunday school class. Mr. and Mrs. Alvord will live at 524 Pleasant street, South Weymouth.

OLD COLONY ASSOCIATION.

The quarterly meefing of the Old Colony Association of Universalists was held in Hingham, Wednesday. There was a large attendance. The morning was devoted to a conference the subject being, "The Church of today and its Finances." After dinner a visit was made to the Old Ship church, Unitarian, built in 1681, the oldest in America. At the business meeting held at 2 P. M. the following officers were elected:

President, Rev. O. Howard Perkins, Brockton.

Vice president, Rev. C. F. Andrews, Plymouth.

Secretary and treasurer, Eben Prescott, Braintree.

Executive committee, the above officers and Rev. R. L. Ballentine of Abington, Rev. Thomas Roscoe of Hingham and Rev. Fanny Austin of Quincy.

Rev. L. M. Powers, D. D. of Haverhill gave the address of the afternoon his subject being "The Reciprocal Duties of Country and City Dwellers."

WITH WILEY AT THE HEAD

Public Health Department May Be Established by Congress

Washington, Oct. 13.—There is a well-defined movement in Washington to remove Dr. Wiley from the chemistry bureau, and from all indications it will be successful. Should Wiley resign, however, it would only be to enter the chosen circle of the president's official family.

The American Medical association, together with other powerful interests, is bustly working for the establishment, as a department of the government, of a department of public health. Already Wiley has been chosen to head the new department. The association is confident of passing at the next session of congress a bill establishing such a department with a cabinet officer as its head.

It is expected that the placing of the administration for the pure food and drugs under a health department, with Wiley as its head, will help the cause along. A health department bill is now pending in congress.

Friday, Oct. 6 at Merrymount park, Quincy High school defeated Brighton High by a score of 26 to 0. Capt. Johnson's boys slightly outweighed Brighton's line-up. Brighton was poor on defensive.

Johnson made the first touchdown on a tackle play shortly after the kick off. Johnson made two more touchdowns on same play. Chapman and Page each made a touchdown Johnson kicked one goal from field making score 26-0.

Quincy's line-up was as follows:

Chapman le, Johnson lt, Andrews lg, Bill c, Smith rg, White rt, Larkin re, Blackmur qb, Holmes lhb, Page rhb, Crane fb.

Tuesday Quincy High defeated South Boston High by a score of 20 to 0.

Johnson, Finlay, Holmes and White made the touchdowns for Quincy. The feature of the game was White's long run, on a kick-off, the length of the field, for a touchdown.

This makes Quincy's third straight victory. On Saturday Quincy High and Medford High will play at Medford. Coach Staff has been coaching with much success and with the great help of guard Gulp of Brown University the team has been strengthened and will do their best to defeat Medford which is considered a strong team.

A night course in mechanical drawing has been established at Quincy High under supervision of Mr. Ray.

The hours are from seven in the evening till nine. The class is held in room 38. All wishing to join the class must deposit one dollar which is refunded at the end of the term if their average is above seventy.

This class affords a splendid opportunity to those who wish to study mechanical drawing and especially to those who require it in their work.

SPORTING "DOPE"

By B. A.

Don't Knock, Just Boost.—B. A.

The Quincy A. A. football team made a good start yesterday.

The members of the local High school eleven are preparing for a hard battle tomorrow afternoon, when they face the Medford High team, one of the strongest aggregations playing in interscholastic circles. Coach Staff realizes the situation most thoroughly and has lost no endeavors to get the local team into the best possible shape.

Last Wednesday the Quincy team was given the hardest practise it has had this season. Kulp, a player on the Brown University team, was at Merry Mount park and assisted Coach Staff in remedying the places in the lineup that are not up to the standard. The boys were sent around the field and two teams were formed. Every player was given careful attention, and although the first team scored a touchdown, it was not until the members of the second eleven had given them a most gruelling tussle.

Medford defeated Lawrence High yesterday by a score of 18 to 0 and the local boys figure that they ought to be able to hold their coming opponents to an even score.

George Sullivan and J. F. Phelan, both local boys did splendid work at the outing and field day of the Waltham Nest of Owls, held in that city yesterday in the 440 yard run and 100 yard dash respectively.

All local fans are anxiously waiting for the opening of the boxing tournament of the Quincy A. A., to be held next Monday evening in St. Mary's hall. The secretary of the association is in the rooms of the clubhouse, 17 Temple street each evening and it would be well for any one who is desirous of becoming affiliated with a flourishing organization, to have his name enrolled among the list of members.

FORE RIVER AND TRIMO PLAY TIE GAME

Fore River field was in fine condition Thursday when the Trimo of Roscburgh lined up against Fore Fiver in the Boston District League. The attendance was small. Both sides were well represented, and half an hour late Fore River kicked off towards the road goal. Play settled in Trimo's ground, until Falconer kicked over the line in saving a long shot from Lyon's foot.

The corner kick went wide, and play immediately travelled to Fore River ground where McLean was responsible for a bright piece of play. A series of free kicks gave Fore River all the chance to score, but Harrison, in goal, was playing a careful as well as a clever game, and Fore River could not score.

The home forwards tried time and time again to net the ball, but Tully and Falconer would foil the attempts and return the ball to centre field with long low kicks. Ritchie and Smith got the ball at centre field and started on their own account, the former sending in a pretty shot, but Harrison was again the means of saving his side. Trimo was awarded a free kick which took them out of danger. Half time sounded immediately after—no score.

On the restart, Dunlop sent the ball to the goal in fine style but Tully saw what seemed to be a sure score. A free kick gave relief. Rooney took play to past centre field, where Graham, got possession and in turn he sent to Agnew who sent in a strong shot, which Malcolm saved in fine style.

Lyons and Bonner again sent the leather to Trimo's ground where where Welsh missed a fine chance to add the points. The game was very fast from this to the close the ball travelling from one end of the field to the other, but neither side scoring. The whistle blew time, finishing an evenly contested game, with no scoring.

WOLLASTON GOLFER WINS.

A holiday tournament was played today on the links of the Wollaston Golf club at Montclair, the event being handicap medal play for members. John J. Gallagher finished at the top of the list with the best gross score, 80. This is the second trophy that Mr. Gallagher has secured within a week. Last Saturday he won the much-coveted President's Cup.

The net prize was won by G. M. Bahan, who got 71, and the prize for the second best net score was won by F. G. Thayer with a 72. Tommie Fuller, the only scratch man playing, scored 81, and T. M. Claflin, who had the lowest handicap of any player, played the course in 84. The scores:

G. M. Bahan	93	22	71
F. G. Thayer	84	12	72
J. J. Gallagher	80	4	76
W. L. Doten	92	16	76

SPECIAL BASEBALL NUMBER.

The Baseball Magazine—Special World Series number—is just out, and contains some fine dope comparing the Giants and Athletics. This special issue is profusely illustrated with photographs of all the leading contestants in the great World Series. There are good football stories and a fine life story of champion Frank Gotch. Among the contributors of this issue are Edward Collins of the champion Athletics, an article by John Evers, together with stories on Connie Mack and Frank Schulte.

MRS. DAVISON IMPROVED

Barring Something Unforeseen Will Recover

STILL WANTS TO DIE

The condition of Mrs. Hilda Davison of 17 Nelson street, who attempted to committ suicide Tuesday evening, by taking corrosive sublimate tablets, is reported as being favorable, and unless something new develops she will probably recover. She says, however, that she wants to die. But for the prompt work of Dr. Jones the night the woman attempted to carry out her part of a suicide pact, she would probably have been successful. Dr. Jones made the run to the woman's house, in his new torpedo Overland, at the rate of fifty miles an hour.

On arriving at the scene, a mistake was made in the house, causing some delay and giving the occupants of the house a fright as the physicians dashed into the house and up stairs. When the correct house was found, a prompt application of a stomach pump probably saved the woman's life.

When she sufficiently recovers, the woman will doubtless be declared insane and put in an asylum.

QUINCY A. A. WINS FROM HINGHAM

A large crowd of spectators greeted the members of the Quincy A. A. football eleven, who opened their season on the morning of Columbus day by securing a 20 to 0 victory over the Hingham A. A. team. From start to finish, the game seemed to be entirely in the hands of the local players for the visiting aggregation failed to make first down.

The team work of Quincy A. A. was good on the whole, yet the old style method of playing was resorted to throughout the contest. The local team also missed four easy points by failing to kick a goal.

The line of McDonald's combination was considerably heavier and stronger than the visitors line, and as a consequence little difficulty was experienced in plugging through for great gains on every occasion.

The one feature of the game was a 95 yard run for a touchdown, made by McDonald, the captain and quarter back of Quincy A. A. in the fourth period. Bennett, Boyle and Gerstel played well for the home team while Murphy was the lone star for the visitors.

The summary:

THE QUINCY DAILY LEDGER

LARGEST GUARANTEED CIRCULATION IN THE CITY

Vol. 26 No. 237 QUINCY. MASS, SATURDAY EVENING, OCTOBER 14 1911 PRICE TWO CENTS

An Appeal

To the People of Quincy:

By most earnest personal work, and through the very generous response of the people seen, $1,200 has been pledged for the Associated Charities of Quincy.

We started out to raise at this time at least $1,000, as that was felt to be the very minimum without which the work of the Associated Charities could not even begin. To carry the work through the first year at least $300 more, making $1,500 in all, is needed; and we earnestly appeal to the generous citizens of Quincy to now promptly give or pledge this balance.

It is estimated that over $10,000 is given in charity in Quincy each year—the Associated Charities being in touch with the charitable needs and the charitable resources of all the community, will help in preventing duplication in giving and in putting the money given to the wisest use.

The Associated Charities, therefore, is for the whole community, and should be supported as broadly as may be. Only a few score have so far been asked to give—now the appeal is made earnestly to all our citizens.

Will YOU become:

A Founder by giving $25 for 2 years or one.
Or a Guarantor by giving $10.
Or a Sustaining Member by giving $5.
Or an Annual Member by giving $1.

Mr. Rupert F. Claflin, the Cashier of the National Granite Bank, is the Treasurer, and subscriptions may be left at the Granite Bank, or mailed to the Associated Charities, care of Cooperative Granite Bank. Quincy.

THE FINANCE COMMITTEE OF THE ASSOCIATED CHARITIES OF QUINCY, INCORPORATED.

THE ASSOCIATED CHARITIES OF QUINCY.

(Incorporated)

To secure advice, assistance and co-operation along charitable, philanthropic and social lines in the City of Quincy.

To secure the concurrent and harmonious action of the different charities of Quincy in order to raise the needy above the need of relief, prevent begging and imposition, and diminish pauperism.

To encourage thrift, self dependence and industry through friendly intercourse, advice and sympathy, to the end that the poor may help themselves.

To prevent children from growing up as paupers.

To aid in the diffusion of knowledge on subjects connected with the relief of the poor.

And to accomplish these objects it is designed:—

1 To provide that the case of every applicant for relief shall be thoroughly investigated.

2 To provide a confidential exchange of information between the overseers of the poor, charitable societies and agencies, and benevolent individuals.

3 To obtain for every applicant employment, if possible; if not, to obtain necessary and suitable assistance from charitable societies, benevolent individuals, or public authorities.

4 To make all relief, either by alms or charitable work, conditional upon good conduct and progress.

5 To send each poor family under the advice of a district conference, a friendly visitor.

6 To hold public meetings and print papers for distribution.

At the meeting of the Finance committee at the High school on Monday it was found that over $1,200 had been pledged for the work of the Associated Charities of Quincy. The list of subscriptions to date is appended. If there are any errors or omissions please notify the secertary, Mrs. Wilson Marsh, 61 Irving place. A vote of thanks was passed by the committee for the good work done by the Ledger in giving this cause needed publicity. Cooperation is the spirit that brings about the best results. Associated Charities stand for that spirit in its best interpretation. Let us welcome it to our city.

INTERESTING OBSERVATIONS

Mr. Sutherland Tells Ledger Man About Trip Abroad

RECIPROCITY

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Sutherland have returned to their home on Federal avenue after an enjoyable vacation of nearly four months, one half of which they spent in England and Scotland and the remainder at Barney River, Nova Scotia where they have a summer home. They returned from Europe by way of Montreal and took in that city and the city of Quebec on their way to Nova Scotia.

Mr. Sutherland made some interesting observations when interviewed by a Ledger reporter. He is a man who keeps his eyes and ears open as he goes through life. He is not very enthusiastic about London although he says it is a wonderful city. He was more favorably impressed by the cities of Glasgow and Edinburg where he found the streets better kept and better lighted than in any other cities which he ever saw. The public buildings he considers models of architecture. Municipal government in those two cities is conducted on a high plane of efficiency.

In the Highlands of Scotland where he spent considerable time, Mr. Sutherland found conditions quite prosperous, although the young men are feeling the lure of the Canadian West and leaving their native heath in large numbers to try their luck in Canada. He says there is an excellent system of free schools in the highlands as well as in the lowlands and although the land is largely owned by absent landlords the rights of the tenants are so well secured by wise laws that they are able to live well and educate their children.

It seems that in Canada the defeat of Reciprocity has caused considerable surprise and regret. The feeling is that Sir Wilfred Laurier made a lamentable mistake in allowing the people to vote on it, as his government had two more years to serve if it wished and could have easily put the Reciprocity agreement through Parliament.

Now that the election is over there are no manifestations of distrust toward the United States. In Nova Scotia at least, Mr. Sutherland says the question was treated as an economic one, and the false alarm of "annexation" hod no influence, although unscrupulous politicians used it for all it was worth.

In Canada as well as in England and Scotland the general sentiment was one of friendliness toward the United States, while for President Taft, he was constantly hearing expressions of profound respect.

IMPORTANT!

THIS IS TAG DAY

Streets Alive With Young People Soliciting Aid for Worthy Institution

Today is tag day and the streets are full of young people soliciting everybody to buy a tag. There is no set price for them and anything from five cents to five dollars will be accepted. The larger the sum, the more pleased will those be who are selling them. The tag reads "Day nursery, Tag Day, Help the little ones, Quincy 1911."

Although officially tag day did not begin until this morning there were a number of ladies about the streets in South Quincy, Friday afternoon, selling tags although the great army of children did not commence work until this morning. The object is a most worthy one and a good sum should be realized.

QUINCY CHORAL SOCIETY.

The Quincy Choral Society will begin regular rehearsals for its fourth concert next Tuesday evening, under Conductor Osbourne McConathy of Chelsea, formerly of Louisville, Kentucky. In his home city Mr. McConathy has had a wide experience as musician and conductor, not only giving concerts and festivals, but also staging and directing operas. Since coming north he has given the larger part of his time to other branches in music, his principal chorus work being with the Chelsea Choral society which has an enviable record of splendid concerts of all kinds including oratorio and opera. Acting upon his suggestion the Quincy Choral society has chosen "The Golden Legend" by Sir Arthur Sullivan for its first study this season, a work strongly contrasting with those previously given. It is modern in style yet retains much of the older form of melodic construction, and the verdict of nearly all societies who have given it is that the singers have enjoyed studying it more than almost any other work. It should attract many new members to the Choral society this year and add new laurels to those already won.

IS POPULAR IN "OLD DIXIE"

Miss Hazel Jennings Very Successful in Southern Field

PROMINENT AT RECITAL

Word comes from far off Alabama that one of Quincy's fair daughters has been enthusiastically received in school circles in the sunny land of good old Dixie.

In this case it is Miss Hazel Jennings the talented daughter of Postal Inspector and Mrs. Charles E. Jennings. Miss Jennings left here in the late summer to become head of the department of expression at the Athens college. It is gratifying to note that she has met with instant success. The local Athens paper has the following to say:

Miss Jennings, the talented teacher of expression at Athens college took part in the alumni entertainment last Friday evening given at the chapel of the college at which time Miss Goodwin gave a voice recital. Miss Jennings secured a firm place in the hearts of all who heard her read on that evening and it will be simply sufficient to announce hereafter that she is to take part in the program to secure the attendance of all who heard her on that occasion. She puts into her reading much of her personal magnetism, and her expression is very fine. She gave two or three very difficult readings, and in each change she sustained herself with ease and at every appearance she was warmly greeted. Miss Moore has been most fortunate in securing the services as director of this important department of her great school, an artist of such ability. Miss Jennings is sure to win for her department great popularity. In her stage and personal appearance she is charming; her manner most gracious and her readings free from all stage effect and you feel that you are in the presence of a master in her line.

A free public lecture will be given at Alpha hall, Quincy, on Sunday, Oct. 15, at 3.30 P. M. by Virgil O. Strickler, C. These lectures are always very well attended so to be sure of a good seat be on hand early.

HEARING OF GILL BEFORE JUDGE AVERY TODAY

Charged With Manslaughter in Causing Death of Arthur Whitcomb

Ex-Gov. Warfield an Interested Visitor

A hearing was held before Judge Avery this morning in the case of Royal W. Gill of Baltimore, charged with manslaughter in causing the death of Arthur W. Whitcomb, the 12 year old son of Fred W. Whitcomb at Holbrook, Sept. 2. The boy was struck by an automobile of Gill's which was being driven by Edward W. Carr.

Assistant District Attorney Watzman represented the government and Philip H. Sullivan the defendants. Ex-Gov. Warfield of Maryland, an uncle of Gill, was an interested listener to the testimony. On request of counsel Sullivan, witnesses were excludd from the room while the others were being examined.

Mrs. Whitcomb, mother of the boy, testified that on the night in question the family were at supper. The boy got up and ran through the house out of the back door and then ran after a passing barge. She ran to the window to look out. The barge was going along in the beaten path and the boy was running after it. She watched him until her view of the boy was cut off by the automobile. He had taken about four steps to one side before her view was cut off. She did not hear any horn sound.

Mr. Whitcomb had his attention attracked by the cries of his wife and he ran out. He found his son lying across the street car rail 300 or 400

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

We wish our foot ball players would engage in some really safe diversion like the Italian war.

If the trusts will devote their attention strictly to selling their own goods, and will let the other fellow go on and sell his, all will yet be well.

While the present disturbances over the anti-trust law check business, they also tend to check the free distribution of stock certificates based on the mortgage of large chunks of hot air.

Having recently attended a musical burlesque, we feel indignant at the high prices of clothing, which compel so many of our artists to appear on the stage with nothing to wear but an undershirt.

The attention given by press to unhappy marriages shows that a man never gets his name in the newspapers merely by sitting up nights worrying lest he may have broken one of the Ten Commandments.

Wonder if the suffragettes will be after Lieutenant Governor Frothingham when he speaks in Quincy Monday? The Boston Globe comments as follows on the chase:

All the girls have always been after Hon. Louis A. Frothingham. Just now three or four of them in particular are chasing him up hill and down dale out among the Berkshires and giving him the run of his life. Why shouldn't they? Our Lieutenant Governor is a handsome bachelor, with a comfortable income, and trousers which never bag at the knees. The game is worth the price paid by the hunters—or huntresses. Whoever says that the present pursuit is financed by outsiders knows full well that the statement is a base and unwarranted slander. To catch him is a tempting enough reward for any girl.

Hitherto Mr. Frothingham has been fleet enough to elude the maidens who would have ensnared him into pledges, but we fail to see how he can escape the young women in the six-cylinder car plenteously supplied with oil, gasoline and extra tires. They have their Winter wraps with them.

THE HARVEST SUPPERS.

Great doings out along the cross roads now, as the Ladies' Aid Society prepares its annual harvest supper.

These rural festivals have a tang and a tonic not to be found in any swell Fifth Avenue menu.

There may not be much style about them. The rosy cheeked waitress is not as swift or as silent or as watchful as the tipped and sleek black face of the metropolitan restaurant.

The viands are all heaped at a time upon the crowded table. A change of plates is regarded as superfluous. Your chicken salad, your home made jellies, your luscious pumpkin pie, are all heaped upon your plate in the good old country fashion. Your blood tingling with a walk or drive through the October air, you do not pick and choose a titbit here and there as in the urban hotel. The good old country style requires you to consume every morsel of food on your plate, and your appetite makes it easy.

The etting may seem primitive to Miss Gotrox, who is used to the formal fashions of the metropolis. But the farmers' wives can cook as well as any importation from Paris. And the people at the adjoining tables allow their faces to be seen as Mother Nature made them, and do not feel that flesh and blood is inferior to somebody's fake paint.

MAN FOUND DEAD IN BED

Frank S. Kirby Watchman at Fore River Died Suddenly on Friday

Frank S. Kirby, aged 57 years, employed as night watchman in the office building at the Fore River Shipbuilding plant, was found dead in bed at his boarding house Friday afternoon. Kirby, who boarded at 74 Germain avenue, did not get up at his usual time and the boarding mistress went to his room to see what the trouble was thinking that he had over slept. Failing to arouse him by pounding on the door, help was summoned and an entrance forced into the room. Kirby was found lying on the bed, dead. Medical Examiner Jones who was called said that heart trouble was the cause. It is said that the man has a brother in Quincy and another in Providence.

The Fighting Hope

Novelized by VIRGINIA LEILA WENTZ

From the Play by WILLIAM J. HURLBURT

Copyright, 1911, by American Press Association

PROLOGUE.

A strong man bravely facing the foes who would brand him with disgrace, calmly, silently fighting them to a finish; a convict declaiming his innocence from behind prison walls which enfold him because of his weakness and his wickedness; a beautiful young mother battling for a stainless name for her children and for the fair name of their father—what more interesting themes than these could a novelist devise for a real life romance of today?

CHAPTER I.

MAN AND WIFE.

ROBERT GRANGER, JR., who had already learned "The Purple Cow," was endeavoring to master another gem from the Burgess Nonsense book. The drawings appealed to him immensely. He sat on the edge of the rug, his back against his father's chiffonnier, his legs of six years' growth stretched out, the book open upon his knee. Occasionally he made a dash with his hand at an inquisitive fly.

Across from him on a low rocker, her shining head bent slightly over in the serious operation of sewing a button on a coat, softly hummed his young mother. Presently the boy shuffled along the floor, still keeping the book on his lap, till he got close to her and lodged his chin on her knee.

"See if I don't know it, muddie," said he. And he began:

"The roof it has a lazy time
A-lying in the sun;
The walls they have—they have"—

An incipient dimple showed in his mother's cheek.

—"to hold him up;
They do not have much fun,"

Finished she gayly. She pushed the boy's hair back from his brow and kissed him. "Now run down into the garden, honey, and play with nurse and Baby Harold. Plenty of sun and fresh air and deep breathing, you know. That's what makes a little fellow into a big, strong man, eh—not too many nonsense verses?"

Robert put his book away reluctantly. "But I love po'try, too, darling, dear," asserted he, stroking her face prettily, before quitting the room.

"He's his father over and over again—gentle, appealing, winning. And sentimental, too, I'm afraid," added Anna, with a slow, enigmatical smile, as she snipped off the thread with her sound, perfect white teeth.

She rose to put the coat away. In doing so the contents slipped from one of the pockets that had been hanging over her knee. She stooped to replace them, the contents varied and inconsequential as any boy's. Then her glance fell upon a bill of fare—a French bill of fare, full of naughty things to eat and drink for two. It bore the date of the day previous.

A dancing little spirit of mischief played in the beautiful gray eyes.

"I'll keep it forninst my lord's return," quoth she. "I'll chaff him with it a bit when he gets home this afternoon, pretend I'm catty and jealous, injured virtue through and through. Oh, lordy, lordy, fancy me being jealous, and of dear old Bobs!"

Robert Granger reached his suburban home in Westfield early that afternoon. It was Saturday, a fine summer day, and he'd promised to take his boys to Cranford, a few miles distant, for a sail on the river.

"Glad you have on that dress, Anna," said he. "It's awfully becoming, and I want you to look your prettiest. Brady is coming out this afternoon, and"—

"But the boys—the river?" Her first thought was of her children's disappointment (though her dislike for the man Brady, who always "got on her nerves," came in a close second).

"The boys? I'd quite forgotten. Well, you'll have to fix it up with them; put them off till some other time. I"—

"Robert, I wish—I wish you wouldn't forget like that. It's growing to be a habit with you, dear, and I hate—I hate to have the children lose faith in your promises. I want them to learn that a promise means"—

He interrupted with some sharp inconsequence, and Anna's wide, surprised eyes goaded him into a tempest of words.

"Are you so burdened with motherhood," he cried, "that you can't even be a wife? It's plain to see that I'm only worth to you what I may be worth to the children, and no man—no man, I repeat—can stand that sort of thing."

Anna flushed and wondered what she could have done to cause this extraordinary outbreak. Her first impulse always where Robert was concerned was to try to ascertain where she herself had been found wanting. In the symphony of womanhood she had but played over and over again the largo of motherhood, this slim, girlish figure with the exquisite flowerlike face, for her physical attitude toward even her boyish, irresponsible husband was largely maternal.

She wondered, but in this instance she was rather at a loss. There was a senseless ambiguity about the affair that baffled her. She flushed hotter. It seemed to be an indignity that even for a second Robert should have become so exceedingly small in her eyes.

When she returned from "fixing it up" with the boys she crossed to the window and looked out into the garden. The sun was still shining, but it had lost its gold to her.

There was a-plenty of its gold in the ripples of her brown hair, however. Robert noticed it. He saw, too, that her slight figure, dressed in the simplest of white dimities, ran around the corner of pretty curves wherever one's eyes lighted and followed the lines. There was an offended look about her back and a half amused displeasure touching her profile.

"I'm sorry I spoke like that, Anna," said he, trying to apologize. "A man has a lot to fight against"—at the end of several halting sentences—"of which even his wife knows nothing."

"Have you to fight?" asked she, turning around and laughing in spite of herself. "You don't look like a fighter, Bobs. You look like a man to whom—well, to whom things come."

"Nothing," observed he, with befitting gravity—"nothing comes without hustling and exertion and perspiration, either of brow or spirit."

"In that case," said she, still regarding him reflectively, "I ought to know about this perspiration and the other accompaniments. With two children it's quite time I began to face things." She came nearer and laid her hand on his shoulder. "Things might strike me differently, you see, if I knew more. Your odd, puzzling little moods—I could make allowances for them."

He grew confused beneath her candor.

"My ill temper," he blurted out, "was of course, inexcusable. Still"—

"Oh, nonsense! I don't mind the ill temper in the least. I've heaps of my own to match it. It's the freakishness of the thing, the—the weakness of such a twisted, untrue mood that bothers me. How would you feel," she added quickly, "if you got some remote hint that your mahogany cabinet was a veneered imitation or if the smallest doubt came to you about the genuineness of that Inness landscape there? You'd have forty fits on the instant. Now, that's how I feel about you and the children—my small collection. If I should discover one day that you were sham products of a bad period instead of being originals of the best—oh, deary me!"

"But, Anna, you want perfection. Now, a man"—

"Perfection? Not a bit of it! To live in the company of three angels would be a nightmare. It would demoralize me to feel myself so object an outsider. As to temper, you may even on occasion storm because you've mislaid your gloves or your commutation tickets or throw the soup at Bridget's head if it's not hot and well seasoned. In those cases, you see, I should understand your motives and your modes of action would not be baffling. It's the—the illusive, twisted moods, as I say, that confuse me, make me think of bad periods and things."

Here the bell rang, and Bridget ushered in Miss Mary Graham.

"You've just come in the nick o' time," said Anna, greeting her guest warmly with a score of engaging prettinesses. "Robert and I were in the thick of a sanguinary encounter."

"Well," returned Miss Graham, smiling, "you do your fighting artistically. I see no signs of vulgar strife."

"We thought," explained Anna, "we'd save our scalps for future use, since Robert expects a guest this afternoon. Now tell me about yourself, dear," added she, as her husband laughingly strolled out upon the porch. "It was most awfully nice to hear you had secured such a fine secretarial position—somewhere up the Hudson, isn't it? Must be nice and cool for this hot weather."

"It's just a bit below Ossining. Those horrid prison walls are the only

ROOSTER COAL BRIQUETS

THE NEW ANTHRACITE COAL

ROOSTER BRIQUETS are made from the choicest small Scranton Anthracite coal mined in Pennsylvania, called TWENTIETH CENTURY CHESTNUT size

Just consider for a moment what we offer here in this 20th CENTURY CHESTNUT.

First, 2000 pounds of clean, pure, hard coal without a rock or a piece of slate.

Second, fuel that cannot form into a clinker, by any known method of firing, consequently the linings and grates last indefinitely.

Third, they are made in nut size, being equally convenient for furnace heaters, open grates, as well as stoves; therefore, only one storage bin is necessary.

Fourth, and very IMPORTANT, the quality of this fuel is the SAME EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR, not a good ton today, and nothing like it the next time, in other words, when you once learn how to regulate your drafts you have nothing more to learn about burning BRIQUETS.

Fifth, no more sifting ashes these Briquets burn out clean. They require less wood to kindle.

Be sure to ask for "ROOSTERS" and get the Briquet made from pure Scranton Coal, from the largest Briquet plant in the country. They are better than coal, will last as long and cost less.

PICTURES ENJOYED

Large Number Attended Exhibition at Cranch School

THE LIST

The pictures which had been loaned for a week to the Cranch school by the Boston Art Museum, and which were returned yesterday proved to be a great attraction and a number of local people availed themselves of the opportunity to see these great masterpieces. It was regretted that the school was not opened on the holiday, for many had planned to go and see the pictures on that day.

It is expected that other pictures will be secured from time to time. Following is the list recently placed on exhibition:

"The Shepherdess" by Millet.
"Don Carlos" and his Dwarf by Velasquez.
"Dante and Virgil" by Corot.
"Descent of the Gypsies" by Diaz de la Pena.
"Marriage of St. Catherine" by Rubens.
"Drawing of the Virgin" by St. Luke by Vander Weyden or David.
Portrait by El Greco.
Portrait of Artists' Son by Goya the Spanish painter.
"Old Lady" by Solomon Koninck.
"Lion Hunt" by Delacroix.
"Achilles Horses" by Regnault.
Washington at Dorchester Heights by Gilbert Stuart.
Sir Walter Scott by Charles Leslie.
Major-Gen. Henry Knox by Stuart.
Mrs. Peale by Sir Joshua Reynolds.
Arnaud d' Andrilly by Champaign.
John Quincy Adams by Copley. Original painted when Adams was 27 years of age and Minister at the Hague. Original cut to Art Museum by Charles Francis Adams.
Mrs. Fletcher Webster, wife of son of Daniel Webster.

Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Talbot of Brooks street and Hollis avenue gave a dinner party Tuesday evening in honor of Dr. Harold F. Curtis of Upland road who leaves shortly for Alexandria, Egypt. The house was beautifully decorated with pink roses and ferns. Covers were laid for 18. Among the out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Edward K. Thayer, Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Dennee all of Brookline, Mr. Harold Robinson of Paraal, Mexico, Miss Dorothy Dunn of Columbus, Ohio, Mr. Harry Shields of Boston, Miss Foretier, Mrs. Foretier, Miss Elsie Foretier and Mr. William Butterworth all of New York.

SUNDAY 12 TO 1—SHARP
Bethany Church, City Square

If YOU are a young man, and not associated with any other Quincy church, YOU are most cordially invited to come to our meeting.

A warm welcome—Hearty singing—A helpful hour together.

OFFICERS ELECTED

At Annual Meeting of Ladies of Bethany Circle

FAITHFUL PRESIDENT RETIRES

Wednesday afternoon, the ladies of Bethany Circle and friends were entertained by Mrs. Theophilus King at her home on Adams street. It was the annual meeting of the society and the following officers were elected for the coming year: Mrs. H. Everett Crane, president; Mrs. George MacFarland, vice president; Mrs. Charles Sampson, secretary and Mrs. C. W. Guy, treasurer. The retiring president. Mrs. John F. Welch has served faithfully for ten years and much has been accomplished under her able direction.

Mrs. King has entertained the circle annually for many years and the ladies appreciate the gracious cordiality and hospitality which has been extended to them so continuously.

SUNDAY SCHOOL OFFICIAL RESIGNS

After a service of eight years as an officer, two as secretary and six as superintendent of Christ Church Sunday school, W. L. Thomas has resigned from the superintendency, much to the regret of the parish. His resignation is a distinct loss to the school but the parish as a whole will not suffer as he will devote himself more fully to other duties in the church. The new superintendent is Arthur Newton who brings excellent qualities to the position, and is ably supported by Henry Boutilier, secretary and Robert King, treasurer.

HOSPITAL WEEK.

The annual Hospital Week in aid of the City Hospital of Quincy is announced for Oct. 22-28. The collections will be in charge of Emery L. Crane and official collectors will call at every residence and it is hoped every one will feel moved to give generously as the object is a most worthy one. The sum of $5,000 is urgently needed to carry on the work.

MEETING OF COUNCIL.

A regular meeting of the City Council will be held Monday evening. As no committees have met since the last meeting it should not be of long duration. At 8 o'clock a public hearing will be held on the matter of changing the grade of the approach of Washington street to the Fore River bridge. This change is at the request of the trustees of the bridge. There are also several orders in the calendar which will come up for their second reading. These orders are the ones providing more funds for several of the departments.

DELEGATE TO CONVENTION.

Dock and Water Front Commissioner Frank F. Crane leaves today for Richmond, Va., to attend the convention of the Atlantic Deeper Water Ways Convention to be held in that city Oct. 16 to 21. Mr. Crane goes to the convention by appointment of Gov. Foss to represent the state as well as by appointment of Mayor Shea to represent the city. He will make the opening address at the convention.

Q.—The Jews caused Jesus to be crucified, and as a people have not since accepted him as Christ. Does this mean that all Jews are eternally lost?

Answer.—No, the Lord has yet many favors in reservation for the Jews. The Apostle Peter declared that through ignorance the Jews caused Jesus to be put to death. The Jews were cast off from God's favor because oftheir rejection of Jesus as the Christ. Jesus at the time declared unto them, "Ye shall not see Me henceforth till ye shall say, blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord." (Matthew xxiii, 39.) The clear inference here is that at some future time the Jews would recognize Jesus as the Messiah. The Apostle Paul (Romans xi, 25) wrote that the Jews were blinded to the truth concerning Jesus, and that "blindness happened unto them until the fulness of the Gentiles be come in," declaring that when the Gentile times were finished then all Israel shall be saved from such blindness, at which time the great Deliverer, The Christ, shall turn away ungodliness from that people. All the Prophets testify concerning the restoration of Israel. We can therefore confidently expect that the Jews will some time in the future be restored to their own land come into complete possession and control of Palestine, and accept Jesus as the great Messiah, and receive the blessing that the Lord has in store for them.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

BRIEFS

Several visitors from a distance were guests this week at the opening meeting of the season of the Quincy Women's club, the club register showing names from California and Seattle, Washington, two distant states.

The autumn meeting of the Unitarian Sunday School society is to be held Wednesday afternoon and evening in Unity church, Worcester.

The Ladies Aid of the Atlantic M. E. church is to hold a two days' fair next week on Wednesday and Thursday afternoon and evening.

The Ladies' Aid of the Hall Place M. E. church held a very successful rummage sale, Wednesday, in the Campbell block on Copeland street.

Lysander S. Richards of Marshfield Hills has secured Lorimer hall, Tremont Temple, Boston, for Wednesday the 18th for a meeting of the survivors of the old Garrisonion Abolitionists of a half century ago. The meeting will begin at one o'clock and the public is invited to attend.

Four members of the Hall Place M. E. church attended the Boston District Outing and Conference held at Worcester, Thursday, and had a very enjoyable time.

Rev. Robert Collyer Douthit of Castine, Maine is to preach at First church Sunday morning taking as the subject of his text "Character and Blessedness."

There will be an all day meeting of the Fragment society in the chapel of First church on Wednesday beginning at ten o'clock. Mrs. Edward B. Marsh is the new president to serve for the next two years. Arrangements are being made for a fair to be held in February and several all day sewing bees have been planned.

Mrs. George A. Vibert and Miss Louise Allison Ross are to give a musicale at Mrs. Vibert's home 20 Phillips street, Tuesday evening, for the benefit of her table at the coming fair of the Woman's Guild of St. Chrysostom's church. An enjoyable evening is promised including refreshments.

Rev. T. C. Martin, pastor of the Hall Place M. E. church exchanges pulpits Sunday with Rev. Mr. Cheney, pastor of Appleton Street church, Neponset.

The Walther Men's class will meet Sunday at 12.05 in the Wollaston Baptist church. Great chorus of men and live up-to-date discussion of important subjects. All men not in other similar classes invited and urged to be present.

The Boston Sunday School union of which Charles H. Johnson of this city is president, meets Monday evening, at the Second church, Copley Square, Boston, for its first meeting of the season. Quincy delegates leave on the 5.06 train.

Rev. Fannie E. Austin, who early in the summer was elected pastor of the Universalist church, to take effect in the fall, will commence her duties Sunday. Miss Austin comes as a resident pastor and a good attendance should greet her on Sunday and make an encouraging beginning for both pastor and people.

BRIEFS

A meeting of the Charitable Tens Circle of the King's Daughters will be held Monday, Oct. 16, at three o'clock, at the home of Mrs. J. H. Emery, Adams street.

The second meeting of the Ladies Benevolent society was held in the parlor of the Memorial church Wednesday afternoon. The gathering was a large and enthusiastic one. After the necessary business had been transacted the president announced a Clip sale. This proved a very interesting feature and most satisfactory to the Christmas gift committee under whose auspices it was given.

The annual harvest supper given by the Ladies Benevolent society, will be held in the vestry of Memorial church next Wednesday evening. The usual splendid menu will be offered to the hungry public. The supper is under the direction of Mrs. Harry Read, chairman.

Wollaston Residents Up-in Arms Over Coal Pockets

PLAN ANOTHER MEETING

A meeting in protest of the proposed coal pockets to be erected by the Wollaston Coal Company adjoining the railroad near the Wollaston station, was held by the residents and property owners of that vicinity in Poland hall Thursday evening. No definite action was taken but the situation was discussed and plans were made for another meeting in the near future.

The citizens of the locality are up in arms over the project which they declare not only will make the surrounding neighborhood undesirable as a residential section but also will cause a large depreciation in property values.

A recent hearing of the Board of Health upon the erection of a stable on the property by the coal company was attended en masse by the residents. As a result of their protests the company was given leave to withdraw. A building permit is now pending for a garage on the property.

The site is a scene of activity, however, the place having been cleared and levelled and some excavations made. At one end a portion of high board fence has been erected.

BRIEFS

A business meeting of the Sevsters was held Tuesday evening at which plans were made for good times during the forthcoming winter.

All persons fortunate enough to own a craft of any sort, took advantage of the splendid opportunity offered them Columbus day and enjoyed the weather to the utmost. Quincy bay was dotted with boats, a great many of which were filled with fishermen out for a haul of smelts.

Seventy-eight were present Sunday in the men's and women's classes at the Wollaston M. E. church. Every adult who does not go to any other Sunday school will be welcomed in the Wiggin or Royal Daughters class.

The Useful Table committee of the Memorial church held a cake sale Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Lucretia Fuller, Botolph street. Coffee was served and cakes of all varieties were on sale.

Every one is invited to attend the Sunday evening service at the Wollaston M. E. church. The pastor will speak on "The Best Evidence of Christianity." Miss Brown of Wollaston will sing. There will be an inspiring praise service.

The many friends and parishioners of the Memorial church at Atlantic will be pleased to learn that the church has contracted with James Cole & Co., for a new pipe organ for the church. The organ which will cost $1,800 is expected to be in position for use at the Christmas services.

Quincy Court, No. 76, is to receive a visit from Daniel S. Golden, D. H. C. R., also other members of the high standing committee at their next meeting on Wednesday evening, Oct 18th, in G. A. R. hall. It is requested that all members be present on this occasion for roll call, also for the good time to follow.

Mrs. John L. Hamilton of 93 Elm avenue is opening her home Monday afternoon for an English tea for the benefit of the linen table at the coming fair at St. Chrysostom's Woman's Guild, October 26th. If Monday is not pleasant the affair will take place Thursday afternoon.

The Joseph Bennetts of Portland, Maine, are occupying the Herbert B. Bailey estate on Grand View avenue of which they have taken a three years' lease.

The Epworth League of the Wollaston M. E. church has secured Dr. Dillon Bronson to give his illustrated lecture on "The Passion Play," on Oct 25. Dr. Bronson is one of the most interesting lecturers of this country.

The Brotherhood of the First Presbyterian church holds its monthly meeting in the lecture room on Tuesday at 7.30. Dr. Tufts of Boston, an able speaker, is to give an address. An invitation is extended to all men to attend the meeting. Any man will find a warm welcome at all the Brotherhood meetings. Come do each other good.

THE FIGHTING HOPE

disturbing feature about the place, and the people are all that one could wish. Mr. Temple—he's just been made president of the Gotham Trust company, and I'm his first home secretary, I believe—although wholly businesslike and reserved, is polite and considerate. And his mother—oh, Anna, she's just the dearest, sweetest patrician old lady you ever saw! Then there's the housekeeper; she's a queer old Puritan article, plain as a Wesleyan chapel, severe as an ancestor in oil, but so kind and good. Yes, I'm very fortunate in my new position. Oh, look at your distinguished guest!" cried Miss Graham. "Look at his smart little trap; look at the antics of his brown cobs. Who is he? Robert is greeting him as if he were the grand mogul."

"A Mr. Cornelius Brady, I believe," said Anna indifferently—"one of Robert's innumerable 'finds.' Do you know, dear," added she impulsively, leaning forward, "I wish Robert were not so susceptible. He costs me more sighs and watchfulness than both my other children put together."

Miss Graham observed the "other" and secretly condoned it.

Mr. Cornelius Brady came smoothly into the pretty pale green and dun drawing room. Suave, adroit, with the contained manner of the man of the world, he impressed one as having the gift of moral construction, reconstruction or destruction, as the case might be.

While the small talk went its rounds, while the June air stirred the curtains and stole in softly laden with scent from the rosebushes, his eyes rested on his young hostess' delicate face with an admiration as genuine as it was indiscreet. Her sweet, joyous womanliness was enough to enchant even a man like him, jaded with many enchantments.

But Granger was scarcely alive to the indiscretions. Anything in the shape of victory attracted him. If the victor happened to be your own wife, so much the better.

"Good heavens," he exclaimed suddenly, "there are those children squalling like fiends! They're experts already in every ill timed interference. Robert will be fit for nothing in life but a minister. As for the other"—

But the woman to whom he had addressed these remarks had already vanished and was making for the back garden.

The shrill, importunate little voices turned to a whimper as she appeared.

"My two dear red turkey cocks, what's it all about?" cried she cheerfully, with a pretty gathering in sort of gesture.

"B-bobbie he h-hurted me wid a s-sto-one, he did," sobbed Harold, burying his baby face in her skirts.

"Oh, muddie," explained Robert junior, "I was just throwin' stones at the lazy roof, you know, an'—an' one of 'em hit Harold; that's all. Shut up, Harold, will you? When you cry you cry mud, an' it's most disgustin'. People ought to cry clean water, oughtn't they, muddie?" he protested, looking disdainfully at the soiled cherub peering helplessly upward from the folds of his mother's skirts.

"Best plan would be not to cry at all. Even clean crying makes ugly, red little noses. Nurse, wash this sorry wee face, please. If Harold's good he shall have strawberries for tea.

"And, Robert," she added, with a whimsical smile, "don't bother about throwing stones at the lazy roof. There are some things in life we must learn to take as we find them. The lazy roof is one. If you really must give vent to your feelings you can pat the good supporting walls, my little s n."

"HER CHILDREN SUIT HER TO PERFECTION, EH, BRADY?"

Anty Drudge Tells How.

Mrs. Kawler—"Well, I must be going. Now mind, you come and see me next week. Any day 'cept Monday. That's my wash-day,—and the house will be full of steamy soap-suds, and me too tired to make you a cup of tea."

Anty Drudge—"That's just the day I'll come. And I'll be there bright and early with a cake of Fels-Naptha soap. The wash will be on the line before noon—and the ironing done before night."

If you found it easier to do your washing on Tuesday than on Monday, you would change at once. Sensible women would! Yet there are some women who still wash clothes in the old-fashioned, hard-rubbing way, just because their mothers taught them so.

Are you wearing out yourself and your clothes boiling and rubbing? Why not try Fels-Naptha soap? It's the new, modern way of washing. Use it in cold or lukewarm water—no boiling or hard-rubbing—and your clothes will be cleaner, whiter, and wear longer.

Follow directions on the red and green wrapper.

A BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET.

Hair Cutting a la Physiognomy is a Late Hubbite Fad—Cambridge Again Painted Red, and Not by Harvard Students—White Marble Walls of Unique Dental Charity Rise in Fenway District—Radcliffe Students Now Required to Keep Up Their Vitality—Events Interesting to Bay State Suffragists.

The Hub's sister city across the Charles has nearly blown up from exuberance of joy during the industrial carnival which waged merrily for the week of October 9. The dignity of the university city gave way completely before the gay banners and glowing lights on the main thoroughfares, and staid professors and "oldest families" found themselves crowding around the sights of the "midway" along Massachusetts avenue, and watching the high diving and other performances in the public squares. Band concerts, a water carnival, theatrical performances and all the traditional features and many new ones gave the city an aspect of gayety hitherto unknown, unless when some hilarious bunch of students ran amuck in painting the town red.

The white marble walls of the latest monumental addition to the Fenway group of notable structures are peeping above the ground this week and work is progressing rapidly on the Forsyth Dental Infirmary. The building will be constructed of mountain white marble, the first of its kind to be used in a New England edifice. When this institution is completed Boston will have at its command facilities for the care of the mouths and teeth of the poor children of the community such as are unequalled in any other city. Efforts have been made to preclude features of a disagreeable or intimidating nature from the plans for the arrangement and furnishings of the departments, and the children's reception room will be the special solicitude of Mr. Thomas A. Forsyth, whose love for children has prompted him to make this apartment a comforting and inspiring haven to the child with or without a toothache.

Radcliffe's experiment of requiring the pupils to give daily health reports, while it has inevitably been misunderstood by some people, is in reality a very excellent plan and might well be adopted in other institutions where young women of studious, and oftentimes nervous, tendencies spend a large part of the year. The scheme aims at keeping the vitality of the student at normal, by guarding the general health and giving specific recommendations for more sleep, more exercise, more food, or whatever the individual case seems to call for. The whole fight is against the American fault of getting "run down" and becoming a prey to the lurking microbes of colds, coughs, pneumonia, typhoid and the hundred and one other "bugs" which make their abode in our systems until such time as they see a chance to get the upper hand. It is intended that Radcliffe girls shall be careful of themselves—if they won't do it personally, why it must be by proxy.

An innovation, inspired perhaps by the success of the summer trips to the Museum of Fine Arts, has been introduced in a suburban school this fall. A loan collection of pictures, photographs of famous works of art, was displayed in the assembly hall of the school. Parents of the pupils and teachers from other schools were invited to attend, and the school classes given ample opportunity to study these pictures while listening to a little talk by an art critic. The nominal fee charged to outsiders went toward the purchase of artistic pictures for the school, these pictures to be selected after careful study by the pupils themselves. The plan is an admirable follow-up of the summer's excursions of groups of children to the Museum of Fine Arts in the Fenway, where they were told interesting and instructive stories about notable works of art.

"Physiognomical Hair Cutting 15 cents" is a sign which greets the eye as one passes through a busy downtown street near the South Station—a sign unmistakable of Bostonese culture with a capital C. It reminds one of "Antonio and Guiseppe, Artists" who shine shoes in another city. The "parlors" of the physiognomical hair cutters appear to be well patronized attesting the appreciation of business men in the modern Athens of proper professional pride. One wonedrs whether incoming travelling men from other cities have the courage to brace such a formidable emporium of erudition, even at the reasonable charge of 15 cents.

Interest nowadays is waxing fast and furious between the details of the suffrage situation in California and the Massachusetts gubernatorial campaign. Although the suffragists of the Pacific state were defeated by a majority of 5,000 votes, they are anything but discouraged. All the state voted for suffrage by a majority of 8,000, except San Francisco which voted them down by 13,000. However the initiative and referendum bill was passed, and the suffragists are bravely taking up the work again and will take advantage of this fact in their favor. Having the greater part of the state on their side they can concentrate their efforts in San Francisco. In the meantime Massachusetts is having something of a session of its own. The energetic Miss Margaret Foley and her lieutenants are busily gathering in converts and endeavoring to win their way with the aspirants for gubernatorial honor. Despite the newspaper reports, on the authority of Mrs. Susan Walker Fitzgerald, secretary, the Massachusetts Woman Suffrage Association is not in any way committed to either party, but is working distinctly for "Votes for Women." Occasional tilts between the suffragists and the candidates for gubernatorial office have taken place during their respective automobile campaigns of state, but as long as Mr. Frothingham's minions give Miss Foley a chance to have her say there is no trouble.

A Speedy Cure for Constipation, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Liver Complaints, Tired Feeling, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bad Complexion, Nervousness and all diseases of the Stomach, Liver and Bowels.

"Bloodine Liver Pills"

act gently, yet thoroughly upon the bowels, liver, stomach and digestive organs. The pills, in old and chronic cases of constipation and indigestion, act at once, without griping, nor do they leave any unpleasant after-effects, nor form a constant habit of purging, produced by other cathartic remedies.

"Bloodine Liver Pills"

restore the deranged and torpid liver to its normal condition and healthful action. Remove and prevent constipation by securing a natural and regular operation of the bowels, and relieve those unpleasant symptoms which attend a diseased or morbid condition of the liver, stomach and bowels. To assist in attaining this end, the following suggestions are offered.

REMARKS. Everyone who uses pills for their action on the liver, should know that large doses rarely prove as satisfactory as small ones. Large doses simply purge and pass out of the system, usually leaving the bowels constipated, and seldom removing the cause of the trouble, or improve the general health. On the other hand, small doses develop the alterative effect of the medicine, do not irritate or constipate the bowels, but gently stimulate the liver and prevent the accumulation of bile by directing its flow into the proper channels. Therefore it is advisable to commence by taking not over one or two pills at bedtime and increase dose as necessary.

PORTLAND, ME.

GENTS:—I find your "Bloodine Liver Pills" the most effective pill I ever used. They cause no griping or constipative after effect as most liver pills do.

Yours truly,
MRS. AMADA RICHARDSON.

WAS GREAT SURPRISE

To Miss Corey Who Was Honored By Associates In Club

WITH LINEN SHOWER

Following the regular meeting of the Nearer and Farther Lights society a young ladies missionary organization of the Wollaston Baptist church, held at the home of Miss Eleanor Dunn on Newport avenue, a linen shower was given Miss Marion Corey who was among those present. The affair came as a complete surprise, the more so as she was the leader for the evening. Sh was the recipient of a large number of attractive gifts.

A social hour followed in which dainty refreshments were served. The color scheme of the decorations was in pink and white.

Among those present were: Mrs. Joseph Walther, Mrs. Charles Kempton, Mrs. Talbot, Mrs. Charles Roach, Mrs. Louis S. Cleaves, Mrs. Sassell, Miss Marion Corey, Miss Winifred Church, Miss May Critchley, Miss Etta Holmes, Miss Eleanor Dunn, Miss Ruth Hardy, Miss Gladys Flieger, Miss Annie Flieger, Miss May Gold, Miss Cora Titus, Miss Editha Tripp, Miss Alice Sawyer, Miss Lottie Trenholm, Miss Grace Shermerhorn, Miss Annie McCarthy, Miss Gertrude Kingsley, Miss Dorothy Miller, Miss McCall, Miss Charlotte Scarborough and Miss Langphier.

FEDERATION'S FLORAL EMBLEM

Mountain Laurel Not Yet Selected but Suggested

THE RESOLUTION

In the Ledger's report of the 19th annual meeting, at New Bedford, of the Federation of Women's Clubs, published recently, it was erroneously stated that "mountain laurel was selected as the national flower of the Federation." While that flower may be later selected, the correct status of the affair may be had from the following resolution offered at the above meeting.

Whereas: request has been made that the General Federation of Women's clubs work for the adoption of mountain laurel as the national floral emblem.

Be it resolved: that we recommend that each state consider the question of a national floral emblem and take such action as it deems fit and report to the General Federation corresponding secretary before the next biennial.

MAKES SECOND ATTEMPT TO COMMIT SUICIDE

Mrs. Hilda Davison Tries to Strangle Herself at City Hospital

Will Recover From Dose of Poison

Mrs. Hilda Davison who in compliance with a suicide pact with her husband, attempted to take her own life last Tuesday evening by swallowing corrosive sublimate tablets at her home on Nelson street, made another attempt late Friday afternoon to carry out the pact at the City Hospital. During a brief period while the attention of the nurse was directed in another quarter, Mrs. Davison tried to strangle herself with a sheet, which she tore up into small strips. She was discovered however by the attendant who had quite a struggle with the woman to prevent her carrying out her purpose. Following a double watch was placed at her bed side. This will be continued until she recovers from the poison, taken Tuesday night. She will then be examined as to her sanity and will probably be sent to Taunton.,

The woman's husband who was committed to Taunton some weeks ago committed suicide Oct. 1, by hanging himself. On hearing the news, the woman sold her furniture and household effects. Keeping $57 for her funeral expenses, she sent what remained to the parents of her husband, giving each an equal part. She will recover from the effects of the poison taken, but while at the hospital has frequently expressed a desire to die.

RYDEN-SKINNER HOME WEDDING

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Edward Norton, pastor emeritus of Bethany Congregational church. The bride was attended by Miss Louise Skinner a sister of the groom, and the groom was attended by the bride's brother Arthur Ryden. A wedding supper followed and then the happy couple left on a wedding tour to Philadelphia and Wilmington Del. They will make their home at 48 Euclid avenue, this city.

GILL HEARING

feet from the house. He thought that the boy had fallen, until he started to pick him up, then he saw a hole in his head and blood on the ground. He carried the boy to the lawn. He heard no horn sounded.

On Wednesday following the accident, Gill, Carr and a Mr. Warren came to see him. The said they were very sorry.

Witness replied that he did not think it was intentional, but he thought they were guilty of criminal carelessness and if so, in the eyes of the law they should be punished.

Irma Smith sat on the piazza of her home and saw the Whitcomb boy running after the barge which was on the side of the street. Did not hear any automobile horn sound. Saw the boy dodge back and forth. Boy turned to right and auto struck him. The auto swayed to left just before striking him.

Rev. Thomas F. Brennan was taken to the scene of the accident by Gill. On the way he noticed the car was covered with mud. Gill said he was going 20 or 25 miles an hour. Witness thought it rather excessive speed going through the main street. Boy was pronounced dead by the doctor after he arrived.

Marshal Mitchell lived opposite house of Whitcomb boy. Saw Arthur running after the barge. Saw the automobile which he thought was going 15 miles an hour. Heard him blowing his horn. Arthur turned, then ran to the left and then to the right. Looked as though right side struck him. After it passed over him he rolled over twice. Machine dragged him a foot or so.

On cross examination the boy testified that as Arthur passed he cried out, "Come on Marshal have a ride."

Medical Examiner Jones testified to the injuries which the boy had received.

Mary McLaughlin, saw Arthur running after the barge. Witness crossed the street between Arthur and the automobile. Did not hear any horn sounded. Heard Arthur say "Hurry up Mitchell and have a ride." The automobile started to go to the left of the barge which shut off my view of Arthur. Seemed as though the auto slowed down and then started up again and then stopped. When first saw auto was near Noonan's lane.

Cornelius Duggan driver of the barge said was travelling 7 or 8 miles an hour. Did not hear sound of automobile horn. Was driving on the right side of the street and three feet from the track.

Chief Frank E. Burrell, Chief of Police of Quincy, told of conversations between Gill, at police station and Theophilus King. Gill said was on his way home going to Providence. Was on right side. One boy was chasing barge and others were on the street. Immediately after boy turned and before he could stop the machine he was on top of him. Was going 19 miles an hour. Said had been to aviation field. Said Carr was owner of car and he was driving. Gill stated he did not have his license with him. Gill gave name as Royal Warfield, afterward gave name as Royal Warfield Gill.

State officer John C. Scott investigated cause of accident. Made measurements of street and other distances.

Chief Crocker of Holbrook testified to conversation with defendants after their arrest and while on thei rway to Quincy he said Gill said that he tried to pass a baker wagon and saw the boy directly in front of him. He tried not to hit the boy but it was impossible to avoid it.

At this point the hearing was adjourned until 2 o'clock.

MRS. MARY CHANDLER WEST.

The Music Review has the following to say about Mrs. Mary Chandler West of Wollaston who is giving a recital in Quincy on Friday evening of next week: "Mrs. Mary Chandler West, pianist is a descendant of the old Boston Chandler family, of Revolutionary fame. She is also a granddaughter of the late William Parkman, a name well-known to every Mason and Odd Fellow in Massachusetts. Miss Chandler's talents were developed at the New England Conservatory of Music under the direct supervision of Mr. Carl Faelton, and she graduated from this institution, winner by the unanimous vote of the jury of the Turner Gold Medal for solo pianoforte playing. After graduation Miss Chandler studied with Mr. E. A. MacDowell and later with Mr. George M. Nowell of the Leschetizki School. Besides her solo work Miss Chandler has achieved great prominence as an accompanist, for which she is peculiarly fitted by her remarkable powers of sight reading and transposition. She has studied under Philipp in Paris.

SPORTING "DOPE"

By B. A.

Don't Knock, Just Boost.—B. A.

It has often been asserted that this city has an abundance of athletic material that could readily be developed, were the proper methods employed. Various branches have been tested to great advantage. The success of the baseball season is too well known to need any further mention.

The football movements that are now under way are creating a fine spirit of enthusiasm and the calibre of the teams are of the winning variety. Last year the basket ball season was a most flourishing one and gave evidence of proving a great drawing card on future occasions.

Roller skating. bowling. tennis and golf have also been indulged in. but there is one department which we have sadly overlooked, and that regards the track. There are any number of sprinters and long distance runners, to be found in Quincy, who , if the proper opportunities were afforded, could give to this city the representation in track athletics, to which she is justly entitled. Organizations have sprung up in our midst, and their endeavors and enterprises have been along progressive lines, yet the "summum bonum" of their various activities has been lost in their failure to have local runners wear the colors of a local organization.

Only last Thursday, Joseph F. Phelan, better known by all as "Fay," captured first honors in the 100 yard dash at Waltham. George Sullivan another local boy competed in the 440 yard run. Both these men are at present running for organizations outside of this city. Sullivan is running for the B. A. A. and is a member of the relay team that made a record in the Canadian championship games, held in Montreal recently.

Phelan and Everett Prout. another local boy, are henceforth to be affiliated with the Laurence Light Guards. The latter is a fast dash man and is a great relay runner. Phelan is a ten second man, and when he can beat a man like George Sullivan in the 440 yard dash, with only a handicap of 5 yards, in addition to winning the century dash it shows that he possesses no little ability as a runner.

An inference to be drawn is that these men should represent a local organization, and thus help advance athletic interests from a local standpoint. Why would not this be a good matter for the members of the Quincy A. A. to consider? At least they could have a relay team, and then we would not have a chance to descry the lethargic spirit that has too long been rampant in this regard.

Quincy High and Medford High today at Medford in a football game that gives every promise of being a warm one.

The next football game for the Quincy A. A. eleven will be played at Merrymount park next Saturday.

It would be well for those who intend to witness the opening boxing exhibition of the Quincy A. A. to be held in St. Mary's hall next Monday evening, to bear in mind that no admission to the show can be gained by any one who has not paid his dues to the organizations. Many have been laboring under the impression, that, because they have filled out an application blank for membership in the organization, they are therefore entitled to show their card previous to the show and thus be admitted on paying the sum of one dollar. The secretary of the organization has informed me that such is a false impression, for no one will be admitted who has not paid his dues. The secretary is at the rooms of the organization each evening, at 17 Temple street, and it is earnestly hoped that those who intend to be present at this coming occasion will give the matter earnest and early attention.

Fore River Eagles travel to Worcester today where they will be represented by the following team:

Sharples goal, Hendry and Melville backs, McGregor, Campbell, Boyd half backs, J. McDonald, Moran, Harrison, Rennie, Carruthers, forward.

MAY RESIGN AS SECRETARY OF COMMITTEE

It is generally understood in Republican circles that Councilman William J. Leslie, candidate for the House of Representatives from the sixth Norfolk district, will tender his resignation as secretary of the Republican City Committee, at a meeting of that body. to be held this evening at the Republican headquarters on Cottage avenue. It is said that sickness and the various duties incumbent upon him in conducting his campaign are the causes which have impelled him to offer his resignation. It is expected that Hon. John O. Hall will be a candidate for the position.

BASKET BALL.

BRIEFS

The registrars of voters met at Ward Three Friday evening and added 60 names to the voting lists.

The first of a series of addresses on "Confirmation" will be delivered Sunday evening by the Rev. Richard . Armstrong, rector of Christ church.

The Men's club of Christ church is right up-to-date in its debates and on Monday night has for its subject "Resolved that the practice of allowing women to work with men in iron foundries is not conducive to the best physical and moral standards."

At a meeting held last night at the Quincy Point church a Men's class for Sunday school was organized. A good number of men met and pledged their support. By personal solicitation they expect to increase the number. The first meeting of the class will be on Sunday.

Virgil O. Stickler, C. S., member of the board of lectureship of the Mother church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist in Boston, is to lecture on "Christian Science" on Sunday afternoon at 3.30 at Alpha hall. A cordial invitation is extended the public to attend.

The Wollaston Auxiliary of the Woman's Board of Missions resumed its monthly meetings Oct. 3. The text book this season is "The Light of the World," a comparison of Christianity with non-Christian religions. The officers are: President, Mrs. A. A. Lincoln; vice president, Mrs. N. G. Nickerson; secretary, Mrs. G. H. Murray; treasurer, Mrs. W. F. Jones; directors, Mrs. J. F. Marshall and Mrs. E. A. Chase.

Nathaniel S. Hunting, Walter L. Sargent, Edward H. Bushnell, F. E. Jones, D. B. Reardon, C. H. Ryder, Francis Ramon Burke, Charles S. Adams, F. H. Bartlett, C. J. Lynch, Samuel W. Ellsworth are the local doctors, who signed the petition, bearing the names of 1,000 practitioners throughout the state, requesting Governor Foss to retain Dr. Henry P. Walcott of Cambridge as chairman of the Metropolitan water and sewerage commission.

VIRGIL O. STRICKLER LECTURES AT ALPHA HALL

Interesting Discourse on Christian Science by a Church Leader

Remarks Instructive to Large Audience

A large number attended the lecture on Christian Science given in Alpha hall on Sunday afternoon by Virgil O. Strickler, C. S., member of the Christian Science Board of Lectureship. Mr. Strickler is an authority on church work and his remarks were instructive and received with great favor by those present.

The discourse in full was as follows:

However much people may differ in their attitude towards Christian Science every one will admit that it has done many good things. Entirely apart from the question of physical healing, it is generally conceded that it produces a happy and contented mentality, that it destroys fear, and makes people loving and kind.

When we add to this the fact that it has healed many sick people who had previously been unable to find relief under other systems, that it has cured many of the drug habit, and of the liquor habit, has restored harmony in many homes that were discordant, and has given hope and courage to people who were discouraged, it is easy to understand why Christian Science has spread from one end of the earth to the other with such wonderful rapidity.

Why should any one not wish to believe that God heals the sick? Is it not a thing to be desired? and is it not something for which humanity has been praying through the centuries? Now that it is here why should any one not wish to accept it? Let each one ask himself that question.

Christian Science shows that sickness and sin originate in mortal mind, and result from the operation of this so-called mind. God did not create them, nor do they result from the operation of spiritual law. In destroying them Jesus did not work contrary to God's laws. Christian Science insists that Jesus was consistent. He did not do the will of the Father at one time, and at another seek to overturn His laws. It follows, then, that if Jesus performed his works in accordance with, and by means of, God's laws, the same results must follow in every age whenever those laws are understood and applied. Moses and the prophets, and Jesus and his disciples and followers, healed the sick, raised the dead, and performed many wonderful works by

THE LEDGER GIVES SCORE

Paper and Local Fans Thank Boston Globe for Kindness and Enterprise

Through the enterprising opportunities afforded by the Boston Globe to all fans desirous of ascertaniing the progress of the first game of the world's series between New York and Philadelphia, the Ledger was enabled to bulletin the score of the game, inning by inning, last Saturday together with other interesting developments of the contest. It was just twenty minutes after four o'clock when the final result was announced to the many fans who had congregated in front of the office. Our abiding gratitude is recorded to the Globe for the courtesy requited, as is, also the heartfelt appreciation of the local fans who were eager to learn the result.

GILL HELD IN $1,000 BAIL FOR GRAND JURY

It was late Saturday afternoon before the hearing in the case of Royal W. Gill who was charged with manslaughter in causing the death of Arthur F. Whitcomb, at Holbrook was completed. When the court came in at 2 o'clock the defence was begun. The first witness being the defendant Gill.

He testified that he had been running automobiles since he was 9 years old and he was now 21. On the day of the accident he left the aviation field for Providence about 4.30 or 4.45. Going through Holbrook he saw a barge on the left side of the road about 90 or 100 feet ahead with boys running after it trying, as he thought, to get on the steps. At this time he was on the right side of the road. When almost to the barge the boy made a sharp turn to the right and ran diagonally across the street directly in front of his machine. He shut off power and turned sharply to the left hoping to clear him but he was so close that he could not. The car near the wheel struck the boy. After going over him he let it drift to the side of the street. He did not anticipate any danger until the machine was near the boy.

When approaching the barge and boy he had blown his horn. He thought his car was going about 15 miles an hour when he struck the lad. He had an operator's license from Baltimore and New Jersey. He denied giving the name of Royal Warfield to Sergt. Barry at the police station.

Nothing additional was brought out in the cross examination.

Edward W. Carr, the owner of the automobile, said that he first saw the boy when 40 yards away. He was running after a barge on the left side of the street. Mr. Gill then blew the horn. He did not anticipate any danger as the boy was on the other side of the street. When within two yards of him the boy made a turn and ran in front of the automobile. Mr. Gill turned sharply to the left trying to avoid him, but the distance was too short. He had an owners license, but did not have it with him that day, although he supposed that he had.

Frederick E. Tupper testified as to distances at the scene of the accident.

This closed the hearing and Counsel Sullivan asked that the defendant be discharged as no criminal liability had been shown. Assistant District Attorney argued that criminal liability had been shown and asked that he be held for the grand jury.

This the court did, but reduced the amount of the bail to $1,000.

On the complaint against Gill for operating an automobile without a license, the case was nol prossed at the suggestion of the District Attorney.

STEBBINS—MITCHELL.

A pretty home wedding took place on the morning of Oct. 9, when Miss Isabella Shirriffs Mitchell daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mitchell of Independence avenue, Quincy became the bride of George Henry Stebbins of Wollaston.

The ceremony was performed at 10 o'clock by Rev. William Bingham Ayers, pastor of the Park and Downs Congregational church. The couple were attended by Myron R. Stebbins, brother of the groom as best man and the bride's sister Miss Annie Mitchell as maid of honor. The bride was becomingly gowned in white with veil and carried a shower bouquet. The wedding was attended only by the immediate families of the pair.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Stebbins of Bromfield street, Wollaston. Both young people attended the Quincy High school.

After a wedding breakfast the happy couple left on an extended wedding trip with New York as the first objective point. On their return they will reside with the parents of the groom where they will be at home to their friends after November 1st.

LEAVE ON HONEYMOON.

William Nash, chauffeur for Chas. H. Penniman, who recently took unto himself a wife, left this morning with his bride in Penniman's Ford touring car for a wedding trip through New York state. Mr. and Mrs. Nash were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hodgkinson. They will be gone a week and are anticipating an exceptionally fine trip.

GOVERNMENT SEEDS.

Congressman James M. Curley invites applications for the Government distribution of flower and vegetable seeds for the spring season of 1912, Applications may be made by any resident of the Tenth Congressional District, comprising Wards 13, 14 and 15, South Boston; Wards 16 and 17, Roxbury; Wards 20 and 24, Dorchester, the town of Milton and the City of Quincy. Kindly note what seeds are desired, flower or vegetable, and address all communications to Hon. James M. Curley, 172 Hampden street, Roxbury, Mass.

POLICE RAID THREE PLACES

All But Two Offenders Were Able to Escape

LIQUOR SEIZED

Inspector Goodhue, accompanied by Officers Cahill, Johnson, Ford, Milford and Olson armed with John Doe warrants to search places where the police had reason to believe the liquor law was being violated, visited three places on Sunday. The first place visited was a house at the corner of Washington and Sumner streets where a game of cards was found in progress. When the officers were discovered, there was a rush to get out by doors and windows and all of the gang, with the exception of two, were fortunate enough in making their escape. These were placed under arrest and gave their names as Guiseppe Searpboni and Alfonzo LePage. Forty-eight bottles of beer and a quarter barrel were seized.

A house at 110 Sumner street was then visited and 50 bottles of beer and a half barrel were taken. From here they visited a place near the corner of Quincy avenue and Howard avenue, where they seized one case of beer and three jugs of wine.

These places were raided, as stated above on John Doe warrants and the parties supposed to run them will be brought into court, at which time their right names will be learned and the warrants changed to conform. The two men arrested for gaming on the Lord's day were arraigned in court this morning.

ENJOYABLE REUNION.

Miss Rena Berry Mannex of this city, who has been the guest of Miss Anna A. Leibach of Edgewater, Chicago, Ill., for several days, gave a dinner recently at the Blackstone hotel to the members of the Joppa club, which has an unusual membership and history.

A few years ago tourists from all over America who were riding to California on a special train met in one of the cars, known as the Joppa, and organized the Joppa club. The object of the club was to bring its members together in reunion as often as possible and to form traveling parties. Many of the members recently returned from one of these trips to Europe, and, fifteen of them having met in Chicago, the dinner was given. The next journey planned is a visit to California next winter, with the Holy Land in view for next summer.

CAMPUS IN COURT.

A lengthy hearing was held before Judge Avery this morning in the case of Charles Campus for indecent conduct at Quincy. There was a large number of witnesses, including ten young women. Only three of these were heard and they positively identified the defendant as the man whom they had seen improperly conducting himself on Baxter street. The men also identified the defendant as the man they had seen. No defense was offered. The witnesses were examined separately and their testimony was given in a low tone of voice to the court and counsel for thedefendant.

After the hearing there was a consultation between Chief Burrell, counsel and the court after which the case was again continued until Nov. 1.

DEBATE THIS EVENING.

The Men's club of Christ church will hold the first debate of the season this evening. The subject will be Resolved, "That the practice of allowing women to work with the men in iron foundries is not conducive to best moral and physical standard." Mr. Charles Chase the chairman of the debate committee has planned for a very interesting meeting and a large attendance is expected.

—If citizens would pay more attention to the Bible study departments of the newspapers and less to the divorce dispatches, the precepts of good conduct might be more generally adopted.—Concord Patriot.

LITTLE CROWLEY BOY IS DEAD

Youth Who Was Badly Scalded Unable to Withstand the Shock

Dennis F. Crowley the well known contractor, has the sympathy of a large circle of friends in the death of his three-year-old son Edmund, who died Sunday evening as the result of an accident two weeks ago, when the boy was terribly burned by scalding water. At the time of the accident the boy was playing about the kitchen with a broom. It was while thus at play that the broom handle caught in the bail of a kettle of hot water which was pulled over onto him. The boy was terribly scalded on one side, from his shoulder to below his knee. The little fellow has been a great sufferer, but was very brave through it all and being of unusually strong constitution, the local physician and specialists that were summoned, had great hopes that he would survive the shock. Late Sunday a turn for the worse was noticed and the specialist was again summoned, but medical aid was of no avail and the boy passed away late that afternoon.

GOES TO ASYLUM.

Hilda Davison, the woman who twice attempted to carry out her part of a suicide pact with her husband, was examined by physicians Saturday and that afternoon was committed to the Taunton asylum.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

There is nothing worse than a rainy washday except two rainy washdays.

Italy is anxious to have its Turkey done brown.

Sixty troop steamers have sailed from Italy, and if there is only a battalion of organ grinders, the Turks will surely run.

James J. Hill says there is too much political ghost dancing, but we hope he does not stop the ghost from walking.

A famous New York paper is getting tiresome with its praises of "big business." If Solomon were alive he would say there is nothing new in the Sun.

Gov. Wilson seems to have started in early on his presidential campaign, but one must reflect that there are at least 15,000,000 voters with whom to shake hands.

Now that the Laurier government has resigned, those skittish Canucks need no longer go out every morning to see if Uncle Sam has lugged off the boundary fence while they have been asleep.

Some people may think that the person guilty of the Austin dam disaster will be punished. But we have educated 563,482 lawyers in this country whose duty it is to see that no such horrendous thing happens.

ANOTHER WIRELESS WONDER.

Another wonderful chapter in the advance of wireless telegraphy was written a few days ago when messages were exchanged from San Francisco to Japan, 6,000 miles.

In the early days of wireless it was thought that the curvature of the earth would cut off long distance communication. But other obstacles are much more serious. For instance, the steamship Caronia on passing Sicily has found it impossible to pick up stations along the Italian coast, but had no difficulty in talking with England and Holland 1,000 miles away, with the Alps between.

The growing reach of wireless is seen in Mr. Marconi's recent work erecting a station for communication between Italy and East Africa and South America.

A queer phase of wireless which still mystifies the experimenters, is the difficulty of sending messages through sun light. The scientific sharps among our readers will be intrested to know that this is attributed to the "ionization of the gaseous molecules of the air effected by the ultra violet rays from the sun."

Strangely enough, this does not affect the longer electric waves, but in shorter distances bright sunlight acts like a fog bank.

In communicating between America and England, morning and evening are bad times, when part of the distance is through daylight and part through the dark. The change from sunlight to dark seems to deflect the rays. Communication on north and south lines is less difficult, as lighting conditions are then more uniform.

Truly it was a dramatic moment ten years ago next December, when Guglielmo Marconi sat in a little signal station on Newfoundland with a telephone glued to his ear, and a kite tugging at the wire 400 feet up in a gale. The fate of his 300 patents, and capital invested by trusting friends, seemed trembling in the balance, as this gentle faced youth, not then 28 years old, listened to the singing of the wire. When three distinct clicks signifying the letter S were distinctly heard by him and his assistants, it was like Columbus first seeing the American shore through the fog.

Within five years from that time one transatlantic liner was using 15,000 words of wireless on its trip from port to port. If Marconi's prediction that wireless will reduce the cost of messages across the ocean to two cents a word should prove true, it will be an enormous help to American foreign trade, and will add to the comfort of European travel.

THE MCNAMARA TRIAL.

In the socialistic literature of the day, there is given prominence an odious imported phrase, "Class consciousness." The revolutionary orator draws his red line of cleavage dividing former friends. The slogan of one to be "We want your money" and that of the other, "We shall keep it."

Unfortunately the trial of the McNamara brothers at Los Angeles has been preceded by a bitter waving of the class flag.

It is as hard for the most of us to divorce ourselves from prejudices growing out of our personal interests as it is for the bleacherite to accept the umpire's decisions against the home ball team.

The manufacturer, the farmer, the merchant, is an employer of labor. He alone realizes what a struggle it is to organize human inefficiency and sloth into a productive force. Finding a general lack of sympathy with the struggle which he has to make to keep his head above the sea of bankruptcy, he insensibly comes to look at the employe class as hostile.

On the other hand, the employe alone realizes what it is to struggle against high living costs under the wage system. He alone realizes the bitterness of limited means in this day of flaunting and swaggering luxury. Insensibly he comes to look at the employing class as an enemy.

In spite of all the efforts made to get an impartial jury in the McNamara case, every man of them may in his heart of hearts entertain this class feeling, so fatal to a fraternal democracy. The verdict may possibly be predicted in advance on the ground of these personal sympathies.

Here then is given a concrete instance of the need for more fraternity in the contract between employer and employed.

Let the employer realize that the institution of private property becomes established only through the belief that on the whole it produced more comfort for the average man. If he fails to better the condition of his employes, he is pursuing a course that tends inevitably to socialism.

Let the employe realize that if he is not satisfied to give his best service loyally, he should become an employer himself, for which Uncle Sam's farming land gives every man with thrift the chance.

DARING OF THE BALLOONISTS.

It was incidentally remarked, in connection withthe race for the Bennett trophy, that all of the eight competing balloonists hoped to land well inside the Canada line. As one reviews the history of the 1170 mile journey made by Hawley and Post one year ago for the same cup, it becomes evident that modern ballooning has entered on new stages of adventure.

Ballooning up to a few years ago was comparatively a mild and conservative sport. Devotees used to say that there had been but three or four fatalities in the history of the pursuit, and those from avoidable causes. Ballooning seemed more or less of a pink tea and society kind of affair.

Aeronauts took up their wives and sweethearts, ascensions were largely made under favorable weather conditions. The scene at some great aeronautical center like the Paris society was much like that at any swell country club with everyone on dress parade.

Interest in ballooning has waned much in three years due to the deadly fascinations of the aeroplane and dirigible. But while the commonplace 50 mile balloon flight on a pleasant day has ceased to attract much more interest than a week end automobile trip, some feats of wonderful daring have been accomplished in the past three years in free balloons.

The heroes of these episodes, like the aviators, are the modern counterparts of the vikings of old, who sailed uncharted seas in their fragile 10th century craft.

Everyone of those balloonists who started from Kansas City must have had just this spirit, to take chances on such a journey as that which Hawley and Post made last year into the clammy depths of the Canadian wilderness.

In that almost impassable forest, with but a few days food supply, and seventy-five miles from the nearest outpost of civilization, their position was as hazardous as an old sea viking shipwrecked on a cockle shell raft among the icebergs.

The notable flight made last fall in a 110 mile an hour gale, by the Williams college aeronautical society, with Leo Stevens, had that same character of nonchalant daring. So violently did even the surface winds pull the balloon that day, that it took 100 college boys to hold the balloon to earth until the voyagers could make their start.

Even in the height of a hurricane on the earth's surface, we have little idea of the passionate frenzy of the upper air, as it rages through its trackless way.

WHO'S WHO IN QUINCY--WHY!

Among the young men of City Square who, in the past, have taken an active interest in local affairs is Lewis Bass Jr., the subject of this sketch. Mr. Bass is a Quincy born boy and has always made his home in the city of his birth, which was May 27, 1871. His early education was obtained from the Greenleaf private school and the Adams Academy. From here he entered Harvard and graduated with the class of 1893. He afterward entered the Harvard law school and graduated in 1895 and was admitted to the Suffolk bar in April of that same year.

The following October he entered the office of Hon. Robert M. Morse, one of the leading members of the Suffolk bar where he was enabled to get a law training such as seldom is afforded a young man. He is still engaged in the practice of law.

His first entrance into public life was in 1901 when he became a member of the City Council representing Ward One. He served in the City Council during the years 1901, '02, '03, '04, '05, and '06. During the time he was a member of the City Council he served upon practically all of the standing committees of that body and was a good legislator. As far as known he has never aspired to further political honors.

In addition to his extensive law practice he is interested in real estate and has charge of a number of estates.

FINANCIAL NEWS.

Special.

The business situation is uneven. In some districts, particularly in sections of the Northwest, where crops have fallen below expectations or where excessive speculation has produced reaction, business is below the normal, and bankers in those sections report reactionary tendencies On the other hand, where crops have been good, there are no signs of reaction, and an optimistic feeling still prevails. The fact that farmers are still obtaining good prices for their products and are sure of a year of fair though lessened prosperity, gives general trade in such regions a substantial basis for confidence.

The most prosperous section of the country is evidently the South. Though the cotton crop is spotty, there is no doubt but that we will have a bumper yield, some good authorities estimating as high as 14,000,000 bales and over. Texas alone is expected to produce between four million and four and a half million bales. The price of cotton has fallen sharply in consequence, but the enormous yield even at lower prices means prosperity for the Southern farmers and a large influx of good money into the South.

In the iron and steel trade there is a fair degree of activity, but while the volume of business is still below expectations, price concessions, have at least served to stimulate orders. At the moment the railroads are evry small purchasers of material, because of necessary retrenchment in expenses and because of the impossibility of placing new issues under existing financial conditions.

One important element of support is the abundance of cheap money. There is much necessary discrimination in the making of loans, but good borrowers find no difficulty in securing all the accommodation they need. Many good stocks now carry themselves at a profit on present money market rates; this fact having already induced considerable buying of high grade securities. At present the investment buying for stocks is limited to the most desirable issues. There is a better demand for bonds, especially of the better class, and there are signs of growing interest in this direction. In all probability there will be larger offerings of bonds, particularly municipal issues, during the remainder of the year. The aggressiveness of the Government toward industrial corporations tends to make buyers discriminate against such properties. Stocks and bonds free of such influences are consequently in better favor with buyers. Not a few investors have been quietly shifting their holdings from industrial properties to railroads for the sake of more stability.

Our foreign trade is in good shape, and the current month will likely show a large balance in our favor, since exports are very heavy and imports comparatively light. In this direction natural forces are working out their own cure of abnormal conditions; and the financial strength of the United States is strikingly emphasized by the unusual assistance rendered to the bankers of Berlin and Paris by New York. This reverses the usual practice, which is for the foreign centers to help New York. The foreign political situation has much improved, and is no longer a cause of serious concern in the foreign markets. Italy's little war with Turkey has thus far not proved a serious disturbance of international relations.—Henry Clews, Banker, New York.

POINTERS FOR THE MOTORIST.

Steel Studded Anti-Skid Tires should Be Repaired as soon as the studs are worn down.

Many motorists make the mistake of running on their anti-skid tires after the steel studs have been worn down. It is done upon the assumption that tire economy is thus effected. This is a mistake, says the Michelin Tire man—and a costly one. No matter how hard the steel of which the studs are made, constant use will eventually cause them to wear down. This is proven by the fact that the best cutlery steel cannot resist the friction of a grindstone. In districts where the roads are uniformly good, the studs are very long-lasting, and even on rough roads they will stand a great deal of work. But in time, constant usage wears them down.

Even though the envelope may still be in good condition, the leather covering should never be made to serve as a tread. Its purpose is simply to afford greater protection against possible punctures, and to give extra support to the steel studs. Invariably the total destruction of the tire quickly follows when the leather tread is pressed into this service for which it was never intended. The envelope is of no further use after the leather has gone. If the canvas is not too much worn, the envelope can be restudded and fitted with new leather or it can be fitted with a plain tread, and utilized for one of the front wheels.

Another very important thing that motorists should remember is the fact that the efficiency of a steel studded anti-skid tire depends almost entirely upon the air pressure maintained in it. The leather band in which the steel studs are imbedded is a great deal less elastic than rubber, and as a result, a certain amount of stress is created between the two materials. Numerous other valuable hints on the proper car of tires are given in the "Book of Bibendum" issued free on request to motorists by the Michelin Tir Co., of Milltown, New Jersey.

THE CRITICISED HYMN.

Below we give the hymn "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere," condemned by Governor Wilson of New Jersey but appreciated and loved by thousands all over the country.

BEAUTIFUL ISLE.

Somewhere the sun is shining,
Somewhere the song-birds dwell;
Hush, then, thy sad repining,
God lives, and all is well.

Somewhere the day is longer,
Somewhere the task is done;
Somewhere the heart is stronger,
Somewhere the guerdon won.

Somewhere the load is lifted,
Close by an open gate;
Somewhere the clouds are rifted,
Somewhere the angels wait.

CHORUS.

Somewhere, somewhere,
Beautiful Isle of Somewhere!
Land of the true, where we live anew
Beautiful Isle of Somewhere!

Atlantic City Has Dry Sunday

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 16.—For the first time in four years Atlantic City observed the Sunday liquor laws. Unprecedented dryness prevailed from midnight Saturday night. Indictments against local saloons caused the dry order to be issued.

VOTING THE STAMPS DOES NOT IN ANY WAY INTERFERE WITH THEIR BEING REDEEMED FOR PREMIUMS IN THE USUAL WAY.

SUNDAY IN OUR CHURCHES

Topics and Annouucemens For Coming Week

SUNDAY SCHOOLS

FIRST CHURCH.

Rev. Robert Collyer Douthit of Castine, Me., occupied the pulpit at the First church, Sunday morning. For his scripture lesson he read the Beatitudes and for his sermon his subject was "Character and Blessedness." In his address he explained and interpreted the Beatitudes in a way that was exceedingly interesting.

The first meeting of the Boston Sunday school union, of which Charles H. Johnson is president, will be held this evening at the second church, Copley Square, Boston, and will be attended by several from Quincy.

The annual meeting of the Unitarian Sunday school society will be held Wednesday afternoon at the church of the Unity, at Worcester. The meeting will be continued in the evening.

An all day meeting of the Fragment Society will be held in the chapel Wednesday. At this meeting arrangements will be made for a fair to be held in February.

A regular meeting of the Junior laymen will be held this evening in the chapel.

WOLLASTON BAPTIST.

Sermon by the pastor, subject: "The Message of the Leaves." At the meeting of the Walther and Rand mens classes, there were 70 men present and a magnificent hour was spent.

The Junior Endeavor met at 3.30 in the chapel, Miss Ethel M. Campbell in charge. Y. P. S. C. E. met at 6 in the chapel. Subject: "Why I believe in the Bible." Rom. 10:17; 15:4. Evening service at 7 in the Auditorium. Subject: "A" Foolish Wise Man. Tuesday afternoon at 3 the postponed annual meeting of the W. C. T. U., will be held at the home of Mrs. A. D. Albee. Tuesday afternoon at 3.30 the Women's Prayer Meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. George H. S. Soule. Tuesday evening at 7.45 a cottage prayer meeting will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Roberts.

Thursday evening at 7.45 the Walther class will hold a Men's Rally and social in the chapel. Rev. Walter Calley, D. D. of Boston will give an address. Refreshments will be served. All men of the church and community invited and urged to be present.

Friday evening at 7.45 the Woman's Foreign Mission Society will hold a public meeting in the chapel in place of the regular meeting for praise, prayer and testimony. Mrs. William Hall, missionary in Africa will give an address. All the men and women of the church and congregation are urged to be present. An offering will be taken.

The annual union basket meeting of the Home Mission circle in the Four Boston Associations will be held in the First Baptist Church, Malden, Oct. 19. Sessions at 10.30 and 2.

The Mass. Baptist Anniversaries will be held in the First Baptist Church of Fall River, Oct. 24-26. For all particulars, see program on bulletin board in the chapel.

WOLLASTON UNITARIAN CHURCH.

In the faith of the Fatherhood of God, the Brotherhood of Man, the Leadership of Jesus, Salvation by Character, the Progress of Mankind upward and onward forever, we unite for the Worship of God and the service of man.

The Wollaston Young People's social club will hold the first meeting of the season in the vestry Tuesday evening, Oct. 17.

There will be a meeting of the Earnest Workers Lend-a-Hand club Tuesday, Oct. 17, at 4 P. M. at the home of Miss Ruth Jones, 14 Elmwood Avenue.

Wednesday, Oct. 18, the Women's Alliance will hold an all day sewing meeting in the vestry, beginning at 10. A. M. The delegates to the New England Associate Alliance meeting in Porstmouth, N. H., will make their report. There will be a box luncheon. Tea and coffee will be served by the Alliance. Every woman in the parish is cordially invited.

Among the stereopticon lectures to be given Sunday evenings at our church are "The Protection of Children"—Nov. 19; "How the Other Half lives"—Dec. 17; "A Pilgrimage to the home of St. Francis"—Feb. 18; "The History of the Unitarian Church in America"—March 17; and others.

A reception to the members and friends of our church will be given in the vestry, Friday evening, Oct. 27.

The autumn meeting of the Unitarian Sunday school society will be held Wednesday, Oct. 18, in the church of the Unity, Worcester. A fine program has been arranged. No doubt a number of automobile parties from our church will attend this meeting.

The special collection yesterday will help defray the expenses of the National Conference of Unitarian churches in Washington, D. C., Oct. 23-26.

Members of our parish are requested to meet cordially the call for funds to help in maintaining our Quincy District Nurse.

The Norfolk Conference of Unitarian churches, to which our church belongs, will hold the annual meeting with the Third Religious Society of Dorchester, Wednesday, Nov. 1.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

The regular services were held yesterday at the First Presbyterian church. Rev. Mr. Matheson preached at both services. He took his text from 2 Kings, 5, 12 and preached a very interesting sermon on Namon the leper, bringing out many characteristics of this man which are much like those of us today who are more willing to do big things instead of doing the little simple things that count.

After the morning service there was a meeting of the congregation for the purpose of electing four elders and three deacons.

Mr. Cummings clerk of the session read the call for the meeting and the following elders were elected:

Mr. Forbes Craig, Mr. A. J. McLeod, Mr. Charles Clark, Mr. Murdock Lamont, Mr. Duncan McLennan, all five were nominated and elected.

The deacons elected were: Mr. John MacKay, Mr. George Wilson, Mr. Charles Miller and Mr. Bogg s.

The Brotherhood is to hold its meeting on Tuesday evening when Mr. Tuffts of Boston will speak. All men most cordially invited to this meeting.

The Thursday mid-week services are at the usual hour 7.00 P. M. for the young people and 7.30 for adults. Meeting to be in the hands of the Laymen of the church.

CHRIST CHURCH.

Services were held in Christ church Sunday as follows:—8.00 A. M. Holy Communion, 10.30 morning prayer, Litany and sermon, 12.05 Sunday school and Galahad Brotherhood. 7.00 o'clock evening prayer and address. At the evening service, the first of a series of addresses on "Confirmation was delivered by the rector Rev. R. E. Armstrong.

He said in part:—The catechism is based on religious truths. The basis of construction is shown in five ways. 1 Baptism, 2nd Belief, 3rd What to do to please God, 4th, God's Help sought, 5th, God's help especially given. The vows made in baptism are renewed in confirmation. The first of these vows which is, "To renounce the devil and all his works, the pomps and vanities of this wicked world, and all the sinful lusts of the flesh." was considered last evening.

The devil and all his works—to give up the pomps and sinful lusts. The devil is opposite of goodness and God. The works of the devil may be refined sins, such as envy, deceit, pride, insincerity, and secret sins in the heart. The pomps and vanities are the relation of the Christian to the world, the wicked world made evil by man. We should be able to control our joys, comforts and privileges under proper conditions.

The sinful lusts of the flesh. The body is the shrine of the Holy Spirit, the temple of the Holy Ghost. We should crucify the lusts. The appetites of the flesh should not run to excess, such as, sloth, gluttony, etc.

Repentance in confirmation. We should look forward to joy and peace. What ever God calls upon us to give up, he will restore a hundred-fold in peace and beauty.

The second address in this series will be delivered next Sunday evening at 7.30, the hour of worship being changed.

ACCEPTS NEW PARISH

Rev. Fanny E. Austin Begins Duties as Pastor of Universalist Church

Rev. Fanny E. Austin who has filled the pulpit at the Universalist church for some months, and who accepted a call of the church to become its pastor, entered upon her duties as such Sunday morning, preaching an interesting sermon on "First Things."

Rev. Mrs. Austin is a native of Western Vermont, but her childhood days were passed in Akron, O., where her parents moved when she was quite young.

After receiving her education in the public schools of that place she entered Buchtel College, from which she was graduated with high honors. She then took a course in elocution at a school in Detroit, and later entered Tufts Divinity School, from which she was graduated in 1898, being ordained to the ministry at the same time.

She was then called to the pastorate of the Universalist Church at North Dana, where she remained three years. Her next pastorate was at North Machias, Me. After a ministry of six years she accepted a call to Leominster, where she was for two years.

UNITARIANS TO WASHINGTON.

The 24th annual session of the Unitarian National Conference will be held in Washington, Oct. 23-26. Hon. Horace Davis of San Francisco will preside.

Among those who will participate are Rev. Eugene R. Shippen of Brockton, Sec. Lewis G. Wilson of American Unitarian Association, Pres. W. I. Lawrance of the Unitarian Sunday School society, Miss Emma C. Low, president of the Women's Alliance, Rev. Dudley H. Ferrell of Brockton, Rev. A. D. F. Shurtleff, Rev. S. A. Eliot, Rev. A. M. Rihbary, Rev. Howard N. Brown, Rev. Elmer S. Forbes and Rev. Edward Cummings of Boston, Rev. William S. Jones of Newport, R. I., Rev. Samuel M. Crothers of Cambridge, Rev. Charles J. Staples of Burlington, Vt., and Mrs. Anna Garlin Spencer of New York.

The business and the addresses will cover a large range of important topics.

On Tuesday afternoon, Oct. 24, there will be independent meetings of the Women's National Alliance and the National Young People's Religious Union.

OVERBOARD IN STORM

Heavy Wave Sweeps Deck and Takes Helmsman With It

Gloucester, Mass., Oct. 16. — The fishing schooner Effie M. Prior, Captain Elroy Prior, came to anchor in the harbor with her flag at half-mast, mourning the loss of Havelock Frost, a member of her crew, who was swept overboard by a wave Friday morning at 1 o'clock.

It was Frost's trick at the wheel, and he was struggling to keep the schooner in her course when a wave broke over the port quarter, swept the length of the vessel and carried the helmsman with it over the stern. All efforts to locate the man in the darkness were unsuccessful.

Frost was 28 years of age, unmarried, and hailed from Argyle, N. S.

MORE FEARED THAN TURKS

Cholera Breaks Out In Italian Army of Occupation

HARD WORK TO LAND TROOPS

Heavy Sea and Rugged Shore Wrecks Torpedo Boat and Adds to an Already Grave Situation—Turkish Attack on Italian Advance Posts Repulsed After Hour's Fight and They Lose Guns and Supplies

Rome, via Frontier, Oct. 16.—The landing the Italian expeditionary force in Tripoli was more eventful than at first known. Owing to the difficulties caused by rough sea and a hard shore, the Italian commanders found themselves confronted by a serious problem.

A great fleet of coral boats came to the rescue of the transports and helped in the speedy landing of the troops. The gravity of the situation is indicated by the fact that the torpedo boat Preccia was wrecked on the rocks, although the crew was saved.

Cholera is reported likely to prove a worse enemy than the Turks. Already twenty or thirty cases have occurred, with a 75 percent mortality. Another cause of apprehension to the government is the position of Italian residents in Ottoman territory, which is considered extremely dangerous.

An exchange of communications on this subject has taken place between Rome and Berlin. Germany is using all her influence to prevent excesses and is endeavoring to convince Turkey that reprisals against Italians now in that country would only serve to make her position still more difficult.

A report has reached here that 200 Turkish infantrymen attacked the intrenched advance posts of the Italians west of Boumeliane. There was lively rifle fire supported by artillery.

After an hour's fighting the Italian infantry, backed by field guns, landed from the fleet, forced the Turks to beat a retreat, leaving one dead, a quick-firing gun with ammunition and divers supplies.

Four Italians were wounded. A few shells from the Turkish guns fell in the oasis, but did no great damage.

OPEN TURKISH PARLIAMENT

Sultan's Speech From Throne Deals With Acts of Italy

Constantinople, Oct. 16. — The Turkish parliament has been opened. The sultan's speech from the throne was read, according to custom, by the grand vizier in the presence of the sultan, the eldest Turkish princes, the foreign diplomats and the heads of the foreign banks.

The speech dealt mostly with the action of Italy in declaring war over Tripoli and with the steps taken by the powers looking to mediation.

Following the reading of the speech from the throne, two members of the ulema offered prayers for the sultan and for a successful issue of the present crisis, and pronounced maledictions upon Italy.

The chamber re-elected Ahmed Riza Bey president by 86 votes to 55 for Mahir Said. He urged that the Young Turk committee keep its hands off in the coming elections. The chamber then adjourned.

Certain Young Turks will control the chamber, making the position of the cabinet stronger. This will result in a continuance of the resistance to the Italian demands.

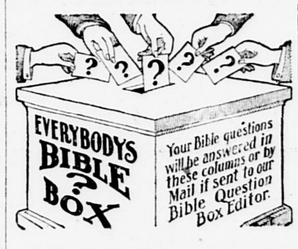
IT'S GREAT FOR GRATES

C. PATCH & SON, Inc.

Office, 1422 Hancock Street, Quincy



Q.—In I John iii, 8 we read: "The Son of God was manifested that He might destroy the works of the devil." Will this result in a final salvation or a final destruction of all the wilfully wicked?

Answer.—The Scriptures show us that because of Satan's deception of our Mother Eve, sin entered into the world, and that death followed as a result; therefore we could properly say that the works of the devil have been sin and death. The reign of Christ will result in the destruction of all who work wickedness, and so our Lord declared in one of His great parables, "Depart from Me ye cursed into everlasting fire prepared for the devil and his angels" (Matthew xxv, 41). The language here used by our Lord symbolically represented a condition of destruction. Other Scriptures declare that only the righteous will be preserved, as we read: "The Lord preserveth them that love Him, but all the wicked will He destroy" (Psalm cxiv. 20). This destruction includes Satan himself and all that are in sympathy with his evil methods (Hebrews ii, 14).

Q.—In Matthew xviii, 18 we read, "Whatsoever ye bind on earth shall be bound in heaven; whatsoever ye loose on earth shall be loosed in heaven." Do we understand from this Scripture that the Lord meant to turn over his arrangement to the Apostles and be governed by what they did?

Answer.—This Scripture does not teach that the Lord would yield his prerogatives and become obedient to the dictates of the Apostles, but it does teach that they should be so kept, so guided, by the Holy Spirit, that their decision in the church, respecting what things should be considered obligatory and what things should be considered optional would be proper decisions; and that the church in general thereafter might know that the matters were fixed and settled, and that the conclusions arrived at were the Lord's decisions as well as those of the Apostles. This was a guarantee of Divine supervision in the organization of the church. Jesus assured them that they should be guided by the Holy Spirit, and for this cause we may be assured that the writings of the Apostle in the New Testament are for the benefit of the Church having the Divine approval and constituting the message of God to the Church.

WATERWAYS CONVENTION.

Every state on the Atlantic seaboard will be represented at the fourth annual convention of the Atlantic Deeper Waterways Association when it is called to order by its president, J. Hampton Moore of Philadelphia, in Richmond, Va., next Wednesday. The opening of the convention will be preceded by an informal reception to the delegates by the Richmond Chamber of Commerce Tuesday evening.

During the business sessions of the convention Wednesday and Thursday consideration will be given the progress made since the convention last year and plans will be laid for furthering the links of intracoastal waterways stretching along the Atlantic coast from Maine to Florida.

Gov. Mann of Virginia will make an address of welcome at the opening session. This will be responded to by Col. Pleasant A. Stovall, editor of the Savannah, Ga., Press, after which President Moore will make his annual address. The first afternoon session will be devoted to addresses by Mayors Gaynor of New York, Reyburn of Philadelphia, Donnelly of Trenton, Preston of Baltimore and Fitzgerald of Boston, and Dock Commissioner Tompkins of New York city.

Thursday's sessions will be given over to addresses by experts on the various inland waterways projects, and these will be followed by the election of officers.

The evening sessions will be given over to entertainment. Friday a trip down the historic James River to Hampton Roads will be made.

In the tentative list of speakers are Secretary of Commerce and Labor Nagle, Govs. Tener of Pennsylvania, Crothers of Maryland, Pothier of Rhode Island, Mead of Vermont and Glasscock of West Virginia. A number of Senators and Representatives also will speak, beside numerous other prominent men.

TO FIGHT FOR FREE SUGAR

New York Sugar Refiner to Appear Before Congress

Colorado Springs, Oct. 16. — That the statement by John Arbuckle, New York sugar refiner and coffee magnate, that he will go before congress next winter to fight for free sugar, is the beginning of the first real fight between the beet sugar manufacturers and the cane sugar refiners, is the declaration of Clarence C. Hamlin, chairman of the executive committee of the United States beet sugar industry.

Mr. Hamlin says that while the condition of the sugar market this year has been bad, it would have been "infinitely worse but for the 500,000 tons of beet sugar America produces."

GOUT OF THE THROAT

Brother of Oil King Is In Serious Condition

London, Oct. 16.—William Rockefeller sailed on the Campania, accompanied by Dr. Walter F. Chappell of New York. He is in a very serious physical condition, suffering from what the physician called gout of the throat and larynx.

"He is not suffering from cancer. What is troubling him is gout of the throat and larynx. He has had it for eight years and it has been getting worse. He can hardly articulate. I've given him orders not to speak. Otherwise he's all right," said Dr. Chappell.

SEVEN KILLED IN CRASH

Wreck on Missouri Pacific Due to Misunderstanding of Orders

Omaha, Oct. 16.—Seven persons were killed and twenty-two injured, four of them seriously, in a collision between a passenger train northbound and a fast freight train, at Fort Crook, ten miles from here. The accident is believed to have resulted from a misunderstanding of orders by the freight crew.

A relief train was sent to the scene of the accident at once, carrying railway surgeons. The slightly injured were sent on their way. The more seriously injured are at the army hospital at Fort Crook.

Governor Gilchrist of Florida was a passenger on the north-bound train, but was uninjured.

The less seriously injured include two railway mail clerks and the passenger train fireman. Most of them are from cities in Kansas and Nebraska.

BADLY BEATEN BY MOB

Negro Suffers For Attack on Woman and Two Children

Louisville, Oct. 16.—A negro was so badly beaten by a mob here that his recovery is doubtful.

The negro had attacked 4-year-old Ethel Cook, and when she released herself he grabbed Hazel Hughes, aged 14. Her cries for help brought her mother, who was beaten by the negro. Infuriated by the cries of the two girls and woman, a mob was restrained from killing the negro only by prompt action by the police.

Members of the mob have made statements to the police, and freely offer use of their names.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE LECTURE

means of this power; and in every age the result of the operation of spiritual law in human consciousness has been to destroy discord and to establish peace.

What is Christian Science?

Christian Science is a religion. It is the Science of Christianity—the science of God and man. It reveals spiritual law, and explains the operation of that law in its relation to man and the Universe. It defines mortal mind and immortal Mind, and so makes plain the difference between mortal men and man made by God in His image and likeness.

Christian Science pleads for a rational understanding of God in place of mere belief about Him, and it is urging mankind to look for the real causation in Mind and not in matter. It declares that God is not the author of sin, sickness, or death, hence these conditions are illegitimate and can be destroyed by a knowledge of the truth. It denies that there is any divine authority for man to sin, suffer, or die, and recalls the solemn declaration of the Scripture that God gave man as his birthright dominion over all the earth and over all that it contained. Jesus said, "Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free." Christian Science says to the tired and suffering man who is wandering about without any dominion at all, that the knowledge of the truth will set him free from his bondage to sin, suffering, sorrow, and failure, and will give to him that dominion which God said in the beginning belonged to man.

A correct understanding of God, therefore, is necessary as the foundation of religion. Any system of religious teaching that is founded upon an imperfect or an erroneous conception of God must necessarily fail to bring to the believer the comfort and help that he seeks. When we look around and see the devotion and fidelity of people to their religious beliefs, and then see how often they fail to realize the benefits for which they seek, it is a fair deduction that there is something wrong about their understanding of God.

The prophet Micah said a man's enemies are they of his own household and Jesus repeated the statement. I used to understand their meaning to be that a man's enemies were his own kin, but I now realize that a man's enemies are they of his own mental household. The mental guests or thoughts that we entertain in our mental homes are either our friends or our foes. Hatred, fear, self-love, and all evil qualities of thought are enemies that bind man to sickness and death, and man will never gain his freedom until he drives out these enemies and makes his consciousness the temple of God.

We are told in Christian Science that fear is an ingredient of every disease, and if fear were entirely destroyed a large number of diseases would go with it. If we could imagine this world with all hatred, fear, superstition, self-will, and self-love destroyed out of it, it is conceivable that longevity would be increased and that happiness and health would be more secure.

If Christian Science had never healed a case of sickness it would still be entitled to lasting praise for compelling this age to recognize the power and influence of thought. Solomon declared three thousand years ago that as a man "thinketh in his heart, so is he." In other words, the quality of the man is determined by the quality of his thought. It is therefore of supreme importance that man should know the truth, to the end that he may know how to think correctly.

As time goes on humanity exhibits an ever decreasing interest in theories about God that are not helpful and practical. This tendency has been deplored by the churches as indicating a loss of interest in religion, but it is not so. It indicates a tremendous desire for a religion that is practical.

This Is An Age of Practical Things.

The demand for practical things also demands a religion that is practical. People are no longer satisfied with theories about what is to happen in another world. What is desired is a demonstrable religion that saves from present troubles— from sickness, and sin, and failure and unhappiness, and the countless ills of every-day human experience—and if there is a religion that will do that, it can be safely trusted for the future.

Christian Science is essentially a practical religion. It has been called applied Christianity. There is the same difference between Christian Science and other systems that there is between mathematics and engineering. Mathematics does much good in many ways, but it is not until the rules of mathematics are applied to human affairs that we see brought out great bridges, railroads, subways, lofty buildings, and other things that are of public utility, and which contribute to the well-being of mankind. So it is only when the teachings of Jesus are understood and applied to human affairs that we see the sick healed, sinners liberated from bondage to evil habits, and other practical things done for the betterment of humanity.

Mrs. Eddy.

Many people seem to think that Christian Science is some new thing devised by Mrs. Eddy, but such is not the case. It is defined by its Founder as "The law of God, the law of good, interpreting and demonstrating the divine Principle and rule of universal harmony" (Rudimental Divine Science, p. 1.) It was understood and applied, in part at least, by Moses and the prophets. It is the same principle that was understood and practised by Jesus, by means of which he performed his works. It is the same principle that he taught to his disciples, and which they in turn taught to their disciples. Whenever it has been understood and applied it has been found to operate as a law of annihilation to sin, disease, and death, and to supersede so-called mortal laws.

When viewed from any point Mrs. Eddy stands as one of the great characters of this age. She has made a discovery in the realm of metaphysics that exerts and must continue to exert a more far-reaching influence upon humanity than any discovery ever made in the physical realm. She has founded a religion that has restored to mankind the spiritual healing as practised by the primitive church. Within the brief space of one generation her teachings have so impressed themselves upon the public that it would be difficult to find a place where there is not a Christian Science church or society, or at least where there are not some Christian Scientists. Mrs. Eddy has been assailed by critics, but that is not surprising. There has never been a pioneer of new and better things, a leader of thought, who has escaped from criticism or whose ideals have been at once accepted by all. Out of all the criticism and misunderstanding of Christian Science and its Leader and Founder, however, there stands the fact that it has healed a multitude of people. Sooner or later every person will adopt that system of religious teaching which brings the largest measure of help and hope and consolation, and so long as any remain who are suffering from unhappiness or sickness or sin, Christian Science will offer to them a sure means of finding divine help.

SHIPBUILDING STIMULATED.

The Eastern shipyards Philadelphia have the prospect of a busy winter by reason of the large volume of new construction and repair work that is being offered. This week several important additional contracts for new boats have been placed. The New York Ship Building & Dry Dock Company secured two large Eastern coast vessels, requiring together 3500 to 4000 tons of steel and another shipyard took several boats. Including contracts recently reported there is now pending in this market contracts requiring 25,000 to 30,000 tons of plates and shapes for work, actually booked while there is heavy additional volume in prospect. Low prices of finished lines seem to be acting as a stimulus to boat building especially and in a more moderate degree to other lines as an increase in the volume of new bookings is reported by makers.

—Indianapolis has started an organization pledged to a sane Christmas. Those who join it agree neither to give nor accept presents outside of their immediate families. It is not too early for Somerville people to begin considering this question, whether they join the league or not. The joy of receiving as well as the joy of giving, should be kept constantly in mind. It is not a game of give and take and should never be allowed to take that form.—Somerville Journal.

Why is the soda cracker to-day such a universal food?

People ate soda crackers in the old days, it is true—but they bought them from a barrel or box and took them home in a paper bag, their crispness and flavor all gone.

To-day there is a soda cracker which is the recognized staple — Uneeda Biscuit.

Uneeda Biscuit are the most nutritious food made from flour and should be eaten every day by every member of the family from the youngest to the oldest.

Uneeda Biscuit—soda crackers better than any ever made before—made in the greatest bakeries in the world—baked to perfection—packed to perfection—kept to perfection until you take them, oven-fresh and crisp, from their protecting package.

The Fighting Hope

Novelized by
VIRGINIA LEILA WENTZ
From the Play by
WILLIAM J. HURLBURT

Copyright, 1911, by American Press Association

Presently, clean and fresh, the children were brought into the drawing room to greet Miss Graham before she left. As she was receding down the tree lined avenue Robert junior stood one arm about his mother's waist and waved to her. Robert senior seized the other rollicking atom and deposited him in Anna's arms. Then he stood back to enjoy the artistic effect.

"Her children suit her to perfection, eh, Brady?" quoth he. "If her children don't go well with a woman you may take your oath there's something radically wrong with her."

"Physically or morally?" Brady asked, laughing.

"Both," said Granger. "So far as the female sex is concerned, they are convertible terms. Have a cigar?"

"Since we've become mere pegs on which to hang psychological discussions, my boys, we'll return to our native heath," said Anna laughingly.

Brady watched with singular interest the easy strength with which she walked off with her sons. Hitherto she had seemed to him altogether fragile, Dresden china-ish.

"I saw a look on Mrs. Granger's face awhile ago," he said half to himself, "a look that surprised me. I believe there are very few things she couldn't do once she set her mind to action."

An uncomfortable, prickly sensation ran down Robert's back; his smile of satisfaction weakened. Then over their cigars they began to talk of other things. From the open door of the nursery Anna could hear broken fragments coming up:

"Money, the vital fluid, doesn't seem to be flowing so easily through the body of things." "The banks are lending less, securities seem less stable, stocks are down," etc.

That night Granger enjoyed his dinner unreservedly, and there was a certain scintillating novelty about his wife's looks that engaged his attention. His after dinner smoke was his favorite one. It seemed vixenish to interfere with it, so Anna waited, playing idly with the almonds and raisins on her plate. Robert, between his puffs, noticed that they were delicate and pretty hands, and that there were only two rings—the wedding ring and the engagement ring. He felt a vague impression that most women wore more than that. At least, one woman whom he knew wore more. He remembered her hands distinctly. He had made her a birthday present of a diamond ring only a few days before, and when she thanked him for it later he had noticed that her hand fairly flashed with diamonds.

Presently Anna got up, and, leaning lightly against the mantel shelf, watched him oddly. She might as well out with it.

"Robert," said she, "you like Mr. Brady through and through?"

"Like Brady? Why, yes, and he's a decidedly useful man to know—interested in all sorts of big concerns, nothing of a snob, and"—

"I—I rather wanted to compare notes with you. You're so quick and sensitive. I wondered if you had noticed—things." She flushed hotly.

"Nothing at all, except that he seems to approve of my selection of a wife. Would you prefer, then, not to be admired?"

"I like being admired, of course. I like it most awfully. But it depends, doesn't it, on the way it's done. Why, even Mary Graham noticed"—

"You surely don't mean to imply that my friend Brady means any harm?"

With a vehement gesture Anna drew her fingers across her eyes.

"No one except the stage villain ever does mean any harm, I suppose," she said. "The others do it from absence of mind, perhaps. Oh, I dare say I'm horrid," added she softly, seeing a hurt look on Robert's face—"horrid and not sufficiently grateful for my privileges. Probably it's all vanity and self consciousness. You'd have noticed all these unpleasantnesses naturally, since I belong to you?" She put out both hands to him with friendly, irresistible grace. At that moment the longing to feel protected was very strong within her.

"Of course I'd have noticed," reassured Robert, looking at her in his boyish, ingenuous fashion, and with a brilliant, ready smile. It was this look and this smile that had first won his way into the sympathies of her heart.

Suddenly, under the spell of his caress, Anna remembered something. The dimples stirred in her cheeks as she disengaged herself.

"Wait. Bobs, I'll be back in a second," she said and ran lightly upstairs.

"Now, sir," standing before her liege lord in mock accusing fashion and handing him the French bill of fare, "since you refuse to be jealous of me I'm most mightily inclined to be jealous of you. Who did you lunch with yesterday? Defend yourself!"

CHAPTER II.

A LIAR.

MEMORY suddenly stabbed the man sharply, and he flushed.

"So far as I can remember," he returned, "I lunched with Brady"—

"Nonsense," said she, still struggling with the dimples. "Don't you know there is the greatest difference in the world between a man's bill of fare and a woman's? Look at that," and bending so that the tendrils of her hair brushed his cheek she ran lightly over the incriminating list. "Would two men have ordered such a collection of dreadful things—Martini cocktails, caviar, mollusques, foie gras au truffles, homard au diable? My dear, oh, my dear, this is a most immoral bill of fare. There was a woman here, I tell you, a woman! And," she whispered mysteriously, catching a reflection of her own bright presence in the mirror, "probably a brunette."

"A woman nothing," protested Granger hotly. He had missed the little vein of light comedy in her mood. He had taken her for a tragedy queen. "It was Brady, I tell you—Brady."

Straightway the scene became charged neither with comedy nor tragedy, but with very quiet, pitiful human drama.

Anna drew her fingers across her eyes as if a bit of lightning had blinded them, that was all.

"Oh, Robert," she said dully.

He stood up and faced her.

"Do you mean that you don't believe me?" he asked in a grieved tone.

"No, Robert, how could I? I can't believe impossibilities. You forget that Mr. Brady told us he came back from a week's trip in Nantucket last night."

"The finality of such an assertion admits of no discussion," returned Robert coldly, but adroitly.

"THERE WAS A WOMAN HERE, I TELL YOU, A WOMAN!"

"No," she said quietly: "I'm glad you don't want to discuss it. It would be foolish, I think, and not in the least interesting." She ended with a soft laugh. It hurt her, but it pleased Robert. It announced that she had changed the subject. Presently:

"I'll just stroll around to the club," said he. So Anna was free to seek refuge in the little vine covered porch back of the children's nursery, to be alone with the night and the stars and to draw in a little of the outside air for which she was stifling.

ROOSTER COAL BRIQUETS
THE NEW ANTHRACITE COAL
ROOSTER BRIQUETS are made from the choicest small Scranton Anthracite coal, mined in Pennsylvania, called TWENTIETH CENTURY CHESTNUT size
Just consider for a moment what we offer here in this 20th CENTURY CHESTNUT.
First, 2000 pounds of clean, pure, hard coal without a rock or a piece of slate.
Second, fuel that cannot form into a clinker, by any known method of firing, consequently the linings and grates last indefinitely.
Third, they are made in nut size, being equally convenient for furnace heaters, open grates, as well as stoves; therefore, only one storage bin is necessary.
Fourth, and very IMPORTANT, the quality of this fuel is the SAME EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR, not a good ton today, and nothing like it the next time, in other words, when you once learn how to regulate your drafts you have nothing more to learn about burning BRIQUETS.
Fifth, no more sifting ashes these Briquets burn out clean. They require less wood to kindle.
Be sure to ask for "ROOSTERS" and get the Briquet made from pure Scranton Coal, from the largest Briquet plant in the country. They are better than coal, will last as long and cost less.

RESCUED BY TWO WOMEN

Automobilist Pinned Under Car In Lonely Place

RONING BOARD AS STRETCHER

Brother-In-Law of Driver Too Weak to Be of Assistance In Releasing Him, and Wife and Mother-In-Law Raise Machine by Use of Jacks—Taken Through Hoosac Tunnel In Special Electric Engine

North Adams, Mass., Oct. 16.—Pinned beneath an overturned automobile and his thigh broken and other injuries inflicted; rescued by two women after he had laid in great pain for some time; strapped to an ironing board for a stretcher and driven over the rough roads of Hoosac Mountain at midnight on a buckboard, and finally brought to the North Adams hospital through the Hoosac tunnel on a special electric engine—these were the experiences undergone by Carl Lawrence, 48, of Haverhill. Last night, although suffering much pain and admittedly seriously injured, he is declared to be on the road to recovery.

Lawrence, who is a Haverhill manufacturer, started over the mountain in his automobile. Accompanying him were his wife, his mother-in-law and his brother-in-law. They reached the foot of Whitcomb's hill, nearly six miles from the nearest village—the town of Florida—without mishap.

In order to help in making the hill, which is claimed by automobilists to be the worst in the state, all of the party except Lawrence got out of the car. He started up the hill and had gone about half way when he lost control, and the machine started to back down. After going about 200 yards Lawrence succeeded in steering into an embankment, but the car turned turtle and he was pinned beneath it.

The brother-in-law was not strong enough to assist much in the work of rescue, so the women were obliged to secure the jacks from the tool box of the machine and, practically unaided, lifted the machine enough to extricate Lawrence's body. From a farmhouse at the top of the hill a physician was called and he went up the mountain in a buckboard, borrowed the ironing board for a stretcher and with Lawrence strapped to it started down again. At the Hoosac Tunnel station permission was secured to use an electric engine to convey the injured man through the tunnel to the hospital.

The accident happened at the most inaccessible spot on the mountain.

JUSTICE HARLAN DEAD

Noted as the Great Dissenter of the Supreme Court

Washington, Oct. 16.—Justice John M. Harlan, who, near the close of his already noted career as a member of the supreme court of the United States, won fame as the great dissenter by his isolated opinions in the Standard Oil and tobacco cases, died of acute bronchitis at his home here.

Harlan apparently was in the best of physical condition when he came home from his vacation for the opening of court. He felt an attack of cold on Monday night and on Tuesday acute bronchitis, with fever, developed. The illness was not thought to be fatal, however, until Thursday. Friday a relapse made it almost certain that the justice would not survive.

Justice Harlan was born in Boyle County, Ky., in 1833. When his parents christened him John Marshall they named him for a great chief justice of the supreme court in the hope that some day he might rise to the position which he did hold temporarily until the oath of office had been administered to Chief Justice White.

CLERGY FLOCK TO BALTIMORE

Cardinal Celebrates Fifty Years In the Priesthood

Baltimore, Oct. 16.—With a splendid ceremonial in the old Baltimore cathedral Sunday the Catholic church in America celebrated the jubilee of Cardinal Gibbons, archbishop of Baltimore and primate of America. The venerable prelate, who is now over 79 years old, has rounded out fifty years in the priesthood and twenty-five in the cardinalate. All day Saturday he was busy receiving and cordially greeting the bishops and archbishops and monsignors arriving from all parts of the United States and from Canada and Mexico to participate in the celebration. He was assisted by Frs. Fletcher and Gana of the cathedral.

There were about 5000 in line in the procession from the cardinal's residence to the cathedral. The cardinal met the apostolic delegate and archbishops at his residence, while the bishops, other clergy, seminarians and students met at Calvert hall.

All the prelates were in their robes of highest ceremonial. The cardinal participated at the mass and the great sanctuary was a blaze of light and color.

Today there was a great parade of Catholic clergy and lay societies, including delegations from Philadelphia and Washington.

WOMAN DIES FROM BURNS

Believed to Have Tried to Start Fire With Kerosene

Lawrence, Mass., Oct. 16.—Mrs. John Fitzpatrick, an aged woman, died in the general hospital of burns sustained, it is believed, in trying to start a fire with kerosene at her house, 58 South Broadway.

She lived alone and had planned to move to Holyoke to make her home with relatives. Her husband, who had been a street department employe, died about a year ago.

Naval Launch Destroyed by Fire

Portsmouth, N. H., Oct. 16.—A 30-foot steam launch belonging to the United States gunboat Paducah was practically destroyed by fire Saturday. How the fire occurred is a mystery, as those who had been at work on the boat during the previous day claim to have put out the fire in the boiler. The woodwork of the launch was badly burned and the canopy destroyed.

Celebrates 100th Birthday

Hopedale, Mass., Oct. 16.—With a celebration in the Unitarian church and an informal reception at her home, Mrs. Elizabeth T. Adams, Hopedale's oldest resident, celebrated her 100th birthday anniversary.

STILL IN A TANGLE

Maine Liquor Vote May Go to the Supreme Court

Augusta, Me., Oct. 14.—There is talk of referring to the supreme court some of the questions which have arisen concerning the conduct of the recent state election on the repeal of the prohibition amendment.

It has been suggested that if the question of whether the returns from Limestone, Athens, Westfield and Matinicus may be corrected is submitted to the court, the result will be an anti-repeal victory in any event.

If the returns from these towns are admittedly wrong and no record exists whereby they may be corrected, the effect would be to eliminate the vote of these four places for both sides, it is claimed. Such an event would leave a vote of 366 against repeal.

If the court concluded that the returns may be corrected on the strength of the records, the result will be 758 against repeal instead of 26 in favor, as tabulated now.

CLOSE CALL FOR ATWOOD

Engine Trouble Causes Him to Descend In a Hurry

New Bedford, Mass., Oct 16.—Harry N. Atwood, the Boston aviator, had the narrowest escape of his life, and incidentally thrilled 25,000 people when the engine of his Burgess biplane stopped when he was 600 feet in the air and was traveling seventy miles an hour.

Atwood volplaned as well as he could, passed close to the roof of the main building on the city farm and landed a few feet away from a stone wall. A horizontal bar on the biplane was smashed and the machine put out of commission. Atwood was unhurt.

Atwood said his mishap was due to the fact that a small handbill he was scattering to the winds had caught in his engine, interfering with the mechanism.

Several members of Maple lodge K. and L. of H. are to visit Gen. Warren lodge of Dorchester tonight and witness the degree work. Grand officers will be special guests. Members leave Quincy on the 7 o'clock electric.

Mrs. G. Stratton and son Alex who came from Barre, Vermont, by auto, to attend the wedding of her nephew, Charles MacDonald, has been the guest of her sister Mrs. Sara A. MacDonald of Maple street, the past week, returning home Saturday.

The Wollaston Yacht club will hold its annual "windup" at the clubhouse Saturday evening, Nov. 11. As usual a banquet will be the feature, to be followed by speaking and an entertainment. The affair is in charge of a committee headed by Frank F. Taylor.

Mrs. Elizabeth Lindsay Bowden has sent out invitations for the marriage of her daughter Hellen Marguerite to Mr. E. William Clark Crane on the evening of Wednesday the twenty-fifth of October at seven-thirty o'clock at Trinity church, Boston.

Those interested in the civic pride of our city should view the pile of rubbish at the side of the Hancock Market, which has been an eyesore for the past three weeks, to passersby and neighbors, If this medley of boxes and litter must be kept here it would seem as though a screen of some kind should be built around it as it looks very untidy as one comes down the new broad sidewalk toward the centre of the city.

FORE RIVER WINS AT SOCCER

As was expected, the Fore River soccer football team experienced little difficulty in defeating Worcester, at Worcester, last Saturday, the score being 7 to 1. The game was played before a large audience, and was the first of the season for the home team.

Mayor Logan started the game. Both teams are members of the New England league. Rennie and Harrison were the two conspicuous stars of the contest. The summary:

WALLOPED BY MEDFORD HIGH

Quincy High Was Outclassed in Saturday's Game

SCORE 23-0

Outclassed in every department of the game, Quincy High lost to the Medford High football eleven, at Medford last Saturday by the score of 23 to 0. The home team rushed the local boys completely off their feet, and after the first touchdown it seemed that Captain Johnson's boys had failed to maintain their usual confidence.

The local boys displayed their best form in the first period when they succeeded in rushing the ball to Medford's 25 yard line. After this the ball was in Medford's territory the greater part of the game although punting was resorted to by both sides to a great degree.

The home team made its greatest gains around Quincy's right end, which proved to be the weak spot in the lineup.

Bill was tried in this position during part of the game, while Young, who played splendidly throughout held down the pivot position.

Lawless and Grant, each of whom made two touchdowns, were the stars for Medford, while Page, who contributed a 30 yard run, "Pete" chapman, Young and Captain Johnson played well for Quincy High.

AMATEUR BOXING THIS EVENING

Amateur boxing will be given its first local test this evening in St. Mary's hall, West Quincy, where the members of the Quincy A. A. hold forth in their initial fistic enterprise with a card of 45 entries. The membership of the organization is close to the 600 mark and it is expected that the majority of that number will be in attendance on this opening occasion.

Of the 45 who are billed to participate, 6 are local lads, who have accredited themselves in great style in the past. They are McDonald, Burns, Gilcoine, Albenetti, Bennett and Gerstel. The first three will try conclusions in the 125 pound class. "Vic" Albonetti and "Bob" Gerstel are down to compete in the 135 class, while "Nedse" Bennett will try conclusions with Billy Gale of Chelsea in a 145 pound special.

Another feature of the exhibition will be a special 105 pound bout, between John Fallon, American 105 pound amateur champion and "Pat" Green of Cambridge. "Tommy" Regan, of East Boston, 125-pound amateur champion, will likewise bear much watching in his respective class. Following is the list of entries:

105-pounds special—John Fallon, Brookline; Patrick Green, Cambridge.

115-pounds—Eli Valley, North Cambridge; Harry Carlson, Brockton; Edward Graham, Boston; Mike Hayes, South Boston; Sam Sandow, Chelsea; Francis Kennedy, Cambridge; Johnny O'Brien, Roxbury; Ed Kelley, Cambridge; Thomas Regan, East Boston; Milton Flewelling, Cambridge; James Flewelling, Cambridge; Henry Morley, Roxbury; Nelson Jameson, Roxbury; Philip Iseman, Boston; Frank Rodondo, Boston; Joseph Smith, South Boston; J. Krutt, Boston; John Henry, Boston.

125-pounds—Joe Hurley, South Boston; Martin Zeolie, East Weymouth; Frank Zealie, East Weymouth; Albert J. Davey, Roxbury; John P. Ferreria, Boston; George Christie, Roslindale; J. W. McDonald, Quincy; John H. Burns, Quincy; Pat Gilcoine, Quincy; John A. Fraser, South Braintree; Thomas Ferrulle, Boston; Albert Heuser, Roxbury; Walter G. Davidson, Ashmont; C. J. Cardie, Boston; Mike Romano, Boston.

135-pounds—C. H. Samuelson, Brockton; Joe White, East Boston; Bob Gerstel, Neponset; Vic Albonetti, Quincy; James D. Shea, Cambridge; Carl Hines, Roxbury; Louis DeSesso East Boston; James Googin, South Boston.

145-pound special——Ed Bennett, West Quincy; William Gale, Chelsea.

SPORTING "DOPE"

By B. A.

Don't Knock, Just Boost.—B. A.

Quincy High encounters the High school of Commerce eleven tomorrow afternoon at Merrymount park and it is sincerely hoped by all that the local aggregation will fare better on this coming occasion than it did against Medford High last Saturday. Coach Staff put the boys through some hard practise today and considerable changes will be tried in an effort to strengthen the positions in the lineup that are not quite up to the standard desired.

Young has proved himself to be an efficient pivot holder, while the work of Crane and McDonald in the backfield should warrant them demanding great attention in future games. The local boys are none the less discouraged over their recent defeat and will play hard to roll up a big score tomorrow afternoon.

Walter Lonergan, a member of the Red Sox team, and last year Captain of the Quincy "Champs" of the Old Colony League has averaged a percentage of 919 for the 9 games in which he played in the American league this season. He has 19 put outs and 15 assists to his credit, while 3 errors have been tabulaetd against his name.

The Boston Journal, in this morning's edition, contains the following: "The action of the Quincy High followers returning home by train after the Medford High game Saturday will probably be investigated by the school authorities of that city. Stopping trains and such rowdyism will not be tolerated by the railroad authorities. The trouble was probably caused by boys having no connection with the school.

According to what information we can obtain, no ungentlemanly conduct was noticeable that would require an investigation by the local school authorities. From what can be learned, no trains were stopped by any of the members of the local eleven, or their followers, and according to the two members of the faculty who accompanied the boys, there was no such action committed that could be termed "rowdyish."

It is not expected that supreme quiet will prevail when a team and its admirers are returning home and we are constrained to believe that the local boys are not guilty of any such incrimination, as the above article would have a tendency to convey. Evidently the Journal has been misled in giving vent to such criticism.

E. T. Marceau, a well known local runner, was the first at the finish in the hare and hound contest held last Saturday over a rough seven mile course in Needham under the auspices of the Technology Athletic Association. He won by a slight margin. Young Marceau will compete in the open handicap "Tech" games, to be held at Tech Oval next Saturday.

METHODS OF TWO PILOTS COMPARED

Diamond Tactics of Mack and McGraw Are Different.

THE LATTER SEEKS LIMELIGHT

Manager of New Yorks Revels In Hurling Sarcasm From Side Lines at Umpire—On the Other Hand, Mack Likes to Hide In Players' Coop.

While Mack and McGraw have worked out winning combinations, their methods are totally different. McGraw, with his cocksure bearing, likes the center of the stage. He is before the eye of the crowd all the time, and his personality leaves an unmistakable impress on the spectator. Mack is different. His gaunt form never under any circumstances reveals itself to the spectator.

JOHNNY M'GRAW, LEADER OF THE GIANTS.

Mack has a policy of what might be called kindly strictness on the ball field. He runs his team with an iron hand, but the iron hand is covered with a soft glove, and the players forget that it is an iron hand. He accomplishes with diplomacy, semisarcasm and tact what others fail to do with a roughshod manner. Mack has an expressive face, wonderfully expressive, and a look is sufficient sometimes to convey to the player the thoughts of the manager.

McGraw will test Mack's genius. Both as a player and a manager McGraw has always been associated with successful teams. As a player he was a member of the famous Baltimore team of the '90's, which was one of the greatest ever organized.

McGraw is a close student of the game. Like Mack, he is constantly watching the opposing batsmen. He doesn't rest until he knows their weakness, and in a crisis it is McGraw, and not Catcher Myers, who gives the pitcher the sign for the kind of ball to be pitched.

McGraw's methods are in direct contrast to those of Mack's. He is of a combative disposition. In fact, the only smirch on his reputation is umpire nagging. He has kicking down to a science.

—Philadelphia may well be envied in that most of her population of 1,600,000 live in real homes, as distinguished from apartments or flats. In more than one instance people have removed from Somerville, says the Journal of that city because of the difficulty in finding a single house, with yard room for young children, at a moderate price.

FORMER BANKER OUT ON PAROLE

Fought For Release Ever Since Going to Prison

Leavenworth, Kan., Oct. 16.—John R. Walsh, the former Chicago banker, was released from the federal penitentiary here shortly after noon Saturday.

Accompanied by his son, Richard, who had arrived from the north a short time before, they entered an automobile and started for Kansas City, where they boarded an evening train for Chicago.

Walsh was given $5, a railroad ticket to Chicago and $75 he had on deposit in the prison office. He is 73 years old and in poor health. He was indicted at Chicago in January, 1908, on 150 counts alleging misapplication of the funds of the Chicago bank, of which he was president, for promotion of private enterprises.

He was sentenced to five years on each of the fifty-four counts on which he was convicted and entered the penitentiary in January, 1909. His case was one of the most important in the country. In some form his rights have been in question before the federal government almost ever since his conviction.

TWO KILLED IN WRECK

Sixteen Freight Cars Hit Passenger Train Standing In Station

Berlin, Conn., Oct 16.—Frank Shook of East Hartford, an engineer, and Frank Dehm of New Britain, who was on the engine with him, were killed and five passengers were slightly injured at Berlin Junction, when sixteen runaway freight cars struck a passenger train of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad bound from the junction to New Britain.

The cars broke away from a switching engine at the top of an incline and ran into the engine of the passenger train driving the tender its full length into a combination baggage and passenger coach. The second coach was driven half way into the last coach, and the latter was thrown on the south-bound tracks of the main line.

LT. GOVERNOR FROTHINGHAM RECEIVES GREAT OVATION AT RALLY. CITY FATHERS HAD ON FIGHTING "TOGS" AT COUNCIL MEETING.

FROTHINGHAM ON COST OF LIVING

Republican Candidates Conclude An Aggressive Day's Campaigning In Norfolk County By Holding A Monster Rally In Alpha Hall. Notable Speeches Were Heartily Received. Meeting Preceded By Short Parade With Plenty of Red Fire

Holding forth in a celebration of the rare variety and "heckled" in no way by any prospective or inquisitive suffragettes, the first republican rally, in local circles, in the interests of Hon. Louis A. Frothingham, and the entire state ticket of republican nominees, was held in Alpha Hall Monday evening, and was ushered in under most glorious conditions. It was indeed a grand rally, and the many interesting features that attended it, caused Quincy Square and vicinity to present a spectacle, such as is wont to be noticeable on the evening of the Fourth of July. The rally was scheduled for 8 o'clock, but for fully an hour previous to that time, things had begun to take a lively boom.

A brass band had been furnished for the occasion and marched through the various streets in the Square section, playing the popular airs. Red fire was in evidence in great abundance, and there was not a youngster to be seen but who had a flaming torch in his hand, ready to greet the arrival of the republican expounders of eloquence.

Previous to entering the hall, the leading republicans fell in line and amid a blaze of glory, the speakers were escorted along Hancock street, through School street and around by Granite street, headed by the brass band.

When arrival was made at Alpha Hall, there was a great demonstration and also a great hurry for seats. Every one available was taken, and many were forced to stand in the rear of the hall. Yet all seemed eager to hear the various speakers discuss the issues of the day. As the spellbinders wended their way along to the platform, they were greeted with great applause.

The chairman of the evening was Representative Louis F. R. Langelier, and the speakers were Hon. Louis A. Frothingham, Hon. Robert Luce, Hon. Elmer A. Stevens, Hon. John E. White Hon. George L. Barnes, candidates for governor, Lieutenant governor, treasurer, state auditor, and senate respectively. James F. Cavanaugh, representative for Everett also spoke. The chairman stated that Joseph H. Walker, speaker of the House, and State Secretary Langtry had been prevented from attending on account of illness.

The candidate for governor did not arrive as early as the other speakers, as he came later in company with Senator Barnes, who was holding a rally in Weymouth.

As Mr. Frothingham entered the hall, he was received with enthusiastic applause. As he stood upon the platform, some one shouted "What's the matter with Frothingham?" The answer immediately went back, "He's all right."

The platform was filled with republicans, evidently the van guards of the G. O. P. candidates. Those noticeable in this section of the hall were, John F. Merrill, candidate for County Commissioner, Walter C. Piper, candidate for representative from the fifth Norfolk, William J. Leslie, candidate for representative from the sixth Norfolk Henry P. Kittridge, Eugene R. Stone, William J. Teasdale, Charles W. Johnson, Frank F. Prescott, Hon. John O. Hall, Frederick E. Tupper, Ira M. Whittemore, Alfred Diack Alexander Clark, John B. Bass, Richard Bishop, Charles H. Owens, Arthur W. Rohn, Arthur W. Newcomb and Herbert S. Barker.

MR. FROTHINGHAM SAID:

Last year Mr. Foss had a great deal to say about the cost of living. He received many votes on account of the high prices which then ruled for some of the necessaries of life. He said that these high prices were due to the Republican party and apparently many voters believed him. He went further and said that if the Democrats were successful and he were elected prices would be reduced.

As a business man, Mr. Foss knew perfectly well that the tariff duties had nothing to do last year with the cost of those articles which enter into daily consumption for on those articles the tariff duties were either the same as in the Dingley bill or were lowered by the Payne Aldrich bill. As a business man he must have known, for instance, that the high price of all pork products, which had risen more than anything else, was due to the fact that owing to the advance in the price of corn Western farmers found it more profitable to sell their corn than to use it to fat-

NEW EDIFICE OF PARK AND DOWNS CHURCH

Is Beautiful and Imposing. First Service In New Building to be Held on Thanksgiving Day

DEDICATED IN JANUARY

The parishioners of the Park and Downs Congregational church will have a double cause for rejoicing on Thanksgiving Day, when they will hold their first service in the new church edifice.

The service will be a simple one, nothing of a dedicatory nature being contemplated until the early part of January, when a series of services will be held.

The new church as it stands today, practically completed directly opposite the Massachusetts Fields school and surrounded by green trees, makes a beautiful picture and is a notable addition to Wollaston.

The building is of Quincy granite and is of the Gothic and Spanish mission type, windows of colored leaded glass leading a pleasing effect to the interior, James H. Ritchie of Boston was the architect. E. H. Sears of Wollaston is the contractor.

The building measures on the exterior 85 feet in length, 55 feet in width with an approximate height of 65 feet.

The main entrance is on Rawson road, with side entrances on Hamilton street and the Beach street side.

The main auditorium will have seating accommodations for 340 and consists of a clear story supported by pillars on each side. In the rear is a gallery with a seating capacity of 140. There is a choir loft for 36 people, pastors room, choir room and organ space. The chancel is 14 feet deep, 16 feet wide and 25 feet high. The interior of the building is finished in cypress with exposed beams and spans.

In the basement is a ladies parlor 48 by 15, a Sunday school department of divided class rooms accommodating 400 and a separate infant department of 240. Other features are a kitchen and pantry with all modern appliances, library, dressing rooms, coat rooms etc. The entire vestry may be thrown open into one large space in event of entertainments and the like.

The lighting of the building is especially adequate, the auditorium being lighted by 28 windows consisting of 12 triple, 12 double and 4 single. The Sunday school has a series of 16 double windows. An excellent ventilating system is being installed, 3 ducts and an electric fan being placed to draw off the used air. The heating will be done by steam.

The ground was first broken for the new building on April 5, 1911 when a jollification meeting was held. From this time work has been rushed to completion. On June 4 impressive exercises attended the laying of the corner stone.

The first building of the society was dedicated on February 22, 1896 and stood on Rawson road, between Willet street and Hampden circle.

Following a vote of the society on August 24, 1899 the church was moved to its present site on Hamilton street and a vestry built under it. This did not improve the appearance of the building and in 1903 a movement was started for alterations. At a meeting on April 14, 1905 this was changed and definite steps were taken for the erection of a new building.

From this date up to the present time the congregation has been unceasingly at work with the result that the object of their labors is now almost attained.

INTERESTING TALK ON ALASKA

The ladies of the Wollaston Methodist church were the guests on Monday afternoon of Mrs. Fownes at her home on Pine street, when the sister of the hostess, Mrs. Ada Faulkner delivered a highly entertaining talk on the people and customs of "Alaska."

Mrs. Faulkner has just returned from that country where her daughter is a missionary and brought with her many curious which lent added interest to the subject.

At the close of the lecture, those present enjoyed the hospitality of the hostess, dainty refreshments being served. Altogether it was one of the most enjoyable afternoons the ladies have experienced.

STILL SUFFERING.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur V. Curtis with their two daughters Lucille and Mildred of Washington, D. C., and Mrs. H. A. Spear of Walpole, Mass., are guests of their parents Mr. and Mrs. John Evans of West Quincy, coming on to cheer their father in his convalescence from the serious auto accident he sustained recently. It is a new experience for them to see their father confined to his home. He has always been so strong and full of life that it was too bad an auto had to run onto the sidewalk after him. Today Dr. Reynolds is to put him under the X-ray to see if any of the bones in his knee cracked.

ORDER FOR CROSSWALK DEFEATED

Councilmen Decide That There Are Enough In City Square And That Money Could Be Better Expended In Making the Square "What It Ought To Be." Councilman Craig Says It Now Resembles A Baseball Diamond. Important Matters Considered

The impression was that Monday night's meeting of the City Council would be brief, for while there was a number of important matters to be acted upon it was not thought that any of them would meet with much opposition. The Council had on its fighting togs however and the air was full of fireworks until adjournment, which was not reached until 11 o'clock.

The first debate started over a motion of Councilman Studley to have two polling places at the city caucuses in Wards Four and Six. There was considerable debate on the question but the motion was defeated. There was then a little quiet spell until matters in the calendar were taken up. The first order was that appropriating $2,500 to replank Neponset bridge. There was a great flow of oratory on this order. President Bryant eventually took the floor, with Councilman Smith in the chair. Just how long the debate on this question would have continued is a question, if Councilman Branch had not taken advantage of rule 11 and objected to any Councilman speaking more than twice on the question.

The Council was in a debating mood however and nearly every matter in the calendar was discussed. Some were passed and others killed outright, while a number that were killed were reconsidered and laid on the table to be fought over again at another meeting.

Councilman Cherrington was the only absent member, although some of the Councilmen left early to attend the rally.

STEAM ROLLER.

The Mayor in a communication called attention to the need of another steam roller. The city was now hiring a roller, with the privilege of buying if it desired. Referred to the Finance Committee.

WIRING.

The Commissioner called attention to the electric wiring at the High school. It was useless to try and do any more repairing and he recommended an appropriation of $350 to rewire the school. Referred to the Finance Committee.

SCHOOL FURNISHINGS.

The Commissioner in a communication stated that it would cost $6,450 to furnish the Wollaston school and $3,550 to furnish the Montclair school. Referred to Committee on Public Buildings.

CONSTABLES.

Communications were received from the Mayor appointing Robert W. Smith, Charles C. Powers and Carmine Coletti as constables. Confirmed.

WASHINGTON STREET.

The Mayor forwarded a plan for the widening of Washington street to 66 feet in width. Referred to Committee on Streets.

HANCOCK STREET.

The Mayor forwarded a suplementary plan for the widening of Hancock street near the Ledger office. Laid on the table until later, when Councilman Gardner offered an order for a public hearing on the widening, Nov. 6. Adopted.

RETAINING WALL.

The Mayor forwarded a plan with estimate, for a retaining wall on River road, Houghs Neck, to protect the land from being washed away by the tide. The estimate of cost was $9,000. Referred to Committee on Streets.

CITY ENGINEER.

The Mayor forwarded a communication from the City Engineer asking for an appropriation of $300 to carry on the work of his department. Referred to Finance Committee.

A petition was received from the N. E. T. & T. Co. for attachments on Granite street. Granted.

A petition was received from N. E. T. & T. Co. for a joint location for poles Sea street. Referred to Committee on Streets.

TRACK LOCATION.

A petition was received from the Bay State Street Railway Co. for a change of location of tracks at Squantum. Referred to Committee on Streets.

PETITIONS.

Several petitions were received for minor licenses and referred to the Committee on Licenses.

A petition for lights on Birch street was referred to the Executive.

A petition for lights on Farrington street was referred to the Executive.

LICENSES.

The Committee on Licenses reported orders granting minor licenses which was adopted.

DR. EVERETT ESTATE.

The joint Committee on Finance and Public Buildings reported recommending that the petitions relative to the purchase of the Dr. Everett estate be referred to the next City Council. Report accepted.

STREET BETTERMENTS.

The Finance Committee reported an order apportioning street betterment assessments. Adopted.

SEWERS.

The Committee on Sewers reported on the communication of the Commissioner asking for $6,000 for sewers on Willard and Centre street. The Committee recommended that the communication be placed on file. Accepted.

MR. HOBBS WILL NOT BE CANDIDATE

Ex-Councilman Ralph W. Hobbs, who was a candidate for Mayor at the last municipal election against Mayor Shea, has set the minds of the voters at ease in regard to his candidacy for the nomination this year, for in the following letter to the Daily Ledger he says that he will not be a candidate.

RALPH W. HOBBS

Editor of the Quincy Daily Ledger:

Dear sir:—I have been urged by many friends to again be a candidate for the office of Mayor of the City of Quincy.

I fully appreciate the honor of that position, but because I do must decline.

In return for the honor one should give to the City his best efforts, which I feel I cannot do during the coming year.

Thanking you in advance for the courtesy of space in your paper for this I am, Sincerely yours.

Ralph W. Hobbs.

—Poor men cannot buy space in newspapers like rich men. They cannot hire workers to run for them. They cannot hire a hall to tell voters why they should be elected. Perhaps we shall conclude that no man shall be allowed to do anything whatever for himself as a candidate and no money shall be spent other than that spent by the public for necessary machinery of the election.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

California having voted for the recall, the judges must get out on the street and shake hands with the voters like other politicians.

The discovery of Columbus was celebrated October 12 in the rural districts by discovering some new jobs to keep the small boy occupied.

The farmer who raises a good quantity of corn with red ears does not have to pay much to farm help to get it husked.

Suffrage being beaten in California the woman must continue to control things by the masculine agents whom they send to the polls every year, as in other states.

Mr. Taft says the Panama canal will be opened July 1, 1913, and those of us who can't afford a ticket will have to start out to walk down before long.

From the positiveness with which some people claim the guilt and others the innocence of the McNamara brothers, such a little formality as a judge or jury seems unnecessary.

Anxiety is expressed about the Americans at Wu Chang, which the Chinese rebels have captured, but probably the only calamity with which they are threatened is the non-delivery of their laundry bundle.

There is talk of an armistice between Italy and Turkey, and as the war has accomplished its most important end by assuring everyone a pension, it is perhaps time to stop fighting.

Mr. Taft's travels are considerably made fun of, but there are a good many political truths not to be acquired by communing with Washington office holders and running over to New York to take Wall street's temperature.

BASE BALL AND ITS PRIZES.

The shades of our solemncholy forefathers would utter profuse exclamation points, could they see the mob of people that will attend the games this week between the New York Giants and the Philadelphia Athletics.

Back in the simple early days of Princeton college, the institutional laws called games played with a stick and ball "low and unbecoming to gentlemen," on account of the "alternate heats and colds of the violent exercise" and the tendency to accident. In 1868, the Yale Courant predicted that the frequent accidents would "rid the country of able bodied men."

Today the same kind of black coated dignitaries that wrote those fearsome predictions will be quietly slipping into the grand stand to see the world's championship awarded, and very likely wilting their collars under the strain and sweat of rooting.

The 1909 world's series of these games drew 145,295 people, with gate receipts of $188,302. This year's games with the great home backing of these two rival teams to draw upon, will produce a bigger crowd.

The golden stream of dollars signified by such assemblages haunts the dreams of many a college boy. His father, with his threadbare college professor's coat, may have called the game "low and unbecoming" but it looks high and becoming to the youngster as he reflects on Ty Cobb's $20,000 per.

The surgings of base ball fever in the heart of youth will never again be cured by laws and anathemas. But there are certain facts about average base ball salaries that can be tactfully presented by the foxy parent to the youth who looks to base ball as a gold mine for the man who does the mining.

There is the fact as stated by "Outing" magazine a few months ago, that the salary of the average player of the American and National League is about $2,000 for the base ball months. When you consider that the average player is good for about 10 years, there is much point in Christy Mathewson's warning: "Keep out of base ball unless you are a star."

SMUGGLERS BROUGHT TO TERMS.

The customs records at New York show that the number of incoming passengers who acknowledged dutiable goods during September was more than twice the number of a year ago. The better enforcement of the customs law has evidently stiffened many wobbly consciences.

At the same time, there must be a host of travellers who are still gambling on their own ability to keep their faces straight in the presence of the inspectors.

Loud voices of lament are heard from travellers, regarding the obnoxious requirements of the law, and the barbarous reception to our home coming citizens. Some of the comic papers print heart rending pictures about women who are compelled by men inspectors to undress in the publicity of the steamship wharf.

But as every one must know, when any undressing is to be done, it takes place in a private room before an inspector of the same sex. A rich haul of dutiable goods is secured in this way from women who have the manners of society queens and look as righteous as a deacon. An exterior appearance of sanctity should not be enough to get by the gate.

Skilled inspectors can usually identify these perjurers at sight. Few people can silence the tell-tale signals of twitching eyelids and heightened color and shaky voice.

A general spirit of prevarication seizes on a large section of our home comers. Every tourist is supposed to declare the number of parcels of baggage he took away with him and the number he brought home. Citizens supposed to entertain lofty ideals of civic virtue will advise fellow passengers to falsify their declaration, by reporting the same number taken abroad and the same number brought home, as an increase in baggage excites the suspicions of the inspector.

After all a lie is a lie, and perjury is perjury. We teach our boys that no liar can be a gentleman. We feel that an appearance of frankness is needed to get on in the world. But any old kind of dealing is good enough for God and Uncle Samuel.

A DUMB COMPLAINT.

When a dog comes up to you wagging his tail, he is trying to make you understand that he takes you for a gentleman and a friend. Don't abuse his confidence with a kick. He has paid you a great compliment and has a right to expect courtesy in return.—Our Dumb Animals.

A VACATION ECHO.

Pussy Cat! Pussy Cat! Where have you been?
We read in our nursery rhyme,
Although I have not been to visit a Queen,
I've had many a jolly good time.

I have motored with friends to old Marblehead,
And felt the breath of the sea;
The lobster and clams were singing a dirge,
As we bowled along merrily.

For well they know the appetite keen
Of all who came their way,
And South Boston dames, you may be sure,
Were never behind in the fray.

We have seen the "sights" on the beach at Revere,
Ate pop-corn and ice cream cones,
The scenic railway proved great fun,
For some of the "sporty" ones.

Through country lanes, by river and lake,
Past meadows, sweet and green,
We have sped along with never a thought,
But the beauty of the scene.

The farms spread out on either hand,
Were tempting beyond measure;
Squash, corn and beans, and other good things,
We carried home with pleasure.

A jolly crowd, you may be sure,
No matter what the weather.
We only knew, that life is sweet,
When good fellows get together.

To cap it all came Grahame-White,
With his wonderful flying machine.
On Squantum field, we realized
The dream of Darius Green.

'Twas a glorious sight, when high in the heavens,
He soared toward the setting sun,
Then like a bird, sped far away,
Away from the city's hum.

Soon the lights of the city twinkled,
Like jewels in the sky,
Another day had slipped away
But man had learned to fly.

The sports were over, but, Oh, the crowd,
As it wended its homeward way,
Carriage and cart and automobile,
And almost "the one horse shay."

Old and young, in gala attire,
Tooting of horns galore,
Leaving the birds on the meadows,
To the quiet of Squantum shore.

My summer has gone, but memory,
Will hold it ever dear
And may the friends who shared it,
Be right on hand next year.

CHINA SETTING ARMY IN MOTION

Government Fully Realizes Gravity of the Rebellion

TELEGRAPH LINES ARE OPEN

Pekin, Oct. 17.—Simultaneously with the acceptance by Yuan Shi-Kai of the post of viceroy of Hu-Peh and Hunan provinces, to which territory he is directed to proceed immediately, to re-establish the imperial authority, the Chinese government is showing remarkable activity, even in the face of a depleted treasury.

The government seems to realize at last the necessity of promptly crushing the rebellion and now is dispatching the army to the scene of the revolt as hastily as preparations can be made.

A few messages are beginning to arrive from the south, which for several days was entirely cut off from telegraphic communication. But though the lines are open, few details of the situation in the affected provinces are filtering in.

It is believed, however, that a certain measure of order is being maintained at Wu-Chang and Hankow.

Outside of the foreign concessions in Hankow, these two cities are in the hands of the revolutionists, and the fact that all the women and children have left, or are leaving Hankow, indicates that the forces under the insurgent leaders, well armed and well mutioned from the arsenal stores, are preparing to resist the Chinese army.

The reinforcement of the American legation guard of 100 men, who are proceeding from Manila, while not significant of danger, nevertheless is indicative of the seriousness of the situation even in Pekin.

Chinese respect for foreigners, which is often cringing, continues to be up to the customary standard. This is due largely to the lesson of 1900, and it is not believed that the legation quarter will be subjected to more than inconveniences, owing to the rise in the prices of foodstuffs and possibly disorders in the native city.

An indication of the activity being displayed by the government is given in the dispatch from Pao-Ting-Fu, which refers to twenty-four army trains in the last three days. After the departure of a single passenger train today the railroad the railway between Pekin and Tien-Tsin will be closed to all but troop traffic.

General Yin Tchang, the minister of war, who will have chief command of the government troops, is a small, thin, queueless Manchu. The German and Austrian officers, who hold the general's greatest confidence, report that he has not entire faith in the Chinese troops.

According to the Chinese people generally the Manchus were tolerable when they protected the country, but now are worthless. The vast body of Chinese sympathize with the revolutionists.

The situation depends on money and it is admitted that the ready funds of the Chinese government are low. Further loans by foreign bankers have been refused. If the pay of the troops is increased and is regularly forthcoming, and if the men are well fed, they may not desert or rebel. The feeling in Pekin is not which army is the stronger, but which is the less feeble, the less disorganized.

PRESIDES AT SUNDAY SCHOOL UNION

Quite a number were present from Quincy, Monday evening, at the meeting of the Unitarian Sunday School Union, which was held at the Second church, Copley Square, Boston. Considerable local interest is taken in the the union this year from the fact that Charles H. Johnson, superintendent of the Sunday school of the First Church, is the president of the union. This was the first meeting of the year and in opening President Johnson made a few opening remarks of welcome. Supper was served in the church from 6 to 7 o'clock and the meeting opened at the latter hour.

The program included addresses by Rev. William I. Lawrence, Mrs. Clara T. Guild, Mrs. Chandler W. Smith and Rev. Samuel A. Eliot.

President Johnson received a royal greeting at the opening and presided with his usual dignity.

S. OF V. FAIR.

In this edition Camp 95, Sons of Veterans give notice of their fair to be held in Faxon hall next week. The Camp assisted by the Ladies' Auxiliary and allied patriotic orders have been arranging for this event for some time and it promises to be on a par with the old time Grand Army fairs which for so many years held the public favor. The local Camp is making a steady, healthy growth and promises to be one of the leading camps of the Massachusetts Division.

—The newspapers that refer to Lieutenant Governor Fothingham as the "machine candidate" for governor seem to forget that he was nominated by "the people" under the new direct primary law. Of what earthly use is this new law if we are to hear the same talk about "machine candidates?"—Chelsea Record.

B. P. O. E.

The entertainment committee of Quincy lodge of Elks met Monday night to arrange for a series of entertainments the coming winter months. It was decided to open the season with a whist and dancing party at Alpha hall. After that, weekly whist parties will probably be held at the club house. The committee promises to give desirable prizes at each party and in addition prizes for the best season's scores. The date for the opening party has not been decided.

PRICES TO BE ADVANCED

Sad News For Lovers of Cup That Cheers but Not Inebriates

Washington, Oct. 17.—Tea drinkers, especially those who prefer the Chinese blends, may soon find the price of their luxury advancing in the wake of coffee and sugar as a result of the treasury department's strict ruling against importations of teas artifically colored.

The order has already resulted in turning from American ports several hundred pounds of Chinese tea treated with Prussian blue, talc and other chemicals. Customs officials foresee in consequence a sharp advance in the prices of Chinese teas.

Woman Killed In Auto Wreck

Barre, Vt., Oct. 17.—An automobile party was thrown into a ditch by the skidding of the machine and Mrs. Odule Gilbert of Graniteville was so crushed that she died. Charles Gilbert, her son, had an arm broken. Odule Gilbert was driving the car and said after the accident that he thinks he must have fallen asleep.

5 VOTES

RULES GOVERNING CONTEST:

Boys and Girls, have you any idea how popular you are? Here is a chance for you to find out; and also secure one of the Six (6) GOLD WATCHES, to be distributed November 4th, 1911 among the Most Popular Boys and Girls under 17 years of age.

HOW TO OBTAIN YOUR VOTES:—For the next sixty days every S. & H. Green Trading Stamp which you and your parents and friends get, should be pasted in the S. & H. Stamp Book as usual. You, and your friends who vote for you, will show these stamps to the attendant in the S. & H. Premium Parlor in the Quincy Department Store. The attendant will count and mark them "VOTED"; register the number of votes (equal to the number of Stamps shown) opposite the name voted for. The Stamps will then be returned to the holder.

The Quincy Daily Ledger will publish a Ballot which, when presented at our Premium Parlor, will entitle the Contestant to five (5) votes.

Various merchants will also publish coupons, each entitling the holder to five (5) votes in the same way.

It is important that you not only urge your friends to get the S. & H. Stamps whenever they make purchases, but also vote them for you. Get all you can. Vote them for yourself or for someone else in whom you are interested.

Profit by your mother's example in Thrift and Economy by collecting S. & H. Green Trading Stamps, which bring you so Generous a reward in Beautiful Premiums.

You will materially swell the number of Stamps you get, and the consequent votes you obtain, if you will bring us your HAMILTON BONDS and COUPONS, Tobacco Tags, Soap Wrappers, Labels and Trade-Marks. We will give you S. & H. Green Trading Stamps for them.

VOTING THE STAMPS DOES NOT IN ANY WAY INTERFERE WITH THEIR BEING REDEEMED FOR PREMIUMS IN THE USUAL WAY.

STEEL vs. WOOD

DOROTHY Q. LODGE SOCIAL

Was Held In Odd Fellows Hall Wollaston, Monday Evening

COMMITTEE IN CHARGE

A large number of members and friends enjoyed the social of the Dorothy Q. lodge of Odd Ladies held in Odd Fellows Hall, Wollaston, on Monday evening.

The following program of readings and vocal and instrumental music took place and was greatly enjoyed by those present:

Piano solo—Miss Marie Purdy.
Vocal solo—Miss Irma Douglas.
Banjo solo—Robert Bliss.
Song—George Cahill.
Violin Solo—Charles Purdy.
Song—Four young Misses.
Reading—James Cahill.

The entertainment concluded with a mirth provoking farce entitled "The greatest plague in life." This dealt with the servant problem and there were many laughable situations. The parts were all well taken and greatly applauded.

The cast was as follows:

Mrs. Bustle—Mrs. Prudence Brown.
Mary Bustle—Miss Ruth Cahill.
Granmother Bustle—Mrs. Lydia Collett.
Biddy o'Rafferty—Mrs. Mary Douglas.
Kitty Clover—Mrs. Mary Jones.
Miss Moonshine—Miss Irma Douglas.
Bridget Maguire—Miss Clara Bennett.
Hazy Black—Miss Stella Cummings.

Following the play refreshments were served. Responsible for the success of the affair was a committee composed of Mrs. L. W. Collett, Mrs. Kitty Livingstone and Mrs. A. L. Gray.

MEETING OF BOY SCOUTS ON FRIDAY

Every boy in South Quincy and Quincy centre between the ages of 11 and 14, who is interested in woodcraft, scouting, tracking, signalling, military manoeuvres and other things of a like nature should attend the meeting of Boy Scouts in Y. M. C. A. hall Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The policy of the scout masters this year will differ somewhat from last year's and an attempt will be made to take things of interest to all. The object of this first meeting is to ascertain how many boys in the above named sections of the city would like to join a patrol. The boys of the other districts will be met later.

—When such men as John Hays Hammond, Archbishop O'Connell, Bishop Lawrence, John Mitchell and others of that kind go out of their way to say a good word for the Free Home for Consumptives at Dorchester it may be assumed by the average person that the institution is not only a good one, but well worthy of support. The battle against tuberculosis will be a long one, but there is absolutely no reason why it should not be successfully finished within the life of the present generation if only all the methods of attack are used which are available.—Boston Herald.

Wm MATTSON STILL LEADS

In Contest for Beautiful Gold Watches

THE VOTE

William Mattson still leads this week, but the margin of votes between him and Chester French is very small. Great Rivalry exists between them. Theodore Main is in third place this week. There still remains time for hustlers to enter and get one of these beautiful watches displayed in the windows of the Quincy Department Store.

The leaders in girls' contest remain the same as last week. The girls do not hustle like their boy friends. Come girls get busy and be one of the lucky girls to sport a Gold Watch. Still time to enter.

DIVORCE GRANTED.

Silas B. Duffield, Jr., formerly of Quincy, where he was well known as an artist, was granted a divorce Monday by Judge Hardy in the Suffolk county court, from his wife, Margaret S. Duffield, who it is claimed deserted him after living with him one day.

Duffield testified that he was married to a Seattle, Wash., girl, June 6, 1903, the girl at that time was attending school in Boston. He then had a studio in Boston. When he returned from his studio the next day, his wife had disappeared and he had not seen her since. On inquiry he learned that she had gone back to her parent's home in Seattle.

THE COST OF LIVING

Noted New England Men Will Figure In the Investigation

Washington, Oct. 17.—Five New England men will have an important part in the investigation of the cost of living that will be started by the senate committee on interstate commerce on Nov. 15. They are Senators Crane, Lippitt and Brandegee, who are members of the committee, and President Emeritus Eliot of Harvard and President Hadley of Yale, who wil assist the committee.

While congress may not fix the prices on food, there are several bills pending that are aimed to bring about a system of minimum wages and maximum prices for the necessities of life. Among them are a bill for the creation of an interstate trade commission, a bill to make more radical the provisions of the Sherman anti-trust law, a bill to prohibit the sending of telegraphic messages relating to the sale of grain for future delivery, and numerous others of similar character.

HONORED BY CLUB MEMBERS

John L. Hamilton Receives Token of Appreciation

MR. HANNON'S TALK

At a smoker held by the Men's club of St. Chrysostom's parish at the rectory on Monday evening, John L. Hamilton was presented with a pair of cuff links as a token of esteem from the members and in appreciation of his good work in behalf of the club.

In his remarks Mr. Hamilton said that the remembrance would always serve as links between himself and his friendship for the club and its members. The presentation speech was made by J. A. Severance.

At the business meeting, President Vibert appointed the following committees for the year: Entertainment committee: A. E. Holland, Theodore Parker, Percy L. Davidson. Reception committee: John L. Hamilton, George B. Curran, F. E. Cleveland, J. W. Hallett, G. P. Parker. Refreshment committee: J. A. Severance, C. E. Manchester, W. D. Purdom.

Mr. Hannon of All Saints church, Ashmont, was present and voiced an urgent invitation for the men of the club to be present at a series of missionary meetings to be held at that church.

The smoker was most informal and was the more enjoyed on that account. The main entertainment of the evening consisted in an interesting travel talk given by Mr. Hamilton of his trip abroad the past summer.

His tale of experiences on ship board and his description of the many things to be seen in Great Britain and France showed not only a keen appreciation of the beautiful, but a quick eye for observation.

One of the things called especially to the attention by the speaker was that although tips and "pour boires" were distributed with greater freeness abroad, they did not in the net amount to as much as in this country.

The speaker was accorded a hearty vote of thanks and adjournment was made for light refreshments.

DYNAMITE IN FRONT OF THE TAFT TRAIN

Watchman Has Gun Duel With Would-Be Wreckers

San Francisco, Oct. 17.——A report received here by officials of the Southern Pacific Railway company from C. B. Brown, section foreman for the road at Naples, Cal., described the discovery of thirty-six sticks of dynamite under the Cairtan viaduct, twenty miles north of Santa Barbara, four hours before President Taft's special train passed over the bridge en route to Los Angeles.

The dynamite was found after the watchman engaged in a revolver battle with two men who escaped. They were at the opposite end of the 1000-foot span and ran when ordered to halt.

The watchman hurried across the bridge, firing several shots as he did so, and they were returned. The pair escaped in the darkness.

UPROAR IN THEATRE

New Irish Play In Boston Meets Approval and Condemnation

Boston, Oct. 17.—Mingled hisses and clapping, expressions of enthusiastic approval and even more vehement condemnation, last night greeted the first production in America of J. S. Synge's "The Playboy of the Western World," by the Irish players at the Plymouth theatre.

Several prominent citizens of Boston were requested to leave the theatre when their expression of indignation was loud enough for others to hear. Two young men in the first balcony who were detected hissing during the first act were ejected by the large detail of police provided for just such an emergency by the management.

Sisters Brides at One Ceremony

Q.—The first man Adam became a living soul (I Corinthians xv, 45; Genesis ii, 7), the last Adam (the Lord from heaven, I Corinthian xv, 47) at His resurrection became a lifegiving spirit. In the general resurrection, will the first man Adam become a lifegiving spirit also?

Answer.—The Scriptures in outlining the Divine Program as it relates to the salvation of mankind plainly teach that the present Christian Era, from the time of our Lord's first advent to the time of His second coming, has been set apart for the purpose of selecting and developing a special class, the members of which in the resurrection will be changed from fleshly to spiritual conditions. In this present life these are said to be begotten of the spirit, then quickened of the spirit and finally born of the spirit in the resurrection morning. These are to be like their Lord and see Him as He is, changed from mortal to immortal conditions. All others, Adam included, are to be awakened unto a resurrection by judgment (John v, 28, 29—not damnation. See Revised Version), a raising up to perfection as human beings, and these are to inhabit the earthly plane of existence. Only the Lord Jesus and His joint-heirs, the Church of Christ, will inherit the Kingdom of Heaven, the heavenly or spirtual honors and blessings, while the world of mankind in general will obtain blessings and life eternal as natural or fleshly beings. See I Corinthians, xvth chapter.

Q.—Why were the Jews called "God's chosen people?" Were the ancient Jews different from the modern ones?

Answer.—Abraham was the father of the Jewish people. God made promise to him saying, "In thy Seed all the families of the earth shall be blessed." Jacob, the grandson of Abraham, had twelve sons, who became the head of the twelve tribes of Israel, or Jews. God made a covenant with this people, saying to them, "If ye will obey my voice indeed, and keep my covenant, then ye shall be a peculiar treasure unto me above all people, for all the earth is mine; and ye shall be unto me a kingdom of priests and an holy nation" (Exodus xix, 5, 6). For more than eighteen centuries God's dealings were with this people exclusively, as he said through His prophet, "Ye only have I known of all the families of earth" (Amos iii, 2). Time after time God reiterated His promise that the Messiah should come to them, and when Jesus came the masses of the Jews were not heeding God's promises; being led by the Clergy class, themselves negligent of the promises, therefore blind, as Jesus said, "Blind leaders of the blind," they rejected Jesus Christ and were cast off from God's favor (Matthew xxiii, 37-39). The words of our Lord clearly imply that God's favor will again return to this people; he said, "Ye shall not see me henceforth, till ye shall say, Blessed is He that cometh in the name of the Lord." The Apostles point out that God there began to turn his favor to the Gentiles, and when the requisite number have been selected from among these to constitute the Kingdom class, as promised, then God's favor will again be shown to the Jews as a people (see Romans xi, 1-5 and 25-28).

CRAZED BY DESERTION

Boy Husband Found Guilty of Trying to Kill His Wife

Plymouth, Mass., Oct 17.—A child wife's story of being slashed from ear to ear by her husband, Henry J. Paul, aged 21, a half-breed Middleboro Indian, was believed by a jury in the superior court, and Paul was found guilty of assault with intent to kill.

Paul on the stand declared his wife had deserted him and gone to live with her sister, driving him to such an insane fury that if he did slash her, he had no recollection of it. He said his life had been wrecked by her desertion and said he often pleaded with her to return.

VALUABLE CANE.

President Taft has among the souvenirs of his western trip a cane cut from a stump, which scientists declare was a tree before the glacial period. The wood was found in the valley of the south fork of the Old Man river in the southern part of the province of Alberta by Professor W. S. Foster, a geologist and explorer, living in Spokane. The cane, which is valued at $5,000, was presented by Elwin T. Coman, president of the chamber of commerce, on behalf of the people of Spokane, Washington.

"The stump, which stood in a peat bed, was found beneath 60 feet of glacial wash," said Professor Foster, giving a history of the discovery, "and preserved to the present day by one of the wonderful freaks of nature. The peat, from which the stump was taken, is on a sandstone formation and is about three feet in thickness. Seaweeds and flag-stocks found nearby also were well preserved.

"This peat bed was uncovered by the wearing away of the glacial wash by floods and the flow of the Old Man river. There is not the least question in my mind that the tree grew before the glacial period, more than 250,000 years ago, but so far I have not been able to ascertain the kind of wood it is.

"The discovery was made not long ago in the Frank district, which is 250 miles north of Spokane and fully 400 miles east of the Pacific ocean. The presence of well-preserved seaweed and flag-stock in abundance, buried under 60 feet of glacial deposit, appears to be sufficient proof of its antiquity, though I have much other evidence of scientific character to bear out all of my assertions.

"More than that, I am prepared to satisfy any one posted on such things by showing them the stump from which the wood was cut, also the formation in which the discovery was made."

A Georgia admirer says that Hoke Smith has 250 pounds of pull, but it isn't weighed that way in Washington.

JOHN M. HARLAN

Was Oldest Member of the United States Supreme Court

HARLAN'S BODY LAID AWAY

Members of the Supreme Court Act as Pall Bearers

Washington, Oct. 17.—The funeral of the late Justice John M. Harlan of the United States supreme court was held here today from the New York avenue Presbyterian church, with which the late jurist was long and prominently identified. The pastor, Rev. Dr. Wallace Radcliffe, officiated at the services and the pall bearers were the eight members of the United States supreme court. The interment, which was private, was in Rock Creek cemetery.

Plans for the erection of a great Presbyterian temple in honor of the memory of Harlan already are being considered here. It is suggested that $1,000,000 be raised by subscription throughout the country to build the temple.

Justice Harlan, during the latter years of his life, hoped to interest Presbyterians in the erection of a temple to be the meeting place of the governing body of the church, and the plan proposed by friends here is to carry out his idea and at the same time provide an appropriate memorial to the distinguished jurist.

PASTOR LAMBERT SCORED BY CLERGY

Tying of Astor-Force Nuptial Knot Strongly Disapproved

Providence, Oct. 17.—The action of Rev. Joseph Lambert in marrying John J. Astor to Miss Force was deplored in a resolution adopted by the Congregational Ministers' association of Rhode sland.

The resolution, after recounting the marriage at Newport last month and deploring the part that Lambert took in the matter, says:

"In order to make a repetition of such marriages impossible, we declare that no minister ought to marry guilty parties to divorce obtained on grounds of adultery, and that any minister who does so shall be considered as having forfeited his good standing as a Congregational minister."

CAVALIERI WANTS $75,000

Considers That Sum Due Her From Robert Chanler

Paris, Oct. 17.—Mme. Lina Cavalieri Chanler has given notice that she expects to be freed from Robert W. Chanler within two weeks.

"I was promised a sum of money by Mr. Chanler when I married him," she said. "He assured me an income of $20,000 a year. I have not seen a cent. We did not know each other sufficiently well before marriage. We did not understand each other.

"I have been a year without singing. London and Moscow pay me $1000 an evening; New York more. All I ask is that my husband pay me $75,000 which he prevented me from earning and we part good friends."

RETURNS $27,500 BOOTY

Thief Who Jumped Bail a Year Ago Also Pays $1000 Fine

Salem, Mass., Oct. 17.—A self-confessed copper thief, Philip Bloomfield of Chelsea restored $27,500 of property to the General Electric company of Lynn and paid a fine of $1000 in the superior court after pleading guilty to the larceny.

Bloomfield jumped $25,000 bail over a year ago and was searched for all over the country by a corps of detectives. Suit against his bondsmen had been instituted when he surrendered himself.

Virginia Bank Robbed

Clarkesville, Va., Oct. 17.—Burglars dynamited the vault of the Planters' bank here and, after a fusillade of shots, escaped with what is believed to be a large amount of money.

CITY COUNCIL

CROSSWALKS.

Councilman Richards offered an order for a crosswalk on Brooks avenue near Intervale street. Referred to Committee on Streets.

SEALER'S SALARY.

Councilman Ericson offered an order amending the salary ordinance so that the salary of the Sealer of Weights and Measures should be increased from $350 to $1,000 per year. Referred to Ordinance Committee.

LIGHTS.

Councilman Histen offered an order changing the incandescent light on the corner of Quincy avenue and Scammell street, to an arc light. Referred to Executive.

MORE CROSSWALKS.

Councilman Richards offered an order for a crosswalk at Centre street and Nightingale avenue. Referred to Committee on Streets.

Councilman Ross offered an order for a crosswalk on Revere road at Washington street. Referred to Committee on Streets.

STATE ELECTION.

Councilman Smith offered an order calling the state election. Adopted.

CAUCUSES.

Councilman Smith offered an order designating the polling places for the caucuses of Nov. 14. The order provided for one polling place in each ward.

Councilman Studley offered an amendment making two polling places in Wards Four and Six.

Councilman Smith and Duffy opposed. It was establishing a bad precedent.

Councilmen Studley, Sodergren and Richards favored. It was a great inconvenience to the voters of these wards having but one polling place.

The amendment was rejected and the original order adopted.

PUBLIC HEARINGS.

A public hearing was held at eight o'clock on the changing of the grade of Washington street at the approach to the Fore River bridge.

Engineer Whitman said that the street here had settled and necessitated being raised about a foot at the bridge and run back to the present grade near the entrance to the Patch coal sheds.

Frank S. Patch did not object, provided that the grade was not raised more than two inches at the entrance to his yard. If it was raised more than that he should apply for damages. The hearing then closed.

On motion of Councilman Gardner the matter was laid on the table until later, when he offered an order changing the grade which was ordered to a second reading.

At 8.10 there was a hearing on pole locations. Supt. Gammon of the street railway appeared in favor and none against. Hearing closed and order recommitted.

MORE LIGHT.

Councilman Duffy offered an order for a light at the foot of Edison park. Referred to Executive.

Councilman Ericson offered orders for a gas light on the foot way leading from Glendale road to Dixwell avenue and for other gas lights on Presidents hill. Referred to the Executive.

TRANSFERS.

Councilman Gardner offered an order transferring the Miscellaneous Highway receipts to the appropriation for highways. Referred to Finance Committee.

Councilman Gardner offered an order transferring the receipts from Gypsy and Brown-tail moth to the appropriation for Gypsy and Brown-tail moths. Referred to Finance Committee.

CITY SQUARE CROSSWALK.

The order for another crosswalk in City Square took its second reading and the rules were suspended.

Councilman Richards objected to more crosswalks in City Square. The money would be well expended in a comprehensive plan for making the square what it ought to be.

Councilman Ericson said if automobiles would not go through the Square at fifty miles an hour there would be no trouble.

Councilman Craig told of the many crosswalks in the Square, which now resembled a base ball diamond.

Councilmen Sodergren and Sandberg also objected and on roll call the order was killed 18 no and 2 yes.

NEPONSET BRIDGE.

The order for $2,500 to replank Neponset bridge took its second reading.

Councilmen Sandberg and Richards argued at length against the order. Councilman Sandberg said that the Commissioner had told the committee that he had expended $2,000 on the bridge. This was all but between the railway tracks, which would cost $500. He believed that this was up to the railway to do.

He asked the Commissioner a number of questions in regard to the so-called excise tax paid by the street railway and how it was that this was the first time that the city had to pay for planking between the rails.

The Commissioner said that he had put it up to the railway to plank between the rails, but they had hired a smart lawyer and he had decided that it was not up to the railroad and the City Solicitor said he could not make the railway do it.

Councilman Richards argued at length on the question. He said that corporations got everything they wanted, but would do nothing. He did not blame the Mayor for the expenditure as it was an extreme case but he would not agree to the $500.

Councilman Smith was called to the chair and President Bryant taking the floor said that the legislature passed a law relative to the Excise tax and the amount paid by the street railway in Quincy was between $4,000 and $5,000. The purpose of this fund was to take care of that part of the street in which tracks were located.

Neponset bridge was in a dangerous condition and the Mayor did just right in ordering the Commissioner to fix it.

Mayor Shea said that the Councilmen had no right to ask the Commissioner questions of law. That was another department. The street railway took the ground that in the franchise, when granted, nothing was said about the space between the tracks on the bridge and their lawyer had ruled that they were not obliged to pay for it. That question was still undecided and was being considered by the City Solicitor and the lawyer of the railway. As to the bridge, it became unsafe and he had ordered the Commissioner to go ahead and fix it, for if there had been an accident the city would have been liable to a suit. If it is not part of the duty of the street railway to pave the street, how are we going to make them do it?

Councilman Richards asked if the matter was under consideration now and the Mayor replied that it was.

Continuing, the Mayor said that the city had contracted the bills and the people wanted their money.

It was at this point that Councilman Branch said that he wanted to get home sometime and that under rule 11 he would object to any member speaking more than twice on the question.

Councilman Sodergren moved to lay it on the table. Motion lost on a rising vote 7 yes and 12 no.

Councilman Sandberg attempted to again speak on the question, but the acting President shut him off under the rules.

The question was on the suspension of the rules. On a rising vote of 12 yes and 6 no, the rules were suspended.

Councilman Nowland moved to make the amount $2,000. Motion lost.

The order was then put on its final passage and failed to pass 15 voting yes and 6 no.

The vote was reconsidered and the order laid on the table.

BATH HOUSE.

The order appropriating $700 to paint and repair the bath house took its second reading.

Councilman Sandberg moved that the order be referred to the Committee on Public Buildings. Motion lost on a rising vote. Eight yes and 11 no.

The rules were then suspended. There was another short debate over this order but it was finally passed on roll call 14 voting yes and 6 no.

GARBAGE.

The order appropriating $2,000 for garbage took its second reading.

Councilman Richards asked the City Auditor in regard to the amount of bonds coming due next year.

In reply to questions the Auditor said that next year there was $157,000 coming due and that the amount that came due this year was $117,000.

Councilman Richards believed that we should go slow.

Councilman Sandberg made a great point of what people would say about mortgaging the city's property to collect swill.

After some little debate the order was rejected on roll call 13 voting yes and 6 no.

GRANOLITHIC SIDEWALK.

The order appropriating $340 additional for a granolithic sidewalk on Elm avenue was a signal for another debate.

Councilman Sodergren objected. It seemed that Ward Five wants what no other ward can get.

Councilman Smith was called to the chair.

President Bryant, taking the floor, spoke at length on the order. He was sorry to see ward lines brought into the discussion. It was not right In this case the people were willing to pay the difference between the amount appropriated for tar concrete and granolithic.

Councilman Sandberg began to speak and referred to a Councilman by name, when he was brought up with a round turn by the acting President, who informed him that it was against the rules to refer to another member by name.

Councilman Sandberg took the call good naturedly and spoke at length against the order. When the people say they will pay the whole of the difference, then he would vote for it.

Councilman Nowland thought here was a chance to find some money for garbage.

Councilman Bailey said that he regretted ward lines had been referred to but it was a fact that where such sidewalks had been put in, the next year the assessors raised the valuation.

The order was then passed on roll 13 voting yes and 5 no.

SCAVENGER WORK.

The order appropriating $1,000 for scavenger work met a Waterloo being rejected on roll call by a vote of 11 yes and 7 no. The vote was reconsidered and the order laid on the table.

GAS MAINS.

The order granting the Gas Co. permission to lay gas mains on Fenno street was passed without a murmur. Seventeen yes and 1 no.

CONTAGIOUS DISEASES.

The order appropriating $7,490.73 for contagious diseases was passed without a dissenting vote on roll call.

RECONSIDERATION REFUSED.

Councilman Nowland moved to reconsider the vote on the order for $700 to paint and repair the bath house. Motion lost on a rising vote 6 yes and 11 no.

POLLING PLACES.

Councilman Sandberg moved to reconsider the vote on the order designating polling places for the caucuses. This met with considerable objection.

Councilman Sandberg wanted a rising vote on the question.

A roll call was requested and taken. On roll call the motion was rejected, 6 voting yes and 10 no as follows:

Yes—Craig, Jenkins, Nowland, Parlee, Sandberg, Sodergren—6.

No—Bailey, Bolster, Boyd, Branch, Campbell, Forde, Gardner, Histen, Ross, Smith—10.

Ajourned at 10.55 until Nov. 6.

HOUSEHOLD RECIPES.

Mixed Vegetable Soup. Six potatoes, two small turnips, two carrots, one head of celery, and one large slice of toasted bread. Chop the vegetables in small pieces, and simmer all together in six quarts of water for about three hours, until the whole is reduced to a pulp. Rub through a sieve and season to taste.

German Crisps.—Beat together two eggs with two cupfuls of sugar and add half a cupful of sour milk in which half a teaspoonful of soda has been dissolved. Sift in sufficient flour to make a soft dough. Knead lightly, roll out half an inch in thickness and cut in fancy shapes. Sprinkle in coarse sugar and nutmeats or press a whole almond in the centre. Bake in a quick oven.

Pork Chops with Apple Sauce. Lay the well-trimmed pork chops on a pan and bake in a hot oven till brown. Sprinkle with salt after they begin to brown. Drain from the fat and serve with baked potatoes and apple sauce. Cut six tart apples in quarters, remove the core and skin divide again and stew them in one cup of brown stock till tender and the liquor absorbed. Mash and beat till smooth and season slightly with salt and paprika.

Left over Lamb. Use the leftover lamb for a stew. Cut it into small pieces, boil them until they are tender with half an onion, salt and pepper. Then remove the onion, and blend the liquor with a little butter and flour—a level tablespoonful of each for an ordinary quantity—only enough is wanted to prevent a watery sauce. Then add peas drained from a can and a boiled carrot cut in fine dice. Bring to a boil and serve. A neck and shoulder of lamb may be used for this.—New York Sun.

Steamed Chocolate Pudding. Cream one-half cup of butter with one cup of sugar, add the yolks of two eggs beaten light and one cup of milk. Melt one square of chocolate over hot water, add to the batter with two cups of flour sifted with two level teaspoons of baking powder. Add the whites of the two eggs beaten stiff and pour into buttered cups. Steam three-quarters of an hour and serve with a liquid or hard sauce.

$100 REWARD, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

ROOSTER COAL BRIQUETS

NO SLATE NO CLINKERS

ROOSTER COAL BRIQUETS

THE NEW ANTHRACITE COAL

ROOSTER BRIQUETS are made from the choicest small Scranton Anthracite coal, mined in Pennsylvania, called TWENTIETH CENTURY CHESTNUT size

Just consider for a moment what we offer here in this 20th CENTURY CHESTNUT.

First, 2000 pounds of clean, pure, hard coal without a rock or a piece of slate.

Second, fuel that cannot form into a clinker, by any known method of firing, consequently the linings and grates last indefinitely.

Third, they are made in nut size, being equally convenient for furnace heaters, open grates, as well as stoves; therefore, only one storage bin is necessary.

Fourth, and very IMPORTANT, the quality of this fuel is the SAME EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR, not a good ton today, and nothing like it the next time, in other words, when you once learn how to regulate your drafts you have nothing more to learn about burning BRIQUETS.

Fifth, no more sifting ashes these Briquets burn out clean. They require less wood to kindle.

Be sure to ask for "ROOSTERS" and get the Briquet made from pure Scranton Coal, from the largest Briquet plant in the country. They are better than coal, will last as long and cost less.

The Fighting Hope

Novelized by
VIRGINIA LEILA WENTZ
From the Play by
WILLIAM J. HURLBURT

Copyright, 1911, by American Press Association

For a full hour, white faced and staring, she scarcely moved. It was not that she for a moment suspected her husband's loyalty to her—if he had taken any woman to luncheon yesterday it had probably been one of those little typewritists down in the sweltering offices, the tiredest and most pale faced among them—no one could deny Robert his kindness and susceptibility of heart. Oh, it wasn't that at all which had brought her to this cruel pass! It was that her husband, the father of her children, had proved himself beyond peradventure a deliberate liar. And to her!

That one lie had become, as it were, the torch which lighted up all the dark, perplexing things in Robert; all the odd little things that had refused flatly to be ignored in cropping up, but for which, hitherto, she had found no solution. She had groped through no merciful, slow dawn to this understanding of him. Being incapable, disqualified by nature, of any conception of a mind that hedged by reflex action, the spelling of falsehood to her meant positive agony.

A breath from the honeysuckle vines entered her dilating nostrils. She sniffed it curiously. "That's how the honeysuckles smelt one summer night when Robert knelt beside me, told me all his beliefs and hopes, swore that my standard of life was his, and I believed him, and I think I thrilled a little. Now, all Robert's beliefs and ideals put together couldn't make me one thrill, and I feel as if I had been alive and was dead, and—and— 'All the king's horses and all the king's men couldn't set Humpty Dumpty together again.' Oh, I hate him!" she cried suddenly in bitterness. "I hated my father, too; he was another liar."

Then presently, looking up at the stars, she became a little humble; she made no attempt to judge. What was she, in the audacity of her youth, to filch the privilege of the Almighty? Robert was a gentle little man, who could lie. She should have mated with a strong, big man who couldn't, that was all. Just one mistake among a myriad in a teeming world.

"And what I've got to do is to scurry back into my everyday self as quickly as I can," she concluded. "After all, nothing has happened. Robert is Robert, and I am I, just as we were when we pledged our troth. And yet I could have killed him tonight. To kill a man because he happens to be himself is scarcely reasonable or sane. With this weakness, inherent in his nature, he'll have need of me. And the children want me. I'm indispensable to all of them. I must take my life in my own hands. No one can help me now. It will be amusing to manage it, an excitement."

She rose, but her knees shook in an imbecile sort of way. She laughed a bit sharply out into the dark.

"I'm my mother all over again, I see. My young mother died of this sort of thing, I believe." She put her hand out to touch a tiny jutting spur twinkling silver in the new moon's rays and shivered. "But I'll not die of it; I shall fill out. The fall from a fool's paradise hurts—oh, it hurts—but it doesn't kill us in these days."

Closing the balcony door softly, she entered the nursery. The children were fast asleep in their cots. She touched them curiously to see if their soft, warm flesh would thrill her as it used to do.

"Poor little helpless souls! You will need me, won't you?" she said brokenly, crouching down at their side.

Robert junior stirred.

"The roof—it has a lazy time," he murmured in his sleep.

Anna smoothed his soft hair and trembled.

"Dear little son," she said, "didn't mother tell you the roof couldn't help being where it is. It was made like that. And the walls—they have to hold it up. No, they do not have much fun."

* * * * * * * *

Mr. Marshfield Craven, the confidential friend and legal adviser of the president of the Gotham Trust company, blustered into the president's library in his home up the Hudson, near Ossining. He had come from New York early that afternoon and had much to do before the president's arrival on the 2:30 express.

In hurried, whipping fashion, this drawer was opened, then that. Papers and documents were hastily strewn here, there and everywhere. Unopened envelopes which dunned for attention were quickly torn open and thrown into the wastebasket or on the floor, as the chance might be. All of which proved a sore trial to Mrs. Mason, the president's housekeeper, who was in the last stages of "tidying up" the library.

As usual, when Craven was bustling with work he noticed nothing of his surroundings. He pulled out his watch. Fifteen minutes, yes!

"See if you can rattle off this letter in time for the next post, Miss Graham. Take it directly on the machine," he said, plying his fingers through his thin, gray hair. And he began to dictate.

But there was no confirming click of the typewriter. Craven turned over his shoulder toward the secretary's desk and looked above the rim of his glasses.

"Bless my soul," he exclaimed, "if I hadn't clean forgotten the bird had flown. Humph, Mrs. Mason," he said suddenly, addressing the housekeeper, who stood mutely dusting a generous pipe rack, "what in the world induced Miss Graham to give up her job anyhow? She's been here over a year. She's given entire satisfaction; had her stipend raised twice; always treated considerately—the deuce if I can make it out!"

Mrs. Mason suspended her feather duster and smiled enigmatically.

"She said her health was bad and she wanted a rest."

"Health bad? Fiddlesticks!" grunted Craven. "She had cheeks like Baldwin apples and walked like india rubber."

"Well, for my part, Mr. Craven, I'll be perfectly frank. I'm going to give up my position, too, only I don't intend to lie about it. I'm going because"—

"Because, Mrs. Mason?" The lawyer whirled around with surprise and vexation.

"Well, things don't suit me, sir."

"Then why don't you fire the cook, fire the butler, fire the whole blame outfit if they don't suit you? I know Mr. Temple would rather lose all of 'em than you."

Mrs. Mason finished the pipe rack and began nervously plying her duster among the antlers and engraved hunting scenes.

"Oh, the servants are all right," said she. "Mr. Temple has given me full authority over them. 'Tisn't the servants I complain of. Besides, a lot of them feel as I do, only they can't afford to quit."

"Eh? What's wrong then?" demanded Craven sharply. A light had fallen on the darkness of his first surprise. He was beginning to understand.

Mrs. Mason left the antlers and hunting scenes and went to the favorite guns.

"I've been strictly brought up, Mr. Craven, and somehow I feel it ain't right—it's doing violence to my conscience—to stay on under this roof."

For a second Craven studied her curiously—this sturdy New England housekeeper who for three years had made the daily routine of living in the Temple home a smooth and comfortable thing.

Her conscience—yes, that was it. She was beginning to feel that she could not live in the same place and take money from a man whom she considered had come by it unworthily. "Puritanism is as lasting in a family as sin—to the third or fourth generation," he thought to himself, the outer corners of his eyes still contracted. "I think, somehow, that sin might be easier to lop off the family tree."

TAFT KNOWS BEST LAWYERS

Will Name a Good One as Successor to Harlan

SEVERAL MEN ARE SUGGESTED

Nagel and Lehmann Among Those Slated For Position on Supreme Bench, but President Is Not Indicating His Choice—Some Republican From West of the Alleghenies Will Probably Be Chosen

Washington, Oct. 17.—President Taft will not name a justice of the supreme court to succeed John M. Harlan until congress meets. Presidents have very generally observed a rule not to make vacation appointments to the supreme court.

Public men here at the capital believe that the new justice wil be a Republican. President Taft has already appointed two Democrats to this court, and has promoted Edward D. White, a Democrat, to be chief justice. The probability is that the new justice will come from west of the Allegheny mountains.

Much speculation as to who the new justice will be is already taking place, but the fact is that no one here has any information as to what the president is likely to do. In making judicial appointments, the president has refrained from consulting with even his best friends. He said at the outset of his administration that he intended to take the whole responsibility for judicial appointments made during his term of office, and he has lived up to this policy. He feels that he knows the judiciary of the United States and is able to select a good man for the supreme bench. The probability is that he will consider a large number of men before he finally makes up his mind.

Some of the president's closest friends here think he might appoint Charles Nagel, the present secretary of the department of commerce and labor, to the place. Around the department of justice, the opinion prevails that Frederick W. Lehmann, the solicitor general, will be chosen by the president. Both Nagel and Lehmann are from St. Louis. Lehmann's name was under consideration last year. His appointment would undoubtedly give satisfaction to the progressive or insurgent wing of the Republican party and it would hardly affront the conservatives. Lehmann was recommended to the president for a place on the supreme bench last year by Senator Cummins and Senator Borah, both progressives.

Other names that are mentioned in connection with the vacancy are Attorney General Wickersham, Justice Deemer of Iowa, Secretary Knox, Henry A. Wise of New York, Senator Sutherland of Utah, Senator Kenyon of Iowa, Senator Borah of Idaho and Chief Judge Cullen of the court of appeals of New York.

IS NO SUGAR TRUST

Conclusion of Government Accountants Who Have Been Probing

New York, Oct. 17.—The government accountants who have been investigating the operations of the American Sugar Refining company, the National Sugar Refining company, the Federal Sugar Refining company and the Warner Sugar Refining company, have handed in their report to Congressman Sulzer, chairman of the sub-committee of the full committee appointed by the house to investigate the so-called sugar trust.

The report was read at a meeting of the sub-committee here. It was to the effect that there is no "sugar trust," and furthermore that what is popularly known as the "trust" controls not more than 42 percent of the sugar supply.

GETS LIGHT SENTENCE

Three Years For Man Who Slashed Throat of Brother-In-Law

Boston, Oct. 17.—Fred F. Gray was sentenced to the house of correction for a term of three years, having been found guilty of having cut his throat of his brother-in-law, Charles Gannan, from ear to ear with a razor. The slash was so severe that it is a miracle, the police say, that the man is alive today. It was necessary to take twenty-five stitches.

The lightness of the sentence is due to the fact that Gray was under the influence of liquor at the time he committed the assault.

"Largest Woman on Earth" Refuses to Exhibit Herself

Alton, Ills., Oct. 17.—Miss Gertrude Burk of Chicago, largest woman in the world, is visiting at the home of Mrs. H. W. Hayes here. Miss Burk is 22 years of age, weighs 825 pounds, stands five feet seven inches, and some of her measurements are: Arm 28 inches, waist 54, bust 75. She wears No. 4½ shoes and No. 7 gloves.

Efforts have been made by showmen to get Miss Burk to exhibit herself, but she has never been tempted.

REPUBLICAN RALLY

ten hogs. The results of this was that the hogs had been rushed to market and last year there was a shortage and pork and ham and beacon rose to the highest prices known. This was the plain truth. It appeared in all the evidence given before the committee of the Senate which investigated the question. Mr. Foss as a business man must have known it perfectly well. He had a perfect right to criticize high prices but when he undertook to say that they were due to the tariff and that his election would reduce them he entered on very dangerous ground.

Let us see what has happened. Mr. Foss was elected; a Democratic House was elected. Have prices gone down? They have not. On the contrary, on some very important articles they have advanced. Taking Mr. Foss now on his own statement, he and his party are responsible for this advance. They have failed to lower prices as they said they would. They have not even checked advances for which their mere presence in official position ought on their own showing to have sufficed. On their own doctrine they are responsible for the advance that has taken place in sugar, in potatoes, in tea, in coffee, and they are to be held to a strict account. If they had contented themselves with criticizing the cost of living and saying that in some cases prices had been raised artificially by combinations to an abnormal point, their argument would have been a fair one. They did not do this. For political purposes they made an argument which they knew to be false.

How clear it is that the whole campaign last year on high prices was a humbug and a pretense. Sugar has advanced because the beet crop in Europe has failed and there has been a drought in Cuba. Potatoes have advanced for similar reasons. Coffee has advanced. Coffee is on the free list and has been for many years. We have the same right to hold Mr. Foss responsible for these advances that he had to hold the Republican party responsible last year and it is quite fair to apply to him his own doctrine. But we have no desire to do that, because we prefer to be honest with the people. We pointed out last year that the advance in prices was due in most cases to natural causes and to the general advance of the world's prices owing to the increase of gold. We pointed to the true causes. We admit the true causes now of the advance in sugar and coffee and potatoes, but what we have the right to insist upon is that a party leader like Mr. Foss who will undertake to get votes by alleging what, as a business man, he must know to be false in regard to prices and then promising that if he is elected prices will go down, is utterly unworthy of support.

Is there any faith to be placed in a candidate for high office who deals with questions of such moment as this in such a way? Every pledge and promise and every statement that he made last year in regard to prices have been contradicted and shown to be false, by the evidence of the last twelve months. Have we not had enough of this pretense, all these sham claims and broken promises? Is it not time for a turn to men who will not make false arguments on the stump and who will not promise what they know they cannot perform? Mr. Foss ought to be held to a strict account and lose the vote of every man whom he deceived in the last campaign.

MR. LUCE SAID

"At Clinton Saturday Governor Foss is reported as having said to a gathering of Germans: 'You are being told that the slightest reduction of our present tariff rates will place our workmen in open competition with the underpaid labor of Europe.'

"This is the fortieth political gathering I have attended in this campaign. At not one have I heard any speaker make any such statement as that. I have not read any such statement in any newspaper nor heard any such statement in conversation.

"On the contrary the great bulk of the people of this country, both Republicans and Democrats, believe and say precisely the opposite. They think that some rates can be lowered without placing our workmen in open competition with the underpaid labor of Europe. That part of the tariff problem which just now is under discussion, concerns only what rates can be wisely lowered and how far they can be lowered.

"Everybody agrees that whichever party is in power, a tariff is sure to be maintained in order to provide a considerable part of the revenues necessary to run the national government. It costs now about $725,000,000 a year, outside the postal cost, and at least a third of this is sure to be raised during our time by tariff duties. Democratic speakers usually fail to tell their audiences that if a tariff isn't levied on one thing, it will be on another, unless some other form of taxation is used. Somehow the money must be raised.

"Mr. Foss said in his speech at the Democratic State Convention: 'Honest tariff revision does not mean that our workmen are ever to be put upon an open basis of competition with the labor of Europe.' It is fair to infer he does not want any tariff rate lowered below the point that will give the American workman adequate protection. Does not our whole difference, then, concern the way of determining where that point may be? He does not tell us how he would determine it. Instead he charges us with ideas we do not hold and statements we never have made.

Said he to the Germans: 'You have it in your power to mould public sentiment; to demand the facts and to rest your personal verdict on the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth.' That is precisely what we Republicans most desire. We demand the facts about the differences in cost of production here and abroad. We have created a Tariff Board to find out what are these facts. Mr. Foss does not charge that this Board is partisan, prejudiced, or in any way unequal to its task. His party would not await the result of its investigations but for political purposes put up to the President three ill-considered tariff bills that recklessly endangered the industries on which rests the prosperity of Massachusetts, those of cotton, wool, boots and shoes. Massachusetts owes a great debt to the President for vetoing those three bills. We can pay it in part by a Republican majority in November, a majority that all the land will take as an endorsement of those vetoes.

"But that has nothing whatever to do with the question of how to revise the tariff without exposing American labor to European competition. We contend we cannot do this without the knowledge of the facts Mr. Foss told the Germans to demand. We too demand those facts. We too demand the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth. Do you, Mr. Foss, object to finding out by the investigation of a Tariff Board, the truth as to wages and other costs of production here and abroad?"

MOTORMAN KILLED EARLY THIS MORNING

Accident Happened At Liberty Pole Hill So. Hingham

WAS CLEANING TRACK

Thomas Mulkern, motorman on the Hingham division of the street railway was killed this morning near what is known as Liberty Pole hill South Hingham. Mulkern left Hingham at 5.10 on his first trip to South Hingham. While going up the hill the motorman thought that he would clear the rail of dirt, so that when he came back he could stop easily. He therefore turned the controller over to the conductor and stepping out onto the fender bar, held a switch stick in front of him cleaning the rail as the car went along.

Suddenly he lost his balance, by the stick catching and fell forward across the rail with his head in the gutter. The conductor succeeded in stopping the car before the wheels passed over him, but the scraper iron rested on his abdomen when the car was stopped, and he was so badly crushed that he died in a few minutes. He regained consciousness before he died however and a priest administered the last rites of the church.

The unfortunate man who was about 28 years of age and lived at South Weymouth, leaves a widow but no children.

MYSTERY ABOUT SMALL BLAZE

Gas Jet Left Burning Probably Started Fire

CONDITION OF SEA STREET

The alarm from Box 16 at 3.55 Monday afternoon, was for a slight blaze in the barber shop and pool room of Edward Powers on Sea street, Houghs Neck. According to neighbors he had not been seen about the building for some hours and there is some mystery about the fire. It started, evidently, from a gas jet left burning under a hot water tank. This for some reason was left burning when the shop was closed. Eventually the water was boiled out and the tank exploded setting fire to the wood work which was somewhat scorched, but no great damage being done.

The fire however served to acquaint people at the centre as to the condition of Sea street and after riding over it, there is no wonder that the people of Houghs Neck kick.

As it is today the street is a disgrace. Not only is it filled with holes, but these holes are filled with water and it is as much as one's life is worth to drive over it. It is bad enough in the day time but it must be beyond description at night. That there has not been a serious accident is a wonder.

DID MUCH FOR HIS CHURCH

Death of Augustine Van de Vyver, Long Bishop of Richmond

Richmond, Oct. 17.—Right Rev. Augustine Van de Vyver, for the past twenty-two years bishop of the Roman Catholic diocese of Richmond, died here of complications resulting from a severe cold.

Born on Dec. 1, 1844, in Belgium, in 1867 he entered the American college at Louvain, Belgium. Soon after he was ordained priest, in 1870, he came to America and went to Virginia. In October, 1889, he was consecrated bishop of Richmond.

Under Van de Vyver's regime forty new chruches have been erected and ten new parishes have been established, with various new religious orders introduced into the diocese. One college and numerous parish schools have been founded, as a part of his general labors.

PLEADING FOR FARMS

New Movement Has Rural New England 1920 as Motto

Boston, Oct. 17.—"Rural New England 1920," is the motto of a movement, the inauguration of which President Butterfield of the Masachusetts Agricultural college advocated last night at the exposition at Mechanics hall for the reclaiming of the abandoned farms in New England.

To New England the "Rural New England 1920" movement is to signify the same activity on a larger scale that is encompassed in the "Boston 1915 movement.

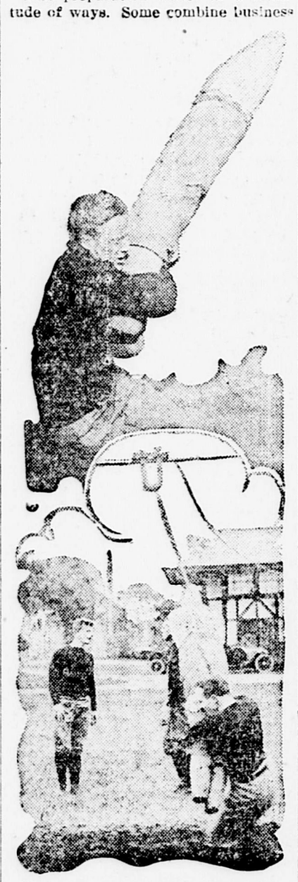
President Butterfield made the point that while it was important that all institutions and agencies in New England worked together, substantial progress would come only as the farmers themselves took hold of some such program as this.

How the Big Football Teams Prepare For Hard Season

By TOMMY CLARK.

FEW except those in the game realize what the early days of the training season mean to the football players. While the days are still uncomfortable with summer heat the football player begins the first coarse in the preparation which is to harden him for the big contests scheduled three months away.

This preparation varies in a multitude of ways. Some combine business and training by selecting a vocation which gives them plenty of hard work in the open air, while others in perhaps more fortunate circumstances train a few hours a day on the outskirts of some seashore or mountain summer resort.



Photos by American Press Association.

TWO VIEWS OF FOOTBALL PLAYERS TACKLING THE DUMMY.

Under the supervision of their captain, coaches and trainer the more serious work is begun. For the first few days little is attempted beyond the kicking and catching of the football, running practice to improve the wind and endurance of the candidates and possibly an occasional lineup for illustrative purposes with all scrimmage work eliminated.

At the beginning of the second week the half hour of practice is lengthened into twice the time, and, while the rudimentary instruction is continued, tackling, defensive and offensive formations and a little scrimmage work are injected into the training. The mile or more run around the track, followed by shower baths and a rubdown, closes a day's work.

Next the scrub or second team, as it is known, is called into operation, and the practice begins to acquire the aspect of a regular football game. As the players of the two teams contend under the watchful eyes of the coaches the latter point out and rectify errors in form and tactics which the players may develop.

The training table is started, and the rubbers begin to be called into use at the end of each afternoon's work in order to massage away the bruises and strains incidental to the practice.

By the middle of October both the coaches and trainers know the physical and mental peculiarities of their charges and fit the training schedule to meet their requirements, so far as is possible.

The squad of perhaps sixty-five candidates has been reduced 50 per cent by the elimination of those unfit from one cause or another to stand the strain of football play, and the remaining candidates are beginning to be divided into those mystic sections known as varsity and second squads.

Now approaches the period when with the big games less than a month away, the eleven players with their individual ability and playing peculiarities must be welded into a perfect football machine that acts with resistless force at the command of the quarterback.

UPPER PICTURE SHOWS MEN RUNNING; LOWER ONE, MEN AT PUSHING MACHINE.

Afternoon practice is augmented by early morning work, consisting of drop kicking, tackling and other features of the play in which certain members of the squad may be deficient. Thus the men who win mention during the premier games of the football season round into form for the struggle which brings victory or defeat.

ATHLETICS PUT UP FINE GAME

Their Victory Ties the World's Championship Series

PLANK HAS GREAT SUPPORT

Home Run Drive by Baker, Who Scores Collins, Turns the Trick In the Sixth, When Marquard Weakens While Facing Mack's Two Best Hitters — Thirty-Two Thousand Witness Victory of Home Team

Philadelphia, Oct. 17.—Frank Baker's home run drive over the right field fence gave the Athletics the second game of the world's series and put Connie Mack's men in the running for the title.

The score was tied, one to one, when Baker came to bat. Collins had reached second base on a clean double to left, but Marquard was going along nicely and New York backers did not feel particularly worried, but Baker caught one just right and sent it over the wall to Twentieth street.

Plank, who was being hit hard in the first part of the game, braced up and easily held his advantage, and the final score was 3 to 1. Philadelphia was favored by beautiful weather and a crowd of over 32,000 saw the Athletics' great victory. Plank and his team deserved to win. Beautiful support was given the southpaw, especially by the Athletics' infield.

The Giants made three errors behind Marquard and Crandall. Murray's fumble in the first inning gave the Mackmen their chance to score the first run.

Marquard was very nervous at the start and the Giants had to keep talking to him constantly. After the first he showed some of his real class and it looked as if he would hold the Athletics safe.

But he weakened in the sixth and Mack's two best hitters, Collins and Baker, finished him. Neither Marquard nor Plank pitched as well as Mathewson and Bender in the first game. The series is about now an even thing.

The Athletics have always been a hard team to beat on their home grounds, and they played a class of ball yesterday that would have defeated anybody. They looked like a different club from the one which was licked Saturday on the Polo grounds.

They still have a hard task before them, for they will have to face Mathewson at least twice more before the series is over. Josh Devore, whose two-base hit won for the Giants Saturday, was helpless before Plank and struck out four times. The crowd enjoyed his efforts as much as the victor. The ball Baker hit was just where he likes them and Marquard had himself to blame.

The score was 3 to 1, and Baker is to have the credit for it. His home run in the sixth inning, scoring Collins, turned the trick. The ball cleared the right field fence by five feet. It was a mighty swat.

Marquard, the $11,000 beauty, was derricked in the eighth inning, old Dr. Crandall being sent for as the first aid to the injured. He batted for the Rube in the eighth, but his efforts with the wagon tongue were as nix.

Crandall showed up in fine fettle when he took the mound. He whiffed the first two men to face him and the third man was an easy out. Score:

Boston to Have New Theatre

Boston, Oct. 17.—Another theatre is soon to be erected in Boston. It will replace a building, work on the demolition of which was begun yesterday, on Harrison avenue. A seating capacity of 2000 is planned.

THE ATHLETICS

Photos by American Press Association.

—So extraordinary has been the baseball playing this year of Tyrus Cobb of the Detroit team of the American league that amazement at it is giving way to speculation as to how long a man can stand the pace. That a heavy batter should last for years is not to be wondered at. It seems at times as if Lajoie and Wagner had been swatting the ball for ages. Cobb, however, not only hits harder and more often than anybody else, but runs bases better, scores more runs, makes more hits for extra bases and works more strenuously. The pace is terrific and Cobb is long-headed enough to coin his prowess while it is greatest.—Boston Herald.

SPORTING "DOPE"

By B. A.

Don't Knock, Just Boost.—B. A.

Franz Marceau, the former Quincy High star runner, now a member of the sophomore class at Dartmouth, broke the record for the two mile run at the annual interclass games, held yesterday in Hanover, under the auspices of the Dartmouth college students. The previous record for Dartmouth college, for the two mile run, was 10 minutes, 4 2-5 seconds, while the record made by the Quincy runner yesterday was 9 minutes, and 48 seconds, for the same distance.

The Dartmouth students are expecting great things from the Quincy boy in the various meets to be held this year, and if his performances of the past can be taken as any assurances, he surely will give some other records a severe test.

Another runner who has rounded out in fine style in the past few weeks is Frank Bruce, a local lad and a member of the Italian American A. C. of this city. Bruce participated in the Brockton Marathon this year and came near securing a place. Last Sunday he ran second to Frank Masterson, junior Metropolitan three mile champion, in the cross country run of the Morningside A. C., held in New York. Bruce is himself the Italian 15 mile amateur champion.

Mrs. William C. Johnson of the Wollaston golf club, participated in the fall meeting of the Women's Golf Association, held yesterday at the Country Club links in Brookline. She finished fourth with scores of 126, 16, and 110.

SOME GOOD BOXING.

Twenty preliminary bouts and five finals were carded at the opening exhibition of the Quincy Athletic Association, held Monday evening in St. Mary's hall, West Quincy. All of the final bouts were won on decisions. The surprise of the evening was the victory of Harry Carlson of Brockton, over John Fallon national amateur 105 pound champion. The bout went three rounds.

In the 115-pound class Henry Morley of Roxbury beat John O'Brien of Roxbury in three rounds. In the 125-pound class J. W. McDonald of Quincy beat Albert Heuser of Roxbury in two rounds. In the 135-pound class Vic Abonnetti of Quincy beat Louis Di Sesso of Boston in a single round. In the 145-pound special William Gale of Boston won over Edward Bennett of Quincy in three rounds.

Jack Norton of Forest Hills was referee, and the judges were Frank McGrath and Harry Walsh of the A. A. U., J. J. McGee of the Cathedral A. A., of Boston was announcer.

Jake Kilrain, former sparring partner of John L. Sullivan was among those present.

TOBACCO MEN WANT DELAY

Their Plan Only Fit For Scrap Heap, Says Federal Counsel

New York, Oct. 17.—The American Tobacco company's plan of reorganization was filed with the clerk of the United States circuit court. In addition to outlining the previously published plan of disintegration, the corporation and its subsidiaries pray for an extension until March 1, 1912, for perfecting a reorganization, and petition for an order enjoining all persons from interfering in any way with the carrying out of the plan.

James C. McReynolds, special counsel of the United States government in prosecuting the tobacco cases, was asked if he had seen the proposed plan of disintegration.

"Oh, yes," he replied. "And speaking only for myself, I regard it as a plain subterfuge which deserves an expeditious commitment to the scrap heap."

—Three cheers for the Newton Y. M. C. A., which had the courage to make a rule that no costumes at all should be worn in its swimming tank. The reason for the decision is that the water in the pool may be kept as clean as possible. Those wearing costumes in swimming often drop them on the floor when they dress, and, so to speak, mop up the floor and then put the dirt into the pool the next time they bathe. The rule is a sensible one, and those whose modesty is bumped can bathe elsewhere.—Boston Globe.

LICENSE TO HUNT INSTEAD OF PERMISSION TO MARRY

Couple Handed Wrong Document, Could Hunt Deer But Not Wed

Mistake Corrected Will Wed Today

Boston, Oct. 18.—A license issued to a couple by a Boston city clerk and presented to a Quincy clergyman as he was about to pronounce them man and wife with the marriage ceremony half over, only entitled Aaron Sigelman and Miss Julit Bernstein to hunt deer and moose in Massachusetts, the pastor learned on casually opening the document.

The couple, enraged and still unmarried, followed by the pastor, indignant at what he thought a practical joke, burst in on Edward F. McLaughlin, an employe in the city clerk's office, who made out the license. They demanded to know what hunting had to do with nuptials. It was the first mention of marriage McLaughlin had heard.

"We only issue hunters' licenses here," said McLaughlin. "I asked if you wanted a hunters' license and you said you did."

The humorous side soon became apparent to the pastor, who said: "The man is all through hunting and has found that for which nearly every young man has hunted. He wants a dear and not a deer."

The couple were then informed that the city registrar in Boston gives out marriage licenses. They repaired to Mr. McGlenen's office and with the clergyman went on their way. The marriage is set for today.

BRIEFS

Bids will be received by the City of Quincy until Oct. 19th for a temporary loan of $35,000. It will mature on April 12th, 1912.

The Universalist church has been undergoing much needed repairs and painters are at work improving its outward appearance.

Mrs. B. G. Barnes entertained members of the Universalist Dorcas society Tuesday evening at her home on Faxon avenue. All are working for a Christmas fair to be held the first week in December.

Rev. Fannie Austin, pastor of the Universalist church is attending this week the meetings of the General Convention being held in Springfield. The services on Sunday will be conducted by the Y. P. C. U.

At William C. Caldwell's forty-five party last evening twelve tables were in play. In the thirty-five games the lucky men were Fred Thayer, 23; William O'Donnell, 23; Frank Cleary, 22; J. Pinel and W. W. Brewster, 22 each.

The Walther class of the Wollaston Baptist church invites all men to hear Rev. Walter Calley, D. D., one of Boston's ablest speakers in an address on "The Lights and Shadows of Prison Life," tomorrow evening at the church. It will be a big meeting of men.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Sullivan celebrated the fifth anniversary of their wedding at their home 148 Washington street Tuesday evening. Relatives and friends were present from Boston, Atlantic, Canton and Braintree. Refreshments were served by a Quincy caterer and there was music by Sullivan's orchestra.

ARCTIC EXPERIENCES

Subject of Lecture Before Park and Downs Union Club

PRES. BURGESS PRESIDES

The opening fall meeting of the Park and Downs Union club was held on Tuesday evening an interesting talk on "Arctic experiences" being delivered by Lieutenant Henry E. Rhoades, past assistant engineer of the United States navy.

Mr. Rhoades was one of the party who set out in 1873 to attempt the rescue of the remainder of the party of which Captain Tyson and his men were survivors. The speaker was introduced by Lieutenant Wilson a member of the club.

The fitting out of the ship at New York was described by Mr. Rhoades and their trip to Greenland where they first ran into floe ice.

The oppressive monotony of all daylight in the summer and the absence of the sun in the winter was emphasized by the speaker. This leads not infrequently in the far north to insanity.

The Eskimo and their dress were mentioned and the intense cold to which one becomes accustomed. Mr. Rhoades was the man who discovered coal on the island of Drisco which when the fuel supply was running low allowed the expedition to remain and continue its explorations.

Mr. Rhoades discredited the account of Doctor Cook's discovery of the Pole and stated that any of the phenomena described on the trip could be seen as far south as Cape York. The speaker holds the acquaintance of both Cook and Peary and is a personal friend and ardent supporter of the latter.

In conclusion, said the speaker, there is nothing heroic about arctic exploration. You simply need the determination and you will have the opportunity to undergo all sorts of interesting experiences.

At the business meeting which preceded the lecture with President Burgess in the chair, many club matters were discussed and reports read.

QUINCY CHORAL SOCIETY.

The Quincy Choral Society began regular rehearsals of "The Golden Legend" Tuesday evening under conductor Osbourne McConathy of Chelsea. His introduction was greeted with hearty applause by the members and they began their study with every indication of a desire to do good work and of Mr. McConathy's ability to demand it. The study of this music promises to be most interesting. It is decidedly "singable," the tax upon the voice being much less than in some of the works already given, yet it requires fine musicianship and artistic interpretation in a large degree making its study well worth while in every sense.

This opening of a fourth season by the choral society should awaken more of our local singers to the fact that here in our own city is an opportunity to study the best music under the best of conditions. It is hoped the chorus may gain greatly in numbers this year and the outlook for that seems favorable.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S SOCIAL SOCIETY OPENS SEASON

With Meeting In Vestry of Wollaston Unitarian Church

The Wollaston Young People's Social society opened its season with a meeting in the vestry of the Wollaston Unitarian church Tuesday evening.

Following an informal reception Professor Bennett Springer kept those present on the qui vive with his many conjuring tricks. Starting with clever manipulations of cards the professor ran through the entire gamut of card tricks and other sleight of hand performances.

The evening was one of the best the club has enjoyed and the present season is looked forward to with pleasant anticipation.

At the business meeting Clifton H. Baker was elected vice president and Jesse I. Litchfield and Mrs. Roy C. Baker members of the executive committee. Irving L. Shaw presided in his usual benign manner and refreshments were served.

THE GRANITE INDUSTRY.

The Quincy correspondent in the Granite Cutters journal in the October issue says.

The public dock question is being aired and is causing considerable discussion as to where it should be located. The state legislature has authorized the expenditure of nine million dollars towards improving Boston harbor. It is unnecessary to state that a considerable quantity of granite will be used in the improvements, and here we are in Quincy with a water front of something like thirty-five miles and no public dock. This means that the granite used in the improvements will probably come from Maine, because the freightage by water will cost less from Maine to Boston harbor than it would cost by rail from Quincy to Boston. This is a lamentable state of affairs when it is known that millions of tons of granite that could be used for the harbor improvements are lying around the quarries in Quincy. Let us hope that something will be done in the near future to correct what is practically a mistake in not having a public dock or at least a place on the water front deep enough to let heavy schooners or steamers land or take on cargoes.

Italy is wise. It starts its war in the fall just when the Italian visitors to America are getting home with their earnings.

RECEPTION TO BIBLE CLASS

Royal Daughters of Wollaston Church Entertained

THE PROGRAM

The Royal Daughters, a bible class of the Wollaston Methodist church were royally entertained on Tuesday evening by the members of the Wiggin class.

The evening opened with a violin solo by Arthur Dewsnap and was followed with a hearty address of welcome by George Taylor the newly elected president of the class. Mrs. J. A. Sedgwick president of the Royal Daughters responded in a becoming manner.

A banjo solo was contributed by Robert Bliss, following which a male quartet gave several selections. It was composed of Chester Cleveland, F. G. Bennett, S. N. Belcher and F. A. Sutermeister.

Games followed, among them a peanut race which on account of natural prejudice was awarded by President Taylor to the men. The ladies expressed their appreciation for a most enjoyable evening.

POSTAL SERVICE POOR.

A petition protesting against the poor mail delivery service in Brookline is receiving many signatures of citizens. Brookline has suffered from inferior mail service for seven months. The petition, it is understood, is to be directed to the officials at the main post office in Boston, and if that fails of good result the matter is to be carried to Washington. One prominent citizen, who carries on a large business and claims to have suffered great inconvenience as the result of receiving mail at 5.30 in the afternoon that should have arrived at its destination on the first morning delivery, says he will put the matter directly up to Congressman Weeks and Senators Lodge and Crane. He has already written to Postmaster Mansfield.

Up to seven months ago, Brookline, had faily good service. There were four deliveries a day, at 7.30 and 10.45 A. M. 2.30 and 5 P. M. Now they consider themselves fortunate if they get one.

John F. Fleming says: "I don't think this condition of affairs can be local to Brookline. The trouble seems to be general. The Government is spending $50,000 of the people's money to experiment with the carrying of mail by aeroplane. The results would be far more if the Government paid a little more attention to the regularly constituted manner of delivering mail by the ground route."

So say we all of us. Give us better mail service right here in Greater Boston. Its poor economy to cut down on so important a public utility.

BROCKTON TO KEEP DRY.

Brockton's fight against the open saloon commenced Monday when V. Merrill Jones, the new secretary of the No-License League, began his duties. Mr. Jones succeeds C. J. Carlson, resigned. Brockton has been a dry city for twelve years and the no-license leaguers declare it will always remain so. The majority for no-license in 1910 was about 800, a slight falling off from the year previous. There has not been a concentrated fight by the "wets" for several years.

—In the South, which is regarded by many as being less progressive than New England, appreciation of the danger of wooden roofs is growing. A few months ago Jackson, Mississippi, decided to prohibit shingle and board roofs; and now Birmingham, Alabama, has passed an anti-shingle ordinance to take effect Jan. 1, 1912. New England has furnished the object lessons which the Southern cities are heeding, but the great fires in Portland, Bangor and Chelsea do not appear to have impressed upon New England people the dangers of shingles exposed to sparks carried long distances by the wind. The action of Jackson and Birmingham affords a good precedent for Northern cities. These can well afford to use only non-combustible materials for roofing.—Providence Journal.

PLANS FOR WIDENING OF WASHINGTON STREET

Communication From Mayor To City Council In Answer To Resolution of Councilman Histen

List Of Properties Affected

Among the important matters that came before the Council at its meeting Monday evening was a communication from the Mayor forwarding a plan for the widening of Washington street. This was in compliance with a resolution offered by Councilman Histen Feb. 6.

That Washington street should be widened to a uniform width has long been recognized and it has frequently been argued that at no time could the widening be done cheaper than at the present time. Sometime ago the Board of Trade took up the matter and appointed a committee to look into the subject but what they have done, if anything, is not known. That it will be an expensive job even now is a recognized fact but the longer it is delayed the more the expense will be. No estimate of the cost accompanied the plan but it is believed by real estate men that $100,000 will not be far from the mark.

Under the plan forwarded to the Council, it is proposed to widen the street to a uniform width of 66 feet from the junction of Hancock street to Chubbuck street. There are many buildings along it close to the street line, but the lay out has been so arranged that but very few buildings will have to be moved, although the new street line brings some of the buildings directly on it.

Under the plan the widening is largely on the side nearest Hancock street which might be called the west side. On the opposite side a narrow strip is taken from City Square to the southerly side of the Souther property on the Quincy Point side of Mill street.

Starting at nothing on the Faxon homestead at the corner of Washington and Coddington street, a wedge shaped piece of land is taken contain-

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

What part of the Turkey will you have?

If Mr. Clay of Philadelphia is convicted of defrauding the city, will his name be mud?

The situation seems to boil down to this. The more gold there is the less we have.

The man who howls the loudest about the outrage of speeding is the first to run over somebody when he gets into an auto.

The Wilson presidential boom has been heard from in California, which will doubtless create a good deal of surprise with a certain Nebraskan.

Anyone who is writing a history of the United States should omit some of these details about the president and Congress, and put in a full chapter on the battle of the Giants and the Athletics for the world championship.

Boston military organizations march through Atlanta to dedicate the peace monument, and as they did not come early enough to meet the temptations of the Georgia watermelon season, no fatalities were reported.

Bill Sunday, the evangelist, figures that it costs $545.00 to save a sinner in New York city. One large item is no doubt the purchase of a railroad ticket to remove him a sufficient distance from that city.

Mr. Carnegie has been accorded the freedom of 51 English cities, which will at least give him the right to walk up to one of their majestic policemen and inquire the way to his boarding house.

Suffragettes are following and interrupting the candidates for the Massachusetts election, but they would win more popular favor by giving an exhibition of their prowess in the creation of pumpkin pie.

J. P. Morgan worth $50,000,000 has been asessed according to the New York tax list on only $800,000 worth of property. This is one of the mysteries of our system of taxation and one, incidentally, which tends to make a socialist of the small householder.

Few appreciate what a great factor in patriotic life the G. A. R. is and has been, how they have been the great patriotic object lesson for our children and to those who have come to our shores to make this country their home. The Sons of Veterans is the organization next of kin that is taking up the work and carrying out the principles of the G. A. R. By helping them with their fair next week you will strengthen the Camp and broaden the scope of their usefulness in patriotic circles.

If some of the city officials and councilmen would climb down out of their automobiles and take to walking they would soon see the need of better sidewalks, and more crosswalks in City Square. Five or six trips a day from Granite street to the Post Office or vice versa would soon convince them where one or two could be placed to good advantage. With streets that are sloughs of despond in bad weather and deserts of Sahara in dry, a few oasis in the way of crosswalks would surely prove blessings to pedestrians.

AROUND THE HEARTH FIRE.

One of the pleasant phases of the approach of cool weather is the fire on the open hearth. There was a time a few years ago when all through the Northern states the fire on the hearth was an institution of the past. Practical people said it was not an efficient method of producing caloric. That settled it. Small houses were erected with no means of heating but stoves or furnaces, and the city house had also that abomination of desolation, the gas log.

But by and by some folks began to recall how once the dancing flames set the tongue to dancing with merry talk, how they set the heart to dancing with the fe ly good cheer.

And when the back log is reduced to glowing coals as bed time comes, how the warm embers seem to echo the love of human hearts for each other! What treasures o f memory, what visions of hope, may one not see in the rich heart of the hearth?

The colonists put a fire place in every room as their only protection against a harsh climate. Today we do the same thing for a different purpose, that our homes may not have the harsh loneliness of the city flat.

FORTY CENT BUTTER.

Figures of the Chicago Warehousemen's Association are published that there are but 48,027,000 pounds of butter in cold storage as against 60,849,000 a year ago. The prediction by produce dealers of forty cent butter next winter seems likely to prove correct. This means a tight pinch to many a house-keeper with her back up against the wall of a fixed income.

It is useless for her to expect that such high prices can be attacked at the farmer's end. He is paying two or three times as much for the food which he gives his cows as he was ten to twenty years ago. Furthermore, his bill for farm help has doubled.

In an American restaurant, a meal served without butter is regarded as prison fare. In Europe, with less lavish ideas, you usually pay extra for butter in a restaurant. Where a meal is enriched by gravies and sauces, the thrifty European is very apt to regard his butter bill as a needless luxury.

The American workingman, however, will wear frayed clothes a good while before he thus cuts his rations. But he might much better cut out butter from a portion of his meals than buy some of the warmed over and patch work combinations reassembled from boarding house tables. As Sam Weller wanted the acquaintance of the lady that made his veal pie, so we want a personal introduction to the cow that makes our butter.

The machines which paradoxically advertise to make one pound of butter into two by introduction of another pound of milk are little better. As pure milk is 87 per cent water, this is essentially the same as if it was suggested that the milk bill be cut one half by diluting the milk bottles one half with water.

Co-operative buying is a proposition within the reach of all who have sufficient energy and thrift.

Ruth Severance tells in a recent magazine article how twenty families living 40 miles out of New York cut food prices 25 to 30 per cent by buying direct of wholesalers. But one woman had to quit the afternoon tea table and the piazza for the hard work of canvassing the neighborhood to form the organization. And the men had to gather in their shirt-sleeves to open and distribute the supplies.

DRIVING A BARGAIN.

The genuine Yankee peddler passed out of existence with the creation of the "notion store," but he was a most interesting character, astonishingly sharp and frequently amusing. One such appeared in a general store in a southern town on one occasion, deposited his pack on the floor and remarked to the merchant:

"I guess I couldn't drive a trade with you, colonel?"

"I reckon you calculate just about right," was the decided reply of the merchant, who had "had dealings" with Yankee peddlers on previous occasions. "Get out!"

"Oh, well, don't get riled up—no harm done. Now just look at this dozen genuine razor strops, easy worth $3—let you have 'em for $2, colonel."

"I wouldn't touch any of your trash—you get out," the merchant declared.

"Well, now colonel, I always like to do some business in a place. Tell you what—I'll bet you $5 that if you make an offer for them strops we'll make a trade."

"I'll go you," said the merchant, "and," he added, when the stakes had been put up, "I'll give you a quarter for the strops."

"They're yours, colonel," said the Yankee, pocketing the wager.—Chicago Tribune.

FARMING.

"How has the old place been paying, this year?"

"Fine," replied Farmer Corntossel. "Me and 'Mandy got enough summer board money to keep us in condensed milk and canned meat fur the hull winter."—Washington Star.

WHERE WAS THE FLAG?

Visitor To Rally Stirred By Seeming Neglect

HIS COMMUNICATION

Editor Quincy Ledger:

While attending the Republican rally in Alpha hall last night I could not help noticing the conspicuous absence of the American flag, not one could I see in the whole hall. I have attended rallies for the past thirty years, but never did I attend one, where the stars and stripes were not displayed. What is the matter with the Republican committee that they should overlook this important fact on such an occasion? I noticed what a beautiful hall and how much more beautiful if the stars and stripes, had been conspicuously in evidence. We hear and read of janitors of public buildings who are hostile to our flag and only display it when public sentiment compels them to.

Are we going to let these conditions exist, "No," every true American should make a protest when they see no flag displayed where one is intended or should be.

Every person hiring that hall should first see that the flag is displayed. Especially on any patriotic meeting or gathering. I am not a voter in Quincy, but cast my vote in Massachusetts, therefore I claim the right to protest against the negligence committed Monday night in the conspicuous absence of our flag. On leaving the building I heard this same topic discussed and was glad to know others were of the same opinion as myself. Trusting you will give space to this letter in your valuable paper, I am.

Yours very truly,
G. E. Jameson.
Boston, Oct. 17, 1911.

BEAUTIFUL ISLE.

Editors Daily Ledger:

There is little fear that Gov. Wilson's attack on "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere" will have any other effect, than to familiarize still more people with the beauty of the music to which the words have been set, and the strong appeal which the poem makes to the universal human heart. There is an innate hope in the human heart of all races that death does not end all, and this simple and sweet song, which has lightened the sorrows of many who have seen their loved ones lowered into the awful portals of the grave, will survive the harsh criticism of the Governor of New Jersey. Personally, while possessing no special qualifications as a critic, I think the sentiment and music of the song sweetly comforting.

Yours truly,
James L. Edwards.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR.

Where's the good old family doctor,
with his microscopic bills,
With his bag of plasters, powders,
and those evil-tasting pills?
How our troubles used to lighten and our aches and pains abate,
When his shabby horse and buggy tied up at the old front gate.

Now it's Doctor This for measles and it's Doctor That for mumps,
And it's Doctor What-You-Call-Him
when it's just a case of dumps;
If it's only common colic, just as plain as plain can be,
To a hospital you're hustled for some surgicality.

Comes the twentieth century doctor
in a spotless limousine,
Sealed hermetically in it—clothed
"germ-proof" to microbes keen.
Or, more truly, this great doctor will not come at all to you—
In an office he's receiving—"Office hours from one to two.'

And it's Doctor This for left eye and it's Doctor That for right,
And it's Doctor-What-You-Call-Him
if you're crosswise in your sight
When you need some fancy glasses just to see more than you ought,
To Berlin you're shipped instanter to that famous Doctor Whaught.

He can amputate bad tempers, he can make good folks of bad,
He'll immune you from diseases that you never could have had.
Yes, time's come when it's expected,
just to keep you "middling fair.
You must know the specialistic docs of all the kinds there are.

Oh, it's Doctor This for "eetises" and Doctor That for "ites,"
And its Doctor What-You-Call-Him
when you're seeing things o' nights.
Each will treat one "error" only, will these modern unionists,
Then divide your woes with twenty other waiting specialists.

RECORDS WILL BE INSPECTED

No Friend of "Interests" Will Go to Supreme Court

SEVERAL NAMES ELIMINATED

Washington, Oct. 18.—Insistent demand will be made upon President Taft that he appoint as Justice Harlan's successor on the supreme bench a man of undoubted progressive ideas and known to be free from corporation affiliations.

Democrats and progressive Republican senators will intimate to President Taft that it will be impossible to confirm a nominee of reactionary type if one should be presented. They are determined that Justice Harlan's place shall be filled by a "friend of the people," as they termed Harlan. Even "senatorial courtesy," which dictates immediate confirmation of a senator chosen for office, would be severely strained if the selection should fall upon a senator known to be friendly to "vested interests."

Jealous eyes will watch every move of the president in casting about for a new justice and the record of every man mentioned for the place will be closely studied. This does not mean that it is taken for granted the president has any idea of putting in a reactionary, for it is assumed that he is in sympathy with the demand for a progressive, but it does mean that senators who will have the confirmation or rejection of nominations are thoroughly aroused to the demand for a broad, progressive man for the place.

Recognition of this fact serves to eliminate from the list of eligibles several names that otherwise might come first to mind. There do not seem to be many favorites in the contest, but there is pronounced disposition to investigate personal records.

It is declared that the attention of the country is focused upon the supreme court now as never before in recent years. The attitude of the court toward the great trusts and the importance to the people at large and to the business interests of the country to the court's decisions is said to be making the court a target of discussion.

The political effect of a "good" or a "bad" nomination, acoording to the popular view thereof, would be greater, probably, than ever before in the history of the country, as a nomination that would not exactly suit Senator La Follette would be resented by his following wherever dispersed.

A disposition is shown in some quarters to minimize the effect of the indorsement of La Follette by the Chicago progressive convention by suggesting that it comes too early. This criticism, however, ignores the fact that La Follette is in a better position to keep himself in the eye of the country during the next year than any other candidate has been for a long time.

He is the most active man in the senate and no doubt will attempt to assume an actual dictatorship over that body. In no greater matter could he exercise it more effectively or take greater advantage of senatorial courtesy than in an appointment to the supreme court.

Q.—"And God saw that the wickedness of man was great in the earth and that every imagination of the thoughts of his heart was only evil continually. And it repented the Lord that He had made man on the earth, and it grieved Him at His heart; and the Lord said, I will destroy man whom I have created, from the face of the earth." If God is omniscient, knowing the end from the beginning, how could He REPENT of His course in creating man?

Answer.—The word "repent" means "To change the mind, or course of conduct, on account of regret or dissatisfaction with what has occurred." The question then is, Did God change His mind (plan) or His course of conduct? We claim that, knowing the end from the beginning, God's mind could not be changed; hence "repent" in this text must signify change of conduct. That is, God did change His course of dealing with man because of man's wickedness, which grieved Him, but He did not change His mind or plans, because these plans had from the very first recognized the corrupting and degrading tendency of sin, and provided (in purpose of mind) the Lamb of God—"slain from the foundation of the world"—as the redemption price. (Revelation xiii, 8; xvii, 8.)

Q.—Can you explain the words of the Apostle Paul (1 Corinthians vii, 14), "For the unbelieving husband is sanctified by the (believing) wife and the unbelieving wife is sanctified by the (believing husband; else were your children unclean (sinners under condemnation, unjustified, unrelated to God, aliens from His care and blessing), but now are they holy"?

Answer.—As the disobedience and alienation of Adam and Eve from the Heavenly Father brought alienation to all their offspring, so the reconciliation of the Lord's people through the merits of the great atonement, not only brings them back to harmony with God, but their children as well are counted as justified through their parents, and on account of their parents, up to such a time as the child shall have an intelligence and will of its own. The question is more complex, however, when one parent is the Lord's and the other is a stranger and an alien from Him; but the Apostle assures us that in such a case God counts the child as His, through whichever one of its parents is the Lord's disciple. The standing of the believing parent, is counted as offsetting and overruling the standing of the unconsecrated parent, so far as the child is concerned.

If it were not for Africa Europe might be reasonably law abiding.

RULES GOVERNING CONTEST:

Boys and Girls, have you any idea how popular you are? Here is a chance for you to find out; and also secure one of the Six (6) GOLD WATCHES, to be distributed November 4th, 1911 among the Most Popular Boys and Girls under 17 years of age.

☞HOW TO OBTAIN YOUR VOTES:—For the next sixty days every Y.M. Green Trading Stamp which you and your parents and friends get, should be pasted in the Y.M. Stamp Book as usual. You, and your friends who vote for you, will show these stamps to the attendant in the Y.M. Premium Parlor in the Quincy Department Store. The attendant will count and mark them "VOTED"; register the number of votes (equal to the number of Stamps shown) opposite the name voted for. The Stamps will then be returned to the holder.

The Quincy Daily Ledger will publish a Ballot which, when presented at our Premium Parlor, will entitle the Contestant to five (5) votes.

Various merchants will also publish coupons, each entitling the holder to five (5) votes in the same way.

It is important that you not only urge your friends to get the Y.M. Stamps whenever they make purchases, but also vote them for you. Get all you can. Vote them for yourself or for someone else in whom you are interested.

Profit by your mother's example in Thrift and Economy by collecting Y.M. Green Trading Stamps, which bring you so Generous a reward in Beautiful Premiums.

You will materially swell the number of Stamps you get, and the consequent votes you obtain, if you will bring us your HAMILTON BONDS and COUPONS, Tobacco Tags, Soap Wrappers, Labels and Trade-Marks. We will give you Y.M. Green Trading Stamps for them.

VOTING THE STAMPS DOES NOT IN ANY WAY INTERFERE WITH THEIR BEING REDEEMED FOR PREMIUMS IN THE USUAL WAY.

WOMEN'S CLUBS

WHAT THEY ARE DOING AND SEASONS' PLANS

Mrs. Mary Chandler West who is to give a recital at Alpha hall on Friday evening is on the waiting list of the Quincy Women's club with the hope some time of becoming an active member. Last season she delighted club members by her playing and many are looking forward to attending the recital. She will be assisted by Carl Behr the celebrated 'cellist and William Weston, pianist.

JUNIOR FRIDAY CLUB.

Miss Abigail Baxter Wood president of the Junior Friday club was hostess on Monday afternoon for the opening meeting of the club for the season of 1911-1912, and gave the members a cordial greeting. There was a short business session after which the program was in charge of Miss Georgiana C. Lane, chairman of the afternoon. Gilbert Charles Stuart was the subject he being first on the pear's program of famous people of the 18th century. Miss Grace M. Isaac told of Newport his birthplace and its characterics at that time; Mrs. William H. Whitney told of the man and why he was famous; Miss Clara L. Baxter gave sketches of Boston where he lived and died, with many of the old customs; Mrs. Perry Lawton gave reminiscences of his life and Miss Lane rounded out the program telling of his art and exhibiting copies of some of his best known paintings that of George Washington gracing an easel throughout the afternoon's program. The hospitality of the hostess was enjoyed and the afternoon ended most happily, the coming together after the summer recess being very pleasant. Most of the members were present and also two guests Mrs. John F. Welch and Miss Annie L. Prescott.

QUINCY WOMEN'S CLUB.

Next Tuesday afternoon in the regular club program of the Quincy Women's club will be held a public meeting at the club house when it is hoped there will be a large attendance. Any one interested in the work of the club or the welfare of the city will be welcome at this meeting. Judge Albert E. Avery of the District Court will speak on "Probation and its Benefits" and Dr. Jeffrey I. Brackett on "Our Duty Concerning Offenders."

The class in modern literature under the auspices of the Literature committee met for the first time this afternoon at the home of Mrs. Eben W. Sheppard. These lectures are sure to prove entertaining and instructive under the guidance of Mrs. Herbert J. Gurney and will close with a general discussion that will prove helpful in bringing out special points. There are to be ten lectures, the first and third Wednesdays of the month. The current events lectures begin Nov. 3. This committee continues its activity along other lines also and on Oct. 27 is to give a Halloween dance to raise funds for the work.

The Home Economic committee is to have an exhibition and sale of useful kitchen utensils at the club house the next two meetings to add to its treasury. Replenish your kitchen and at the same time help this committee.

QUINCY YOUNG WOMEN'S CLUB.

The opening meeting of the Quincy Young Women's club on Saturday evening was most successful. The president welcomed old and new members. A few reports were given and it was announced that two classes will be formed, a dramatic in charge of Mrs. Herbert J. Garney and a dressmaking class in charge of Mrs. James E. Neary who is instructor at the High school. The dressmaking class will meet Tuesday evening. It is hoped a large number will join these classes.

After the business meeting a play given by members of the club entitled "Love and a Way," the cast being:

Phyllis Merrick—A wilful young lady — Mabel E. Lovejoy
Amelia Porter Phyllis's aunts — Edith Fox
Agnes Porter — Marie Bass
Beatrice Vane, Phyllis's young friend — Ruth Kemp

Act. I—Sitting-room at the Porters
Act. II—The same—The time one Week later.
Act. III—The same—The time the next evening.

After the play all adjourned to the tea room where punch and cake were served, after which dancing was enjoyed. Miss Minnie Packard playing the piano.

WHEATON SEMINARY CLUB.

The first meeting of the season of the New England Wheaton Seminary club was held at Hotel Vendome, Boston, on Saturday afternoon, Mrs. Julia White Dalrymple of Medford, class of '82, presiding. Announcement was made of the death during the summer of Miss Hattie Paul, who was graduated from the seminary in the class of '54, and of the serious illness of Mrs. Julia Hopkins of Boston, at one time a teacher at Wheaton.

After the business session there was a lecture on "Rembrandt" by Mrs. F. E. Stanley and songs by Mrs. Winifred Powell, with piano accompaniments by A. E. Prescott. During the social hour that followed, tea was served under the direction of the social committee. The pourers were Miss Bassett of Taunton, Miss Borthwick, Miss Elizabeth Mansfield of West Medford and Miss Florence Dearing of Braintree.

Among those present were Mrs. A. A. Lauriat and Mrs. A. H. Langer of the Medford Women's Club, Mrs. Jeannie Woodbury Lincoln of Wollaston and Miss Annie L. Kilham of Beverly, past presidents of the club; Mrs. Mattie Chase of Fall River, the first secretary of the club; Mrs. Abby Jones of Kingston, Miss Stanton, a former principal of Wheaton Seminary, and Mrs. M. Jennie Bassett Dean of Campello.

At the November meeting Mr. Albert J. Kennedy will speak on Social Settlement work in Boston. There will be folk dances by a group of little girls from one of the Boston Settlements and violin selections by Miss Elizabeth F. Mansfield. At the December meeting there will be a paper on "Home Economics" by Mrs. Mary J. Lincoln and a quartet from the Arlington Music club will furnish a musical program.

ORCHARD HOUSE.

Much interest is manifested in the work of the Concord Woman's club in restoring the Orchard house, once occupied by the family of A. Bronson Alcott, including Louisa M. Alcott, the author of "Little Women." In the past four months the old dwelling has been renovated and no longer shows signs of decay.

Everything is immaculate about the place, but no attempt has yet been made to furnish the house. It is hoped, however, that some of the original furnishings will be restored. Mr. Alcott's study on the left of the entrance is a broad, low room. Over the fireplace is an inscription taken from Channing. The words were inscribed by May, the youngest of the four girls, who was an artist of ability. Louisa's chamber is interesting to all who have read her stories. From the windows can be seen the majestic elms, 200 years old, the home of the owls that were her pets.

Perhaps the little room in the rear contains the most interesting features of the house, for along the wainscoting, window and door frames are samples of the young girl's work. Most of the sketches are taken from mythological subjects, and the simple white woodwork has been transformed by her brush into friezes depicting Zeus and his attendant gods and goddesses.

This room has been left untouched, even to the wall paper, which is said to be the original. The long, low attic has its interest, for it was here that Louisa often took her writings. It is easy to imagine "Joe in a vortex" beneath this roof.

VOTING MACHINES

State Wide Campaign Planned By Voters' League

WILL TOUR STATE

Boston, Oct. 18—A state wide campaign having for its object the ratification by the people on election day of the amendment to the state constitution authorizing the use of voting machines, has been decided upon by the Voter's League of Massachusetts. The Leagues campaign will be started immediately with the demonstration of the American voting machine in various cities and towns throughout the state.

The officers of the League have decided to use this machine for demonstration purposes as they consider it the most nearly perfect of any now on the market. The League will give its first demonstration in Hovey Hall, Waltham, tonight, and on Monday will commence an automobile tour of the state, which will last until election day.

The efficiency of the voting machine and its superiority over the present ballot system will be shown, both through the demonstration and by lectures. The object is to arouse the voter's interest in the proposed amendment and assure its passage.

It is the almost universal experience that voting machines present the following advantages over any other method of registering the will of the people:

They compel every voter to vote in secrecy.

They make it mechanically impossible to cast a defective ballot.

They cannot be made to show a forced result.

They save time and prevent errors. When voting is ended, counting is ended.

They largely reduce the cost of election.

They do away with election contests and recounts.

CHICKENS ARE CUT OUT

Uncle Sam Saves $52,000 a Year on the Army Menu

Washington, Oct. 18.—The eliminating of chicken from the army menu, the limitation of turkey to Thanksgiving and Christmas, the substitution of "field bread" for hard tack and abolishment of the field ration, sum up the important changes in the army ration for the American soldier made during the past year, according to the report of Commissary General Sharpe.

The elimination of chicken has resulted in a yearly saving to the government of $52,000.

BRIEFS

Thursday is the birthday anniversary of President John Adams and out of respect to his memory flags should be displayed on public buildings.

The Dorcas society of the Universalist church is holding th first supper of the season Thursday night to be followed by a social hour of songs and games.

An unusually fine lunch is promised by the entertainment committee to be served at the rooms of the Granite City club tonight after the whist tournament.

Friends of Charles A. French and Robert W. Moore, of Billings street, are awaiting their return from the Maine woods with expectation, hoping that they will meet with their usual success in their search for big game.

The cool damp weather for the past few days has served to strip the trees of many of their leaves and the ground and sidewalks are covered with them. They are a dangerous thing on street car tracks especially when they are wet.

RECEIVED ITS CHARTER.

The Town River Yacht club received its charter from the Secretary of State today. Its flag will soon be flying from some of the yachts still in the water.

TALK ON JAPAN.

The Men's club of the Wollaston Methodist church are to hold an interesting meeting on Thursday evening in the church vestry. James F. Paige will give an illustrated talk on Japan and over 150 views of Japanese life will be shown.

SPECTACULAR BLAZE.

The alarm from Box 124 at 6.13 Tuesday night, was for a fire in a large pile of railroad sleepers along the track on Newport avenue. Just how the sleepers got on fire is not known but they made a lively blaze as well as causing quite an illumination.

COSTABILE GOES TO PRISON

Three and a Half to Seven Years' Sentence For Bomb Thrower

New York, Oct. 18.—Giuseppe Costabile, whom the police called the king of the bomb throwers, was sentenced to prison for three and a half to seven years.

Three detectives testified that they caught Costabile last September with a bomb under his coat.

IN FASHION'S REALM.

America Leads World in Smart Well-Made Clothes.

Half Long Coats, Slashed Skirts and Tunics Popular.

America with its struggle for convenience in every department has made the ready-to-wear coat and skirt an important part of its commercial life. One finds very few things of this kind in Europe; Paris offers gowns and blouses at its large department shops, but not coat suits.

If one goes to a tailor or a dressmaker there is nothing that is offered to you to put on at the moment; your order is taken and the gown made for your especial figure. True, it is made quickly, out of the rush season, but you can't go in the shop and get it and walk out with it on as you do in America.

Just what the American women would do without these ready-to-wear suits, now that they have been so spoiled by their perfection, would be hard to tell. The trade in this especial line grows greater every year, and even the most fashionable women who have leisure have gotten into the habit of buying coat suits instead of ordering them.

It is purely American this method, and as such is interesting and important. It has developed the growth of immense manufactories and numberless designers and buyers who do nothing but cater to this kind of American shopping.

It is true that every house has its representative in Paris and Vienna to see what is new and bring it home in part or in whole. So far the American designer is not independent of France, but this branch of the trade is less influenced by the laws of Paris than any other.

The American coat and skirt is famous. Some tailors and many European women wonder why Americans ever get coats and skirts abroad. They consider that the best in the world can be found in the great American cities. However, the French have worked hard to combat this centering of the coat suit trade in America, and they have made wonderful strides in the cutting and fitting of suits that the American women wear.

The one regrettable fact is that the entirely plain suit which always bore the hallmark of America is out of fashion. It has to be made to order, and even then the tailor protests. The athletic girl will continue to wear it, but it looks as if every one else would be persuaded out of it. The tailors are enthusiastic over this, for they do not care much for the plain suit. One of them confessed that it took entirely too much fitting.

Of course, Paris has never gone in for the athletic suit. The few tailors there made a specialty of it for American trade, but the French creators do not aprove of such clothes

The difference between the coat suits over there and here lies more in fabric than in the cut. The Americans have adopted the narrow skirt with even more enthusiasm than Europe has, because it exactly suits their active outdoor life; they have also taken up the half long coat as a change from the short one of the Spring, but the materials over here are of tweed, zibelline, herringbone serge, and rough cloth, whereas the coat suits of Europe and Paris are of ratine, velour cloth, zibelline, and corduroy.

The striped suits are repeated over here more in the exclusive models than in the ordinary ones. The black zibelline with a dull red stripe has made its appearance, touched off with a piping of red at the collar and with buttons which show a centre of red cloth or velvet with a black edge.

The gray and black striped cloth is in favor here, as there, but it is trimmed more with black velvet than with white ratine. This is natural because of our sooty atmosphere and the way we rush around the streets at all hours of the day and ride on street cars.

There are good-looking gray and black zibellines here which are made on the order of the original ones brought out in Paris in August. They are much simpler, however, and do not have the dramatic effect of the other. While they have the side fastening on the coat below the waist which is very new and dashing, they do not drag the coat around the hips in the extreme new method in order to make it look larger above the waist.

For instance, one of the best coat suits in Paris which was brought to America is a mottled gray and black frieze, which is another stylish fabric abroad that has seldom been seen here so far; the coat with its voluminous black fur collar was drawn across the figure below the waist as an evening cape is and caught over on the left hip with two buttons.

The American idea, which is much less conspicuous is to cut the lower part of the coat to fit the figure without folds and then to button it on a bias line just below the waist to the hem.

The tunic skirt is used a good deal, but not with the bias opening in front, although there is often a bias seam. It has the straight line down the side, and is then cut across the figure to show the lower skirt of velvet or some other material. Other skirts have a simulated tunic made by a wide band that goes around the figure, above the hem, and is met by braid loops and buttons, which continue in a panel up the side to the knees.

The coats all carry out, more or less, the method laid down in Paris this Summer. This embraces the short waistline in the back, accentuated by a cord or a belt; the rather long peplum, which is usually a part of the fronts instead of being stitched to them; the immense sailor collar, which laps below the bust; the leather belt, when one is needed, and the three huge buttons at the waist.

There are far more three-quarter sleeves over here than there. Paris has gone in with enthusiasm for the long sleeve that usually fastens snugly at the wrist. Here the sleeves are not so tight and not so long, and are finished with a turnover cuff, which is quite ornamental.

It is in the collar and cuff on all these suits that one indulges in color combinations. The suits are so dressy, compared to everything we have had, that it offends at first any one who has approved the mannish American style of coat and skirt; as long as it is the fashion to add color it is wiser to do it on the collar and cuffs than to splash it on the skirt.

Purple is the color chosen in most of the American suits to form a contrast with the plain material. It goes well with the mottled gray and black combinations, the black and gray stripes and the vague-toned friezes which carry so much black. There is a hard, brilliant light blue which is also used for collar and cuffs in cloth instead of velvet, but as it is a difficult color to wear near the face it is not commended. It can be softened in a most acceptable way by a turnover collar of ecru or white open-worked batiste.

The wide lace collars of the Summer have disappeared. Only heavy materials are used; even taffeta has been abandoned, and whenever one can use fur either as a whole collar or as a trimming it is the best thing to do. Moleskin, baby caracul, seal-skin, and chinchilla are all used with possibly moleskin as the favorite.

As a rival to the sailor collar there is a deep round collar which does not go over the armhole or drape the shoulders, and it is liked by many women. There is an excellent American model that shows this collar in California plum purple ratine. The skirt is without trimming except two stitched folds down the side and one above the hem. The half long coat has a lapped seam that runs diagonally across the figure from waist to hem, and a round collar of reddish purple velvet with a plain fold of the material.

The single-breasted fronts are fastened just above the waistline with three velvet buttons edged with the material and caught together with velvet loops.

All the features of the new coat suits are repeated in the stunning one-piece frocks which are trying to elbow the others out of place. Where one frock used to be shown in the shops there are now twenty. They are made by all the greatest designers of the world, and women have eagerly taken them up.

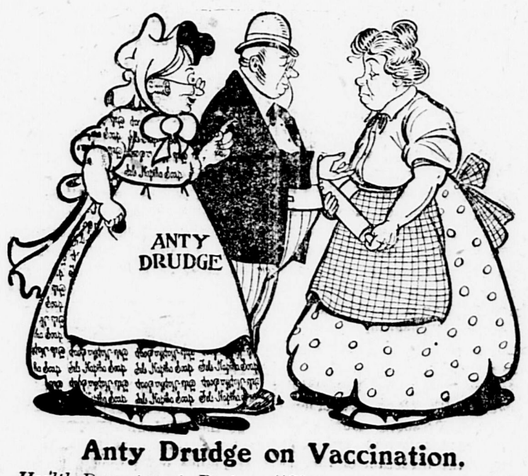
Most of them have sailor collars, all have belts, and the best looking ones have a kind of cuirass trimming of narrow braid that begins at the bust and runs down to the hips. The sleeves are long, fastened at the wrist with ornamental buttons, and edged with plaited frills of white dotted net or lace.

One of the best models is in black ratine, the very soft, supple kind, with the cuirass work done in two widths of black braid, and a pocket suggested on each hip by three tiny coral buttons. It fastens in front, as most of them do this year, with an immense rever on one side and a small one of velvet on the other. There is a chemisette of ecru batiste with a frill of the material down the middle, and a high collar of the same.

All these frocks will be worn under fur coats and polo coats on the street, and used entirely in the house instead of separate skirts and blouses. They are made of ratine, tweed, serge, and a soft broadcloth. Camel's hair is also brought in fashion for this special garment, and is so soft that it can be draped with exceeding dexterity.

There is one coat, by the way, which is quite new and is an American production. It has a swinging panel down the back to match the swinging panel on the skirt. Both are quite wide and are not attached to the foundations. The one on the coat swings loose from the back about two inches above the waist line and drops to the hem, where it is cut slightly on the bias and finished with ball fringe.

This coat promises to be very popular. Both the retail and wholesale houses say that it is going with a flourish.—New York Times.



Anty Drudge on Vaccination.

Health Department Doctor—"Give me your arm, Mrs. Malone, I have been sent to vaccinate you.

Mrs. Malone—On me arm? How will I be able to wash wid me arm the soize of a horse's leg?"

Anty Drudge—"If you'd use Fels-Naptha soap, you'd be able to do all the washboard rubbing necessary with one hand."

How much of Monday do you spend at the wash-tub? Far too long if you wash clothes any way except the Fels-Naptha way. One of the greatest blessings of Fels-Naptha soap is its quick action. When you use Fels-Naptha, a half hour's soaking in cold or lukewarm water will thoroughly loosen the dirt. While the clothes soak you are free to do other work. Then rub lightly, rinse and the clothes are ready for the line.

Fels-Naptha soap robs Monday of it's drudgery. But it must be used the Fels-Naptha way—no boiling, no hot water.

ROOSTER COAL BRIQUETTES
NO SLATE NO CLINKERS
ROOSTER COAL BRIQUETS
THE NEW ANTHRACITE COAL
ROOSTER BRIQUETS are made from the choicest small Scranton Anthracite coal, mined in Pennsylvania, called TWENTIETH CENTURY CHESTNUT size
Just consider for a moment what we offer here in this 20th CENTURY CHESTNUT.
First, 2000 pounds of clean, pure, hard coal without a rock or a piece of slate.
Second, fuel that cannot form into a clinker, by any known method of firing, consequently the linings and grates last indefinitely.
Third, they are made in nut size, being equally convenient for furnace heaters, open grates, as well as stoves; therefore, only one storage bin is necessary.
Fourth, and very IMPORTANT, the quality of this fuel is the SAME EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR, not a good ton today, and nothing like it the next time, in other words, when you once learn how to regulate your drafts you have nothing more to learn about burning BRIQUETS.
Fifth, no more sifting ashes these Briquets burn out clean. They require less wood to kindle.
Be sure to ask for "ROOSTERS" and get the Briquet made from pure Scranton Coal, from the largest Briquet plant in the country. They are better than coal, will last as long and cost less.

"Yes," went on Mrs. Mason, "and I can't work for a man who has done wickedly as Mr. Temple has. His conduct would reflect on me. There you have it, Mr. Craven. My conscience won't let me give silent consent to his deeds by my presence."

"Oh, I say, Mrs. Mason, come, come," laughed Craven in spite of himself. "Get off old Plymouth rock just for once, that's a good soul!"

"It might be better for your new New York if it stood a bit firmer on old Plymouth rock," snapped she, "instead of Wall street quicksand." She was about leaving the room in high dudgeon when her eye chanced upon some glaring headlines in the morning's paper which, with other journals, Craven in his bustle had flung upon the floor.

"See! See that!" she said, picking it up and handing it triumphantly to the lawyer. "It's that piece in today's paper which has finally decided me to make a change. All about the Granger case and Mr. Temple's connection with it. Look!"

"'Justice and high finance,'" read Craven half aloud in fine, sneering fashion. "'The continued silence on the part of Mr. Burton Temple regarding his connection with the Granger case only confirms suspicion in the minds of the thinking public'—

"'Thinking public,' that's good!" ejaculated he. He bit off the end of a cigar. "Every successful man's a cur and every rich man a malefactor in that blessed thinking public's eye."

"Just read it through, please," pleaded Mrs. Mason, with clasped hands.

"'When the law is so flagrantly defied it is time that the American public made a stand. The Granger case has gone a step too far. It is one thing for a rich man to avoid punishment; it is another thing for a rich man to avoid punishment by throwing the guilt on another's shoulders. There is scarcely a man today who does not believe that Robert Granger is a scapegoat for Burton Temple.'

"Why in the name of heaven must this Granger case come up again?" shouted Craven, throwing down the paper with a hot expletive. "Granger had a fair trial, was convicted, sent to prison, and now, not content with the justice of their own courts, these newspapers are trying to get him out."

"And send Mr. Temple in his place to serve his term," finished Mrs. Mason quietly, "where he deserves to be," she added in measured tones. "There, I've said it. To be silent is to acquiesce. It is sheltering evil. 'Tisn't' always easy to speak out our thoughts. But I've been taught where a principle is concerned it's our duty to do so. It's like the sun—it purifies." Her chin was well up in the air.

A pause. Craven's cigar was out, and he was slow about relighting it.

"The sun purifies, yes," sighed he, "but it germinates too. Half the moral and social crimes would cease if women and men also buried the other half in silence. That hysterical desire to express it belongs to a past age. Mrs. Mason," he said sternly, "after all, we don't know much about our neighbors' lives—really any of us—so it's safer and wiser to be kind in our judgments, eh? None of us needs to resolve himself into a fraction of the day of judgment, thank God." He swallowed hard, this old stoic of a lawyer. "And, by thunder," he exploded, "if three years' knowledge of a man's daily life, with all its integrity and fineness and honesty of purpose, must go for naught then"—

The telephone bell interrupted. Mrs. Mason, close at hand, took the message.

"It's Miss Dale, Miss Graham's successor," announced she, awaiting Craven's orders.

"Have her shown up," tartly. And incisively, "Hope she'll prove as capable a segretary as Miss Graham and a fairer woman."

With this little dig he turned to the big bay window and let the air of the Hudson cool his brow, while the housekeeper stood at the door to usher in the new secretary.

"Anna, Anna!" she gasped, stepping back, confounded.

CHAPTER III.

THE GRANGER CASE.

THE new secretary, equally astonished, put her fingers to her lips, commanding silence, and Mrs. Mason widened the distance abruptly as Craven, at the slight noise, turned from the window.

"I'm Craven, Mr. Temple's legal adviser," he said. "I suppose you are the young woman Miss Graham has recommended?"

The young woman nodded cheerfully. She looked very girlish and graceful in spite of her dignity. "I trust I'll prove worthy of Miss Graham's recommendation," said she in low contralto tones.

"Miss Graham is thoroughly alive to the difficult nature of the work here just at present. I take it for granted she must have known you well and felt convinced of your ability to give satisfaction, otherwise"— Craven opened his large Nebraskan hand with an eloquent gesture.

Just for an appreciable fraction of a second two fleeting dimples stirred in the new secretary's oval cheeks.

"Miss Graham has known me for many years. She knows I will do my duty."

"Looks as if you would, anyhow," agreed Craven bluntly. He turned to Mrs. Mason, who still stood, eyes wide open and chin down, the picture of prim New England astonishment. "Mr. Temple's housekeeper, Miss Dale," said he. "You two must be friends."

The elder woman pulled herself together with an effort, and with a rather awkward consciousness held out her hand in response to Anna's well poised, nonchalant greeting. The Plymouth Rock conscience and diplomacy were not working well together, and she, poor lady, was in dire straits.

"I understand I am to work here as well as in the New York office?" said Anna, turning toward Craven and adroitly keeping his attention focused away from Mrs. Mason.

"Uh-huh!" assented he. "For the next few weeks we shall be unmercifully rushed. "Even ordinarily Mr. Temple carries on a large part of his business here, but this case will give him more than ever to do."

"The Granger case?" questioned the new secretary, with strange avidity.

Craven nodded.

"Well, perhaps you'll be kind enough to explain this—this Granger case to me a bit now while we have time? It will save Mr. Temple that much exertion." She spoke with pretty little staccato catches in her breath, and her eyes were like stars. "An alert and intelligent young woman," commented the lawyer to himself.

"Why, yes, Miss Dale," he responded aloud, "the case is very simple. Sit down. About a year ago Mr. Temple rose to the presidency of the Gotham Trust company. Robert Granger was cashier. Cornelius Brady, a big financier, presented a check for $700,000. Mr. Temple did not feel justified in certifying this check, and Brady, without Temple's knowledge, went to Granger and induced him to certify it, making the trust company responsible for the money. Now, Granger had no right to do this, you understand. It was an overcertification. And the overcertification of that check, coming as it did just before the panic, helped in large measure to bring on the failure of the Gotham Trust company."

"But this Granger, did he not have a defense?" asked the young woman eagerly, watching Craven covertly from under her black lashes.

"Defense? Sure," grunted he. "He lied. Tried like the devil to convince the jury that Temple had given him an order."

MRS. VON CLAUSSEN INSANE

Once Prominent In Public Eye Through Her Controversies

New York, Oct. 18.—Mrs. Ida Von Claussen, who first came into prominence through a controversy with the United States minister to Sweden and later with President Roosevelt, was committed to the Bloomingdale insane asylum. Physicians of Bellevue hospital decided that she was suffering from "progressive paranoia."

The physician's report read in court said that Mrs. Von Claussen had accused Roosevelt of preventing her from marrying the son of the King of Sweden. Her original quarrel with the Swedish minister arose from the latter's refusal to present her at court.

Clara Barton Will Spend Coming Winter In the South

Washington, Oct. 18.—Miss Clara Barton, founder of the American Red Cross, who spent the past season at her summer home in Oxford, Mass., has arrived in Glen Echo, Md., where she will reside this winter.

Although Miss Barton has not fully recovered from the serious illness which she suffered last summer she stood the journey well. She was accompanied by her physician and her nephew.

COTTON FACTORIES ARE ON FULL TIME

More Employes Working at Lowell Than a Year Ago

Lowell, Mass., Oct. 18.—Cotton manufacturing in Lowell is beginning to feel the improved condition of the general market. There is nothing to warrant the expectation of any boom in the near future, but certain facts serve as the barometer to a bettter feeling among the manufacturers.

With one exception all the several corporations are now running full time, and with virtually all of the machinery in operation. Compared with a year ago, there are from 1500 to 1800 more people now employed in the cotton mills than were at work in October of 1910.

The export trade is in the market locally at this time, and shows some willingness to buy goods. This is especially true in regard to Cuba, Porto Rico and South American ports.

BLONDE TAKES ISHI'S EYE

She Vanishes When Wild Man's Praise Becomes Too Fulsome

San Francisco, Oct. 18.—Ishi, the aborigine from the Wild Deer creek country, held a reception here and amused his guests by weaving a primitive fish net.

Suddenly he stopped weaving and fixed his eyes on a tall blonde who wore a hat under which Ishi could hide. The blonde's face grew rosier and Ishi kept staring; then he grunted and gurgled something to Sam Batwee, his translator.

"He says the woman under the roof is more beautiful than moonshine on the lake, more beautiful than a doe's eyes, more beautiful——" The blonde vanished.

MEETING OF GALAHAD BROTHERHOOD

Much interest was manifested at the business meeting of Galahad Brotherhood of Christ church Tuesday night. The two most important transactions of the evening were the getting into line of the various committees on socials and degree work. There is strenuous work ahead for these committees in order to meet the demands.

While the influx of applications is steady the call of the many who feel the warm blood coursing through their veins as the golden crown of autumn bows before the onward march of winter, is to start the social whirl of merriment at the earliest date possible. This later work is imperative and before another month the Ladies and the Knights of the Table Round will meet to indulge in revelry as in the days of Arthur's court.

The meeting closed early that members might enjoy a game of bowling which proved good exercise and a pleasant pastime.

TODAY'S COURT.

Bernard J. Hannon was fined $15 for larceny at Quincy.

Mary Sullivan and Edward Maeden were fined $15 each for drunkenness at Quincy.

Wallace D. Dexter was fined $3 costs, Horatio A. Lamb $5, Thomas H. Joyce $20, Paul Ramsey $20, John L. Waldo $15, John P. Murray $15, James L. Porter $10, George W. Roe $10, Ralph Richardson $10 and Charles E. Whitton $10 for violation of the rules of the Metropolitan Park Commission.

Joseph Cutler was fined $10 for collecting junk without a license at Milton.

Frank Royce was fined $10 for violation of the game laws at Braintree.

Charles A. Leod was fined $15 for drunkenness at Quincy.

Joseph M. Cummings was arraigned for larceny at Weymouth. Case continued until Oct. 28.

SHOE CUTTERS QUIT WORK

Contest Between Knights of Labor and Lynn Manufacturers

Lynn, Mass., Oct. 18.—More than 400 Knights of Labor shoe cutters in Lynn have become idle. This is the beginning of the open contest between the shoe manufacturers and the employes of their cutting rooms over the number of hours that shall constitute a week's work.

Forty-five hours have been determined upon by the union cutters, distributed so as to allow eight to each of five days and five for Saturdays. The manufacturers decline to grant this reduction, and most of them have agreed to take a united stand.

BUMPS INTO STEAM ROLLER

Electric Car Badly Smashed and Passengers Injured

Clinton, Mass., Oct. 18.—Twenty passengers, among whom were several women, were hurt, some of them seriously, when an electric car collided with a steam road roller at the foot of a hill in Boylston, near the Worcester city line.

The car was bound from Worcester to Clinton. When the car started down the grade the motorman shut off the power, but he was unable to hold the car.

The track was damp and the wheels slid along. The steam roller was on the track and the car crashed into it. The car was badly smashed. The people in the car were thrown from their seats. Flying glass cut the faces and hands of the passengers.

—The Republican meeting at Quincy Monday night was most encouraging. There was a large and enthusiastic audience. It is noteworthy that the most applause came to State Treasurer Stevens for his showing up of the Foss experts and other failures of the present State Administration. That is the line of argument on which victory must come.—Boston Transcript.

QUINCY HIGH DEFEATS SCHOOL OF COMMERCE

Local Boys Play In Fine Form Winning By Score of 5-0

Line Up Showed Marked Improvement Over Last Game

Dispirited in no way by the overwhelming defeat administered to them last Saturday by the strong Medford High eleven, the Quincy High football farriors opposed the formidable High School of Commerce team at Merrymount park yesterday afternoon with renewed vigor and emerged from the contest with a 5 to 0 victory to their credit. The weather was very unfavorable, yet the few who journeyed to the game saw Quincy High display its best form of the season. Both teams were of a like calibre and only a marvellous specimen of sound judgement and headwork enabled the Quincy lads to be pronounced the victors in the early part of the second period.

The weight of the teams was about even, as was also the playing on both sides, although the ball was in the local team's territory during the greater part of the game. Punting was resorted to in great measure and despite the fact that the inclement weather had rendered it very difficult to handle the pigskin, some fine punts were made. Page did the work in this line for the local boys and he certainly performed in grand style, for on every occasion his kicks were good for 40 to 50 yards.

The local eleven seemed to be able to do better work on the offensive side than the visiting team, but the ability of the latter to keep the ball out of danger prevented a much larger score being made. The work of the entire Quincy team showed up to advantage, although considerable improvement can yet be forthcoming from Larkin's end. The backfield seemed to be able to get off quicker than in any game heretofore, and the only missing feature of the contest was the absence of an interference that would enable the local backs to reap greater gains. The tackling of Johnson was exceptionally conspicuous and if the other side of the line could only strengthen to the same degree, the members of the Quincy High team should have nothing to fear in going against teams with a reputation such as Medford High possesses.

The line of the visiting team was strong, with the exception of one guard position and an end, which deficiency the local boys repeatedly took advantage of in order to net great gains. Blackmur did splendid work in running the various plays and his catching of punts was of the top notch variety, when we consider the condition of the ball and the grounds. Kennedy and Farrell showed up strongly in the backfield for the Commerce team, while the work of Jesseau was also conspicuous. These boys were the star players for the visitors.

For Quincy High "Pete' Chapman played his usual star game, and besides the others already mentioned, White and Young should come in for their share of commendation. "Sam—Prout was sent in at quarter in the last few minutes of play, and the local team was doing efficient work under his guidance. It was in the early part of the second period, that a 30 yard run by Holmes, followed on the next play by a 40 yard gain on a forward pass to Johnson, placed the ball within striking distance of the goal.

Both teams tried the forward pass, both the Commerce team tried it more often than did the local boys. It was worked successfully twice by each eleven, but the Quincy team derived greater gains on its execution. The onside kick was tried by Quincy High but it failed to work. Many trick plays were in evidence during the game, and the visitors displayed one that worked in fine style. The quarter back took the ball presumably to punt, but instead of kicking the ball drew it back over his right shoulder, with the consequence that it was taken on a rush by the left half back.

The local boys tried their tackle play but once yesterday. It was hoped that this play would be given a thorough test, but even though it worked successfully, it was not used to the degree desirable.

First Period.

The game was on in real earnest in the very start as soon as Commerce had received the ball. The visitors failed to make downs and were forced to punt. Quincy got possession of the ball and the punting game was resorted to on the failure to acquire any great distances. A series of punts were interchanged and Costello of the visitors tackled Homes on the visitors' 35 yard line. Quincy again punted and when the ball was regained it was found to be on the visitors' 45 yard line.

The ball was rushed at length by each side but neither team made any great gains. Punting played the most conspicuous part of the start of the game and when the period ended it was Quincy's ball on its opponents 35 yard line.

Second Period.

Quincy kicked to Commerce and Kennedy, who caught the ball was tackled in his tracks on his own 15 yard line Commerce failed to gain and punted. The ball was caught by Holmes, who ran 35 yards before being downed, and who would have undoubtedly gone for a touchdown had the proper interference been forthcoming. The forward pass was next called into play and was very cleverly executed, Johnson taking the ball and advancing about 40 yards on the play. Blackmur had little difficulty in placing the pigskin over the line for the first and only touchdown of the game. On a kick out for a try for a goal, the ball was muffed and the score stood 5 to 0 in favor of the local eleven.

Commerce kicked and Finley took the ball 25 yards before being tackled. Blackmur tried a quarterback rush but was thrown back for a loss and Holmes suffered a similar fate when he was sent around the end. On failure to gain, Quincy punted. Commerce fumbled the ball, and the local boys, were again in possession of it. The punting game was again in play and when the visitors punted, it was White's ball on a fair catch in the middle of the field. Holmes went through for 5 yards. On the next play Blackmur fumbled, but regained the ball.

The visitors got the ball on the next punt. The forward pass was tried but failed. Commerce again punted and it was Holmes' ball on his own 15 yard line. Here was the visitors' opportunity to get a touchdown, but the strength of the local team was sufficient to offset all endeavors in this regard. Page punted out to the middle of the field and the ball was received by Kennedy who advanced with it 20 yards. Time was here called for the end of the period.

Third Period.

Quincy kicked to Farrell, who ran for a gain of 5 yards. A quarterback rush by Commerce netted 4 yards. Commerce punted and Blackmur lost the ball on a fumble in the middle of the field. Here the trick play explained above was tried by the visitors and enabled their left half back to gain 15 yards. The same player was again given the ball and he advanced 5 yards. A rush through centre netted 5 yards, but Quincy held them for downs on the 40 yard line, of the visitors.

Blackmur tried a quarterback run and was successful in getting a few yards' gain. The ball went to Commerce, which tried the forward pass, but unsuccessfully. Commerce was forced to punt on again gaining the ball, and Holmes ran it back for 15 yards, to the visitors' 30 yard line Finley went through centre for 15 yards. The ball was now in the middle of the field, and foul play by the visitors caused them the loss of 15 yards.

Fourth Period.

It was Quincy's ball. Johnson on a tackle play gained 10 yards. The local boys failed to get the required distance and the ball went to Commerce on the middle of the field. Commerce failed to gain and punted to Johnson, who advanced about 5 yards. Commerce punted and the ball was fumbled on the visitor's 2 yard line, where it was regained by Larkin. Finley went through centre for 10 yards Quincy punted to Farrell, who reaped 15 yards. Commerce tried the forward pass to advantage. It was received by Jesseau, who made 20 yards on the play. Blackmur threw Farrell for a loss of 2 yards. It was still the opposing team's ball, and a goal from the field was tried, but was blocked by one of the local players. The ball was interchanged but was finally recovered by Commerce on Quincy's 25 yard line. Commerce failed to gain on the first two downs and another field goal was attempted but this endeavor resulted in the same fate as the former try for the score. Quincy got the ball after a series of punts had been tried, on the visitors 25 yard line. Crane and Prout, went in at this moment and on the first rush the former went around the end for a gain of 30 yards. Quincy steadily advanced the ball and was going along finely when the game was called with the ball in the middle of the field.

It was without doubt the best game the local boys have played this year and it is hoped that the same performance will be noticeable against Boston College High next Tuesday.

PROGRESSIVES ALL FOR LA FOLLETTE

They Urge That Senator Be Nominated For President

Chicago, Oct. 18.—The business of the national conference of progressive Republicans, at which Senator La Follette was indorsed for the presidential nomination, is finished, the final program including a luncheon yesterday and a mass meeting last night. Speakers at the luncheon included Senator Clapp of Minnesota, James Monohan of Minneapolis, Henry F. Cochems of Milwaukee. At the night meeting the speakers were Senator Clapp, Senator Crawford, George L. Record of New Jersey, Amos Pinchot of New York and Charles E. Merriam of Illinois.

Two hundred progressive Republicans indorsed La Follette for president and declared for a direct primary as a means for the expression of a presidential choice. The indorsement was in the shape of a resolution framed in part by former Secretary of the Interior Garfield. It was held by the delegates that Garfield expressed the views of Theodore Roosevelt.

OUR MORAL PERPLEXITIES

Case of Boston Reformer Cited by Tufts College Professor

Providence, Oct. 18.—Professor Berle of Tufts college, in discussing the moral perplexities of the American people before the Rhode Island Baptist union, cited a Boston instance. He said:

"In Boston, for example, a prominent man of high personal character and repute, a gentleman even discussed as a possible president of Harvard university, was a reform candidate for mayor. This same gentleman is now under federal indictment for criminal offense. The average man must be adjudged much more stupid than he is if anyone supposes that he is not asking which of these two characters is his real one."

HUNDRED PERSONS KILLED

Town at Base of Mt. Etna Partially Destroyed by Earthquake

Catania, Sicily, Oct. 18.—One hundred or more persons were killed, and 200 were injured in an earthquake that rocked the country about the base of Mt. Etna.

Mt. Etna became active following the earthshock, and is at present emitting large quantities of smoke and lava. The town of Acireale, at the base of the mountain, was partially destroyed, but the heaviest loss of life, so far as at present known, occurred at Giarro, where fifty were killed.

WHOLE FAMILY SLAIN

Man, Wife and Three Children Are Murdered as They Sleep

Ellsworth, Kan., Oct. 18.—Slain as they slept, the bodies of William Showman, 33 years old, his wife and their children, Lester, 5 years old, Fern, 4 years old, and Senton, 1 year old, were discovered in their home.

The five victims were found in one room. The baby's head was cut off. Showman was a chauffeur and mechanic at a garage here.

MACKMEN PULL OUT A VICTORY

Heart-Breaking Contest Lasts Eleven Innings

BAKER IS AGAIN THE STAR

Smashes Another Home Run In the Ninth and Ties Score—Giants Fail In Desperate Bid In Eleventh, the Athletics Scoring Two Runs and Winning by Three to Two—Soreness at Home Team

New York, Oct. 18.—Frank Baker, the Athletics' third baseman, who broke up Monday's game and gave his team a victory, duplicated his performance Tuesday by knocking another home run, which clinched the contest.

His smash came in the ninth and tied up the score, in which the Giants had led from the third inning. Again in the eleventh Baker and Collins, who were Monday's stars, started the battle for the Giants which ended in both of them scoring and the Athletics stowing away their second victory of the series.

Tuesday's score was 3 to 2. The Giants made a desperate bid in their half of the eleventh, when Herzog, who was first up, led off with a double. Coombs, who for ten innings had held the Giants to a brace of hits, steadied, however, and the next three men were retired without further damage.

Approximately 37,000 people witnessed the contest, and it is doubtful if any home team in the world's series ever faced such a crowd. Throughout the early innings there was a total lack of approval for the Giants, with the exception of Mathewson, whose popularity is unquestioned.

During the latter part of the contest the Athletics went to the lead, the crowd warmed up and the rooting for the visitors would have made an outsider think the Athletics were the home team.

With the Giants at bat and runs desperately needed there was a deadly calm over the entire stadium, and only when the Athletics' runs were making did the grand stands and bleachers give vent to their enthusiasm.

Only once was there any demonstration against one of the local players, this occurring when the crowd figured that Snodgrass intentionally or carelessly spiked Baker in sliding into third.

The feeling was obviously not directed at the individual players, but was evidently inclined by the general soreness resulting from the ticket speculating scandal, which boosted prices for the local game out of the reach of thousands of those who have supported the team during the season.

There was no questioning the Athletics' superiority. They won every inch of the way, and both in the box and at the bat had it on the National leaguers. Mathewson was forced to bow to Coombs, who had it on him all the way.

The Philadelphian was given much better support than Matty, whose team mates stacked up five errors during the contest, most of which were costly. Coombs never faltered after the third inning.

The national commission last night announced that the total paid attendance at Tuesday's game was 37,216. The total receipts were $75,593, which is divided as follows: To the national commission, $7,559.30; to the players, $40,820.22; to the clubs, $27,213.48. The score:

Peculiar Accident Happens to Biggest Steamer on Great Lakes

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Oct. 18.—The steamer Emperor, the largest Canadian vessel on the lakes, was sunk at the lower entrance of the Canadian lock, practically blocking navigation.

Captain Pearson of the steamer said that as soon as the gates were opened the force of the water parted the lines of the steamer, causing her to leave the canal at high speed. The mate ordered an anchor dropped, but the water was not sufficiently deep to override the anchor and it was hit by the steamer, tearing a hole in her bottom.

TODAY IS ANNIVERSARY OF BIRTH OF JOHN ADAMS

Celebrated American 2nd Pres. of United States Was Born In Quincy 136 Years Ago

John Adams.

Today is the 136th anniversary of President John Adams, the second President of the United States, who was born in that part of Braintree now known as Quincy. As a remark of respect to this distinguished son his picture, surrounded by the American flag is being displayed at the Adams birthplace.

Pattee's history of Quincy gives the following sketch of President Adams whose remains lie in the sarcophagus beneath the steps of the First church with his wife Abigail Adams:

John Adams was born in Braintree, Oct. 19th, 1735, in the most northerly of the two old mansions on Franklin street, owned by his father, and now in possession of his descendants, and graduated at Harvard College in 1775. On leaving college, he taught school in Worcester, where he also studied law in the office of Col. James Putnam. He began the practice of his profession in Braintree about the year 1758, at the age of twenty-three years. The first writ issued by Mr. Adams was on an action of trespass for a rescue. This gave him considerable uneasiness, as he was apprehensive that it was defective, which it proved to be, as it was abated. He soon after removed to Boston, where he became eminent in his profession, and was appointed Chief Justice of the Supreme Court; he was chosen one of the delegates to the first Continental Congress in 1774.

Mr. Adams was married to Abigail Smith, daughter of the Rev. William Smith, of Weymouth. By this marriage he became allied to a numerous and highly respectable family connection, which greatly assisted him in his professional business.

In 1778, Congress selected him as one of the Commissioners to France; Feb. 13th, he sailed in the frigate Boston, with his son John Q. Adams, then ten years of age, and arrived at Bordeaux, France, April 8th. Owing to some misdemeanors of Mr. Silas Dean, the commissioners were placed in an embarrassed position; so much so, that Mr. Adams concluded to take no part with them, and returned home after an absence of seventeen months.

On his arrival home he was selected by the town of Braintree as a delegate to attend a convention for the formation of a State Government, where he took an active and important part; but he was soon called away from the convention to attend to the duty of a commissioner to negotiate a treaty of peace with Great Britain, and for some years he was the American Ambassador to the Court of St. James.

Mr. Adams was chosen Vice-President of the United States in 1789, and at the expiration of Washington's term of office, as President of the United States, Mr. Adams was chosen to succeed him in this high and important position. After his term of office expired he retired to his residence in Quincy. In 1820, he was selected by the citizens of his native town, as a delegate to the State Convention that assembled to amend the State Constitution. The remaining portion of his long life was spent in literary labors, and holding correspondence with the most eminent statesmen of that period. He, with his co-patriot, Thomas Jefferson, expired on their country's birthday the 4th of July, 1826. Mr. Adams' age at the time of his death was ninety-one years.

HARVEST SUPPER

Served By Geo. L. Gill Rebekah Lodge

IN ODD FELLOWS HALL

A very enjoyable harvest supper was served Wednesday evening by George L. Gill Rebekah lodge in Odd Fellows hall. The supper was served at 6.30, the menu consisting of cold meats and vegetables, baked beans, potato salad, rolls, coffee and pies of all kinds.

At the conclusion of the supper an adjournment was made to the lodge room where there was a pleasing entertainment consisting of vocal and instrumental music, and a ventriloquist. At its close, whist was enjoyed for the remainder of the evening. The affair was in charge of the entertainment committee and proved very enjoyable.

BLAMES MAN FOR DEATH OF CLERGYMAN

Special Justice Frank M. Copeland of the Newton police court in his finding on an inquest held on the death of Rev. Samuel M. Gracy, who committed suicide Aug. 19, at a West Newton sanitarium, blames Carl Mikander of Quincy.

Mikander was an attendant at the sanitarium and was in charge of the patient. The judge says that he finds that the clergyman was in a cheerful frame of mind on the day in question and that might have put the attendant off his guard but was no excuse for his leaving him.

PLAYING KEEN BANQUET FINE AT WHIST PARTY

Ten tables contested at the weekly whist tournament of the Granite City club Wednesday evening for the weekly prizes. Play as usual was keen and while in progress the odor that floated from the kitchen was such that it made the players anxious to get through. At the close of the play a lunch was served consisting of chicken casserole, glazed potatoes, cake, coffee, crackers and cheese. The highest scores were secured by John Curtis and Horace E. Spear. The former secured 75 per cent and the latter 72 per cent. The entertainment committee are arranging for a ladies' night to be held in Colonial hall, Thursday evening, Nov. 16.

The Chinese rebels have seized all cash in the banks. The American Insurgents seem to have overlooked this.

OPENING MEETING OF BROTHERHOOD

Of First Presbyterian Church Was Delightful Affair

The opening meeting of the brotherhood was held on Tuesday evening in the lecture room of the First Presbyterian church. The evening opened with a hearty address of welcome by the newly elected president George S. Wilson, who in a few well chosen words introduced Dr. Tufts of the First Presbyterian church of Boston as the principal speaker of the evening. Dr. Tufts in his usual way held the attention of the members throughout his entire address, speaking at some length on the responsibility of the man and his duties to his fellow man and to his church. Remarks were also made by Alex Clark, Mr. Matheson and Mr. J. McLeod.

A social hour was then spent and thoroughly enjoyed by all. James Ross sang several songs during the evening and Harry Nicholson ably presided at the piano. It is expected that 30 new members will be welcomed at the next meeting.

ANNUAL HARVEST SUPPER

The Ladies' Benevolent society of Memorial Congregational church, Atlantic, held its annual harvest supper Wednesday evening. Although the weather was somewhat rainy, about two hundred found their way to the parlors of the church where they partook of all the good things imaginable, beginning with corned beef and every vegetable and ending with good old fashioned pies, apple, mince and squash.

Indian pudding with cream, was also served, and the fruit formed a very attractive feature of the table decorations as well as a much desired article of food. The menu was an exceptionally full one, and the supper was a great success in every way.

WILL TEST STRENGTH.

To test her strength, the United States submarine boat Sturgeon will be sunk in 200 feet of water in Penobscot Bay, off Rockland, Me.

She arrived at this port several days ago, accompanied by the tug Casco and a lighter, but has been unable to leave because of a storm sweeping the New England Coast.

When the Sturgeon is sunk, there will be no crew on board. The tug and the lighter will bring the submarine to the surface after the test has been made.

The Sturgeno was launched at the Fore River works, Quincy, Mass., on June 15, 1911.

LIGHTS ARE NEEDED.

People speak of inky darkness but that is light compared to the Quincy Point bridge at night at the present time. It is a standing invitation to the hold up fraternity to get in their work here some night, if the condition is not soon remedied. It is understood that when the main bridge was in use, it was lighted by the street railway. Now, however, the main bridge is closed to street cars as well as teams and the foot bridge is not lighted. On moonlight nights it is all right but unfortunately the moon does not shine every night. It seems as though it was up to the trustees to see that the bridge is lighted, at least until the widening and repairs are completed.

—The Massachusetts election will be watched with keen interest not only in New England but all over the country, particularly because of the apparent hostility shown by the Democrats in Congress this year against New England industries. It remains to be seen whether Massachusetts people approve a movement calculated to injure the industries upon which the prosperity of the state depends.—Portland, Me., Express.

ENTERTAINS AT LUNCHEON

And Announces Engagememt to Prominent Physician

THE GUESTS

Monday evening, Miss Ardelia Elizabeth Barber entertained friends at a pink luncheon at her home 26 Webster, street, Atlantic. The occasion was the announcement of Miss Barber's engagement to Dr. John Lummus Merrill of Wollaston.

At seven-fifteen the guests were ushered into the dining room which was artistically decorated with pink roses and ferns. Covers were laid for ten and a most appetizing and dainty repast was enjoyed. The color scheme was carried out in all the decorations as well as in the delicacies served. The place cards especially brought forth appreciative comments. They were the work of a local artist and cleverly depicted Dan Cupid portraying each guest, the engagement being announced in a most unique way on the reverse side of the card, making a very attractive souvenir.

During the evening Miss Barber presented to her guests Mrs. Fred C. Merrill of Wollaston, also her niece Miss Elsie Merrill of Cologne, Germany, who arrived with Dr. John L. Merrill. They were then joined by Mr. Everett A. Barber who it was learned was observing the anniversary of his birth and wedding day as well as the announcement of his elder daughter's engagement.

One of the laughable features of the evening was the personal remarks in the form of poetical toasts which caused much merriment.

The guests departed at a late hour after showering Dr. Merrill and Miss Barber with congratulations and good wishes.

Those present were: Miss Muriel L. Oakes of Providence, R. I., Mrs. Ernest H. Moore, and the Misses Florence M. Hill, Cora M. Harding, May Buckley, Mary Farrell, Georgianna Priest, Louise W. Hinkley, Martha E. Jenkins and Julia A. Barber.

ORDER OF MOOSE HAS INITIATION

A busy meeting of Quincy lodge of Moose was held Wednesday evening. One of the important matters was initiation and twenty were admitted to membership. An example of how this order meets its obligations was shown in the case of Frank S. Kirby who died suddenly last week. Mr. Kirby had been a member of the lodge but 36 hours, when he died, yet the lodge promptly paid his funeral benefit.

REGISTRATION OF VOTERS.

Registration for the state election closed at 10 o'clock Wednesday night. During the day 154 names were added to the lists of which 6 were of women voters. During the registration which has just closed 632 names have been added to the lists making the total number of voters for the state election 6188 an increase of 189 over the total registered voters at the close of registration a year ago. The following table gives the number on the voting list today in comparison with the number a year ago at the same time.

RECEIVES REWARD FROM THE CARNEGIE HERO FUND

For Her Husband's Bravery At the Elevated Power Station

Loses His Life When Trying To Protect Others

Among those to benefit by the Carnegie Hero Fund for acts of heroism, is Mrs. Angienette M. Frazer of West Quincy. The announcement was made Wednesday by the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission at Pittsburg.

Mrs. Frazer is the widow of Alexander Frazer, and receives a silver Carnegie medal and a pension of $40 per month. In addition to this she receives a pension of $5 per month for her daughter until the latter reaches the age of 16 years.

The woman's husband gave up his life Jan. 16, 1907 trying to save the life of Frank O. Stenberg, his fireman, at the Elevated power station in Allston where he was employed as an engineer. A spindle on a piston valve of a large engine broke, causing a dense volume of steam to escape into the room. Frazer rushed into the engine room, through the steam and shut off the throttle. It appears that Frazer thought that his fireman Stenberg was in the room but he had made his escape before Frazer entered.

Chief Engineer Redmond Evans and Walter S. Coffin were in the room however but escaped with a bad scalding. Frazer unfortunately inhaled a large amount of steam and was taken out of the room unconscious and hurried to the City Hospital where he died the next day.

At that time the unfortunate man was living in Allston, but since his death his widow has made her home with her mother, Mrs. Beard, on Centre street West Quincy.

Friends who were acquainted with the facts of the case, brought it to the attention of the Carnegie Hero Commission who made an investigation and the reward is the result.

A more happy woman than Mrs. Nettie M. Fraser, widow of Alexander Fraser, of 68 Centre street, who lost his life at the L power station in Allston on the 16th day of January, 1907, in his anxiety to save the life of a fellow co-worker, was not to be found in local circles this morning, when she was informed that she was to receive a reward for the heroic action of her late husband, by the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission of Pittsburg. Mrs. Fraser had heard of the good things but had not been informed of the exact state of affairs when the Ledger reporter interviewed her this morning.

The late Mr. Fraser was employed as an engineer at the L power station in Allston and on his death, his family consisting of his wife and three daughters, were left without any means of support. Mrs. Fraser was compelled to work for a livelihood and was employed as a stitcher at the East Milton Laundry, where she worked until last March. The case was taken up by District Attorney Asa P. French, who succeeded in securing $4000 for her as a result of the fatality sustained by her husband. This amount was awarded to her last March by the Boston Elevated Railway Company.

She purchased the property on 68 Center street, formerly occupied by her mother Mrs. Bryant Beard, with whom she has resided ever since the death of her husband. Attorney

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

They are talking of a republic in China. A Congress made up of laundry men ought to favor clean politics.

John D., the dispatches inform us, has invested in a new fall derby. He naturally has to have something to talk through.

The government says the bath tub trust must dissolve, but this step is not calculated to make the Small Boy like Saturday night any better.

The Lowell, Mass., Courier Citizen says few people read the party platforms. We always objected to eating chestnuts in the dark, but most people don't.

If they can't get jurors without preconceived opinions for the McNamara trial, they will be able to fill up the panel by sending up to the school for the Feeble Minded.

The World's Championship base ball tickets were sold by speculators at from $6 to $20, and yet some people say a family can be raised in comfort on $10 a week.

Mrs. Pankhurst says that a rock on a policeman's head makes him think. The policeman may feel, however, that a club on Mrs. Pankhurst's head would make her think.

The Supreme Court is expected to dispose of 400 suits during October, but the lawyers of the country will have started about 400,000 more during the same period.

Canada has a pleasing toy in the shape of a new governor-general, and he will be popular if he doesn't try to govern anything more serious than the gold lace worn by his staff.

Most towns would object to giving a new industry ten years exemption from taxes, yet protected industries are permitted to collect tariff taxes indefinitely from the American people.

Mr. Taft turned the first spadeful of earth for the Panama-Pacific exposition, and then promptly dropped the spade. How does he expect the job will ever be done if all the workmen get tired so quick?

Bradstreet's index of the price of commodities declined in September from $8.81 to $8.80, as the result of which many families will decide that they can afford a new automobile next spring.

Gov. Johnson of California wouldn't mention Mr. Taft by name when he introduced him. He can't find an instance in United States history where a man secured a clerkship for his declining years by such a policy.

In the old times thieves used to break in when everyone was at church Sunday morning. In New York now they get the same chance while the Giants are playing for the World's championship at the polo grounds.

JUSTICE HARLAN.

It has been said of the late Justice Harlan that he was the only one of the Supreme Court bench whose name was a household word. Justice Hughes is as widely known, but his fame was acquired in executive and political work, not on the bench.

One who seeks to know the reason can hardly find it in Justice Harlan's length of service, in spite of the reported general impression that he was born on the Supreme bench. Even the individuality of a great justice is usually obliterated by the tendency to make the bench an impersonal force, just as the individuality in Justice Harlan's old time dress of a Southern country gentleman was obliterated under the uniform black gown.

The law is a vast and complicated machine. Many lawyers are so closely absorbed in its intricate mechanism that they fail to pay attention to the product it is turning out as expressed in terms of human life.

Perhaps one thing that made Harlan beloved was the fact that he brought the red blood of human interest into the mustiest law book. There was a pasionate force in his utterance, showing how keenly he felt the intimate relation of laws to human life.

Thus when he delivered his historic dissenting opinion on the income tax, he pounded the desk, he shook his fingers under the noses of opposing justices, he turned almost angrily upon his colleagues, he expressed his dissent in language more like a Populist barbecue than the imposing ceremonial of this great tribunal.

Justice Harlan has been called the great dissenter. Frequently he stood alone, notably in the recent Standard Oil and Tobacco cases. Some men have a certain contrariety of mind, which seems to please their sense of a superior individuality. If you take one side of an argument they are almost certain to take the other.

Justice Harlan's dissent had nothing of that conceit. It has been said that he went to bed with the Bible in one hand and the Constitution in the other. A man whose mind is steeped in those great documents of human optimism is never a mere prophet of denial.

The majority of mankind are so fearful of being in a minority, that the opinion of their associates thunders like the voice of God from Mount Sinai. A man who holds firm to his own opinion though often wrong, but whose mind is anchored to the fundamentals of law and righteousness, will always have the fervent admiration of Americans.

"Once I wrote my name on an egg."
"And did you get a letter, Maude?"
"Yes; two years later, from an actor."—Pittsburg Press.

"I hear they are going to form a milk trust?"
"That ought to be easy enough. It would come like second nature to them to water the stock."

"MODERN LITERATURE"

Interesting Talk By Mrs. Herbert J. Gurney of Wollaston

LECTURE WELL ATTENDED

In spite of clouds and rain a goodly company of club women assembled at the home of Mrs. Eben W. Sheppard Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock for the first of a series of talks upon "Modern Literature" given by Mrs. Herbert J. Gurney of Wollaston under the auspices of the Literature committee of the Quincy Women's club.

Mrs. Gurney's talk was most interesting and entertaining as well as highly instructive. She spoke of the great changes that had taken place in American and English literature during the past twenty-five years and especially of the changes in the drama, the highest form of literature.

Then we had the plays of Shakespeare, the plays of the old dramatists, Gilbert and Sullivan and romantic plays like "Rosedale." Now we are given light farce, comedies, and the problem play. The man who stands at the head of modern dramatic writers, the hardest, most tragic figure is Ibsen.

Mrs. Gurney's account of Ibsen's life and work was intensely interesting and she made her audience see the stern, fierce man who used the dissecting knife so well and probed the wounds and sores so skillfully, yet never offered a cure. Ibsen was not immoral, but unmoral. His was the drama of catastrophy. Yet his plays are perfect in construction and are the highest type of literature.

Mrs. Gurney brought her lecture to a close by reading a brief selection from Ibsen's "Ghosts," and the last scene from "The Doll's House."

She is a delightful reader, and portrayed these Ibsen characters in a most realistic way.

A discussion followed the lecture during which many of the ladies expressed decided opinions regarding Ibsen and his works.

The next lecture in the series will be given Nov. 1 at the home of Mrs. W. H. Doble, 24 South street. The topic is Maurice Maeterlinck.

COLLEGE CHUMS PLIGHT TROTH

Popular Wollaston Girl Married In Father's Church

WILL RESIDE IN BATAVIA N. Y.

At the Wollaston Congregational church on Wednesday evening, Miss Mary Hatch Chase daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Edward A. Chase became the bride of Sheldon David Dunlap son of Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Dunlap of Batavia, New York.

The marriage was performed by the father of the bride, the ceremony being most impressive and beautiful. The bridal party was preceded by the girl's vested choir of the church followed by the ushers, the bridesmaids and the maid of honor.

The bride was escorted by Rev. George B. Hatch of Ware, a life long friend of the family. She was fetchingly attired in white satin en train, pearls and old rose point, an heirloom of the family. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley.

The maid of honor, Miss Lucy A. Chase, sister of the bride, was gowned in yellow crepe-de-chine and carried white chrysanthemums.

The bridesmaids, consisting of Miss Grace Cochran of Philadelphia, Pa., Miss Nell Butterfield of Lowell, Miss Helen Glimes of Haverhill and Miss Marion Gibbs of Newton wore white marquisette over yellow messaline and carried yellow chrysanthemums.

Edward N. Goodwin of New York city acted as best man. The ushers were: Arthur Bristol and H. Ladd Smith both of New York city, Richard Holden of Batavia, New York and Robert Sibley of Wollaston.

Composing the girl's choir were: Misses Sally Baker, Grace Blake, Mary Broughton, Gladys DuPlessis, Agnes Eastman, Helen Farwell, Marion Farwell, Katherine Follett, Helen Jones, Frances Jones, Eleanor Jones, Carolyn Lewis, Mary Murray, Dorothy Sayward, Helen Seavey, Dorothy Taylor, Blanche Thatcher, Louise Thatcher, Lucy Waite, Flora Wight, Ramah Baker, Lucille Smalley, Mildred Sweet, Mrs. Mary Hastings Slade assisting.

The church was filled, guests being present from New York city, Providence, R. I., New Britain, Conn., Batavia, N. Y., Haverill, Boston and many other places in addition to school and college friends of the couple and countless friends from Wollaston.

In the church the decorations were most harmonious, the entire front and platform being banked with palms and brightened here and there with large clusters of yellow chrysanthemums. The wedding march was played by Mrs. Louis K. Curtis of Southington, Conn., an aunt of the bride.

A gathering of the bridal party and immediate families at the house of the bride's parents on Marion street followed the wedding, the happy couple leaving shortly for a honeymoon that will include the Adirondacks.

Mr. and Mrs. Dunlap will make their home in Batavia, New York where the groom is engaged in business. The bride was graduated from Mt. Holyoke in the class of 1908 and has been teaching in the Mt. Ida School for Girls in Newton. The groom is an Amherst '09 man. The pair were college friends. During her residence of over 12 years as daughter of the pastor of the Wollaston Congregational church the bride has endeared herself to an ever widening circle of friends from which her presence will be greatly missed.

Mention should be made of the numerous gifts that filled an entire room in the parsonage and testified to the popularity of the couple. Many articles of worth and costliness were included among other things a check for one thousand dollars being noted.

MASONS' GREATEST HOME

George Washington's Trowel Is Used In Laying the Corner Stone

Washington, Oct. 19.—The corner stone of what Sovereign Grand Commander Richardson of the Scottish Rite Masons of the southern jurisdiction said would be the "most magnificent building in the world devoted alone to the cause of Masonry" was put in place with elaborate ceremony.

It is to be the national home of the supreme council of the southern jurisdiction of Scottish Rite Masons. The first stone was laid with the trowel and square used by George Washington in beginning the United States Capitol.

Prominent members of the order from all parts of the United States attended the ceremonies. Preceding them was a parade in which about 6000 Knights Templar, blue lodge and grand lodge Masons marched.

MILEAGE INTERCHANGEABLE.

The managements of the Boston and Albany and New Haven roads have just issued orders—effective in accordance with the terms of the law thirty days hence, or on Nov. 15—making their respective mileage books interchangeable—those good on the New Haven and Central New England roads being available on the Boston and Albany lines and those of the Boston and Albany road being equally available on the New Haven lines.

The new arrangement will make the mileage books of the following railroads good over the Boston and Albany; Central New England, New York Central, New York, New Haven and Hartford, Rutland, Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburg, Buffalo and Susquenhanna, Jersey Central and Philadelphia and Reading.

RIGHTS OF DOG OWNERS.

In a decision handed down by the supreme court the exceptions of the plaintiff are sustained in the suit of Roscoe H. Hull against the B. & M. R. R. The action was brought for false imprisonment and assault and battery It was alleged that he was arrested by a conductor of the defendant company on a charge of evading carfare. It was claimed that he violated a rule by keeping a dog with him in the passenger car. The court says:—

"The plaintiff having been informed of the regulation was bound by it, and when requested by the conductor to remove the dog in his possession and control to the baggage car and to make necessary payment, his refusal would have warranted his expulsion by the use of sufficient but not excessive force, if, when the train stopped at the next station, he had refused to depart."

TRYING TO BE MANNISH.

There is not the slightest reason why women who have the utmost opportunity to present their views should resort to the practices which have brought the cause into disrepute in England.

If the republican or democratic parties organized speakers to trail the women wherever they went to interrupt them with questions, it would be put down as an unmannerly proceeding, and the same rule and judgment will apply to the suffragists.—New Bedford Mercury.

FALLS FAR SHORT OF EXPECTATIONS

Census Shows About 7,151,869 Persons In Canada

Ottawa, Oct. 19.—The figures for the decennial census of Canada, taken in June last, are sorely disappointing the Canadians. The census of 1901 gave a total population of 5,371,315. The late government promised that the 1911 count would reveal a total of 8,000,000.

The official statement just issued gives a population of only 7,081,869, with four electoral districts to hear from. These four districts will probably add 70,000.

Montreal leads the cities with a population of 466,197. Toronto comes next with 376,240. The principle increases are shown in western Canada.

QUINCY SCHOOL.

The boys of the soccer football team are feeling sorry because of the fact that the present weather will not allow them a chance to test their ability as football tossers, against the school teams, with which they have been scheduled to compete. A fast team is expected to be in line this year, and the boys hope to make an exceptionally good showing before the schedule of games is drawn to a close.

WILLARD SCHOOL.

Miss Ellen D. Fegan, teacher of grade 5, has placed a number of plants in the class room, and has enabled the room to present a most attractive appearance. Miss Fegan herself is an ardent admirer of the different kinds of plants and the horticultural display recently installed in her class room was taken from her home collection.

SCHOOL NOTES.

Brockton school teachers are to direct a campaign for cleaner streets and yards in Brockton during the week of Nov. 20, with a cleaning day on Saturday, Nov 25, falling in line with a novel idea backed by the Board of Trade and clergy. Superintendent of Schools George L. Farley and the school committeemen have lent their efforts to the plan and the idea is to make everything shine on and after Nov. 20. Prizes may be offered to the group of boys that does the best stunt in cleaning up. Girls, too, will be asked to help in making the city more attractive.

President Arthur H. Andrews and Secretary William N. Hardy of the board of trade have outlined their plan and they will be in charge during the week's campaign. Hundreds of youngsters will be enlisted to shine up the town.

With the new rules in force at Harvard it will be as difficult to remember the opening and closing dates of the university as to know each year what date Easter comes on. Under the new rule the academic year will begin on the Monday preceeding the last Wednesday in September, while the annual commencement will be held on the Thursday preceeding the last Wednesday in June. The summer vacation, therefore, will begin at commencement and will end on the Saturday preceeding the last Wednesday of September. Events of commencement week will probably be arranged as follows: Monday, Phi Beta Kappa day; Tuesday, class day; Wednesday, class dinners; Thursday, commencement day; Friday, the boat race. The Yale baseball game in Cambridge will probably be played on the day before or the day after class day. The various social events, such as spreads, dances and dinners, will be arranged accordingly.

LURED BY MATE'S CALL

Moose Long a Fugitive Is Again In Whitney Game Preserve

Lenox, Mass., Oct. 19.—Attracted by the call of a bull moose in Harry P. Whitney's game preserve on October mountain, a female moose that escaped a year ago last winter was captured and is again with the herd. For almost two years the fugitive moose has been wandering through the forests of Washington mountain and Becket.

Game Keeper Chapel saw the missing animal just outside the ten-foot wire fence listening intently to a call of a big bull. For nearly an hour the moose stood as though transfixed and finally Chapel and a helper persuaded her to go into a little inclosure outside the moose preserve and the gate was shut quickly.

TOBACCO TRUST PLANS

Independents Will Be Given Opportunity to State Objections

New York, Oct. 19.—There will be no intervention by the so-called independents in the American Tobacco company's proposed plan of reorganization. The United States circuit court handed down a memorandum so stating after the filing of a petition by Felix H. Levy and Louis D. Brandeis, counsel for three associations, explaining their opposition to the plan.

The independents will, however, be given an opportunity to present their objections to the plan, the court said, at a public hearing to be held here Oct. 30.

RALLY AT WOLLASTON

In The Interests of Senator Barnes and Councilman Leslie

SOME SPIRITED ADDRESSES

An enthusiastic meeting took place at the home of Felix Favorite, Highland avenue, Wollaston, on Tuesday evening when a rally was held in the interests of Senator George L. Barnes of South Weymouth and Councilman William J. Leslie, of Wollaston, Republican candidate for representative.

Spirited addresses were given by Senator Barnes, Councilman Leslie, Arthur W. Rohn chairman of the Ward Committee, Richard R. Freeman, Louis J. Jobin and others.

All were enthusiastic over the prospects and urged the hearty support of the voters. An especial appeal was made that the district be represented by the Republican party this year on account of the redistricting bill that comes up before the Legislature this year and in which Quincy is so vitally interested.

An aggressive campaign will be instituted from now on and many promises of support have been received. This evening the Ward Five Republican Ward committee will meet in the interests of Candidate Leslie.

OFF WITH THE OLD.

A local paper recounts the following conversation between a minister and a man whose wife was buried that day.

"My brother," said the preacher, "I know that this is a great grief that has overtaken you, and though you are compelled to mourn the loss of this one, who has been your companion and partner in life, I will console you with the assurance that there is another who sympathizes with you and seeks to embrace you in the arms of unfailing love."

To this the bereaved husband replied by asking as he gazed into the minister's face:

"What's her name?"—Tit-Bits.

REBELS FORCE THE FIGHTING

Severe but Indecisive Battle Near Hankow

CASUALTIES ARE NOT KNOWN

Hankow, Oct. 19.—The first battle since the arrival of the imperial troops from the north was fought on the north bank of the San river, just west of this city. It was indecisive. The revolutionists temporarily drove the imperial troops back from their position, but in doing so they exhausted their rifle ammunition and were compelled to retire to their base at Wu-Chang.

The revolutionists, with infantry and artillery, attacked the government troops, which were reinforced from the Chinese warships in the river and supported by the guns of the fleet.

While the fighting was in progress, the thirteen foreign vessels in the river landed a joint force under command of Vice Admiral Winsloe, commander of the British eastern fleet, who, because of his seniority, has been given the direction of the men engaged in the protection of the foreign concessions.

The Red Cross neutral camp, in charge of Dr. MacWillie of the American mission, received and cared for the rebel wounded.

About 2000 revolutionists were pitted against an equal number of loyal soldiers and it was a fair fight. Only a part of the revolutionary army participated, and they are claiming that they would have routed completely the soldiers from the north if their ammunition had held out.

The imperial troops are now waiting reinforcements, while the revolutionists are replenishing their supplies. A renewal of hostilities may take place soon, as it appears to be the plan of the rebel leaders to force the fighting before the imperial troops have been further strengthened.

The fighting was severe, but it is impossible to describe the casualties, as the correspondents were not permitted near the firing line and those who witnessed the battle from the river were fired upon.

At the first sound of firing Admiral Sah, in command of the Chinese warships, ordered men landed to support General Chang-Piao, who had assumed command of the imperial troops. The rebels, when the bluejackets began to disembark, directed a hot fire upon the warships and the landing parties from their artillery and field guns which had been stationed on the Wu-Chang bank of the river.

Admiral Sah, in turn, ordered the warships to fire upon the rebel field pieces, and for a time shells fell thick among the rebel gunners. The warship officers, however, were seriously handicapped by the danger to the foreign concessions involved in a fire from the fleet.

The engagement continued for several hours, when the combined land and ship forces of the imperials were driven some distance back, and the rebels, retiring, recrossed the river to Wu-Chang.

The shells from the fleet were comparatively few, and did not do great damage. This was not the fault of the gunners, who were instructed to use great care to avoid danger to the foreign concessions.

The imperial troops concentrated north of the city when the fighting ceased. The general situation has not been greatly changed by the battle, and continues grave.

RECEIVES REWARD

Thompson of the Boston Elevated law department lost no time in coming to her aid and through his efforts the matter was placed before the Carnegie Fund for consideration, with the result that she is to receive from that fund the sum of $40, to be paid to her monthly, in addition to a silver medal which she will receive. In addition to this, her youngest daughter will receive a pension of $5 a month until she attains the age of 18 years. This pension will go to her daughter Marion, who was 14 years of age last July. The other daughters are Minnie, who is in her 21st year, and Gertrude, who is just 18 years old.

The youngest daughter is at present residing with her grandmother and aunt in Neponset, and attends the Dorchester High school. The eldest girl has been a piano teacher, but the loss of her father so seriously affected her that she is still under the care of a physician and is to undergo an operation on her thoat next Tuesday. Mrs. Fraser herself has felt the loss of her husband very keenly, for he was stricken at the time of his life when things seemed to be going along rather smoothly and when the children were all quite young. She managed to educate them in the proper manner and to maintain the household, and the recent news has certainly been a source of gratification to her.

Mrs. Fraser is a very pleasant and affable woman and has a score of friends in the West Quincy district who were pleased to learn of the good fortune that had come to her.

Mrs. Fraser said her husband left home on the afternoon of January 16th, 1907, in the best of condition and that it was a most trying circumstance for her to realize that he was brought home dead on the evening of the same day. She said she was deeply grieved at the time, mostly through the way she had been situated. She has worked hard ever since his death and her life-long sorrow has been greatly appeased by the recent news.

The late Alexander Fraser was buried from St. Mary's church on the 21st day of January, 1907.

HUSTLER'S CONTEST.

A pile of letters arrived at the Sperry & Hutchinson premium parlor, early today containing many votes of the youngsters in the Hustler's watch contest. Some envelopes contained but five votes while the largest amount received was 50. This was from a boy who is away down in the contest but who is struggling to reach the top mark. Everybody has an equal chance to get one of the gold watches. If you want to know anything about the contest don't be afraid to call at the Quincy Department Store, S. & H. Green Stamp Parlors.

Q.—What did Christ mean when He referred to John the Baptist as Elijah? (Matthew xvii, 11, 12). Is this an evidence that He recognized reincarnation as a truth?

Answer.—The theory of reincarnation is nowhere taught in the Scriptures. Our Lord Jesus and the Apostles never, in all their teachings, said a word about reincarnation. As to the meaning of the Savior's words referred to in the question we recognize that He was calling to mind the prophecy of Malachi iv, 5, 6. John the Baptist was one of the greatest of the Prophets, and it was his mission to prepare the way of the Messiah, the Christ, by performing a reformation work in preaching repentance and baptism for the remission of sins, and declaring the Kingdom of Heaven at hand. This message was to the Jews and to them only, as they had been the Lord's chosen people for many centuries. But now a new dispensation was about to be ushered in. The Kingdom of Heaven was at hand! And it was John's mission to prepare the people for the new order of things. This he did in the power and spirit of Elijah.—Luke i, 16, 17. We know positively that John was not Elijah for we have his own testimony on the subject.—"And they asked him, What then? Art thou Elijah? And he saith, I am not. Art thou that prophet? And he answered, No."—John i, 21.

Q.—Why was it a sin for David to number the people (II Samuel xxiv and I Chronicles xxi)?

While it is not stated in the Scriptural account that the Lord did not wish the Israelites to be numbered, yet we are convinced from the reading of these chapters, particularly verses one and eight of 1st Chronicles, 21st chapter, that such was the case, and that he had given instructions to that effect. In the third verse of this same chapter, we find Joab, David's chief officer, protesting against this action of the King; saying that it would be "a cause of trespass to Israel." We may reason, too, that as David sat upon "the throne of the Lord" (I Chronicles xxix, 23) as the Lord's representative, he was acting without instructions and due authority in taking the census of the people and was therefore presumptuous in the matter, and deserving of punishment as a rebuke in not first ascertaining the Divine will of God, the true King of Israel. There is a valuable lesson here for all who profess to be God's people, and that is, to first seek the Lord's instructions and guidance in life's affairs and not to lean to their own understanding and natural preferences. The reasoning faculties of all are more or less unbalanced; no one has a perfectly balanced mind, and hence it would be the part of true wisdom to follow the instructions of the Lord.

ARYAN REACHES BOSTON

First American Square Rigger Seen In That Port In Seven Years

Boston, Oct. 19.—The oldtimers along the water front sat up and took notice, thinking that history was repeating itself when the clipper ship Aryan, the last of the deep water craft of its type afloat, dropped anchor in the harbor, on the windup of its journey around the Horn, from Seattle, Wash.

The clipper is the first American square-rigged vessel to come into Boston harbor since 1904. One of the happiest of those aboard was Mrs. McLaughlin, the wife of the captain, who completed her second trip around the Horn.

The voyage took 141 days and the captain charted off more than 16,000 miles for the sailing. Rounding Cape Horn he took the outside course, preferring that to the Straits of Magellan.

BRIEFS

Quincy officers are attending the two days' police convention at Salem this week. Hope the witches don't get them.

Work on the new court house building is progressing rapidly. When completed it will make a fine addition to the public buildings in this vicinity.

Lovers of good music are looking forward to the pianoforte recital tomorrow evening at Alpha hall by Mrs. Mary Chandler West who will be assisted by the well known cellist Carl Behr and Quincy's favorite pianist William Weston.

Henry O. Studley, William Bird, Joseph W. Hayden, Albert Hayden, Samuel DeForrest and Joseph Lapham all attended the ex-Prisoners' Association, at a dinner at Melrose, after which nine of the ex-prisoners of war, went to call on a blind comrade 88 years old and sang some of their old songs.

ELECTED PRESIDENT.

Mr. J. Warshaw was elected president of the Harvard Club of Columbia, Missouri, for the ensuing year. The Harvard Club is composed of members of the Faculty who have been connected with Harvard University, and is the largest of its kind at the University of Missouri. Mr. Warshaw is also secretary of the Modern Language Division, and was last year secretary of the Philological Association.

TAFT EXTENDS HIS TOUR

Will Not Reach Washington Until Middle of November

Salt Lake City, Oct. 19.—President Taft's "swing around the circle," now ending its fifth week, will not end in Washington on Nov. 1, as at first contemplated, but will be extended until Nov. 18. The president will travel 3000 or 4000 miles more than at first intended, bringing the total mileage of his tour up to between 16,000 and 17,000 miles, and breaking all known records of presidential travel.

The regular itinerary of the original trip will be followed to Pittsburg, where President Taft will spend Oct. 31. Then, instead of keeping on to Washington, he will visit various southern cities, making speeches

With the present trip ended and with congress, the national conventions and a presidential campaign coming within the next few months, Mr. Taft's travels will be over for some time.

—The city of Boston is to give $2,000 toward the drinking fountain for horses and dogs to be placed in Post-office square as a memorial to the late George T. Angell. Every city or town in the state could have a suitable memorial to Dr. Angell says the Somerville Journal by providing a drinking place for dogs on fountains already standing. Any one who has witnessed the frantic atempts of dogs to reach water at these fountains will appreciate the need of such provision.

Lynn Shoe Trouble May Spread Beyond Cutters

EIGHT-HOUR DAY DEMANDED

Twenty-Eight Manufacturers Will Not Yield to Knights of Labor and Others Are Expected to Fall In Line When Present Stock In Factories Is Disposed Of—Statements Are Issued by Both Sides

Lynn, Mass., Oct. 19.—Horace W. Sawyer, secretary for the manufacturers in the Lynn lockout of Knights of Labor cutters, issued a statement in which he asserted that the cutters of twenty-eight factories were not working as a result of the demands for an eight-hour day, the total number, the manufacturers say, being 700. He also declared that every factory in the city except two was in opposition to the demands of the cutters, and would stop work in the factories when the present stock on hand had passed through the factories.

Simultaneously with the issuance of the manufacturers' statement, Stephen M. Walsh, representing the Knights of Labor cutters, issued a long statement in which he rehearsed the situation of the lockout, so-called by the cutters, and admitted that the eight-hour day was formally asked for by a meeting of only 430 cutters, but also claimed that this number represented 1500 cutters who were in sympathy with the demand, and were now supporting the action of the Knights of Labor officials. The most significant part of Walsh's statement is to the effect that, although it has not been necessary to call upon any other labor organization for aid, the union will ask assistance in the form of a sympathetic strike.

The list of factories where further work for the cutters has been refused still grows. At the shop of George F. Daniels the men are out of work. Twenty cutters of the plant of the Senerty-Cossaboom company quit work Wednesday. The cutters of the firm of J. B. Thomas & Tarr claim that an agreement which they had with Tarr has been broken, after which they joined the ranks of their brother workmen. The cutters in the following-named factories left their work Wednesday: A. Fisher & Sons, Lynch & Sherman, Benjamin H. Newhall, C. E. Wilson and the S. E. Gregory company. Twenty-five cutters employed by the Goller Shoe company were refused employment yesterday.

The manufacturers who have instituted a lockout admit that they are disappointed because only one firm—the A. F. Smith company—of the nine firms which have an arbitration agreement with the cutters had participated in the lockout, as the manufacturers had expected that all these factories would refuse employment to the cutters as long as the latter persisted in their determination to quit work at 4 p .m. Some of the manufacturers express the opinion that these so-called arbitration shops will declare a lockout when present orders are finished.

NEW YORK FASHIONS

The Tip of the Mode as Seen at Fall Weddings—At the Smart Shops on the Avenue and Elsewhere.

There is so much to tell about new dress fixings that one hardly knows where to begin. Color contrasts are the rule not only for automobile and street coats built of double faced cloths, where the bright colored lining makes the reveres, pockets and trimming touches, but in suits and dresses of silk and velvet the same fad is notable. People who like quiet styles use two tones of the same color, but more decided contrasts are the prevailing mode.

A VELVET SUIT.

A velvet suit seen a day or two since on Fifth avenue was of black velvet with pipings of maize satin on the skirt and coat, the latter having a deep cape collar of maize colored batiste beautifully embroidered. The upper part of the skirt—like a deep yoke—hidden when the coat was worn, also the waist was of yellow and black striped satin, with black net partly veiling the sleeves and bodice. The collar, gamp and sleeve cuffs, of plain cream colored etamine. The crown of the steeple hat was of maize colored corded silk with a brim of black velvet, while an old little paint brush aigrette of black feathers that stuck out from the crown made the only trimming.

VELVET AND FRINGE.

Velvet is even more popular than last winter which is saying a good deal. It replaces satin for combinations with cloth and silk, while the all velvet dress and suit is a desirable adjunct to any outfit. Suit dresses, or "coat-dresses" as they are frequently called, made to wear on the street without a wrap, to be warmed up with cosy furs later—are very smartly turned out. The lines of these are simple, not greatly differing from those used for heavy linens last summer, but there is usually a real or make believe underskirt in the best types. It is here that trimmings and color contrasts come in. Fringes of all widths and weighs are lavishly used on almost everything a woman wears. On hats, on crowns and edging brims, or silk trimmings, on the lapels of coats and dresses, finishing overskirts or simulating them. While they are lavishly used on the fancy pocket bags that have long cord handles to hang from the shoulder, like a hunting pouch.

THE FASHIONABLE SILHOUETTE.

There is nothing approaching curves in the fashionable outline which is narrow and straight as ever, though there is perhaps a little more fullness in materials used. Where this occurs however heavy trimmings or concealed lead weights drag the lines into the required straightness and prevent any flare at the foot. Whatever draperies are employed and in fussy dresses where there is a great deal of drapery, it is arranged to fall into clinging lines. Suit skirts are considerably trimmed in various flat styles, with bands, braids, buttons and strappings but they remain narrow and very close fitting, though the ugly dip in below the hips is not seen in late models.

A SKIRT NOVELTY.

It goes without saying that one's petticoat must be carefully fitted when dress skirts are as narrow as present fashions demand. Many dressmakers and clever dressers prefer to fit the petticoat to each figure and trim with the new Gilberta flounces to be had at all the best stores, that come in circular form all ready to go on a new or worn skirt. A little drawing string at the top of the flounce adjusts them to size. Made in cottons, satins and taffeta silks these can be had in almost any desired coloring. Just now changeable taffetas are in great favor.

SHOE STYLES.

Since, with present modes, every woman's foot is in evidence, shoes are a most important item in the get-up. High boots are worn earlier than usual this Fall. In fact these have been used by the younger set all summer in white canvas and buckskin, and are still seen on the girls even with velveteen or other dark suits, but unless the foot is particularly well formed this style is too extreme to be attractive. Tan shoes, both lace and button, in sensible walking styles are very popular for general informal wear though these also, like every fancy color, make the foot appear large. Cloth uppers in black, grey and white are stylish for dress wear, with foxings of patent leather, dull kid or burnished. Where the foot is slender spats are very successful otherwise they give the foot a clumsy appearance.

HATS AND TRIMMINGS.

Of hat models there is simply no end. Small hats have as a rule very high crowns that are both plain and draped. In very many instances crowns and rims are of contrasting color and odd materials. A hat with a high draped crown of velvet will have a rim of cloth or felt in white or some tint that goes with the costume or its trimmings, and probably no trimming besides except a little scattered wreath, or clustered spray of the knitted wool flowers that are a novelty of the season. These latter are usually in tapestry colors, or of white or the yellow tan that is greatly liked for a trimming contrast by both dressmakers and milliners. Quillings of satin and velvet stitched on both sides, leaving a litle pleated or frilled edge, are another garniture for hats and dresses. Poke bonnets and Dutch types in the same class, are fetchingly becoming to young fresh faces. High airy looking trimmings of tulle and marabout, ostrich and Paradise feathers are piled at the back of the crown, while many of the new shapes turn up in the back showing the coiffure. Now that aigrettes are forbidden by law, milliners have devised all trimmings of many sorts. Lace and tulle are wired and twirled into upstanding stylishness as never before. Even fringe is made use of in this fashion as well as for crown coverings and drapings.

ARRESTS IN "GRAFT" CASE

Three Men Held In $1000 Each In Court at Worcester

Worcester, Mass., Oct. 19.—Following an investigation of alleged graft in connection with the Worcester grade crossing work, Joseph H. Deady, Timothy Donohue and John B. O'Connell were arrested and arraigned in the superior court. Deady and Donohue are charged with bribery and O'Connell with perjury. Secret indictments had been returned by the grand jury.

All pleaded not guilty to the charges and were held in $1000 each for trial. O'Connell is charged with perjury while testifying before the grand jury.

GOES TO STATE PRISON

Slasher of Child-Wife Given Time to Repent His Deed

Plymouth, Mass., Oct. 19.—Henry J. Paul, the Middleboro half-breed Indian, found guilty of assault with intent to kill his child-wife with a razor, was sent to the state prison for a term of two and a half to three and a half years.

The judge called the boy-husband to his side, the youth weeping all the time. Paul said: "If the court has mercy on me, I shall never touch liquor again. I cut my wife up when I was under its influence." Judge Quinn meditated for eight minutes before pronouncing sentence.

Song Writer Ill and Penniless

Boston, Oct. 19.—Raymond Moore, one of the most famous song writers of America, is confined at the Massachusetts general hospital, a physical wreck and without money. This man, whose simple melodies are known all over the civilized world, is fighting death.

ROOSTER COAL BRIQUETTES — NO SLATE — NO CLINKERS — SCRANTON ANTHRACITE BRIQUETTE CO.

ROOSTER COAL BRIQUETS

THE NEW ANTHRACITE COAL

ROOSTER BRIQUETS are made from the choicest small Scranton Anthracite coal, mined in Pennsylvania, called TWENTIETH CENTURY CHESTNUT size

Just consider for a moment what we offer here in this 20th CENTURY CHESTNUT.

First, 2000 pounds of clean, pure, hard coal without a rock or a piece of slate.

Second, fuel that cannot form into a clinker, by any known method of firing, consequently the linings and grates last indefinitely.

Third, they are made in nut size, being equally convenient for furnace heaters, open grates, as well as stoves; therefore, only one storage bin is necessary.

Fourth, and very IMPORTANT, the quality of this fuel is the SAME EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR, not a good ton today, and nothing like it the next time, in other words, when you once learn how to regulate your drafts you have nothing more to learn about burning BRIQUETS.

Fifth, no more sifting ashes these Briquets burn out clean. They require less wood to kindle.

Be sure to ask for "ROOSTERS" and get the Briquet made from pure Scranton Coal, from the largest Briquet plant in the country. They are better than coal, will last as long and cost less.

SYNOPSIS

Anna Granger, devoted mother of two small children, discovers that her husband is a weak character and that he has lied to her about a woman.

Posing as Miss Dale, she becomes stenographer to Burton Temple, through whose evidence her husband has been imprisoned. She thinks Temple is the guilty man and is acting the spy to clear her husband's name for his sake and that of her children.

"And there had been no order—written or verbal?"

"I said that Granger lied, Miss Dale. He had a fair trial. He was convicted and sent to Sing Sing. The jury gave a rightful verdict."

"But why, may I ask, why has this case come up again if it is all settled and done for?" She brought the tips of her little gloved hands together in a play of pretty interest.

"Well, Brady, the financier, has been doing a lot of talking, you see. Granger's conviction reflects pretty blackly on him. Then, the sensational yellow journals have taken it up—you know the way. I should advise you, Miss Dale, if you wish to become an efficient secretary to Mr. Temple, to arrive quickly at a belief in the guilt of that Granger, now justly confined in the prison yonder." He nodded across and up the river toward the grim walls of Ossining.

"I understand, Mr. Craven. I have come to do my duty, and I shall be guided only by the truth," she said, with low, even serenity. But in the palm of her right hand glove where she had clutched it fiercely there was a tragic rent.

"Right. That's common sense," said he appreciatively, pulling out his watch again. "Now, Mrs. Mason will show you to your room. I must go to meet Mr. Temple. Suppose he'll wish to see you as soon as he gets here. Head over heels with things to do. Just look at that—lordy, lordy!" He indicated the littered desk and floor, and with quick, gingery strides quit the library.

"Mrs. Mason, oh, to think of finding you here!" Just so soon as the door was closed Anna had rushed to the elder woman and was kissing her exuberantly on both cheeks. A third kiss she let fall neatly on the spick and span gray head.

"And you, Anna Shepherd! You were only fifteen when I saw you last, but I'd have recognized you anywhere. Dear, dear child, for the love of heaven what are you doing here under an assumed name? What does it mean?"

"Well, first it means that I'm not Anna Shepherd either any more. I've been married for nearly eight years, Mrs. Mason. Fancy!" She held her out at arm's length and looked smilingly down into the woman's surprised eyes.

"And I've two boys, just the finest, bonniest boys in the whole world. Really and truly they are!"

"I'm sure of it, I'm sure of it," acquiesced Mrs. Mason. "How could you help having children of that sort! You know I always had a very warm spot in my heart for you, Anna. Your mother and I"—

"Oh, I know, I know! Poor, beautiful young mother of mine!" Hastily Anna brushed away a bit of undue moisture in her lustrous eyes. "How she used to preach love and ideals to me, and how you used to preach duty and principles! Have you still that little yellowed book compiled by your great-grandmother filled with clippings concerning the duties of motherhood, the goodness of woman and the inconstancy of man? I remember the margins of the book were strewn with old recipes for the dressing of meats, the preserving of fruits, the brewing of cunning cordials, all of which struck me as ministering to at least one constancy in man—his devotion to a good dinner, eh?" Anna laughed at the recollection.

"Yes, I still have it. And speaking of dinners, have you grown to be a good little housewife? I suppose your husband—but, by the way, you haven't yet told me your husband's name?"

A vivid crimson surged to Anna's face, her slim neck, her little ears and open brow. Then she threw back her pretty, patrician head proudly.

"My husband's name is Robert Granger."

They stared for an instant at each other, woman to woman. Then Mrs. Mason gasped:

"Robert Granger, the man"—

The young wife looked at her old friend almost sternly.

"The man who is in prison serving a term that Burton Temple should be serving. Oh, Mrs. Mason, what have I done? You must guard my confidence sacredly—you must! You will, won't you—you will?" She was white now and wide eyed with the import of it all.

"Why, yes, dear; of course—of course. But tell me, I don't understand. Why are you here?"

"I am here, Mrs. Mason, to find some evidence that will clear my husband's name and that will send the guilty man to Sing Sing in his place." The soft insistence with which she pronounced her purpose was more startling than any violence could have been.

"How did you get Mary Graham's position?" pursued Mrs. Mason.

"You see, Mary and I have been friends, real friends, for years. We studied stenography in the same school ten years ago. We've kept up with each other ever since. When—when all this trouble came I asked her to help me, to see if she couldn't find some clew, something that would help somehow. It seems like a merciful providence that she had been sent here. She tried, but she couldn't. Finally she suggested that I come myself. She made a plea of ill health, and so it was quite simply managed, you see."

"But the children, Anna?"

"Oh, it nearly broke my heart to leave them! But I had to, you see. There's no one else to do the fighting for their father's honor. If I can only find some evidence."

"You think there is hope of finding some?"

"Oh, there is hope. But I've got to fight for it; and, dear God, I'm going to! I'm going to meet this Burton Temple, and I'm going to fight him. I'll be his faithful secretary, but I'll spy upon him; I'll be his shadow. There must come some unguarded moment when his mask will fall. I'll do his bidding, oh, yes, my hands rifling his desk. He'll know what it is to have an outraged mother spying at his side!"

"S-sh-h, dearie! Some one will hear. You're overwrought."

"There is something almost tigerish in mother love, isn't there, Mrs. Mason? That's how I feel sometimes, quite like a tigress. I wonder if you can understand the agony of it when my boys ask me about their father. 'Where's father?' 'Why does he stay so long?' 'When's he coming home?' And I have to look into their baby faces and lie to them. When they give me their morning kiss I lie to them. When they say their prayers I lie. I even let the little tots lie to God. And, oh, the questions they can ask! Of course I know that God, being God, will understand—that he alone can make allowances for a mother's love and lies, but the most miserable part of it is that soon these lies will be no good. Now I can delude them by some trumped up story of travel and foreign lands, but soon at school they will be told, they will be taunted. Oh, the torture!"

Mrs. Mason, wishing to distract her attention from this tragic note, said:

"But their father, tell me a little about him. I know, however unjustly he may be suffering at present, that he is in reality a strong, forceful man, a man who can do big things. I always knew my little Anna would marry a man like that."

There was a slight pathetic uplifting of the lovely eyebrows, then an indescribably delicate smile, with just the faintest hint of sadness, as Anna Granger slowly shook her head.

"No, Bobs isn't that kind at all," she said. "He's of the gentle, sweet, appealing sort, not forceful, and he'll never do big things, but there are other qualities which can make up for forcefulness, don't you think? And he's clever. He was advanced rapidly in the Gotham Trust company. Only—sometimes when I'm very tired and spent—I long for the lion strength. It's dreadful for a woman as young as I am to feel so utterly weary"—

ARE JUST LIKE SLAVES

War Veterans Not Fairly Treated, According to Boston Man

Boston, Oct. 19.—The life of a Civil war veteran and his family was compared to that of the family life of the slaves of fifty years ago, by Walter Hartstone in his address in the interest of the Governor Andrew Home association at Faneuil hall last night.

"Fifty years ago," he said, "the separating of the slave man from his wife was one of the chief arguments against slavery. Today the men who fought for the preservation of the constitution and the union are confronted with practically the same situation.

"They are getting beyond the age of work, and the pension is not sufficient to support the family. To enjoy the privileges of the soldiers' home he must give up his wife to the care of friends or charitable institutions. The object of the Governor Andrew Home association is to establish a home wherein the aged couple can live together in comfort."

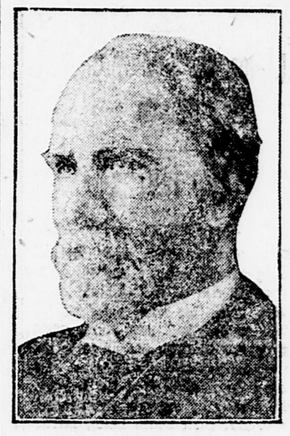
SECRETARY WILSON

Thinks His Critics Are Mistaken In Theories



"GOING RIGHT AHEAD"

Wilson Will Address Brewers' Convention Despite Criticism

Chicago, Oct. 19.—Secretary of Agriculture Wilson, on his arrival here to address the international brewers' congress, expressed himself in regard to the criticism made against his participating in the affair.

"They are honest, conscientious, well meaning people, probably with the best of motives, but the great American government cannot be run upon the theories they hold," was the reply of the secretary.

"I do not want to talk about the campaign that has been waged against me since the announcement that I was going to speak before that convention. I do not want to be in the light of criticising them. I am simply going right ahead and doing what I think is right."

HUB BANKERS DISLOYAL

Mayor Thinks They Should Finance New Line of Steamers

Boston, Oct. 19.—Disloyalty of Boston bankers to Boston was charged by Mayor Fitzgerald at the City club last night. There ought to be 200 Boston capitalists to put $5000 each into a steamship line between Boston and Texas; the mayor insisted. And yet Boston men have just sunk $22,000,000 in an enterprise on the Hudson river, he added.

The mayor argued for a line running between Boston and Texas and another between Boston and the West Indies. He predicted the lines would provide such a market for shoes and textile goods that they would bring to New England unprecedented prosperity.

WELLESLEY'S NEW HEAD

Ellen Pendleton Inaugurated as President of Women's College

Newton, Mass., Oct. 19.—Ellen F. Pendleton was inaugurated president of Wellesley college today with Governor Foss, President Lowell of Harvard, Bishop Lawrence, President Faunce of Brown and many other dignitaries taking part in the exercises.

Addresses were made by Professor and Acting Dean Angie C. Chapin on behalf of the faculty, Frances S. Williams on behalf of the alumnae, and President Anna K. Bingham, '12, of the Student Government association, on behalf of the undergraduates.

The new president then made her inaugural address, which outlined many new plans for the college. Bishop Lawrence pronounced the benediction.

CLAIRVOYANT ARRESTED

Accused of Using the Mails In a Scheme to Defraud

Boston, Oct. 19.—Henry C. Clay of Providence was arrested at the Boston postoffice general delivery window on a charge that he has been using the mails to defraud people, especially women, by advertising himself and doing business as a clairvoyant. The original complainant is Mrs. Caroline B. Shippee of Providence, who says Clay swindled her out of $1000. Postoffice Inspector Perkins declares that he has since received other complaints against Clay.

The inspectors give Clay three aliases—Charles W. Clary, King Anderson and G. H. Bradford. They say his headquarters are in Providence, but that he has been sending and receiving his mail in Boston.

Clay was arraigned before Commissioner Hayes and was held in $500 for a continued hearing.

SUFFRAGISTS OPEN THEIR CONVENTION

Greatest Gathering In History of National Association

Louisville, Oct. 19.—The annual convention of the National Woman's Suffrage association opened here today. The citizens turned out in force to welcome them. Small boys herald their approach. Drivers decorate their steeds with suffrage buttons. The restaurants are advertising meals at "equal" prices.

The present gathering is the greatest in the history of the National association. Women from all parts of the country have journeyed here, for two matters of paramount importance to the cause will come before the delegates. One of these will be a decision upon ways and means to further the fight for "equal rights" in America.

The other is the presence of Miss Emmeline Pankhurst, head of the militant suffragette faction of England, and the possibility that some important changes may be adopted in the American fight for equal suffrage through the exposition she will give of the success of English suffragist methods.

WHIST PARTY OF K & L OF H

At the whist party given by Maple lodge, K. & L. of H., Wednesday evening in Protection hall, owing to the inclement weather only seven tables were in play but a good time was enjoyed. Scores were low, 50 being the highest, and 20 the lowest. Souvenirs were awarded Mrs. Anna J. Gould Fred P. Bennett, Mrs. Craig, Mrs. Lizzie McIntosh and Miss Marjorie Taber.

STILL IN DOUBT.

E. Gerry Brown, nominated by Gov. Foss to be State supervisor of loan agencies, is still in the air, so far as confirmation by the governor's council is concerned. Gov. Foss Wednesday made a special request that the council act on the name of the Brockton man. The appointment has been hanging fire now for four weeks. The council, by an informal vote, declined to do so. Brown's name was not taken from the table.

BRIEFS

A. F. Macleod of Spear street is enjoying a much needed rest.

It was Joseph Catler and not Joseph Cutler who was fined in court Wednesday for collecting junk without a license at Milton. The similarity of names led to the error.

An important meeting of the Ward Four Improvement society will be held tonight. Considerable business of importance will come up for action.

BRIEFS

Miss M. Lillie Taber who has been summering with relatives at Newport, R. I., is the guest of her brother A. H. Taber of Baxter street.

The harvest supper and entertainment given by George L. Gill Rebekah Lodge in I. O. O. F. hall Wednesday evening was a great success and enjoyed by all.

Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Gould and daughter of Adams street have returned from a delightful trip to New Haven, Conn., Wilmington, Del., and Reading, Penn.

The Dorcas society of the Universalist church hold a supper and social tonight in the vestry of the church. The Dorcas society is famous for the excellence of the suppers served and that of tonight will be no exception to the rule.

Mrs. Walter Nichols of Fayette street, Wollaston is giving a dinner this evening in honor of her grandmother, Mrs. Amelia Carter. Although eighty-five years old Mrs. Carter is active and young looking. She has been the recipient through the day of presents of flowers, money and other loving tokens.

FRANKLIN'S MANNERS.

Franklin collected thirteen principles to cover the small amenities of daily life. Each week he picked out one and practised it diligently, thus creating a habit. It took three months to cover them all. Each year he practiced each one four full weeks. He kept this up for many years. The uncouth Franklin of early manhood who found fault with his wife for giving him a silver spoon and a china bowl for his bread and milk instead of a pewter spoon and earthenware crock, developed into the statesman and man of the world who won the respect of Englishmen, the admiration of Frenchmen, and the gratitude of Americans. —Harrington Emerson, in The Engineering Magazine.

ANNUAL FAIR AT ATLANTIC

Of Ladies Aid Society of M. E. Church

THE TABLES

Wednesday evening, was the first evening of the annual fair given by the Ladies' Aid of the Atlantic M. E. church. The fair was under the direction of Mrs. Elizabeth Burr, president of the Ladies' Aid society, and was exceptionally well attended considering the dampness of the weather.

The vestry of the church looked very pretty, each booth being attractively decorated with colored crepe paper and artificial flowers, which looked very pretty hanging among the electric lights of various colors.

Each table had an abundance of saleables in their own individual lines and they were displayed in a very attractive manner by those in charge of the tables, the list being as follows:

Apron—Mrs. C. Holbrook, Mrs. Chamberlaine.

Candy—Miss Alice Beal.

Punch—Miss Grace Dingwell, Miss Mabelle Davis and Miss Fanny Farrell.

Ice cream—L. T. Parlee.

Food—Mrs. C. S. Dingwell and Mrs. C. Goodwin.

Fancy—Mrs. G. K. Cheney, Mrs. A. J. Fox and Miss Mabel Burr.

Useful.—Mrs. L. T. Parlee, Mrs. A. Beal and Mrs. F. M. Sweet.

Mrs. M. Kinniburgh took tickets at the door and Frank Flynn rendered piano solos throughout the evening. Rev. H. E. Dorr, pastor of the church was present and greeted all with the hand of welcome.

ATHLETICS ALMOST SURE OF PENNANT

Faithful Rooters Think There Is No Doubt of Issue

Philadelphia, Oct. 19.—Confidence supreme in the ability of Connie Mack and his Athletics to foil the mightiest efforts of McGraw reigns in the ranks of the Philadelphia rooters, and there seems to be no longer any question of the issue. Yesterday's postponement, caused by the heavy rain of the forenoon, has only tanned the fever of enthusiasm.

No longer does there seem to be the slightest doubt of certain triumph for the Mackmen. Elated by Tuesday's great eleventh inning victory, the defeat of Christy Mathewson and the ability of the Athletics to wrest the laurels from the Giants in their own stronghold, the faithful followers of Connie Mack count upon seeing another world's championship title in the possession of the Athletics when the sun sets over the Polo grounds on Friday night.

A COMMUNICATION.

Editor Quincy Ledger:

4TH ANNUAL DANCE OF THE MANETS

With Many Interesting Features Will Eclipse Anything Held So Far

Music Hall bids fair to be the scene of a large gathering of dancers tomorrow evening, when the Manets, a local organization composed of well known young men, many of whom are prominent baseball players, hold forth in their fourth annual dance. Many interesting features are to be introduced including the aeroplane waltz and the aviation reel.

The committee in charge expects that this coming occasion will eclipse anything ever held, and no efforts have been spared to make the event a gala one. Joseph Driscoll will be in charge of the floor, and will be assisted by the members of the club.

SPORTING "DOPE"

By B. A.

Don't Knock, Just Boost.—B. A.

Although many have been inclined to cast forth great adverse criticism against the local High School eleven, still a thorough survey of the games played thus far will reveal the fact that Quincy High is well up among the different interscholastic teams, when it comes to a question of standing. To date, the local boys have played six games, and out of this number have been successful in annexing four victories. Two games were lost, one to Cambridge Latin, in the opening contest of the season, and the other to the strong Medford High aggregation. Medford rolled up a large score against the local team, while the Cantabs secured two touchdowns, two goals from touchdowns and a safety.

Quincy High and Waltham High are the only teams that have played six games to date. The latter has been victorious on every occasion. Of the opponents which Quincy High has encountered Cambridge Latin has two games to its credit, with no losses, So. Boston High has yet to win a game, having lost three, Medford has won three games and tied one, Brighton High has not played since it met defeat at the hands of the local boys, Weymouth High has lost both of its games, and the High School of Commerce has won a game and lost a game. Other teams have played fewer games than Quincy and have met with great success. Then too, the calbre of Quincy's opponents has been exceptionally good, and when this, and other facts are taken into consideration, it will be readily seen that the local boys have a fine chance to be counted among the leaders when the season is drawn to a close. Following is the summary of games to date:

Sept 26—Quincy High 0, Cambridge Latin 14.

Oct. 3—Quincy High 6, Weymouth High 0.

Oct. 6—Quincy High 26, Brighton High 0.

Oct. 10—Quincy High 20, South Boston High 0.

Oct. 14—Quincy High 0. Medford High 23.

Oct. 17—Quincy High 5, High School of Commerce 0.

Total Quincy High 57, Opponents37.

AUTOMOBILE ROAD RECORD.

Felice Nazzaro's long standing automobile road record of 74.3 miles per hour, made by him three years ago in the Florio cup race in Italy was broken twice last Saturday over the Santa Monica, California, course, first by Herrick's National in the 202-mile free for all and again by Merz in the National with which he won the 151-mile Shettler trophy contest. Herrick averaged 74.93 miles per hour while Merz's average was 74.4 miles per hour. Like Nazzaro's Fiat, which previously held the record, both the National cars in Saturday's victorious contest were equipped with Michelin tires.

SYRIAN WOMAN HIT BY AUTO

Run Down As She Alighted From Brockton Car

BADLY SHAKEN UP

A Syrian woman, whose name it was difficult to ascertain owing to the fact that she could speak but little English, was run down shortly after six o'clock Wednesday evening at the corner of Franklin and Water streets, it is said, by an automobile belonging to Herbert F. Drake of Upland road, who was returning home from Brockton, where he is employed in the Douglass Shoe factory. He was accompanied by his brother Frederick. It seems that the woman, who was carrying a large bundle, had just alighted from a Brockton car and was just about to cross the street, it is alleged, when she was struck by the on moving machine.

Dr. William J. McCausland of Franklin street was called in attendance and it was found that the woman had been badly shaken up. The doctor said that she could be able to be about in a couple of days. Later, relatives came to her assistance and removed the injured woman to her home on Quincy street.

A MISSING LINK IN EVIDENCE

Will Help Clear Linnell Mystery When Found

Boston, Oct. 19.—When Chief Dugan of the bureau of criminal investigation concluded a hearing at the Young Women's Christian association last night, he declared he only wanted one link in his chain of evidence and an arrest would follow, in connection with the death of Avis Linnell.

He would not indicate what was wanted to make him act the minute it came to his knowledge. The person the chief seeks is the one who sent or gave to Miss Linnell that package of deadly poison, quieting her with the counsel that it was for her good. When did Avis Linnell receive that package and where? This is the central mystery surrounding the young girl's death.

Avis Linnell's time from early morning to shortly after noon is easily accounted for. She was in the group of girls at the Y. W. C. A. rooms from 5 o'clock until just before the time that she was found dying in the bathroom.

Girl friends of Avis Linnell were put through careful catechism by Dugan at the W. Y. C. A. building last night. All of them satisfactorily accounted for the dead girl's time except for the three hours named.

Lucille Seigler, Avis' room-mate and fellow student at the Conservatory, with Miss Barkhause, a girl from Hyannis, were the only two who could offer any account for the unexplained three hours. They said that Avis had told them that she was to dine with a male friend on that afternoon, as was her custom almost every Saturday afternoon. None of the girls could say absolutely that Avis Linnell had dined with a male companion.

Poison Not Bought In Hyannis

Hyannis, Mass., Oct. 19.—C. W. Megathlin, the druggist here, who is well acquainted with the family of the late Avis Linnell, set at rest the suspicion that the deadly drug which caused her death might have been purchased in her home town.

Megathlin and the girl's friends are also certain that she knew nothing of poisons or their action. She was not accustomed to make purchases in other towns than her own, and if she were buying anything of the sort she would have obtained it at the local drug store, they say.

State Detective Bradford of Hyannis is certain that the poison must have been secured in or around Boston.

Just Suited.

"There's only one objection to these apartments," said the agent of the building. "From these two windows you can't help seeing everything in the dining rooms of the neighbors on both sides of you."

"What's the rental?" smilingly asked the portly dame who was looking for a flat.—Chicago Tribune.

FOOTBALL RULES ARE ABOUT SAME

Time Between Quarters Will Be Greatly Lessened.

CHANGES IN FORWARD PASS.

Play Is Illegal If Moleskin Warrior Fails to Hold on to Ball—Penalty to Be Inflicted For Man Working Hidden Ball Trick.

The coming football season promises to be one of the most successful in the history of the game. The new rules reduced the number of accidents to a minimum last year, and the rules as now modified promise to eliminate a great deal of the danger of players being hurt.

There have been no radical changes made in the rules from those of last year. A simplified wording of the old rules is about all that has been done.

It was the forward pass that came in for the most attention from the rulemakers, and there is much speculation as to whether in its new dressing it will be a success.

Photos by American Press Association.

CAPTAINS OF LEADING WESTERN AND EASTERN TEAMS.

[Benbrook will lead Michigan, Fisher Harvard and Howe Yale.]

According to the new rule, a forward pass is illegal when the player receiving it fails to hold on to the ball.

When a forward pass is declared illegal it will be returned to the place where it was originally put into play. The same goes on an uncompleted forward pass, which is one that hits the ground before being touched by any player on either side.

This year when a player catches a forward pass the players on the defensive can tackle him as soon as he catches the ball. Under the rules last year he had to wait till the man took at least two steps. There were much confusion and argument as to whether or not the rusher had taken two steps when the tackle was made.

Another important change in the code is that which lessens the time between quarters. Last year the players were obliged to wait so long before resuming play that they became thoroughly chilled, their muscles stiffening and preventing them from putting up their best game.

Now the teams will only pause long enough between quarters to permit of their changing of goals.

In the future the umpire will keep time instead of the head linesman. In the past when a captain wanted to call a halt he had to go to the side lines in order to post the linesman, so time could be taken out. The head linesman will also judge all offside plays instead of only those made by ends, as heretofore.

The rules also provide a penalty for the player resorting to the trick of concealing the ball and such artifices, which did not demonstrate any real football ability. It was on a play where he had the ball hidden under his jersey that Hudson, the Carlisle player, won from Harvard at Cambridge some years ago.

Followers of the game are of the opinion that this will prove the most interesting season in years.

AVIATOR ELY MEETS TRAGIC DEATH IN SOUTHERN CITY

Noted American Aviator Killed After Making Sensational Dip

Took Prominent Part In Meet At Squantum

Macon, Ga., Oct. 20.—Eugene Ely, aviator, was fatally injured at the state fair grounds when his machine failed to rise after a sensational dip and plunged with him fifty feet to the ground. Nearly 8000 persons saw him fall into the middle of the race track after almost clearing the machine by a desperate leap when he realized his peril.

The machine shot down with tremendous velocity and the crowd applauded, thinking the aviator would rise, as he had done many times before. But he seemed to lose his grip of the lever, for the machine continued its downward plunge to the earth and he struggled to rise from his seat.

In fact, he released the lever altogether and half jumped, barely clearing the aeroplane as it crashed to the ground. The machine was demolished and Ely struck with terrific force.

Before making his fatal ascent Ely told his attendants that he feared something would happen and asked them to notify his wife immediately if it did.

He died a few minutes later, regaining consciousness just before the end long enough to mutter: "I lost control; I know I am going to die."

Ely left his wife in New York two weeks ago to come to Macon to make flights for the Georgia state fair. He had been giving spectacular flights here for eight days and went up on one occasion in a rain storm. Yesterday he even offered to make a flight at night after painting his craft with

"LIGHTS AND SHADOWS OF PRISON LIFE"

Subject of Address By Rev. Walter Calley, D. D. Before Walther Men's Class

At the monthly social of the Walther Men's class Thursday evening Rev. Walter Calley, D. D., of Jamaica Plain delivered an address of high calibre on "The lights and shadows of prison life." Qualified by many years work among the prisoners both in this and other states his talk was a heart to heart one and the personal element was largely dealt with.

The penal or shady side of life said the speaker is a tremendous subject, up to the present time we have not been able to get along without the trial and the prison. The problem in human society lies in living together. A man who helps a little on this side and that and hinders nowhere is an excellent citizen and a community made up of these is a bang up one.

The history of civilization has been an attempt to take care of people who are not able to live together. There are people who are undesirable as far as property is concerned while others harm the body. The question is What are prisons for? It used to be the theory of humanity to take out of the hands of God Almighty the business of punishing people and there is a great deal of criminal law based on that theory. We now have a theory to keep these men from doing actual harm and shutting them out of harms way.

Dr. Calley instanced with personal experiences the cases of the pick pocket, the burglar who was a marked man and the safe cracker who took pride in his calling. This class can hardly be called sane men. We will call them confirmed criminals.

There is another class of people, those exposed to tremendous temptations. They say, said the speaker, that every man doesn't have his price but God help the man who thinks he's invulnerable.

Many cases of this kind were told of by the speaker from his own observation. He deplored sending men to the "Island" for petty crimes bringing their families to want and distress and resulting in little hardship to the prisoner.

When you put him in a stone cell, however, you have ruined your man. Ruined him intellectually—ruined him physically. You have put a mark—a brand on him. You have made him an impersonal thing with a number. The minute he gets out there are men who will spot him.

The penal system is a great regime about which the public has done mighty little thinking. Little has been done for these people in Massachusetts since the days of barbarism.

I believe in some kind of a system where men may be reformed if possible, where society may be protected and others deterred if possible. But he should never lose his citizenship.

SEPARATE TOWN DESIRED

Houghs Neck Will Discuss Matter Saturday Evening

THE REASON

Large posters have been posted in all prominent places at Houghs Neck, announcing a discussion to be held Saturday evening at Pandora hall on the question of having Houghs Neck set off as a separate town.

There are so many things that this section of the city want, that they do not seem to be successful in getting from the City Council that many believe that if it was a separate town, it would be able to have them.

Of course before the legislature could take action on the question, it would have to be put to a referendum vote by the city. There is ample time for action to be taken to get an article inserted on the ballot for the municipal election to see if the legislature shall be petitioned to set the "berg" off as a separate town and it is more than probable that the present agitation may lead to that.

The general impression seems to be that there would not be a great deal of objection to the peninsular being set off as a town, although many believe that it is easy to tell how a town could be run and how many more improvements would be possible were it a separate one. The citizens of the new town however might find it a different proposition should the idea be realized.

The citizens would not be long in realizing that it is one thing to vote for new streets, playgrounds and numerous other things desirable and another thing to find the money to pay for them with.

The meeting is scheduled for eight o'clock and will take place in Pandora hall. Great interest in the matter has already been taken by the residents of the beach, and many a warm discussion is bound to ensue. The movement has been under way for some time and it has been predicted that this coming meeting will be the most exciting ever seen at the popular beach resort, and there certainly has been some warm ones in the past.

WILL MAKE OFFICIAL INSPECTION

Em. Sir, R. Walter Hillard, Grand Warder of the Grand Commandery of Massachusetts and Rhode Island, Knights Templar, will make an official inspection of Quincy Commandery at its regular conclave next Monday evening. The commandery will open at 3 o'clock and supper will be served in the banquet hall at 6.30. The Red Cross and Temple degrees will be exemplified.

EXTRA!

REV. RICHESON IS ARRESTED

The Rev. Clarence Virgil Thompson Richeson, pastor of the Immanuel Baptist church of Cambridge, was placed under arrest on a charge of murder at 7.35 A. M. today in his room at the home of his fiancee, Miss Violet Edmands on Devon road, in Brookline. The arrest was made by Deputy Superintenednt Watts. Richeson is accused of slaying the 19 year old choir singer, Avis Linnell, at the Y. W. C. A. on Warrenton street, last Saturday night.

RECEPTION AT ADAMS HOUSE

Members of Abigail Phillips Quincy Chapter D. A. R. The Guests

The members of Abigail Phillips Quincy Chapter, D. A. R., were guests Thursday afternoon of Adams Chapter, D. R., of Quincy at the birthplace of President John Adams. The affair was entirely informal and the visit proved a delightful one to the many guests, who had opportunity of inspecting the numerous articles of a historic nature with which the birthplace is furnished. The rooms were very prettily decorated with Autumn flowers and an air of hospitality prevailed. The guests were received by the officers of Adams chapter. Cake coffee and confectionery were served by the members of the Chapter, and delightful music was furnished during the reception by Mrs. Charles Merchant, pianist and Mrs. Thomas, violinist, of Weymouth.

MUSICALE.

The musicale given Tuesday evening by Mrs. George A. Vibert and Miss Ross at 20 Phillips street was enjoyed, over sixty being present, it was a success socially as well as financially, it being given for the benefit of the miscellaneous table of St. Chrysostom's church fair. After the entertainment refreshments were served. The program was:

Piano Duet—Miss Helen Croucher and Miss Dorothy Lavery.
Monologue—Erastus Osgood.
Soprano Solo—Miss Jessie Fowler.
Reading—Mrs. Walker.
Bass Solo—Charles Wade.
Violin Solo—Walter E. Loud.
Reading—Miss Bennett.
Piano Solo—Miss Dorothy Lavery.
Soprano Solo—Mrs. Follett.
Piano Duet—Mrs. Goodrich and Miss Ross.

MAY BECOME CANDIDATES

Many Names Considered For Important Office

THOSE MENTIONED

There was a persistent rumor about City Square this morning that Representative Louis F. R. Langelier had signified his intention of becoming a candidate for the Republican nomination for Mayor.

Representative Langelier when interviewed by a representative of the Ledger said that there was no truth in the rumor, and that he had not as yet given the matter serious consideration.

He did say however that a number of Republicans had urged him to become a candidate but he had been so busy with other matters that he had given the question no thought. There was plenty of time yet as the nomination papers would not be ready until next week.

Another rumor says that ex-Representative Richard R. Freeman was seriously considering the question as to whether or not he would enter the contest for the nomination. One rumor says that he is and still another says positively that he is not. Mr. Freeman could not be reached this morning.

The question of a Republican candidate for Mayor seems to be worrying the Democrats more than it does the Republicans, just at the present time.

There is no question but that when the proper time comes the Republicans will have a candidate.

There have also been many who have asked the question as to who would be the Democratic candidate, but as yet nothing authoritative has been announced.

Some people persist in saying that Mayor Shea will reconsider his action of a few days ago, when he publicly announced that he would not again be a candidate, but the general public does not believe for a minute that such will be the case. Mayor Shea took plenty of time to consider the question and when he finally made up his mind he announced it to the citizens in an open letter. That should settle the question as far as he is concerned.

The names of City Treasurer John Curtis and of City Solicitor John W. McAnarney have also been associated with the possibilities of the Democratic candidate but like the Republicans everything up to the present time is in the air. When the proper time comes the Democrats will have a candidate.

—Foss and Frothongham are hard at it and will keep doing so until the eve of election. Each party has a platform containing many mighty good planks, but we prefer to risk ourselves on the republican party, for it has been built strongly and with good judgment.—Mansfield News.

MAY CALL AN EXTRA SESSION

Of City Council For Next Monday Night to Amend Order

FOR STATE ELECTION

It is among the possibilities that it may be necessary to call a special meeting of the City Council for next Monday evening to amend the order calling the state election as adopted at the meeting last Monday night.

Chapter 634 of the Acts of 1911 is entitled "An act to authorize the counties of the Commonwealth to establish retirement systems for their employees."

Under the reading of this act it is necessary for the County Commissioners to take the initiative. That is, the County Commissioners must first vote to accept the act, after which the question shall be submitted to the voters of the county at the next state election, and if a majority of the voters of the county vote in the affirmative the act shall take effect in that county.

It is understood that up to the present time the county of Middlesex is the only one where the County Commissioners have taken the initiative.

No action has been taken, as yet, by the Commissioners of Norfolk county, but if such action is to be taken it must be done today, Oct. 20 being the last day upon which action can be taken this year.

Under the general election law it is necessary for the City Council to pass an order calling the state election at least seven days before the date of the election. This order was passed as stated above at the meeting last Monday evening. The order, however, did not include the question referred to in Chapter 634, for the reason that the County Commissioners had not acted. Should the County Commissioners so vote today it will be necessary to call a special meeting of the City Council for next Monday evening in order that the acceptance or rejection of this question may be printed on the ballot for the coming state election.

—Is is estimated that the automobile license fees for 1911, will exceed half a million dollars, but nobody has yet made an intelligent estimate of the number of persons killed and injured by the speed maniacs who operate under the licenses.

CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY

Master Robert Jones Has Fine Time on Anniversary

MANY PRESENT

In observance of the attainment of his eleventh year, Master Robert Jones, of 70 Upland road was tendered a birthday party which was attended by a number of his friends, at his home, last evening. The attractive feature of the occasion was a huge cake, bearing eleven candles, each one significant of every year of the little fellow's existence, which was presented to him by his mother and which was later cut up and distributed among the many present. After the supper party had been partaken of, the gathering repaired to the parlor, where games of all sorts were indulged in. Refreshments of different kinds were distributed in abundance and the party broke up after having spent a most enjoyable evening.

DORCAS SOCIETY SUPPER.

Notwithstanding the inclement weather Thursday evening, there was a large attendance at the harvest supper of the Dorcas society at the Universalist church. Supper was served at 6.30 and was pronounced most excellent. Everything was home cooked and left no doubt in the minds of those who partook of the many good things that the members of the Dorcas society were good cooks. After supper there was a social hour during which games of various kinds were indulged in, including an old fashioned spelling match.

ACCEPTS RESIGNATION

Of E. P. Barrows As Secretary of Town River Club

MATTERS CONSIDERED

A meeting of the Town River Yacht club was held last evening at the clubhouse and was largely attended. Commodore Eugene R. Stone was in the chair and the reports of the various officers were read and accepted. Other matters were discussed at length and measures that had been held over from the last meeting were also approved.

It was with deep regret that the members present accepted the resignation of E. P. Barrows, as secretary, for it was expected that much efficient work in the interests of the yachtsmen would be forthcoming from him. He said that he was unable to attend to the duties inasmuch as he desired to devote the most of his time, applying himself to a civil service course with a view to taking a government examination in the near future.

In his stead, W. C. Luther was elected to fill the vacancy and in him the members think they have an able successor to Mr. Barrows. The matter of pins and emblems consumed much time and it was decided to hold a social smoke talk in the clubhouse next Monday.

Furniture upholstered and repaired; mattresses made over; draperies and cushions to order. Highest class work at prices fair to pay. Henry L. Kincaide & Co.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

It's one thing to get the Tobacco trust split into four parts, but quite another to get the product sold for four prices.

Let us hope that the Lorimer case is settled before Mr. Lorimer has been in the Senate as long as Harlan was on the Supreme bench.

The women are getting so set up over the California vote that pretty soon they'll be demanding the right to leave the house without permission.

Even if the McNamaras are found not guilty, the Los Angeles dynamite explosion will be avenged by having the jurors locked up for several months.

Had Lyman Abbot only sent the Contributing Editor to report the championship games, he might have given us a picture of the pursuit of the umpire along the American Game Trails.

It is said that business men are so flabbergasted by the anti-trust law that they don't dare do anything, but if they only keep on buying and selling without trying to shut up the little fellow, no one can touch 'em.

Justice Harlan's use of chewing tobacco was overlooked as one of the frailties of great men, but in these effeminate times the youth who deposits a cud on the parlor carpet is not admitted to the Four Hundred.

Hundreds of thousands, including bulletin board crowds, watch the Giants-Athletics games, but if you want to get a few hundred to attend a lecture on the constitution of the universe, you have to send out a pretty girl to sell tickets.

THE SORRY SIDE.

You can begin to shoot, provided you have a license and know how. The law is "off."—North Adams Transcript.

If you don't know how to shoot, you may still obtain the license. Then armed with the latest improved weapons and supplied with all the accessories, you have only to hie to the woods, and there bang away, says the Salem News. If the shooting were so accurate that game, whether quadruped or biped, were always brought down, dead, that would be one thing. This accuracy, however, is notoriously lacking. The innocent denizens of fields and forests, many of which would take flight at the sight of man, must serve the place of so many targets. Where bullets take effect, the shots are not always mortal. Here is where the sorry side of shooting is emphasized. If the wounded prey manages ti escape the hunters, it means too often a crawling away into some secluded spot, there to linger in pain and suffer from the agony of jagged wounds until death intervenes. Much of this killing and mangling is for the sake of killing and mangling, the excitement of the slaughter blinding many an amateur Nimrod to the cruelty of a pursuit which masquerades wanton slaughter or wounding of inoffensive animals as wholesome sport.

DR. GLADDEN'S COMPLAINT.

A complaint against newspaper irresponsibility is lodged in the last number of the Outlook magazine by Rev. Dr. Washington Gladden of Columbus, O. He asks newspaper men to discuss the question how the conditions he complains of can be improved.

Dr. Gladden's grievance is this: In a recent pastoral letter to his flock he complained of the modern tendency as seen in his church, to use Sunday as a day of amusement. He talked of the consequent tendency to weaken interest in church life. Some one with this as a basis rushed to the conclusion that Dr. Gladden's work was proving a failure, and a wholly false dispatch was distributed to the press, stating that Dr. Gladden was about to resign. This was printed all over the country. Dr. Gladden says it seems impossible to get it corrected.

Every newspaper man has seen a host of blunders like this perpetrated. He knows that the majority of them are not the romances of some reporter's glowing imagination, as Dr. Gladden may think under such annoying circumstances.

Most of these stories are passed out to some newspaper acquaintance by men who look as substantial and reliable as the dictionary. They originate in that turgid flood of gossip that flows in and out of the ears of the people day by day. Nineteen out of twenty of these yarns are put to sleep by the patient investigation or common sense intuition of some newspaper man. Occasionally the watch dog nods, and a story like the Gladden fake gets by.

There is no more serious and dignified occupation than that of the newspaper reporter. He is the historian of his town and his times. Often the color he gives to his facts swings more public sentiment than the learned disputations of the editor.

And yet some people seem to look at this dignified task as very much of a joke. They take pleasure in passing out fake yarns to see if gullible young reporters can be "strung."

The newspaper reporter reflects the temper of the people that he meets. If he finds our leading citizens careless and inaccurate in the statements made to him, how is he ever to learn the splendid value of truth? If the people that he meets take his work as a joke, who can wonder if he uses the power and sweep of the printed page as a means of paying his little debts of persiflage?

GOING TO BE HARD WINTER.

It is going to be a long, hard winter with lots of snow. Two of the country's most famous weather prophets agree upon this forecast, and the goosebone of a third bears them out. Uncle Sam's official weather man never tells weather secrets so far ahead, but if you take the advice of Uncle Horace Johnson, the sage of Middle Haddam, Conn., or Weather Prophet De Voe of Hackensack, N. J., you'll get your coal in early and have your fur coat on the rack.

Uncle Jim Wilson Has No Thought of Tendering Resignation

Washington, Oct. 20.—Secretary of Agriculture Wilson, who reached here last evening from Chicago, denied rumors that he had handed his resignation to President Taft, to take effect Nov. 15.

"There is absolutely no justification for the rumor," he said emphatically. "I have no thought of handing in my resignation at any time soon."

Here's Something New

No more ashes to lug. No clumsy pan to spill dust and dirt on the kitchen floor.

The Glenwood Ash Chute

solves the problem. It is located just beneath the grate and connected by a sheet iron pipe straight down through the kitchen floor to ash barrel in cellar. No part is in sight. Not a particle of dust can escape. Just slide the damper once each day and drop the ashes directly into the ash barrel.

The Dust Tight Cover

to barrel is another entirely new Glenwood Idea and is very ingenious. The Ash Chute is sold complete with barrel and all connections, as illustrated, at a moderate price to fit any cabinet style Glenwood. This is only one of the splendid improvements of the Plain Cabinet Glenwood the Range without ornamentation or fancy nickel, "The Mission Style" Glenwood. Every essential refined and improved upon.

Up-To-Date Gas Attachments

This Range can be had with the latest and most improved Elevated or End Gas Range attachments. It has a powerful hot water front or for country use a Large Copper Reservoir on the end opposite fire box. It can be furnished with fire box at either right or left of oven as ordered. When the Ash Chute cannot be used an Improved Ash Pan is provided.

WASHINGTON HOUSE-CLEANING.

If Secretary Wilson's qualifications for domestic science are to be judged by his recent attempt at house-cleaning, they fall short. Sweeping the dust under the bed and into the corners is too indicative of shiftlessness to satisfy the exacting householder. The place must be thoroughly cleaned and teh dirt and rubbish removed before the coming return of the man of the family or the keys are likely to be given to a new steward.

Even while curtailing McCabe's activities and turning over to the reorganized board of food and drug inspection some of the power formerly exercised by him, the Secretary took occasion to re-assert his perfect confidence in his Solicitor.

It may be surmised that this confidence is based on the energy and ability displaced by McCabe in devising ways in which to carry out what he had reason to believe were the wishes of his superiors. That he organized and conducted the anti-Wiley cabal without being reasonably certain that he had the sympathy and support of Secretary Wilson is extremely improbable. McCabe's record of loyalty to his chief refutes such a preposterous suggestion.

Equally, it would be a severe reflection on Secretary Wilson's intelligence to presume that he did not know what he was doing when he played into the hands of the anti-Wiley forces at the Denver convention, in the Indiana case, and in giving his tacit approval to the attempt to railroad Wiley and his chief supporters.

McCabe remains, and through his hands must pass all cases referred to the Department of Justice. He is to act as the intermediary between Wiley and Wickersham, who has not yet withdrawn his expression that Wiley deserved "condign punishment."

Wilson also remains and in his hands the veto power. Not to exercise it means an exchange of domination by Wiley for that by McCabe, while to over-rule Wiley will fan the embers of the fuel into flame.

The close bond between the Secretary and the Solicitor has been strengthened by the events of the past six months. Now that Jasper Wilson, his son and former private secretary has gone, the Secretary must more than ever lean on his trusted confidant and legal advisor, and Wiley's work must pass inspection by them before reaching Wickersham.

Small wonder the public is dissatisfied with the job to date!

That Secretary Wilson suspects his efforts have not met with approbation from President Taft is indicated by the semi-official announcement that these half-way measures were taken without orders or consultation with him. This leaves the President in a position to make a thorough clean-up when he returns and it is generally believed it will be done. Otherwise his enemies in Congress may be counted upon to make it decidedly uncomfortable for him. It is unfortunate for the aspiration of Ex-Representative Scott of Kansas, to succed to Wilson's portfolio, that he slipped into the annual appropriation bill the paragraph under which McCabe's p wers were so greatly extended.

Wilson's successor must not be tarred by the same stick.

Q.—Is it true that the "Highway of Holiness" is opened up now and that the way of salvation is so plain that a "wayfaring man though a fool shall not err therein" (Isaiah xxxv, 8-10)? If the way is so plain and clear and simple that a foolish person need make no mistake about it, then why is there so much confusion among the learned clergymen, Doctors of Divinity, etc., as to the proper methods of salvation, some teaching one thing and some another?

As an honest skeptic and one seeking to know the way of salvation, can you direct me to this "Highway?"

Answer.—We are not surprised that you have failed to find the "Highway." The Lord Jesus referring to the conditions of salvation during this present Gospel Age, declares that "Strait is the gate and narrow is the way that leadeth unto life and few there be that find it." As a matter of fact the Scriptures point out three ways:—"The broadway, leading to destruction," "The narrow way to life," and the "Highway of Holiness." (Matthew vii, 13, 14; Isaiah xxxv, 8, 9.) It is very evident from the conditions which you mention, that the latter of these ways has not been in existence thus far, but as the Scriptures affirm, it will be opened up for the world at the time of our Lord's second coming. Then when Satan, that old "lion" (I Peter v, 8,) is bound (Revelation xx, 2,) the Prophet's words shall be fulfilled,—"No lion shall be there," and "the redeemed of the Lord (the world of mankind) shall go up thereon with everlasting joy and singing upon their heads, and sorrow and sighing shall flee away."

—The Bay State street Railway Co., desires a trolley express permit from the town of Stoughton, and the citizens at a meeting held last week put up, as their side of the matter, that the railway company yshould give the town a five cent fare, pave gutters to the top of Frank Raymond's hill, relocate tracks to the centre of the street, and also oil or water the streets as the board of selectmen may direct and furnish lights at all turnouts. The situation seems to be like that of one who has lost his Chinese laundry check "no checkee, no washee."

AMUSEMENTS

DOINGS ON THE STAGE OF

LOCAL AND BOSTON THEATRES

THE PARK THEATRE.

How a shrewd manipulator may beguile the gullible public is most admirably demonstrated in George M. Cohan's greatest comedy success, "Get-Rich-Quick-Wallingford" which has proven the biggest hit ever presented at the Park Theatre. The universality of its human appeal is truly something wonderful. Based upon the celebrated "Wallingford" stories by Mr. George Randolph Chester, Mr. Cohan has evolved a unique farcical comedy that is screamingly funny, fairly scintillating with brilliant epigrammatic wit and clean-cut, wholesome humor. Yet, at the same time serving as an effective vehicle for a timely lesson of inspiration and achievement, as well as telling a delightfully logical love story that displays the power for good that a truly good woman may exert over any man who is not hopelessly bad at heart and incidentally conveying the moral that "honesty is the best policy" after all.

The unprecedented success of Mr. Cohan's brilliant satire on the "get-rich-quick" game, affords another indisputable proof of the fact that present day playgoers have shown a marked predilection for laughs, first, last and all the time. Not so very long ago it was only the more serious forms of the drama that proved appealing, especially to the ladies, to whom the ideal offering was one that afforded a "real good cry," but the public taste is ever shifting, the farce comedies are the most popular offerings of the day, and "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford" is the premiere of them all. Boston is to be congratulated upon the fact that Messrs. Cohan & Harris are presenting the original and entire New York cast at the Park Theatre, with Hale Hamilton in the title role as J. Rufus Wallingford, the part he created and has played over 600 times, and William H. Boyd who has won the enthusiastic approbation of the press and public as "Blackie" Daw, Wallingford's pal and co-worker, as well as Frances Ring in her original creation as Fanny Jasper, the lovable little stenographer who becomes Wallingford's private secretary and afterwards his wife. The organization is a very large one, over 75 persons are required to present the play in a typical George M. Cohan manner.

BOSTON THEATRE.

The engagement of Lulu Glaser at the Boston Theatre is announced for two weeks which seems rather unfortunate. She was greeted on Monday night at the Boston Theatre by an audience that completely filled that big auditorium and the welcome that she received personally and the enthusiasm displayed over her latest opera, "Miss Dudelsack" would mean that she could remain at the Boston Theatre for many weeks to come but owing to bookings already made it will be impossible for her to do so. The production of "Miss Dudel sack" which is German for the bagpipe, is one of the most elaborate and unique ever presented. Scotland is the scene of this latest Viennese opera and the most is made of the picturesqueness of the highland atmosphere and costume. The stage pictures are all brilliant, there is unusual life and animation in the chorus which consists of 50 and there is at least a dozen numbers of swinging melodies and the orchestral work, which requires an augmented orchestra of 40 is unusually brilliant. The story is of a young girl who is left in charge of a German major-domo and grows up in the belief that she is his daughter. The big estate is tied up for 18 years and then as different relatives of the supposedly dead lord turn up and squabble over the land and gold the man returns from his wanderings, claims his daughter and sees her love story out right. The cast of 20 principals includes many well known to the operatic stage. The comedy of the piece is unique and the whole story very interesting. For this engagement there has been no advance in prices. Matinees will be given Wednesday and Saturday.

SCENE FROM "GET RICH QUICK WALLINGFORD."

Now playing at Park Theatre, Boston.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE.

Lillian Russell, "the queen of beauty and of song," will be the headline attraction at B. F. Keith's Theatre next week. As the leading lady of the Weber & Fields' all-star music hall company and later as a legitimate star in "Wildfire," Miss Russell occupies a place all her own on the legitimate stage. She was under contract to Werba & Luescher, producers of "The Spring Maid," to star this season in a new comic opera, but some difficulty was experienced in securing the proper vehicle, and Mr. Keith made arrangements to present her to Boston audiences as an attraction at his beautiful playhouse. During the week Miss Russell will sing several new songs written especially for her and wear some marvelous gowns that are bound to turn every woman in the audience green with envy. The novelty of the week will be Paul Seldoms' Venus, a series of wonderful reproductions of living marble statuary of exquisite beauty. This troupe is composed of three men and Miss Erna Claren, one of the most perfectly formed young women in the world. The surrounding show will be fully up to the standard of those that have preceded it, including Jones & Deely, in Hotel St. Reckless;" Van Hoven, the crazy magician; Cocoran & Dixon, singers and dancers; the Six Abdallahs, whirlwind Arabian acrobats; Barry & Halvers in "It happened at the Fountain;" Frohlich, a new cartoonist; and others to be announced.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

For his first Shakspearean production of the season, Mr. Craig has selected the favorite romantic comedy "As You Like It," and it will be given at the Castle Square next Monday. This play is one that shows Shakspeare's skill at its highest, and with its clever plot involving the fortunes of Orlando and Rosalind and a half dozen other equally important characters, it has entertained the playgoers of many ages, ranging in time from the beginning of the seventeenth century to the present hour. All the scenes of "As You Like It," with the exception of the first act, are laid in the far-famed Forest of Arden Thither all the characters come, some for one purpose, some for another and they each play their part in a delightful comedy of love, mystery and romance. Nothing could be more pleasing to the mind and more restful to the eye than the woodland scenes that follow each other through act after act, and of the character Rosalind ranks with Portia, Viola and Juliet among Shakspeare's wonderful group of feminine creations. To the character of Rosalind in Mr. Craig's production of "As You Like It," Mary Young will bring a winning personality and a joyous temperament, and it will place her in the forefront of Shakspearean actresses. As Orlando Mr. Craig will have a role to which he will give the buoyancy of youth while the remainder of the cast will be carefully arranged from the personel of the Castle Square players The scenery and costumes will also be faithfully attended to.

"THE BLUE BIRD" ARRIVES.

Owing to the massiveness of the New Theatre's famous production of "The Blue Bird," this exquisite fantasy by Maeterlinck will play no other engagement in New England except at the Shubert Theatre, Boston, where it opens for three weeks, beginning Tuesday, Oct. 24. No recent play has made quite so profound a sensation in America or Europe. With its beautiful philosophy, rare human and pathos, it has charmed paygoers of all ages and all countries. In New York, this so-called literary drama scored the greatest popular success of the season, attaining a run of 263 performances. In England, France, Germany and Austria, it has met with the same huge success, while in Russia fifty-two different companies are now playing it throughout the Provinces. In "The Blue Bird" Maeterlinck has revealed a new and comforting philosophy of life, expressing it through the light and delicate fancy of the pursuit by two children of the blue bird, the symbol of happiness. They are accompanied on their journey by "Bread," a jolly, grotesque individual; "Milk" a beautiful, timid creature; "Water" a flowing, sylph-like girl; "Fire," a hissing, tempestuous youth; "Sugar," a silly chap with candy hands; The Faithful "Dog" the sly, scheming "Cat" and other things and animals embodied in human form by the magic of fairy Berylune.

So intricate are the various scenic effects that nearly a year was spent in the preparation of them. Beauty, fantasy, wisdom, humor and a delightful tenderness are all blended into one. "The Blue Bird" brings tears to the eyes and then chases them away with laughter; plunges you into revery and then startles you with some joyous surprise. Children and those who like to take their amusement lighter, derive infinite pleasure from the amusing actions and witty sayings of things and animals turned into human beings. To those who look deeper, however, the author has furnished a bottomless well of mysticism, romance and inspiring symbolism.

CORONATION PICTURES.

Nothing but the same story of continuous success remains to be told of the Coronation pictures at Tremont Temple, which on Monday begin their eleventh week. This record is an amazing one, but it is no more than this remarkable exhibition deserves. When the public can see for a small sum the leading features of one of the greatest events in the world's history, in action, in color, and in all the versimilitude of life, it is no wonder that it responds freely and unhesitatingly. Mr. Farnsworth's lecture is no little interest, and the orchestral music adds to the pleasure of the entertainment, which is given at 2.30 in the afternoon and at 8.15 in the evening and continues for two hours.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.

The military frontier play, "Beyond the Divide," a stupendous scenic and mechanical production, will be next week's attraction at the Boston Grand Opera House. The story is founded on the massacre of an emigrant train at Little Big Horn, almost on the same trail where the gallant Custer made his last stand. The only survivors were a woman and two children, who were overlooked in the mad scramble of the battle. The children were confided to the care of an old trapper who carried them to his home in the rugged mountains at Silver Creek, where the adopted daughter grows to womanhood, when her hand is sought by the renegade who instigated the massacre. Being refused, he sets fire to the cabin and abducts the girl, whom he carries to a cave in the mountains, while he has the old trapper arrested for the murder of a soldier, of which he himself is guilty. This is where Roland the Ranger, who is in love with the girl, comes prominently to the front, and he is so successful on the trail that he finally succeeds in landing his friends safely "Beyond the Divide," and brings the guilty to justice. There are many intensely thrilling and startling climaxes, and the great flood, battle and cave scenes are triumphs of stage realism; while interwoven with the story is a pleasing element of comedy, catchy music, song and dance, completing one of the most thoroughly up-to-date and historically correct frontier plays ever presented. There will be matinees Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

HOLLIS STREEET THEATRE

Whenever the name of David Belasco precedes an attraction it is a beacon of assurance that the presentation is as perfect as brains, energy and capital can assummate, and whatever he does, he does thoroughly and accurately. This has been evidenced with lifelike fidelity upon every occasion a Belasco star comes to Boston, and another exposition of his wonderful technique is assured Monday night at the Hollis street theatre when his popular and brilliant star Blanche Bates will inaugurate a brief two weeks engagement in her immensely successful comedy "Nobody's Widow," a deliciously clever composition that ran for 8 months in New York last season. The central figure of this farcial romance, as it is designated in the advertising, is a keenly sensitive and dangerously attractive American woman, "Roxana Clayton" by name, who goes to Europe, falls in love for the first time in her life and precipitately marries this man of her choice. Before the honeymoon has risen above the wedding hour horizon, the newly made Benedict is discovered by his bride fondly embracing and kissing a young woman, who is afterwards recognized as a former sweetheart. Piqued at what she thinks an unpardonable indiscretion, Roxana leaves him, returns to America and arrayed in the most stunning of widow's weeds, announces the untimely death of her newly wedded husband. At a house party in Palm Beach the husband confronts the unsuspecting Roxana and the fun begins. Then for the three acts the complications come fast and furious, with the line of demarkation between farce and comedy so cleverly drawn that the the master hand of David Belasco is readily recognized. Miss Bates has always been admired for her consummate art and earnestness in anything she undertakes, and her success as the widow has been attained solely by her wonderful personal charm, intellectuality and histrionic ability. Matinees on Saturdays only.

MAJESTIC THEATRE.

At the Majestic Theatre Monday night, The Author's Producing Company will present Charles Klein's latest play, "The Gamblers," for the fourth week, with an exceptionally clever cast of players, headed by Jane Cowl and Orme Caldara. The principal characters in "The Gamblers" are five bank directors, a federal attorney and his wife. The bank president, John Emerson, an easy going financier of the old school, turns over the affairs of the institution of which he has so long been the respected head, to his son, Wilbur, a speculative catapult who careers wildly for a brief time, but is brought up sharply on charges of the misuse of the bank's funds. He and his associates who are equally as guilty, meet at a ball at his home. They discuss means of avoiding prosecution. Federal authorities have taken possession of the bank, but Wilbur Emerson has recovered what he believes are the notes given by the directors which constitute evidence of guilt. The destruction of these notes will relieve all but one director from standing trial. They agree to turn cards, the one receiving the first Jack is to become the scapegoat. Unfortunately the old bank president draws the fatal card, but the son declares a misdeal and nobly takes his place and agrees to accept the responsibility. Although Charles Klein wrote "The Music Master," "The Lion and the Mouse," "The Third Degree," all of which were most notable successes in Boston, "The Gamblers" is excelling them all in drawing crowded and enthusiastic audiences. Matinees are given Wednesday and Saturday at 2.15, and every evening at 8.15.

SUNDAY EVENING CONCERT.

The Sunday evening concerts at the Castle Square have started off this season with every sign of renewing the popularity they gained last year. High class in every way, they offer the best form of entertainment to the many who delight in an evening's recreation. For the coming Sunday, as usual, the concert will last two hours and a half, and it will present as a program not merely the best and latest motion pictures, but also a half dozen specialty artists who are experts in their line. It is the intention of the management to give a good, clean, wholesome entertainment, and then appear to be succeeding in their endeavors.

It has been definitely decided that William Hawtrey and his English company will begin their New York engagement in "Dear old Billy," a farce by W. H. Risque, in December. Mr. Hawtrey recently closed an engagement of over one hundred performances in Chicago and the critics of Chicago, Detroit, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Milwaukee where he has since appeared are unanimous in praise of both play and players.

INDUSTRIAL EXPOSITION.

Boston is now holding the greatest Industrial Exposition in its history; one that from its objects and aims should interest every inhabitant of the New England states, as primarily it was designed to boom New England and show not only our own people, but the entire United States what was being accomplished in this section of the country. The manufacturers have given it their earnest support with the result that never in the history of New England has such a comprehensive representative and diversified showing of its many industries been made.

In many instances these exhibits are working or active exhibits, showing the method of making the goods that have added so much to New England's reputation. "New England Quality" and "New England Made" are the slogans of the Exposition, and the result has amply repaid the Boston Chamber of Commerce, under whose auspices this great Exposition is held. Both press and public have endorsed it as being the most entertaining as well as instructive show ever held. The management realizes that the purely educational feature would not appeal to all, so have supplied so many interesting novelties, so many contrasting features, that there is something to please all. For instance along with the great display of the American Woolen Co., is the old fashioned hand spinning and weaving exhibits.

In the great agricultural department, with its wonderful up-to-date farm machinery, is also to be seen the identical plow used by Daniel Webster on his Marshfield Farm, as well as the gold plow that has been exhibited all over the world. In the agricultural department may also be seen the greatest display of vegetables ever exhibited, fine blooded horses, pigs, chickens, cows milked by electricity, the model dairy and farm, even to the cider mill, everything in regular order.

Probably every known commodity is to be seen in the main halls, all textile products, tool and wood working machinery, willow-ware manufacture, a great printing plant, with its ten page daily Paper, the exhibit of the United Shoe Machiney Co., many food products, dry goods of all classes, etc. This is only a very small part of the many things to be seen of interest.

Next week, the last one, an added interest will be given the great Exposition, as in connection with it, will be held the great New England Fruit Show. This will be held in Horticultural Hall, as the great Mechanics Building is already full and overflowing. However, one ticket will admit to both buildings during the week.

The musical program is being rendered by the Salem Cadet Band who give two concerts daily, and in Exhibition Hall the popular Edna Frances Simmons' Orchestra will be heard.

Mrs. Leslie Carter's press agent is again having her sued for the price of the clothes she never had.

LECTURE BY JAMES F. PAIGE

On Japan Before Men's Club of Wollaston Church

JOHN L. MILLER SPEAKS

A stereopticon lecture on "Japan" by James F. Paige of the Fore River works was the program of the Men's club of the Wollaston Methodist church Thursday evening. Mr. Paige holds the post of assistant chief engineer and spent 21 months in the Orient in the interests of the concern. During that time Mr. Paige visited many places of interest and as a result has a series of views that could hardly be excelled.

His talk dealt with the customs and habits of the people as well as the many show places of the country.

Many Japanese shrines and temples were shown with their elaborate and costly decorations. In one of these is massed a group of 33,333 idols.

An interesting view was that of the elevated railway at Tokio, the space underneath being occupied as bazaars. The various agricultural pursuits of the Japanese were shown in detail such as the growing of tea and rice.

Pictures of the United States fleet at anchor in Yokahoma harbor brought forth much interest. Lecture closed with a description of the Siberian Railroad and a view of the Japanese goodbye.

Mr. Paige was accorded a hearty vote of thanks and refreshments followed. A feature of the evening was the reading of the Wollaston Herald by J. A. Sedgwick among other items being the exciting account of a prize fight involving certain members of the club.

John L. Miller, chairman of the school committee was a guest of the club and on call for a speech responded with a few words. In the absence of President Ewertz on business George Taylor presided.

HUSTLER'S CONTEST.

The announcement of the standing of the various contestants in the Watch Contest in the Ledger Tuesday evening proved of great interest to the youngsters and their friends and acted as an incentive for some of the boys and girls who are low on the list to hustle and collect more votes. By the way the votes are coming in the standing of some of the contestants will change greatly by next Tuesday. Buy the Ledger every day and vote the ballot printed on page 2, also vote all your S. & H. Green Trading stamps. Now is the time boys and girls and make a Garrison finish. It is anybody's contest at present.

MAN BADLY INJURED AT ATLANTIC

One man, whose name is John Pane, and another whose name could not be learned, were injured at the Atlantic Station shortly before noon Thursday, while engaged in work for the Ryan and Keen Contracting Company, which is making extensive repairs in that vicinity. It seems that the men were hoisting a granite block, when the chains gave way in some manner and threw the block against the staging The staging fell and the block landed in the section where the two injured men and others were doing cement work.

Both men were seriously injured as a result and had to be taken to the Quincy Hospital in an unconscious condition. Later it was reported that they were resting comfortably. It is not known where the men reside.

MILTON.

A reception was given to Rev. A. E. Gregg, pastor of the East Congregational church, by his parishioners last Tuesday.

Work has already begun of removing the main part of the Strangman Mill on the town landing, to make way for the approach to the Milton station.

The first fall meeting of the Milton Educational society will be held in the assembly hall on the evening of October 25th.

The regular series of sermons has been resumed at the Evangelical church, and the subject of last Sunday's discourse was "The Christian's business—and wealth."

A social meeting is being held Friday evening at the East Milton Episcopal church.

Mrs. William L. Rowell of 18 Centre street, has been widely congratulated of late, because of the fact that prizes were captured at the Brockton Fair by some of her black leghorns.

Horatio T. Sears of Sandwich, is visiting friends on Granite street.

William T. Bunker of Edge Hill road, has gone to Brunswick, Maine, for a brief stay.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Whalen and daughter of Hazel street, have gone to California, where they expect to remain several months, in order to restore Mrs. Whalen's health.

The Milton Academy football team will encounter the strong Groton eleven at Groton Saturday.

Beginning the first of the month, the Public Library will be open from 2 to 6 P. M., instead of from 12 M. to 5 P. M.

A meeting was held by the Joseph Warren Chapter Junior Sons and and Daughters of the Revolution, at the home of Miss Dorothy Fuller in East Milton Saturday afternoon. Every member had an account of some historic house, with pictures to make the subject interesting. It was found necessary to elect a vice president, and Dorothy Fuller was chosen; also a new secretary, Maybelle Rogers. The programme for the year was outlined and the Juniors have undertaken to sell thirty certificates to help towards the preservation of the home of Thomas Scott Key, author of "The Star Spangled Banner." Refreshments were served by the young hostess.

—POLITICAL— NOTES, NEWS AND NOVELTIES

By N. N.

An interesting feature of the registration at City Hall last Wednesday evening was the meeting, face to face of Councilman William J. Leslie and ex-councilman John J. McDevitt, both candidates for the house of representatives from the six Norfolk district. The republican candidate had just left a gathering of G. O. P. members, where he had tendered his resignation as secretary of the republican city committee, and was just about to enter City Hall, when the democratic nominee of the fourth Ward, approached him, extended to him his hand, and expressed his delight over the fact that the Ward Five councilman had recovered from his recent illness.

A happy talk ensued and the pair laughted, joked and talked some more, for a greater duration. The ex-Councilman invited his opponent to have a soda, but the latter most respectfully declined because of the fact that his health would not permit him at that time. Both wished one another the greatest of success and it surely was one of the most pleasing spectacles everwitnessed in local politics. The campaign on both sides, therefore, is sure to be clean and wholesome.

Aside from the many discusions that will prevail on the so-called Houghs Neck township tomorrow evening, other developements may also be watched, for in all probability James E. Wall, president of the Associates, will preside over the gathering, and as much has been said about his candidacy, something in this direction may be forthcoming.

"Jim," as he is most familiarly known to the residents of that vicinity, has always been a consistent fighter for all improvements. His ability to carry off honors was greatly attested to last January, when he succeeded in administering a stinging defeat to Henry W. French a registrar of voters, the man who previously boasted that he carried the votes of Houghs Neck in his vest pocket, as president of the Houghs Neck Associates. When "Jim" once enters the mayoralty contest, things will take a lively turn and there will be no easy "sliding" for the opposing candidates.

To those who are to aspire for office at the municipal caucuses and elections, it would be well to bear in mind that the nomination papers will be issued next Tuesday and will have to be filed one week from the following Thursday. This leaves but a short time in which to have names filed and it has already caused much adverse criticism.

Ex-representative Rednor P. Coombs has already started an active campaign in his efforts to secure the senatorial seat of the first Norfolk, now held by Hon. George L. Barnes, and if the work that he is already putting in under the guidance of Councilman John D. Smith, chairman of the Democratic city committee, bears any weight, many an interesting feature is sure to develop before the campaign is drawn to a close. Councilman Smith is to manage the Atlantic candidate's campaign and rallies have already been held in Braintree, Canton, and Randolph.

Mr. Smith is himself doing the greater bulk of the stump speaking and all who have heard him in the council chamber know just what his capabilities are. He is a very fluent talker and has made a thorough survey of the record of Senator Barnes. Many are now hoping that the present Senator will encounter him in joint debate, for it surely would be a most interesting meeting. Last year Mr. Coombs carried Quincy by a substantial majority and he now figures that a still larger majority, together with the support that he is receiving from outside towns, will enable him to land the victory.

AVIATOR ELY KILLED

phosphorous. The offer was declined..

Eugene Ely was one of the best known of the American aviators. His reputation as an expert and conservative air pilot was international. He probably did as much or more than any other American aviator in furthering military experiments with the aeroplane, particularly in the United States navy.

It was he who first made a successful flight from a warship, starting from the scout cruiser Birmingham off Norfolk in November, 1910. Subsequently at San Francisco in January last he landed on the deck of the armored cruiser Pennsylvania, and a few minutes later returned from that point to the aviation field, some ten miles away.

In addition Ely demonstrated in army aeroplanes at San Antonio, Tex., and carried out military scouting experiments with the army at San Francisco. He was highly regarded by army and navy officers.

He established a home near San Francisco, and being recognized as a resident of California, although born in Iowa, was given a commission as lieutenant in the California national guard. He was 26 years old.

He leaves a young widow, a native of San Francisco, who is now in New York city. She was prostrated last night by the news.

Ely joined Glenn H. Curtiss at Minneapolis in June, 1910, and since then had made hundreds of exhibition flights.

COMMANDER RAISED TO HIGH POSITION

Andrews Jumps Over Heads of Men Long In Service

Washington, Oct. 20.—Commander Andrews has been selected by Secretary of the Navy Meyer for appointment as chief of the bureau of navigation, succeeding Rear Admiral Nicholson, who will become commander-in-chief of the Asiatic squadron next March.

Commander Andrews stands about fifteen on the list of commanders and the appointment will give him the rank of rear admiral. For the last two years he has been on duty as naval aide to Meyer.

It is the first time in recent years that an officer below the rank of captain has been appointed as chief of the bureau of navigation. The chief of this bureau is regarded as the official representative in Washington of the line officers of the navy, and for this reason the position has heretofore been filled by an officer of high rank and long service.

ITALIAN LOSS HEAVY

Story of Turks Quitting Declared by Mygind to Be Humbug

Berlin, Oct. 20.—Edward Mygind, an experienced correspondent of the Zeitung Am Mittag, cabling this paper from Jerba, an island belonging to Tunis, and a point where he escapes the Italian censorship, says that the Italian losses in nightly skirmishes in Tripoli are considerable, and that the Italian assertions that the Turks and Arab allies are discouraged and intend to surrender is pure humbug.

Cholera, he states, has claimed many victims among the Italian troops and the residents of Tripoli.

Three Years For Intent to Kill

Machias, Me., Oct. 20.—A sentence of three years in state prison was imposed in the supreme court upon William Hunter, who was charged with assault with intent to kill Mrs. Sophie Davis at Cherryfield.

his right to a home and his idea of right living.

It should be possible to put confirmed criminals in settlements by themselves where they can harm no one. The narrow cell is no place for a man.

With the others we should treat them as they should be treated. The parole and probation systems should be given a larger scope.

Nine out of ten men put on probation have a better chance than locked in the prison cell. We ought to have men as judges who are lovers of their fellows and have made a life study of conditions.

The speaker closed with a story of how Judge Lindsay when about to sentence a youth for stealing pigeons remembered how near he came to committing this crime when a boy himself. He took the boy and made him and the rest of the gang, his friends keeping them straight through a sense of loyalty.

When a criminal can look at human society and up into the face of the judge and believe we are his friends we have saved that man from degradation and crime and saved the community from the great curse that hangs over it of a criminal population. Dr. Calley was followed by a round of continual applause.

President Hardy was in charge of the meeting and the evening opened with a prayer by Rev. Thomas S. Barbour, D. D. Refreshments and a social hour followed the speaker.

ROOSTER COAL BRIQUETS

THE NEW ANTHRACITE COAL

ROOSTER BRIQUETS are made from the choicest small Scranton Anthracite coal, mined in Pennsylvania, called TWENTIETH CENTURY CHESTNUT size

Just consider for a moment what we offer here in this 20th CENTURY CHESTNUT.

First, 2000 pounds of clean, pure, hard coal without a rock or a piece of slate.

Second, fuel that cannot form into a clinker, by any known method of firing, consequently the linings and grates last indefinitely.

Third, they are made in nut size, being equally convenient for furnace heaters, open grates, as well as stoves; therefore, only one storage bin is necessary.

Fourth, and very IMPORTANT, the quality of this fuel is the SAME EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR, not a good ton today, and nothing like it the next time, in other words, when you once learn how to regulate your drafts you have nothing more to learn about burning BRIQUETS.

Fifth, no more sifting ashes these Briquets burn out clean. They require less wood to kindle.

Be sure to ask for "ROOSTERS" and get the Briquet made from pure Scranton Coal, from the largest Briquet plant in the country. They are better than coal, will last as long and cost less.

Soda crackers are extremely sensitive to moisture.

Before the advent of Uneeda Biscuit the only persons who ever tasted fresh, crisp soda crackers were the people in the bakeries.

Imagine their trip from bakery to your table; exposed to air and moisture—kept in grocers' boxes and finally in a paper bag on the shelf in your pantry. Could they be the same as they were the day they were baked?

Now that we have Uneeda Biscuit—we have perfectly baked soda crackers—perfectly kept.

No moisture can reach them—no contaminating influences can affect their flavor—their goodness is imprisoned only to be liberated by you for you when you open the package.

Always in the moisture proof package. Never sold in bulk. 5 cents a package.

SYNOPSIS

Anna Granger, devoted mother of two small children, discovers that her husband is a weak character and that he has lied to her about a woman.

Posing as Miss Dale, she becomes stenographer to Burton Temple, through whose evidence her husband has been imprisoned. She thinks Temple is the guilty man and is acting the spy to clear her husband's name for his sake and that of her children.

She walked unthinkingly over to the big bay window. There beyond the blue flowing Hudson the grim prison walls smote her vision.

"Oh, what was I saying!" she cried, with a little penitent sob. "I feel like a traitor to Robert. Poor, dear boy, suffering up there for another's crime. He may have his—his weaknesses and failings—which of us has not? But at least he's not the sort ever to be guilty of theft, and he's just the best father and husband in the world. Forget what I said, Mrs. Mason. You will, won't you?"

"To be sure, dearie—to be sure. I think you're a noble woman, Anna—a model wife. And what's better, a brave mother." She studied quietly with herself for a few seconds, while Anna gathered her poise. Possibly providence had decreed that she remain under this uncongenial roof for the sole purpose of watching over this poor, motherless girl. Then:

"You see, dear, when you came I had just decided it was my duty to leave Mr. Temple. Now I am going to stay and help you in your brave endeavor. I'll stay at least till his mother gets back. She's abroad now, and oh, such a woman! You'd love her, Anna. Poor thing, she just worships her son. Sent to me the other day for an old photograph of his which she'd forgotten. While I think of it I'll take it out of the album now."

"THIS BURTON TEMPLE?" SHE STAMMERED INCREDULOUSLY.

"Let me see what he looks like, this man," said Anna, as Mrs. Mason lifted out a print from the book.

"It was taken some ten years ago, I believe, but it's a good likeness," Mrs. Mason remarked as she handed it to her.

Anna glanced at it, then stepped back breathing hard.

"This Burton Temple?" she stammered incredulously.

Mrs. Mason was occupied in replacing the album and did not notice how her face had suddenly gone white, nor did she hear the pain of her under the breath whisper, "The old, unknown prince of my dreams."

Anna threw the photograph down in a little paroxysm of disdain.

"Don't like his face?" queried Mrs. Mason, looking up.

"It isn't that." She laughed bitterly, the sort of laugh which had first visited her lips a year ago among the honeysuckle vines. "It's another ideal smashed, that's all. Mrs. Mason, do you know," she tapped the likeness contemptuously, "I used to pass this man nearly every day when I was in Forbes' office—that was the first and only stenographer's position I ever held—coming in and out of the Exchange building. I never knew who he was, but there was a something about him, a set of the jaw, a swing of the shoulders, all integrity and force—something that stamped him to me as vital and eager, a prince among men. He carried his head up, his chin forward. He seemed to be cleaving his way manfully through life. He was the fairy prince of my girlish dreams. Oh, I wish—I wish it hadn't been he!" There was a very childish tremble in the brave mouth, but she went on:

"Amid all the incriminating mud they cast at the big successful men of the day I've always clasped this man's picture to my heart, saying, 'Here's one at least who is fine and straight and big.'"

There was an unutterable, dumb loneliness in the young face, a forlorn lingering of the fingers, as unconsciously she touched the discarded picture once again. One has seen a woman look just in the same way as she has touched the clothes of her little dead child.

"And now, instead of being fine and straight and big, he's unprincipled and scheming and vicious, like all the rest. Bang goes another ideal, Mrs. Mason. He's the man who has branded the father of my boys as a thief."

"S-sh!" cried Mrs. Mason warningly again. There were heavy strides coming down the corridor. The door of the library opened abruptly. Anna Granger had just time to collect herself as the president of the Gotham entered, followed by Cato, his huge mastiff.

"You'll have to jump right in and take up the work where my secretary left off, Miss Dale," said he after the few preliminaries of courtesy had been exchanged. "I shall give you," waving his hand vaguely, "the keys to the city. There are no limitations. You will receive my mail and open it." He paused for a second. "No; there is one source of communication I wish to remain private. Anything coming to me from the New York detective bureau you will kindly hand to me unopened."

"Precisely, Mr. Temple," agreed the new secretary without the quiver of an eyelash. The president of the Gotham Trust company continued:

"From now on I shall have an unusual amount of exacting business in connection with this Granger case. You may have heard of it?"

"Yes," assented she, unbuttoning her glove.

"Another thing, Miss Dale—a large portion of the time I shall require you to be up here. There are some days, of course, when you will be free to go to your own home, but practically I shall want you to live in this house. My mother is abroad just now. I'm sorry, Mrs. Mason will make you comfortable in her absence, I trust, and now she will show you to your room. Come down again when you've settled yourself if you are not too tired. There's plenty of work waiting, I see."

He turned to his much littered desk as his housekeeper conducted Anna to her room, and Cato settled down before the fireplace.

ON HIS OWN HONOR

Convicted Man Journeys to State Prison Without Guard

Hammond, Ind., Oct. 20.—John Caldwell, sentenced to from two to fourteen years in the state prison at Jeffersonville, left here for that place unattended by officers and paying his own railroad fare.

The privilege of going to prison alone was granted to him by Judge Lawrence of the superior court here, whom he entreated not to humiliate him by handcuffing him to other sentenced men. As Caldwell comes of good family and has always stood well, the judge granted his request.

Caldwell was timekeeper for the United States Steel corporation and was convicted of conspiracy to pad the payrolls. He still denies his guilt.

ONE MAN MENTIONED IN LINNELL MURDER

Nothing Has Developed as Yet to Warrant an Arrest

Boston, Oct. 20.—"There has been but one man mentioned in connection with the murder of Avis Linnell since I began the investigation as to the cause of her death," declared Chief Inspector Dugan last night.

"It may seem strange to you," he said, "that no move forward toward making an arrest has been made. Nothing has developed that would give me the slightest reason for making any such move, but the investigation will continue."

The wedding of Miss Violet Edmands to Rev. Clarence V. T. Richeson is declared off. The Brookline heiress who supplanted in the affections of the Cambridge clergyman Avis Linnell, the young music student who died in the Boston W. Y. C. A. home Saturday night from cyanide of potassium, is so ill at the Edmands residence that a physician has been called to attend her.

Yesterday, for the first time since he secluded himself in his new finance's home immediately after the Sunday services in the Immanuel Baptist church, of which he is the pastor, Richeson ventured into the outside world. It is understood he visited an attorney's office.

PAY DAY IN LYNN

Some Fear of Trouble When Cutters Open Their Envelopes

Lynn, Mass., Oct. 20.—The 700 and more cutters who have been quitting work at 4 o'clock under orders of Business Agent Walsh of their union and contrary to orders of their employers will be paid off this evening.

Trouble is expected when the men open their pay envelopes and find their salaries cut, in accordance with the threats of the manufacturers.

Still locked out of the factories are more than 800 cutters, angrily walking the streets of Lynn or loitering about the union halls. They speak of faith that the manufacturers will be forced to yield.

FOR REFORM OF CURRENCY

Aldrich's Revised Plan Submitted to Commission

TAKES NOTE OF CRITICISMS

Washington, Oct. 20.—Former Senator Aldrich of Rhide Island has submitted to the national monetary commission, of which he is chairman, a revision of his plan for monetary legislation. The commission may use it as the basis of its recommendations to congress.

The basic principles of the revised plan are substantially the same as those embodied in Aldrich's first proposal sent to the commission last January, which he said he expected would serve as a basis for national discussion.

Most of the questions are rehearsed with great detail as the result of discussions and conferences which have been going on since the plan was first suggested.

Ex-Senator Aldrich is in Washington for a few days and has just finished revision of the proofs of the revised plan, which is shown to have taken note of many of the criticisms directed against the first tentative plan put forward by Aldrich some months ago for the express purpose of giving the country an opportunity for offering suggestions for its improvement.

It is shown that the main features of the original scheme are preserved intact, as they have met with general approval by bankers and others conversant with the currency system and that the changes are of detail only.

It is generally accepted here that the Aldrich plan, although submitted to the commission as a basis for discussion and to enable it to prepare a bill for presentation to congress, will be accepted by that body substantially as drafted.

In resigning from the commission just before the close of congress, Senator Bailey of Texas stated that should he remain a member of the commission he would be constrained to bring in a minority report and as it then appeared that there would not be time for him to prepare such a report he gave that fact as the reason for his resignation. It is known, however, that Bailey's objections are rather on constitutional points than directed against the plan itself. With Bailey off the commission it is unlikely that any other member or members will be disposed to offer serious objection to the Aldrich draft.

The commission is given by law until Jan. 8 to bring in its report. This report will be in the form of a bill and will doubtless receive the cordial support of the Taft administration. This is indicated not only by the known attitude of President Taft himself but by the utterances of Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh. While it may not be said just now that MacVeagh will approve the plan in all its details, he is warmly in favor of the general scheme.

$100 REWARD, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

CATHOLIC LYCEUM MEETING

A meeting of the Houghs Neck Catholic Lyceum was held in the clubhouse on Manet avenue last evening and many plans were adopted for the coming year. President James P. Purcell occupied the chair and after the reports of the various officers had been read and accepted, attention was then given over to the matter of winter social activities.

A heating apparatus will be installed in the clubhouse at once and besides the whist parties, held every week, there will be lectures and discourses delivered from time to time by noted men. Other entertainments will also be in order at different intervals. The committee on entertainments expects to have Hon. Michael J. Dwyer, the noted Irish lecturer, give one of his stereopticon talks to the members of the organization and their friends in the near future.

BRIEFS

A chowder is to be served at the Elks club on Tuesday evening after the regular meeting.

William H. Nichols, manager of the Citizens' Gas Co., leaves for Denver, Col., today to attend the national Gas convention.

A meeting of the Vassa society was held in Protection hall, last evening. After the meeting a social entertainment took place.

Henry Talbot, a clerk in the store of Henry P. Kittredge at Quincy square, has resumed work, after a vacation, spent in New York.

The members of St. Margaret's Guild of Christ Church meet with Miss Gertrude Jones, at her home on Granite street this evening.

John Duggan of Centre street, and Daniel Driscoll of Franklin street, both connected with the local office of the Bay State Street Railway Co., are enjoying their annual vacation.

The frequent rains the past ten days have made walking anything but pleasant even on the concrete or granolithic sidewalks. The dead leaves and mud have been tracked onto the sidewalks making them almost as bad to walk upon as the streets. As for street crossings, rubbers are needed in most places.

CAR COMPANY AIMS TO AVOID ACCIDENTS

"Avoid danger wait until the car stops and then step off carefully." Thus reads a sign, printed in large letters that hangs suspended from the roof of cars of the Bay State street railway. Passengers should take heed, for by so doing many accidents will be avoided. It might be a good idea to have another sign reading "face the front when getting off of a car." Most ladies in getting off of an electric car invariably face toward the rear of the car. This is dangerous, for if the car has the least momentum they are sure to be thrown.

Street railway companies do not want accidents if they can be avoided, for they are expensive. A careful investigation will reveal the fact that ninety-nine out of one hundred of the accidents to passengers are caused by said passengers ignoring the warning to wait until the car stops before attempting to get on or off.

BRIEFS

The rain and cool nights have about robbed the trees of their leaves and the ground is covered with them. As soon as dry they should be raked up and burned.

It is understood that the Board of Trade have received a letter from the Bay State St. Ry. arranging for a hearing on the proposition of extending its tracks from East Milton to Adams street.

A meeting of the S. Agnes Parker Sewing circle of Paul J. Revere W. R. C. will be held in G. A. R. hall Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock followed in the evening by the regular meeting of the corps.

The St. John's society will conduct a dancing party in Parochial hall, next Wednesday. Many novel features have been introduced and it is expected that a number of City officials will be in attendance.

William C. Caldwell's whist party last evening resulted in high scores; E. Maybelle Fisher 60, Joseph Pinel 55, Mrs. T. B. Crane 52, Mrs. Sproule 53 and J. Maud Reid 47. Miss Fisher made seven points twice in succession.

—An exchange remarks: "The number of postal savings banks is steadily increasing. People have a great deal more confidence in Uncle Sam than some of the political orators would have us believe. The parcels posts will yet be established, in spite of powerful interests." So say we all, and hasten the day.

DISCUSS MISSING LINK

Members of West Quincy Imp. Society Much In Earnest

WILL PUSH MATTERS

The question of the so-called missing street railway link between East Milton and Adams street, Dorchester, was the main question that came up for discussion at the meeting of the West Quincy Improvement society at its meeting Thursday evening. The association is very much in earnest on this question and means to keep pegging away at it until the desired end is accomplished. At the meeting Thursday, a large number of petitions to the street railway were prepared and during the next few weeks these will be widely circulated in West Quincy and East Milton. An effort will also be made to have the City Council endorse the plan at the next meeting of that body.

There was also an informal talk upon several other matters of interest to this section of the city but no definite action was taken on any of the subjects.

It was announced however that plans were being made for another smoke talk to be held in the near future.

FINED FOR SELLING LIQUOR

The cases of Giovani Salvati, Frank Mazetti and Frank Dondini whose places were raided by the police several days ago came up in court this morning. Salvati and Mazetti retracted their plea of not guilty and entered a plea of guilty. They were then fined $50 each, which was paid.

In the case of Dondini there was but one witness against him. This witness was so positive in his testimony against the defendant as to look suspicious. It seems that this man kept boarders and that as a matter of accommodation he bought their beer for them.

After hearing the one witness, the court found the defendant guilty on the evidence and placed the case on file on payment of $25 on account of costs.

NEW ENGLAND LEAGUE GAME.

Eagles vs. Rovers.

Fore River Eagles will play Fore River Rovers on the home grounds, Saturday. The Rovers are bringing with them a strong combination, as well as many loyal supporters of the game, and are determined to give the Eagles the hardest tussle they have yet had in the New England League. With the well earned victory of last Saturday fresh on their memory, when they defeated Worcester 7 goals to 1, the Eagles are going out tomorrow full of confidence, and it is going to take some mighty fine football playing—as good, if not better, than has yet been seen—to stop them.

Those teams are playing brilliant football, and we may expect to see the finer points of the game played. The Eagles have a hard nut to crack but should be victorious and do Quincy proud by holding the lead in the New England league. The Eagles team is as follows:

A WIRELESS HOAX

Life Savers Stirred by Report of Wreck of Full Rigger

New York, Oct. 20.—A wireless message of unknown origin put the life saving stations along the southern shore of Long Island on edge with a report that a full rigged ship was ashore between Beliport and Moriches.

The report was found to be untrue, but not until the Merritt & Chapman Wrecking company, to whom it was addressed, had started a wrecking tug for the spot and asked vessels of two lines to aid the supposedly stranded craft.

Fourteenth Term as President

Holyoke, Mass., Oct. 20.—For the fourteenth consecutive time Mrs. Katherine D. Stevenson of Newton was re-elected president of the Massachusetts W. C. T. U. at the annual convention of the society being held in this city.

WILL ADDRESS DIRECTORS OF Y. M. C. A.

At the meeting of the Board of Directors of the Young Men's Christian Association, next Tuesday night, Dr. William G. Anderson of Yale University, will be present and, give an address. He will also speak briefly to the Senior gymnasium class. Dr. Anderson is the son of Col. Edward Anderson of Presidents hill, and has been a resident here. During his college course, he was the leading gymnast in Yale and probably the best in this country. Owing to his excellence in this department he was given a special fellowship by the University which enabled him to go to Germany and study the methods used in their gymnasiums. He has just returned from his term of study and will spend a few days here before going on to New Haven.

SHOWS GRANITE BUSINESS IS A LITTLE DULL

Returns from the Quincy Adams and West Quincy stations for the month of September show that during this month the total shipment of rough and finished granite amounted to 15,865,175 pounds. This was considerably less than the previous month and shows in a way that the granite business is a little quiet.

Of the total amount shipped 9,560,327 pounds was forwarded from West Quincy and 6,304,848 pounds from Quincy Adams. Had it been possible to compete with granite centres where there are facilities for shipping by water Quincy could have no doubt shipped many thousand pounds of grout.

EXCITING BOWLING.

Great excitement prevailed at the Granite street alleys last evening, when the Machinists, both floor and gallery, of the Fore River bowling league, clashed together. It was a hard fought contest throughout and the gallery men were successful by a score of 1192 to 1074.

The highest single string was made by Hess, who attained 96 marks. The highest total for three strings was made by Hess, also who totalled 254. He was the conspicious star of the bowling match. The summary:

CHESTNUT TREE BLIGHT

Must Be Checked by Process of Isolation and Elimination

Albany, Oct. 20.—The only means of stopping the chestnut tree blight in the New England and central states, and saving the more valuable chestnut lands of the south, is by the process of isolation and elimination.

This is the declaration of Dr. Huven Metcalf, pathologist of the United States department of agriculture, who attended a meeting in this city of officials representing the federal and several state governments.

Alleged Perjurer Held

Boston, Oct. 20.—After a journey across the country from Seattle, Sahac Santikian was taken to the United States district court and held in $2500 on an indictment alleging perjury. The indictment charges violation of the immigration laws.

Admits Theft From Mails

Boston, Oct. 20.—Clarence A. Hayford of Brockton was held in $500 for the federal grand jury on the charge of of theft of packages from the mails. He confessed that he had been taking packages from the mails for a year.

PEKIN CALLS IT A "SKIRMISH"

But Fighting at Hankow Was Undoubtedly Stiff

THE OUTCOME IS UNCERTAIN

Casualties on Both sides Reported to Be Large—Refugees Tell of Slaughter of Manchus by Rebels In Capture of Wu-Chang, Neither Age Nor Sex Being Recognized—Prince Regent Gives Yuan Shi-Kai Free Hand In Yang-tse-Kiang Region

London, Oct. 20.—It is not clear just what has happened at Hankow. There is no doubt that there was some stiff fighting there, but with whom the advantage rests is not to be determined on the face of the dispatches.

It is significant that Pekin is seeking to minimize the affair, describing it as a "preliminary skirmish." The would indicate that the government finds no reason to congratulate itself on the outcome. The government troops hold the trenches at Hankow, as well as the station, where reinforcements are hourly arriving. The rebels have fallen back on Wu-Chang, which, it is said, they have succeeded in strongly fortifying in the past few days.

The casualties on both sides in the engagement are reported to be large, for the fighting at times was at the bayonet point. During the battle between the land forces the Chinese warships shelled the rebels' position, but dispatches from Hankow indicate that the return fire from the forts was much more effective and that at least two of the imperial gunboats were badly damaged.

Refugees from Wu-Chang tell of the slaughter of the Manchus at the fall of that city. It appears that neither age nor sex was regarded. It is doubtful, the refugees say, whether a single representative of the Manchu race was left alive there. Eight hundred Manchus were massacred. To make sure the identity of their victims the rebels took advantage of the slight difference in the Chinese and Manchu pronunciations. When a suspect was taken he was ordered to court and the crucial test was his pronunciation of the numeral six, which in Chinese is "liushilu." Similar slaughter of the Manchus followed in Hankow and Han-Yang when those cities fell.

The revolutionary leader has taken notice of this and asked his followers to be merciful to their enemies not in uniform.

American warships have been ordered to Nanking, Shanghai and Tien-Tsin. The Abarenda, which is proceeding to Tien-Tsin, is carrying a detachment to reinforce the American legation guard at Pekin.

The capital is strongly guarded and there seems to be littlte danger of disorders there. The prince regent has yielded to the demands of Yuan Shi-Kai, and the latter is supreme in the Yang-tse-Kiang valley, and will raise his own division of troops, numbering 10,000 to control the situation in the provinces of Hu-Peh and Hunan. In addition the new viceroy has been permitted to cash a personal grant of $2,000,000.

Yuan Shi-Kai is directed to inflict rigorous punishment upon the rebel ringleaders and to appeal to "the misguided and coerced rebels" to renew their allegiance to the state. Yuan Shi-Kai is expected to start today for Hankow to assume the viceroyalty of the district formerly known as Hu-Kuang province, but now divided into the provinces of Hu-Peh and Hunan.

HEN WITH HUMAN FACE

Has Teeth, Chews Food, and Refuses to Mingle With Other Fowl

New York, Oct. 20.—Isaac Schantz of Bayonne, N. J., has a curiosity in a young Plymouth Rock hen which has a face resembling that of a human being. The hen was purchased by him for 39 cents. It has several teeth and chews its food, which is principally chopped meat.

The hen has nails on its feet like those of a human, and it refuses to mingle with Schantz's other chickens.

The hen was hatched last spring, but its owner does not know where, as the man from whom he purchased it bought it along with several other ordinary fowl.

SPORTING "DOPE"

By B. A.

Don't Knock, Just Boost.—B. A.

Says the morning Herald. "The Quincy High game on Tuesday cost the High School of Commerce dearly. Capt. Ralph Countie, Carolan and Farrell have bad ankles, and Daily and Kennedy are suffering with wrenched knees."

Evidently the Boston boys found the local lads a mighty tough proposition, yet they were game to the core, and at the conclusion of the contest, no one would think that any injuries had been sustained. Still its all football, and is an essential part of the game.

"Bob" Gerstel, the clever 135 pound boxer of this city, is carded to compete in that class at the boxing exhibition to be given Monday evening at Cambridge under the auspices of the Cambridge Athletic Club.

A meeting of the Quincy A. A. was held in the club rooms on Temple street, and it was decided to bill another list of boxing bouts for next month.

At Colonial Park, Chelsea, tomorrow, the Quincy A. A. plays its second game of the season with Chelsea Y. M. C. A. The game is scheduled to take place at 3 o'clock and the local players expect to return home in triumph.

The Boston Post, this morning, has the following to say about two players of the local High school eleven: "Chapman, the speedy Quincy High School end, is one of the best in the school ranks this year, while Captain Johnson of the same team rates high among the schoolboy tackles. The latter is heavy, but fast, and is good at carrying the ball."

Yes,—and we trust that this will be borne in mind when the selections of all star interscholastic teams are being made at the close of the school football season. The sporting writers of the Boston papers rarely if ever, visit Quincy to witness the local boys in action, and this is one of the principal reasons why the all star selection is invariably made from the Boston High Schools. Last year the work of "Bill" Manning, in the Dorchester High game, at Dorchester, caused him to be given place, and had the same critic kept his eyes on Hill, throughout the season, he would have readily become aware of his ability as a football player.

We sincerely hope that both Chapman and Johnson will be watched very closely during the remainder of the season and then we will be inspired with a confidence that at least one of them will be considered among the number of All Star High School players.

It is hoped that Carl Smith, a member of the Quincy High football team, will be able to play in the coming contest. He has been laid up with a sprained ankle and has been unable to play in the past two games.

The Manet ball players and their admirers will cavort about in Music Hall this evening. No bulletins will be required.

It will be a game for blood tomorrow afternoon when the McGregors and the Trimos, two of the fastest soccer football teams in the country, line up at 3.30 on the Water street grounds. It will be remembered that the teams played a 0 to 0 tie game a short while ago, and the local team is especially desirous of turning the tables.

The last game was played in Roxbury and a large body of rooters will accompany the visitors tomorrow. It surely will be a game well worth attesding and the local team's interests will be guarded by the following players, viz.—

Malcolm, Wilson, Craig, Cummings Roberson, Meldrum, Simpson, McKendrick, R. McDonald, Haldane and Melrose.

LAWSON NOT GUILTY

Was Accused of Conducting a Lottery at Marshfield Fair

Plymouth, Mass., Oct. 20.—Following a motion by counsel for Thomas W. Lawson, Judge Quinn instructed the jury to return a verdict of not guilty against the financier on the charge of having conducted a lottery at the Marshfield fair.

This reverses the decision of the lower court. Immediately afterward Lawson was asked: "How about next year?"

"Take it from me," said Lawson, "next year I am going to give two of the finest horses on my estate and the rigs to go with them to the lucky ticket holder. Nobody got the worst of it but our poor county, which had to stand the expense of the experiment."

Before the case was dismissed argument was made by both sides, during which the jury was instructed to leave the courtroom.

NO HARMONY IN ILLINOIS

Cullom Will Not Enter Into Bitter Fight to Retain Senatorship

Springfield, Ills., Oct. 20.—Convinced of the hopelessness of the task of bringing any harmony out of the present Republican situation in Illinois, United States Senator Cullom has started for Washington. Whether he will be a candidate for re-election he will not decide until he has discussed the matter with his intimate friends at the national capital.

Mr. Cullom says that he has no desire to enter into a bitter contest to retain the toga. If, however, the people of Illinois want him to remain he will stay. The senator does not consider it a sacrifice to step aside at this time if in so doing he would contribute in any way to a harmonious solution of the present tangle.

Stork Visits Marjorie Gould

New York, Oct. 20.—Mr. and Mrs. George J. Gould are rejoicing over the fact that they are grandparents. The stork visited Mrs. Anthony J. Drexel, Jr., formerly Miss Marjorie Gould. The baby will be christened Edith Kingdon Drexel.

Boy Electrocuted

Tilton, N. H., Oct. 20.—Climbing an electric light pole here last night Forest Thompson, aged 14, grasped a chain and was electrocuted. The chain had become short circuited.

CITY OF QUINCY

IN COUNCIL.
Oct. 16, 1911.

ORDERED:

That public convenience and necessity require that Hancock street be widened, in accordance with the supplementary plan accompanying this order, under the provisions of the act authorizing the assessment of betterments, and it is further ordered that a public hearing be given by the City Council to all parties interested on Monday evening, November 6, 1911 at 8 o'clock in the Council Chamber, City Hall, and the Clerk of the Council is hereby directed to give notice of this hearing to all parties interested by publishing a copy of this order in the Quincy Daily Ledger, Quincy Telegram and Quincy Advertiser at least fourteen days before the date of hearing, and that an attested copy of this order be served upon the owner or owners of land abutting upon said street, by a constable authorized to serve civil process by delivering an attested copy thereof in hand to said owner or owners or by leaving an attested copy thereof at the last and usual place of abode of said owner or owners.

Adopted Oct. 16, 1911.

JOHN J. McDEVITT RECEIVES OVATION AT MANET SOCIAL

Dance Enjoyed By Many, Enlivened By Remarks of Ex-Councilman

Event Eclipsed Any Held In Previous Years

Favored with weather that was just the sort desired by the lovers of the fantastic art, the members of the Manet Social club, one of the foremost bodies of young men in local circles, ushered in their fourth annual dancing assembly in Music Hall last evening with an attendance of fully 500 people. It was the biggest event ever undertaken by the prominent South Quincy organization and the observance referred to, greatly eclipsed any of the dances held in the three previous years.

Dancers were present from Boston and surrounding towns as well as from Quincy and the leading organizations in East Boston, South Boston, Roxbury, Charlestown, Jamaica Plain, Weymouth and Dorchester, were represented in large numbers. The prominent public officials who had been invited for the occasion included Mayor William T. Shea, Congressman James M. Curley, members of the local city council, and others well known in political life.

The affair started with a concert at 8 o'clock, which lasted till 10, followed by dancing, which was enjoyed till 2 o'clock this morning, with a short intermission at midnight, at which time refreshments were served. Many novel features were introduced and the one which elicited the greatest enthusiasm was the suffragette whirl, in which the ladies held the conspicuous positions and took the part of the men in handling the dance. It worked out finely and all the ladies adapted themselves to the task with ease and pleasure.

About ten o'clock, ex-councilman John J. McDevitt entered the hall in company with Councilman Harry J. Boyd. Both men had just come from a rally which was being held in the interests of Mr. McDevitt, a candidate for the House of Representatives from the sixth Norfolk district. They were enthusiastically greeted as they made their advent and although it had not been anticipated, the continual requests of the many present demanded that the Ward Four politician say a few words. Both men were escorted to the platform by Joseph Driscoll, chief of aids, and as they ascended the platform steps they were accorded great applause.

Councilman Boyd was the first speaker and made his remarks very brief. In his introductory remarks, he said in part "I fully realize that these who are congregated here this evening have come into this hall with the intention of enjoying themselves to their hearts' content and not to be bored by any speeches. But the demand among a number here present this evening, that the candidate for the House from the sixth Norfolk says a few words has been so great that we have felt constrained to respond. It ill becomes me to enter into a pompous introduction in order to introduce the speaker to you, for he is well known to you all and all I can add is that it gives me the greatest of pleasure to present to you at this moment the next representative from the sixth Norfolk, Mr. John J. McDevitt."

APPRECIATIVE AUDIENCE

At Recital Given By Mrs. Mary Chandler West

THE PATRONESSES

A highly appreciative audience was present at Alpha hall, Friday evening, at the pianoforte recital given by Mrs. Mary Chandler West, the well known teacher of piano and harmony. At this recital she was assisted by Miss Ruth L. Hardy, soprano, Carl Behr, 'cellist and William Weston, pianist. The program comprised selections from a wide range of composers, and the brilliant manner in which Mrs. West executed her numbers called forth well deserved applause.

The program opened with a grand duo cello and piano by Mr. Behr and Mrs. West, while it gave her hearers an idea of her skill as a player, it was not until the third number that the audience was able to fully appreciate her electric touch and breadth of reading, which gave her playing an exquisite pleasure. In this number she played a group of four numbers, "Myosotis Op. 31," "Valse A Major," "Silhouett No. 3, Op. 53," and "Ballade, G minor, Op. 23." The brilliant manner in which she performed these numbers showed her abilities as a virtuoso.

Miss Hardy sang a pleasing group of songs for the second number which included "Tender Ties," "Hour of Dreaming," "Were My Song" and "A Rose Fable." Miss Hardy has a sweet sympathetic voice and her numbers were most enjoyable.

Mr. Behr, with Mr. Weston at the piano gave two numbers "Romanza" and "Pavave." These numbers were happy selections as they gave Mr. Behr an opportunity to show what exquisite music is possible with the 'cello in the hands of such an artist as he.

The last number on the program was a concerto for the piano in G minor by Mrs. West with Mr. Weston at the second piano. They gave two numbers "Andante" and "Vivace."

The patronesses were:—

Mrs. A. D. Albee, Mrs. Charles Alden, Mrs. William R. Atwood, Mrs. Charles Bickford, Mrs. Frederick H. Bishop, Mrs. Elisha B. Bird, Mrs. Charles T. Baker, Mrs. D. W. Bond, Mrs. William Burrill, Mrs. W. M. Chase, Mrs. Marcus Chase, Mrs. William H. Doble, Mrs. Thomas Fenno, Mrs. James B. Geddes, Mrs. Charles E. Goodspeed, Mrs. Herbert J. Gurney, Mrs. C. A. Jameson, Mrs. Thomas Lacey, Mrs. Frank Larkin, Mrs. Florence Loring, Mrs. Frank J. Moore, Mrs. Alfred R. Moulton, Mrs. Nathan G. Nickerson, Mrs. Frank C. Page, Mrs. Walter S. Pinkham, Mrs. Charles A. Pinkham, Mrs. Wellington Record, Mrs. Alfred H. Richards, Mrs. George G. Saville, Mrs. Eben W. Sheppard, Mrs. Chandler W. Smith, Mrs. G. A. Smith, Mrs. Frank H. Sprague, Mrs. H. A. Stevens, Mrs. Levi H. Turner, Mrs. Henry W. Tirrell, Mrs. M. G. Whelan.

RETURN FROM HONEYMOON.

Mr. and Mrs. D. T. Donovan, the couple who were married at St. John's Rectory last Sunday, have returned home from their honeymoon, spent in touring through Washington, Philadelphia and New York. Tomorrow they will go to Dedham, to the home of Mrs. John T. Lynch, and will be prepared to greet their many friends after the 25th of the month. Mr. Donovan is a member of the firm of the Coughlan and Donovan Grocery Company.

FIRST CHURCH.

Rev. Adelbert L. Hudson will occupy the pulpit of First church tomorrow morning. Mr. Hudson preached here in September. He is a brilliant and eloquent preacher and a cordial invitation is extended the people of the city to attend this service and hear this brilliant expounder of Unitarian belief. Rev. Peter H. Goldsmith of Yonkers, N. Y., a noted Unitarian divine, will occupy the pulpit next Sunday, Oct. 29.

ORDER FOR MUNICIPAL ELECTION

There will be no special session of the City Council next Monday evening. It is possible however that a special will have to be held the following Monday, Oct. 31, as it will be necessary to pass an order for the municipal election before the regular meeting Nov. 6. It will also be necessary for the Mayor to appoint election officers as some of those appointed in September have declined to serve, which leaves some vacancies which will have to be filled.

RETIRING EMPLOYEES.

The County Commissioners at their meeting Friday took the initiative on the question of retiring employees of the county and this question of acceptance will appear on the ballot for the State election.

NOMINATION PAPERS.

The time for filing nomination papers for candidates to be voted for at the State election has passed. As far as known the only paper filed in this district was that of Jeremiah W. Donovan as socialist candidate for representative from the sixth district.

PUBLIC MEETING.

The Quincy Women's club is to have a public meeting at the club house on Tuesday afternoon at three o'clock. Although it is one of the regular meetings on the year's program for club members the meeting will be an open one and every one interested in the club and its social work, man or woman, will be welcome to attend. The afternoon's program will be in charge of the Philanthropy committee, Mrs. Chandler W. Smith chairman. Judge Albert E. Avery of the District Court will speak on "Probation and its Benefits" and Dr. Jeffrey R. Brackett of Boston on, "Our Duty Concerning Offenders." There should be a large attendance to greet these speakers.

SPECIAL SWEDISH ADDRESS.

Rev. G. W. Palmgren will deliver a series of Sunday evening sermons in the Swedish Congregational church, Garfield street, on the fundamental truths of the Christian religion, which undoubtedly will prove to be very popular. The dates and topics are as follows:

Oct. 22—"Is there a God?"
Oct. 29—"Is there a divine revelation?"
Nov. 5—"Is sin a fact?"
Nov. 12—"Is salvation possible?"
Nov. 19—"Is there any hereafter?"

All Scandinavians are cordially invited to hear the treatment of these important subjects. Special singing will be a feature. The services open at 7 o'clock.

CONFER WITH OFFICIALS.

The special committee of the City Council appointed on a resolution to look into street car service met Friday evening and had a conference with the street railway officials.

You need the Ledger every day.

PERMIT TO ERECT GARAGE

On Site Where Board of Trade Refused To Allow Stable

WAS ISSUED TODAY

A permit was issued this morning by Inspector of Buildings Warren S. Parker to Mable McQuade for a concrete garage to be erected on Weston avenue and Woodbine street, Wollaston, near the railroad track. The garage as stated above is to be of concrete 87x109 feet. This is the same site where the Board of Health refused a license to the Wollaston coal company to erect a stable. It is easy to see how the residents of that section will be somewhat "stirred up" when they learn that a garage is to be erected there. It is reported that it is the intention to have coal pockets on the property, but no application has been made for a permit for such pockets.

DEPARTURE RECALLS OLD CRIME

Residents of West Quincy will recall the case of Samuel Samuelson who was indicted for manslaughter in April 1906, for causing the death of a companion in Samuelson's hut in the quarries. At that time Samuelson received a sentence from five to seven years. He was released from jail last February and last week took his departure for Sweden, where he will pass his remaining days.

The murder was one that startled the citizens of Quincy. It was a case where Samuelson was alleged to have struck his partner down with a large rock, after which he attempted to conceal his crime by setting fire to the body. The fire was discovered in time however to prevent it from being consumed. Samuelson who lived the life of a hermit was arrested and sentenced as noted above.

—The poor salaries paid to clergymen, especially in the country churches, have deterred many from entering the ministry, and influenced many others to leave it for some more lucrative employment. In view of this fact, it is interesting to note that the Presbyterian Synod of the Maritime Provinces of Canada, in session recently at Charlottetown, P. E. I. voted to fix the minimum salary for ministers at $900. This applies to country as well as city churches, and it seems to signalize an intent, on the part of one denomination, to rid itself of a reproach which has heretofore applied to all. There is many a hard-working clergyman in the United States who would be glad to receive the half of $900 a year in real money. —Milford Gazette.

INQUEST HELD THIS MORNING

An inquest was held before Judge Avery this morning on the death of Nicholas Cassette of Weymouth, who it is alleged died at East Weymouth, Oct. 3, as a result of a row with his brother Peter. The row was the result of a dispute and after a struggle it is alleged that Peter struck his brother and then forced his knees into his stomach.

TAG DAY.

Owing to the proceeds of Tag day for the benefit of the Quincy Day Nursery being in such small amounts, necessitating much time in counting, also as all the returns from the various sections of the city are not all in the treasurer Mrs. Clarence Burgin will not be able to give out a financial statement until the first of the week. It will probably appear in Monday's Ledger.

EXAMINE WOODWARD FUND.

The special committee of the City Council appointed under the ordinance to examine the Woodward Fund and Property will meet next week. A meeting of the special committee to consider what changes if any are necessary in the City Charter will probably be held next week.

NORFOLK HUNT NEXT WEEK.

The Norfolk Hunt drag hounds, Henry G. Vaughan, master, will meet Oct. 21, Deanville, 3.30 P. M.; Oct. 24, Riverside Farm, South Sherborn, 4 P. M.; Oct. 26, the Kennels, Medfield, 7.15 A. M. Oct. 28, Bullard's Corner, Holliston, 3.30 P. M., with dinner at the Kennels at 7.15 P. M., followed by dancing; Oct. 31, Bertram Smith's farm, Medfield 4. P. M.

☞Collectors start out next week on the annual Collection tour for the Hospital and the trustees hope every one will feel called upon to contribute generously as $5000 is needed for the work this year.

EVERYTHING IN READINESS FOR GRAND FAIR

Week's Entertainment To Start On Monday Night With [Parade.]

Many attractive features are booked for the Grand Fair to be held the week of October 23rd at Faxon hall in aid of Camp 95, Sons of Veterans. Of principal interest is the fact that an interesting entertainment for the old as well as the young have been considered and a jolly good time may be expected by all who will attend at any time during the week.

The novelties include a special engagement of Indian Chief "Big Thunder" with his squaw and papoose. Fortune telling and basket weaving will be in order.

The week's entertainment will start on Monday night with a grand street parade.

HUSTLER'S CONTEST.

Every day brings forth something new in the S. & H. Green Stamp Hustler's Contest. Today the votes have been coming in very fast. A surprise will be in store for the contestants, when the list is published next Tuesday. Boys and girls the time is getting short. Hustle is the watchword now. Do not forget the coupon published in the Ledger on Page 2 for they count.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Did any one say anything about that clearing up shower?

Some people are so unlucky they would be run over by a pushcart instead of an automobile.

Now that his foes have been ousted, Dr. Wiley's job, like the products he guards, is guaranteed.

The perfect wife, as we understand it, is the one who assures her husband that tobacco smoke improves lace curtains.

If China becomes a republic, what a glorious number of post offices there will be to distribute in a land of 400,000,000 people.

The McNamara trial will cost $500,000 and there are clairvoyants who would tell you whether they are guilty or not for $5.

The liquor law was enforced at Atlantic City Sunday, and the town was said to be almost as dry as the Atlantic City girl's bathing suit.

Now that reciprocity has been disposed of, the country can once more revert to the consideration of the tariff, the whole tariff and nothing but the tariff.

"A Chicago architect is said to have arrived at the conclusion after careful study of the subject, that the capitol at Washington cannot last more than 500 years." Colonel Bryan would better get a sprint on.

The Hall of Fame directors had been thinking of putting John Marshall Harlan in a vacant niche, but now that John Franklin Baker has put a home run over the right field wall, he is clearly entitled to the place.

"Cool, clear and fair, October days in robes of purple splendor dresst slip slowly down the sun-kissed way that leads them out with the west." We have had a few good days to remind us of these words. Let us be grateful and remember the sun is always shining behind the clouds.

OUR HOSPITAL.

Next week once again our people will be asked to contribute to our "House of Mercy" on the hill. One week each year has become known as Hospital Week and during that time a house to house canvass is made by official collectors for the purpose of raising funds for carrying on the work of the Hospital. $5,000 is urgently needed to carry on the work this year and the Trustees ask that all be generous for there is no cause in our city more helpful or worthy of support.

Local physicians give their valuable time and service all through the year but it is only once that the public is asked to come forward and do its share. So let us all bear this in mind and when the collector calls with an envelope, fill it with just as much ready cash as you can spare. A generous contribution means added comfort and help for the sick.

Emery L. Crane is editor this year of the paper "Our Hospital" which is in the hands of the printer and will be ready for distribution the first of the week. It contains pictures of the group of Hospital buildings, also of the new home being built for the nurses by the generosity of Henry M. Faxon. It is a paper to be read and looked over with interest and pride.

One never knows when illness and misfortune may overtake them and it is well to have a warm and generous heart with a thought for others at all times so give of your mite in Hospital Week and have the comfortable feeling that YOU have done what you could to make life more pleasant for some one in need of the help of Our Hospital.

WHO'S WHO IN QUINCY--WHY!

Probably no name is better known in Quincy today than that of Kincaide. This is due wholly to the tireless energy of Col. Henry L. Kincaide who has built from a small beginning one of the largest suburban retail furniture businesses in New England, doing a business not alone with the citizens of Quincy but with residents throughout the entire south eastern section of the State. It has often been said that Quincy is a poor place in which to do a retail business, but Col. Kincaide has dispelled that idea and has shown that a successful retail business can be started in the smallest way and built to large proportions within the City limits.

Col. Kincaide was born in Braintree Feb. 14, 1868. His family moved to Quincy in his youth and he received his early education in the Quincy public schools. Leaving the Quincy High school he entered Boston Commercial school for a business training. At an early age he entered the furniture business of Webster Cook & Co., of Boston with which firm he served 9 years, learning the business in a thorough manner, being placed in full charge of the firm's financial affairs within a few years of entering their employment. In the fall of 1883 he opened a small store in the Tirrell building adjoining the premises now occupied by T. L. Williams the jeweler. Four years later he contracted for the present building the firm now occupies and amazed Quincy people by opening this great store with elevators and all modern appliances. This business has steadily grown, the popular annex was opened some years ago and later a storage warehouse was built. Recently an insurance department has been added to the business which is rapidly growing. In June 1899 Col. Kincaide married Grace W. Pettengill only daughter of Charles W. Pettengill the jeweler. He resides in an attractive home on Whitney Road with his wife and two children.

Col. Kincaide's military career has been a most successful one. Entering the State militia as a private soldier he rose through various grades to that of assistant Inspector General, being recommended to Governor Douglas for the position of Inspector General by General Nelson A. Miles with whom he has served at the time of General Miles' retirement. During the Spanish American war he was Captain of Co. K. 5th Mass. Infantry U. S. V. and was credited by war dep't. officials as having one of the best drilled companies that left the State for the front. He is a director of the National Granite Bank, ex-president of the Home Furnishers' Association of Massachusetts. Is a 32d degree Mason, Odd Fellow, Elk, member of Quincy Yacht Club, Board of Trade, Y. M. C. A., Boston Chamber of Commerce, Athletic and Algonquin Clubs of Boston, Ancient and Honorable Artillery and many other military societies. He has always taken an interest in the development and betterment of Quincy and has on many occasions been suggested for public office.

FINANCIAL NEWS.

(Special.)

A moderate degree of improvement has taken place in the financial markets, which should make further progress if nothing unfavorable intervenes. The most powerful influence upon values at present is the abnormal plethora and ease of money. This is usually a period of approaching stringency owing to crop demands and activity in trade. Quietness in the latter respect causes funds to accumulate, hence our ability to lend many millions abroad, when, under ordinary conditions, we should be considering gold imports instead of gold exports. Such an unusual condition in the money market when banking conditions are generally sound cannot but have a strong supporting influence upon security values.

To the ordinary buyer stocks look cheap when the returns on high grade securities are compared with current rates for money; and with the partial revival of confidence that has already taken place there has been some improvement in the investment market, showing itself particularly in the greater activity of bonds. There are indications that the bond market is receiving stronger support from banking interests who wish to have the market in better condition for impending bond issues.

There is one satisfactory feature which should not be overlooked, and that is the more reasonable attitude of our industrial leaders toward the mandate of the Supreme Court regarding monopolistic combinations. These gentlemen are now taking a calmer view of the situation. They recognize that obedience to the law is imperative. They recognize also that real property is not going to be destroyed. Later on they will learn that the restoration of the competitive basis and the check to monopolistic power which has recently been applied will place them in a much better attitude toward the public and save them from many of the legislative attacks which have been so disturbing in the past. In some cases abnormal profits may be curtailed, a matter which will be of benefit to the consumer. But the consequent loss in dividends will be no greater than might be anticipated at any time from trade reactions, and nobody believes otherwise than that these great organizations will be abundantly capable of securing their share of the country's business upon a reasonably profitable basis. Our monopolistic industries have always been particularly exposed to popular hatred, and the removal of this drawback will eventually prove beneficial and aid the stability of such investments.

In the foreign situation there has been further improvement. The Moroccan case is almost forgotten. The Italian-Turkish war has thus far proved much less serious than expected, and the strain so conspicuous a month ago in Berlin, Paris and London has distinctly abated, largely due to the abundant financial assistance rendered by New York. What the effect of the Chinese revolution will be on cotton depends upon its duration. If prolonged, it will certainly be injurious. Our exports of cotton goods have already been seriously affected.

It is not to be assumed that the business outlook is roseate in all respects. There are still important drawbacks to be considered. The political situation is not entirely satisfactory and the country must be prepared to meet some rather bitter and aggressive campaigning on the tariff and anti-trust questions. While the latter has been greatly clarified by the Standard Oil and Tobacco cases, the feeling in the West against corporations, both railroad and industrial, is still running very high, and will express itself in more or less denunciation and legislative attack, particularly within State limits. The feeling on the tariff is equally high. There is nothing new, however, in this radical sentiment. It has already been largely discounted, and Mr. Taft's speeches in the West must have had some important effect in toning down extreme views.

The technical situation of the market is satisfactory. Unfavorable elements have been largely discounted. There is a better sentiment in financial circles. Weak spots have been eliminated by past liquidation and the immediate outlook is certainly more encouraging.—Henry Clews, Banker, New York.

TROLLEY FREIGHT A SUCCESS.

Since the extension of the Electric Express and Freight service of the Bay State St. Ry. Co., between Brockton and Boston through Holbrook, Avon, the Braintrees, Quincy and Neponset Sept. 11, it has more than ever demonstrated its value to shippers.

The fact that it is the most prompt, the most frequent, the safest and generally the most efficient way to ship goods between the many points which it serves is proven beyond doubt by the rapid increase in business. The service between Boston and the various points has filled a great want and is being used more and more every day as shippers try it out and find that it is for their best interest to make use of it.

This increase has made it necessary to put on more teams and trucks and generally add to the facilities for the speedy and effective handling of the business, which will continue as occasion demands.

A New Habitat—

To our patrons, friends and the public we announce our removal to more spacious quarters in the new Lawrence Building, 149 Tremont Street, at West.

In the old offices with which Bostonians are familiar we have rounded out a generation of business in your midst, and it is a matter of personal pride with us that the name of the John W. Sanborn Company is everywhere associated with business probity and progress.

We leave with our memories the sentiments and regrets occasioned by this exodus and turn our eyes forward to our new task in the broader sphere of greater opportunity.

With a view to Service in all that it implies we have selected the location most convenient for our patrons and have thoroughly equipped our new offices with every desideratum for comfort and their aid. There will be no difference in the conduct of our business—no change in our prices—though the personnel of our force will be increased.

We are not forgetful that just one thing has made possible the remarkable growth of our business, and that is the enthusiasm of our patrons. Persons whose eyes we have examined have urged their friends to consult us. These in turn have advised others, until today it is almost necessary to make an appointment for an examination a day or two in advance, and we look forward to still greater development from the consciousness of merited approval.

Therefore, we formally announce our removal from 3 Winter Street and the opening on Thursday, the twenty-sixth day of October, of the new home of Zoroid Lenses, and, in anticipation of your call, remain,

Respectfully yours,
BRIGGS S. PALMER, Pres't.

Send all Ballots to the L. H. Co. Series D will appear next week. Don't roll or fold ballots. Keep them flat.
5 VOTES

RULES GOVERNING CONTEST:
Boys and Girls, have you any idea how popular you are? Here is a chance for you to find out; and also secure one of the Six (6) GOLD WATCHES, to be distributed November 4th, 1911 among the Most Popular Boys and Girls under 17 years of age.
HOW TO OBTAIN YOUR VOTES:—For the next sixty days every L. H. Green Trading Stamp which you and your parents and friends get, should be pasted in the L. H. Stamp Book as usual. You, and your friends who vote for you, will show these stamps to the attendant in the L. H. Premium Parlor in the Quincy Department Store. The attendant will count and mark them "VOTED"; register the number of votes (equal to the number of Stamps shown) opposite the name voted for. The Stamps will then be returned to the holder.
The Quincy Daily Ledger will publish a Ballot which, when presented at our Premium Parlor, will entitle the Contestant to five (5) votes.
Various merchants will also publish coupons, each entitling the holder to five (5) votes in the same way.
It is important that you not only urge your friends to get the L. H. Stamps whenever they make purchases, but also vote them for you. Get all you can. Vote them for yourself or for someone else in whom you are interested.
Profit by your mother's example in Thrift and Economy by collecting L. H. Green Trading Stamps, which bring you so Generous a reward in Beautiful Premiums.
You will materially swell the number of Stamps you get, and the consequent votes you obtain, if you will bring us your HAMILTON BONDS and COUPONS, Tobacco Tags, Soap Wrappers, Labels and Trade-Marks. We will give you L. H. Green Trading Stamps for them.
VOTING THE STAMPS DOES NOT IN ANY WAY INTERFERE WITH THEIR BEING REDEEMED FOR PREMIUMS IN THE USUAL WAY.

Battleship New Hampshire Attains Speed Better Than 18½ Knots

Rockland, Me., Oct. 21.—When the battleship New Hampshire arrived here from Hampton Roads it was announced that yesterday during her run she averaged for four hours better than 18½ knots.

This is half a knot better than was attained in her official trials when she was new, and was made in the face of baffling seas and with a draft of 26 feet 10 inches, seven inches more than required in her trials. On a twenty-hour-run at three-quarters speed the New Hampshire averaged seventeen knots.

PURE MILK.

Editor Quincy Ledger:

May we correct a wrong impression which is being assiduously circulated in regard to the Ellis Clean Milk Bill.

Our bill does not call for "the gentleman farmer standard." It does not call for certified milk. It does not require the milking of cows by electricity. It does not require model barns or fancy frills of any kind. We are simply asking for ordinary cleanliness.

It has been demonstrated that clean milk of a very low bacterial count can be produced in ordinary old fashioned barns in which no expensive changes have been made. It requires only clean habits and proper care.

In other words, we are simply asking that the State Board of Health be given legal authority so that it can by instructive inspection raise the standard of cleanliness of 35 per cent of the producers of Massachusetts and of the out-of-state dairies to the same standard which is now maintained by 65 per cent of the milk producers of Massachusetts whose dairies have already been approved by the State Board of Health.

Isn't this a perfectly reasonable request for the three million or more consumers of the State to make? And will it not be of distinct advatnage to the Massachusetts producers to be protected from the unfair competition of uninspected out-of-state dairies?

The Ellis Bill will not place a burden upon the producers of Massachusetts. It will however, place their business on a sound basis and will increase their profits. More important still it will save many lives and medical and funeral expenses. It is most inhuman to make such a measure the football of politics and we call upon all public spirited citizens to do everything in their power to secure its enactment.

Laughlin Says Our Currency System Lacks Elasticity

Chicago, Oct. 21.—Professor J. L. Laughlin of the University of Chicago, chairman of the executive committee of the National Citizens' league, organized to promote sound banking laws, expressed himself in favor of the Aldrich central reserve system when he appeared before the sub-committee of the national monetary commission here.

"Business men are more interested in sound banking laws than in any other reform," said Laughlin. "In a panic the first man hit is the business man, whose loans are cut off when he most needs to borrow. The essential defect of our currency system is the rigidity of credit. The requirement for a lawful reserve limit in banks is perhaps the chief cause of the inelasticity of currency and more than anything else causes panics."

Q.—What is the meaning of Nahum ii, 3, 4, particularly the expression "Day of His Preparation?"

Answer.—Many of the prophecies of the Bible relate to the last times or the last days, not of the planet on which we dwell, for "the earth abideth forever" (Ecclesiastes i, 4), but rather of this present evil world or dispensation, when a new Age or order of things would be ushered in. Thus the "Day of His Preparation" would be the day or period of time when the Lord God would prepare or make ready the elements and conditions for the new dispensation, sometimes alluded to as "The Golden Age of Prophecy." As a matter of fact, are we not living in a period of transition? Marvelous changes are being wrought out, old things are passing away and new conditions are being developed. In connection with this prophecy of Nahum we would direct attention to the statement of the Prophet Daniel (xii, 4) that "many shall run to and fro and Knowledge shall be increased," in the time of the end. The people are running to and for all over the earth today by means of these very "chariots with flaming torches" — the automobiles, trolley-cars, and railway trains, which "rage in the streets and jostle one against another in the broad ways." The Bible prophecies, more than seventy in number, relating to this "Day of Preparation," clearly indicate that we are on the eve of a glorious New Era in which the Divine blessings will be showered forth upon all the nations of the earth.

—When it comes to working out the detail of courses that are to be taught in an industrial school that does not center its efforts on a single industry, as a textile school, the limitations of such an institution, become conspicuous. Just at present Brockton is struggling with the subject. It does not know whether its school should be a shoe factory or a lot of other things.—Fall River Herald.

Albee; vice president—Mrs. George Crothers; second vice president—Mrs. Smith B. Harrington; third vice president—Mrs. George E. Thomas; secretary—Mrs. Thomas Armstrong; treasurer—Mrs. Harvey D. Black.

Mrs. Horatio Cate of Canton is to read a paper on "Ruth" at the meeting of the Y. P. R. U. in First Church chapel Sunday evening.

According to the Board of Health if no appropriation is made by the City Council for garbage the collection of garbage must stop.

By vote of the parish the evening service on Sundays at Christ church will hereafter be held at half past seven instead of seven beginning tomorrow night.

The China committee in aiding the memorial Congregational church fair which will be given later in the season, will present "The District School" in the vestry of the church next Tuesday and Wednesday evenings. The school ma'am, Miss Eleanor Nelson and the pupils under her instruction are all local residents which makes the entertainment the more interesting as well as the fact that the proceeds of the fair by vote go toward the new pipe organ this year.

Next week candidates for honors at the municipal election will be busy circulating nomination papers.

Mrs. William Cleaves of Warren avenue has the sympathy of many friends in the death of her mother, Mrs. W. O. Blake of Lowell who died Tuesday. The bereavement seems doubly hard as it is only this summer that her father died after a long illness.

Junior Alliance of First church is to have a sewing bee in the church parlor on Monday evening.

Women's Guild of Christ church extends a cordial invitation to women of the parish to meet with them on Wednesday afternoon at 2.30 in the parish house, to help in the preparations for the coming fair. Chairmen of the various tables have been meeting at different homes and plans have progressed well.

Eighth grade pupils of the Quincy school are anticipating an afternoon at the Mechanics Fair, Boston, next Friday.

The Junior Auxiliary of Christ church is to give an entertainment Tuesday evening at 7.30 in the parish house.

AWAKENED INTEREST IN MISSIONS.

A decidedly novel method for awakening a deeper interest in the work of domestic and foreign missions has been adopted by the members of All Saints Episcopal Church, Ashmont, under the leadership of their rector, Rev. Simon Blinn Blunt.

Great preparations are going on in that parish for a missionary conference, which will open Sunday morning, Nov. 5, at seven o'clock, and close Friday evening Nov. 10, with a service of thanksgiving.

In addition to the three regular daily services which are always held there will be a brief, informal service every evening at eight o'clock, with an address by Right Rev. Arthur Selden Lloyd, D. D., president of the board of missions, as well as special services for women and children at four o'clock each afternoon, conducted by leading authorities on the missionary work of the church.

In reply to inquiries as to the general scope and plan of the conference, the rector says: "Too little is known about the important subject of church extension, and too few church people are alive to their personal responsibility. The conference is to be simply a campaign of education, and we are planning to make its influence as far-reaching as possible." Weekly meetings in preparation for this great work are being held by the men of the parish, and all the women are busy, and even the children are being pressed into service. A cordial invitation has been extended to the neighboring rectors, who are using every effort to interest their parishioners in this great undertaking.

The central committee of five laymen, state that they are planning to take care of about 750 people every evening of the conference, and express the belief that fully half of this number will be men. This is the first conference of the kind ever held in an Episcopal parish in Boston.—Boston Transcript.

MANET SOCIAL

Mr. McDevitt was hailed with loud cheers and it was some moments before the applause subsided. In opening his remarks Mr. McDevitt paid a tribute to the Manet club for its successful entertainment and he thanked the many present for the cordial invitation that they had extended to him. Concluding he said: "I have received assurances from the most prominent men in my district of their loyal support and from the sentiment that prevails and the interest that has been stimulated in my behalf and the platform, as well, I have drawn up in the welfare of the constituency of the district, I feel confidently certain that I will be adjudged a winner when the ballots are counted on the seventh day of next month." Mr. McDevitt then went on to score the different corporation interests that were retarding the welfare of the republic and he pledged his loyal support to the various measures that were to come before the next legislature, and which affected the interests of the working class. He made his remarks brief, but to the point and thanked the members of the club and others present for the courtesy they had requited him. He was roundly applauded at the conclusion of his remarks and the hand clapping that greeted him did not stop until he had made his exit from the hall.

Carey's full orchestra of ten pieces furnished music for the occasion. The club will hold a dancing party in the same hall the night before Lent and on the evening preceeding Thanksgiving, a banquet will be held in the American House. Thomas H. Sullivan, president of the club, was floor marshal. Arthur Wentworth was floor director. The assistant was Daniel Mahan, while the chief of aids was Joseph Driscoll, who was assisted by the following as aids:

A DENTISTRY DISCOVERY.

The Humanitarian Dental Association has been organized in Boston, by several well known dentists with a view to lending its efforts to secure the elimination of pain during dental operations and bring about more humane methods in dentistry. Sixty-five years ago, pain in surgery yielded to the introduction of other anaesthesia in surgical operations and diseases have given away before the advance of sanitary science. Dentistry alone, in spite of the fact, that more pain is inflicted by dentists than by all other medical specialists combined, has in the face of all scientific research by the dental profession, retained most of its painful annoyance to the patient. The officers of the Association are as follows:—

President,—Herbert R. Moody, S. B., A. M., Ph. D., a professor and member of the executive council at the college of the City of New York and member of the American association for the advancement of science.

First Vice President—Charles S. Bartlett, D. M. D., of Commonwealth avenue.

Second Vice President—Robert J. McMeekin, D. M. D., formerly instructor in Harvard Dental college.

Treasurer—Dr. Thomas M. Dowsley, of Boylston street.

Secretary—William O. Morse.

The office of the Association is at 687 Boylston street, Boston.

Dr. Dowsley, has for many years been interested in the work which this new Dental Association has taken up and in the course of his investigations recently discovered an obtundent, or tooth amaesthetic, which when placed in the cavity of a tooth, temporarily eliminates all sense of feeling so that a sensitive cavity, can be prepared for filling, or a live nerve removed without causing the patient any annoyance. The formula for making this valuable discovery, which will undoubtedly prove one of the greatest additions to dental science, has been turned over to the Association by Dr. Dowsley.

ROOSTER COAL BRIQUETS

THE NEW ANTHRACITE COAL

ROOSTER BRIQUETS are made from the choicest small Scranton Anthracite coal, mined in Pennsylvania, called TWENTIETH CENTURY CHESTNUT size

Just consider for a moment what we offer here in this 20th CENTURY CHESTNUT.

First, 2000 pounds of clean, pure, hard coal without a rock or a piece of slate.

Second, fuel that cannot form into a clinker, by any known method of firing, consequently the linings and grates last indefinitely.

Third, they are made in nut size, being equally convenient for furnace heaters, open grates, as well as stoves; therefore, only one storage bin is necessary.

Fourth, and very IMPORTANT, the quality of this fuel is the SAME EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR, not a good ton today, and nothing like it the next time, in other words, when you once learn how to regulate your drafts you have nothing more to learn about burning BRIQUETS.

Fifth, no more sifting ashes these Briquets burn out clean. They require less wood to kindle.

Be sure to ask for "ROOSTERS" and get the Briquet made from pure Scranton Coal, from the largest Briquet plant in the country. They are better than coal, will last as long and cost less.

SYNOPSIS

Anna Granger, devoted mother of two small children, discovers that her husband is a weak character and that he has lied to her about a woman.

Posing as Miss Dale, she becomes stenographer to Burton Temple, through whose evidence her husband has been imprisoned. She thinks Temple is the guilty man and is acting the spy to clear her husband's name for his sake and that of her children.

CHAPTER IV.

THE OBSTINATE TEMPLE.

"SEE here, Temple," said Craven, coming windily into the library, waving a sheet of foolscap. "Here's a little statement I've just prepared. Listen." Burton Temple's brows went together in never so slight a spasm of weariness, but he said cheerfully enough:

"Fire ahead. I'll listen. Only, you see, you've got up so many 'little statements,' Craven."

"Hang it, man," exclaimed the lawyer. "One would think it was a matter of indifference with you whether you were proved innocent of this crime or not. That's one of the reasons public opinion is so against you. You're so apparently unconcerned about the whole affair. Why, you walk along, your head in the air, your chin out, saying to the world, 'Take a punch at it if you can,' and the next thing you'll know they'll beat you down and out."

In the whole ten years during which Craven had been Temple's friend and lawyer this Granger case had been the first matter over which they had differed. But, then, it was the first time that Temple had been personally attacked. He tried now to put this personal equation before his friend.

"You see, dear Craven," he said in explanation for his own apparent indifference, "I appreciate your statement which you wish to inflict on the long suffering public, but don't you think—don't you think it's just the little fact that your friend happens to be the victim of their suspicion which causes all this worry on your part? For example, presuming you were in my place, would you still endeavor to compromise, to explain?"

"Explain to 'em? I'd sooner see 'em"—

"Precisely," laughed Temple, leaning back in his chair—"precisely. You see, I'm right, old friend, and you're wrong. You admit you wouldn't do it yourself in your own case. Clearly and logically, what I must do is to wait till I get some tangible proof of my innocence. What's the use of trying to vindicate myself if the proof's lacking? This New York public is from Missouri, and I don't say a single word till I can make good. Somewhere among Brady's papers, I'll bet my life, there is a letter or a check strip or something. There always is something, and I'm counting on that young detective, Crane, whom I've got in Brady's office, to get it."

"Sure. That's all very well," agreed Craven. "But suppose Crane doesn't get any such proof, what then? Suppose you never do get proof? I tell you, Temple, your so called friends are beginning to disbelieve in you. The papers are offended because you refuse to talk. Now, be reasonable. Here's this little statement which I've prepared to be sent out over your signature." He opened the copy.

"Fire ahead," said Temple indulgently, bending down to pat Cato.

"'To the public,'" began Craven stoutly.

"Donkeyism No. 1," mentally commented the man opposite to him, slowly lighting a cigar.

"'In view of the widespread feeling against me regarding the Gotham Trust company-Granger case I wish to make a statement of the facts'"—

"Savors of a Sunday school appeal for funds for a pink midsummer picnic—eh, Cato?" interposed Temple, adding mentally, "Donkeyism No. 2."

—"'Cornelius Brady and myself are co-trustees of an estate. Mr. Brady wrongfully made use of part of those trust funds, I by this act becoming equally responsible with him for making up the loss. At the time of the panic Mr. Brady asked the Gotham Trust company to certify a check to the amount of $700,000. This I refused to do, not feeling justified in making the trust company responsible for Brady's check. Thereupon Brady went to Robert Granger, the cashier, and prevailed upon him to certify the check.'"

"Fishy, fishy, fishy!" ejaculated Temple, puffing leisurely at his cigar.

"'Since the trial and conviction of Granger,'" pursued Craven unmovedly "'it has become known that Brady, my co-trustee, used that check to make good his unlawful appropriation of the fund of which he and I are trustees. Naturally it appeared that I profited equally with Brady in the use to which the check was put. It is because of my apparent profit that I am supposed to have given the order to Granger'"—

"Weak—weak as dishwater!" cried Temple, springing up. "Craven, it's no good, I tell you. Caught myself believing myself a thief while you read it. It's futile to explain—hopelessly futile—till we can present some proof that Granger did of his own volition certify that check. Oh, I'll trust in Crane a little longer."

There was silence in the room for a few moments, while Temple smoked, Craven tugged at his gray mustache in a quandary, and Cato slept.

"What did you say?" asked Craven anxiously, looking over his glasses.

"I did not say."

"I want you to. Confound it, you don't take life seriously enough."

"You have perhaps observed that I don't make the mistake of doing so. In some matters I hardly think I am grown up. I am, for example, quite content to remain a boy so far as the muddles of life are concerned, continuing with youthful cheerfulness to translate de profundis clamavi into 'Out of the depths I have clams,' eh, Craven?—just as I did when I held the fort at the foot of the lowest form in Latin."

"You're too pigheadedly brazen in your play with public opinion, that's what you are, my boy," cried Craven hotly. "Public opinion has already convicted you."

"So?" said Temple serenely, lifting his eyebrows in that quizzical way of his. "Public opinion is very absurd. I protest against it. Take one thoroughly ignorant man. Who regards his opinion or considers his judgments as vital? Put together all the thoroughly ignorant men in the republic, and we are told that the sum of their stupidity is to be reverenced, regarded with awe"—

"The voice of the people," broke in Craven, "is"—

"Diaboli!" finished his client. "The public of today has gone mad with a muckrake in its hands; it's too irrationally ready to believe that those in high places"—

"Are ink dyed scoundrels—don't I know?" broke in Craven. "And that's what they're labeling you, one of the kid glove grafters, one of the mahogany table thieves."

Anty Drudge in Court.

Prisoner's wife (relenting)—"Yes, he did strike me, but it was partly my fault. I was washing all day and was bad-tempered, and didn't have his dinner ready."

Anty Drudge—"Please your Honor. If you'll just sentence the prisoner to buy his wife Fels-Naptha soap it will end their wash-day fighting. She won't have half as much work then, and there'll be plenty of time to get dinner. She won't be tired and cross, either."

Do you spend 52 days of the year washing clothes? Fifty-two days bending over a tub of nauseous, steaming suds and 52 days of hard-rubbing on a washboard? Then stop it. Nature didn't intend any woman to work like a slave. Fels-Naptha will cut down the time spent in washing at least half. It will cut out the boiling, the steaming suds, the hard-rubbing.

Fels-Naptha will separate the dirt from your clothes while soaking in cold or lukewarm water so that a light rubbing and a simple rinsing will leave them clean and pure—ready for the line.

Look for the red and green wrapper.

Hubbite Youngsters Cooperate with Uncle Sam in Saving Pennies—Household Efficiency Engineering is in Sight—How to Reduce Family Budgets and Promote Comfort of Living—Black Cat Proves Joyful Mascot for Suffragists—Many Children Find Instructive the Mechanical Marvels at the New England Exposition.

Boston may be slow, but at least the school board shows signs of waking up to national opportunities. The system of school savings banks recommended by the state bank commissioner and outlined in chapter 28 of the Revised Laws of 1911 will soon be in use in many of the Hub's schools. The board has passed an order permitting principals to establish these savings systems or to recommend to the pupils that they patronize the postal savings banks recently opened by the government. It is ordered, also, that any systems other than these two which may have previously been inaugurated at the schools shall be discontinued. Thus it is assured that the next generation is to be trained and encouraged in the habit of saving, and this under competent and safeguarded methods—a branch of education which their parents and grandparents too often were sadly deficient in. Massachusetts has long done many things for encouragment of thrift; yet much more unquestionably needs to be done.

The Glooms retreated in high dudgeon and the Joys disported themselves in mad hilarity when the belated returns from California brought the news that instead of being beaten by some thousands of votes the suffragists had won out by a good margin. A jollification jubilee took place, with the assistance of a large black cat, in Faneuil hall after the final returns were verified, at which a number of prominent speakers expressed their satisfaction over the latest addition to the women's victories, suffrage songs of home and fellowship were interspersed among the speeches, and the huge black cat purred contentedly and waved its tail gravely and gracefully. The cat, by the way, was not down in the programme, but was discovered purring its way up and down the aisles, later joining Rabbi Charles Fleischer as he took his stand at the rostrum and sharing in the applause. The suffragists regarded the animal as a good omen, and it was quite the centre of attention for a time, until tiring of so much publicity it bestowed itself comfortably in the lap of Professor Arthur N. Holcomb of Harvard, one of the speakers of the occasion. A pertinent question asked by Professor Holcomb was: "Why is it that the men of the West have more faith in the women of the West than we have in the women of the East?" Certainly the location of the suffrage states points in that direction—Washington, Utah, Idaho, Colorado and now California. Does the eastern man think his wife and sisters less intelligent than those of his western compatriot, or is it that he is himself less progressive and broad-minded?

The housekeeping efficiency engineer has arrived. The little house in the woods at Darien, Connecticut, which has become known to thousands of housekeepers all over the country through its investigations into household efficiency and comfort in living, has taken under one of its wings two new efficiency engineers to help in carrying on and extending the work done for some years by Charles and Mary Barnard. The Housekeeping Experiment Station, as it is professionally called, is only a small, well proportioned house in which Mr. and Mrs. Barnard have studied and experimented with various household devices and utensils, the best methods of saving labor, time and steps, and, in short, the technology of housework. Bulletins have been issued as useful conclusions have been reached, and these bulletins have circulated all over this country and in many foreign homes bringing comfort and assistance to harassed housekeepers and homemakers wherever they were read. Of late the work of experimentation and publication, with the enormous amount of correspondence entailed, has grown beyond the possibility of execution by two people. Hence the enlargement of the staff at the Station, to include two young people of unusual education and aptitude for the work, Alfred T. Child (Amherst) secretary and lecturer, and Georgie Boynton Child (Vassar) business manager and lecturer. These efficiency engineers, it is understood, will, upon request, come into your house for a week or two weeks, or whatever time desired, watch your methods of housekeeping, establish an efficiency system which will reduce your labor, expenditure and waste one hundred per cent, and make housework and home keeping a pleasure and satisfaction at much less money than you are now spending. One family, as a result of suggestions given at the Experiment Station, has reduced the cost of living $600 a year, besides saving $50 on the winter's coal bill, and have many conveniences which were unknown before the lesson was learned. The philosophy of home contentment is a study which is rapidly gaining vogue.

The closing of the suburban schools at an early hour in order that the children under supervision of the principal and teachers, may attend the big industrial exposition at the Mechanics Building is an evidence that educators are more and more coming to believe in observation as superior to book lore. The children are thus enabled to see the actual processes by which the manufactures and industries of their section of the country are produced, and gain a much clearer idea of the various subjects than all the reading in the world would give them. Youngsters often grow to adulthood in textile centres without having seen a loom at work; in the shoe towns without the slightest familiartiy with the wonderful machinery that has made Massachusetts the world's greatest centre of shoe making. The exposition gives them at least one chance to see some of the mechanical marvels of New England indutsry. Incidentally, the exposition having something of the form of a lark, there is no aversion to this form of study. Thousands of school children have visited the exposition during the month, and many homes have been edified by the accounts of wonders seen with which even the parents were absolutely unfamiliar.

WHEN MR. FOSS says that European shoe manufacfacturers get the machines of the United Shoe Machinery Company on better terms than American manufacturers an get them, he says what is not true. The average royalty per pair of shoes of the same quality has never been lower in Europe than in the United States. There is no appreciable difference between the leases which European and American manufacturers sign; yet the United Shoe Machinery Company, pursuing abroad the same business methods as at home, has done a greatly increasing business in open competition with the so-called free machinery which its critics here profess to favor. European manufacturers are constantly replacing their free machinery with machinery obtained from the United Shoe Machinery Company under lease conditions, because, like American manufacturers they know they can thus get better machines, better service and better terms than in any other way.

FAIR AT ATLANTIC CHURCH

Much Activity Shown By Members ot Useful Table

In Atlantic Friday evening, the 20th occurred another of the whist parties that are becoming so popular. Members of the useful table connected with the Memorial church fair have taken this method of securing funds for their committee, and thus far the results have been very gratifying. Mrs. Charles R. Safford of Clive street, entertained this time, and a most delightful evening was enjoyed. Refreshments were served and several piano selections were rendered by Master Willet Safford previous to the departure for home. Mrs. Henry Von Emden and Mrs. Fred Kolb took with them pretty souvenirs while the consolation was awarded Mrs. Stephenson.

BRAINTREE

Mrs. J. M. Grover, widow of the late Dr. Grover of Brookfield, who has been making her home with her son E. S. Grover of Tremont street for the past three years, leaves Tuesday for San Francisco, where she will spend the winter. She will be accompanied by her daughter-in-law, Mrs. J. M. Grover of San Francisco, who has been visiting relatives and friends in the East.

Miss Anna Ellis returned this week from a visit to her brother and family in California.

Mrs. H. C. Richards has returned from Sharon and is at her city residence 129 Newbury street, Boston.

Mrs. Russell Lane of Vine street is spending the week in Brunswick, Maine.

Mrs. Jackson French has returned to her home on West Street, after spending the summer with her daughter, Mrs. Skinner in Canaan, N. H.

The Ladies' Aid society of the First Congregational church are getting ready for an all day fair to be held Wednesday, Nov. 22.

The children are getting interested in Miss Hayward's dancing classes which begin in Cochato hall next Saturday afternoon.

The Washington Whist club started for a tramp to the Blue Hills on Sunday but, on account of rain were obliged to abandon the trip and return home.

Letters remain at the Braintree post office for E. A. Barbour, Joseph Barbour, H. F. Boge, G. A. Clark, C. F. Nash, M. A. Pearsons, Frances B. Tirrell and Mrs. Winters.

Mr. and Mrs. Eben Bodfish (Mrs. L. Morrell) who were married Saturday Oct. 14th in the Arlington street church, Boston have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Binney this week.

All Souls' parish fair held all day Thursday was a great success. The harvest decorations were beautiful and unique. Things sold well. The much anticipated play "The Cricket on the Hearth" is to be given Nov. 3.

Miss Evelyn Cahill of Hobart street is spending a few days with Mrs. E. S. Edwards of Hartford, Conn.

Mayflower Chapter 65, O. E. S., received an official visit from Deputy Matron Mrs. Maude R. Graves and staff on Tuesday evening. The work of the order was exemplified by the initiation of two candidates. Supper was served in the banquet hall, fifty-two being seated at table.

George O. Miller of North Weymouth, formerly of East Braintree, passed away after a long illness at his home on Tuesday, at the age of sixty-nine. He was a member of Reynolds Post 58, G. A. R., and one of the minute men of 1861 who answered the call of President Lincoln for 75,000 men. He enlisted in Co. H 4th Massachusetts Infantry and was stationed at Fortress Monroe, Virginia.

A very commendable duty has been assumed by Reynolds, W. R. C. 102, of Weymouth and East Braintree in placing in the schools of the towns silk flags mounted on a staff. The object is to instil more deeply into the minds of pupils, lessons in patriotism. In addition flags are to be placed in the Sunday schools, several having been already supplied. Sunday one was presented to the Baptist Sunday school in Weymouth by Mrs. Carrie F. Loring in behalf of the corps. It was accepted by Supt. Bryant in a neat and patriotic speech.

COCHATO CLUB BOWLING.

This week the bottle pin tournaments have opened, the men's will last until Jan. 5, and on Monday evenings during that period the ladies and the mixed tournaments will be rolled.

The increase in interest and enthusiasm is a noticeable feature this season, and it follows that the sport is proportionately more enjoyable as a result. The scores, too, are remarkably good, especially so for the opening of the season. Mr. Davy's 213 and Mr. W. I. Arnold's 206 are only samples of what the contestants are doing. Mr. Pennock got 200—almost

CONNIE MACK ISSUES VETO

Will Be No Oil Burned on Philadelphia Diamond

ANXIOUS TO FINISH SERIES

Manager Says Athletics Would Be Champions Today but For Bad Weather—No Game Likely Before Monday—Fans Are Discussing Severe Reprimand Sent to McGraw and Fining of Merkle

Philadelphia, Oct. 21.—When the "no game today" sign was hung out at Shibe park for the third time during the world's series, it was with little hope that it will be taken in today and put in camphor for the winter.

It is an even money bet that the fourth game between the Athletics and the New York Giants, which should have been played Wednesday, will have to go over until Monday.

The definite declaration of the national commission that oil would be burned all over the Athletics' ball grounds, so as to dry it in time for today's game, received a hard jolt when it came to the ears of Connie Mack.

"No oil will be burned here," declared the Athletics' manager. "If the national commission wanted to see the condition of the grounds they should have come out here themselves. I have never seen baseball grounds in worse shape than these. The base paths are not so bad, but the infield and outfield are simply quagmires. It would be impossible for any human to keep his footing on them for a minute.

"As far as this burning oil is concerned they can do that on the base paths if they want to, but they shall not do it over the grass.

"No one is as anxious to get this game played as we are. We had the Giants on the run when the rain came, and had we been able to continue the series without interruption, we should be world champions today. Now, however, they have had a chance to rest up, and get back their badly shattered nerves."

The severe reprimand sent to Manager McGraw of the Giants for unsportsmanlike conduct and the fining of Merkle for his impudence to Umpire Connolly in Tuesday's game, are topics of interested comment among the fans who are waiting for baseball weather.

McGraw was asked yesterday afternoon whether he had anything to say about the letter sent to him by the national commission. "No," he said, "I haven't. But I think that the fining of Merkle is an outrage. Merkle merely resented being called out in a play when he believed that he was safe at the bag."

Merkle himself felt much the same way about it. "I admit," he said, "that I used pretty strong language to Umpire Connolly when he called me out at second. I considered his decision most unfair and I still consider it so.

"When I made that jump for the bag and while I was still in the air Connolly called me out before Collins touched me. When I got up I guess I did go for Connolly hard, but I considered his decision most unjust."

McGraw has been considerably jolted by the rebuke administered to him by the national commission. McGraw was particularly offensive in the New York game last Tuesday, and his misconduct was such that it could not be overlooked.

Attorney Generals Say That Tobacco Plan Will Bring No Relief

New York, Oct. 21.—After thoroughly studying the provisions of the plan of disintegration, which has been filed by the American Tobacco company with the judges of the United States circuit court, the attorney generals of the states of Virginia, North Carolina and South Carolina reached the conclusion late yesterday that the plan as proposed will offer no relief to the tobacco growers of this country.

They furthermore express belief that should this plan be adopted the victory of the government, resulting from the decision of the United States supreme court, would be a "barren one."

Old Police Court Judge Resigns

Lowell, Mass., Oct. 21.—Judge Samuel P. Hadley of the Lowell police court has placed in the hands of Governor Foss his resignation, to take effect upon the qualification of his successor. He has served fifty-four years as clerk of court and judge and will be 80 years old tomorrow.

SPORTING "DOPE"

By B. A.

Don't Knock, Just Boost.—B. A.

A number of local yachtsmen were present at the semi-annual meeting of the Interclub Yacht Racing Association, held last evening at the South Boston Yacht club. The Squantum, Wollaston, Quincy and Town River were the local yacht clubs represented.

Henceforth all new boats will be allowed to sail in classes C and S, the latter class being limited to boats of 38 feet over all. Another important measure adopted concerned the decisions handed down by the judges of the different races. Hereafter, in case of protest, the decisions of the judges will be accepted as final, thus doing away with any appeals. The annual banquet of the association will take place in the American House on the evening of October 28.

Inasmuch as the management of the local High school eleven has an open date for next Friday, it might be well to accept a game with the St. John's Prep team of Danvers for the following day. The Danvers team is about as fast as any eleven in interscholastic circles, and it would give the local lads a chance to exert themselves to the utmost.

Of course, there will be a great disappproval of such action being taken on the part of many of the Quincy High students who remember that the Danvers school had made arrangements to play Quincy in basketball here last year and failed to show up, yet it would be well to be unmindful of that fact for the present time and make an endeavor to renew athletic connections. What say you, Manager White, don't you think the admirers of the local eleven would like to see them line up against the Danvers team?

The basketball committee of the N. E. A. A. U., will hold a meeting at the Revere house next Monday to consider revisions and rules for the coming season. A number of local athletes will be interested in the action to be taken for basketball, will play a prominent part in the athletic pabulum in local circles this coming year.

Unless the weather man changes his manners, it looks as if the remaining games of the world's series will have to be played on ice skates.

BRIEFS

Next week is "Hospital Week."

C. F. Stoddard of Quincy will be the inspecting officer at the annual inspection of Colonel Oliver W. Peabody Camp 74, S. of V., of Milton on Nov. 15.

Justin K. Hardwick picked a spray of blossoms from one of his apple trees, Friday afternoon.

John D. McKay, Esq., is to lecture before the members of Clan McGregor No. 5, O. S. C., Monday evening. Dr. John A. Gordon is expected to address this organization later in the season.

Mrs. Jesse T. Fuller of South Central avenue accompanied by her nurse went last week to Tilton, New Hampshire, where she will stay with Miss Mary Fuller. Her children have been there since she was taken ill last March. Mrs. Fuller has many friends in Wollaston who hope the change will much benefit and complete her recovery.

Nomination papers for the municipal caucuses have been received by the City Clerk and are now ready for distribution.

Manet encampment is arranging for a barn dance to be held at Alpha hall, next Thursday evening. Wilson's orchestra will furnish the music and patrons are requested to appear in costume.

Mrs. William B. Nichols of 80 Goffe street, whose Cheerful Letter work carries cheer and comfort to people all over our country, would appreciate contributions of books and magazines for use in the work. One can hardly estimate the pleasure given as week by week this literature finds its way to the lonely and shut in.

Walther Men's class will meet at 12.05 Sunday in the Wollaston Baptist church. General Secretary Bromley of the Quincy Y. M. C. A. will give a short address on "Why are we here?" This address will be followed by a general discussion of the lesson, which sometimes is very exciting but always interesting. All men not attending elsewhere are invited to join this great body of men. A hearty welcome here.

Legal Luminary Dines on $100 Pair of Prize Chickens

Bloomburg, Pa., Oct. 21.—District Atorney Small of Columbia county is rueing the loss of a Rhode Island red cockerel as well as a black minorca cockerel for which he paid $100 and was counted as a sure winner at the Columbia county poultry show next month.

In honor of his return from Philadelphia, where he had undergone an operation, his wife killed two of the largest roosters in the pen. He enjoyed the dinner, told his wife she was a fine cook and then went out to look over his prospective prize winners. They were missing. Explanations were in order.

CONVICTED OF MURDER

Nephew of One of Lincoln Conspirators Killed His Friend

Wellsburg, W. Va., Oct. 21.—William R. Chaney, nephew of Mrs. Mary Surratt, one of the conspirators hanged for her connection with the assassination of President Lincoln, was found guilty of first degree murder.

The jury recommended a sentence of life imprisonment. Chaney was tried for the murder of his friend, Charles Sherwood, in the hut where they had lived near here for a number of years.

Outline of Work At Day Nursery Shows It Should Receive Hearty Co-operation

Treasurer of Fund Will Receive Additional Donations

The Quincy Day Nursery was established eight years ago and is, at the present time located on Garfield street, West Quincy. From the beginning it has grown in usefulness year by year, until at the present time it is a thriving, well equipped Nursery.

We desire to bring before the public the work that we are doing and what it stands for in our city. Rightfully has it been said that the truest kind of charity is, one which enables the person to provide for themselves. This is, our principle and the way by which we bring about the desired results.

Nursery work deals primarily with children who are dependent upon a mother for their support.

These mothers, are widows, who have no means of livelihood other than by their own exertion. True they may seek aid from the city but that is, neither what they wish to do or we to encourage.

In this condition of affairs the Nursery through our efficient matron comes to their assistance. In a thoroughly businesslike way she shows the mother that the Nursery is for her, thus, enabling her to see the first light out of her difficulties. She gives her comfort and renewed courage and in many cases that I know of she has found a suitable tenement, which has only been obtained by guaranteeing the first month's rent out of her own modest income.

Just picture what it means for a woman to be left with small children and not to know where she can find a roof to shelter them, nor how she can leave them to go to work to earn the money for their support.

While conditions are being settled the children are taken to the Nursery and allowed to remain from seven A. M. until six P. M. In many instances, they are given some warm breakfast, where the mother has had to leave too early to prepare it, and always they have a good wholesome dinner.

We invite you to drop into the Nursery some noon and see these children with their clean hands and shining faces seated at their little table singing a hearty song of thanks, while the matron and her assistant are serving them with a good ubstantial meal. You will feel well repaid for your effort and sing a song of thanks, too, that we have a Nursery to care for these little ones.

The mother, knowing that her children are looked after, is free to start out to work in a suitable place that has many times been found by our matron.

After she is established and figuratively speaking on her feet, the principle of the Nursery come in, for she must pay five cents per day for the care of each child. By so doing she is not receiving charity but becomes a co-worker in the support of the Nursery.

To be sure the amount is small but at the end of the year these pennies, help towards making the Nursery self-supporting.

Do you realize that we have helped twenty-two mothers this year and that we care for between twenty and thirty children daily?

Right here let me ask our Quincy mothers to place themselves, for one moment in the position of the mother whom I have described and then to ask herself if she by interest and help is doing all she can towards helping this good work?

I ask the fathers also, if there is any charity which appeals more to them, or needs their financial help, than an association which helps a widow to care for her children in order that she may work and support them? I could go on and tell so much that would be interesting to hear, for each case has its particular pathos, had I the space.

Our matron is at our monthly meetings and tells much that would interest all. We get the greater part of our financial support from our annual Tag day and Membership Dues. Our friends and many children worked hard for us, that day and we wish to thank them heartily for all they did, not forgetting the matron who worked until late at night.

We are sorry that our receipts were not what they were last year, as the five hundred dollars received on Tag day 1910 enabled us, to carry on our work successfully.

Should there be those who did not contribute and who would like to help raise the sum to our needed five hundred dollars, the treasurer will be glad to receive any amount no matter how small it may be.

Below is a summing up of boxes received from the different parts of the city for the Tag day collection:

FEELING AT HOUGHS NECK REGARDING SEPARATION SEEMS TO BE UNANIMOUS

Many Important Speeches Along Those Lines Heard At Mass Meeting Held On Saturday Night. Citizens Declare They Do Not Get Proper Return For Taxes Collected

Fully 75 men were in attendance at the meeting held in Pandora Hotel last Saturday evening, to discuss, consider and determine upon the methods to be employed in having Houghs Neck, the well known beach resort segregated from Quincy. It had been advertised as the most important meeting in the history of Houghs Neck, but though it failed to bring forth such animated and invective discussions as prevailed on the school question and the street widening topic, still it proved to be the rendezvous for the largest number of residents that have assembled in meeting in that section for some time.

It was shortly after eight o'clock when Edward J. Moses arose and stated to those present the purpose of the meeting. It was then decided to elect a permanent chairman and Oliver G. Fosdick was chosen in this capacity. "Captain" as he is most familiarly known to all, said it was quite a surprise for him to realize that he was to receive such an honor for he had come to the meeting with the intention of listening like the rest, but his experience presiding at indignation meetings in the past, and in spending the proudest moment of his life in the Council Chamber when Houghs Neck was about to be given a schoolhouse, made him thoroughly qualified for the position to which he adapted himself with ease and accustomed eloquence.

"Cap" started in with a resume of the things that had been done for Houghs Neck in the past. Continuing along a jocosing vein, he said, "Houghs Neck and Quincy have played the parts of the dog's tail and the dog itself, respectively. Houghs Neck has occupied the position of the dog's tail, and just as is noticeable in the case of a canine who has been happily appeased, she has wagged her tail faithfully for every improvement that Quincy has given her. But as the dog has grown, the tail has grown, and the latter has grown to a greater degree than the tail, so that now the tail is able to swagger the dog. Facts will show that Houghs Neck, for the past five years, has paid into Quincy over $150,000 in taxes, but in return we have received an unproportionate share of improvements. This is the psychological moment. Look at the hand writing on the wall. Quincy, you have been weighed in the balance and found wanting."

He then called on Matthew J. Connors, one of the prime agitators of the movement. Mr. Connors outlined the method of procedure to be adopted in getting Houghs Neck separated from Quincy. He said that the matter did not require a referendum from the voters of Quincy, but instead was to be submitted to the legislature for action. He said that a petition would be circulated this week and that he expected to have a large number of people interested in the meeting by the end of the week.

Daniel J. Maloney, a past president of the Associates, produced a number of figures and statistics showing just how much Houghs Neck had derived from Quincy in the past few years. He scored the conditions of things that existed at the present time, and asserted that the City of Quincy had received $20,000 over and above the amount which it was entitled as use. "If, he continued, "we could only get that $20,000, we would be adequately

THREATENED TO BURN HIM OUT

Fire Early This Morning Calls For Police Investigation

LOSS $300

The alarm from Box 443 at 1.30 this morning, called the department to a fire at 164 West street that will probably call for a police investigation as circumstances point to its being of incendiary origin. The fire was in a large wood shed said to be owned by Frank LaPresti. It had made good headway when discovered and the building was destroyed. It was situated but a few feet from the house of the owner and only prompt work of the fire department prevented that from taking fire.

While at the fire, Mr. LaPresti told Chief Williams that he believed that fire had been set. He said that he had some words with a man during the afternoon and that when the man got angry he threatened to burn him out. He thought nothing of the threat, however until he was awakened to find his wood shed on fire. He believed that the man referred to had caused the fire. He gave Chief Williams a description of the fellow and a search was made for him this morning but he was not found.

The loss by the fire is estimated by Chief Williams at $300.

JAMES RYAN DEAD.

Joseph Ryan, the well known barber, whose place of business is on 557 Washington street, received the condolences of his many friends yesterday on the death of his father James Ryan, of Commercial street, East Weymouth. Mr. Ryan was in his 60th year and departed from this life early Sunday morning. Six sons and four daughters, as well as a number of grandchildren, all of whom are well and favorably known in local circles survive him. Funeral services will be held from the Church of the Immaculate Conception tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock.

CLAIMS HE SAW GIRL AT STATION

Doctor Sure He Saw Richeson on Quincy Train

WENT TOWARD HOUGHS NECK

Dr. Leonard F. Wolfe a Boston dentist who makes his home during the summer months at Weymouth declares that he saw Richeson and the Linnell girl in the South Station on the evening of Friday Oct. 13. He says:

"I was waiting for a train to Quincy and I noticed a couple who sat directly opposite me. The girl sat nervously picking at the coat sleeve of the man and looking intently into his face. She was very pale and appeared to be in deep trouble. Several times she said earnestly, "Are you sure? Are you sure?" The man appeared to be greatly worried and in deep thought.

"Later I saw the man alone on the same train that I took. He left the train at Quincy and walked rapidly across the square toward where the Hough's Neck car was waiting.

"I did not think much about the matter for a few days as I had not been following the Linnell tragedy. Then I happened to pick up a newspaper containing pictures of Miss Linnell and Mr .Richeson, and I can state with absolute certainty that they were the persons seen by me as I have described."

The order of the Red Cross will be exemplified at the evening session.

RESCUED FROM DROWNING OFF PEDDOCK'S ISLAND

Boat Overturned By Sudden Gust of Wind and Four Men Cling to Mast of Disabled Craft. Two Were Rapidly Losing Their Strength. Saved By Heroism of One of the Party

David J. Gurney of 161 Sumner street, Quincy Point, Henry Thibodeau of 117 Sumner street, his brother, Alvin Thibodeau, and Thomas Hayes, both of East Braintree, were rescued from drowning Sunday night by George Parmenter of 67 Madison street, East Weymouth, after they had clung to the mast of their yacht for more than an hour.

Two of the men, Alvin Thibodeau and Hayes, were rapidly losing their strength when Parmenter came along and both would have been drowned if it were not for the heroism of Henry Thibodeau, who held them up when they became exhausted.

The men sailed from Quincy Point Sunday morning to fish for smelts, in the yacht Swan and anchored between Peddocks and Sheep Islands. About 8.45 they hauled in their anchors and started for home.

As they brought the yacht about and were heading for Quincy Point a sudden gust of wind caught them and the boat was overturned.

The four men caught hold of the bow of the yacht and clambered along until they caught hold of the mast. They clung to this for half an hour, shouting for help, but no other boat passed and the fog shut in on them.

Finally Henry Thilodeau, who is a strong swimmer, told his companions that he wuld swim to Peddocks Island for help, and started for the island. He had gone some distance from the yacht when he heard his brother Alvin calling to him that he was unable to cling to the mast any longer.

Henry turned and swam back to the boat just in time to catch Alvin, who, chilled and exhausted, released his hold and would have sank. Hayes, who was unable to swim, succumbed, too, to the strain, but Thibodeau caught him and his brother, and getting his shoulders under their arms reached the mast to which he clung in desperation.

Finally the men heard the chugging of the engine of a power boat in the darkness and called for help. It was the power boat Grace M. owned by Parmenter, who was caught in the heavy fog and was making his way cautiously toward Quincy Point.

He steered toward the yacht and managed to get the party aboard with a great deal of difficulty. The troubles of the men were not yet over, however, for as the power boat was moving slowly toward the Point the engine gave out off Houghs Neck.

Parmenter, undeterred, succedded in getting the boat into Harvey's LLanding at Houghs Neck, where he shouted for aid. His cries were heard by patrolman Corbett, who assisted him in getting the suffering men to the home of Jason L. Harvey, where they were provided with stimulants and dry clothing. They recovered from their trilling experience after a short time and went to their homes.

EXPECT ORGANIZATION.

Quincy Plumbers and Steamfitters' Union 238, whose members are employed by the Fore River Ship Building Company, reports success in its recent efforts to bring all craftsmen within its jurisdiction into the organization. Austin Fales, business agent of Boston U. A. Steamfitters' Union 537, addressed the meeting and told of the excellent condition of the new steamfitters' local in this city. Pres. William Kelley of the Quincy C. L. U. told of the general enthusiasm manifested by the workmen at the Fore River works. Labor men expect a thorough organization of the workmen in this vicinity within a short time.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Although the death rate in New York lowers steadily it is getting harder and harder to live there.

Attorney-General Wickersham is determined to force the Wall Paper Trust to the wall, as it were.

Next time the prophets meet in Washington the saloons should have their signs read "Welcome Profits."

Secretary Fisher has returned from Alaska with the rheumatism. That country gave his predecessor all kinds of troubles.

Jack Johnson's lecture to the clergymen on the ethics of boxing was not as well attended as the one he delivered to Jeffries.

When the fans heard the tenor soloist sing about "this terrestrial ball" in old "Coronation," they remarked that the singer had made a wild pitch.

In this perplexity over the selection of his Canadian cabinet we suggest to Mr. Borden that he let the Washington correspondents do it in the usual way.

John D. is boasting that he is descended from the early kings of France, Scotland and Spain; if we had a lot of poor relations in Europe we would have kept it quiet.

What will the courts say when the heads of the four tobacco companies get together over the wine and the walnuts at the Waldorf-Astoria, and agree on a uniform price list for the separate companies?

A principal cause of high prices is the lack of farmers. You never can make more farmers by a high tariff, which takes capital and labor off the farm to produce goods that can be bought to better advantage somewhere else.

The Missouri, Kansas, and Texas road has sued the government for $67,000,000. You don't find many railroad magnates hanging around the court house nowadays. Most of them are satisfied if they can keep dodging Uncle Sam's subpoena servers.

COLORADO'S EXPERIENCE.

California having apparently voted for Woman Suffrage, both the advocates and opponents in the rest of the country of this revolutionary change will hope to see the idea tried under the most favorable conditions. If the new force in California in politics is to be sane and wholesome, its leaders have before them a task of drilling and disciplining a great army of new recruits in the battle of good citizenship.

One of the most encouraging statements about woman suffrage was a recent analysis of the vote of Pueblo county, Colorado, showing that 90 per cent of the women of what was called the best residence district were casting their ballots. This is a good showing. Many men from localities of this type would not spare thirty minutes from their office to exercise an act for which our patriot fathers endured the bloody snows of Valley Forge.

On the other hand, there is the depressing fact from the same source that 82 per cent of the women from the rooming houses in the Red Light district were marching up to the polls like sheep—goats would perhaps be more descriptive—to cast the votes that were thrown in in the bargain sale of their womanhood.

An impartial observer said recently that Colorado woman suffrage had made it more difficult for drunkards, gamblers, libertines, and liquor dealers to secure office, but that there were just as many grossly incompetent men in public office. He quoted one society women as saying that she voted for Parker against Roosevelt in 1904 because he was a handsomer man, and that she voted against Gov. Peabody because she did not approve of his wife.

Of course it goes without saying that the many men who vote for the candidate that gives them the widest smile of recognition on the street may offset this type of female citizenship.

From any point of view, it will be admitted that woman's greatest weakness at the polls will be from lack of business experience. The leaders of California womankind ought to impress on their followers these two ideas: That they should be suspicious of mere talkers that have demonstrated no ability in some form of productive human effort; second, that justice should be esteemed even superior to generosity, that a politician does not atone for graft by giving Thanksgiving turkeys to the poor.

A DYNAMITE PLOT.

The fellows who tried to dynamite the Southern Pacific bridge at Gaviota, Cal., built by non-union men, just before President Taft's special train was due to pass, may have thought that mere murder is getting too commonplace to attract attention. If a president of the United States could be bagged, their deed would get just the right emphasis.

The great majority of labor unions have grown more peaceful and law abiding. Asked if it is possible to prevent violence in connection with strikes, John Mitchell says, "Yes, if it were otherwise I would abandon the whole labor union movement."

The trade union men have published statistics showing that the number of murders in the anthracite coal strike under Mitchell's guidance in 1902-3 was but one to 140,000 of the population involved. In Chicago the proportion of murders to population for a year is about one to 13,000.

On the other hand, there is a minority of labor unionists who go into the game to win at any cost, and consider that homicide is a fair weapon to meet the alleged crimes of capital.

It all reflects the indifference to life and failure to enforce the laws. A recent writer compares the results of homicide in Chicago and London. London in a recent year had 24 murders. Chicago, with less than a third the population, had 128 at the same time.

In London all of the alleged murderers were arrested and nine of them were hanged, four going to the insane asylum. In Chicago out of the 128 homicides there were 34 convictions, and only one was executed.

Does the English murderer sit down on the sidewalk until the London police come along to gather him in? As you look at our impressive police in the majesty oftheir march through the streets of a pleasant afternoon, the trouble does not look like lack of physical courage.

The lavish offerings of flowers received by our murderers from the general public, is one symptom. Another is that the police officer who fails to catch criminals is less unpopular than one who uses his billy a little too frequently in arresting a drunk.

Wherefore we hope that the officers who are scouring the hills after the perpetrators of the California outrage that started these reflections, will be very keen to the scent and run very fast.

AUTOIST AND HIS HORN.

The blast upon the horn is merely to preface injury by insult.

Let him attend to his lever and brake and the horn will not be greatly needed. No one is seeking to be run down and he has merely to avoid doing it. But to get across some of our streets in safety is, as autos are run, a matter of good fortune even to the quick of wit and of foot.

Without police intervention the feat requires presence of mind, the faculty of instant decision and not a little physical address and dexterity. What we need is not more and louder alarms, for on all sides they are honking, but more police regulation and interposition.

Out upon the country roads and suburban highways we have, of course, long conceded to the infernal machines the entire right of way. With proper humility and guarded attention of ear and eye the wayfarer or horseman may save his skin whole, provided he does not mind taking to the ditch at frequent intervals and then remaining until the danger that flyeth by day and part of its cloud of dust and stench have passed on.

If he does mind he may, of course, remain home and get much less of the dirt and noise. But in the thronged city streets we need more protection from the police. The auto will pass among us with little clamor and rarely over us, if ever the time arrives that it must. If in the nature of things it were so that the running down of a pedestrian brought the demolition of the machine and its occupants, would not accidents be notably diminished?—Philadelphia Ledger.

GLACIER NATIONAL PARK.

(Special correspondence.)

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 22—Although the vacation season is scarcely past preparations are being made by the tourist agencies of the country for the routes for tourists for the season of 1912, and to a greater degree than ever before their attention is being turned to the Northwestern part of the United States. The Selkirk mountains have been known to travelers of the American continent as spots well worth visiting. Yellowstone National Park is one of the places in the United States of which everyone has heard a good deal and it is the longing of more than one school teacher or prospective bride that she may see that park.

In the Northwest corner of Montana, thirty-six hours' ride west from St. Paul on the Great Northern road is another park which was created by congress in 1910 and is thus the youngest of our national parks and in many respects surpasses all the others in the sort of attractions it has to offer the tourist. Instead of spouting streams of hot water into pools of unknown depth, in Glacier National Park the eternal snows of the Rockies rise up white on the mountains as glaciers, and strange as it may seem in this play ground of the people with an area of 1,400 square miles, there are over sixty living glaciers and the park has not yet been thoroughly explored.

ICEBERG LAKE UNIQUE.

In this marvelous visiting place is a lake in which icebergs can be found in mid-summer. The moving glacier advancing slowly over the edge of the water breaks off and forms icebergs just as on the coast of Alaska chunks of ice drop off into the ocean. In this park is the most magnificent view of the back bone of the continent afforded at any of the various passes over the Rocky Mountains. Enclosing the great divide of the country, this park is full of striking places of interest.

So impressed have the tourist agencies been with the possibilities of this park as a place to spend a few weeks in the summer that six or eight of the managers of the larger agencies of the country have been guests of L. W. Hill, President of the Great Northern road. These men came out of the park surprised with the beauty of the scenery and although they have seen all the important scenic places of the world they are loud in their praises of the glories of this Glacier National Park.

WILL SEE AMERICA FIRST.

These men are good judges of the possibilities of a place as a summer resort for American people. Each year they help thousands of Americans to spend their money in Europe. This trip through Glacier National Park means that in the future more of their attention will be riveted on the Northwest and people seeking a pleasant summer trip will be advised to visit Glacier National Park.

I. Frank of New York City, the head of a great World's Tourist traffic, said before he started on the trip that if the average American tourist knew that within thirty-six hours of St. Paul or forty-six hours of Chicago there was a place containing sixty glaciers and reached by the best trains of the country, the park would be unable to hold the people who would go there next summer.

The past season there have been 5,000 visitors to the park and more than double that are expected the coming season. Unlike other places of great natural beauty in the West, the tourist at this park can stop off a day or two or a week or two as suits his fancy, take a boat or a horse to a hotel or chalet in the mountains where he may get room and board as reasonably as he can at home, $2.00 to $3.00 a day, and stay as long as he likes. He can poke around in Avalanche Basin, travel to Gunsight Pass, explore the glaciers, or penetrate for hundreds of miles into a wild untrodden country.

SOME OF PARK UNEXPLORED.

Those who enjoy mountain climbing over untrodden ground have in Glacier Park a splendid chance. There is much of the park yet to be explored. There are peaks and streams to be named; it is almost virgin territory, despite the fact that a motor boat is used on Lake McDonald to take people from Belton to Glacier Hotel, and a launch is operated on St. Mary's Lake.

There are two entrances to Glacier National Park, both on the Great Northern Railway which bounds the park on the south. One is at Belton to the west and the other at Midvale, 60 miles further east. Stage lines meet trains at Belton and take passengers to the foot of Lake McDonald at the other end of which is the large Glacier hotel. From this hotel a number of delightful one day outings may be taken. This is a favorite route with those who want many of the comforts of civilization with their outings. At the hotel in addition to the main building there are a number of log cottages with two to eight rooms each. There are two other hotels in the near vicinity at the lake.

A large number of horses are kept near the hotel for use of tourists in climbing the glaciers and mountains. There are interesting points to visit which are seven, twelve, fourteen or twenty miles from the hotel. Parties can take their food with them and cook it at impromptu camps or they can employ a cook to accompany them.

CHAIN OF SIX TENT CAMPS.

From the Midvale gateway trips can be taken requiring more exercise with a consequent compensation of beauties of rugged scenery. A chain of six tent camps has been established by the railway company that enables the tourist to make the trip from Midvale to Belton over the summit of the Rocky mountains, or trips can be made of three days or so to various points into the mountains from Midvale. That a tour of this sort is not expensive is seen from the fact that the meals are but 75 cents in this mountain fastness and lodging the same price.

Of the opportunities for fishing in the park a special story could be written. Trout of size too large to tell in print can be caught in the cold waters of the many lakes fed by the glaciers. Roads are being established by the government and new trails are being blazed for the pleasure of the tourist.

IMPOSSIBLE—Rector—"But don't you think you girls ought to do something for the heathen?"

Fanny Fluffy—"Goodness, rector, we can't take them out autoing, and they wouldn't appreciate fudge, anyway!"—Judge.

NORTH WOODS. Week-end Sportsman—"I just shot a deer, old chap!"

His Pal—Gweat! Kill him?"

Week-End Sportsman—"I think not. He shot back!"—Puck.

APPARENT—"These men," said Mrs. Voteby McGumm, "are becoming very assertive and aggressive."

"Yes," replied Mrs. Baring Banners, "something must be done to check them. The first thing we know they will be wearing the divided skirts."—Washington Star.

FRIENDLY—"But for my ears being in the way, I could wear one of these very high collars."

"Too bad; but stick to your ears, girl. They may be unfashionable now, but you may need 'em in your old age to hook your spectacles over."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

REASON—Wiggles—"I see that there is a great scarcity of chorus girls this year."

Waggles—"I was afraid that there would be. It's only another case of cause and effect. The French champagne crop has practically failed, and lobsters are scarcer than hen's teeth this season."—The Club Fellow.

RIVALS— Riggs—"Singular, isn't it, that neither of your stenographers wants a vacation this year?"

Gribbs—"No; it's easily explained. I recently took a good-looking young man into the office and neither of the girls is willing to go away and leave the field to the other one."—Roseleaf.

ANOTHER WAY—"Why do you wish to go on the stage?" inquired the manager.

"I want to get a millionaire husband."

"Well the stage is overcrowded just now. Be a trainednurse."—Philadelphia Times.

The tired householder came home a litle earlier than usual and was startled as he neared the house by a confused medley of sounds. The noise grew louder as he ascended the steps.

"What's all this racket?" he demanded as his wife opened the door.

"Hush, George," she answered. "The school fraternities are holding special sessions. Tommy is up in the attic with the 'Blue Skulls,' Eddie has the 'Crossbones' in the cellar and Sammy is with the 'Hyenas' in the garage."

"It—it's an initiation, I think," whispered the mother of the frats.

The head of the household pulled his hat a little tighter on his head and taking a light rattan cane from the hatrack started.

"The school fraternities must go," he said.

Five minutes later they were going in all directions.

REFUSED TO PAY FOR TAXI

Waino Wallenius paid Boston a visit Sunday and missing the last train for Quincy sought a taxi cab and made a bargain with the driver to bring him to Quincy. The party arrived in City Square at 3 o'clock this morning. Wallenius then refused to pay for the use of the cab and he was turned over to Officer Bishop who locked him up for drunkenness. This morning in court he was fined $15.

WILL MAKE INSPECTION.

Aid de camp James H. Webb will make an official inspection of Post 15 of Brockton, Wednesday evening. Comrades of Paul Revere post are cordially invited to accompany him. Brockton post is the largest in the state and a warm welcome is assured the veterans.

DELAY LINGER AND WAIT.

Potmaster General Hitchcock says he is going to wait before introducing the parcels post generally, and first try it on the rural free delivery communities. He says he wants his men to get accustomed to it on a small scale first.

This sounds ingenuous, but after we have been listening to Mr. Taft postponing from year to year any reduction in the tariff, we are suspicious of everybody connected with the Government. Imagine an ordinary business man who felt the absolute necessity of introducing some reform into his business, waiting until his office boys had first become used to it.

The express companies are no doubt pleased by the delay. Meanwhile the process of charging forty cents to carry a fifteen-pound package a distance of twelve miles is still going on.—Life.

The Stamps will then be returned to the holder.

The Quincy Daily Ledger will publish a Ballot which, when presented at our Premium Parlor, will entitle the Contestant to five (5) votes.

Various merchants will also publish coupons, each enlitling the holder to five (5) votes in the same way.

It is important that you not only urge your friends to get the U.S.H. Stamps whenever they make purchases, but also vote them for you. Get all you can. Vote them for yourself or for someone else in whom you are interested.

Profit by your mother's example in Thrift and Economy by collecting U.S.H. Green Trading Stamps, which bring you so Generous a reward in Beautiful Premiums.

You will materially swell the number of Stamps you get, and the consequent votes you obtain, if you will bring us your HAMILTON BONDS and COUPONS, Tobacco Tags, Soap Wrappers, Labels and Trade-Marks. We will give you U.S.H. Green Trading Stamps for them.

VOTING THE STAMPS DOES NOT IN ANY WAY INTERFERE WITH THEIR BEING REDEEMED FOR PREMIUMS IN THE USUAL WAY.

SUNDAY IN OUR CHURCHES

Topics and Announcemens For Coming Week

SUNDAY SCHOOLS

FIRST U. P. CHURCH.

"Family Religion" was the topic of the discourse at the 10.30 service. The thoughts were stimulating and were well received by a large congregation. Miss Jean Russell sang a solo—her first attempt as a church soloist and did splendidly.

The Sabbath school and Men's league were both well attended.

Mr. Harvey of Braintree was the Y. P. S. C. E. leader. The service was well attended, the leader delivering a fine address.

"The Sin of Judas and lessons from it," was the evening's subject. Mrs. Charles Campbell and Miss McDougall sang a well rendered duet.

ST. CHRYSOSTOM'S.

Services on Sunday were as follows:

8.00 A. M., Holy Communion. 10.30 A. M., Morning service and sermon. 12.00 M., Sunday school. 7.30 P. M., Evening prayer and address.

On Tuesday at 4 o'clock the Junior auxiliary will meet in the Parish rooms, Wednesday at 2.30 the Woman's Guild, Thursday from 2 until 10, "The Fair" will be held in Odd Fellows hall.

The Fair—Date—Thursday, Oct. 26, afternoon and evening.

Place—Odd Fellows' hall, Wollaston.

Admission—Ten cents.

Tables—Numerous and well furnished.

Supper—6.00 to 7.30 P. M., price 35 cents.

Directors—The Woman's Guild, Mrs. David Fulton, president.

The topic of absorbing interest in Parish circles for the week is the Fair. A splendid thing about the undertaking is the readiness with which people as a whole have come forward to the assistance of the members of the Woman's Guild. This good support on the part of the Parish is in itself a very encouraging sign. Articles of nearly every description have come in with a minimum amount of soliciting. The tables will be attractive and well supplied with good and useful things for sale at reasonable prices.

How to help now at the final moment is a point that doubtless some will be glad to know. The way to help now is to donate money to the supper committee, Mrs. E. F. Parlee, 56 Division street, Atlantic, chairman, to help pay for sugar, butter and other things necessary to a good supper. Donations no matter how small will help that much in reducing expenses and thereby increasing the profits.

The proceeds are for the benefit of St. Chrysostom's church. While no one particular object has been announced by the Woman's Guild it is generally understood that the money made will be used in part or in whole to help the treasurer of the parish pay the bills for the repairs that have been effected already in the church and for repairs at the rectory yet to be accomplished. It is the rector's firm belief that the ordinary parochial current expenses should be met by the pledge envelope system now in use at St. Chrysostom's; and that the parish is able to do it probably no one seriously doubts. But for extraordinary expenses of repairing and building and always let it be remembered that there are building funds already started, small as yet, but with the capacity of growth inherent in them, for the extraordinary expenses the parish officers look to efforts like the present with grateful expectancy. Success to the fair, then! May it do great good in knitting together the various sections of this scattered parish; and may its profits relieve the burden of our parish treasurer.

WOLLASTON UNITARIAN CHURCH.

OUR FAITH.

The Fatherhood of God.
The Brotherhood of Man.
The Leadership of Jesus.
Salvation by Character.
The Progress of Mankind.
Onward and upward forever.

All the seats in this church are free and a cordial welcome is extended to all.

The National Unitarian Conference, holds its twenty-fourth biennial meeting at Washington, D. C., this week. It promises an important session.

If you have any printed matter relating to our church, such as programs, announcements, newspaper clippings etc., kindly hand them to Rev. Carl G. Horst who is collecting such material for a church scrapbook.

All who consider the Wollaston Unitarian church their church-home are cordially invited and earnestly requested to attend the church reception in the vestry Friday evening, Oct. 27.

Rev. Carl G. Horst's telephone number is changed to Quincy 583-1.

The entertainment for the monthly meeting of the Wollaston Social club last week was furnished by Prof. Springer of Boston and was most enjoyable.

The Rev. Joel H. Metcalf, Ph. D. of Winchester, who has a world-wide reputation as an astronomer and is himself the discoverer of the Metcalf Planet and various asteroids, will occupy our pulpit Sunday morning.

The annual contribution for the Unitarian Sunday school Society will be received in our church Sunday morning, Nov. 5.

The Unitarian Church Helpers will hold their next meeting Thursday afternoon in the vestry at 2 o'clock.

A food sale is to be held in the vestry, Saturday, at 3 P. M. under the auspices of the Unitarian church Helpers.

The Wollaston Unitarian church is in need of a safe in which to keep the records of all the societies in the parish. These records become more valuable as time goes on. Who will make this gift or present it in memory of some one to the church?

Eleven years ago today was organized the Wollaston Unitarian club, which for many years has now had not only a full membership, but a waiting list. The club was organized by the Rev. Frank W. Pratt and its first president was Frederick H. Bishop.

The members of the Sunday school yesterday brought fruit, vegetables, jellies etc., their annual contribution to the Hospital and other like charities.

Rev. C. G. Horst preached a helpful sermon yesterday from the text "We all, with unveiled face beholding as in a mirror the glory of the Lord, are transformed into the same image from glory to glory." In developing the text he showed by apt illustrations how what the eye looks at earnestly, long, intently, that the character will tend to become

"Whate'er thou lovest man, that too, become thou must,— God, if thou lovest God; dust if thou lovest dust."

CHRIST CHURCH.

The regular services were held in Christ church yesterday, which were as follows: 8 A. M., Holy Communion, 10.30 A. M., morning prayer and sermon, 12.05 Sunday school and Galahad Brotherhood. 7.30 evening prayer and address. The change in the hour of evening worship from 7 to 7.30 proved to be a great success there being a large congregation present.

In the evening the rector Rev. R. E. Armstrong delivered the second in the series of confirmation addresses. He said in part as follows:

"The Fundamentals in religion are the three vows taken in Baptism and renewed in Confirmation. The first of these vows was dealt with the previous Sunday. The second one therefore, was the topic of discussion. This was the vow of faith. We should believe all the articles of the Christian Faith. This is a tremendous subject and as the time was limited, it was dealt with accordingly. We should have faith of heart and mind, intellectual apprehension and a loving reception of the precepts uttered by persons. The faith of the heart belongs to Christians, and the faith of the mind to the devil.

Faith is based on the word of God or revealed truths accepted. Creeds are responsible for much suffering and strife, but we must have a creed in order to live right. One example of creeds is the worship of God and the worship of idols. Belief influences conduct on every hand. We should believe all the articles or revealed truths in the Apostles Creed. An article is one of the twelve statements in the Apostles Creed. Each article was discussed separately but owing to the limited amount of time these articles were not carried into detail.

The first: I believe in God the Father Almighty, maker of heaven and earth. God is the father of all and there is a sense of great comfort that we are all God's children and that he watches over all singly. And in Jesus Christ His only Son our Lord. The Hebrew word Jesus meaning Saviour and Christ meaning Messiah. Jesus was the only son of God, (begotten not made), eternal not created. Conceived by the Holy Ghost, born of the Virgin Mary. Humanity meaning God and man. Born of a Virgin.

Suffered under Pontius Pilate, was crucified dead and buried. Pontius Pilate was the Roman governor under whom Christ was crucified. His words were "follow me."

He descended into hell. This is not a place of torment as some persons think, but a place for departed spirits, where Christ went for our sakes.

The third day he rose again from the dead. This article refers to the resurrection. He ascended into heaven referring to the ascension. And sitteth on the right hand of God. There he made intercession for us.

He shall come again to judge the quick and the dead, referring to the Judgment day. I believe in the Holy Ghost. Belief in God himself, glory unseen in the world.

The Holy Catholic church, the communion of saints and the forgiveness of sins. God is always ready and desirous of forgiving our sins. The resurrection of the body meaning spiritual bodies.

Life everlasting. There is no real death nor punishment but supreme and everlasting joy, glory and peace.

The program for the week is as follows:

Tuesday, 7.30 P. M. Junior Auxiliary entertainment in the Parish house.

Wednesday, 2.30 P. M., Woman's Guild; 4.00 P. M., Junior Confirmation class; 7.00 P. M., Boys' club; 8.00 P. M., Senior Confirmation class.

Friday, 7.30 P. M., St. Margaret's Hallowe'en party to the choir.

Saturday, 10.00 A. M., Feast of Simon and Jude. Holy Communion; 4.30 P. M., union meeting King's Daughters.

Services will be held regularly in the church next Sunday, the third in the Confirmation series being delivered at 7.30 P. M.

—Rev. George E. Littlefield of Westwood has gone west to start fellowship farms in Missouri and Kansas. The project is to be financed by a wealthy man in Chicago. The minister has demonstrated the value of fellowship farming in Westwood. There are about forty persons on it today. Some of them stay there the year round while others occupy the land only during the summers. Each person joining the colony buys and pays for one acre.

A STATE WIDE CAMPAIGN FOR HUMANITY TO ANIMALS

M. S. P. C. A. Sends Out Field Lecturer to Travel Through the State

Arrangement Made For Campaign of Education

A state wide campaign having for its object the bettering of the conditions of dumb animals and the prevention of cruelty to beasts and birds has been undertaken by the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. To this end Edward H. Packard has been placed in the field as a traveling lecturer, with instructions to visit every city and town in the state, every fair and slaughter-house. He will also visit hunting camps, large stables and dairies, and buttonhole people with whom he comes in contact in his efforts to farther the cause of the Society. A campaign of education through the newspapers will also be conducted, copy and cuts being furnished to the papers on topics treating of dumb animals, and the work of the Society.

The aim is not only to endeavor to better the conditions of dumb beasts by teaching the people how to look after them and that it is for the interest of the owner as well as the animal that the latter should be well treated, but also to raise a fund of a million dollars to found a hospital for animals in Boston. At this hospital skilled veterinaries will be on duty, with trained assistants, and every modern appliance for the treatment of sick and injured animals will be installed. Plans are now being considered for the means of raising the necessary million.

Mr. Packard's mission is unique. Campaigning in the interest of dumb animals is a new idea. The Society has about 450 agents throughout the state, and their duty is to keep an eye open for cruelty to or ill-treatment of animals and report such cases for prosecution under the state laws. Wide as is the circulation of "Our Dumb Animals," the Society's organ, it is the determination of the officers of the organization to increase it until it reaches with its educational work every home in the state. Hence the appointment of a traveling lecturer. When the fair season closes Mr. Packard will accept invitations to speak wherever called, and in the meantime will visit places where a little of the gospel of kindness to dumb animals may be spread with effect.

Besides the 400 agents, the Boston headquarters has a staff of 25 people, who are kept constantly busy. The office can be reached by telephone at any time of day or night when any case of cruelty or neglect may be reported. A chief prosecuting officer and six district or county officers are included among the Society's agents.

The first traveling agent commissioned in this or any other country was appointed by the Governor of Maine in 1907, at the request of the Farmington Humane Society. The agent is Dr. J. H. Rollin, a man of life-long experience with horses. Since then traveling agents have been appointed in many states with the power of arrest where prosecution is required.

Q.—If Noah was a just and respectable old gentleman of some six hundred years of age how is it that we find him getting intoxicated—becoming drunk—as recorded in Genesis ix, 20, 21?

Answer.—How true are the words of the poet—

"The evil that men do lives after them;
The good is oft interred with their bones."

But one instance of straying from the path of rectitude and sobriety in a long life of fidelity to the principles of righteousness will stand out with startling distinctness and will be the subject of more consideration than all of the individual's noble acts and traits combined. However, we shall not leave Noah defenseless, but will call attention to the fact that his intoxication was after the flood and was wholly unintentional. The flood wrought great changes in the atmospheric conditions of our earth: to our understanding the deluge was produced by the precipitation to the earth of an immense quantity of water which previously had surrounded the earth at a distance as a cloudy canopy. The dissolution of this canopy or envelope of water not only produced the flood, but altered the conditions of nature so that storms, rains, etc., resulted, things which had never been before. (Genesis ii, 5, 6.) Another result, we believe, was the development of an acidulous condition of the atmosphere tending to produce ferment, which directly affected human longevity, so that according to the Scriptures the average of human life decreased from eight and nine hundred years to one hundred. This ferment from the changed atmosphere, affecting the grape, generated "mold," and hence the alcoholic condition which produces drunkenness. According to the record, Noah's drunkenness was the result of the first vintage of grapes after the flood, and it evidently was contrary to all of his experiences preceding the flood. We are justified, therefore, in supposing that this one instance of Noah's having been intoxicated was the result of ignorance respecting the changed character of the grape product fermented.

BRIEFS

There is to be no meeting of the City Council tonight.

The dredging is still going on to deepen and widen the channel in front of the club house.

Quincy Yacht club is closed for the season. Janitor J. E. Nash will pull up and store the bouys this week.

Edward B. Marsh of Irving place has taken out nomination papers as a Republican candidate for School Committee at large.

Frank F. Crane has arrived home from Richmond, Va., where he represented the State, city of Quincy Board of Trade at the National Deep Water Highway Convention.

Jos. L. Whiton of Washington street is at the Corey Hill Hospital this week. His many friends wish his speedy recovery and a return home. He was operated on Sunday.

S. E. Macmillan, for the past year with the Sandberg Bros., City Square, will open up a first class Jewelry, Watch repairing shop at 11 Alpha Hall Block, Cottage street, Quincy this week.

Dr. Harold Curtis and Dr. Arthur Bonney of this city sailed Saturday on the Romanic of the White Star line to Genoa, thence to Alexander, Egypt, to open up an office in the dental business. They recently graduated from Tufts College.

One of our old residents, Peter Williams of 195 Quincy avenue, is quietly passing his eighty-fourth milestone today. Mr. Williams will be remembered as one of the old Sextons of Christ Church from the year of 1852 to 1872 and has seen a great many changes in the parish.

The Young Peoples' Religious Union of the First Church held their second meeting of the season, Sunday night, in the chapel. They were especially fortunate in obtaining the services of Mrs. Horatio Cate of Canton, who read a paper on the Book of Ruth. It was not only a very pleasant and interesting paper but also a very helpful one. A large attendance was present and they all most highly appreciated Mrs. Cate's coming.

HOME FOR OLD SOLDIERS.

A mass meeting was held in Faneuil hall, Boston, recently in aid of the plan for the establishment of a home for Grand Army veterans and their wives. The meeting was held under the auspices of the Governor John A. Andrew Home Association, which expects to raise a fund of about $15,000 to buy an estate in Everett. One of the great cries against slavery was the shocking separation of families which it entailed, no outcry is now made against the separation of the aged veteran and his wife.

PAUL REVERE POST 88 AT DEDICATION

Of Monument to the Soldiers and Sailors of the Civil War

AT RANDOLPH

A number of the members of Paul Revere Post 88, G. A. R. attended the dedication of the monument to the soldiers and sailors of the Civil war erected by the town of Randolph. There was a parade previous to the dedicatory exercises in which posts from surrounding towns took part. The dedicatory exercises were held in the public square at 11.30 and were as follows:

Opening address was made by James Fardy, chairman of the committee. The order of exercises follows: Prayer, the Rev. Daniel J. Gleeson; unveiling of monument, Mrs. William Porter and Miss Ella F. Palmer; dedication exercises, Post 110, G. A. R.; presentation of monument to town of Randolph, Herbert F. French, treasurer of committee; acceptance of monument for town, John E. McDonald, chairman of board of selectmen; oration, Granville C. Fiske, department commander, G. A. R.; benediction, the Rev. Archibald McCord.

The monument stands 21 feet high and upon its pedestal is the bronze figure of a skirmisher. The pedestal is of Westerly granite. Carved on the front side is the United States seal; south side, crossed guns, representing the arm; rear side, seal of Massachusetts; north side, emblems representative of the United States navy. The base of the monument is 11x9 feet. The memorial was made by J. N. White & Sons, West Quincy.

The committee in charge of the dedication exercises was: James Fardy, chairman; William A. Croak, secretary; Herbert F. French, treasurer; Edwin M. Mann, David Pope and Rufus I. Jones.

HOUGHS NECK MEETING

thankful and we would be in a position to accomplish something."

Henry W. French, the first president the Associates ever had, considered the time rather premature to take any action on the matter.

John P. Moses, one of the movement's foremost advocates, spoke at length upon the affair. "Quincy," said he, "is a large city, covering an expanse of 16 miles, from end to end. Houghs Neck pays this year about $41,000 in taxes, $39,000 of which is real estate. Considering that amount we receive but meagre improvements. The city of Quincy is furnished with automobiles, one valued at $5000 and another at $3000. The $5000 one we never use, the $3000 will use but little, and the chances are that they will never benefit us to any great degree, while Houghs Neck is affiliated with Quincy."

"Houghs Neck has always been considered, by the city officials, as an incumbrance to Quincy. Only last week I visited a city official, who told me that Houghs Neck was a detriment to Quincy, and if the other officials entertain this same idea, it would be a good thing, and they would all be glad to have us separated as soon as possible. We should have received our due share in return."

"An instrumental way to bring this separation of Houghs Neck about, is to have all residents here enrolled as voters. We now have about 250 voters in this section, whereas we should have between 500 and 600 on the list."

"Now is the time to act and it behooves us to be ceaseless in our activity."

Neil J. Regan, said he had not come with the intention of speaking, but rather to hear others speak. He said there was no reason why the residents of Houghs Neck should not be willing to secede from Quincy. "All the property owners, permanent residents, seem to be willing to pull away, and should be. If the money the City of Quincy has received from us, was balanced with the amount received in return by us for improvements, it would be found that the weight was a little heavier on the Quincy side." He then went on to state the amount of taxes paid to Quincy and saw that $15,000 should be forthcoming to the residents of Houghs Neck for betterment. He advocated a High School building and further improvements on the street, and in closing predicted that the secession of Houghs Neck would emblazon the pages of history in the same manner as the memorable Boston Tea Party does now."

Eugene R. Tessier, was called upon but said that he desired further time to consider the matter.

James E. Wall, democratic candidate for Mayor was eagerly watched, when he arose to speak. Mr. Wall spoke at length upon the issues which involved such an enterprise, and cautioned those present with reference to the steps to be taken and the means employed.

"A movement such as this, continued Mr. Wall, will necessarily entail time and money. Indifference, which has retarded our progress in the past, should not be noticeable in this instance, and it is a source of gratification to me, as president of the Houghs Neck Associates, to see that you are united on the project, and that it is your intention to push the matter through to a successful terminus with renewed activity and concerted and unified spirit. I am in hearty accord with any movement that is sustained by the majority and I am always ready to further the interest of anything that is conducive to the interest of the greater number, and which commands the attention of thoughtful citizens, and no anomaly will be evident if I find that the proposition which you have undertaken is feasible and carries with it the proper weight."

Harry C. Pennington, a candidate for council from Ward one, said it was a surprise to him to be called upon, as he was not versed on the matter and therefore was at a loss to offer any suggestions.

Ex-Councilman Michael Walsh, considered the movement one well worth unndertaking, but did not feel constrained to speak upon it.

Michael C. Coughlin did not hear of the meeting until Saturday night, although it had been advertised in the papers extensively and by circulars as well.

Alfred N. LaBrecque, was called upon. It was expected that he would start things going, but he said that he had come there on business and therefore was not in a position to offer any suggestions.

John Phelan spoke of the inducements he had offered to fill the causeway, but said they were never accepted. He talked along the taxation line and said that the movement was an ideal one.

Others called upon were David Fenner, Harry Hudson, Thomas F. Phillips, E. B. Warren, A. F. Baker, Harry C. Greenlaw, John P. Sullivan, Olof Blomquist, William P. Taylor and Arthur J. McCormick.

Towards the end of the meeting a little discussion ensued between Messrs. Connors and French relative to sending a petition to the legislature. It was finally decided to appoint a committee to draw up a petition and present it to the legislature, asking that Houghs Neck be separated from Quincy. The following constitute the committee: Matthew J. Connors, Henry W. French, John P. Moses, Harry C. Pennington, Michael C. Coughlin, Oliver G. Fosdick, William P. Taylor and John J. Phelan. The next meeting has been called for Saturday evening October 28, in Pandora Hall.

STATE WIDE CAMPAIGN

Much cruelty has been prevented by agents in Massachusetts, especially in the country districts, at slaughter-houses and amongst the pedlers. It is the aim of the Society, however, to push preventative work. It is always disagreeable to prosecute people, however much it may be necessary, and it is felt by the officers that much of this prosecution can be avoided by educating owners up to a better standard of treatment of their animals. Results in the past have been encouraging, although it is surprising to the uninitiated to discover how much ill-treatment of poor dumb beasts is practised throughout the state. From May, 1911, to Sept. 1, 1911, there were 93 prosecutions and 82 convictions of cruelty made by agents of the Society. There were 15,475 animals examined and 563 horses taken from work. There were 296 humanely killed to end their suffering. Over 53,000 animals were examined during the year 1910 and there were over 12,000 complaints received. Prosecutions numbered 225 and convictions 207. Over 1100 animals were killed, nearly all of these old and worn out horses. There have been over one million animals examined from 1868 to the present time, with nearly 10,000 prosecutions for cruelty or ill-treatment for the same period.

During the past summer ten watering stations were maintained in Boston alone, and 251,074 horses were watered in that city.

Among the publications issued by the Society are the monthly magazine, "Our Dumb Animals," various leaflets, a summary of the Massachusetts laws relating to dumb animals, reprints of court decisions in cruelty cases, and advice as to methods of treating animals and birds.

Dr. Francis H. Rowley is president of the Society and the vice presidents include such prominent people as Governor Foss, Ex-Governor Draper, Ambassador Guild, Archbishop O'Connell and many others.

For those who will have them properly posted, the Society supplies for free distribution placards for the protection of birds under Massachusetts laws; placards cautioning persons against overdriving, overloading, overworking, depriving of necessary sustenance and shelter or inflicting any unnecessary cruelty upon any animal.

The Massachusetts S. P. C. A. is the second oldest incorporated society of its kind in the United States and during its existence of nearly half a century has been unceasingly active in transforming public sentiment in relation to all dumb creatures. As the legally authorized guardian of animal life within the state it is compelled to enlarge its capacity to meet the conditions of a dense and ever-growing population. The mantle of protection must be broad enough to enfold the helpless and humblest creature in every remote and obscure corner of the commonwealth. The efforts of the Society have been seconded and encouraged by many humane minded individuals throughout the state, and in the campaign for wider usefulness which is now projected, the support and active co-operation of every humanity-loving citizen is invited.

ROOSTER COAL BRIQUETS

THE NEW ANTHRACITE COAL

ROOSTER BRIQUETS are made from the choicest small Scranton Anthracite coal, mined in Pennsylvania, called TWENTIETH CENTURY CHESTNUT size

Just consider for a moment what we offer here in this 20th CENTURY CHESTNUT.

First, 2000 pounds of clean, pure, hard coal without a rock or a piece of slate.

Second, fuel that cannot form into a clinker, by any known method of firing, consequently the linings and grates last indefinitely.

Third, they are made in nut size, being equally convenient for furnace heaters, open grates, as well as stoves; therefore, only one storage bin is necessary.

Fourth, and very IMPORTANT, the quality of this fuel is the SAME EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR, not a good ton today, and nothing like it the next time, in other words, when you once learn how to regulate your drafts you have nothing more to learn about burning BRIQUETS.

Fifth, no more sifting ashes these Briquets burn out clean. They require less wood to kindle.

Be sure to ask for "ROOSTERS" and get the Briquet made from pure Scranton Coal, from the largest Briquet plant in the country. They are better than coal, will last as long and cost less.

SYNOPSIS

Anna Granger, devoted mother of two small children, discovers that her husband is a weak character and that he has lied to her about a woman.

Posing as Miss Dale, she becomes stenographer to Burton Temple, through whose evidence her husband has been imprisoned. She thinks Temple is the guilty man and is acting the spy to clear her husband's name for his sake and that of her children.

Temple's eye had caught the portrait of his mother over the mantel. His mood suddenly veered to downright seriousness.

"Craven, I offered Crane $10,000 to get some tangible proof from Brady's office. But I'd give a million. I'd give every cent I've got to stand clear and be recognized as honest. Why, I tell you, it's hell! I tell you I've worked, worked all my life, worked hard to build up my career on honest, clean lines. You know it. I've turned my back to crooked ways when they were easily accessible, and now—I'm accused of being a thief, the dirtiest sort of a thief, the man who shoulders his crime on another." The muscles of his mouth twitched a bit; he felt his control slipping away, so he turned abruptly on his heel and averted his face.

The grim lawyer crossed over to lay his hand with almost a woman's tenderness on the big shoulder of his friend, and his voice broke with a suspicion of huskiness as he muttered:

"Steady, old man, steady. We'll kick clear of it all yet."

When Temple spoke again it was in his customary even tone:

"Craven, it seems to me that if Granger certified that check he didn't do it for mere love. Must have received something in return, eh?"

"Something in return?" said the lawyer dryly. "Sure, and a big something at that. It was worth it."

"What do you suppose he did it with, then?"

The lawyer shrugged his shoulders.

"The papers said he had a wife, I remember. Ever see her?"

"Never did," said Craven laconically. "Suppose she's extravagant?"

"Superfluous question," grunted Craven. "They all are." Craven was sixty and a bachelor by instinct, one might even say by heredity, for his father had succeeded in escaping matrimony until close upon fifty-two.

Temple smiled indulgently and began elaborating his new idea. "It has occurred to me that if we could establish that Granger has been spending or investing large sums of money lately it would help our cause. That's why I mentioned his wife."

Before he vouchsafed to reply the cynical old lawyer walked across the room and helped himself to a peg of brandy and soda.

"Your premise is all right, Temple," he sneered, "but your conclusion is sappy, asinine. We'll try to find out if he spent money, sure. But we won't waste time in trying to find out if he spent it on his wife. The great trouble with you is that you're romantic."

Temple nodded comprehensively, the odd, quizzical, boyish uplift coming to his eyebrows again notwithstanding.

"Dare say you're right," said he simply.

"Of course it was a noble and high minded supposition on your part," grinned the bachelor, "and, having the marriage germ in your system, it was to be expected. You haven't a wife, so you naturally fancy the money would be spent on one. Granger has a wife. He naturally spends it on somebody else. Each man turns to the thing he doesn't possess."

Temple nodded again. "Well, when you go into town on Monday, get the still hunt started for the woman, will you, old man?"

"Sure, you bet your life. But," he called back over his shoulder, as he was leaving the room, "we won't hunt for her in Westfield, N. J., where Granger's home is; we'll hunt for her in West Forty-third street, New York."

"And this wife of Granger's," murmured Temple, left to himself, "I suppose she has faith in him; they all have. I dare say it's she who's working behind this plan to get his pardon; doubtless she's somewhere now, praying for him, waiting for him to come back to her vindicated, an honest man. And I? Well, I'm fighting to prove his conviction just, and there you are! Queer little muddle it is, after all, this play of life. I wonder sometimes if the great Eye mustn't get tired of it and the great Ear wearied of it. I wonder"—

A light, firm knock at the door caused Temple to wake from his reverie. His new secretary entered, ready for work.

* * * * * * * *

From the first days of his association with the Gotham Trust company in an inconsequential capacity to the later days when he had risen to its presidency, allies and rivals had found in Burton Temple a personal humility that was charming, but underneath it fighting qualities that were terrible. He had the gentleness of a lamb and the strength of a lion.

Immediately Anna Granger had recognized the second of these qualities. Now, after some weeks of daily work with him, in the gradual unveiling of the man's personality, she was coming to a sense of the first. Her feelings and judgments about her host were beginning to pulse through her mind with an energy that she seemed powerless to arrest. They did not make her happy; far from it, but they quickened and intensified all the acts of thinking and living.

Usually, however, she succeeded in recapturing herself, in beating back the thoughts which, like troops on a doubtful field, appeared to be carrying her into the ambushes and strongholds of an enemy; she was impatient and scornful of them.

As to Temple himself, maybe he didn't know it, but already he was in the way to fall as completely in love with his new secretary as Amadis of Gaul or Aucassin of Beaucaire or any other hero of romance you may choose to mention. Even in the first few days he had found himself thinking more of her in a personal way than he had ever thought of any woman. He was not the fashion of man to whom women in general appealed—not that he was wanting in a certain admiration for them or in reverence, but his early life had been devoted to his mother and to his career, so that during the days when a man usually chooses a wife Temple had been too occupied to seek for one. Later—well, somehow he had not met with any one who had quickened the romance that was in him.

For at heart this cool, collected man of finance was romantic. He was more; he was an idealist. He was the sort of man who would husband to his original mate or none.

Unconsciously he made constant little discoveries in Anna—most charming yields of new regions of intelligence, new points of humor, unexpected fountains of emotion, unfathomable depths of womanliness. Her eyes and her hair pleased him; her slim, firm, delicate hands— No; he repudiated that. It was herself—her inimitable self.

Among those present were Nathan Haskell Dole, Rev. George Hodges, dean of the Episcopal Theological School of Cambridge, and Mrs. Hodges, Mrs. Thomas Bailey Aldrich, Miss Caroline Ticknor, Nixon Waterman, Miss Abbie Fowle Brown, Willis Boyd Allen and Prof. Darling A. Sharp.

Following a general discussion of authors and literary subjects, in which all took a part, tea was served, the pourers being Mrs. Melville Hunnewell and Miss Allison Howard.

IDA LEWIS IS DYING

"Grace Darling of America" Suffers Stroke of Apoplexy

Newport, R. I., Oct. 23.—Ida Lewis, whose many daring rescues as keeper of the Lime Rock light in Narragansett bay has earned for her the title of the "Grace Darling of America," is still unconscious as a result of the stroke of apoplexy which she received while at her post of duty. Miss Lewis is 72 years old and for sixty years has been at the Lime Rock light.

In 1867 she was appointed keeper of the light by special act of congress, to succeed her father upon his death, the only woman, it is said, ever to receive that honor.

TRIAL OF SUBMARINE

Sturgeon Built at Quincy Will Get Severe Test

CAPT. GLENN COMMANDS

Disregarding the rain and dense fog, the new submarine boat Sturgeon, built at Quincy, Mass., was sent to a sheltered position in Penoboscot Bay Sunday for submarine trials. The southerly breeze kicked up such a sea, however, that the attempt was abandoned for the day, and the half-stripped Sturgeon came back to port, past the fog-bound battleship New Hampshire.

The Sturgeon is commanded by Capt. L. B. Glenn of Quincy. The builders are represented by Eric H. Ewertz, and the Navy by Lieut. D. R. Battles. Another attempt to submerge the craft will be made today. It is intended to try and submerge her 400 feet.

POLITICS IN WOLLASTON.

The Republican political pot for the state election has started boiling in earnest at Wollaston. On Wednesday evening a rally will be held at Brazee hall, Wollaston, under the auspices of the Republican State committee.

The meeting will be called to order by Arthur W. Rohn, chairman of the Republican Ward committee and Louis F. R. Langelier, chairman of the Republican City committee will preside.

Among the speakers are: Senator Charles H. Brown of Medford; Ex-Representative William E. Weeks of Everett, Senator George L. Barnes of Weymouth and Councilman William J. Leslie, Republican candidate for Representative. Senator Eugene C. Hultman is also expected to speak.

On Tuesday evening a house rally in the interests of Candidate Leslie will be held at the home of John L. Hamilton corner of Elm avenue and Phillips street, to which the voters of the vicinity have been invited. Councilman Leslie and other local speakers will be present.

TODAY'S COURT.

Jacob Asnes was arraigned for violation of the liquor law at Quincy. Case continued until Oct. 26.

William O'Keefe and Patrick H. Hand were sent to the state farm for drunkenness at Randolph.

Waino Wallenius was fined $15 for drunkenness at Quincy.

Manuel J. VasConcello was fined $3 on account of costs for drunkenness at Quincy.

Frank J. McLaughlin was fined $15 for drunkenness at Randolph.

WEYMOUTH FORE RIVER BRIDGE.

Rapid progress is being made on the repairs and alterations on this bridge, the fender piers have been rebuilt in a substantial manner. A temporary bridge for foot travel is now in use. The draw opening in the present bridge is to be increased to 125 feet. The Bay State street Railway Company commenced removing rails on October 16. Passengers are now obliged to leave the cars and cross over on the foot way. It will take about three months to complete the work. The Boston Bridge Works have the contract for the rebuilding of the bridge. The designs for the alterations in the bridge were made by Whitman & Howard, Engineers, who have charge of the construction.

CLAIM ILL-TREATMENT

New Bedford Seamen Take French Leave of Six Whalers

Providence, Oct. 23.—Twenty-two New Bedford seamen were brought here by the steamer Roma from Fayal, Azores, where the men had left the five whalers because they claimed they had been ill-treated. The vessels were the Alice Knowles, A. E. Whyland, Mystic, Charles W. Morgan and Andrew Hicks, all hailing from New Bedford.

The men were shipped on the Roma by the American consul at Fayal as destitute sailors when the steamer called there on her way from Marseilles and Naples to this port.

An aged woman whom the immigration authorities detained because they believed she did not have any money disillusioned the officials by producing $10,000.

An Invitation to Mr. Foss

Mr. Foss is respectfully invited to interview personally every shoe manufacturer in Massachusetts and then report honestly just how many of the entire number fail to concur with John S. Kent, President of the Brockton Shoe Manufacturers' Association, who said in a recently published interview:

"As at present managed, the United Company is entirely fair to the shoe manufacturers of the country. The Company uses all exactly alike, and the policy pursued is a direct preventive of monopoly in shoe manufacturing and is an encouragement to the small manufocturer to go into business.

"It seems to me that opposition to the machinery company comes largely from parties who are disgruntled for personal reasons. The few who start the opposition movement are men, as a rule, who have been turned down by the Company on some inside agreement which they desire in order to give them an advantage over their rivals, and because the Company treats every manufacturer, large and small, exactly alike, they oppose it, and political pressure is brought to bear to interrupt and discommode business."

Stylish Shoes

for young men and young women, you'll have to come to this live store and you'll find new styles that positively can't be found anywhere else in this city.

"Every Little Fashion Has a Meaning All Its Own"

A few years ago short sleeves reminded the women that hands and arms needed care—today with the vogue of the short, scant skirt comes the era of the well dressed foot—feet and ankles were never so conspicuous as the present styles in dress make them and every woman who cares about her personal appearance should wear FOOTWEAR OF GOOD QUALITY.

We show only the latest approved models and you are safe in relying on us to shoe you in correct fashion.

OFFICERS MAKE RAID SUNDAY

Inspector Goodhue, accompanied by Officers Johnson, Dhooge and Donovan raided the premises of Jacob Asnes at the corner of Cyril and Main streets Sunday afternoon. The officers were armed with a search warrant to search for liquor. They found no liquor but did find a quantity of empty bottles. These were not seized however. Asnes was arrested for violation of the liquor law.

BRIEFS

The city has begun work straigtening West Squantum street.

John L. Miller took out papers this morning for the Republican nomination for Mayor.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Poquett of Alburgh, Vt., are visiting their son Arthur Poquett of Atlantic.

It seems good to see the sun once more. Here's hoping that it may continue to shine for some days to come.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Connor, nee Edna Storer, of Newcomb place are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter born Saturday, Oct. 21.

The first annual fair of Abner B. Packard camp, Sons of Veterans will open tonight at Faxon hall. There will be a parade in City Square in the early part of the evening.

An interesting meeting is promised those attending the meeting of the Quincy Women's club tomorrow afternoon at the clubhouse on Presidents hill. Mrs. Mary Chandler West, the well known pianist and Miss Ruth L. Hardy the young singer who is meeting with so much success, are to assist in the entertainment. Judge Avery and Dr. Brackett are the speakers of the afternoon. The meeting is an open one and the public is invited to attend and enjoy the meeting with club members.

RALLY HELD THIS NOON.

A number of granite workers attended the rally, held this noon time in the interest of John J. McDevitt, candidate for the House of Representatives from the sixth Norfolk district, at Fitzgerald's Stone shed on Miller street. Mr. McDevitt was given a warm reception and confined his remarks to the issues appertaining to the coming election. He scored Senator Barnes for a number of votes and read from the House Journal a number of instances where the present senatorial incumbent had voted against the welfare of the laboring class. In so speaking, Mr. McDevitt urged the election of ex-representative Coombs.

Mr. McDevitt outlined the policies that he had adopted and spoke at length upon the various matters he had taken up in his platform. He was warmly applauded at the conclusion of his remarks. Mr. McDevitt and a list of well known speakers will conduct a rally this evening at 8 o'clock at the corner of Cross and Copeland streets. Councilman Boyd will preside and others expected to speak are Councilman John D. Smith, William Kelley, the labor agitator, Rednor P. Coombs and candidate for senate.

The list of rallies for the remainder of the week follows: Tuesday noon, Tubular Rivet Works, Wollaston; Tuesday evening at 8 P. M.—Atlantic Depot; Wednesday noon, Hitchcock Quarry, Quarry street, West Quincy; Wednesday evening, at 8 P. M. Brewers Corner; Thursday noon, Blue Hill Quarry, off Forest avenue, Friday noon, Joseph Walker's Stone Shed, on Arthur street, and Saturday noon Monte Bros.' Stone Shed, Willard street. Well known speakers will accompany the candidate at every rally.

BRIEFS

Mrs. Theophilus King of Adams street is to entertain the Hospital Aid association at its October meeting on Thursday afternoon.

At a meeting of the Friend's club of the Atlantic Methodist Episcopal church the following officers were elected: President, Adrian Parker; secretary, Edward Stewart; treasurer, James Lang and care taker, Raymond Hoyt.

CANDIDATES AT RALLY

Meeting Called Sunday to Form Hebrew Independent Club

THE SPEAKERS

A meeting which was attended by about one hundred prominent Hebrews of this city and their friends, was held in the basement of A. O. H. hall, Franklin street, Sunday evening. The gathering had been called for the purpose of forming a Hebrew Independent Club. Samuel Levi, was chairman, and the prominent Hebrew speakers included Samuel Lewenberg, Samuel L. Balleer, and Micheal Foriseca of Ward 25, Boston. The gathering was also graced by the presence of Walter C. Piper, candidate for the House of Representatives from the fifth Norfolk District, John F. Merrill, candidate for County Commissioner and Councilman John R. Richards, who had been invited to speak. All three spoke to those present. Mr. Piper spoke at length upon different matters and also touched upon his own candidacy. Mr. Merrill did not confine his remarks to his own interests but urged the election of Louis A. Frothingham for Governor. Councilman Richards did not attend with the intention of speaking on any one subject and outlined numerous policies that could readily be adopted in the formation of a citizen's organization.

HUSTLER'S CONTEST.

Only thirteen days are left in S. & H. Hustler's contest. Boys and girls—we start today on the last week but one in the Hustler's contest. This means that you and your friends must get out and show some work if you wish to win one of those six beautiful time pieces displayed in the window of the Quincy Department Store.

The list of leading contestants will be published in the Ledger tomorrow night. As the premium parlor is open tonight you have a good chance to hustle today after school and vote your green stamps and Ledger coupons and be with the leaders when this list is published.

Remember only 13 days left. Start to hustle today.

MAY RESIGN.

A persistent rumor in Washington Saturday, declared that Postmaster General Hitchcock will resign Jan. 1. to engage in business in New York. Mr. Hitchcock is was said had told several men who hold positions in the postoffice through his influence to be on the lookout for new places. His confidential secretary, George W. Reik has already given up his $2500 position for other work. Others close to their chief have been hunting jobs.

GOLF AT WOLLASTON.

M. J. McKay won the prize in the handicap vs. bogy play at the Wollaston links Saturday afternoon with a score of 1 down. Although it rained about all the afternoon and the links were heavy, sixteen men played over the course and only five of that number failed to turn in cards. The score was M. J. McKay 1 down, R. R. Freeman 2 down, J. J. Kennedy 2 down, G. J. Murray 2 down, F. G. Thayer 3 down, W. J. Kendall 4 down, H. B. Driver 4 down, J. A. Campbell 4 down, J. J. Gallagher 8 down.

Furniture upholstered and repaired; mattresses made over; draperies and cushions to order. Highest class work at prices fair to pay. Henry L. Kincaide & Co.

SUNDAY SERVICES

FIRST CHURCH.

Rev. Adelbert L. Hudson, Billings lecturer for the American Unitarian association occupied the pulpit at the First church Sunday morning. Although the weather was dismal there was a good attendance. Rev. Mr. Hudson speaks without notes and is a forcible and interesting speaker. He took for his text Sunday these words, "Prove all things. Hold fast to that which is good." It was a brilliant and masterly sermon.

After the morning service Rev. Mr. Hudson conducted the opening service of the Sunday school.

This afternoon Mrs. George Lewis of East Walpole will read a paper on "Some women of the Old Testament" at the meeting of the Alliance.

Sunday evening at the meeting of the Young People's Religious Union Mrs. Horatio Cate of Canton read an interesting paper on "Ruth."

The Young People's Union will have charge of the Flower table at the seventh biennial bazaar to be held Nov. 9, 10 and 11 at the Hotel Vendome, Boston.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

The regular services were held yesterday at the First Presbyterian church. Mr. Matheson, pastor, preached at both services and took for his morning text, Colossians 3-3. "For ye are dead, and your life is hid with Christ in God," and gave a short sermonette for the children on the two words "Thank you," and told them no matter what any one does for us we should always say "Thank you," and told some instances where even business men take the trouble to see that their clerks and employes say thank you, and it helps others and shows our appreciation for things done for us.

Both services were well attended despite the rainy weather.

The Bible school and Men's class was held at the usual hour.

The C. E. service was held at 6 P. M. The leader was Miss Jessie Shirley and assisted by Miss Flora Thompson.

There will be a meeting of the Brotherhood Wednesday evening and all members are urged to be present.

The prayer meeting wil be held on Thursday evening, at 7.30 and the Young People's meeting at 7 P. M.

WOLLASTON BAPTIST.

Sermon by the pastor Rev. Joseph Walther. Subject: "Things that Symbolize the Heart and Life of a true Christian." A. F. Bromley, General Secretary of the Y. M. C. A. gave the Rand and Walther Men's classes a very clever ten minutes' talk.

The Junior Endeavor met at 3.30 in the chapel. Miss Ethel M. Campbell in charge.

Y. P. S. C. E. met at 6 in the chapel. Subject: "Lessons I have learned from Things." Jer. 13:1-10; Matt. 22: 15-22. Leader Miss Winifred Church.

Evening service at 7 in the Auditorium. Sermon, "Men Who did Things." Subject: "The Man Who Dared."

Tuesday evening at 7.45 a Cottage Prayer meeting will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Holmes, 8 Chestnut street. Mr. Selden H. Nickerson will lead. Friday evening at 7.45 the regular meeting for praise prayer and testimony will be held in the chapel. Subject: "His Industry." This subject continues our meditations on the Character of Jesus. Saturday afternoon at 3 the Church Helpers of the Unitarian church will hold a food and candy sale in the Unitarian vestry for benevolent purposes. Saturday afternoon at 4.30 and evening at 7.30 the Quincy City Union of King's Daughters will meet with the Reaper's Circle at Christ church, Quincy.

WOLLASTON METHODIST CHURCH

The services at the Wollaston Methodist church, Sunday. were well attended, Rev. Charles Wesley Kelley of Sheldon, Vermont, spoke in the morning on Christ and the child. He spoke of Christ's interest in and love for the child. He also spoke of the duty of the parent and the church toward the child. He said we should save the child from going out into sin. The child should early in life be brought into the church. The parent should be careful in the reading matter for the children.

Mr. Kelley also spoke to the Sunday school for a few minutes.

There was a good attendance at the Sunday school service. Several of the classes are soon to enter upon a contest for new members and attendance.

Miss Marion Nenern the Deaconess, had charge of the Junior league meeting.

Mrs. Dewsnap led the Epworth league devotional meeting, and Storer R. Wiggin led the praise service.

At the seven o'clock service Mr. J. A. Sedgwick led the praise service and the pastor spoke on "Our Opportunities."

FORE RIVER AGAIN WINS.

The Fore River soccer football kept up its winning pace last Saturday by defeating the strong Brockton team by the score of 4 to 0. Both teams are members of the Association Football league. The condition of the grounds was a serious drawback to the players on both sides. For the home team the work of Harkins, Dunlop and Hughes was conspicuous, while features were contributed on the part of the losers by N. Petrie, Brown and Frost. The summary:

Frank Fessenden Crane Receives Ovation At Convention

GIFT FROM MAYOR

Frank Fessenden Crane who has returned from a meeting of the Atlantic Deeper Waterways Association at Richmond, Va., reports that much good was accomplished, the members everywhere receiving an enthusiastic welcome.

Speaking of the great ovation given Mr.Crane the Richmond paper says: "Frank Fessenden Crane, of Quincy, Mass., replying to Mayor Richardson's speech of welcome, offered the personal greetings of Governor Foss, of Mass. Referring to the Norfolk Convention in 1909, he said: 'You gave us such a taste of Virginia hospitality in that city that we could not forget it, and had to come to Richmond for some more.

The Mayor of Quincy, has Commissioned me to present this souvenir to the Mayor of Richmond, said Mr. Crane. It is a little polished disk of granite taken from the Bunker Hill Monument. He sends it to you, sir, in the hope that granite will soon be

Golden Rule Degree Staff Paid Fraternal Visit

TRIP IN SPECIAL CAR

The Golden Rule degree staff of Manet Encampment, I. O. O. F., paid a fraternal visit to North Cambridge Encampment Monday evening and worked the Golden Rule degree upon thirteen candidates for that lodge. The degree staff was accompanied by a large number of patriarchs from Manet Encampment who made the trip in a special car which left Quincy at 6 o'clock. On their arrival at North Cambridge a banquet was waiting for them to which they did ample justice.

The camp then convened and the degree was exemplified in a manner that called forth many words of praise from the Grand Officers of the Grand Encampment, as well as from the officers of the Grand Lodge, both of which bodies were present.

The work as noted above was exceptionally well done and several of the Grand Officers took occasion to say that it was the best work they had ever witnessed. It is safe to say that the team will receive many invitations during the coming winter months to exemplify the degree.

The return home was made by a special electric car, Quincy being reached in the early morning.

WENT SMELT FISHING.

According to Inspector Lennon of the Board of Health, the municipal barber went smelt fishing Monday afternoon. Jim ignored the proffered top rubber boots of the Inspector saying that he would not need them. Ed knew better however and was highly elated when the aforesaid municipal barber returned home with wet and muddy feet. The start was made all right but the tide had turned when the return was made, so that it was necessary to wade a distance of twenty-five or more feet in mud and water to get ashore. Lennon says the barber does not know it all even if he thinks he does.

OFFICIAL INSPECTION

Is Made of Quincy Commandery By Em. Sir R. W. Hilliard

THOSE PRESENT

Em. Sir. R. Walter Hilliard, Grand Warder of the Grand Commandery of Massachusetts and Rhode Island, Knights Templars, made an official visit of inspection to Quincy Commandery at its stated conclave Monday evening, the occasion being one which called for a large attendance of Sir Knights from Quincy Commandery as well as many Sir Knights from other Commanderies throughout the jurisdiction.

The Commandery opened at 3 o'clock, and during the afternoon session the Red Cross degree was exemplified. At 6.30 a recess was taken, during which a banquet was served by Sir Knight Henry P. Furnald.

On reassembling at 7.30 the Grand Warder and suit was announced in waiting and a committee consisting of Em. Sir Arthur W. Stetson, Sir. Geo. H. Field, Sir. Charles S. Adams, Sir. Andrew Milne, Sir. J. Arthur Sparrow and Sir. Marcus Chase was appointed to escort the grand officers to the asylum. This committee was accompanyed by the drill squad of Gethsemane Commandery, under command of Adjutant A. E. Billings.

The Grand Warder was accompanyed by Em. Sir. George W. Knowlton, Past Commander of Joseph Warren Commandery as Deputy Grand Warder and the following suite. Em. Sir. William H. Peterson Past Commander of Gethsemane Commandery, Em. Sir. A. C. Jewett Commander of Gethsemane Commandery, Em. Sir. Charles E. Pierce, Past Commander of St. Omer Commandery, Em. Sir. E. Percy Davis, Past Commander of Holy Sephelere Commandery of Pawtucket, R. I. Em. Sir. Samuel Shaw, Past Commander of Gethsemane Commandery, Em. Sir. Alfred B. Parker of Cambridge Commandery, and Em. Sir. George Breeder, Past Commander of Gethsemane Commandery.

The grand officers were received with due honors by Em. Sir. Albert W. Fay, the Commander and officers of Quincy Commandery.

After the inspection the Temple degree was exemplified upon a number of candidates.

Following the work of the evening the escort guard of Gethsemane Commandery gave an exhibition drill which was greatly enjoyed. During the remarks by the grand officers Quincy Commandery received many words of congratulation upon its remarkable growth, as well as many words of encouragement for the future.

Commander Fay announced that the Grand Commandery would meet Thursday and that Quincy Commandery, which has been working under a dispensation would probably be granted its charter at that meeting.

CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATION.

A competitive examination of applicants for the position of inspector of steam boilers on the District Police force will be held Nov. 28. It will take each applicant two days to complete his examination. Applicants will be examined in training and experience; arithmetic, algebra, including quadratic equations, and the use of logarithms; letter-writing; questions on engineering and elementary mechanics; and state boiler laws. Applicants will be subjected to a medical examination, and the men who are not physically qualified or who shall be found to be unable to enter the manhole of a boiler 15 inches by 11 inches, will be rejected. Each applicant must hold a first class engineer's license and must not be under twenty-five, nor over forty-five years of age.

Men desiring to take this examination may secure blank applications by applying in person or by letter at the office of the Civil Service Commission, Room 152, State House, Boston, Mass.

FAIR OPENS WITH LARGE ATTENDANCE

Camp 95 Sons of Veterans Prepared For Busy Week at Faxon Hall

THE VARIOUS TABLES

The first fair of Camp 95, Sons of Veterans, was ushered in under most favorable auspices in Faxon Hall, Monday evening before a large and appreciative audience. The national colors were strewn about the hall and together with the many picturesque and brilliant decorations that adorned the hall, enabled the scene of the opening event to present a most enticing appearance.

The fair will continue throughout the week and it is expected that the enterprise will meet with great success. Previous to the opening of Monday's affair, the Quincy Fife and Drum Corps paraded through the different streets in the vicinity of Quincy Square and finally came to a halt at the station, where Division Commander Wellington, of the Sons of Veterans, with his staff, was met and escorted to the hall to officially open the fair. Tomorrow afternoon a whist party will be in order and information as to the different features will be given out during the remainder of the week.

The whist party will be given under the direction of the auxiliary to the Sons of Veterans. The members of the Camp were present with their reserves, as were also a number of the Spanish War Veterans. Those in charge of the various tables were:

Candy table—Mrs. Charles Merritt and Mrs. Cora N. Johnson of the Ladies' Auxiliary.

Sons of Veterans' table—Mrs. Geo. Penniman and Mrs. Newman Savage.

Spanish War Veterans' table—Mrs. Belle Morton, president of the auxiliary.

Indian fortune teller—Brother Albert Farnum in charge.

Larkin Booth—Mrs. Joseph Hayden.

Preserves and fruit table—Miss Anna May Smith.

Fancy Work table—Mrs. Arthur Merrill.

Fancy Aprons—Mrs. Emma Stoddard, Mrs. Emma Blagden.

Candy Wheel—Parker South of the Camp.

Shooting gallery—Brother F. W. Andrews.

RALLY AT WEST QUINCY

Fully 500 Attend Meeting At Cross and Copeland Streets

LABOR LEADER SPEAKS

Fully 500, a number of whom were of the fairer sex, attended the rally held Monday evening, at the corner of Cross and Copeland streets, West Quincy, in the interests of John J. McDevitt, candidate for representative of the sixth Norfolk district and the entire democratic state ticket. It had been expected that Congressman Curley and some of the candidates for state offices would be present, but notice was received at the last hour that they could not attend.

The rally was presided over by Councilman Harry T. Boyd, who outlined the issues which were at hand and spoke in the interests of Both Mr. McDevitt and Rednor P. Coombs, senatorial candidate. Senatorial Candidate Coomb's was the first speaker.

He spoke at length on the record of his opponent, Senator Barnes, and said that his showing last year should warrant him defeating the present incumbent. He urged all to support Mr. McDevitt and predicted that he would be elected by a substantial majority.

He was followed by Councilman John D. Smith, chairman of the democratic city committee. Mr. Smith is managing the campaign of the democratic senatorial aspirant and gave a complete account of the relative merits of both candidates.

William Kelly, the labor leader, spoke on the record of Mr. Leslie, and flayed him for his attitude on the half holiday question.

All of the speakers were warmly received and Mr. McDevitt was given a great reception when he arose. He also took Senator Barnes to task and read a number of his votes from the Home Journal. He also scored his opponent Mr. John Leslie for voting against the half holiday measure. In conclusion Mr. McDevitt stated that he based his election on his record in the council and the platform he had drawn up. This noon time Mr. McDevitt held a rally at the Tubular Rivet and was accompanied by two well known speakers.

—It is reported that a mammoth undertaking is under way near Mt. Croyden and Mt. Kearsarge valleys, New Hampshire which will turn these valleys into a chain of eight lakes to establish one of the greatest water powers in America. Engineers have for over a year been surveying and sounding the land on both sides of lake Sunapee, where the lakes will be located. The lakes will range from three to eight miles in length and will furnish power for manufacturing plants in Massachusetts and New Hampshire.—Milford, N. H. Cabinet.

SCHOOL CENSUS COMPLETED

Total Number of Children of School Age Is 8476

LIST BY WARDS

Charles H. Johnson who has just completed his work taking the school census reports the total number of children of school age, that is between the ages of 5 and 14 years to be 8476, a gain of 522 over last year. All wards of the city show a gain, the greatest being in Ward 3 of 188. Ward 6 comes next with a net gain of 147 and Ward 1, with a gain of 93. Ward 2 shows a gain of 53, Ward 4, a gain of 36, and Ward 5 a gain of 5.

The total by wards shows Ward 3 to lead with a grand total of 2127. The totals of the other wards are as follows: Ward One, 1259, Ward Two, 1129; Ward Four, 1663; Ward Five, 982; Ward Six, 1316.

The number of children by ages is as follows: Five years, 568; Six, 739; Seven, 748; Eight, 958; Nine, 830; Ten 938; Eleven, 925; Twelve, 901; Thirteen, 1002; Fourteen, 831.

LAD INJURED PLAYING "VOLCANO"

Wendell, the 13 year old son of Arthur Feltis of Mechanic street, had his face and hands peppered with powder Saturday. The lad with companions was playing volcano in the back yard and to make it more realistic, secured a quantity of powder over which dirt was placed. Getting too much dirt over the powder it exploded with a bang filling his face and hands with powder. His injuries are not considered dangerous.

WELL KNOWN RESIDENT PASSES AWAY

Joseph L. Whiton a Most Respected Citizen Dies in the Corey Hill Hospital

BORN IN QUINCY IN 1844

Joseph L. Whiton, one of Quincy's well known and most respected citizens passed away Monday afternoon at the Corey Hill hospital, where he underwent a surgical operation, Sunday. Mr. Whiton rallied from the operation and it was thought that his recovery would be rapid. Complications set in however and his system was unable to withstand the strain.

Mr. Whiton was a son of Isaiah G. Whiton and was born in Quincy Point, Nov. 14, 1844, within a few hundred feet from where he had since resided.

He received the education common with boys of those days and at the age of sixteen years started in to earn his own living and make his mark in the world. His first business venture was with a dry goods trimming store in Boston, where he remained for two years. The retail trade was not to his liking however, and on Nov. 5, 1860, he entered the dry goods commission house of what was then Faulkner & Kimball, and which afterward became Faulkner, Page & Co.

He entered the store as a general utility boy at the salary of $2 per week or $100 per year, hardly enough to pay his car fare to and from Boston, the single fare those days being thirty cents. He started in to learn the business, and although the lot of the boy was not a happy one, he was persistant and eventually reached the top round of the ladder.

In those early days there were no electric cars running from his home to the depot and his salary was not large enough for him to enjoy the luxury of riding in the barge, so he walked both ways. The first train

IF YOU PLEASE

Two months ago Mr. Walter Berry engaged me to write the ads of the leading store for food stuffs in this city. To this I agreed, as writing these ads has not interfered with my regular business, the house furnishing line. My method has been to walk through the store as a customer would and ask the prices of goods that appealed to me,—then go home and write it in form to attract the eyes of the public. I have asked the actual wholesale cost of foods and have been more surprised to note the small margin of profit the retail man gets for his goods, and most always, when an article is marked as a "bargain" simply to attract the public is sold BELOW COST. How market men can run big stores on such a small profit is a deep mystery to me. It is no wonder that store keepers sigh and say—if so and so would only "pay up" we might buy a cent cheaper and in quantity, but if the public are asked to settle we lose their trade. But eaten bread is soon forgotten and the market merchants must sell close because somebody has got to be in the "eat business," but my end of it is to continue to write it up so you will read the ads. I hope you read them and at the same time I am glad I am not a market merchant.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Turkey has discovered that when a nation wants a navy it wants one awfully bad.

Stephenson was elected Senator from Wisconsin by a majority of 45,000 cigars and 210,000 glasses of beer.

Mr. Taft has sent a roll top desk as a gift to the sultan of Oman, though a breech-clout might be a more fitting present.

How fortunate that no presidential election is coming on this fall to be interfered with by the world series of ball games.

"A New Jersey candidate for sheriff is campaigning in an automobile hearse." Very suggestive business for the undertaker.

In view of the difficulty of getting jurors as manifested in the McNamara trial, why not require all the judges and lawyers to take their turns?

Rev. Cortland Meyers says Boston is a Gomorrah, and Rev. Herbert Johnson says it is a Sodom, but there is a general agreement that New York is a Jerusalem.

Woodrow Wilson says liquor has no place in politics, but anyone who ever observed the crowd at a convention knows that it fills a very wide place in the politicians.

Plowing matches are popular in rural Illinois, but no member of the 400 will lower himself by touching an implement that is useful in supporting human life.

Some people think Mr. Taft should stay at home and not take chances on such affairs as the Southern Pacific dynamite outrage. But anyway when he gets away from Washington, he escapes the danger of catching the sleeping sickness from the office holders.

THE UNMARRIED MINISTER.

People who query why churches have so strong a preference for married ministers may find some answers in the strange case of Rev. C. V. T. Richeson, of Cambridge, Mass., who is charged with the murder of Miss Avis Linnell, in a case whose dramatic features will become historic.

The minister who has never yet encountered the brain storms attendant on passionate love is very like the colt that has never run up against an automobile. You can't tell what he will do.

The colt may be tagged all over with registered ancestors. The most astute of trainers may have curbed his kicking heels. But until he has shown just what he will do when a chugging motor car arises like a snorting ghost around a turn of the road, you never feel like taking your family to ride behind him.

Even if Rev. Mr. Richeson fully demonstrates his innocence of this black crime, his life story may yet reveal a susceptibility to female charms that looks rather frisky for the man in the frock coat and white tie.

The young clergyman probably thinks that he undergoes the most searching test when he first stands up in a pulpit as a candidate. As he scans the critical faces, from that of the seminary professor who is out gunning for an error in a Greek derivation, to that of the fluffy maiden who frowns on his colored stockings, his trembling hands can scarcely grasp the hymn book.

But the real examination day comes after the formalists of theology have placed their red tape approval on him, after the sacred hands of ordination have been placed upon his head. The real test often wears the white gown of maidenhood, whose dainty feet have trod so little of life's dark pathway that it fails to distinguish between religious aspiration and sex attraction.

If the minister is man enough to say things that men will isten to, all the passions of manhood are locked in his breast. If he is to relieve the professional disabilities accompanying the unmarried state, he needs to win and wed some true hearted girl who will assume the burden's of the minister's wife. But at best courtship has calf-like phases that assort but grotesquely with the starched proprieties of the priesthood.

From which it will be seen that the theological seminary of the future ought to provide a female annex by which wifeless ministers can be provided with a ready made matrimonial garment.

PRISON STRIPES.

The recent announcement that Atlanta federal jail is to give up the habit of costuming prisoners in stripes is one of the many changes taking place in prison methods.

Lawmakers and prison officials have tried a wide range of methods of dealing with criminals. Some men now living can recall the days when the jail at Simsbury, Ct., used to chain the prisoners' feet to iron bars and their heads to iron beams, the quarters reeking with filth.

At the other extreme are the prisons of Japan, where the criminals are paid for their work, and given such a happy time that they often return voluntarily. The Japanese idea of prison clothing is blue and brown kimonos of comfortable appearance.

Warden T. J. Tynan of Colorado State Prison, a notable figure among modern prison managers, keeps his men in stripes for six months. After that he takes off the hated badge of degradation.

"If you will give me a square deal," he then says. "I'll give you one. Be honest to me and yourself."

Then he puts his men in olive green khaki, and takes them out to the prison camps, where they labor on the road without armed guards. The men thrive physically, and do good work. Recently some free men have been employed on road jobs near by, and Tynan's convicts beat the free men both on the quality of their work and at base ball.

The matter of clothes may seem a mere detail of prison management. Actually it must penetrate a long way into the consciousness of every prisoner of any intelligence and sensitiveness.

Humanitarianism in these putty hearted days may go too far. Warden Tynan's idea of wearing stripes for at least six months is very likely a wise provision to make the iron of disgrace sear the very heart of the criminal.

Under his method, the graduation from stripes of khaki may be quite an incentive to good behavior. In so far as the prisoner shows himself willing to live the normal life of work and service and harmony with the state, he may well be allowed to assume the normal dress of the citizen.

MAKE SATURDADY EASIER.

There is a movement on foot to induce the closing of stores on Saturday night, so as to put an end to the larger part of the Saturday night dissipation—that is, the trading and the worrying until near midnight. The purpose is to bring about a Sabbath day preparation, and in this way to secure a real rest for the people. Perhaps the promoters of this movement have more in mind the sacred nature of Sunday and a desire for its observance as God's day rather than as man's day. We are inclined to think, however, that it would be a good thing if everybody would shorten his Saturday work and get the tired feeling out of his soul before he goes to his night's sleep. Sunday in that way might become a more thoroughly genial and wholesome affair and give us what we need—real rest.—Christian Register.

ONLY.

Anna Frances Rice.

It was only a smile, but with love bestowed,
So it lightened a traveler's weary load,
And it shortened the way of the homeward road.
Only a smile!

It was only a touch, and so soft and light,
But it strengthened a hopeless one's failing sight,
And guided his feet to the path of right;
Only a touch!

It was only a rose in its tender bloom,
But it brightened a lonely and cheerless room,
And it helped in dispelling the deepening gloom.
Only a rose!

Yes, its surely worth while to illume the way
With a bit of God's sunshine, tho' small the ray,
For it, may be, will gladden another's day.
Always worth while!

REVOLT SPREADING TO NORTHERN CHINA

Secessions Expected to Come In Rapid Succession

Pekin, Oct. 24.—The revolutionary spirit is now manifesting itself in the north as well as in the south. Those who have heretofore believed that the northern provinces might rally around the government are now of the opinion that secessions will follow in rapid succession.

The precautionary measures taken in Manchuria, where the government does not permit mention of the revolution, show the anti-government spirit in the far north.

There are persistent reports that risings have been planned for the next few days in the immediate vicinity of the capital. It may be that these will not be fulfilled, but they indicate a widespread sympathy with the revolt.

BROWN HAIR AND EYES

Best Adapted to Modish Creations For Coming Fall and Winter

Washington, Oct. 24.—Brunettes are to hold greater sway in the smart set this fall, the creators of modish hats and gowns have decreed.

The style show, which has just opened under the patronage of a committee of society women, has chosen the living models from girls with brown eyes and brown hair because the predominating colors in all the modish creations for the coming fall and winter are more becoming to them than to the blondes.

Mrs. Barney-Hemmick, who recently married a man thirty-five years her junior, is chariman of the committee in charge. She herself is blonde.

READY FOR THE FRAY

Athletics and Giants Will Play at Philadelphia Today

Philadelphia, Oct. 24.—There is every indication that the recent storm has gone and the ill-repressed eagerness of the fans to witness the fourth clash in this queer world's series will be rewarded this afternoon.

The grounds may not be in the very best condition, but the season has grown so late and the Giants and Athletics are so eager to get the games over with that neither Mack nor McGraw will stop for trifles, though the diamond paths may be heavy and sodden and the outfield still swamplike.

BOILER TUBES BLOW OUT

Torpedo Boat Water Tender Dead and Fireman Fatally Hurt

Charleston, Oct. 24.—Two of the boiler tubes on the torpedo boat Tingley blew out while the vessel was fifteen miles off Charleston lightship, painfully injuring J. L. Myer, a fireman, and J. H. Gibbes, a water tender. Gibbes died yesterday afternoon. It is not believed Myer can survive.

The accident is the second of the sort in the past four days, the Wilkes' boiler tubes being blown out Thursday.

LONG—During a kit inspection in a British camp, a mop had been left propped with the head uppermost against a spare bed cot. The short-sighted captain entered, and glanced at the mop. Then he snapped his fingers. "Color-sergeant!" he exclaimed.

"Yes, sir," said the sergeant, saluting.

"See that that man has his hair cut immediately!" said the captain, pointing at the mop.

CAUGHT—Kate Field used to take daily lessons in Latin from Walter Savage Landor, and at her entrance his rugged expression invariably softened, and he became chivalry incarnate. One day he dropped his spectacles; and, as she picked them up and handed them to him, he exclaimed, "Oh, this is not the first time that you have caught my eyes!"

THE BLIND FISH.

The colonel: "Yes, gentlemen," he related, as he lit a black cigar, "this particular day I had been sitting on the bank for four hours without a solitary nibble. Presently I waded out into the middle of the stream to seek better luck, and, would you believe it, a vast school of fish came up and began to feed right around my ankles without even noticing my presence. You may believe it or not, gentlemen, but all I had to do was dip down and pick them up like picking salmon out of a can."

"It may be true, colonel," ventured one, "but anyone that knows anything about fish will tell you that they have wonderful eyesight and are very timid. How is it these fish didn't see you?"

The colonel raised his chin to a dignified poise.

"I was fishing in the Mammoth cave in Kentucky," he said, "and the fish there have no eyes."—Chicago News.

ANNOUNCE CANDIDACY.

James E. Wall announced his candidacy for Mayor officially last evening at his home, where he entertained a number of friends. Mr. Wall has been a resident of Quincy for a long time and has always been a staunch upholder of the Democratic Party.

He has been in the wall paper business for over thirty years and is at present a member of the well known firm of Wall, Brackett and Company on Cornhill, Boston. He is affiliated with a number of well known organizations in Quincy, is well and favorably known. He will conduct a strenuous fight for the democratic nomination.

CRIMINAL LAW.

Quoting Pres. Taft as saying that "The administration of criminal law in this country is a disgrace to civilization," Judge C. A. DeCourcey of Lawrence, justice of the superior court of Massachusetts, before the American Prison association at Omaha, Neb., pointed out that the United States was conspicuous for the great number of unpunished murderers.

The defence of insanity, the limitation of the power of the judges and the character of testimony allowed to be introduced in behalf of the defendant, were some of the evils which, he said, ought to be rectified.

"The number of homicides in this country for 1910 was 8975, an increase of nearly 900 over the number in 1909; yet but one in 86 was capitally punished in 1910, as against one in 74 during the year preceding," said Judge DeCourcey.

"It is said that in 1896 for each million of the population, there were 118 homicides in the United States; in Italy less than 15, in Canada less than 13, in Great Britain less than nine in Germany less than five.

"In the last year in London, with a population of 7,000,000, there were but 19 cases of murder. Of the 19 murders five committed suicide. All of the others except four were arrested, and either convicted and executed or committed to the insane asylum.

"In New York city, 119 case of homicide were investigated by the grand jury during the last year, but only 45 convictions resulted. Chicago reports 202 homicides were committed in that city during the last year. Only one of the offenders was hanged. 15 were sent to the penitentiary and the others were set free."

Judge De Courcey then suggested some criminal law reforms which included simplified forms of indictments, changes in the selections of juries and in the rules governing pleadings.

SPEAKS AT RICHMOND

shipped from Quincy to Richmond via an intracostal waterway system and at reasonable rates. The Mayor accepted the little token with a bow of acknowledgment, while a storm of applause broke forth from the audience at the appropriateness of the gift and the happy speech that had accompanied it."

Mr. Crane's speech was as follows:

Mr. President, Your Honor, Members of the Atlantic Deeper Waterways Association, Ladies and Gentlemen:

I bring you greetings and good wishes from Gov. Foss of Massachusetts.

I am proud as the representative of the State of Massachusetts to respond to such a cordial welcome from the City of Richmond.

Virginia from my childhood days has stood foremost in my ideals of all that pertains to the noblest and best of the "Sunny South." The beauty of its women, the courtesy and chivalry of its men, are part of the history of our nation.

Today, Mr. Mayor—From Maine to Florida, representatives of our Waterways Association have come to the grand old city of Richmond, to enjoy again the far-famed hospitality of the State of Virginia.

At Norfolk in 1909 you gave us a welcome of such cordiality that we, who were permitted to participate in those functions of State and Nation, can never forget the State of Virginia and the City of Norfolk.

Once again we are permitted to come down the famous Chesapeake Bay, one hundred and eighty miles long, to Hampton Roads, and thence to your City gates; and I am glad to be one of the delegates who are here today, representing the best blood of the Atlantic Seaboard States, gathered here from no personal motives, but to improve transportation facilities from Maine to Florida.

And now Mr. Mayor, I wish to speak a moment of my own city of Quincy.

I bring you greetings from His Honor, Mayor William T. Shea, who sends to you this token of his regard, a piece of the Quincy Granite from which Bunker Hill Monument was made, with the hope that within the next decade the granite from Quincy's quarries may be shipped to the South by a protected waterway, at reasonable freight rates.

Quincy is situated eight miles south of Boston, and is within the harbor line of the proposed $9,000,000 development of the port of Boston.

On the west of the City, near the Blue Hill Range, are the famous granite quarries.

Here the first railroad in the United States was built, to carry granite to the sea at the time of the building of Bunker Hill Monument in 1826, and today our annual shipments of granite amount to about three million dollars.

In the southern part of the City is located the Fore River Shipbuilding Company—An industry similar to your own famous yard at Newport News.

Here last August was launched the "Rivadavia," the largest battleship in the world, built for the Argentine Republic.

At the Philadelphia Convention Judge Lloyed E Chamberlain of Brockton and Edward B. Mellen, statistician of the Brockton Board of Trade, strongly advocated what was known as the Brockton Canal Route. Quincy was intensely interested, as it came up Weymouth Fore River directly by our City, and the Mayor of Quincy had a representative at the Baltimore, Norfolk and Providence Conventions.

Brockton and Quincy have been obliged to entirely readjust their ideas, as the Brockton route was found impracticable and the Taunton to Hingham the best and easiest grade for the Narragansett Bay to Boston Harbor Canal.

Massachusetts may well be called the "Little Sister" State to Virginia.

Historically we are one hundred years younger, but we have many points of similarity. Massachusetts had a tea party and Virginia witnessed the surrender of Cornwallis, October 19, 1781, just 130 years ago this very day. (Oct. 16th.)

Virginia has its coal fields. Massachusetts has its hills of granite.

Virginia has its Chesapeake Bay, the largest and best protected waterway of the South Atlantic Seaboard. Massachusetts has Narragansett Bay, the largest and best protected waterway of the North Atlantic Seaboard.

Virginia is still one hundred years ahead. It has had at the head waters of Chesapeake Bay the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal; in use for one hundred years.

Massachusetts has talked of a canal at the head of Narragansett Bay for the same length of time.

And yet—We are hoping for many things in old Massachusetts today.

One of them is the favorable report of the U. S. engineers on the feasibility of the link of the intra-coastal canal from Narragansett Bay to Boston Harbor.

In his inaugural address, Gov. Foss of Massachusetts advocated the improvement of inland waterways, and later appointed a commission to see what the State should do to assist the waterway development and the building of the Narragansett Bay to Boston Harbor Canal.

The commission found that the State could best co-operate by sharing the cost of construction, by paying land damages estimated to be $900,000,000 It appeared just and right that the State should pay for right of way, in view of the magnitude of the project.

Also that the State should supply such terminal facilities at each end and at points along the route, as shall make the canal useful and convenient for vessels and freight. This would cost about one million dollars; making the necessary expenditures $1, 900,000.

The commission found that the sort of canal to advocate should be 25 ft. depth and 200 ft. bottom width. This would accommodate about all the vessels at present engaged in the Coastwise trade and do away with the complaint of some ship owners that a canal would ruin their business.

The commission found that Providence, Taunton, Fall River and Brockton would be greatly benefited by such a canal.

But when we came to Boston we found that we lacked terminal facilities; those we had not being adequate for the present needs of the Port of Boston, and in the judgment of the commission it was unwise to ask the United States Government to spend forty-five million dollars in the State of Massachusetts, until these terminals were built and the canals south of us were made ship canals.

We hope and expect that the U. S. engineers will advise the widening and deepening of the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal to be the first project undertaken in 1912; thus demonstrating to the other States just what such improvement will mean to them, when the proper time comes for them to build their link of the intra-coastal chain.

Massachusetts has not abandoned her canal, and is not cold to the project.

We have this fall appropriated $9,000,000 to build terminals and make other improvements on the water front of Boston Harbor, and when our turn comes to have our link of the intra-coastal canal built, Boston and the old Bay State will be ready for it.

I thank the City of Richmond for the gracious welcome accorded the Atlantic Deeper Waterways Association and its friends.

The names of J. Hampton Moore and John Humphrey Small are as well known in the City of Quincy as in your own City of Richmond, and we unite with you in your respect and love for the men. I thank you.

Brand New Freight Steamer Lands on Reef In a Fog

Louisburg, C. B., Oct. 24.—The brand new Norwegian freight steamship Halvdan struck on a bar in Flamoise bay, near here, and is in an exposed position with her crew standing by in small boats.

The steamer's foreholds are full of water and her stern is firmly fixed on the reef on which she struck in a fog.

It is believed that the Halvdan and her cargo of nitrate of soda will be a total loss.

The Halvdan was bound for Montreal from Chile by way of Montevideo. She was launched this year and hails from Drammen, Norway. She registered 2434 tons, net.

BACK TO "HAPPY DAYS"

Man In Hospital Has Lost Last Fourteen Years of Life

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 24.—S. C. Rogers, who recalled his former self after fourteen years' existence under the name of George Kelley, has suddenly lost memory, so it appears, of his wife, Agnes Johnson, whom he married two months ago. When she visited him at the Providence hospital and tearfully called him "husband," he responded, "Your're daffy."

Kelley, or Rogers, is again a boy of 17 years, using the street slang of New York of those days. He understands nothing about lumber, though an expert prior to Oct. 10.

MANY MAY BE JAILED

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 24.—District Attorney Valentine has issued warrants for the arrest of 350 election officers, who are accused of various forms of electon frauds and violations at the September primaries.

The evidence against many of them is so direct and convincing, he says, that he expects many will be jailed.

Burnham Is Exonerated

Buffalo, Oct. 24.—Frederick K. Burnham of New York was exonerated by Justice Toms of Kenmore, who previously returned a verdict charging the New York man with cowardice and criminal negligence in the wrecking of the racing boat Dixie IV. here Sept. 16, when a spectator was fatally injured.

ADDRESS AT CLAN McGREGOR

John D. Mackay, Esq. Gives Talk About Canada

WILL INCREASE MEMBERSHIP

Clan McGregor had an interesting and well attended meeting last evening in its hall at Doble's corner. Not for a long time has there been so large an attendance. Alfred O. Diack, the indefatigable Chief, is endeavoring to bring the membership up to five hundred before the current year closes and it looks as if he were going to do it. It lacks only 26 to make up that number. Twenty-six seems at first sight a small number, but when it is borne in mind that each candidate must be physically in excellent condition in order to pass the medical requirements of the Royal physician, who has the interests of the bequeathment fund to look after; that the candidate must be of Scottish blood, of sound moral character and industrious habits, it can be seen that the task is not altogether easy. Two teams have been organized to bring in new members each team being captained by a past chief, and Chief Diack has agreed to pay for a banquet if they succeed. In this way a bit of friendly rivalry is started.

At the close of business Lawyer John D. Mackay was introduced and, as previously announced delivered an address on the subject of Canada, describing the manner in which the provinces got together after the battle of Quebec, the forming of their Confederation, the building of the ocean to ocean railway, the Canadian Pacific, the Canadian system of government, her plans for a navy, her courts, her militia and her probable destiny as to nationhood, with a lot of miscellaneous information concerning Canadian affairs which was quite interesting judging by the comments made later by the presiding officer and the members

Mr. Mackay expressed the opinion that the Dominion was slipping her moorings one by one, with the full consent of the British government and would before long be in theory as well as in fact a nation. Only three visible ties now bind her to the Mother country since the British soldiers were withdrawn from the Canadian garrisons and their places taken by Canadians. Those ties are the treaty making power which has to be exercised through Britain; the office of the Governor General who represents the King and the right of appeal in certain cases from Canadian courts to the Privy Council. The Governor General will soon go, as he has nothing to do except discharge social functions. The right of appeal from the Supreme Court at Ottawa is no longer resorted to except by powerful litigants seeking delay. The treaty making power will be relinquished to Canada as soon as she desires it. In the meantime, she is forging ahead building up the country and is well content to have the British flag as her emblem of sovereignty for the present. It doesn't cost her a cent or a life and insures to her the protection of the world's greatest empire.

A lively discussion followed, in which several clansmen took part, among them Chief Diack, Alex Cowe, A. J. Smith, Alex Russell, Dr. McLennan, Alex Clark. It was announced that Dr. J. A. Gordon would deliver an address at the last meeting in November. Other speakers will follow, one each month throughout the winter.

NEGROES THREATEN TOW

White Men at Coweta, Okla., Prepared to Resist Attack

Coweta, Okla., Oct. 24.—Prepared to meet with volleys of lead 300 armed negroes who are known to be camped not far from the edge of the town and only waiting reinforcements of 500 negroes from Red Bird before beginning an attempt to wipe out Coweta and all its white inhabitants, 230 white men wait tensely for the attack.

The negroes, aroused by the lynching of one of their race who had killed a white man and injured two others, have sworn dire vengeance. Emissaries have spread the call to arms among the negroes for miles around and long distance telephone messages tell of large bands of negroes marching towards here from every direction.

Lineman Electrocuted

Lancaster, N. H., Oct. 24.—Accidental contact with an electric light wire caused the death here of Fred Hardy, aged 40, a lineman employed by the Coos Telephone company.

Q.—I find in Matthew and Luke what purport to be the genealogies of Christ. Matthew gives His ancestry back to Abraham; Luke goes back to Adam. Between Christ and David Matthew gives 27 generations, and Luke gives 42; and none of the names in these two lists are the same: Will you please explain this seeming discrepancy?

Answer.—Our Lord Jesus became related to the human family by taking our nature through His mother Mary. Mary's genealogy, as traced by Luke, leads back to David through his son Nathan. (Luke iii, 31.) (Joseph is here styled "the son of Heli," that is, the son of Eli, Mary's father, by marriage, or legally; or as we would say, son-in-law of Eli. By birth, Joseph was the son of Jacob, as stated in Matthew i. 16), while Joseph's genealogy, as given by Matthew, traces also back to David through his son Solomon. (Matthew i, 6-16.) Joseph having accepted Mary as his wife, and adopted Jesus, her son, as though He were his own son, this adoption would entitle Jesus to reckon Joseph's genealogy; but such a tracing back to the family of David was not necessary, because His mother came also of David, by another line. Thus the seeming discrepancy is due to the fact that Luke gives Mary's genealogy while Matthew gives the genealogy of Joseph. The difference in the number of generations from David to Christ need not be considered as remarkable. It would be remarkable had they been the same.

Q.—Will faithful animals such as dogs and cats be resurrected?

Answer.—The matter of exterminating dogs and cats is being agitated in some of the large cities, as it is claimed that these animals transmit disease germs, and more or less endanger the lives of the people in various other ways. Mr. A's dog may be highly thought of in the family circle and yet be a nuisance to Mr. B. And Mr. B's cat may be inclined to make night hideous for Mr. A. We cannot imagine a bull pup or a rat terrier trotting up and down the golden streets of the New Jerusalem; or some antiquated tom cat crawling around the glittering spires of the Holy City. Indeed, the Bible, after describing the City and mentioning those who will be privileged to enter it, says that "Without are dogs." (Revelation xxii, 15.) And St. Peter tells of "the natural brute beasts made to be taken and destroyed"—(II Peter ii, 12.) There is nothing in the Bible indicating the resurrection of animals.

BRIEFS

Henrico Barraja of Naples, Italy, has arrived in this county for an extended stay with his brother Joseph Barraja-Fraunfelder.

Mrs. W. W. Jenness of Whitwell street who was operated upon last week at the City Hospital is reported as resting comfortably.

Supt. Gammons of the Quincy division of the street railway and Mrs. Gammons are in Connecticut on a brief vacation trip.

Mr. and Mrs. John Wood of Portland, Oregon arrived Sunday night for a visit to his mother Mrs. John A. Wood, at the family home on School street.

D. D. G. Protectors, Mrs. Agnes G. Fletcher and Mrs. Rose A. Reed of Maple Lodge K. and L. of H. were guests Monday evening of Mayflower Lodge in Malta hall, Beverly.

Two more loads of stone chips have found their way into the south sea on Presidents avenue. It might also be noted that the new street crossing at Presidents and Independence avenues has almost gone out of sight.

EIGHT MINERS KILLED

Eight Others Narrowly Escape Similar Fate In Illinois Mine

Harrisburg, Ills., Oct. 24.—Eight miners were killed and eight others were temporarily overcome by an explosion of powder in O'Gara mine No. 9, a mile from here.

The dead and those made unconscious were removed from the mine by rescuers, three of whom were overcome by gas. They were resuscitated.

The explosion came as the shifts were changing and but sixteen men were in the north entry, where the explosion occurred. Three hundred and sixty men had reported for work, but all had not gone into the workings.

CLAIM IS REJECTED BY PATENT OFFICE

Applications of Heany on Tungsten Lights Thrown Out

Washington, Oct. 24.—"Rejected on the ground of fraud," the John Allen Heany applications for patent on the tungsten light, involving $5,000,000, and the basis of past criminal and civil proceedings, have been disposed of by the patent office.

Heany's application affects five cases, the decision in all being adverse to him. His original application, now dissolved, interfered with the consideration of half a dozen other tungsten light patent applications and these will now be given official attention.

As a result of charges of fraudulent practices in connection with the work on the claims in the patent office, N. W. Barton, an examiner in the patent office, and H. E. Everding, Heany's attorney, were sentenced to terms in the penitentiary.

TREMENDOUSLY FORMIDABLE

Greatest Armada In Our History at New York

INCLUDES OVER 100 SHIPS

Secretary of Navy and His Aides Make Provisions For Gathering In Hudson River—Mobilization Covers Oct. 31 to Nov. 1, Inclusive—Flagships Head Fleet of Battleships Due Today—Meyer to Inspect Fleet

New York, Oct. 24.—For the next ten days New York will be the background for the greatest naval pageant ever seen in American waters. The mobilization of warships here will be the biggest the United States has yet attempted, with 102 vessels—battleships, cruisers, destroyers, torpedo boats, submarines, supply and other craft—a tremendously formidable armada.

The vessels due here today include the battleship Connecticut, flagship of the fleet, on which is Rear Admiral Osterhaus, and the battleships Michigan, Louisiana, Minnesota, Missouri, Mississippi, Ohio, Virginia, Nebraska, Georgia, North Dakota, Vermont, South Carolina and New Hampshire.

The mobilization at New York will cover three days, Oct. 30 to Nov. 1, inclusive. There will be twenty-four battleships, two armored cruisers, two cruisers, twenty-two destroyers, sixteen torpedo boats, eight submarines, three tenders to the torpedo fleet, four gunboats, nine miscellaneous vessels, eight colliers, one oil tanker and three tugs.

Secretary of the Navy Meyer is responsible for the mobilization. To him belongs the credit of the idea. To Rear Admirals Wainwright, Potter and Nicholson and Captain Fletcher belongs the credit of working out the idea. These officers are the secretary's aides, and on them falls the burden of providing ships and men for such a gathering of fighting craft as will anchor in the Hudson river on the morning of Oct. 30.

On Oct. 31 Secretary Meyer will inspect the fleet. He will visit each vessel, using the secretary of the navy's flagship, the Mayflower and the Dolphin. On Nov. 1 he will review the fleet in the Hudson river. On the night of Nov. 1 the fleet will put to sea.

TWO SENT TO JAIL

Other Dealers In Impure Food Are Fined In New York Court

New York, Oct. 24.—Two men were sent to jail, one for thirty days, and one for twenty days, and a large number of other persons were fined sums ranging from $30 to $100 in the court of general sessions yesterday for violations of the pure food law.

Butchers, fish dealers, milk purveyors, candy stand keepers and restaurant proprietors formed a majority of the defendants.

The man who received the thirty-day sentence was Louis Hamer, who had some 170 dozen bad eggs from which it was intended to make cakes. Frank Fozzeno, a butcher, was given twenty days for having in his shop a mouldy leg of veal.

ALLEGED SLAYER OF SON

Bath Woman Pleads Not Guilty When Arraigned In Court

Bath, Me., Oct. 24.—Mrs. Mildred T. Keefe pleaded not guilty to the charge of murdering her 3-year-old son, whose body was found in a pool of stagnant water, when formally arraigned before Judge Dunton in the municipal court. By agreement of County Attorney Stetson and her counsel, the case was postponed one week. She was held without bail.

An autopsy on the body was performed to determine positively whether death was caused by drowning and that a complete report might be made to the coroner's jury which is investigating.

TIRED OF MARRIED LIFE

Well-to-Do Farmer's Wife Had to Wear Men's Shoes and Overalls

Stockton, Cal., Oct. 4.—Because she was compelled to wear overalls and men's shoes, and milk twenty cows a day, Mrs. Mary Harrell of Waterloo has filed suit for divorce from Frank H. Harrell. In addition to cruelty, failure to provide is alleged.

Harrell is a well-to-do farmer. The couple were married in 1906, and almost since the wedding bells rang, she alleges, she has had to do work beyond her physical strength.

Frosts In Cotton Belt

Dallas, Tex., Oct. 24.—Reports from a score of points in the Texas and Oklahoma cotton belt indicate that a wide area in both states has been visited by killing frosts.

Eggs at Twenty Cents Each

Tucson, Ariz., Oct. 24.—Eggs are selling at 20 cents each in Guayamas, Mex., and other foods are correspondingly high, according to mail advices.

BURIED IN HOME TOWN

Body of Mrs. McFarland, a Poison Victim, Is Laid Away

Rockland, Me., Oct. 24.—The body of Mrs. Ruth McFarland, who died at her home in Newark, N. J., of cyanide of potassium poisoning, and whose husband, Alliston McFarland, a former resident of Thomaston, is under arrest at Newark on a charge of murder, arrived here yesterday afternoon.

As soon as it had been prepared for burial by an undertaker, it was taken to the home of the parents, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Crockett. The funeral was held today.

BAY STATE ABSENTEE STATUTE IS UPHELD

Supreme Court Says Fourteen-Year Law Is Constitutional

Washington, Oct. 24.—The "absentee" statute of Massachusetts, providing for the distribution of the property of a person who has been unaccountably absent from the state for more than fourteen years, was upheld as constitutional by the supreme court of the United States. Justice Holmes announced the opinion.

The constitutionality of the law was raised when George E. Nelson of West Pullman, Ills., and four other cousins claimed the property of Miss Mabel Allen, who left Boston in 1892 to attend the world's fair. In Chicago she called upon a relative, but since, it is said, she has not been heard from.

The property was inherited by Miss Allen after her disappearance and was part of the "French spoliation claim" awarded to the heirs of Jonathan Merry, a ship merchant of Boston, about a century ago.

DISTRESS SIGNAL IN COURT

Judge Scores a Lodge Brother and Gives Him Long Sentence

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 24.—Charles Hollenbeck, convicted of blackmailing a 15-year-old girl, recognized in the judge, Wilson R. Gay, a brother member of a secret society. He gave the signal of distress, and sign of the order, and then wrote him a note.

As soon as the judge realized the situation he reached for the code of the state of Washington, and discovering that the maximum sentence for Hollenbeck's crime was five years, sentenced himto one day less, at the same time arraigning Hollenbeck scathingly for his crime and for giving the distress signal in court.

"I HAVE NO NEWS"

What Father of Dorothy Arnold Says on Return From Europe

New York, Oct. 24.—Garbed in sombre black, the father and mother and sister of Dorothy Arnold arrived from Europe on the steamer Vaderland.

"I have no news. I have had no news since last December," was all Arnold would say when asked about his missing daughter, whose disappearance last December caused an international but futile search.

Asked if he believed Dorothy was still alive, he repeated: "I have no news."

Copenhagen Mob Attacks Cook

Copenhagen, Oct. 24.—Dr. Frederick A. Cook, who said he had discovered the north pole, was attacked by a street mob here when he arrived, and a police escort had to be summoned to escort him to his hotel.

Morocco Case Near an End

Berlin, Oct. 24.—The German foreign office substantiates the French report that the Moroccan negotiations probably will terminate this week.

FEMININE FANCIES

THINGS OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

In this column we publish from day to day recipes and other notes especially interesting to women.

Cut them and paste in scrap book for reference.

His Thoughtful Wife.

"I hate to boast," said a Cleveland lawyer to the Press man, "but my wife is one of the most economical women in the world. The other day she told me she needed a new suit. I said she ought to have it by all means, but asked her not to spend a big bunch of money without letting me know about it. Well, the next day she said: 'The tailor said he couldn't make that suit for less than $150. I thought it was too much, but told him to go ahead.'

"'Well, I suppose it is all right,' I said, 'but why didn't you consult me first?'

"'Why, dearie, I didn't want to spend carfare for two visits.'

"I tell you, it's these little economies that count, eh?"—Philadelphia Record.

Pretty Things In Jewelry.

Jeweled watches are a toy of the moment. The best of these, thin as a leaf, are enameled, often in pale pink or pale green, with either one big diamond in the center or else surrounded by small diamonds. The smart watch of today has a chain attached and is worn on the neck as a pendant. The face of the watch is, of course, at the back of the ornament. And some of these dainty toys are first rate timekeepers. A gold bag is another useful possession. Many of the new bags are in gold in different shades of color, while others are in gold and platinum to give the effect of a striped material.

Suggestions to Mothers.

A pinch of boracic acid in water will allay itching from mosquito bites.

Insist on the children's taking time to eat properly, as much suffering is caused by hasty swallowing of food.

Do not permit your children to be much excited during the heated days. The more quietly and hygienically they live the more comfort for them and their mother.

Keep the baby covered, even on very warm nights, if only a very light shawl. He must be kept away from drafts, which dry the skin too quickly and lower the temperature of the body.

To Improve Tough Peas.

When peas are rather tough and big a pleasant variation is to cook them to a soft pulp, press through a fine sieve and season with plenty of butter, salt and pepper as in mashing potatoes. A little grated cheese mixed through the peas at the last improves them. Another variation is to garnish with a border of fried onions.

The Wandering Watch.

Have you ever heard the story of the woman who was so disorderly that she could never find anything she wanted? Her watch gave her the most trouble. She could never put her hand on it when she wanted it. It finally became such a source of annoyance to her that she determined she would know where that watch was, anyhow, whether she knew where anything else was or not. So when she took the watch off she didn't allow herself to lay it anywhere but in a particular spot in her dresser drawer.

It was very hard at first, but after a time she had no difficulty in remembering to put it there. She formed the habit of order in connection with the watch. From that she got to putting everything in her room in its place. And so this woman evoluted from the most disorderly housekeeper in her neighborhood. And it all began with the watch!

Don't undertake too many things at a time and get discouraged. Do one thing at a time well, and when you have done that you will find your thought prompting you to doing something else equally well or better, and so on until you will finally have your house in order—your mental mansion as well as your material house.

HOUSEHOLD RECIPES.

Sliced Oil Pickle. Slice very thin 100 small pickles about the circumference of a quarter, and if liked, six onions also sliced. Cover with salt and let stand over night. In the morning rinse with cold water, and put in a sack to drain. Mix three quarts cider vinegar, one half cupful each white and black mustard seed, one cupful olive oil, one heaping tablespoonful celery seed, a half teaspoonful red pepper and a half teaspoonful white pepper. Pour cold over the cucumbers in an open jar, let stand a day or two, stirring occasionally, then seal in jars.

Sweed Pickled Cantalopes. Select melons not quite ripe. Cut into oblong pieces, take off the rind and soft parts near the seeds. To every eight pounds of melon allow one pint vinegar and three pounds of sugar. Mix half a teaspoonful each ground mace and cloves, and one teaspoonful each cinnamon, ginger and allspice. Tie in little piece of cheesecloth and scald with the vinegar. Cook the melons in the hot syrup until tender, then skim out into a bowl. Boil the liquor down and pour over the melon. Repeat this three or four times, and the last time heat the melon with the syrup. Put into jars and seal.

Pawn-House. Secure a shank of beef with plenty of meat on it, put it into a kettle of cold water and set over a slow fire. Remove the scum that rises to the top and then boil until the meat falls from the bones. Remove the bones, first scraping from them all the marrow. Chop up the meat and return it to the kettle, which should be with some of the broth added, three-quarters full. Season to taste with salt and pepper and then thicken with corn meal as you do when making mush. Stir until the meat and mush are thoroughly mixed, then turn out on a dish to cool. When wanted for use slice and fry brown.

Jelly Roll. Three eggs, one cup of sugar, one teaspoonful of baking powder, one cup of flour, three tablespoonfuls of water, pinch of salt. Beat the eggs thoroughly, add the sugar slowly, beating vigorously all the time. Add the water and beat again. Sift the dry ingredients together twice and add. Beat all together several minutes. Put in a long shallow dripping pan and bake in a quick oven. Remove from the oven and immediately cover with raspberry jam without removing from the pan. Roll the length of the cake pressing into shape with the hands. Any kind of jelly may be used instead of the jam.

Woman Kills Self and Six Children

Braddock, N. D., Oct. 24.—Mrs. Axel Johnson, wife of a prosperous farmer near here, locked herself and six small children in their home and set fire to the house after saturating the room with kerosene. All were burned to death.

ROOSTER COAL BRIQUETTES — NO SLATE — NO CLINKERS

ROOSTER COAL BRIQUETS

THE NEW ANTHRACITE COAL

ROOSTER BRIQUETS are made from the choicest small Scranton Anthracite coal, mined in Pennsylvania, called TWENTIETH CENTURY CHESTNUT size

Just consider for a moment what we offer here in this 20th CENTURY CHESTNUT.

First, 2000 pounds of clean, pure, hard coal without a rock or a piece of slate.

Second, fuel that cannot form into a clinker, by any known method of firing, consequently the linings and grates last indefinitely.

Third, they are made in nut size, being equally convenient for furnace heaters, open grates, as well as stoves; therefore, only one storage bin is necessary.

Fourth, and very IMPORTANT, the quality of this fuel is the SAME EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR, not a good ton today, and nothing like it the next time, in other words, when you once learn how to regulate your drafts you have nothing more to learn about burning BRIQUETS.

Fifth, no more sifting ashes these Briquets burn out clean. They require less wood to kindle.

Be sure to ask for "ROOSTERS" and get the Briquet made from pure Scranton Coal, from the largest Briquet plant in the country. They are better than coal, will last as long and cost less.

SYNOPSIS

Anna Granger, devoted mother of two small children, discovers that her husband is a weak character and that he has lied to her about a woman.

Posing as Miss Dale, she becomes stenographer to Burton Temple, through whose evidence her husband has been imprisoned. She thinks Temple is the guilty man and is acting the spy to clear her husband's name for his sake and that of her children.

Anna discovers that Temple was one of her girlhood's ideals. Thinking her a single woman, he tells her her husband was a liar and perjurer.

Temple has detectives on the trail of Brady, an accomplice of Granger, looking for evidence. Anna is searching for evidence against Temple, who becomes interested in her.

And as he felt the excellencies and beauties of her nature more and more he felt the absorbing power of his own manhood to make them his own. She bloomed for him the flower of fancies, but the seeds lay in his own heart; she seemed an exhalation from his own hidden sources. His mother possessed the same ladyhood. At Anna's age his own mother must have been like her, he thought, the stirrer in a man of noble passions, the allayer of others. Life partnership with such women promised not gratifications merely, but satisfactions.

Life partnership and love! They were thoughts now neither for noon nor her presence. With a man like Burton Temple everything had its time and place. He must clear his good name first. That was the imperative duty on hand.

As the result of the gradual recognition of the state of his own feelings, there had come about increased activity in his work against Granger. The reward to Crane, should he succeed in securing some scrap of evidence from Brady, had been raised to $25,000. The detective bureau had been offered a fabulous sum for proof that Granger had invested any large amount of money; that he had been a big purchaser of stock in any company, or that he was tangled up with some woman besides his wife. No means that a daring, shrewd fighter could use had been overlooked.

And so, all unconsciously—oh, the little pathetic game of human cross purposes at which fate, the flinty hearted, must smile—Anna Granger had become at once her husband's champion and foe. She, for tenderness toward him, was here in Temple's house, fighting desperately to find some evidence that would clear him. Temple, for the vindicated honor which he hoped to lay at his lady's feet, was fighting with equal desperation to keep in prison as a branded thief the man whom he had sent there.

But, as yet, the fight had fetched nothing to either of them.

CHAPTER V.

"THE FATHER OF HER BOYS."

"MRS. MASON," sighed Anna wearily one day. "Here I've been for nearly a month and I've found out nothing. I don't believe I ever will find out anything of myself against Mr. Temple."

The housekeeper started and eyed her curiously.

"Even if you don't find out anything, dearie," she said stolidly, "you may be pretty certain that your husband will be set free. Mr. Temple may be indicted now any day, and everybody, all the papers, say the circumstantial evidence is so strong that he must be convicted. He's surely guilty." Mrs. Mason, as all who knew her were aware, once having formed an opinion, held to it.

"I don't want Robert cleared on circumstantial evidence," protested Anna. "That's not what I'm making this fight for. I know what public opinion is. It's fickle; it cries 'Hosannah!' on Palm Sunday; it cries 'Crucify!' on Good Friday. I know the sway of the press can make or unmake a man. Just now it's making Robert and breaking Mr. Temple, but after the clamor will come doubt. I want the proof of Robert's innocence in my own hands. I don't want any sentimental vindication for the father of my boys."

The father of her boys! Yes, it had come to be just that. Unconsciously she had said it. To keep herself to her duty she had fallen back on that last reserve of a woman's strength, her mother love.

And how hungry she was growing for them, these boys of hers! "Oh, I need them," she exclaimed in a sudden outburst—"I need them! Do you know, without them even my prayers have come to be stricken and palsied things. Without them the great scheme of the universe seems to have got grotesquely mixed, irrationally jumbled. With a child in her arms a woman feels always less like a speck of sand under the eye of the Infinite, the incomprehensible. It's the unbreakable link of the Human Son binding us to the feet of God, I suppose." Anna leaned forward over her machine and buried her head in her arms.

A light was dawning upon Mrs. Mason—a light which she dreaded. She came over and stroked the buried head.

"What beautiful hair you have, child!" she said fatuitously, not knowing what else to say.

"Uh-huh!" murmured the young woman whimsically. "It's pleasant to feel soft and smooth, isn't it, yet offering a slight resistance to stroking? It's modern, independent hair."

This mood would never do. The prim New Englander saw it. "I say, Anna, what you need is to have a little visit with your children. Mr. Temple will excuse you for a day, I know. You can run out to see them, and"—

"Oh, but I can't—I can't, you see," cried Anna in an extremity of desire and duty. "A day? Why, just in that very day the evidence I'm seeking might come—a letter, a telegram, a telephone message. Look here, Mrs. Mason!" Opening a drawer of her desk, she took out a handkerchief. One corner of it was tied in a hard knot over many tiny scraps of paper.

"As Mr. Temple was leaving the room just before you came in he tore up this letter and threw it in the waste-basket, you understand? You ask me often why I am so white in the mornings when I come down to breakfast. Well it's because I haven't slept. It's because I've been passing the night trying to piece together just such scraps as these. Always—always with no result.

"Nothing works against him. Everything—every little bit of evidence works for him. A little side light on his splendid fighting qualities here; another on some unknown patrician act of kindness to some fellow being there. Oh, it's horrible, horrible! As I say, the whole of life seems to have got mixed—jumbled. Yet I must go on hoping against hope for the children's sake."

"Dearie, I know what I'll do. I'll run out myself tomorrow and see them and fetch you back direct word. Would you like it?"

For reply, in an abandon of gratefulness, Anna drew the elder woman down to her and kissed her again and again.

That afternoon, taking a stroll in the garden, Anna's heart felt lighter, and her dimples stirred incipiently, remembering Mrs. Mason's promise.

"Tomorrow," she said softly, stopping for a second before a rosebush and leaning her cheek down to one of the Gloire de Dijon triumphs. "Oh, tomorrow, please come quickly!"

TOGETHER THEY EXTRACTED THE SKIRT.

A thorn caught her skirt as she was in the act of moving on.

"May I help?" asked Burton Temple, advancing. Unknown to her he had been reading in the little vine covered pagoda opposite. Cato at his feet.

Together they extracted the skirt, a fragile texture transparent with lace, a faint perfume in it. He noticed that she wore a porte bonheur on her arm with a turquoise in it. It made the skin look white, or the skin made it look blue. The petty common service broke the spell of formality which usually existed between them in the library.

GO BACK TO SHILOH

Sandford and His Followers Leave the Yacht Coronet

South Freeport, Me., Oct. 24.—Following a visit to the Holy Ghost and Us yacht Coronet by Mary S. Burnham, an officer of the Children's Protective board, Deputy Sheriff Fickett and other officials, Rev. Frank W. Sandford, leader of the Shilohites, with his wife and family and the majority of his followers, left the boat and headed for Shiloh.

Their hurried departure was due in a large measure to the fact that the authorities, after viewing the ship, ordered all of the children removed to land at once. Even Sandford's children were included in this order.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. WILL HONOR HEROES

Navy Department Selects Names For New Destroyers

JOHN DOWNS IS ONE

Among the American heroes that have been honored by the Navy Department in having their names selected to be given to the new torpedo boat destroyers to be built, is that of John Downs, grandfather of the late Lieut. John Downs, who was for many years the superintendent of the National Sailor's Home in Quincy.

Captain Downs, for whom the torpedo boat destroyer is to be named was commissioned a midshipman June 1, 1802, a Lieutenant March 6, 1807, Commander June 24, 1813 and Captain March 5, 1817. He died Aug. 11, 1854.

He distinguished himself during the Tripolitan war in 1815 and later was distinguished for galantry in breaking the power of the Malay chiefs.

One of the eight boats will be built at the Fore River ship yard. This boat will probably be named after Andrew Lloyd Cummings, who while executive officer under Admiral Farragut was mortally wounded before Forts Jackson and St. Philip. Admiral Farragut and his officers were mentioned upon recommendation of the President by a special act of congress.

JOSEPH L. WHITON

for Boston left Quincy at 6.15 and this he was obliged to take, necessitating his leaving home at 5.45. The weather was not always pleasant, and the walking at times, especially during the winter months, was a hardship. He had grit, however, and no matter what the weather, the morning was sure to see him trudging along through the snow banks toward the depot.

From his situation as a boy he gradually advanced to a full fledged salesman, and in 1890 was admitted a member of the firm. He retired from the firm ten years later, but continued to remain with the house having charge of one of its important departments.

During all these years his health has been exceptionally good, and there have been but few days that he has missed going to his business. Even in late years in the severet northeasters he could not be prevailed upon to remain at home, although at times he was obliged to walk to the depot as he did when a boy.

The changes have been many at the Point, especially during the past few years and while many of the older residents have moved away to more congenial locations, he was loth to give up his handsome and cosy residence where he had spent so many happy days.

Some few years ago, after being actively engaged in business for fifty years he decided to retire from active business life and settled down to enjoy his well earned vacation. Since then he has lived a quiet life although taking an occasional trip, among which was one to California.

Mr. Whiton was married June 13, 1867 to Mary A. Litchfield, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clement L. Litchfield, who with his two sons, Joseph L. Whiton, Jr., and Dr. Ross K. Whiton survive him.

He was a Past Master of Rural lodge of Masons, a member of St. Stephen's Royal Arch Chapter and one of the charter members of Quincy Commandery K. T.

Funeral services will be held Thursday afternoon from his late residence 700 Washington street.

NOVEMBER MAGAZINES.

SUBURBAN LIFE.—From the glorious cover showing in colors a branch of beautiful Ben Davis apples, to the very last page, Suburban Life for November, is redolent of the out-of-doors that the country-minded can best appreciate, but which appeals to urban and suburban dweller alike. "How to Conduct a Village Pageant" tells of an effective aid in town rejuvenation. "Before You Buy That Farm" contains some sage advice to those who think they are "going back to the land." "The Anchor That Came to 'Eden" tells of a home that had need—a wee little one— and how it was filled. Eminently practical is "Three Things to Make in Your Own Workshop." In "The Mania for Cutting Down Trees," city officials who make straight streets at the expense of beauty, are criticised. "The Suburban Woman and the Problem of Manners" is a strong and timely article for all who love and have to do with children. There are a score more articles on various aspects of life in the beautiful suburbs that are the best part of our American cities.

TECHNICAL WORLD—Following is a list of leading articles in the Technical World magazine for November. Gravity Conquered at Last, Robert H. Moulton; Making Charity Pay, Jonathan A. Rawson; Learning to Use Light, Charles Frederick Carter; Women Who Win at Farming, Agnes C. Laut; Moving Pictures of the Stomach, Ralph Bergengren; Feeding Lunchless School Children, Frederic Blount Warren; Nature Foreshadows Man's Inventions, James L. Crawford New Road to Health, M. A. Hoxsey; How English Trains Make Speed, J. Rendell Wilson. Strange Pulsing Well, The Mark of the Craft and Blowing Off Steam.

WOMAN'S HOME COMPANION.—The November Woman's Home Companion contains an article by President Taft of interest and importance to every woman. It is an appeal to the women of our country to help the President in his efforts to get the Senate to assent to the arbitration treaties, which, if signed, will go a long way toward abolishing war. Notable fiction is contributed by Josephine Daskam Bacon, Jeffery Farnol (author of "The Broad Highway") Zona Gale and Mary E. Wilkins Freeman. Several special articles of unusual interest are included, among them articles on "Julia Marlowe's Greatest Roles," "Experiments in Spending," "The Moving-Picture Show in Your Town," and "Kate Greenaway." The great housekeeping, home decoration, household and fashion departments are, as always, filled with entertaining material, of time-saving and money-saving value to women. At this time of year special mention should be made of the fashion pages, which, under the able direction of Grace Margaret Gould, the well-known fashion authority, are a veritable directory of good economical and yet fashionable ideas for women readers.

POPULAR MECHANIC MAGAZINE—The Monthly grist of Poular Mechanics Magazine in the November number amounts to 302 articles and 285 illustrations. Science, discovery, invention and disaster are forces ceaselessly at work. Tireless eyes have watched their activities and trained minds have sifted the results and wrestled with the problems they introduce. Disasters always leave a question—if not several questions—in the public mind and on the consciences of experts, and again and again reveal the presence of an unknown quantity—an unconsidered element. H. H. Windsor's editorial on the destruction of the "Liberte" deals strongly with this phase of modern development. "Fortune Hunters of the Air Lanes," Victor Lougheed calls the characters he etches in flattering style. The list includes Bleriot, Latham, Paulhan, Farman, Curtiss, the Wright brothers and others. Other editorials are "Fire Chief's Faces," "Motor Fire Engines," "Compulsory Training of Housekeepers" and "Government and Good Roads." "The Puzzle of the electric light bill is solved by Henry Tarkington, who explains it so carefully that anyone can understand, and consumers of electricity can learn how to get the most service out of the smallest supply of current. The Shop Notes and Amateur Mechanics departments for November are, if anything, above their usual high standard. Every article is "written so you can understand it."

—The Democratic campaign managers are up against it for fair in trying to convince Gov. Foss that there is a chance he may be trimmed on election day. He refuses to admit it and declares his belief that new votes are coming his way in platoons.

His optimism, as a matter of fact, is the most discouraging thing the leaders have so far had to contend against, and they have had to contend with several that were discouraging at that. The governor refuses to believe that the campaign the Republicans are making for Lieut-Gov. Frothingham is accomplishing results. He poohhoos any such proposition, and asserts that his record is converting the proletariat faster than Frothingham can get them away from him. That Frothingham is stronger now than he was two weeks ago—a matter that is patent to everybody outside the immediate Foss zone—the governor refuses even to hear mentioned. He is, in fact, so absolutely sure he is to be re-elected that the men who in the end must do the work are at their wits' end to make him see things as they are.—Practical Politics.

Stifling Invention!

MR. ANDERSON says that "progress in Shoe Machinery has practically been stopped" by the United Shoe Machinery Company.

Read how it has been done:

1. The Company has spent all the way from $250,000 to $750,000 in experiment and development of new machines every year since it was formed.

2. IT HAS MADE WORKABLE OVER ONE HUNDRED DIFFERENT NEW MACHINES, some of which perform operations formerly performed by hand and all of which are far better than those formerly in use. Taken in connection with reduction in royalties, shoe manufacturers by their use effect a saving of nearly 9 cents in the cost of making a pair of Goodyear Welt Shoes.

3. A GREATER NUMBER OF PRACTICAL PATENTS IN SHOE MACHINERY HAVE BEEN MADE EFFECTIVE IN THE PAST TWELVE YEARS THAN IN ANY OTHER PERIOD OF EQUAL LENGTH SINCE SHOEMAKING BEGAN.

4. One machine alone cost the Company years of time and over $1,000,000 in money before it would work. It would not be in the shoe factories of Massachusetts today if it had been left to an individual inventor to make it go.

5. THIRTY-FIVE OF THESE NEW MACHINES are in actual operation this week in the Model Shoe Factory at the New England Fair.

6. Mr. Anderson can find them there. He will find over each machine a large, plainly printed card telling on just what terms EVERY shoe manufacturer can use it, and he can take home a little book to read giving in detail the name of each machine in this exhibit and the terms on which it is sold or leased.

BRIEFS

The ring from Box 7 at 5.48 Monday evening was a false alarm.

Miss Mary Cahill of Water street is spending a vacation in New York City.

This is Hospital week. Give liberally to this worthy object. Every little helps along the good cause.

Sons of Veterans Aux. 3 will hold a whist party in conjunction with the fair Wednesday afternoon, October 25th at 2 P. M. in Faxon Hall.

The steam roller is at work, repairing that section of Granite street, situated between the John Hancock school and Brewer's corner.

Nicalo, an employee of the city was hurt yesterday by falling stones. His left leg was crushed. He was removed home in the police ambulance.

That new granolithic sidewalk along Hancock street would be much more appreciated if someone were to sweep off the dead leaves that have accumulated on the walk during the past few days.

Frank LePresti whose wood shed was destroyed by fire early Monday morning, says that it was not he who had the trouble with the man Sunday, as he was not at home. The party who had was a member of the family who lived down stairs in his house.

Mayor Shea is to call a special meeting of the City Council for next Monday evening. Among the matters to be stated in the call will be action on an order calling the municipal election and action on the question of retiring employees of the county which must be acted upon at the coming state election. There will probably be some other matters in the call when it is issued.

—POLITICAL— NOTES, NEWS AND NOVELTIES

By N. N.

The political situation has already begun to wax strong and candidates are already in the field with nomination papers for the municipal caucuses. John L. Miller was the first to take out papers for Mayoralty honors, while William J. Nott of 35 Cottage avenue and Charles A. Ericson, of 127 Glendale road have taken out papers for Council from Ward One. Mr. Ericson is seeking his third term.

Arthur W. Newcomb wants to be a member of the school committee again and has taken out papers for School Committee-at-large. Herbert Beeman, a prominent business man with residence at Atlantic, has taken out papers for Council from Ward Six. All the above are aspiring on the Republican ticket.

A number of his friends are urging H. Everett Crane to become a candidate for Mayor and it is believed by a number that he will consent to run. The struggle for Councilmanic honors from Ward One promises to be a keen and exciting one and with a large list, many figure that William J. Parker of Upland road would stand a fine chance of landing a birth as a candidate on the Republican ticket. Richard R. Freeman, who had been mentioned as a candidate for Mayor has declined to take any active steps along these lines.

MAY BE CANDIDATE.

It was rumored about City Square this morning that Alexander Falconer would be a candidate for the Republican nomination for Mayor at the municipal caucuses. Mr. Falconer could not be reached this noon, to verify the rumor. Mr. Falconer is well known in Quincy where he has resided for many years. He was for many years connected with the granite firm of Swingle & Falconer, but for the past few years has conducted a granite business alone. He is now a member of the firm of Falconer & Co., quarry owners. Mr. Falconor has served his ward in the City Council and up to a few months ago was one of the board of Assessors. He resigned that position last May to devote his whole time to his private business.

BRIEFS

Some of the schools of Quincy are attending the Mechanics Fair this afternoon.

The Adams school will open the soccer football season Wednesday playing the John Hancock school at the Water street grounds.

SPEAKS AT RALLY.

Hon. William H. Dietzman, a well known Boston attorney, was the principal speaker at the rally held this noon time at the Tubular Rivet Works in the interest of the Democratic state ticket. Mr. Dietzman spoke for twenty minutes and his fine oratorical ability proved a source of pleasure to the 500 employees that had assembled to listen to him. He spoke on the record of Governor Foss and urged all voters present to rally to the support of the entire list of Democrats who were seeking state offices.

The meeting was presided over by Councilman Harry T. Boyd, and addresses were made by Senatorial candidate Coombs and John J. McDevitt, candidate for the House from the sixth Norfolk. This evening a rally will be held at Atlantic depot and among others the gathering will be addressed by Hon. William P. Kennedy, a former well known member of the Senate.

BANKER WALSH'S DEATH

It Closely Follows His Release From Leavenworth Federal Prison

Chicago, Oct. 24.—John R. Walsh, the recently paroled banker, died suddenly of heart disease here. Walsh was recently released from Leavenworth penitentiary, to which he was sentenced for wrecking three Chicago banks. He left the prison a week ago last Saturday.

Although Walsh had been in feeble health since his parole from the penitentiary not even the members of his family believed his death was so near. Months before his release his health began to fail.

Walsh was born in County Cork, Ireland, 74 years ago, and came here more than sixty years ago. His early struggle was hard. From peddling newspapers he developed into large newspaper dealings, and gradually acquired funds until he gained a place in a bank.

DREDGER INJURED AT YACHT CLUB

Arthur Dixon of East Boston, one of the workmen employed dredging off the yacht club house at Houghs Neck, had his right hand and arm badly crushed this morning. He was at work on the dredger when in some unaccountable manner his arm became caught in the cable of the drum, and before the machinery could be stopped his arm and hand were crushed and some of the bones fractured. He was taken ashore and Dr. F. E. Jones summoned. After dressing his wounds the man was taken to his home in East Boston.

PREFER TEAM WORKERS TO RECORD HOLDERS.

A ball team is not helped by players who have in mind their individual records and overlook the welfare of their team. It is because John McGraw discourages such tactics that his team has been a success this season. The same is true of the Cubs and the Athletics. Ball players to be valuable to a team need not have remarkable records. They need not be leaders, but if they work for the best interests of their team they bring about desired results.

Unfortunately, the player who works for his team does not always get the credit he deserves, while the chap who is out to make a record for himself frequently receives applause which he should not be given.

GREGG IS PITCHING DISCOVERY

Cleveland Pitcher Regarded as Worthy Successor to Addie Joss.

Vean Gregg is the great pitching discovery of the season in the American league, baseball fans say. This youthful portsider came in the nick of time to keep the Cleveland club on the baseball map. He is a worthy successor of Addie Joss as the premier pitcher of the Buckeye metropolis.

There is no denying the coming of Gregg has made a pennant possibility of the Cleveland club—in 1912. No club could go through the series of disasters that has befallen the Naps in this year of grace and survive to enter the fray as a contender for the bunting. Nearly every great player of the Naps' galaxy of stars has been out of the game for various periods. At one time this season Lajoie, Jackson, Turner, Birmingham and Easterly were forced from the game, and a makeshift team was necessary.

BENDER PRAISES PELTY.

Says Browns' Pitcher Would Be Wonder if With a Strong Team.

Big Chief Bender says that the finest curve pitcher in the American league is Barney Pelty of the St. Louis Browns. He says that Barney has a curve that sweeps and breaks at the same time. If there be such a physical cataclysm.

"I've watched Barney pitch," said the chief, "and I never saw anybody who could touch him for a curve. When it is breaking right it is a cross between a hook, a fadeaway and a flashy curve, all rolled into one.

"If Barney was with a real team, a winning team, with that curve and his change of pace, he'd make 'em all go some to lick him."

Henriksen Speedy Runner.

Umpire Billy Evans says that Olaf Henriksen, the new player the Boston Red Sox recently purchased from the New England bushes, is the smallest and fastest player that has broken into big company in many months. Evans says the player with the Swedish name can run down to second from the initial bag as fast as Ty Cobb. In view of his size, the indicator holder thinks that Henriksen's sprinting feats are wonderful.

No Hit Games Numerous.

There have been twenty-seven no hit games pitched in the major league since they were organized.

PERFECT INDEED

Indiana Town Has Record Which Cannot Be Excelled

Indianapolis, Oct. 24.—The "perfect" town has at last been found. It is named Ferdinand and it is located in Dubois county, this state.

Ferdinand has no divorces, no jail, no graft, no justice of the peace, no arrests in many years, no civil suits in the memory of the oldest inhabitants.

There are no tax dodgers. Several years ago two citizens let tax day go by, but it was a mistake.

There are only two Republicans in the place, the postmaster and his son.

—In 1913 the President whisper may see the first ship pass through the Panama canal. Well, why not celebrate the Panama and Cape Cod canal openings at the same time. That is about the date set for the opening of the latter canal, which is of a good deal more importance to us locally than the big ditch across the isthmus.

WILL CONCEAL ITS EVIDENCE

Prosecution Moves to Rush the Trial of Richeson

A SPECIAL SESSION OF JURY

Consideration of Complaint Against Clergyman Accused of Murder of Miss Linnell to Be Commenced Before Hearing In Lower Court—Father of Accused Man and Other Relatives Will Make Strong Fight

Boston, Oct. 24.—District Attorney Pelletier has taken a hand in the murder of Avis Linnell at the Young Women's Christian association a week ago Saturday, and called a special session of the jury to take up the case next Thursday.

Chief Dugan of the bureau of criminal investigation, and Medical Examiner Leary, who performed the autopsy on the body of Avis Linnell, were called to the office of the district attorney yesterday afternoon. They gave Pelletier the information he needed in presenting the murder case to the grand jury.

This action of the district attorney was a complete surprise to the lawyers retained for the defense of Rev. C. V. T. Richeson, who is charged with the murder of the girl. His hearing was set down for Oct. 31—the day on which he was to have been married to Miss Violet Edmands, the Brookline heiress—when it was expected that the prosecution would disclose enough evidence, if it has it, to hold the clergyman for the grand jury.

The action of the district attorney means that the prosecution will not be forced to disclose its hand in the case. When it is called on Oct. 31 it will simply be stated that the hearing is unnecessary, in case Richeson has been indicted by the grand jury. He would then be re-arrested on the indictment warrant and his trial for the murder of Avis Linnell would be in order.

It is said in police circles that they are satisfied they have completed their case against Richeson and that they are anxious to have a speedy trial. The lawyers for the defense, however, will have a great deal to say about when the trial is to be held. They will insist, and the courts will undoubtedly grant them sufficient time to take proper care of their client's interests.

Thomas V. Richeson, the aged father and tobacco planter, left his home near Amherst, Va., last evening on his way to Boston, where he, with other relatives, will take up the fight for the life and liberty of his son.

The imprisoned clergyman's father brings with him two noted criminal lawyers of the south. Already it is apparent that the court fight in behalf of Richeson will be one of the most aggressive, and in certain particulars the most picturesque, that New England has ever seen.

The body of Avis Linnell will be exhumed today by order of Pelletier, add imemdiately brought to Boston.

The district attotrney and the police are confident that a more minute examination of the dead girl's body will add damning evidence to the charge against Richeson. Incidentally it will be ascertained for a certainty whether the receptacle which contained the cyanide of potassium was left in the pocket of the bathrobe placed at the feet of the dead girl.

COFFEE UP---SUGAR DOWN

Change In Price of Staples In New York Wholesale Market

New York, Oct. 24.—Leading roasters advanced the price of package coffee 1 cent a pound to 23½ cents, but families which use sugar in the beverage may find solace in the fact that a cut was made in the price of this commodity.

The Federal Sugar Refining company announced that it had cut the price of granulated sugar ¼ cent a pound. None of the other sugar manufacturers announced what action they would take, but it was said no immediate reduction was contemplated.

FIRE DESTROYS CHURCH

Believed to Have Been Caused by Overturning of a Candle

Chicopee, Mass., Oct. 24.—The French Catholic Church of the Assumption was destroyed by fire last night with a loss of $30,000.

The fire was caused, it was thought, by the overturning of a candle, which set fire to the alter hangings. Help was called from Springfield, but it was impossible to save the structure.

The church was of wood and was erected in 1875.

Hundred Horses Perish

Boston, Oct. 24.—Fire caused $50,000 damage and 100 horses perished when the large stable of the John H. Winslow Contracting company, Granite avenue, Milton, was destroyed.

SPORTING "DOPE"

By B. A.

Don't Knock, Just Boost.—B. A.

Today Quincy High tackles the strong Boston College High in a gridiron contest at Merrymount Park. The local lads have not played a game since a week ago, yet the coach has lost no time in rounding them out into the proper shape and from the improvements that have become noticeable in the practise work the Quincy players expect to annex another victory. Yet it would be well not to be over confident, for when we consider that the Boston team recently held the strong Medford High eleven (a combination that defeated the local players by a 23 to 0 score) to a 0 to 0 tie, we can readily see that the team which visits Quincy today is to be considered a foremost contender.

Last year Quincy High was beaten by Boston College High by the score of 5 to 0 in one of the warmest contests of the year. Many new plays will be tried this afternoon and the game should prove a most interesting one from every standpoint. The Boston College High team this year is not as strong as the contingency which represented the Old Gold and Maroon last year, for it is a strange fact that whenever a player shows any marked ability on the High school eleven, he is pulled into the varsity squad. And it is by this means that Boston College High does not occupy the position in interscholastic football circles as it should.

"Bob" Gerstel, a boxer well known in local circles, defeated Harry Archung, of Salem, in one round last night at the boxing tourney of the Riverside Boat club, held in Cypress hall, Cambridge. Archung, known to all as the Salem Chinaman, proved to be one of the features of the evening in the preliminary bouts, and after passing through three hard matches, took on the hard hitting Bob.

The Salem lad had received full and plenty after the bout with Gerstel, had gone for a minute and a half and was compelled to quit.

As a result of his boxing at the recent Quincy A. A. bouts in St. Mary's Hall, "Nedze" Bennett was forced to go to the hospital yesterday for treatment of the little finger of his left hand. It seems that he has sustained a rather serious bruise and may be forced to refrain from participating in any of the coming bouts.

The Quincy A. A. was represented last evening in the Revere House, at the meeting of the New England Basket Ball Association. There are at present eight clubs in the association and a number of representatives from outside clubs were present with a view to become affiliated with the league. Many plans for the coming season were discussed and it is expected that a schedule of games will be drawn up at the next meeting.

The league now comprises the following clubs, Quincy A. A.; Cathedral A. A.; St. Mary's A. A.; St. Joseph's T. A.; St. Joseph's A. A.; St. Charles' A. A. of Waltham, and the Coast Artillery. From present indications, the league bids fair to have a most successful season.

The local team will be especially strong as it will be composed of some of the star players of last year's Quincy High team, including in all probability, "Bill" Manning, one of the best forwards to be found, the Chapman brothers, Prout, Harmond and "Dave" Dackers. Other material is also at hand and when the time comes, Quincy A. A. should become a well known factor through the efforts of a fast basket ball quintet. The local games will probably be played in the Coliseum, unless some more suitable quarters are acquired.

What has become of the Quincy Council K. of C. Bowling team?

LYNN CUTTERS WILL STICK

Declare That Employers Are Wrong In Their Contention

Lynn, Mass., Oct. 24.—The largest meeting ever held by Lynn shoe cutters took place last night, when over 1000 members of Cutters' assembly 3662, K. of L., assembled to prove that their enthusiasm was as strong as ever and that they were still in favor of a forty-five-hour week.

It was announced that Lawyers George F. Williams and J. S. Sisk, who had been asked for an opinion as to whether or not the cutters had violated any agreement with their employers, declared that the employers were at fault, as there was no stipulation in the agreement as to the hours of labor.

The Mandrake Legend.

There is an old legend connected with the mandrake which states that when the plant is uprooted it utters a piercing cry. The forked tubers bear a fantastic resemblance to the body and legs of a man, and from this fancied likeness there grew the belief which was widespread during the middle ages.

ADDRESS ON LEGISLATION BY SENATOR BARNES

At the Opening Meeting of the Wollaston Congregational Club

R. B. Locke Wins Exciting Contest For Club President

At the opening meeting of the Wollaston Congregational club Tuesday evening, Senator George L. Barnes of Weymouth delivered an address upon the features, methods and purposes of legislation.

In opening, the speaker mentioned the difficulty of getting back to non-partisan lines after a week of active campaigning for the coming election in which he is a candidate for re-election. The Massachusetts legislature differs from a great many others in that every matter introduced must be referred to a committee and be reported back by that committee, either favorably or adversely. This is one of the potent reasons for the length of term for which the Massachusetts body is noted.

In New York over 67 per cent of the bills introduced are killed in committees. It is one of the greatest safeguards in Massachusetts that every matter must go through both houses.

Of the 1780 petitions acted upon by the Legislature last year, the speaker mentioned several of a humorous nature. One of these concerned the taxation of bachelors over 35 years of age, the proceeds being used to pension deserving spinsters. Others related to the length of hatpins and the liquor question.

The principal duties of a legislator lies in the regulation of the expenditure of the state's money. Massachusetts expends yearly vast amounts of money and in the appropriation bills are the greatest part of the work.

The appropriations are referred by the auditor's department to the committee on Ways and Means who holds hearings after which the money is expended under the supervision of the council.

This system works well in Massachusetts and in the opinion of the speaker made unnecessary the investigation of state institutions last year at the expense of $100,000. In the entire investigation they did not discover the misappropriation of a single dollar. This is remarkable, for in great corporations there are sometimes dishonest bookkeepers and cashiers and we should point with pride to the fact that Massachusetts goes forth with so clean a sheet.

Mr. Barnes told of the large amounts appropriated annually for charitable and educational purposes and gave in detail the channels through which these appropriations were expended.

PAPERS OUT FOR STONE

Said He Will Allow His Name In Coming Contest

ONCE DECLINED

It was rumored about City Square Tuesday evening that a conference had been held during the afternoon among some of the leaders of the Republican party at which the Mayoralty question was discussed at length. Just what was done at the meeting was not made public, but as this morning it was announced that ex-Councilman Eugene Stone had taken out nomination papers as a Republican candidate for Mayor, it looked as though something may have taken place in relation to his candidacy at Tuesday's meeting if one was held.

EUGENE R. STONE.

It was announced early in the fall that Mr. Stone would not be a candidate, but like a woman, he is privileged to change his mind, which he had evidently done. Ex-Councilman Stone served the city several years in the City Council and is perfectly familiar with the method of conducting city business. He was a candidate for the office in 1908 against Mayor Shea, but met defeat. This was a phenomenal year and the popularity of Mayor Shea at the expiration of his first year could not be overcome.

Mr. Stone was urged to become the party candidate the following year, as well as a year ago, but refused to enter the contest. His name was again mentioned this year for the position, but as stated above, he declined at that time to consider the question.

The taking out of nomination papers by Mr. Stone, means that there will be at least two candidates before the caucuses for the nomination for Mayor, the second man being John L. Miller who announced his candidacy some weeks ago.

There was also a rumor about City Square this morning that Charles H. Johnson was considering the question of entering the contest, but up to noon no papers in his behalf had been issued.

It was stated this noon by one in authority to speak that while nomination papers had been taken out in the interest of Eugene R. Stone as Republican candidate for Mayor it had been done without consulting him. It was believed however that he would consent to become a candidate when the situation was put up to him. This will be done at a conference to be held his evening. Mr. Stone is believed to be one of the strongest candidates that the Republicans could nominate.

ITALIAN INJURED.

A serious accident occurred Monday on Botolph street where new water pipes are now being laid. A pipe that was being lowered into the trench, fell on one of the Italian workmen and badly injured his legs. Dr. Bruce was called, but was unable to come and the hospital was notified. The ambulance quickly responded and the man was rushed to the hospital.

A conference of the Democratic Ward committees will be held in the Hancock House this evening at 7.45 o'clock.

RESIDENT OF ATLANTIC DROPS DEAD

Arthur W. Jordan Expires In His Office In Boston

BORN IN MAINE

Arthur W. Jordan a well known resident of Atlantic d opped dead Tuesday in his office in the Chamber of Commerce building, Boston. Mr. Jordan was a native of Portland, Me., where he was born in 1842. Here he passed his early days and received his early education which was completed at the Westbrook seminary. Leaving Portland he went to Chicago in the early sixties where he was employed for a time at the Union Stock yards as superintendent. He then entered the employ of S. H. Laramey, grain merchant and later returned to Portland as his agent.

In 1891 he opened an office in the Chamber of Commerce building and came to Atlantic about the same time. He leaves three sons. He was a member of Deering lodge A. F. and A. M. of Portland, Mt. Vernon Royal Arch chapter and Portland commandery.

AUTO ACCIDENT

There came near being a serious automobile accident on Quincy avenue at 6.30 Tuesday evening when an automobile containing three men collided with a wagon head on. The automobile was coming down the hill toward Quincy and the wagon was headed toward Newcomb Square. It is said that the team attempted to turn out and that the auto hit a glancing blow. The force of the blow lifted out a bolt, upset the team throwing the men off. The front of the automobile was also somewhat damaged.

In the wagon at the time were Irwin Talbot and James Poole of Bradford street, Whitman. In the auto, which was numbered 31782 were Frank Charger of 761 Washington street Quincy, who was driving the machine, Peter Chargier of the same address and John Madison of 124 Bridge street, North Weymouth.

All of the parties went to the police station where their names were taken. After some delay the team was righted and went on its way toward Whitman. Fortunately none of the parties were injured.

BRIEFS

Mrs. Walter Morrison and son of Pittsfield, are the guests of the Misses Hanson at 963 Hancock street.

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Collins who are on a vacation trip to Washington and Virginia are in receipt of souvenier postals.

The Junior Alliance of the First church will hold a cake and candy sale in the social room of the chapel, Saturday afternoon from 3 to 6 o'clock.

Past Commanders Albert W. Fay and Arthur W. Stetson will attend the meeting of the Grand Commandery of Massachusetts and Rhode Island K. T. in Boston, Thursday.

MANY ENJOY POPULAR PLAY

"The District School Of Atlantic" Given on Tuesday Night

THE CHARACTERS

Tuesday evening "The District School of Atlantic" was given under the auspices of the china committee of the fair. The vestry of Memorial church was comfortably filled and the affair was a great success. It is to be repeated this evening.

The acting was very commendable Mr. Cummings filled the position of chairman of the school committee exceedingly well, as did the four applicants for the position of teacher. In the eyes of the committee Miss Pendergrass, (Miss Eleanor Nelson) was the teacher they wanted; for her disciplinary qualities rose far above all others, and that was what the unruly school so much needed. She believed in resorting to the rod for punishment and that was very necessary on several ocasions, especially with the older boys of the school.

B. F. Thomas, age 4, was the youngest pupil, and his makeup was fine. He wore a belted Russian blouse and his hair was cut Dutch.

His older sister, Mrs. W. F. Cummings, took excellent care of him, his first days in school, causing much laughter.

The school had its stuttering student, a giggler, a singer, and an orator, and one boy persisted in talking through his nose. For these parts so well carried out, especial mention should be given Mrs. B. F. Thomas, Mrs. W. N. Ware, Mrs. A. H. Hall, Mrs J. Burke, Mrs. Wm. Hartley. Miss Ada Harding won the title of "teacher's pet." Percival Hall, John Burke, S. Houston, and Kenneth Blake all deserve especial mention for their parts which also caused much laughter. Miss Maud Reed, both as applicant and as visitor showed marked ability in her every move.

The costumes were all original and well appropriate for the occasion.

BOSTON HIGH FAILS TO SCORE AGAINST QUINCY HIGH SCHOOL

Rapidly Improving Eleven of Local School Defeat Visitors 5-0

Four Players Disqualified For Rough Playing

Displaying its best form of the season, and exhibiting both offensive and defensive work of the perfect variety, the Quincy High football eleven lined up against the formidable Boston College High team, at Merrymount Park yesterday afternoon, and succeeded in wresting a 5 to 0 victory from this latter combination. The local boys were in no way oblivious of the game of last year between the same two teams, and they were determined to use every effort to be pronounced victors on yesterday's occasion.

Last year the maroon and old gold team was victorious by a 5 to 0 score, and Quincy adequately reciprocated yesterday. The forward pass was the undoing of the visitors, for it was successfully worked at a critical moment by the local boys. It occurred in the first part of the second period with the ball on the visitors 30 yard line, and with Quincy in possession of the pigskin on the second down.

Blackmur caught the ball on a pass from the centre, and by a well judged throw, placed the ball in the hands of White, Quincy's efficient right tackle. It seemed as though White was to be downed in his tracks, but after evading the attempted tackles of two Boston College High school men, he was seen to emerge from the affray and run in between the goal posts for the first and only touchdown of the game.

Blackmur tried to kick the goal but the ball struck the cross bar and failed to go over. This was the best opportunity the local boys had to score and they certainly took advantage off it. On two occasions the visitors were within distances of 10 and 15 yards respectively of the Quincy goal line, yet the strengthening impulse of the Quincy line was sufficient to offset any danger.

Four Players Disqualified.

The game was very interesting throughout from a spectator's view point, and the even balance of both aggregations elicited the diligent attention of the many present during the contest as it could not be definitely determined what team was to be the winner until time had been called for the end of the game. The only detracting feature of the game was the fact that Dr. Maloney was forced to comply stringently with the football results, and as a result felt constrained to retire four men from the game who indulged in slugging. This sorry feature was contributed by

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

J. J. Hill says he sees prosperity. Most of us could reach that point if we owned his railroads.

Aeroplanes have gone to carry mail and soon the jaded messenger boy may be supplied with wings.

The melancholy days have come the saddest of the year, when in Maine they shoot guides instead of deer.

Singular as it may seem the man who first spoke of a "cool million" did not have in mind the gold dust cargoes returning from chilly Alaska.

The rebel cause in China is believed to be waning. A judicious distribution of clerkships among the leaders will restore order.

HALLOWE'EN TRICKS.

The hallowe'en festival, which used to be celebrated largely by maidens anxious to learn their future husbands, and by bobbing for apples and other games suited to the kidlets, has of late been seized upon by the Small Boy as an excuse for various depredations. In many places conservative citizens find it prudent to place gates and other movable property under lock and key.

The ordinary pater familias looks abroad at the growing tendency to crime in high and low places. He often feels that his offspring has achieved something rather glorious if the boy avoids committing any crime on account of which the community finds it more economical to board him at public expense than to permit him to remain at large. Hence he often makes light of these minor ravages by the cub element of his family.

To Young America, the man who objects to the burning of gates and chicken coops and the stealing of signs, seems terribly deficient in humor.

Still it does seem as if one ought to be able to lodge a protest against the destruction of things that cost time, thought, and money, without being considered to lack sympathy with young people and to be growing old.

PAPERS TAKEN OUT.

Fighting Tom Butler of Butler road, who has piloted more than one successful candidate through past political wars, applied to the City Committee Tuesday for nomination papers for Charles E. Decker republican candidate for the Council from Ward One. Mr. Decker who was a former resident of Houghs Neck, but now resides on Euclid avenue is well known. He is associated with the J. A. Keating Co., of this city. In one of his recent addresses Mr. Decker is quoted as saying: "If I am elected to the city council you need not look to me for a charter authorizing Houghs Neck to set herself up housekeeping on her own account."

LESLIE RALLY AT WOLLASTON

Home of John L. Hamilton Scene Of Lively Meeting In Aid Of Candidate

A most enthusiastic house rally in the interests of Councilman William J. Leslie for representative was held Tuesday evening at the home of John L. Hamilton on Elm avenue. Many local men in the political limelight were present and all added a word in favor of Mr. Leslie.

The meeting was presided over by Mr. Hamilton, the first speaker being Arthur W. Rohn, chairman of the Republican Ward committee. He spoke briefly commending highly the Republican choice for representative.

Ex-Senator Eugene C. Hutlman outlined the campaign and spoke in favor of the state ticket. Representative Louis F. R. Langelier was the next speaker.

Councilman Leslie upon being introduced was given a good hand and asked for the support of those present in the coming election. He gave a resume of his life in Quincy where he has resided since boyhood.

Ex-Representative Richard R. Freeman spoke in support of the local candidates and of the importance of getting out the vote. Ex-Councilman Moir raked over the actions of Leslie's opponent in the City Council.

Senator Barnes who arrived late made a plea for a large Republican representation in the next Legislature to overthrow Lomasney control. He referred to Councilman Leslie as a good strong representative for the district. In regard to his own reelection he expressed the hope that those present would support him and he promised an equitable and square service.

Speeches by James Shay and Mr. Whitehead, both of Wollaston, followed by a general discussion closed the evening. The meeting was attended by a large number of the voters from Wollaston Park and was the most successful of the several house rallies that have been held.

The next house rally for the Republican candidates will take place on Friday evening at the home of Councilman Sandberg on Buckley street, West Quincy.

POLITICAL NOTES.

It is quite generally understood that Councilman-at-large Charles M. Bryant, the present president of the City Council is not to be a candidate for reelection.

Councilman Charles W. Bailey of Ward Five has taken out nomination papers.

It is getting to be a common thing to be held up and asked to sign a nomination paper.

E. P. Powers has taken out papers to place his name on the ballot for the coming primaries. Mr. Powers comes from Houghs Neck, where, during the summer season he runs the dancing casino and the tonsorial parlors, formerly owned by Nicholas Garbarino. He recently opened at the Coliseum, in Irving place, a roller skating rink. At the entrance is a large sign which reads: "E. P. Powers candidate for Councilman from Ward One," and bearing the platform upon which he bases his candidacy.

Harry Pennington, No. 9 Rockland street, Houghs Neck district, Ward One, took out papers for nomination as city Councilman last evening.

Robert B. Craig aspires for a second term as Councilman from Ward Three. Friends have three papers in circulation for his candidacy.

Democratic nomination papers for Mayor were taken out from the democratic headquarters on Temple street last evening, in the interests of James E. Wall, of 191 Manet avenue. Papers were also taken out for Council by Frank J. Duffy and Edward P. Histen, both of whom are seeking reelection. Papers were also taken out for William H. Flynn, who served three years in the city council from Ward Two. It is expected that a warm fight will take place in the second ward for the councilmanic offices.

Harry T. Boyd, took out papers for council from Ward 4. Mr. Boyd is seeking re-election and there is no doubt but that he will again represent the fourth Ward in this capacity.

FINNISH TEACHER SPEAKS

Mr. Arvi T. Heinonen, the well-known Finnish teacher of the city evening schools delivered a lecture in the crowded hall of the Finnish Temperance Society of this city last Sunday evening on the subject: "Quincy Finnish Temperance Society and the secret power of its great work."

Mr. Heinonen is known as one of the strongest Finnish speakers of the East on the educational field.

Besides his college education in Finland he is a former student of the Boston Evangelical Institute where he graduated as the vice president of the class when only eighteen years old.

Mr. Heinonen is now trying to work his way through for Ph. D. at Harvard.

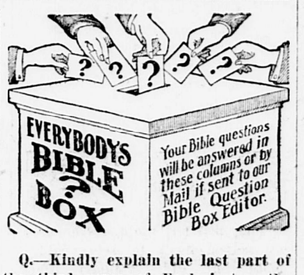
The first time he came over to this country nine years ago, he already became an active member of the Finnish Temperance Society. The summer vacations of 1906, '07, '08 he lived among the Finnish speaking people in Fitchburg, Mass., where he had charge of the Finnish vacation school and the Finnish English evening school. Was elected president of the Temperance Society there and delivered speeches at many of the largest meetings of the Finns in the East.

The young man is a tireless worker for the education of the Finnish people in this country. His work is not limited even to the oral part of the field for he also assists the Finnish weekly newspapers with creditable articles that spread all over New England.

Scientist—Light travels at the rate of about 187,000 miles a second.

Chauffeur—Gee! that's going some!

Auto Enthusiast (slightly deaf)—Pardon me sir. But what make machine was it you just mentioned?



Q.—Kindly explain the last part of the third verse of Ecclesiastes, the eleventh chapter: "In the place where the tree falleth there it shall be?"

Answer.—We find this Scripture to be in harmony with all the remainder of the Bible and as particularly expressed in the ninth chapter of this same book of Ecclesiastes—"For there is no work nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in the grave, whither thou goest." When an individual dies—falls as a tree in death—so shall he remain in the same condition in which he went into the death state, even as the tree of the forest remains at rest. According to the ideas of some good, well-meaning people, when a man dies there is a something that escapes and goes winging its flight around through space, and, according to this theory, this intangible essence that is liberated from the body, is the real individuality, and thus the person is more alive than ever and perfectly conscious. With this view in mind, and referring to the Scripture quoted in the question, we would be forced to understand that when a tree falls it does not actually die, but something passes from it and it is very much alive somewhere! However, there is no such absurdity about the Bible teachings, to the effect that the dead are dead (and not alive) and will be awakened in the morning of the resurrection.

"That clairvoyant said she would show me some ghosts of the past."

"Well—what of it?"

"I told her I had come there and planked down money to find out whether I had a ghost of a future."—Brooklyn Life.

QUINCY ALLIANCE.

There was a large attendance Monday afternoon at the second meeting of the season of Quincy Alliance in First Church parlor, to greet Mrs. George Lewis of Walpole, the speaker of the afternoon.

Mrs. George G. Saville, president, conducted the devotional exercises and business session. She made an appeal for contributions of money or flowers for the use of the Young People's Religious union; the Quincy branch having charge of the flower table at the seventh biennial bazaar to be held Nov. 9, 10 and 11 at hotel Vendome, Boston. Miss Minnie Packard of Chestnut street will be pleased to receive the contributions. Mrs. Saville also asked members to reserve the date Nov. 24 when an operetta was to be given under the direction of the church organist William Weston.

Mrs. Edward B. Marsh of the church hospitality committee and president of the Fragment society asked the assistance and cooperation of the Alliance for a parish supper to be held Nov. 10.

Mrs. William B. Nichols made a strong appeal for reading matter to use in her Cheerful Letter work and it was voted to subscribe for ten Cheerful Letter magazines, for her use, only four subscriptions being previously cared for by the Quincy Alliance. Other magazines and books are also needed for the work as it is far reaching.

Mrs. Saville in introducing Mrs. Lewis, said she did not need an introduction to Quincy or to many of the ladies present as she was a former resident and attendant at the church.

Mrs. Lewis gave a delightful hour with "Some of the Women of the Old Testament" as her subject. The characters were made very real by Mrs. Lewis, and her assistants, she being accompanied by Miss Spear of Walpole, soloist; Mrs. Bunker, contralto soloist; Mrs. Graves, reader and Miss Alice Foster of Quincy accompanist. There was a song, a reading or story for each of the following women to supplement Mrs. Lewis' paper: Sarah, Rachel, Leah, Ruth, Esther, Myra and last but not least mother Eve.

Each was fine; Mrs. Graves read delightfully and the soloists gave great pleasure as did the accompanist. It was one of the most enjoyable programs of the many, Alliance members have had the good fortune to listen to.

The hostesses were: Mrs. Edward Russell and Mrs. John O. Holden.

QUINCY WOMEN'S CLUB.

One of the largest public meetings ever held by the Quincy Women's club was that of Tuesday afternoon at the clubhouse on Goffe street. Not only was there a large attendance of women but also of men, who are interested in all broad and helpful work in our city. Among them was noticed Rev. Rufus B. Tobey, Rev. Richard E. Armstrong, Henry M. Faxon and James D. Howlett.

The club president Mrs. Eben W. Sheppard presided and a short business session was held for the necessary routine business, which was followed with a pleasing musical program by Miss Ruth L. Hardy, soloist and Mrs. Mary Chandler West, pianist. Miss Hardy sang very sweetly giving much pleasure, her selections being: My Ain Folk, by Lora Lemon; Joy Unspoken, by Joseph Sucher and A Rose Fable, by C. B. Hawley.

In the absence of Mrs. Chandler W. Smith, chairman of the Philanthropy committee the introduction of the speakers of the afternoon was made by Mrs. Wilson Marsh in her usual happy manner, the first speaker being Judge Albert E. Avery of Braintree, judge of the East Norfolk District Court, who is practically a day resident of our city and better acquainted with some of its needs than many permanent dwellers.

Judge Avery in opening his remarks quoted from a recent writing of Elizabeth Stuart Phelps when she said "A woman can be strong and still be sweet and sweet because she is strong." The Quincy Women's club he said was strong enough to take one new charity. Crime was a wrong, done to the standard of law. Probation first seeks to reform by curing and not by inflicting punishment. Since 1869 Massachusetts has been trying to mitigate the punishment of its offenders by allowing opportunity to reform and make restitution. Crime consists of seizing a satisfaction without paying the price. If a person is not put on probation it causes a great deal of suffering that might be saved. Massachusetts was one of the earliest states to take care of its juveniles by establishing special courts. Massachusetts is not behind in legislation looking toward reformation. Direct legislation looking toward this end is better than all charitable institutions.

In 1847 the Westboro, now the Lyman school for boys, was established and was the first to be established in the United States. Chapter 359 of 1870 provides that offenders under 17 years shall be separated from other criminals. So therefore Massachusetts was the first state in the union to enact such a law. In 1877 it was provided that juveniles should be tried separate from other cases and this has since been done here in Quincy. Judge Avery then spoke of the laws creating the office of paid probation officers and the agents acting under the state board of charity who stood between juveniles and the court and he had found that these state agents were not afraid to oppose the court. His experience had been that these agents were aiming to give the juveniles another chance.

It was during Gov. Douglass' administration that laws were enacted that sought to protect children, rather than commit them to jail. The law relative to the release of prisoners arrested for drunkenness was enacted. This law provides that a man arrested for drunkenness is informed, when he has sobered off, that he can make application for release and if he has not been arrested twice before in twelve months, he is released at the station. Officers however make their return to the courts just the same and if the man is found not to have told the truth he is brought in.

Another act was the suspension of sentences. Now when a fine not exceeding $10 is imposed on a man, he is informed that he has the right to appeal to the superior court. If he waves that right his sentence is suspended and he is placed on probation and he is allowed to pay so much each week to the probation officer during the period of suspension. In this way his family are not deprived of his support.

Then came the enactment of the delinquent childrens act for children between 7 and 17 years of age. These delinquents are those who violate ordinances, or bylaws, as well as wayward children who are in danger of becoming associated with undesirable people. It provides for these children what should have been provided by their parents. If it had been, they would not have been in court.

Judge Avery then explained at length the card system as used in cases of probation in the Quincy court. These cards explained in detail the condition of probation. If a man who has waived his right of appeal and had his sentence suspended and violates his probation he is surrendered and takes his sentence and has not the right of appeal.

In Quincy the sentiment seems to have been that Probation is a farce. To stop that idea he had caused eleven or twelve men who had not lived up to their probation to be brought into court and take their sentence. It was a harsh measure but had had a good wholesome effect.

The acts of 1911 authorized the appointment of female probation officers. Judge Avery then explained the duties of a probation officer which in brief were to investigate every case that he may recommend probation. The duties of a female probation officer were to investigate cases of women. The idea of probation was to preserve individuality and not destroy it as would be done if persons were imprisoned. To decide doubtful cases by giving them the benefit of the doubt. In the ten years he had presided over the Quincy court he had made a study of the probation system and he could endorse a recent English writer who said "the extent which will, with safety, keep people out of prison, is the measure that country will prosper."

Another argument in favor of probation was the cost. The cost of imprisonment was great. First there was the family to look after. The expense of committing prisoners and their board. He then quoted some figures from the probation officers report to prove the expense that was saved. Last year he said that the receipts from suspended sentences amounted to $2,436.41. Received for restitution to persons and corporations $217.75. paid to wives and children through the Probation officer $1,077.25.

In Quincy last year there were 96 juvenile cases. These were all kept separate from the more serious offences of older prisoners and their cases were heard privately.

A man committed for a $5 fine must remain in jail eight days, $10 fine twenty days, $20 fine thirty days. The law also provides that no poor prisoner shall be held more than three months.

The Women's club, Judge Avery said, could be of great help to him. Appoint one of your number to act as a volunteer probation officer. When the court is established in its new quarters he should have a separate court for juveniles and for the hearing of domestic trouble cases, and thus do away with the unpleasant publicity. Any woman whom you may select as an assistant may have a room by herself and not come in contact with the disagreeable features.

Dr. Jeffery R. Brackett followed Judge Avery and spoke briefly on Our duty toward offenders.

As he came to the platform the club rose en masse and gave him the Chautauqua salute.

He said we may well be proud of the good the probation system is doing. It is going to grow because the principal is as solid as our granite hills. Our duty to offenders was first to help form good public opinion about who and what they are. All offenders have a lot of good in them, some are not helpable.

By recognizing a wide discrimination between the two classes, shall we help the cause. Much more attention is being given now to the study of children who have feeble minds. We must help clear the atmosphere as to which are which.

Then we may all help by backing up public officials who are trying to promote better treatment of offenders. If in every country persons would volunteer aid a light would soon dawn. Another thing was that many offenders in a petty way, were so because of ignorance. Set ourselves a good example in respect for the law. We all know that we can help by our example to set a higher respect for the law.

An informal reception to the speakers brought the meeting to a close.

Anty Drudge on Early Rising.

Mrs. Workhard (winding alarm clock)—"I always set the alarm for 4 o'clock on Monday morning, so I can make an early start with my washing and get through before dark."

Anty Drudge—"Nonsense. Just you sleep three hours later, and then send to the grocer's for some Fels-Naptha soap, and do your washing the Fels-Naptha way. Your wash will be on the line before noon, cleaner and whiter than ever before."

In India the women still go down to the river banks and wash clothes by rubbing them over stones.

They are unprogressive, we say. But they are no farther behind the times than the American women who still boil clothes and hard-rub them on a washboard. The women of India don't weaken their clothes by boiling, at least.

The truly modern way of washing is the Fels-Naptha way. No boiling to weaken the fibre; no hard-rubbing to wear and tear. Work saved, time saved, fuel saved; clothes cleaner.

POPULAR COUPLE ARE MARRIED

Miss Mary Frances Burns Becomes Bride of John J. King

AT HOME DEC. 1ST

In the presence of only the immediate family, Miss Mary Frances Burns, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Burns of 13 Payne street and Mr. John Joseph King of West Quincy, were married Tuesday evening at the St. John's parochial residence by Rev. John J. Coan.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Margaret Burns and the groom by his brother Mr. Martin King. The bride, a pretty brunette, was becomingly gowned in a white marquisette over white satin. She wore a picture hat and carried a bouquet of bride roses. The bridesmaid was gowned in a white marquisette and wore a black picture hat. Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. King left for a brief wedding trip. On their return they will reside on Bradford street where they will be at home after Dec. 1.

The bride is one of the best known ladies in St. John's parish and a member of the church choir. She has a host of warm friends in the parish, with whom she has always been extremely popular. The groom is also well and favorably known in West Quincy where he has always made his home. He is a member of Ave Maria Council, Knights of Columbus, and of the St. Mary's C. T. A. society

MR. MILLER'S NOMINATION PAPERS

John L. Miller, a Republican aspirant for mayoralty honors, announces that a canvas with his nomination papers yesterday secured him the names of thirty-five prominent business men of the city and among others who attached their signatures appears the name of H. Everett Crane, It is thought that this action of Mr. Crane will dispel any opinion entertained as to his becoming a candidate for the same office which Mr. Miller is seeking.

RECEIVES SENTENCE UNDER NEW LAW

The first sentence under the new non-support law was imposed by Judge Avery this morning on Albert Peterson of Holbrook. Peterson was in court last July for non-spport and sentenced to six months in the House of Correction. His sentence was suspended and he was ordered to pay $10 a week for the support of his family. He paid three weeks and then stopped, as he skipped the country. He came back and was arrested Tuesday for drunkenness and brought into court this morning. The suspension of last July was revoked and he was sentenced to six months in jail. In addition to this, under the new law, he was ordered to pay to the jail keeper 50 cents a week for the support of his family. This sum will come out of the amount which he earns while at work in the jail.

BRIEFS

Weekly whist tournament at the Qranite City club rooms tonight.

The first of the series of whist parties under the auspices of the Quincy Catholic club will be held tonight in Colonial hall.

The general sentiment about City Square seems to be that if Houghs Neck wants to be set off as a town of itself it would be a good thing to have it that way. Most everybody say they would gladly hold up both hands to vote for it.

Tuesday evening an official visit was made by D. D. G. M. Lillian E. Baker of Wollaston, and suite, to Rose Standish Rebekah lodge, No. 71, I. O. O. F., of Rockland. A pleasant and interesting evening was enjoyed, it being the celebration of the 23rd anniversary of the lodge and was largely attended.

LITERARY CLUB STARTED

Among the Finnish Speaking People In Quincy

WILL GIVE CONCERT

At a special meeting of the pupils of the Quincy private Finnish English evening school it was decided to found a club for the purpose of giving the pupils of the aforesaid school an opportunity to put into practical use the knowledge of the English Language which they have received through study.

The purpose of the English Literary club for the Finlanders of Quincy is to take up the study of a sketch of the best English literary products and most famous writers, to read before the public English poems and make short speeches, to translate the best Finnish quartette and other songs into the English language and to deliver them at public club evenings which are held at least four times a year.

The program of the club also includes an endeavor to make more general the knowledge of the Finnish education and literature among the English speaking people of this city. Society games, where the English language is to be spoken have also taken their place at the meetings of the club. The conversation at the meetings is to be carried on in English. Also a record of the meetings is to be written in the aforesaid language.

At the meeting last Sunday, in which the club was founded, the conversation was however carried on in Finnish.

Mr. Heinonen, teacher of the private English evening school was elected general supervisor and director of the work. Mr. Vaino Helin was elected president and Mr. Kaarlo Konddin secretary of the club.

A public entertainment was decided to be given on Dec. 21st in the Finnish Temperance Hall. One half of the program is to be delivered in the English language. The meeting closed with the Finnish national anthem "Maamme" ("Our Land") sung by the members in the English language.

The anthem follows:

OUR LAND.

Our land, our land, our Fatherland!
Thou glorious word, ring forth!
No mountain rises proud and grand,
Nor slopes a vale, nor sweeps a strand
More dear than thou, land of the North—
Our fathers' native earth.

Thy blossom in the bud that lies
Shall burst its fetters strong;
And from our tender love shall rise
Thy light, thy fame, thy hopes, thy joys;
And louder far shall sound ere long
Our fathers' native song.

TODAY'S COURT.

John F. Kanziz and Daniel Kenney were fined $15 each for drunkenness at Weymouth.

Albert Peterson was sentenced to six months in the House of Correction for non support at Holbrook.

Mark B. Creed was fined $20 for violation of the automobile law at Milton.

IN FASHION'S REALM.

Late Autumn Fashions Do Not Show Many Changes.

Points Worth Knowing About Altering Last Season's Clothes.

One always feels in an attitude of hearty approval of American judgment when one returns from Paris. The professional American mind, placed in a maelstrom of clothes and fashions and fabrics, as it is during the Fall in Paris, emerges from it quite sane and sound with wares that show selective ability.

Probably nothing is more interesting to the writer who goes abroad and, who is in this maelstrom with the buyers, than to come back and see what those who represent American clothes have purchased. These things are offered to America as the best of the French styles in the judgment of the buyers.

One must always remember that last condition; that it is the judgment of those who are sent there that counts in the game of clothes. Everything depends on the ability to keep a cool head and select what is considered the best for the American trade out of the miscellaneous lot that is offered.

You and I might have not chosen the exact things that were chosen by Mr. Jones and Mrs. Brown for their firms at home; but you and I are merely individuals representing ourselves and a small coterie of people; while Mr. Jones and Mrs. Brown are risking their reputations and their safaries in choosing the wares to bring home from the French markets.

They have trained ability and experience; they know what was a failure last year; they know the class of people to whom their firm caters; and they are bulwarked by facts. Therefore, if you and do not quite like their selections it is wise to remember that we are very small atoms in their financial books; that unless they please thousands of buyers with many minds and tastes, their trade is a failure.

But it is instructive and certainly interesting to see at this time of the year what the shops and dressmakers here have to offer and see how good was their judgment in general and how many grotesque things they avoided, and how many sound and dignified things they brought home.

It is true that dressmakers, especially those who have a fashionable clientele, do not take hold of as many exaggerated fashions as the great shops do; the reason for this is so obvious that it is not necessary to do more than touch upon it. It is the old story of the very rich and fashionable woman wanting to wear something that is not conspicuous, and the desire of the woman who has little money and few social opportunities to wear the extreme thing of the moment.

It is because this is true in America that the great shops must bring over the extreme things or lose their trade among the masses. They know the exclusive women won't buy them, but the trade of the exclusive women won't pay their rent bills.

One has to look rather hard to find some of the exquisite gowns that caught the eye in Paris, but one will probably see them later at social affairs, and the majority of good styles that were brought out in August are all here, modified to suit the American taste.

The best of Worth's wonderful creations are for those who have the price, and his flowing court trains, which are short enough for comfort, are on his models, made of velvet and satin or tissue and gauze, and lined with wonderful purples and blue and rose pinks.

As for the alluring little changeable taffeta frocks brought out by all the dressmakers, they are here in abundance, in gray and violet, in pink and mauve, in green and blue. There are the same plaitings and pinked ruchings and ruffles; there are the identical fichus, dropping well over the arm, and the wide folded girdles that are slightly above the waist-line.

One also has here the under petticoat of lace, which shows at the side, and the great black velvet flowers that fasten the fronts of the bodices.

In morning frocks to wear under fur coats one sees the same snappy little models that were offered in Paris, and which were admired so much over there. They are in purple and blue and brown ratine and tweed, made always with the cut skirt, the blouse of two materials, the ornamental belt of patent leather and quartz or metal or enamel, and the wide sailor collar of any fanciful material one wishes.

Here also is the long sleeve, the sleeve put into a low drooping armhole under a small satin cord, the glovelike cuffs of thin lace that come from under the heavier sleeve, and fit down over the top part of the hand like an old-fashioned mitt. The crinoline sleeve is not lacking. It is offered to those who want it, and who would wear a novelty if it showed up every defect and ruined their figures.

Only the dressmakers regret the slight change in clothes between this and last season. They are always anxious for revolutions, for it means coppers in their coffers. Their chance of trade this year comes in the fact that masses of women must have new clothes and hats and wraps and that the change in details between the gowns of last Winter and this Autumn will persuade hundreds of women to get clothes whether or not they need them.

It is the economical woman who is most benefited by the present inaction in style. It is she who can observe her clothes of last Winter with satisfaction, send them to the cleaners, then put them on for the rest of the Winter. She was worried about rumors in the Summer concerning the introduction of plaited skirts; those who were behind the scenes knew that this rumor had no foundation, but the public at large remained in doubt.

Then it was rumored that coats would be much longer, which was a bolt to those who had hip length ones last year. This rumor also proved untrue, although coats are longer, but not so much so that the coat of last year is old-fashioned.

This is a preamble from the main subject of how to alter your clothes to make them go through the coming cold weather. If you bought a skirt last winter that had a stitched panel down the back it can be left as it is, although it is not in first fashion; the swinging panel takes its place. Now the best way to treat that effect is to run tubular braid down the edges and twist it into a bold motif at the end.

If you wish to get a further effect of a swinging panel you can put one or two folds of the same or other material between the knees and the hem. The front of the skirt, which is probably without a seam, can be left as it is, or a half-inch fold can be placed on the bias across the front to imitate a seam.

This bias line is very smart and changes the skirt conisderably. Sometimes it goes straight across from the left front to the right ankle; again, it runs down the side of the front in a straight line to the knee, then off on the bias to the hem.

If the coat that belongs to this skirt is short and straight, let it alone, but add huge revers of contrasting matrial, finished with an edge of color, possibly some braid. White, beige and chamois yellow are the tones for collars, although gray and purple are used a good deal. Probably we will see too much of the latter to like it by January, as every motor coat and top wrap seems to have it.

These three tones of tan given above are really the smartest to use. They trim hats, are used in gaiters and uppers for shoes, are smart in gloves and appear in collars and cuffs, as well as in the blouses. It is much more fashionable to have a separate blouse in any one of these tones than in pure white. The woman who tries them will be delighted to find how they sink into every suit she has with more artistic result than the dead white which invariably makes a sharp and sometimes crude contrast.

If her coat is quite short, or if there is something about it below the waist that she does not like, it is easy to make a separate peplum of the material and stitch it on at the waist line, or a half inch above it.

Let me advise her not to carry this line straight across the front. Few figures can stand it. Let it go across the front on the bias, breaking the line at the hips. This preserves the straight front, and yet places the coat in style. If one has a coat that is double breasted, then the fronts should be cut away to two inches above the waist line and a sailor collar, or a round collar if one prefers, added in another material, with an edge of velvet, fur, or braiding. This collar should be large enough to lap over just below the bust, and the double-breasted fastening should be continued above and below the waist line.

The ultra-new line of coats across the hips cannot be obtained with an old suit, and there is no use struggling for it; it is made by drawing the lower part of the coat around the figure in folds and fastening it on the left hip with one or two large ornaments. After all, it is an extreme style, and one need not have it in order to be in the fashion.

The addition of an ornamental belt is a great help to many coats. The French tailors are using many of them and they make an old coat look like new; provided one's figure can stand it, it is a good scheme. Plain patent leather is used; also leather with squares of colored enamel or gilt metal.

The kimono blouse should be altered if one wants to be dressed in correct style. It is hardly worth the trouble to cut the round neck into a V-shaped one to conform to the present-day neck line, but an undersleeve should be added to the short kimono sleeve. This can be done with net, lace or messaline. The tight cuff that hugs the elbow and ends just below it is no longer in fashion; the lower sleeve must be full and drop to the wrist, where it is confined by a tight band and finished with a plaited ruffle.

This sounds like an old-fashioned sleeve, but in truth it is quite a new one, and will be worn more and more as the season advances. The lower part is usually made of white, when net or lace is used, but I would not advise this for an every-day blouse. It would be much better to use self-colored chiffon cloth over white lace, which is one of the effects given by the best dressmakers.

If the kimono blouse is collarless, it would be wise to make a guimpe for it of plain white net. It is difficult to place the exact position of the collarless blouse, but it is safe to say that when it is a separate waist it should carry a high collar. The low-necked house frock is still in good style. It is worn under a fur coat on the street with the neck covered, but the white, or chiffon or net blouse which is worn as an adjunct to a suit must carry its high-boned collar.

These net guimpes are far more fashionable than lace ones. The material is called Alencon tulle abroad but it probably is plain wash net over here. In the V-shaped blouses, which are at the height of fashion, these neck pieces of white net run to a point below the bust and are unlined, showing the front ofthe corset cover, with its flesh pink ribbon, or a band of flesh pink messaline.

If you are altering blouses, you should seriously consider this net vest with the touch of pink beneath, for it dominates the smart waists. You may not care to have anything so thin for an everyday blouse, but it will serve for that special one.

If you own evening gowns that are good enough to wear with a few alterations, here are some suggestions that may help; the important thing is to drape the skirt on the bias in front. The lines are long at the back and short in front. The entirely plain skirt of satin or velvet is not in fashion. There must be a tunic of some kind, but it would be wise to avoid chiffon. Net, satin and gauze are used in preference. The satin tunics are immensely good fashion.

A white satin gown is draped with a black satin tunic which extends half way up the bodice in some fashion. The front edges lap over at the left of the waistline and are finished all around with thick silk fringe. Young women are wearing bright blue satin tunics over red satin skirts and green satin tunics over gray or bronze or black skirts. Yellow satin is worn over gray and the other way around.

This strikes a new note in evening gowns and gives one a chance for charming color combinations. Even if you prefer net to satin or chiffon, although it is a trifle passe, do not choose the same color as the gown. That idea has been worn threadbare. Canary yellow net or chiffon tunics are worn over turquois blue or rose pink satin skirts with the edges touched off with bead embroidery in either coral or turquois.

If you have an evening gown that is too much worn for social affairs of any importance you can make it into an alluring house gown by adding one of those burnous coats of chiffon cloth over which Paris is most enthusiastic. These are easy to cut. They are not in the kimono shape except as far as the sleeves are concerned; they are rather slim and fit the figure, closing in around the hips and knees with the tightness of the Oriental drapery.

They are ready made in lace and in white net, and they can be made at home with any transparent fabric. It is more fashionable to Orientalize them than to leave them plain, so a few splashes of colored beads and hand-painted swirls or heavy embroidery should be added.

The lace ones sometimes carry a band of fur or satin at the lower edge, and the plain net ones carry silver galloon, an edge of swansdown, or a band of marabou. This is repeated on the sleeves, and the barbaric note is carried out at the waist where the coat is fastened with a huge buckle or cabochon or rosette.

If you do not like any of these use huge satin or velvet flowers.—Anne Rittenhouse in New York Times.

ROOSTER COAL BRIQUETS

THE NEW ANTHRACITE COAL

ROOSTER BRIQUETS are made from the choicest small Scranton Anthracite coal mined in Pennsylvania, called TWENTIETH CENTURY CHESTNUT size

Just consider for a moment what we offer here in this 20th CENTURY CHESTNUT.

First, 2000 pounds of clean, pure, hard coal without a rock or a piece of slate.

Second, fuel that cannot form into a clinker, by any known method of firing, consequently the linings and grates last indefinitely.

Third, they are made in nut size, being equally convenient for furnace heaters, open grates, as well as stoves; therefore, only one storage bin is necessary.

Fourth, and very IMPORTANT, the quality of this fuel is the SAME EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR, not a good ton today, and nothing like it the next time, in other words, when you once learn how to regulate your drafts you have nothing more to learn about burning BRIQUETS.

Fifth, no more sifting ashes these Briquets burn out clean. They require less wood to kindle.

Be sure to ask for "ROOSTERS" and get the Briquet made from pure Scranton Coal, from the largest Briquet plant in the country. They are better than coal, will last as long and cost less.

SYNOPSIS

Anna Granger, devoted mother of two small children, discovers that her husband is a weak character and that he has lied to her about a woman.

Posing as Miss Dale, she becomes stenographer to Burton Temple, through whose evidence her husband has been imprisoned. She thinks Temple is the guilty man and is acting the spy to clear her husband's name for his sake and that of her children.

Anna discovers that Temple was one of her girlhood's ideals. Thinking her a single woman, he tells her her husband was a liar and perjurer.

Temple has detectives on the trail of Brady, an accomplice of Granger, looking for evidence. Anna is searching for evidence against Temple, who becomes interested in her.

"Are you going farther down the path? May I walk with you?" he asked, and, having received the assent of her head and a nonchalant "If you wish," he began:

"Do you know what I was thinking about, Miss Dale, as I sat there in the pagoda? I was wondering where I had met you before. Since the very first day you came I have often wondered that. I have seen you before—oh, no, there is no doubt about it—but where I can't recall."

"In some other incarnation, I dare say," laughed she. "Was it when we were swinging from trees or not so long ago as that? Could it"—yes, she would tempt the fates and be downright courageous—"could it have been in the days when I was in the Exchange building. One meets so many"—

"The Exchange building? Ah, precisely! I recall it all now, and how I used to find myself unwittingly looking for you after that first day. But I was called south, and when I came back you had vanished." He spoke reminiscently.

"The first day? I don't quite understand," queried she.

"I was coming down in the elevator, hurried to death, my mind in a frightful state of turmoil. I found you watching me from some crowded corner, and I looked directly into your eyes." He studied her now with a smile serious and tender. "I looked, and it was like bathing one's face in a pool of spring water after a hot journey," he ended simply.

It came back with such unmistakable vividness to Anna that she spoke spontaneously:

"You did look worried."

"Oh, you remember, too?" he cried. "I can't tell you how glad that makes me. I couldn't get you out of my mind somehow. You see, I never did get you out of my mind. Some faces stay with us. Yours stayed."

The woman beside him had become very grave, feeling the beat of her pulse quicken with the distant surge of a strange joy, a joy indistinct as the tremor of an unrisen sun, yet all pervasive. Realizing her danger, deftly she veered her mood.

"Yes, I passed our old elevator boy on the street a few months ago," she remarked casually, stooping to pat the mastiff's head. "I remembered his face, too, though it had been over a decade since I saw him."

The man's face was rueful as he noted appreciation of her tactics.

Below them was the broad expanse of the Hudson, scintillating as a sapphire in the glow of the summer afternoon. A yachting party steaming up river waved hats and handkerchiefs at them in pure good fellowship. It seemed good to be alive. Temple pulled two chairs under the shade of the trees, and they sat down. In the distance the cliffs of the Palisades rose and beckoned alluringly.

"Do you know what I used to call them, those cliffs?" said he, seeing his companion's eyes upon them. "My enchanted palaces. When I was a child the palace of enchantment meant the future, the mysterious, ineffable future when I should be grown up, when I should be a man, when the world would be my garden, the world and life and all their riches mine to explore, to adventure in. And, oh, the people by whom the world and the future were inhabited, the cavalcading knights, the lovely princesses! Love and glory and all manner of romance, I had them for the wishing. Did you ever have such an enchanted palace, Miss Dale?" asked he whimsically.

"Yes," acquiesced she softly, falling in with his mood, the sympathetic bond which always asserted itself when she was not on guard, drawing her once again. "Oh, yes; I, too, had my enchanted palace, a many pinnacled palace built of gold and silver, ivory, alabaster and mother of pearl; the fountains in its courts ran with perfumed waters." Her voice trailed off dreamily, and Temple thrilled with the music of it. "And its pleasaunce was an orchard of pomegranates. One had no need to spare one's colors, you know." She turned to him with an adorable smile.

"I know." He was at one with her now, responding intuitively to the play of her emotions. "And the stars left their courses to fight for you, and the winds of heaven vied with each other to prosper your galleons—wasn't it like that?" He looked at her; she was scarcely listening; she was watching the sunlight catching on the tops of the Palisades. It was just as well; he was safer in his inspection of her so.

"Uh-huh! Like that," she said, her ears mechanically following his words. "I dare say," she went on musingly, "it must be that we pass the enchanted palace while we are asleep. Surely, at first, it is before us—we can see it glistening in the distance, like the peaks yonder. We shall reach it tomorrow, next month, next year. And then one morning we wake up and—and it is behind us. We've passed it, and we can't turn back. We must go on." Her voice ended in a little half sob.

The sight of a tear trembling on her lashes cost Burton Temple a hundred conflicts with himself. He felt a sudden warmth behind his eyes and in his throat. All he did, however, was to look big, hold his tongue and envy the dead their enforced responsibility.

"I—I'm not often agitated," said Anna, rising, with an odd, starry smile, "and you must pardon me that display of oversentiment." But before he could have spoken: "I must really go in now. I've promised Mrs. Mason to play a game of pachisi, or cribbage, or something," she faltered. So Temple, elaborately commiserating, escorted her up the red gravel path.

ADDRESS ON LEGISLATION

An interesting description of the School for Feeble Minded followed.

Speaking of the influence of the lobby the Senator said that he was not very much alarmed about it in the Massachusetts Legislature. By this is commonly known the appearance of attorneys representing their clients before hearings that have been properly advertised. These often render invaluable service to legislators seting on committees.

It is true that there are other men who spend their time in the corridors but these are not taken seriously and the legislators do not pay much attention to them.

While there is no danger in what is commonly known as lobbying, the trouble is that sometimes when a fellow gets home or to his office the pressure of his best friends is brought by the interests to bear on him. This is hard to withstand and there is only one course to pursue. That is, to do as he absolutely believes is right and let public and other criticism go hang. Then he can say whether he wins or loses, that he has done what he believes is right. His conscience is clear and he can look every man in the eye.

Senator Barnes was warmly applauded at the close of his address and many questions in regard to the referendum and other matters were asked by the members.

At 6.30 those present sat down to an excellent roast beef supper following which a brief business meeting took place.

A highly exciting contest for president of the club was waged between W. A. Mann and R. B. Locke the electioneering being done in approved political style with literature and personal solicitation.

Mr. Locke was elected by an overwhelming majority and delivered an inspiring inaugural in which he called for the cooperation of the members for the coming year. The vacancy occurred through the resignation of Chester N. Godfrey.

Rufus B. Tobey was appointed to head a committee to look into the advisability of using the assembly hall in the new Wollaston school building for other than school purposes.

WOMEN'S CLUBS

GENERAL FEDERATION MESSAGE.

Mrs. Philip N. Moore of St. Louis, Mo., president of the General Federation of Women's clubs, sends out an official message regarding the raising of an endowment: "In the report given at the last biennial, held at Cincinnati," says Mrs. Moore, "the question of endowment came vividly before us, since the revision toward increase of dues was voted down. Endowment as a policy was then ordered unanimously by the convention.

"If we desire to be a Democratic organization and keep the dues lower than other known National organizations, then must we plan a fund from which we can pay the expenses of officers and chairmen of departments when they travel from State to State for the benefit of clubs and State federations.

"The first suggestion made a year ago was that all club and State federations in membership should pay an additional amount of their annual dues for one year, or divide the amount for two years, so that such organizations should consider that they have a part in the fund, when it is raised. Fifteen States and a large number of small clubs have already responded."

Mrs. Percy V. Pennypacker of Austin, Texas, is chairman of the endowment committee. Mrs. Elizabeth Dennison of South Framingham is the representative from Massachusetts, The other New England States are represented on the committee as follows: Maine, Mrs. Kendal Dunbar, Damariscotta; New Hampshire, Mrs. William Burlingame of Exeter; Vermont, Mrs. P. F. Hazen of St Johnsbury.

Mrs. Pennypacker suggests that one week in November be given by the clubs in presenting the endowment policy to members and others interested in the work the General Federation is doing for women and children. It is not expected that any State, as an organization, will vote more than its first payment, as suggested.

STATE FEDERATION MEETINGS.

By courtesy of the Mattapannock club of South Boston club presidents and two other memebrs are invited to attend a conference on Saturday, at 2 P. M., in the Hawes Unitarian church, Broadway, South Boston. The subject for discussion will be "The Ideal President from the Viewpoint of the Club and from the Viewpoint of the Federation."

By invitation of the Hannah Dustin club the autumn meeting will be held in the First Universalist church, Kenoza avenue, Haverhill, on Thursday, Nov. 16. The morning session will open at 10.15 o'clock. There will be an address on "Civics" by Rev. Frederic W. Perkins, D. D., of Lynn, and on "City Planning" by John Nolan of Cambridge. At the afternoon session an address wil be given by President William DeWitt Hyde of Bowdoin College, on "Our Future Citizen."

The study class in connection with the Civil Service Reform department meets at the Boston Public Library, Saturday, Nov. 4, at 10.30 A. M. Edwin A. Shaw, principal of the Natick High school, will be the leader for the meeting. Subject: "Town and City Governments; Their Organization and Administration."

ELM HILL WINS.

The Quincy Council, K. of C., bowling team travelled to Dorchester last evening to open up the season with the Elm Hill Council, but the contest ended in a 1302 to 1227 victory for the home team. It was a very exciting battle throughout, however, and at times it seemed as if the local aggregation would return home in triumph.

For the Quincy bowlers, the work of Larkin stood out conspicuously, he being credited with a total of 1227 for three strings. Bliss, another member of the Quincy team was the high single string man of the game, rolling up 99 on his last string, defeating Larkin by 7 balls for the single string. The highest sum total for the game was made by Johnson, of the winners, who reached the 267 mark for the three strings. The summary:

ELM HILL.	1	2	3	Totals

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

WILL ERECT LARGE HALL

In This City For Finnish Temperance Society

TO COST $15,000

The building of a new and capacious hall for the temperance work among the Finnish speaking people of Quincy is already commenced. Membership of the Finnish Temperance Society is about two hundred. Good and prosperous work is done by said society for the Finlanders here. The new hall will seat about 600 people and thus is going to be one of the most roomy halls in Quincy. The building of same will be completed not later than the first of May next year. The building will contain, besides the enormous hall itself, a modern library room, reading room, music room, room for committee meetings and dressing room for the actors and actresses etc. The building when completed will cost about $15,000.

BRIEFS

Miss Hilda McDonald and a friend of Waltham, formerly of Franklin street, Quincy spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. T. O'Connell of Summer street.

The Hospital Aid Association will meet for the October meeting with Mrs. Theophilus King of Adams street Thursday of this week at 2:30 when a large attendance is hoped for.

A social smoke talk will take place in the clubhouse of the Town River Yacht club this evening. Well known speakers will address the gathering and a good time is in store for all the members.

Mr. and Mrs. William Nash, who went to New York a week ago in Penniman's little Ford car on their wedding tour have returned home. Although they found some rainy weather they had an enjoyable trip and practically no trouble with the auto.

A rally in the interests of the republican State ticket, and William J. Leslie, candidate for the House from the sixth Norfolk, will be held in Brazee hall, Wollaston, this evening. Senator Charles Brown of Medford will be the principal speaker.

A rally in the interests of the Democratic State ticket will be held this evening at Brewer's corner. John J. McDevitt, candidate for the House, will be one of the speakers, and it is expected that the gathering will be addressed by prominent democrats.

The first grand social and dance, to be given by number 1517, Nest of Owls will take place in Alpha Hall, Thursday evening, November 9th. Wilson's orchestra has been secured for the event, and after a concert from 8 till 9, dancing will be in order till midnight.

Dr. Wm. G. Anderson Addresses "Gym" And Directors

BOWLING

Dr. William G. Anderson, head of the Physical department at Yale, addressed the "Gym" class and the board of Directors at the Young Men's Christian association Tuesday evening. His addresses were based upon an experience covering more than forty years in teaching gymnastics and personal hygiene and what he had to say was the strongest kind of a plea for cleanliness of habit and speech. He emphasized the importance of regular and systematic exercise by pointing out that the machinery of the human body was the only kind that improved with use and deteriorated greatly from non-use.

Dr. Anderson gave many telling illustrations drawn from his work among the students of Yale, which drove home the points of his remarks. A large crowd of fellows gathered on the gym floor to hear him and all were agreed that his remarks were quite the best thing they had ever heard along the line of physical education.

In speaking to the Directors, Dr. Anderson pointed out the great need of instruction on the value of clean living.

Both groups of men that heard him are very anxious to hear him again and in all probality he will give a second address to members of the association and their friends at a later date.

The winter season is going to be a busy one for the Y. M. C. A. athletes of Quincy. The inter-association bowling league composed of teams in Brockton, Abington, Hyde Park, Milton, Weymouth and Quincy will begin operations on Tuesday, November 7. The Quincy association which appears in the league for the first time this year will make a strenous effort to come out on top. Candidates for the team have been practising during the month of October and some very good averages have been turned in.

The basketball league composed of ten teams of association members will start the season on November 4. The teams will be chosen this coming Saturday and those who have not already handed in their names are urged to do so at once as this is the last call.

At a meeting of the Physical department committee Tuesday evening three new men were elected to the committee, John McArdle, David Morris and Philip Wood. The following dates were approved:

Nov. 25. Local handicap meet.
Dec. 21. Local handicap meet.
Dec. 30. Dual meet with Cambridge at Quincy.
Jan. 27. Dual meet with Malden at Quincy.
Feb. 22. Dual meet with Hyde Park at Hyde Park.
March 9. Dual meet with Hyde Park at Quincy.

QUINCY LODGE OF ELKS.

At a largely attended meeting of the Quincy Lodge of Elks, held last evening, it was voted to donate the sum of $25 to Associated Charities of the City of Quincy for the worthy project that has been undertaken along charitable lines. After the meeting the gathering repaired to the clubhouse, where a clam chowder supper was in order.

A generally good time was enjoyed and the event proved to be a source of pleasure to all present.

IN SUPPORT OF J. J. McDEVITT

Meeting Held At Atlantic In Candidate's Interest

THE SPEECHES

A rally, in the interests of John J. McDevitt, candidate for Representative from the sixth Norfolk district, and the entire Democratic state ticket, was held at Atlantic near the depot last evening. It had been expected that a number of campaign orators, would be present for the occasions but it was learned at a late date that the men who had been scheduled to appear had been detained at other rallies. Their places were ably filled by local speakers, who kept the close attention of those present, throughout the rally.

Councilman Harry T. Boyd presided and in opening the rally spoke at length on the relative merits of Governor Foss and gubernatorial candidate Frothingham. He also scored senator Barnes for certain votes registered against the interests of the laboring class. Councilman Boyd also touched upon the candidacy of William J. Leslie, and criticized the Wollaston candidate for his attitude on several measures that came before the council during the past year.

Candidate McDevitt was the next speaker. In the absence of Mr. Coombs, a resident of Atlantic, and senatorial candidate from the first Norfolk, Mr. McDevitt took upon the record of Mr. Barnes the present senatorial incumbent. Mr. McDevitt made a thorough survey of his every action, and scored Senator Barnes for voting against the eight hour bill, the peaceful persuasion bill, the bill to compel street railways to equip their cars with lifting jacks, the 54 hour bill, and the bill establishing nine hour day for street car men. He also took Senator Barnes to task for voting against different labor measures and for being against the election of United States Senators by the people.

He then went in to take up the candidacy of his opponent Mr. Leslie. Mr. McDevitt made a comparison of the ward five gentleman's record of the past year with the record made by himself, during his three years in the City Council. In conclusion Mr. McDevitt challenged Mr. Leslie to an open debate upon the issues of the campaign and the records made by both men.

He offered to hire any hall the Wollaston candidate might desire to speak in and also said that he would allow Mr. Leslie to open and close the debate if he so desired.

William Kelly, the labor leader was the last speaker. He urged those present to cast aside party affiliations and vote for the men who were willing to work in the interests of the laboring class. He also criticized Senator Barnes for his adversity to all labor measures and complimented Mr. McDevitt for introducing a half holiday bill for the city workers in Quincy, at the same time taking Mr. Leslie to task for opposing such a progressive measure.

ADAMS A. A. HAS ANNUAL BANQUET

The members of the Adams A. A. a well known organization of the South Quincy section, observed their annual banquet in the United States Hotel, Tuesday evening. Singing was greatly in evidence and added to remarks made by different members, the celebration was the best ever enjoyed by the well known organization.

After the banquet the party repaired to the Brunswick Bowling Alleys, where two teams were formed and a tournament rolled off. The members of the winning team included Carson. Lawley, Smollett, and Nicoll, while Flanigan, McLennan McCleod and Dickie composed the losing combination.

The invited guest of the evening's event was Walter Nicoll, who gave a very interesting talk to the members. Among those who contributed to the success of the affair were George Barry, Duncan McLennan, Fred Lawley, Walter Flanigan, William Carson, Thomas McCleod, George Milne, Martin Cicconi, Herbert Dickie, William C. Murray, Walter Nicoll and George Smollett.

FOOTBALL

players on both sides, and as a consequence both teams must suffer censure for resorting to such unsportsmanlike tactics.

These men were Young, Johnson, O'Connor and Murphy. Dr. Maloney showed no bias to either team, and lost no time in disqualifying all players who took part in the slugging, irrespective of the causes or reasons for so doing, of course, such method of playing is bound to hamper the efforts of any team and to detract as well from the clean, manly, procedure of the game, yet, in the case of Johnson, whom two of the opposing players attacked, we must allow that it was a trying situation for him to refrain from retaliating. Yet when an efficient corps of officials has been secured to give impartial dictating, it does seem as if it would be well to have them impose the penalty on those who are in the wrong, without trying to have any players arrange the matter on their own initiative.

Thus far the Boston College High boys have failed to cross the goal line of their opposing eleven. Yet they have 0 to 0 tie games with such strong teams as Medford High and Powder Point High, and it was because of these performances that a hard game was awaited yesterday.

The Quincy backfield showed up exceptionally well, while the opposing backfield was composed of good men also, who were rather slow at getting started, though they took great spurts at different intervals and reaped successive gains. Holmes was easily the star man of the Quincy backfield, as he repeatedly netted from 10 to 15 yards and on one occasion contributed a 30 yard run, by his sensational circling of right end, sometimes intermingled with a plunge through the left side of the line. Blackmur directed his plays well, and the team work of the whole eleven showed up to advantage.

Duffy, for the visitors, played a star game, and his running back of punts was one of the interesting features. Slattery the full back, and McCarthy, the right half netted some great gains, while Baron was a conspicuous figure on the line.

All in all, the game was the best that has been witnessed on the Merrymount Park field this year. The visitors were accompanied by a number of scholastics, connected with the faculty at Boston College and they all seemed pleased with the game and willing to commend the local eleven for its efficient team work.

First Period.

The ball was kicked to the visitors, who succeeded in rushing it to their own 25 yard line. First down was gained on the next successive plays but they were finally held for downs and were forced to punt. Quincy received the ball in the middle of the field and judging from the way the local boys started in, it seemed as if they were about to place the ball over the goal line for a touchdown. But the visiting team braced up strongly and prevented any further ground gaining.

Punting was resorted to in this period to a great degree by both sides. The ball was in the vicinity of the middle of the field throughout the period and the playing was so even that it looked as if neither team was to score throughout the contest. The visitors had recourse to line plunging during the greater part of the period and their inability to pull off a forward pass, an onside kick, or some trick play caused them to be held for downs and to enable the local eleven to keep in possession of the ball.

Second Period.

Punting again was noticeable and the visitors had the ball on Quincy's 25 yard line, but were unable to score. Finally after a series of punts had been again resorted to, it was Quincy's ball in the middle of the field. Finley took it through centre for 8 yards. On the next play Page advanced it to the visitors' own 30 yard line and here the local boys had begun to start things in earnest. Blackmur was seen to drop in back of the line a considerable distance, presumably to punt the ball, yet on receiving it he threw it too White, who caught it in a splendid manner. At first it looked as if the forward pass was to fail, but suddenly White was seen to rush forth from the midst of the players, with the ball tightly clutched uncessfully between the goal post for touchdown that enabled Quincy High to be pronounced the victor. Quincy failed to kick the goal and the score stood 5 to 0 in its favor.

The Boston team kicked to Quincy and Page advanced the ball 10 yards before being downed. Holmes went through for 3 yards and Quincy decided to punt, on failing to gain on the next play. Duffy received the punt and by a remarkable burst of speed, ran the ball back fully 20 yards. Quincy was here penalized 5 yards. The ball was interchanged once more and a penalty was inflicted on the visitors.

The visitors tried a forward pass which netted them about 5 yards. Slattery went through centre for 3 yds. McCarthy circled left end for 5 yards, and it was first down for Boston College High on Quincy's 35 yard line. Fallon gained 10 yards on the first rush. McCarthy gained the same distance on the next try. The visitors were held for downs and it was Quincy's ball on its own 25 yard line.

Third Period.

Quincy started in to rush the ball and in the first few minutes of playing the slugging became so conspicuous that four men were forced to retire upon the mandates of the officials. Punting was again called into play and when the visitors punted the ball to their opponents' 25 yard line, the ball was caught by Holmes, who was tackled in his tracks by a remarkable play by O'Brien. Blackmur tried a quarter back run and succeeded in going 35 yards before he was tackled. Holmes circled left end for 5 yards. Twice the forward pass was tried and on each occasion it reaped slight gains.

Punting was resorted to by both sides and the ball went to the visitors on their own 15 yard line. Fallon, on the first rush gained 10 yards. McCarthy went through for 5 more, and when the period ended it was the visitors' ball in the middle of the field.

Fourth Period.

Quincy got possession of the ball and after it had been interchanged a couple of times, the pigskin was placed within 20 yards of the goal by the home team. It looked as if Quincy was good for another goal, but the Boston boys began to rush the ball with great speed and endurance. First the left half back, then the right half back, and in turn the fullback, would be seen to take the ball and each of them were enabled to tear through the Quincy line for great gains. There was only a few minutes of play left and when the game ended they had succeeded in landing the ball on the home team's 25 yard line. Next Tuesday the local team tries conclusions with the Brockton High aggregations, and from the manner in which the Quincy players have been performing in the past few games, it is expected that the Brockton boys will be given a taste of the spoils of defeat. It will be a game for blood and as the rivalry that exists between both cintingencies is exceptionally keen, any one who desires to see the real article of football should make an especial effort to be present on this coming occasion.

BARNES, LESLIE AND WHOLE REPUBLICAN TICKET GET ROUSING "SEND OFF" AT WOLLASTON MEETING

Arthur W. Rohn, Chairman, Expressed Pleasure At Seeing Such A Large Gathering Of Interested Citizens

Senator Barnes And Councilman Leslie Outline Work They Have Accomplished And What May Be Expected If Elected

With a great display of red fire on the outside and oratory on the inside, the rally in the interests of the republican state ticket and William J. Leslie, candidate for the House from the sixth Norfolk, was held in Brazee hall on Wednesday evening.

Among the scheduled speakers were: Senator Charles H. Brown of Medford, Ex-Representative William E. Weeks of Everett, Senator George L. Barnes, republican candidate for re-election, Councilman William J. Leslie and Representative Louis F. R. Langelier, chairman of the Republican City committee. Word was received at the last minute that Senator Brown was unable to be present.

The hall was well filled over 300 being present. The meeting was called to order by Arthur W. Rohn, chairman of the Republican Ward Committee who expressed his gladness that such a large number were interested in the issues of the campaign. He introduced as the first speaker Candidate William J. Leslie who received an ovation.

Mr. Leslie said in part: As a candidate seeking the office of Representative for the first time and having had but a short public life I cannot present to you a record of any great achievements. All I can present is a record of serving you to the best of my ability and at all times considering the oath I took upon entering office to deal justly with all. This I have strived to do to the best of my ability.

It would not be wise for me to make any promises that I knew I would be unable to fulfill but there are a few issues of local importance that I think are necessary and if elected I would certainly work for and would ask your cooperation.

One thing I am interested in is the redistricting bill. Not as an office seeker but as a citizen and voter. In the past, Quincy has been the tail of the Tenth congressional district. This year there is a bill to be reported to the House of Representatives for redistricting the congressional districts. I hope to see Quincy brought into one taking in the whole or a part of Norfolk county. In this manner we might secure a congressman from our section. This measure would have my hearty endorsement.

Other local matters which Councilman Leslie registered himself as supporting were the connecting link of boulevard between the Quincy Shore Reservation and the Furnace Brook Parkway, also a new bridge over the Neponset river at Hancock street.

Regarding the reduction of the price of gas the speaker said that should the gas commission consider the reduction of gas in Quincy feasi-

MUSICALE IN AID OF WOLLASTON KINDERGARTEN

Delightful Affair At Home Of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Stone

THE PROGRAM

Society attended in large numbers the musicale given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Stone of Grand View avenue Wednesday evening in aid of the Wollaston Free Kindergarten.

The program was an unusually brilliant one the participating artists consisting not only of those well and favorably known in Quincy but those of broader accomplishment. They were Mary Boyle O'Reilly in readings, Mrs. Mary Chandler West, pianist; Miss Velma Hale, soloist; Chester Frederick Chase, violinist and G. Parker Williamson accompanist.

There were over 150 present and the scene was one of extreme attractiveness, many beautiful costumes being noted among the fair sex.

The program:

Nocturne, D flat, and Waltz, C sharp, minor by Chopin, Mrs. West; Angel Children—and some others, Miss O'Reilly; Zigeunerweisen by Sarasete, Mr. Chase and Mr. Williamson; song, Miss Hale; The Daughters of the People, Miss O'Reilly; Rigoletto, fantasie by Liszt, Mrs. West; Menuetto by Cocchernic, Le Cygne by Saint-Saens and Bolero by Bohn, Mr. Chase and Mr. Williamson; song, Miss Hale; The Wisdom of Mrs. Delehanty, Miss O'Reilly.

DR. BRONSON LECTURES ON PASSION PLAY

At the Wollaston Methodist church Wednesday evening Rev. Dillon Bronson, D. D., of Brookline delivered an impressive lecture on "the Passion Play of Oberamergau" under the auspices of the Epworth League.

The speaker gave an interesting description of the people and scenes of interest in the little country village and of their open-hearted hospitality. Of the large number who witness the play over one half are Americans.

Referring to the play itself Mr. Bronson dwell upon the evident sincerity with which all of the members of the cast take their parts.

The history of the institution was reviewed and the many excellent views of all the subjects mentioned amply repaid the goodly number in attendance.

GIVEN BENEFIT.

About a hundred of his friends tendered Pompie Swanson, of Whitwell street, a social benefit in Protection Hall, last evening. Much local talent participated in the affair and merry-making was enjoyed up to a late hour. Refreshments were served and it is believed that the sum realizd from the benefit will be a great help in enabling the sick one to recover his health in another climate.

DISTRICT SCHOOL REPEATED.

Wednesday evening "The District School of Atlantic" was presented for the second time in Memorial church, under the auspices of the china committee for the coming fair. The same program was carried out as on the previous evening. When the school had its recess the audience was entertained by songs, well rendered by the pupils. Another feature was the sellin gof candy by young ladies. Thus the time "between the acts" was made entertaining and the audience departed much pleased that the district school of Atlantic is now in capable hands, thanks to the teacher and the honorable committee which selected her.

MARRIED IN TRINITY CHURCH

Many Attend Bowden-Crane Nuptials In Boston

GROOM WOLLASTON MAN

Miss Hellen Marguerite Bowden, daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth L. Bowden of South Boston, was married Wednesday evening at Trinity church, Boston, to Mr. E. William Clark Crane of Wollaston. The ceremony was performed by Rev. William H. Dewart, rector of Christ church, Hyde Park, in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends, including ex-Mayor Thomas N. Hart, and Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. Hill of Harvard.

The bride who was given away by Mr. James Lewis, looked charming in a gown of white Duchess satin, with heavy pearl trimmings, she wore a diamond brooch and a tulle veil and carried a shower bouquet of white chrysanthemums. The groom's gift was an antique chinese silver chain and pendant.

Her maid of honor Miss Harriette N. Holmes of Sharon wore Swiss muslin with valenciennes, and carried yellow chrysanthemums, bridesmaids' Miss Augusta L. Crane of Wollaston and Miss Lula E. Walker of Everett were gowned in pink crepe de chine with pearl trimmings, and carried bouquets of pink chrysanthemums. They wore amethyst and pearl brooches, gifts of the bride. The best man was Mr. Albert Morris of Brattleboro, Vermont, and the ushers were Messrs. John Heath of Charlestown, Charles Zrakendrath of Dedham, E. Goodale of Winthrop and John W. Johnson of Boston. The wedding music was rendered by Mr. Mitchell. Trinity church was beautifully decorated with palms and white chrysanthemums for the occasion.

Following the ceremony there was a reception from 8.30 to 10 o'clock, at the home of the bride's mother at 324 West Third street, South Boston, where Mr. and Mrs. Crane were assisted in receiving by Miss Crane, Mr. Morris, Miss Walker and Mr. Reardon.

Palms and chrysanthemums were artistically arranged in the different rooms.

The bride is well known in musical circles being a graduate of New England Conservatory of Music, and Mr. Crane is the local manager of the Quincy Telephone and Telegraph Co.

After the wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Crane will live at 32 Briggs street, Wollaston, where they will be at home on November 2d and 23d.

WILL HOLD WEEKLY SUPPERS

The meeting of the Houghs Neck Associates, held in Associates hall, last evening, was attended by the largest number that has been seen at a gathering of the improvement organization for a long time. The meeting was presided over by James E. Wall, democratic candidate for Mayor.

Various matters were discussed at length and in order to maintain the enthusiasm and the sentiment which now prevails, it was decided to hold weekly suppers. The first will take place next Wednesday and it is expected that a large crowd will be in attendance.

LECTURES ON TEMPERANCE.

Mr. Moilanen, who was elected travelling temperance speaker for the temperance societies in the East is to lecture on temperance tonight, tomorrow and Saturday in the Finnish Temperance hall. The lectures will start at 7.30 P. M.

"I certainly owe a good deal to my constituents," exclaimed the re-elected official.

"There is no doubt of that," returned a wise elector, "but what good will it do them as long as you have nothing that they can levy on?"

COUNCILMAN SMITH SPEAKS FOR COOMBS

Largely Attended Meeting At Brewer's Corner In Interest Of Democratic Party

A largely attended rally was held at Brewers Corner last evening in the interest of Rednor P. Coombs, candidate for the senate from the first Norfolk district and John J. McDevitt, candidate for representative from Wards Four, Five and Six. Councilman Harry T. Boyd presided, and in his introductory remarks stated the issues of the campaign.

In the absence of candidate Coombs his place was filled by his campaign manager Councilman John D. Smith. Mr. Smith took up at length the record of Senator Barnes and flayed the latter for his attitude on the various bills that affected the interests of the working class. Councilman Smith then proceeded to take up the candidacy of William J. Leslie, and scored the Wollaston candidate for his failure to accomplish anything while in the City Council this past year. He urged those present to vote for the men who had always had the interests of the district at heart, and predicted that Mr. McDevitt would be acclaimed a winner by a substantial majority.

Mr. McDevitt himself was the next speaker and was given a great reception when he arose. He spoke for about thirty minutes and his every argument was weighed thoroughly by his audience. Mr. McDevitt before confining himself to his own campaign, urged the election of Mr. Coombs as senator. He read the record of Mr. Barnes from the Senate Journal and showed the many instances where the present senatorial incumbent had affiliated himself with different corporations.

In concluding, Mr. Devitt asked those present to survey the platform he had drawn up in the interests of the district, and also to weigh his record while in the City Council, in the balance with the record of his opponent, while a member of the same body during the present year.

John Edwards, a labor agitator also spoke in the interests of Mr. McDevitt.

NATIONAL MOVEMENT.

The New England Shoe and Leather Association has inaugurated a national movement against the proposal of the radical tariff revisionists in congress to remove the existing nominal duties on shoes and leather, the effect of which it believes would be the almost immediate reduction of the wages of the employees of American shoe factories and tanneries.

They circulate a photograph showing part of a shipment of shoes to the United States by the firm of T. Roberts & Sons, Leicester, Eng., the picture forming part of an advertising card put out by the firm and inscribed:—

"English Shoes for America—One of Many Similar Loads."

"The men who made these shoes in the English factory receive about one-half the amount of wages that the shoe factory operatives of Massachusetts earn.

"English, French and German shoe cutters get from $5.25 to $7.25 a week. American shoe cutters earn from $15 to $25 a week, and sometimes as high as $35 a week.

"Even with the existing protective duties of 10 and 15 per cent foreign shoe manufacturers find it possible to enter our market.

"Under free trade in footwear shipments like the above would be crowding the wharves and steamships in Liverpool, London and other foreign ports."

—In roundly denouncing the hymn, "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere," Woodrow Wilson may have built up for himself a political St. Helena; at least there's a tremendous furor over the governor's criticism of what he called a "silly" hymn. The replies are pouring in from the four corners of the country.—Barre Vt. Times.

SUCCESSFUL MUSICALE

Given By D. O. Club of Park And Downs Church

MANY ATTEND

One of the most successful entertainments held for some time was a musicale given under the auspices of the D. O. club of the Park and Downs church Tuesday evening. Although none were turned away even standing room was severely taxed and the artists were met with hearty appreciation.

First on the program was a "Serenade by Widor" for piano, violin and 'cello comprising respectively Madame Beale Morey, Miss Mildred Butterfield and Miss Marion Moorehouse.

Readings by Mrs. A. Isabelle Davis including "Penelope's Christmas Party," "That cold" and others were well received and loudly applauded.

Miss Winifred White, favorably known in Wollaston for her pleasing soprano voice received an ovation upon her first appearance and was repeatedly encored. Among her offerings were "Swiss Echo" by Eckert and "Sing, smile and slumber" by Gounod with violin obligato.

As a contralto Soloist Miss Eva Steeves met with high favor. "Sing on" and "A May morning," both by Denza were included in her repertoire. A duet-barcarolle, "O lovely night" from the opera "Les Contes d' Hoffman" was charmingly sung by Miss White and Miss Steeves.

As a 'cellist who is past springing into fame Miss Marion Moorehouse is known. Her efforts on Tuesday evening sustained her reputation and were greeted by prolonged and loud applause. Her numbers included a Mazurka by Popper and "The Legend" and "Rustic Dance" both by Squire.

Two trios "Barcarolle" and "Gypsy Rondo" by Pache for the piano, violin and 'cello completed the program. Much credit is due to Miss White for her arrangement of the program. The proceeds will go to swell the new church fund.

DIVIDEND THE SAME.

President Mellen retorted sharply to those critics of the road who have predicted a reduction in the dividend, in the remarks which he made at the annual meeting. On this point he made the following emphatic statement:

"I do not see any reason for considering a reduction of dividends at the present time. Of course I cannot see into the future, if I could I would own a railroad instead of operating one."

Directors were re-elected and stockholders approved the lease by the New Haven of the Chatham Railroad Co., which since its construction has been operated by the Old Colony Railroad.

President Mellen explained that hitherto the lease had been based on the percentage of gross business, but as has often been the case, while gross has increased, net has decreased and it seemed more equitable to establish a regular rental basis. This will amount to 5 p. c. per annum on $68,200 capital stock.

At great length, Mr. Mellen explained to stockholders that whereas a deficit appeared in the annual report of the New Haven an actual surplus of fully $300,000 could have been shown.

While admitting the company had not been doing as well as he would like, Mr. Mellen declared that dividends had been more easily earned in the last eight years than in the previous eight.

TODAY'S COURT.

Edmund D. Henry was arraigned for the larceny of two fuses valued at 54 cents from the N. Y. N. H. & H. R. R. at Quincy. Case placed on file on payment of $5 cbsts.

The continued case of Jacob Asnes for violation of the liquor law at Quincy was heard and he was discharged.

OPENING RALLY IN INTEREST OF DEMOCRATS

Will Be Held This Evening In West Quincy

FINE SPEAKERS BOOKED

The opening rally in this city, in the interest of the Democratic ticket for state offices will take place this evening in St. Mary's hall, West Quincy. The meeting is scheduled for 8 o'clock and it is expected that the hall will be taxed to its utmost.

The list of speakers includes some able men, and the issues of the campaign are sure to be expounded in a forceful manner since such men as Congressman James M. Curley, Congressman William F. Murray, Hon. Thomas P. Riley of Malden, Harvey H. Pratt, Edmund A. Whitman, Rednor P. Coombs, Michael T. Sullivan and John J. McDevitt have been billed for the attraction.

It was later learned, that owing to the fact that Mayor John F. Fitzgerald had ben unavoidably detained from fulfilling his speaking engagements in the western part of the state, that his services for this evening at the rally in St. Mary's hall, have been secured through the efforts of Councilman John D. Smith, chairman of the democratic city committee. Mayor Fitzgerald will be accompanied by Hon. James H. Vahey, Representative David Murray of Hyde Park, ex-congressman Joseph F. O'Connell, and Hon. George W. Anderson, candidate for attorney general.

ELECTED OFFICERS FOR CONFERENCE

At the second and third quarterly conferences held in the Wollaston Methodist church Wednesday evening, J. A. Sedgwick was elected judge and Walter Sutermeister and Lee Brooks tellers for the lay electoral conference that is soon to follow. The usual reports and routine business was taken up. The conferences were in charge of Rev. Dillion Bronson, D. D., superintendent of the Boston district.

POLITICAL FANCIES.

Few more developments, outside of those announced in yesterday's Ledger, were in evidence in local political circles this morning, on the side of either party. John R. S. Ross was the only one in addition to the number mentioned yesterday who applied and took out nomination papers. Councilman Ross is seeking re-election and makes the fifth candidate aspiring from the Houghs Neck section.

Eben Shephard and Commodore Ira M. Whittemore are to take care of the circulation of Eugene R. Stone's nomination papers in Ward One for Mayor. Many have already been approached with a view to having them become candidates for different offices, and among those concerning whom anxiety will be felt as regards their candidacy for Councilman at large are, George H. Brown, J. S. Swingle and Frederick Fisher.

A number of prominent Republicans are trying to induce James Young, Robert Johnson and William Bradford to become candidates for Councilmanic honors, and it is not improbable that some one of these men will become a candidate in Ward One.

On the Democratic side there will be a full ticket of five for Councilmen at large, and such being the case, a warm campaign is bound to ensue before the honors are decided. It is also expected by the Democratic leaders that there will be candidates for every municipal office. As yet nothing has been doing in the line of a mayoralty candidate, James E. Wall up to date, being the only man who has taken out papers.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

If President Taft does not get home pretty soon, it will be cool for the office seekers who are sleeping out nights on the White house lawn.

After some of these long rains it dawns on one's mind that blue sky is a much nicer color than anything you can find at the dry goods store.

If Rev. C. V. T. Richeson killed Avis Linnell, it all goes to show that unmarried ministers should keep away from the women and should at once get wives.

If the trusts had been willing to fill up the great American dinner pail with something more satisfying than watered stock, there would not be the present unrest.

While coffee is high, some people may go without their breakfast appetizer, but a turn at the wood pile will serve the same purpose at the same old price.

Some more Carnegie heroes get medals but we know of several men who have endured without a murmur the pangs of fall house cleaning without any public recognition.

Senator Jeff Davis of Arkansas may have planted his 11 size hob nailed brogans on the trust octopus, but when his bride orders him to wear his slippers in the house, he will probably do so without a murmur.

DEFECTS OF JURY SYSTEM.

The holes in our system of trial by jury are again suggested by the long battle with which the McNamara trial at Los Angeles opened, over the acceptance of Talesman Nelson. In view of the possibility that this trial may last six months, it is not surprising that our best citizens are willing to admit themselves stupid or corrupt in order to dodge this irksome duty.

The phrase "trial by a jury of his peers" resounds like a trumpet, with a blast of triumphant democracy. But when you come to look over the average jury, you are often reminded of a story current among lawyers to the effect that a certain jury was asked by the judge to take their usual places. They all filed into the prisoners' dock.

It cost the county $16,000 to get a jury in the Chicago strike riot cases a few years ago, 1929 talesmen being examined. It is doubtful if a higher degree of justice was secured than under the ancient custom of picking the first twelve men who would swear to give a verdict according to law and evidence.

If a better type of men is to be persuaded to perform jury duty, they must have comfortable conditions. It is not enough to say that they are better treated than in England, where it is common to make them agree on their verdict in an unfurnished room, unheated in cold weather, with nothing to eat or drink. Even under the more favorable conditions prevailing in this country, there is a tendency to hustle the jurymen about as if they were prisoners accused of crime. This does not tend to make work for a day laborer's pay any more attractive to the business man or competent mechanic.

In some courts, as a part of the attempt to surround court proceedings with stately ceremonial, it is customary to make the jury remain stnading, while the judge delivers a charge of an hour or more. Why make an onerous duty any more burdensome by dusty red tape?

Many lawyers urge that jury work be done by professional jurors, who should receive fair pay, and who would become expert at sifting evidence. If the right type of men could be secured, it would be no more needful to imprison them like criminals than to lock up the judge.

Perhaps we could then get rid of influences like that which swayed a juror in a New York murder trial. He admitted afterward that he voted for acquittal because he did not like the way the assistant attorney treated the defendant's lawyer.

MODERN FOOT BALL.

Anxious parents with boys exposed to the rigors of the foot ball field may get some comfort out of the fact that the new rules reduced the number of hospital cases 50 per cent during the season of 1910.

Veterans of the former gory fields may think these changes are turning the game into a kind of molly-coddle croquet. They were brought up under an exotic theory that placed the first interest on the shock of battle between opposing lines. The ball was an incident, a kind of speedometer, showing which line had gained the advantage in the clash of beef-eaters.

It is quite possible that modern foot ball has something to learn even from the simple and home made game that used to be played on the old village green, and which would be so scorned today.

Take the old time "toe catch," when the player lifted the ball with his toe for a short fly and thereby gained his kick. Or the old trick of "pugging" the ball, where he boxed the ball along with his feet. Such plays as these were quite as interesting displays of deftness as anything you can find in the modern clash of 195 pounds against 200.

RULING MAY CHANGE MATTERS

And Cause Confusion At Municipal Caucuses

WHAT ATT'Y GEN'L SAYS

An important ruling has just been made by Attorney General J. M. Swift relative to the enrolment of voters, which may cause some confusion at the coming municipal caucuses.

At the last meeting of the Masachusetts City Clerk's association, it was voted to ask the State Secretary "as to whether the enrolment lists of cities to be used at the municipal primaries to be holden the current year shall be the one which exists as a result of the state primaries of the present year."

Secretary Langtry put the question up to the Attorney General who in his answer says that the inquiry is not one that warrants official expression from his office. He however gives his opinion. He says that chapter 550 of 1911 relative to enrolment is limited in its operation to candidates for state election, excepting presidential electors, and election of state and district committees, ward committees and delegates to convention. Therefor chapter 560 of 1907 is still in force for joint primaries with the exception of that stated in chapter 550 of 1911.

In conclusion he says that therefore the enrolment used at the city caucuses in 1910 must be used at the city caucuses in 1911.

As a result of this ruling it would appear that the city now has two enrolments. One made in 1910 and one made at the recent state caucuses and there is likely to be some confusion on the part of voters when they call for their ballot.

It is a well known fact that here in Quincy, when the enrolment law of 1907 went into effect, that many Democrats were enrolled as Republicans in certain wards, and that while the law provided a way in which enrolment might be changed, the fact that the time for changing enrolment being six months prior to the approaching caucuses, but very few changes were made.

This year when the new enrolment law was passed, it looked as though the tangle might be straightened out and that voters could become enrolled as they should be. In many cases this was done, so that men who by preference were Democrats, but enrolled as Republicans, went back to their first love.

This being the case, it looked as though the coming city caucuses would be conducted more fair in this respect and that the packing of caucuses in the interest of certain candidates, which it is generally admitted has been done in other years, would not be possible this year.

Now comes the Attorney General however and upsets this idea by his ruling that the old enrolment must be used at the city caucuses and not that made at those in September.

PETERSON NIGHTINGALE NUPTIALS

Miss Ella Peterson Bride of Chas. W. Nightingale

IN CHRIST CHURCH RECTORY

Miss Ella Annette Peterson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Peterson of Station street was united in marriage Wednesday evening to Charles Willard Nightingale, one of South Quincy's well known business men. The ceremony took place at 7.30 o'clock in the rectory of Christ church and was witnessed by the immediate family friends, Rev. Richard E. Armstrong officiating.

The bride was attended by her sister Miss Anna Peterson while Walter Deacon was the best man. Mr. and Mrs. Nightingale after receiving congratulations left in a shower of rice and good wishes for a brief wedding trip to New York.

Upon their return they will reside at 70 Pleasant street where they will be at home after Jan. 1.

EDITOR OF QUINCY LEDGER.

I wish to state that myself and three campanions are in pretty good shape today, after our peril of Sunday night, owing to the herioc work of George Parmenter of East Weymouth. He deserves considerable credit, as Thomas Haze and Alvin Thibodeau were in a state of collapse when the motor boat came to our assistance, which made his work more perilous. My boat has been recovered by Mr. Parmenter. My greatest loss is my $75 gold watch, which was in my vest pocket. I had to take off ayy my clothing, vest and all in order to hold Haze out of water, who could not swim. In my 3 years' experience fishing out of Gloucester and other sea faring experiences I find this the closest call I ever was in. Parmenter's was the only boat in the bay at the time.

We are very grateful to Mr. and Mrs. Harvey of Houghs Neck, for the valuable aid they rendered us in supplying clothing and stimulants. We also thank officer Corbett for his assistance in landing us.

AMERICAN SHIPS.

According to H. L. Aldrich, president of the company that publishes International Marine Engineering, American shipping is not going to decadence. In proof of this he states that there are fifty steamships sure to be built and orders are in sight for nearly fifty more.

"The pessimists say that we have no American shipping," says Mr. Aldrich, "when the fact is we have 7,508,082 tons, or 678,586 tons more than the combined merchant fleets of Germany, France and Norway, three great maritime nations of Europe; while Russia Sweden, Denmark, Holland, Belgium, Greece, Spain, Italy, Portugal and Austria-Hungary have a combined merchant tonnage which is a million tons less than ours.

"Our coastwise fleet is enormous, and within the last sixty days there have been orders placed for at least fifty steam vessels, ranging in size from ocean-going tug-boats to ten-thousand-ton steamships, such as the four that the Maryland Steel Company is to build for the American-Hawaiian steamship line.

"Then there is a larger fleet awaiting consideration, which includes fifteen big passenger steamships for the newly organized Atlantic & Pacific Transport Company, of which Bernard N. Baker is the head, a company of $15,000,000 capitalization; two great passenger steamships for the Pacific Mail Steamship Company of twenty-five thousand tops each, or equal to the George Washington of the North German Lloyd Line; two passenger steamships each for the Ward Line to Havana and Mexico, the Clyde Line and the Malley Line to Southern ports; the New York & Puerto Rico Steamship Company one, the Pacific Coast Steamship Company two passenger steamships, the Union Sulphur Company, which owns the Herman Frasch a big freight steamship, the Alaska Steamship Company two passenger steamships and there are several others.

"Recently the Standard Oil Company has placed an order in an American yard for two oil-carrying steamships with a capacity of 1,500,000 gallons each, and an order out of the usual run is one for fifteen river steamboats for use on the Amazon, which are to be manned by American captains and pilots.

"On the lakes there is the same rush for new tonnage, and the yards are filled with the keels and frames of new steamships, passenger and freight carriers."—Boston Transcript.

RULES GOVERNING CONTEST:

Boys and Girls, have you any idea how popular you are? Here is a chance for you to find out; and also secure one of the Six (6) GOLD WATCHES, to be distributed November 4th, 1911 among the Most Popular Boys and Girls under 17 years of age.

HOW TO OBTAIN YOUR VOTES:—For the next sixty days every L.H. Green Trading Stamp which you and your parents and friends get, should be pasted in the L.H. Stamp Book as usual. You, and your friends who vote for you, will show these stamps to the attendant in the L.H. Premium Parlor in the Quincy Department Store. The attendant will count and mark them "VOTED"; register the number of votes (equal to the number of Stamps shown) opposite the name voted for. The Stamps will then be returned to the holder.

The Quincy Daily Ledger will publish a Ballot which, when presented at our Premium Parlor, will entitle the Contestant to five (5) votes.

Various merchants will also publish coupons, each entitling the holder to five (5) votes in the same way.

It is important that you not only urge your friends to get the L.H. Stamps whenever they make purchases, but also vote them for you. Get all you can. Vote them for yourself or for someone else in whom you are interested.

Profit by your mother's example in Thrift and Economy by collecting L.H. Green Trading Stamps, which bring you so Generous a reward in Beautiful Premiums.

You will materially swell the number of Stamps you get, and the consequent votes you obtain, if you will bring us your HAMILTON BONDS and COUPONS, Tobacco Tags, Soap Wrappers, Labels and Trade-Marks. We will give you L.H. Green Trading Stamps for them.

VOTING THE STAMPS DOES NOT IN ANY WAY INTERFERE WITH THEIR BEING REDEEMED FOR PREMIUMS IN THE USUAL WAY.

HIGH SCHOOL.

Miss Brown with about thirty students went to see "As You Like It" at the Castle Square theatre, Boston, Tuesday afternoon. One of Miss Brown's English classes has just finished reading "As You Like It," and almost every one in the class, with a few study pupils, enjoyed a very pleasant afternoon at the theatre.

Tuesday, Quincy High defeated Boston College High by a score of 5 to 0. Boston College had a heavier line than Quincy but the Quincy boys held. White, right tackle for Quincy, made the touchdown by receiving a forward pass and carrying it over the goal, after a long run from the middle of the field. High school has now won five games and lost two which is an average to be proud of. Capt. Johnson and Coach Staff deserve much credit as well as the rest of the squad.

A delegation of Quincy boys journeyed to Brockton, Wednesday afternoon, to see the game between Brockton High and Salem High. Brockton defeated Salem 12 to 0. They have a trio of fast backs on the Brockton team, but they will find their match when they play Quincy High, at Merrymount park, on Friday. The game will be Quincy's hardest battle of the year, so far, and of course they desire very much to win it.

• • •

ATHERTON HOUGH.

The Atherton Hough soccer team plays the Coddington team this afternoon.

• • •

Pupils of the seventh grade visited the exhibition in Mechanics building, Boston Tuesday in conjunction with the eighth grade pupils. The principal, Miss Gerahty was in charge.

• • •

CRANCH SCHOOL.

Miss Clara Warshaw, a pupil in the fourth grade held the record for the greatest number of tags sold last week for the benefit of the Day Nursery. Her total was 161.

• • •

The attendance record for the week is held by Miss Feagan's class, the average being 100 percent.

• • •

QUINCY SCHOOL.

The soccer football team played the Wollaston school combination yesterday and was victorious by the close score of 1 to 0.

• • •

The pupils of the eighth grade were especially pleased with the exhibition in Mechanics building, Boston Tuesday.

• • •

MASSACHUSETTS FIELDS SCHOOL.

The eighth grade pupils attended the Industrial Exhibition and Horticultural show in the Mechanics building last Tuesday. They were accompanied by the headmaster and Miss Taylor.

• • •

A candy sale was conducted in the school last Wednesday in order to defray the expenses of purchasing a cabinet to hold the baseball cup, won by the players who represented the school in the national pastime last season. The amount of twenty dollars was realized within a short space of half hour. It is also contemplated purchasing a picture of the baseball squad and any surplus will be used in the interests of the basket ball team.

Miss Lillian Waterhouse, a teacher in grade four, was absent from school this week on account of the death of her grandmother.

A regular meeting of the Parents' and Teachers' Association will be held in the school hall, Thursday evening, November 2. The meeting is called for 7.45 o'clock and will be addressed by Alfred Barbour, superintendent of schools.

• • •

ADAMS SCHOOL.

The Adams and the John Hancock football teams played a 0 to 0 tie yesterday.

WOLLASTON SCHOOL.

In a close and interesting contest, the members of the school soccer football team defeated the Quincy school team by the score of 1 to 0 last Monday. It was the first game of the season for the Wollaston school boys and they feel much elated over their auspicious start.

• • •

The pupils of the eighth grade attended the Industrial Exhibition and Horticultural show in Mechanics building, last Tuesday, in company with Miss Fisher. They greatly enjoyed the trip and were much pleased with what they witnessed.

• • •

Sidney Bidwell has been elected captain of the soccer football team.

• • •

The evening school has a total registration of 130 students, the majority of whom are of Finnish origin. Of this number there are 21 ladies. Miss Mary Murray, of the Washington school, had been assigned as a teacher.

• • •

One of the visitors to the school this week was Rev. J. E. Lillback, pastor of the Finnish Congregational church.

• • •

WILLARD SCHOOL.

The seventh grades have followed the example of the eighth grades by subscribing for the weekly paper, Current Events.

• • •

Miss Owens, a former teacher, but now teaching in the Longfellow district, Boston, visited various rooms in the building, Wednesday.

• • •

Tuesday, the eighth grades accompanied by the master and their teachers went to the Industrial and Educational Exposition in Mechanics Building, and they saw, also, the fruit exhibit held in Horticultural Hall. The trip proved a gala day for the children, who returned at night, their arms piled high with books, pamphlets, samples, etcetera.

• • •

Miss Elizabeth McNeil and Miss Ellen Fegan fifth grade teachers visited schools in Brookline and Newton, Wednesday.

• • •

Miss Lydia Randall, eighth grade teacher has some splendid specimens of butterflies, beetles, and other insects, handsomely mounted, and enclosed in a glass covered box.

• • •

Miss Ellen G. Drislaine an assistant in the Washington School substituted one day this week.

The teams in stride ball in Miss Fegan's room had some hot contests last week. Captain Curry's team held Captain Reddington's lads for a tie score. Both leaders hope to settle the championship this week.

• • •

The Gridley Bryant soccer foot ball team defeated the Willard School eleven 1 to 0 on the Water street grounds, Wednesday, after school.

SCHOOL MARKING.

Marking in schools has always been a source of infinite trouble, but we had supposed that the enormity of refusing to give high marks to the children of "influential" people, or of prominent school committeemen, or even of members of the common council was long ago realized by all intelligent members of the teaching profession. Why should a man be influential or prominent or a member of the school committee or the common council if a cold-hearted school teacher is allowed to distribute "F's" or "55's" or whatever they are that indicate a low standing in their studies for his hopeful progeny? What availeth him all his honors if this school teacher sits upon the platform in critical judgment upon the scions of his house? Perish the thought that she should thus trifle with a solemn thing. For the guidance of young women who are rash enough to enter upon the occupation of teaching a new and important course in pedagogics should instantly be introduced in all normal and training schools—dealing with the important art of discovering all influential and prominent people and high officials in the district and learning how never to mark their children less than 125 per cent. If some too matter-of-fact persons insist that there is no 125 per cent in the books, we have only to say that one should be provided for this purpose.—New Bedford Standard.

WHAT BUSINESS MAN EXPECTS.

Two societies interested in the betterment of secondary education—the New England High School Commercial Teachers' Association and the New England History Teachers' Association—held sessions in Boston last week. The speakers were Arthur J. Meredith, director of the commercial department of the State Normal school at Salem; Walter A. Hawkins, superintendent of Jordan Marsh Company, and A. W. Holmes, superintendent of Baird-North Company of Providence.

Mr. Meredith argued that the technical training of today must meet the demands of the city life of today. He emphasized the need for the teacher's training to be broad and liberal as well as technical.

Mr. Hawkins advocated "a bread and butter education," to which might be added all that the student could take. "What surprised the business man," he said, "is the lack of the very essentials. It seems to me that writing and spelling and arithmetic should be kept up right through the grammar school."

Mr. Hawkins told the teachers a good way for them to improve their work is to ask the pupils who graduated four or five years ago what changes—omissions, alterations or additions—they would suggest in the school course.

Mr. Holmes told what a business man expects of his bookkeeper and stenographer. Health, first; accurate shorthand and accurate and speedy typewriting; a thorough knowledge of English, punctuation and business correspondence included; good penmanship; these are his requirements of a stenographer. From the bookkeeper he demands accuracy and rapidity at figures, a good knowledge of arithmetic and of labor saving devices.

"In penmanship," he said, "the public schools have been miserable failures. A commercial course should include a stiff course in psychology; that is the key to success in society and business.

"If our public school boys and girls are not prepared to earn a living, may God have mercy on those who are responsible for such a condition.

"Impress on your pupils the necessity of being prepared for the place higher up. If there is a place higher up, tell them to go after it; if there isn't, tell them to change their job."

CHARITY WHIST PARTY

First of Series Held At Colonial Hall

26 TABLES COMPETED

The first of the series of charity whist parties under the auspices of Quincy Catholic club was held Wednesday evening at Colonial hall and proved to be quite a social success. Twenty-six tables competed for the pretty souvenirs offered for the best scores and play was enjoyed from 8 to 10.30 o'clock.

The committee in charge of the evening were Miss Elizabeth Moynihan, Miss Mary W. Dinegan, Mrs. Charles C. Hearn, Mrs. George H. Norris, Mrs. Edward D. Barrett, Miss Christine McPherson, Miss Elizabeth Mahoney, Miss Katherine Harkins and Miss Julia Ford. The committee served frappe during the evening and saw to it that everybody enjoyed themselves.

The markers who assisted were Miss Emily Dinegan, Miss Carmel Brogan, Miss Anna Heaney, Miss Agnes Reardon, Miss Stella Brown and Miss Lillian McDonnell.

Souvenirs for the highest scores were awarded to Mrs. J. E. Dunn, Mrs. Joseph A. Dasha, Mrs. Robert J. Teasdale, John J. Nolan, Joseph A. Dasha and Edward J. Murphy.

The second party of the series will be held Nov. 15.

ONLY ELEVEN MORE DAYS.

Only eleven more days remain in the Hustlers contest. Boys and girls every day brings you nearer the goal, one of those beautiful watches in the S. and H. Hustlers contest, and you and your friends must do some hard work to keep near the head of the list. Spend all your spare time in a house to house canvass collecting S. and H. green stamps and LEDGER coupons. The parlor or voting booth is open every day and Monday, Friday and Saturday evenings. Do not let a day go by without increasing your standing in the contest. Let your motive for the next eleven days be HUSTLE! HUSTLE! HUSTLE! for S. and H. Green Stamps and LEDGER coupons.

LARGE ORDERS COMING IN

Mills of American Woolen Company Are Extremely Busy

Boston, Oct. 26.—President Wood of the American Woolen company says that there has been a distinct improvement in business as affecting the American Woolen company, and that the company is now operating between 70 and 75 percent of its machinery, the largest proportion so far this year.

He also says that many of the large mills of the company are extremely busy with orders to carry them into the new year. The Wood Worsted mills are entirely sold up for the season. A number of the mills have over 80 percent of orders. Large duplicate orders are coming now in good volume.

HEAD OF HOLY GHOST SOCIETY ARRESTED

Neglect to Make Port Said to Have Caused Death

Durham, Me., Oct. 26.—Rev. Frank Sandford, leader of the Holy Ghost and Us society, was arrested at the Shiloh Hilltop by Deputy United States Marshal Stevens of Portland.

It was understood that he was wanted in connection with the death of four of his followers from scurvy, due to insufficient provisions on board the Coronet. The vessel arrived in Portland Saturday with a party of fifty-five Shiloites who had spent a year cruising on the Kingdom and Coronet in the West Indies and along the African coast.

It was charged in the warrant that Sandford neglected to go into a port and thereby caused the death of Charles Hughey off the Newfoundland coast and that he failed to supply sufficient provisions for his crew and followers, although he had opportunity to do so. The other deaths were not mentioned in the warrant.

Sandford was brought to this city and arraigned before Commissioner Bradley and pleaded not guilty. A continuance until next Wednesday was granted and bail was fixed at $5000.

BIBE BOX—Oct 26-27-28

Q.—Is it a Biblical fact that Christ descended into hell after His crucifixion and before His resurrection?

Answer.—Many Christians are quite perplexed as to where the Lord Jesus was from the time of His crucifixion to the time of His resurrection. Some have the thought that He was away somewhere preaching to the spirits in prison (I Peter iii, 19); some that He was with the thief in Paradise (Luke xxiii, 43); some that He was in Heaven, and some that He was in a place of fire and brimstone called Hell. (Psalm xvi, 10; Acts ii, 31. However, the Bible does not leave us in doubt about the matter but plainly teaches that the Lord Jesus was in hell during the three days following the crucifixion. The hell of the Scriptures is not the hell of the creeds, but the condition of death, the grave. Jesus was in the tomb, the grave. He was dead, as the Bible affirms, and was raised the third day. See the following Scriptures and forget about the confusion of the creeds which in the main are unscriptural. (I Corinthians xv, 3, 4; xii, 16; Acts ii, 24; Romans vi, 4; I Peter i, 21.) The Hebrew sheol; the Greek hades, and the English word hell all signify the same thing—the grave, the condition of the dead. All enlightened Bible Scholars and clergymen versed in the original languages of the Scriptures will acknowledge, if they are honest and unprejudiced, that there is not the slightest suggestion, in the original meaning of these words, of fire, brimstone and torment. We have not the space here to give an explanation of the Scriptures referred to at the beginning of this reply, but can assure all that these are in entire harmony with themselves, rightly understood, and with all the rest of the Scriptures which teach that our Lord was in the tomb for the three days preceding His resurrection.

WHY WE HAVE "GROUCHES"

Pretty Model Explains That It Is Due to Cramped Feet

Chicago, Oct. 26.—"Bare feet in the street and at home are just as sensible as bare hands—if not more so. Cramped feet account for the modern 'grouch.' If the people of today would go barefooted for five years it would work a miracle in our dispositions. Shoes have, caused more wrinkles than age."

So says Beula L. Edgington, who is one of the prettiest models posing for commercial art work in Chicago. In New Orleans, where Miss Edgington has taken part in the Mardi Gras for five years, there is a club of young men and women who wear sandals summer and winter.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

8 TABLES AT WHIST TOURNAMENT

Eight tables were in play Wednesday evening at the regular whist tournament of the Granite City club. At the conclusion of the tournament a lunch was served. The best scores were made by William Chapman and Dr. Fred E. Jones. The former won 42 and lost 1 giving him 78-2 percent and the latter won 40 and lost 20 which gave him 66-6 percent. The monthly prizes were won by John Curtis with a total of 62-6 percent and Henry F. Tilden with 58-4 per cent. The monthly consolation prize went to James H. Lalley with 36-7 percent.

BRIEFS

The annual barn dance of Manet encampment will be held at Alpha hall tonight.

William T. Swain, of North Billerica, is visiting friends on Reardon street this week.

Rt. Wor. Hartley L. White will make an official visitation to Rural Masonic lodge tonight. He will be accompanied by Wor. Joseph Prout as Grand Marshal.

Eminent Sir Albert W. Fay and Arthur W. Stetson of Quincy Commandery, N. 47, Knights Templar, are attending the annual session of the Grand Commandery of Massachusetts and Rhode Island today at Masonic Temple, Boston. The charter for Quincy Commandery will probably be granted today.

LETTERS FOR SANTA CLAUS.

The post office department announced that letters addressed "To Santa Claus" and forwarded to the dead letter office will not be distributed to charitable organizations, benevolent persons, poor children or others. Four years ago postmasters were authorized to turn over such letters to charitable persons, but because of many abuses the order has never been renewed. Under the laws and regulations letters to Santa Claus are classed as "fictitious" and returned to the writers or destroyed.

SLEEVE CAUGHT IN WHEEL

James Galvin of Garfield Street Had Narrow Escape

WAS SEVERELY BRUISED

James Galvin of Garfield street, employed at the polishing mill of Joss Bros. Co., had a very narrow escape Wednesday from a serious accident. He was at work at a polishing wheel when the sleeve of his coat caught in the wheel and he was whirled about the shaft and finally became wedged in such a manner that the machine was stopped.

His cries brought other workmen to his rescue, when it was found necessary to cut part of his clothing off to release him.

Dr. Hunting was summoned and found that while the man had been severely bruised he had fortunately escaped having any bones fractured, although his arm troubled him considerable. He was removed to his home near by.

DANCE OF ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

About 75 couples were in attendance at the dancing party, given in the hall of St. John's Parochial school, by the members of St. John's Athletic Association. The music for the occasion was furnished by Provot's orchestra of five pieces, and after a concert, which lasted from 8 until 9 o'clock, dancing was enjoyed till midnight.

A short intermission was taken at ten o'clock, at which time refreshments were served. The affair was in charge of a committee comprised of William Houston, floor director, James Grant, assistant floor director and the following aids: Alexander McClean, Harry Brown, Henry Harkins, Walter Ferguson, Thomas Curtain and Joseph F. Phelan.

TO BE GIVEN A DINNER.

Dr. George H. Martin having retired from the service of the Massachusetts Board of Education after a long and distinguished educational career is to be honored as no other New England public school educator has ever been. A complimentary dinner is to be given him at the Boston City club Saturday afternoon at 5 o'clock by three hundred prominent citizens of Boston, Quincy and other cities as a testimonial to their professional admiration and affectionate regard.

LARGE CHINESE CITIES GO OVER TO REBELS

Tarter General and Escort Killed by Bomb at Canton

Shanghai, Oct. 26.—Yuan Shi-Kai is hesitating as to which side to espouse; the national assembly demands reforms which mean the downfall of the Manchus as the ruling class; the rebels in the field continue to win cities and provinces to their cause; Shanghai sees the handwriting on the wall and is preparing to accept the control of revolutionists.

In fact the surge of public opinion in China at the present moment is all toward the revolt. The government is paralyzed and does not know which way to look for loyalty.

General Feng Sen, newly appointed Tartar general, was killed in a bomb explosion in Canton, the largest city in China, together with his wife and thirty soldiers. The bomb was thrown by a revolutionary adherent just as Feng Sen arrived in the city. He had been sent to Canton to succeed General Chung, who was assassinated several months ago.

M'FARLAND IS INDICTED

Accused of Murdering Wife So He Could Wed Rival

Newark, N. J., Oct. 26.—Allison McFarland, advertising manager for a well known electrical firm, was indicted by the Essex county grand jury on a charge of murdering his wife by the use of cyanide of potassium.

Motive for the crime, the prosecutor thinks, has been supplied by McFarland's admitted love for Miss Florence Bromley of Philadelphia, his former stenographer.

The accused man was not in court, but when he heard at the jail that the indictment had been returned, he stated that his defense would be that his wife's death was accidental or suicidal. He said he had "plenty of motives for divorce, but none for murder."

FORGED NAMES ON NOMINATION PAPERS

Seaver's Name Will Not Be on the Election Ballot

Boston, Oct. 26.—After hearing the evidence in the Seaver case, the ballot law commission decided that the name of Augustus Seaver shall not appear upon the ballot at the state election as a Labor candidate for governor. Following this decision of the commission, it is understood that District Attorney elletier began an active investigation of the matter.

Attorney Donoghue, representing Seaver, requested that his client be permitted to withdraw his papers, stating that he was willing to take that action if the opposition would withdraw its criminal prosecution. To this proposition Chairman McDonald of the Democratic state committee refused to agree.

The commission filed its decree immediately following the introduction of the evidence, indicating that the preponderance of evidence of forgery in the nomination papers was so great as to leave no doubt in the minds of the members.

LINERS FINISH OCEAN RACE

Cymric Beaten by Ivernia by Less Than Sixty Minutes

Boston, Oct. 26.—The Cunard line steamer Ivernia and the White Star liner Cymric arrived in the lower harbor last evening after an exciting race across the Atlantic from Queenstown and Liverpool.

Both steamers left Liverpool a week ago Tuesday and departed from Queenstown the next morning. The Cymric started thirty minutes before the Ivernia, but as the Cunarder is considered a faster vessel it was thought she would arrive ahead. The Cymric dropped anchor less than an hour after the arrival of the Ivernia.

VERMONT'S SMALLEST MAN

Freeman Succumbs to Indigestion at the Age of 36

Barre, Vt., Oct. 26.—Walter Freeman, who, although 36 years of age, was but 3½ feet tall, died of acute indigestion.

Freeman weighed fifty-nine pounds and is said to have been the smallest man in the state. He had received many flattering offers to appear on the stage as a Lilliputian, but preferred to remain on the home farm.

He had three sisters and two brothers, all of whom, as well as his parents, are of normal size.

"Heiress" Atempts Suicide

Boston, Oct. 26.—Miss Frieda Cory, who a short time ago announced that she was an heiress to $150,000, left by her uncle, Dr. Katof Maloof, medical adviser in the court of the Shah of Persia, is on the dangerous list at the City hospital from taking poison with suicidal intent, in a South End cafe.

CUSTOMS WILL BE REFORMED

To Stop Undervaluations and Erroneous Classification

GOES INTO EFFECT NOV. 1

Plan of Sweeping Nature Requires Regular Reports by Appraisers Throughout the Country to Be Made to Experts at New York, Which Becomes Great Clearing House For Disputes—Where Credit Is Due

Washington, Oct. 26.—The most sweeping plan of administration reform in the memory of the customs service is outlined by the treasury department, through Assistant Secretary Curtis.

The plan provides that beginning Nov. 1, 1911, all appraising offices throughout the country will submit to the appraiser at New York, either weekly, daily or monthly, as the case may be, a sample label covering each article of merchandise appraised during the period in question, except articles imported in bulk, perishable articles, live animals and articles covered by specific paragraphs of the tariff with respect to American articles exported in return, books for the use of the government, household effects used abroad for more than a year, personal effects of citizens of the United States dying in foreign countries, plants and seeds imported for the department of agriculture and personal effects of returning travelers.

Actual samples of all merchandise imported also will be forwarded when practicable, to provide a check against undervaluations and erroneous classifications and to avoid discrepancies in the classification and appraisement of merchandise at the various ports of entry.

Each sample and label will be carefully compared by the appraising officers of New York with the returns of that port and with the returns of similar merchandise at the other ports of entry, and all discrepancies will be made the subject of correspondence between the appraisers at New York and the customs officers reporting on the same merchandise.

If an agreement cannot be reached by correspondence between the local officers, the matter will be submitted to the department for decision and the appraiser at New York will report to the department monthly all discrepancies and appraisals and classifications noted by him and the action taken thereon.

The system thus will make New York a great clearing house for customs disputes and will give the treasury department simultaneously the advantage of the opinion of the leading customs experts of the country when questions are submitted to Washington for decision.

The primary aim of the new plan is to bring about uniformity of classification and appraisment, thus at once minimizing the labor of the treasury department and so standardizing the methods at each port of entry that the business world will be saved much time, money and litigation.

It should be said that the new system is being instituted upon the suggestion of the board of general appraisers and is not, therefore, a reform initiated in Washington. The Payne law omitted from the functions of the board the duty of exercising such supervision over appraisements and classifications as might be necessary to secure uniformity.

The department, having assumed jurisdiction of this task, is in a much better position to work out good results than the board of general appraisers, as it has complete control of the administrative machinery and can act with more freedom than the board, which is a semi-judicial body.

PENSIONS FOR PRIESTS

Vatican Will Temporarily Provide For Destitute In Portugal

Lisbon, Oct. 26.—The patriarch of Lisbon has sent to the Vatican a list of 2150 priests who are accepting a pension from the government and the names of 5800 who have refused this aid. Of the latter 2400 are destitute.

The Vatican has decided to give the penniless a small monthly allowance pending the possible conclusion of a better arrangement with the state. Those who accepted the pension contrary to the commands of their bishops will be excommunicated and their names erased from the registers of the Catholic clergy.

ROOSTER COAL BRIQUETS
THE NEW ANTHRACITE COAL
ROOSTER BRIQUETS are made from the choicest small Scranton Anthracite coal, mined in Pennsylvania, called TWENTIETH CENTURY CHESTNUT size
Just consider for a moment what we offer here in this 20th CENTURY CHESTNUT.
First, 2000 pounds of clean, pure, hard coal without a rock or a piece of slate.
Second, fuel that cannot form into a clinker, by any known method of firing, consequently the linings and grates last indefinitely.
Third, they are made in nut size, being equally convenient for furnace heaters, open grates, as well as stoves; therefore, only one storage bin is necessary.
Fourth, and very IMPORTANT, the quality of this fuel is the SAME EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR, not a good ton today, and nothing like it the next time, in other words, when you once learn how to regulate your drafts you have nothing more to learn about burning BRIQUETS.
Fifth, no more sifting ashes these Briquets burn out clean. They require less wood to kindle.
Be sure to ask for "ROOSTERS" and get the Briquet made from pure Scranton Coal, from the largest Briquet plant in the country. They are better than coal, will last as long and cost less.

SYNOPSIS

Anna Granger, devoted mother of two small children, discovers that her husband is a weak character and that he has lied to her about a woman.

Posing as Miss Dale, she becomes stenographer to Burton Temple, through whose evidence her husband has been imprisoned. She thinks Temple is the guilty man and is acting the spy to clear her husband's name for his sake and that of her children.

Anna discovers that Temple was one of her girlhood's ideals. Thinking her a single woman, he tells her her husband was a liar and perjurer.

Temple has detectives on the trail of Brady, an accomplice of Granger, looking for evidence. Anna is searching for evidence against Temple, who becomes interested in her.

Anna was growing excessively uneasy. For quite two hours now she'd been anxiously expecting Mrs. Mason's return from Westfield. What could be the matter? At the very least it must be the measles. Finally, however, her elder friend came in smilingly, disarming all fears.

"And how's the new nurse getting on with them? Does she make Robbie wear his rubbers on wet days? Is his cold quite gone? Is Harold's finger well again? Have they hid that horrid penknife?" Anna was untying Mrs. Mason's veil and pouring out her questions in a torrent.

Mrs. Mason assured her that the boys were both well and happy, that the new nurse was doing beautifully and that, except for a few hours when the rascals had her locked in the chicken house, she was having a fine time.

"Oh, she won't mind an inconsequential thing like the chicken house," laughed Anna, handing Mrs. Mason her veil pins, "when once she's used to those boys. They locked their mother in one day, and I had to spank them, poor little dears. Oh, but I'm sick with longing for them—sick!"

"I know, dearie," soothed Mrs. Mason, patting her on the back. "But I've something else to tell you. You couldn't guess why I was so late coming back? No? Well, I've been up to see Robert."

"You have!" Anna started never so slightly. "Is—is he well? Is he keeping up? What did he think about my being here?"

"Oh, he's well, and he's keeping up. They're all very good to him. They feel he is up there through a miscarriage of justice. They treat him kindly. They've made him what they call a 'trusty.'"

Anna was listening with strained attention.

"You explained to him, didn't you, Mrs. Mason? You made it clear just why I left home? You made him understand that I am in a position here to find out the truth that will convict the man who has done this thing?"

Mrs. Mason plucked several imaginary threads off her skirts to hide her confusion.

"At first, you know," went on Anna, "I thought it best not to let him know about my having left home. I knew he would worry about the boys. But a few days ago I managed to get him word. I felt the time had come. And now, what does he say?"

Mrs. Mason still faltered. Her conscience would not permit her to tell less than the whole truth; nevertheless, she longed for some fashion in which to put it gently.

"Well, he said, dear—he turned white and said he didn't want you to remain in this house. Said it didn't look quite right; that he'd rather have you home with the children than here in Temple's house."

Anna smiled indulgently. "Poor boy! He's afraid the work will prove too hard for me. It won't. I'll fasten the crime yet, though it may break my heart." The final words were almost choked. She walked across to the window and stood staring out at the grim prison there. It was a little trick she had learned whenever she wished to steel herself in the fight she had undertaken. Presently she turned back—a dumb, pathetic perplexity in each gray eye.

"Oh, if I could get back to the condition in which I entered this house—the clear air where there are no obscurities, no mysteries—"

She spoke half to herself, but the words fell like little whips on Mrs Mason's ears.

"What obscurities, what mysteries are you talking of?" she said sternly "I don't understand."

"No more do I—no more do I!" Anna twisted and untwisted her hands in silence for a moment. "Only this I know," she said at last. "When I came here I could harden my heart against the man with whom I had come to wage war. I could continually remember his responsibility for Robert's imprisonment. Oh, I could fight fairly and squarely. But now—

"It's strange," she went on reflectively—"strange. Now I always have to bring myself up with a deliberate effort. I have to think to hate him—I don't hate him intuitively any more. There's something about him"—her voice softened oddly—"I can't describe it. He's strong, somehow. He's big and deep and earnest and illimitably strong. He draws one."

CHAPTER VI.

DUTY AND DESIRE.

"ANNA GRANGER, I'm ashamed of you, ashamed! I could tell you what the trouble is. Oh, it's a degenerate age! Duty and desire messed up till you don't know which is which. You can shuffle them to suit your conscience—if by reason of a few decent ancestors a person happens to have a conscience! Don't you think I've seen this thing coming, Anna? Don't you think I've been deploring the situation, doing my best to straighten it out? Why have I been harping on the children, the children, the children? Because I saw they were the only stronghold you had left to fall back upon; because I saw you were already forgetting your poor martyr husband. Oh, I've seen this man's eyes following you with the look that can only mean one thing! I've seen"—

"Mrs. Mason, it isn't true, it isn't true!" Anna recoiled in horror. "Is it kind, is it bearable that you should say such things to me? I have not deserved them. No, no, I have not! What right have you? I can't protect myself, I can't escape you. But"—Her voice shook. There was in it a passion of anger, pain, isolation and yet something else, the note of something newborn and transforming.

"What right?" repeated Mrs. Mason in sharp tones of astonishment. "The right of duty, the right of one honest woman speaking to another whom she wishes to keep honest."

The stern old Puritan housekeeper had made Robert Granger stand for a leading principle. She was a woman of little individuality, quite far away from her own generation. For the most part she acted on cut and dried principles; even her impulses were automatic impulses, dating back to her foremothers. She had been brought up with the view that all behavior was right or wrong, correct or incorrect, as if it were not much else beside these, as if between black and white there were not many colors, all the colors of the spectrum, in fact.

And so to the bowed young woman before her she continued with her oracular mottoes on right living and sure results, plain, one sided duty. Anna was vaguely conscious that Sir Oracle was still in among the living. She heard no particular word, just the pattering murmur of word upon word ponderously delivered.

"A letter for you, sir, brought by messenger," said the butler, presenting an envelope to Burton Temple.

ven, who had been pacing up and down the library excitedly, blurted out:

"Read it; read it. Nothing can come too soon now, I tell you. Your indictment is hanging over your head like the sword of Damocles suspended by a hair."

"'We have discovered,' read Temple hastily, 'the woman for whom party has spent large sums of money, dating from time party is supposed to have received funds. Her name is Rose Fanchon. Party spent a good deal of money on her, but large part invested in New York Central. Securities held in party's own name, but the dividend order makes the dividend payable to the woman. Are preparing other evidence and expect to have something of greater importance soon. Hoping our work has been satisfactory and that we shall speedily be in a position to give you everything you desire, very truly, etc.,'" rattled off Temple.

"You know," commented Craven, rubbing his lean jaw with appreciation, "I'm beginning to like that fellow Granger. Slick pup—$80,000 in New York Central and the dividend only to Rosie! Kept a big, stout rope on his benefaction, didn't he?"

"Looks good, eh?" said Temple cheerfully, tapping the letter.

"Looks good, yes, but you've got to have something that does more than 'look good,' old man. You've got to have a knockout piece of evidence. Brady's going to go on the stand and perjure himself; see if he doesn't."

"He'd perjure somebody else if he could invent the crime," agreed Temple bitterly.

REPUBLICAN RALLY

ble, he would work to accomplish this result.

I shall devote all the time required to the office, said Mr. Leslie, and shall vote on all measures simply on their merits, doing the best I can to bring credit to the office and people I represent. Loud applause greeted the close of the speech.

The next speaker was Ex-Representative William E. Weeks of Everett. He was introduced by Edward A. Bean, secreary of the Republican Ward committee and a close friend of his.

The speaker delivered an eloquent address on state issues scoring the present governor for being on a Foss platform instead of even one of democracy.

His needless employment of experts and his attitude toward the railroad commission were things that came up for scathing criticism.

Frothingham was referred to as one schooled with years of experience and a man fair, honest and conscientious in what he believed to be right.

At this point it was announced that owing to a disruption of transit facilities the remainder of the speakers scheduled to be present would be late in arriving. The time was taken up with brief discussions by local speakers.

Arthur W. Rohn delivered what he termed a heart to heart talk with the voters of Wollaston urging them to stir up interest in the campaign and to get out the vote on election day.

John L. Hamilton decried the fact that present day politics are generalyly dirty. He referred in contrast to the clean campaign of Mr. Leslie. If we can elect a clean man lets do it.

In a few brief remarks Councilman Gardiner announced the fact that he would not be a candidate at the coming city election but would leave the office for a younger man. He urged a large vote at the state election.

Councilman Parlee of Ward Six spoke of the change in the office of mayor at the city election and urged that a republican candidate be elected to the mayoralty.

Verne S. Brokaw commended the Republican candidate for representative on his good work. Mr. Leslie spoke briefly on tariff and tariff revision.

John L. Miller told of the manner in which the tariff affected the granite industry and urged the election of a man of Mr. Leslie's calibre rather than that of his opponent.

Dr. Charles S. Adams said that this was the first rally he had attended in 20 years and remarked the change in the attitude of the voters from emotion to reason.

The missing speakers here come to light and senator George L. Barnes of Weymouth, candidate for re-election was introduced.

Senator Barnes scored the present governor for his many attempts to discredit the Republicans while in office to be used as arguments for his re-election. The speaker urged that the voters get back to the old standard where we never heard any attacks upon the good name of Massachusetts that were not backed up by evidence.

Republicans are needed in the Legislature this year and the people are responsible for the type of men sent there. Candidate Leslie was mentioned as a man in every way fitted and capable and one who was honest and faithful.

We should show distinctly this coming election said the speaker, that we do not approve of the methods used in the House last year to destroy the state and promote the selfish interests of certain politicians.

In regard to his own record Senator Barnes said that if the same were presented fairly and honestly he had no complaint to make. He understood however that this, his opponents were not doing and he had been urged by his friends to make a few statements concerning his record.

The charge that he was affiliated with the various interests, he refuted decidedly and referred his audience to any member of the senate regardless of party.

He had been against a perpetual franchise for trolley freight because he believed a 20 year franchise would show whether or not the service was a benefit to the community and if so it might easily be renewed.

In the "9 hour in 11" bill he had voted in the interest of the street railway employes. He dealt at length on th measure to tax he deposits in the savings departments of trust companies.

He had saved the city of Quincy some $30,000 by influencing the state to build the Back River bridge and instead of receiving $3000 for his services as had been charged by his political opponents, had cheerfully expended over $150 for expenses out of his own pocket in addition to the time consumed.

He had even so far been misrepresented as to have it charged that he was responsible for there being no lights on the Quincy Point bridge. This he had no more to do with than a Boston newsboy.

In closing there was nothing in his record or district that he was ashamed of or for which he need offer apologies or excuses. If he was returned to the senate he would endeavor to represent his constituency as favorably and as well as he knew how.

Representative Langelier chairman of the Republican city committee in concluding the meeting scored the talk of dissension in the district saying that when the votes were counted Wollaston was found on deck.

If the vote is gotten out there is no question but what it will be right and Leslie and Barnes will carry the city.

DOROTHY Q. LODGE MEETING

A pleasant meeting took place at the home of Mrs. F. C. Douglas of Old Colony terrace where the regular sewing meeting of the Dorothy Q. lodge of Odd Ladies was held. Pretty decorations of Hallowe'en nature were in evidence and a fine program of music and readings was given. Piano solos by Miss Ruth Cahill were enjoyed as were vocal selections by Mss Irma Douglas. Several readings by Miss Clara Bennett found favor.

OF INTEREST TO WEAVERS

Attorney General Rules That Grading Is Equivalent to Fining

Boston, Oct. 26.—Attorney General Swift has sent to Chief Whitney of the district police a ruling which is of importance to weavers throughout the commonwealth, inasmuch as it requires the state police to consider the system of grading in the same light as fining, which is prohibited by law.

In many mills it is the common practice for overseers to determine cloth to be of inferior quality and to pay the weaver a second-grade price for it, thus circumventing the statute which prohibits the imposition of a direct fine upon weavers for imperfections in their work.

The attorney general holds, however, that grading is in effect fining, and that it is prohibited by law.

DR. KNABE A SUICIDE?

Knew Murderer If She Was Killed, According to Police

Indianapolis, Oct. 26.—"If Dr. Knabe was murdered, as appears, I am satisfied she was murdered by a person with whom she was acquainted, and that she voluntarily let this person into her apartment. But the theory of suicide still will not let itself be neglected."

With this statement Captain Holtz, chief of the detective department, summed up last night the day's activity by the police in the investigation of the death of Dr. Helene Knabe, former state bacteriologist, whose throat was cut while she lay on her bed at an undetermined hour last Monday night.

HEARS DEATH SENTENCE

Phelps Must Go to Electric Chair For Killing Haskins

Greenfield, Mass., Oct. 26.—Silas N. Phelps, who shot and killed Deputy Sheriff Emmett F. Haskins, will pay the penalty for his deed in the electric chair at the state prison during the week beginning Dec. 31. Judge Fessenden, in the Franklin county superior court, sentenced the man to death yesterday afternoon and set the date.

Before sentence was imposed Phelps reiterated his protestation of innocence, declaring that the evidence had been "framed up" against him, and that if granted a new trial he could prove that he was not guilty.

Haskins was killed June 12, 1910, on the doorsteps of the Phelps home at Monroe, when he went to arrest Phelps on an assault charge.

POOR POSTAL SERVICE.

At last, Postmaster Mansfield is beginning to give heed to complaints against his poor postal service in and about Boston. The Revere Journal was one of the first, if not the first, paper hereabouts to call attention to the deterioration of the service. Since then, other papers have taken up the cry, and finally there came from aristocratic and influential Brookline a hard, strong kick. That kick from Brookline was the thing that made the postmaster finally sit up and take notice.

Mr. Mansfield puts the blame on the post office department at Washington. There can be little doubt as to correctness of his diagnosis of the cause of the trouble. Postmaster General Frank Harris Hitchcock of Newton, Mass., has lately become obsessed by the economy mania and has applied it to the degree of seriously impairing the postal service all over the country. Mr. Mansfield, in a defense of the poor service in Brookline, said this week that he has been instructed to revise the postal service within the Boston postal district by reducing the number of deliveries wherever an excess of service was apparent. His reductions have consisted of lessening the number of deliveries in residential districts.

In Chelsea, which is considerable of a manufacturing city, the business men are complaining bitterly of the loss of their 11 A. M. delivery. Many firms formerly depended upon that delivery for orders which they were able to ship that night. But they have been answered that Chelsea is a residential community and must, therefore, lose one of its daily mail deliveries.

In Revere there are many persons who have just as much right to an adequate mail service as a man who has a little 3x4 office in Boston. There are business concerns in Revere, too, to whom the present inadequate mail service is a severe handicap.

We venture the opinion that Postmaster Mansfield has made an error in shoving the annoyances incident to the present poor postal service onto the residential districts. He would de well to make the business sections of Boston bear its share of the trouble. If he will but do that, there will come from the business interests a protest of such force that even Mr. Hitchcock, the economist run mad, will realize that the real work of the post office organization of the country is not to produce at the end of its fiscal year a report that will show no deficit, but to give to the people of this country an efficient, adequate postal service.—Revere Journal.

Mortgagee's Sale of Real Estate IN WOLLASTON.

By virtue of the power of sale contained in a certain mortgage deed given by Mabelle L. Walker to Nathan G. Nickerson, dated October 9, 1909, and recorded with Norfolk Deeds, book 1123, page 432, and for breach of the conditions of said mortgage, will be sold at public auction on the land therein described, on Thursday, the sixteenth day of November, A. D. 1911, at three o'clock in the afternoon, the premises conveyed by said mortgage deed, viz: a certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon situated in that part of said Quincy called Wollaston, and being a part of Lot numbered Eleven (11) in Block seven (7) of Section One (1) of Lands of the Wollaston Land Associates as shown on a plan of said Section drawn by D. Granger & Son, recorded with Norfolk Deeds at the end of Book 393. Said Lot is the lot marked "Lot D" on a plan entitled "Plan of Lots in the City of Quincy Surveyed and staked for N. G. Nickerson" drawn by Ernest W. Branch, C. E., dated June 25, 1907, and recorded with said Deeds, at the end of Book 1059, and is bounded:

Northeasterly by South Central Terrace, formerly Nickerson Terrace, as shown on said last mentioned plan fifty-seven and 5-10 (57.5) feet; Southeasterly by "Lot C" on said last mentioned plan one hundred seventeen (117) feet; Southwesterly by Lot Five (5) in said Block as shown on said first mentioned plan fifty-seven and 5-10 (57.5) feet; and Northwesterly by Lot Twelve (12) as shown on said first mentioned plan one hundred seventeen (117) feet; containing 6727 square feet more or less.

Also as appurtenant to said premises a right to pass and re-pass to and from Newport Avenue over the way shown on said last mentioned plan and marked thereon "Footway 4 ft. Wide."

Being the same premises conveyed to said Mabelle L. Walker by said Nathan G. Nickerson by his deed dated August 24, 1909, and recorded with said Deeds, Book 1119, page 469, and being subject to the restrictions therein referred to and subject also to a mortgage for Twenty-six hundred (2600) dollars given by said Walker to the Randolph Savings Bank of even date and recorded with said mortgage.

Three hundred (300) dollars must be paid in cash at the time and place of sale and the balance in ten days upon delivery of the deed at the office of F. L. Hayes at Room 801, Kimball Building, Boston, Mass.

That Shawmut avenue woman who, on discovering a suspicious looking man in her house, first chatted with him and then called the police by telephone, did the prompt thinking of which the police would like to see more evidence. The police stations have facilities for sending a policeman or a squad of them to any place at short notice. A telephone call is all that is needed to set the force in motion. Many housewives forget at times that the telephone is about the best kind of watchdog they can have.

AMOUNTS EXPENDED

By Candidates For Nomination At State Caucuses

ONLY TWO SO FAR

Returns under the corrupt practice act, of amounts expended by candidates for nomination at the state caucuses in Quincy are slowly coming in. Up to this noon but two had been returned to the City Clerk.

Michael T. Sullivan, Democratic candidate for representative from the fifth district received nothing and expended nothing for his nomination.

Nathan G. Nickerson, candidate for the Republican nomination for representative in the sixth district expended $17.90 for mailing, printing and personal expenses.

Under the law these returns should be filed thirty days after the caucuses.

LOSES $700 ALLOWANCE

Postmaster Might Have Saved It by Spending a Dollar

Washington, Oct. 26.—The postmaster at East Berlin, Conn., reports that his receipts in the last year were $999.

If he had spent a dollar for stamps, his receipts would have been $1000, the minimum allowable if his office was to continue in the third class.

But the dollar was not spent for stamps, and so the postmaster general, under the law, must, he said, put East Berlin back into the fourth class.

That cuts off the annual allowance of $700 for rent, fuel and clerk hire.

SENTENCE IS DELAYED

Case of "Joe Bill" Is to Be Taken to the Maine High Court

South Paris, Me., Oct. 26.—A motion by counsel for Ignazio Albanez, popularly known as "Joe Bill," who was convicted of the murder of his wife, that the verdict was contrary to the evidence, was overruled by Associate Justice Hanson in the supreme court, and exceptions were taken.

The case will be taken to the law court on these and other exceptions which had been noted. Until a decision is reached, sentence will not be pronounced.

ASLEEP MANY DAYS

Futile Efforts to Arouse Girl After Returning From Dance

Goshen, N. Y., Oct. 26.—Miss Tillie Williams, aged 17, went to a dance Friday, and since her return home she has been asleep.

Miss Williams arrived home from the dance about midnight and retired apparently in good health. Saturday morning she failed to get up.

Finally a doctor was summoned, but the girl remained asleep until Saturday evening, when she was conscious for a few minutes, but went to sleep again until Sunday afternoon. Then she was able to walk to the home of her grandfather, half a mile distant.

She went to sleep again Sunday evening and has remained so ever since.

RACHEL'S GUITAR.

It Was Tuned to Play a Costly Air For Banker Fould.

Rachel, the famous actress, did not neglect any means of turning a more or less honest penny. In his new life of her Francis Gribble tells the following story of a guitar:

Rachel first saw and admired it in an artist's studio. "Give it to me," she said. "I want to pretend that it is the guitar on which I earned my living as a street singer."

The jest seemed a pleasant one, and the artist handed over the instrument. Rachel embellished it with ribbons and hung it in her own apartment, where it duly attracted the attention of Achille Fould, the banker. Hearing its story, he expressed the wish to possess it. "Very well," said Rachel, "you can have it for a thousand louis."

"Five hundred," said the banker, trying to bargain.

"No, a thousand," said Rachel, expressing her disdain for those who haggled.

And the banker actually paid a thousand louis for the worthless knickknack. It is said that he learned the truth when he tried to sell his treasure at the Hotel Drouot and that the discovery of the hoax nearly sent him into a fit on the floor.

—It is not greatly to the credit of the East Milton authorities, that a stable containing 154 horses, should be permitted to exist without a watchman, and practically with no water service. A stable two miles from the nearest hydrant in Milton, and a quarter of a mile from the nearest Boston hydrant at Neponset, had no protection whatever. Ought not the matter of water in such localities to be investigated at once by the state, and ought there not to be a provision for the employment of watchmen, in all stables containing a large number of horses?—Boston Record.

NEW WITNESS IS MENTIONED

Said to Have Seen Richeson Buying Deadly Poison

GRAND JURY HEARING TODAY

Fifteen Witnesses Expected to Furnish Evidence Sufficient to Indict Clergyman—Noted Lawyer Asked to Join In Defense of Accused Man—Enough Cyanide to Kill Seven Persons In Miss Linnell's Body

Boston, Oct. 26.—The first crucial moment since the arrest of Clarence V. T. Richeson comes today when compelled to satisfy the grand jury he District Attorney Pelletier will be has sufficient evidence in his possession to warrant an indictment against Richeson on a charge of murder in the first degree.

A witness who has never been mentioned in the case up to the present, but who will likely be called on today, is George E. Cobb of Newton Centre, clerk for Druggist William Hahn, who claims he he witnessed the sale of cyanide of potassium to Richeson.

Cobb would not discuss the case last night, but he is quoted by friends as having stated that he was present at the drug store on the day in question, heard the minister ask for the poison, and saw it delivered to him.

It has been a source of conjecture among lawyers in the city as to who would be the one called in as associate with the Dunbars in the defense of Richeson. It was learned last night that Robert O. Harris had been asked by the Dunbars to assist them in the case, and that he had returned a non-committtal answer.

Mr. Harris said last night that the reason he was not sure whether or not to take the case was that the speedy trial in January would interfere with his congressional duties, and that his constituents might very properly object. He said that he was still undecided, but would probably be compelled to refuse the Dunbars.

About fifteen witnesses, including the medical experts, have been summoned to appear before the grand jury today, and the district attorney is confident that the testimony of these will be more than sufficient to indict Richeson.

Medical Examiner Leary, who will be one of the chief witnesses today, explained the reason for the midnight examination of the exhumed body of Avis Linnell. Leary said that the district attorney had ordered the examination, not so much to discover whether or not the vial which contained the cyanide of potassium had been buried with the body, but to ascertain whether or not there were traces of other medicines in any of the organs. It is understood that he found enough cyanide to kill seven persons.

It is believed that the examination was ordered by the district attorney so that he would be ready with medico-legal testimony should the defense attempt to prove that something other than cyanide of potassium brought about the death of Avis Linnell.

Thomas V. Richeson, father of the accused man, has been in this city for two days and visited his son in jail yesterday afternoon. The meeting between the southern colonel and his son was very affecting. The younger man was just about to open his lips to protest his innocence when the father reached his hand through the bars, and crying "My boy, my boy," burst into sobs.

For some time the two stood there, with never a word between them, until the young man finally raised his head and solemnly raised his right hand, with his father's hand still clasped in it, said: "This is terrible, father, but I am innocent. I am innocent."

SENT TO STATE PRISON

Two Slayers Plead Guilty of Murder In Second Degree

Boston, Oct. 26.—Arthur L. Boardman, proprietor of a cigar store in Charlestown, who was indicted for murder in the second degree, for shooting Arthur A. Munroe and John F. Murray in a quarrel over a box of cigarets, pleaded guilty to manslaughter in the superior court. Boardman was sentenced to from fifteen to twenty years in state prison.

Northampton, Mass., Oct. 26.—Retracting his plea of not guilty of murder in the first degree and pleading guilty in the second degree, Felix Janois, who was being tried for the murder of Frank Tomel, was sentenced to state prison for life. Both Janois and Tomel lived in Easthampton. They had a quarrel in a saloon there which resulted in Janois fatally stabbing Tomel.

INTERSECTIONAL FOOTBALL GAMES

Crack Eastern and Western Teams to Clash on Gridiron.

MICHIGAN VS. PENNSYLVANIA.

Elevens of Two Universities to Renew Annual Relations In Ann Arbor, Nov. 4—Wolverenes Will Also Play Syracuse—Cornell to Tackle Chicago.

By TOMMY CLARK.

Restricted by the rules of their organization to a limited number of games each year, the conference elevens of the middle west and the University of Michigan, once a vastly honored and respected member of that select coterie, pry open their football seasons a week later than the eastern teams of the same general ranking.

Before Michigan was forced to seek worthy opponents in other parts of the land by refusing to abide by some of the rules and regulations which other members of the conference sought to impose upon the Wolverenes there was not a great deal of interest taken in the western games in the east.

But when Chicago, following Michigan's example of playing a representative eastern team, added Cornell to her schedule interest in the conference and Michigan games increased wonderfully. There had always been a tendency in the east to take it for granted that the western games were inferior to those played in the east, though the problem had never been worked out on the field.

A series of Pennsylvania successes over Michigan tended to strengthen this belief. In 1909, however, the Wolverenes won and last year held the CAPTAINS OF THE PENN, CORNELL AND CHICAGO ELEVENS.

Quakers, admittedly one of the most powerful and versatile elevens in the east, to a no score tie.

Intersectional battles have become more popular and carry added interest. This season more than any previous year the schedule provided a lot of it. Beginning with a game against Syracuse on Nov. 4, Michigan has three successive Saturdays filled with eastern opposition.

Syracuse plays at Ann Arbor on the first Saturday of the month; the Wolverenes visit the east to tackle Cornell at Ithaca, N. Y., on the 11th, and a week following are at home to Pennsylvania in what has come to be the biggest game of the year for both teams.

Playing Cornell and Pennsylvania on successive Saturdays, Michigan so fits into the schedule that it should be possible to get a very fair line on the comparative abilities of the east and west through these two games. It is unfortunate that Penn does not play Yale, Harvard or Princeton, but the Quakers do play Brown, a common opponent of Harvard and Yale.

Cornell's game at Chicago, sandwiched in between the Cornell-Michigan and Penn-Michigan engagements, may also help the students of comparative scores. This battle does not rank with the classics as the Penn-Michigan does, but it serves each year as an additional means of lining up the representative elevens of the two sections.

SPORTING "DOPE"

By B. A.

Don't Knock, Just Boost.—B. A.

The showing made by the members of the local eleven and the consequent administering of a 5 to 0 defeat to the strong Boston College High eleven at Merry Mount Park last Tuesday, goes to show that Quincy High has made remarkable strides in its games since the early part of the season. Every man on the local eleven was on his mettle and the manner in which the backfield executed its plays and the speed with which it was seen to go forth, should enable the local lads to be ready to take on the best there is in interscholastic ranks.

The local boys are now ably qualified to contend with Brockton High, which is the next attraction at Merry Mount park. The game will take place next Tuesday and it behooves any one who has the time and who is desirous of witnessing the real article of football, to make an especial effort to be present on this coming occasion. The rivalry that exists between both factions is exceedingly great and as the Brockton boys were victorious last year, the local players are now out to turn the tables.

Recently the Brockton High management communicated with manager White, of the local eleven, and asked that Edward J. O'Brien, be selected as the referee for the game. O'Brien is a favorite with the Brockton fans and does a great deal of officiating at the Brockton High games. Last year the local boys were not satisfied with the decisions which O'Brien rendered at times, but whether there is any weight to such an opionion matters not in this coming event, for with all due respect to the Brockton manager's request, we are constrained to believe that a better official than Ingalls, of Brown could not have been selected.

It is not to be expected that any referee would use bias in a contest such as the coming one, and the efficient work of Ingalls in officiating at the different school games throughout the state, is sufficient proof that we should dispel any such sentiment and begin to realize that none but the best judgement will be forthcoming.

It will be a game for blood and if Quincy High can play as well as it did last week, there is no reason why a victory over Brockton High should not be annexed.

Coach Staff officiated as field judge at the Brockton High-Salem High games yesterday and he seems to feel that the local boys can take the measure of the Brockton aggregation. Arthur himself is a Brockton boy and the coming struggle will on that account be a trying one for him.

The Fore River soccor football team is now second to the Boston Americans in the New England league, and the members of the local team are to make a great bid for the honors of supremacy.

Through a misstatement a short while ago, it was announced that "Nedzo" Bennett had gone to the hospital for treatment to his hand, as a result of his boxing at the recent Quincy A. A. bouts. Such was not the case, for he sustained the injury two days after, while at work. He had his little finger bruised by the blow of a hammer.

Larkin, one of the Quincy High ends has shown more improvement this year than any one player on the local eleven. He had fought in his position consistently, is a clean, upright player, and has reflected great credit upon his team mates in his endeavors to put his best energies into the game. If he can maintain the pace at which he is now travelling, he should prove a valuable college acquisition in the near future.

GIANTS' RALLY WINS IN TENTH

Spectacular Finish of Championship Game at New York

ATHLETICS' LEAD OF 3 TO 1

New York, Oct. 26.—Coming from behind with a garrison finish of the most spectacular order, the Giants captured the game in the ninth inning and scored the run necessary to win in the tenth, the score being 4 to 3. Larry Doyle started the inning with a double, went to third on a fielder's choice and scored on Merkle's long fly on the right foul line.

The Giants' rally, at a time when their last hope of victory in the series had apparently vanished, was the greatest of the series.

Herzog had died at first when Fletcher, whose batting throughout the contest has been decidedly weak, connected with a straight one from Coombs that was good for two bases.

He moved over to third on Meyer's easy out, and Doc Crandall, the third Giant slabman of the day, smashed a double to right centre that scored Fletcher. Devore, whose hitting laurels have also been badly crumpled during the series, put the capsheaf on the rally by singling to left, scoring Crandall with the tieing run.

The Athletics, obviously rattled by the Giants' sensational spurt, were retired easily in the tenth. Then came Doyle's timely wallop, which again put the National leaguers into the possibility class in the world's series.

While the Giants earned their triumph largely by hard and clean hitting, it was stated last night by Umpire Klem, the National league official, who was behind the plate during the contest, that had a timely point been taken by the Athletics on the last play of the game, when, with two out, Larry Doyle slid with the final tally, the runner would have been declared out and the inning would have ended with the score still a tie, 3 to 3.

According to Klem, Doyle did not touch the plate in sliding in, and needed only a protest by the visitors to nullify the run he was supposed to have scored. The technical claim was not made, however, and the game stands a victory for the Giants. Nobody in the stands knew anything of this, and the edge of the crowd's enthusiasm was not dulled by the injection of any technicalities.

MAYOR FITZGERALD SPEAKS AT DEMOCRATIC RALLY IN WEST QUINCY

MEETING OF RURAL MASONIC LODGE ONE OF LARGEST IN HISTORY

FITZGERALD SAYS FOSS SURE WINNER

Boston Executive Speaks In His Usual Happy Style. Meeting At West Quincy Was Largely Attended And Opening Democratic Campaign In A "Blaze of Glory." Some Excellent Speeches From Various Candidates. Rallies All Next Week

The sturdy walls of St. Mary's hall, resounded with their old time vigor last evening, when the voters of this city taxed the rendezvous of Democracy to its full capacity, in order to obtain a clear view of the principles of the Democratic party, expounded as they were by some of the most eloquent speakers in political circles. It was the occasion of the opening rally in local circles in the interest of the Democratic state ticket, and the local candidates who are aspiring to political honors on the Democratic ticket.

No grand array or profusion of red fire was needed to show where the meeting was scheduled, and no illumination was necessary in order to guide the spell binders to the gathering for the mere fact that St. Mary's hall, West Quincy, had been selected as the place in which the volley was to be fired against the tactics of certain members of the Republican party, was sufficient to prove the mecca of attraction to all who desired to hear the Democratic doctrines expounded in the real manner.

The meeting was especially interesting from more than one feature, for among other things, it brought to mind old time scenes and acquaintances of some days past were renewed in an appealing manner. It was just eight o'clock when Councilman John D. Smith arose and took possession of the meeting as the presiding officer of the evening. Councilman Smith started out by outlining the policies that had been adopted by the Democratic party in Quincy and by stating that rallies in the interests of the Democratic party will be held throughout the city next week.

Mr. Smith then went on to present the various issues which would be discussed by the speakers of the evening. He said that through some unavoidable occurrence, neither Congressman William F. Murray nor Hon. Thomas P. Riley would be present, but that other well known speakers would be present later in the evening, and that among them would be Hon. Joseph F. O'Connell and Mayor John F. Fitzgerald of Boston.

Mr. Smith then presented the first speaker in a very glowing introduction, praising him for his efficient work in the City Council during the past year and stating that the same gentleman would represent Ward Four in the same body this coming year. A fine demonstration of applause greeted Councilman Harry T. Boyd, as he advanced to the rostrum.

Before confining himself to the local issues of the campaign Mr. Boyd, in a remarkable burst of oratory, dwelt at length on "the great wave of Democracy that was sweeping throughout the union." He talked very intelligently on national issues for a few moments.

Councilman Boyd was widely cheered from time to time.

He was followed by Hon. George W. Anderson candidate for attorney general. Mr. Anderson compared the political achievements and records of both Governor Foss and gubernatural candidate Frothingham. He told his audience that Governor Foss had been hampered in his efforts, by the tactics of a hostile legislation. He asked those present to weigh the efficient manner in which Governor Foss had conducted the duties incumbent upon his office, and gave several instances where many Republicans had benefited by his appointments among others being Commissioner O'Meara, and Chief Justice Rugg, the latter being raised to a dignity considered to be the 11th most important one in the entire nation.

He then went on to say that the only way to enable Governor Foss to rightly carry out his office, is to elect men on the Democratic ticket who will be behind him in his efforts to further the welfare of the Commonwealth. He confined himself for a few moments to the record of Attorney General Swift, and the disposition he showed in reference to the investigation of the United Shoe Machinery Company. He also stated that in the event of being elected, he would see to it that all the duties enjoined by law are carried out, irrespective of whether they meet with his approval. In conclusion he said:

"Personally, I am a profound believer in the resources of New England and in the ability of our manufacturers to meet the world on any fair terms. So certain am I of that ability that for the last few years I have been investing my small savings in New England textile stocks—not much, but more than I can afford to lose.

"As a small stockholder in New England textiles, I am afraid of nothing except that Tory stand-patters will receive such public indorsement as to make the rest of the country believe that New England stands for continued extortion and privilege, and not for a revision downward, just and fair to all industries and all sections."

"New England manufacturers ought not to have what they buy artificially raised in price while compelled to sell in a free-trade market. A fair revision downward means that all sections should co-operate to prevent the tariff from being what it has long been—a basis for graft and special privilege.

"I see only one danger to New England industries, and that danger is that if New England should elect men of the stand-pat Tory type of Mr. Frothingham, insist in keeping in power Senators Crane, Lodge and other notorious stand-patters, fair-minded men of the West and South, Democrats and Progressive Republicans, would resent this attitude on the part of New England; New England would be unrepresented in the real councils of the Democratic and Progressive forces which are going to control during these next years, and there might possibly be a revision in which New England industries would suffer.

"I believe in the ability of our manufacturers to meet the world on any fair terms."

Councilman Daniel F. Forde was the next speaker. He took up the same lines of argument as were advanced by Councilman Baoyd. He went somewhat into the record of ex-Councilman McDevitt, while he was a member of the City Council, and showed by analagous inferences the benefits that had been derived, not only by Ward Four, but by Wards Five and Six, as well, as a result of his eneregetic work. He brought his remarks to a close by urging all to get out on election day and rallying to the support of McDevitt.

James F. Edwards after the applause that had been forthcoming to Councilman Forde had subsided, was almost overcome by the great shouts of enthusiasm that greeted him as he arose to speak. Mr. Edwards was just in the height of discussing the textile industry, when the occasion was graced by the presence of ex-Congressman Joseph H. O'Connell. Immediately there was a great uproar of friendly intensity, and it was some time before the handclapping and outbursts of applause, that were accorded the former congressman, had ceased.

After a short period Mr. Edwards was permitted to proceed with his speech and he was heartily applauded when he closed by urging in loud terms the election of John J. McDevitt.

Councilman Smith then stood up and pronounced a worthy encomium upon the man who was to be the next speaker.

Continuing with his introductory remarks, Councilman Smith added, "If there is one thing in which we members of the Democratic party can vaunt ourselves in, it is the fact that

LITTLE BOY FATALLY BURNED

Five Year Old Son of Mr. and Mrs. John Kennedy Died at 11 O'clo k Today

John William, the five year old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Kennedy of 75 Railroad street, was fatally burned at his home about 9 o'clock this morning. The child was playing with kerosene oil about the kitchen stove, when in some way the oil became ignited and in an instant the child was enveloped in flames from head to foot. Before the child's mother could extinguish the flames the child had been frightfully burned. Dr. Mansfield was called and did all in his power to alleviate the sufferings of the child, but it died at 11 o'clock.

LECTURE AT HALL PLACE CHURCH

The first lecture in a series of six was given at the Hall Place M. E. church, Thursday evening, by Rev. Dillon Bronson, district superintendent of the Boston district of Methodist churches on "Japan re-visited." He showed one hundred different views of places of interest in Japan, customs, habit of dress and mode of living.

As a lecturer Dr. Bronson makes a hit every time. He is clear and definite in all he says and the anecdotes and funny stories he tells of things which happened on the trip keep his audience laughing most of the time. He is not only interesting but helpful and instructive in every way. At the close of the lecture he conducted the second and third quarterly conferences.

A party of girls from the Quincy Department store got up a theatre party Wednesday evening to see Madam Sherry at the Tremont theatre, Boston. Before the theatre dinner was enjoyed at the United States hotel. In the party were Misses Lillian and Irma Moody, Helen Barry, Florence E. Holton, Helen R. Powers and Helen Duncan.

VISITATION OF RT. WOR. H. L. WHITE

Was Cause of Unusual Outpouring of Brothers. Reception Accorded Deputy Was Most Cordial Owing To the Fact That This Is His Home Lodge. Honor the Memory of Joseph L. Whiton. Visitors From Numerous Places

The meeting of Rural Masonic lodge Thursday evening was one of the largest attended in its history. Although the lodge room is a large one, it was none too large to accommodate the brothers of Rural lodge and the great number of visitors. The occasion for the unusual outpouring of brothers was the annual visitation of Rt. Wor. Hartley L. White, District Deputy Grand Master of the 26th Masonic district.

The reception accorded the Deputy was a most cordial one, from the fact that Rural lodge is his home lodge. He was accompanied by a suite of thirty past masters of lodges in the district. Rt. Wor. White was escorted to the lodge room by a committee composed of Wor. Charles L. Hammond, Wor. William C. Whitney, Wor. Charles Sampson, Bro. Alexander Falconer and Bro. Walter E. Simmons.

His suit included Wor. Joseph P. Prout, as Grand Marshal, Wor. Charles E. Monroe of Wollaston lodge as Grand Senior Warden, Wor. Gardner R. P. Baker of Orphans' Hope lodge, East Weymouth as Grand Junior Warden, Wor. Leroy C. Holbrook of Norfolk Union lodge, Randolph, as Grand Secretary and Wor. Charles G. Jordan of Delta lodge, Braintree, as Grand Treasurer. The guests on the suite were:

Wor. J. Campbell of Macedonian lodge, Milton.

Wor. W. E. Gutterson of Delta lodge, Braintree.

Wor. William A. McKean of Delta lodge, Braintree.

Wor. Edward M. Wright of Delta lodge, Braintree.

Wor. Frank H. Torrey of Orphans' Hope lodge, East Weymouth.

Wor. Warren S. Shaw of Satucket lodge, East Bridgewater.

Wor. John Adams of Satucket lodge, East Bridgewater.

Wor. Peter R. Curtis of John Cutler lodge, Abington.

Wor. William Pierce of John Cutler lodge, Abington.

Wor. Geo. W. S. Hyde of John Cutler lodge, Abington.

Wor. Charles F. Dudley of John Cutler lodge, Abington.

Wor. Charles Decreman of John Cutler lodge, Abington.

Wor. Herbert F. French of Norfolk Union lodge, Randolph.

Wor. Harry L. Thomas of Old Colony lodge, Hingham.

Wor. Edwin F. Sterling of Delta lodge, Braintree.

Rev. O. S. Abbott of Olive Branch lodge, Chester, Vt.

Wor. Harry Stanley of Puritan lodge, Abington.

Wor. C. J. Macey of Fellowship lodge, Bridgewater.

Wor. George A. Warren of St. George lodge, Brockton.

Wor. F. B. Granger of Norfolk Union lodge, Randolph.

Wor. H. P. Goodwin of Puritan lodge, Whitman.

Wor. Walter S. Pinkham of Wollaston lodge.

Wor. Royal Allen of Puritan lodge, Whitman.

Wor. W. W. Brooks of St. John's lodge, Providence, R. I.

Wor. W. E. Burnham of Providence, R. I., Past Eminent Grand Commander of the Knights Templar of Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

As the Rt. Wor. and his suite entered the lodge room they were received with due honors by Wor. Albert W. Parker and officers of Rural lodge.

The work of the evening was the third degree which was exemplified in an exceptionally fine manner.

After the work the Rt. Wor. spoke briefly. He thanked the officers and members for the cordialty which had been accorded him during his two years as deputy of this district. He also spoke of the recent death of one of the oldest past masters of Rural lodge, Joseph L. Whiton. He was a man of exceptional qualities and one who lived and acted the principals of Masonry. Out of respect to his memory the brethren stood with bowed heads while the quartet sang "One Day Nearer My Home."

At the close of the meeting, Bro. Furnald served a supper after which there were brief addresses by Deputy White and several members of his suite.

The visitors' book showed Brothers from Newport, Vt., Riverside, R. I., Abington, East Greenwich, R. I., Somerville, West Medway, Cambridge, Boston, Lynn, Taunton, Trenton, N. J., Scituate, Milford, Barre, Vt., Weymouth, Aberdeen, Scotland, Fairhaven, Vt., Norwood, Danvas, Baltimore, Md., Portsmouth, N. H., Rochester, N. H., New York city, Vicksburg, Va., Rochester, N. HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Although $100,000 is paid without a murmur to get into the Senate, some cross grained people kick at 35 cents a dozen for eggs.

The Emperor of China's proclamation to his rebellious subjects is couched in eloquent language very much much like a laundry check.

Mr. Taft was fed on buffalo steak in South Dakota, and if Mrs. Taft would only get up these novelties for him at home, perhaps he would be content to settle down in the White house.

More than half the Yale foot ball team are disabled, but if the college authorities do not arbitrarily suggest that the boys should do a little studying, they may yet be able to line up against Harvard.

Some of our exchanges demand an extra session of Congress to begin Nov. 1, but we are asking whether the Congressmen can't be locked up so they can't get back to Washington at the usual time.

Clarence Stanley is to walk from Boston to San Francisco to illustrate the principles of the Boy Scout movement. But we have several hundred thousand Man Scouts in this country who have learned that freight car transportation is easier.

Thirteen hundred pupils are able to leave the Brockton High school in 92 seconds, although this, it may be explained, is not under stress of fire or other excitement but as a drill. Even in an emergency the training received in this way would count strongly.—Brockton Enterprise.

That is a great record and one of which to feel proud. We are pleased to say that our own schools rank high in the same particular.

One thing is sure, if Councilman Leslie is elected and is in any way instrumental in furthering the passage of a redistricting bill for this Congressional district he will have done something that will prove greatly beneficial to this section.

As he says: "In the past, Quincy has been the tail of the tenth congressional district. This year there is a bill to be reported to the House of Representatives for redistricting the congressional districts. I hope to see Quincy brought into one taking in the whole or a part of Norfolk county. In this manner we might secure a congressman from our section.

Here's hoping that he, or anyone else who might go to the House will bear Quincy in mind when this important measure is considered.

GOOD LAW GONE WRONG.

The Ledger commented Wednesday on the new law relative to persons committed to jail for non-support of their families, under which the keeper of the jail was supposed to retain fifty cents a day from the proceeds of the labor of the prisoner, which was to be forwarded to the family of the prisoner through the probation officer.

The law does not seem to be working out as intended, however, for it is understood that while several have been committed to jail from the Quincy court, under this law, not one cent has as yet been received by the probation officer for the family of the party.

Section 1 of the law provides in brief that any husband who without just cause deserts his wife and minor children, and who unreasonably neglects to provide for their support, so that they are in danger of becoming a burden upon the public, etc., shall be punished by a fine not exceeding $200 or by imprisonment for not more than one year or by both.

Under section 2, it is provided, in the discretion of the court, all fines in whole or in part may be ordered paid to the probation officers, to be paid by him to the wife or minor children, or in whole or in part to the state board of charity, if the minor child has been committed to its care. Under Section 8 of this law it is provided that the superintendent, master or keeper, as the case may be, of any reformatory in which the person is confined, shall pay over to the probation officer at the end of each week a sum equal to fifty cents for each day's hard labor perormed by the person so confined, which sum the probation officer shall pay over to the wife or minor children.

So far so good, but now comes the rub. As stated above several have been committed from the Quincy court under this law but as yet nothing has been received from the superintendent of the county jail at Dedham.

It is reported that when this fact was brought to the attention of the superintendent that he stated that he had no funds, in his possession, from which the fifty cents a day could be taken, or no appropriation to which it could be charged and for this reason the money had not been forthcoming.

It would seem therefor that while the law was a good one, and one which would have done a lot of good it is practically ineffective for the reason that the legislature in its wisdom neglected to perfect the act by providing where such funds should come from. In the mean time the families of such persons confined at Dedham jail are in destitute circumstances and very much in need of the amount of fifty cents they should receive as was the intent of the framers of the law.

AVIATION MEETS.

The Outing Magazine has come to these conclusions: "We have had enough aviation meets. That conclusion is somewhat unwillingly reached as a result of the affair in Chicago. There two men paid the ultimate price of their daring in an effort to satisfy the crowds, clamorous demands for sensations."

That is correct in a way—there have been enough aviation meets of one kind, and to spare. However the meets need not be stopped in which the aviators fly carefully and illustrate the powers of airships to do work that is sufficiently surprising, of an educational value and not dangerous. The meets that demand tricky flights that are bound in a considerable percentage of instances to lead to the deaths of the flyers, have gone on long enough.

Permits, therefore, should not be issued to any management that isn't satisfied in its contract to call only for flights of a straightaway and sane character in sane weather.

FIGHTING IN MEXICO

Government Is Mute Concerning the Actual Conditions

Mexico City, Oct. 27.—A cabinet meeting was called to discuss further steps against the Zapatistas. The presence of strong garrisons at Xochimilco and Talpan has reassured the public. Governor Rivero of the federal district believes that the main body of rebels is making its way toward the state of Morelos.

The number killed and wounded in the fight near Milpa Alta will never be known. The government refuses information or minimizes what is permitted to become known. The best estimate from other sources is from 70 to 100 casualties, about three-fourths being among federals.

LUND-BILLINGS NUPTIALS

Married In Christ Church Thursday Evening

AT HOME JAN. 1ST

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Sullivan announce the marriage of their daughter Mabell Frances Billings and Ira Horatio Lund at Christ church, on Thursday evening, the Rev. Richard E. Armstrong performing the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of the late Alfred E. Billings of Dedham and great granddaughter of the late Sheriff Rufus C. Wood of Dedham. Her wedding gown was of silk embroidered net over white silk and she wore a veil fastened in a coronet with pearls and orange blossoms.

The bride was given in marriage by her mother and attended by Mrs. Norman E. Chaplin of Quincy, who acted as matron of honor. Frank Sampson of Prides Crossing, Beverly, assisted the groom as best man.

After an extensive honeymoon through Maine and Canada, Mr. and Mrs. Lund will reside at 53 Coddington street where they will be at home to her friends after January first.

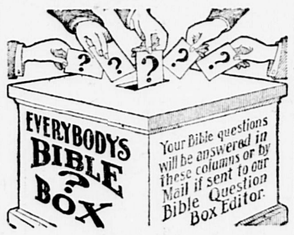
NOVEMBER MAGAZINES.

LIPPINCOTTS. This magazine is worth watching these days—worth watching and worth reading its alluring array of fiction, special articles and other attractive features. The novelette "The Island," is by Augusta Kortrecht, who has one book—"A Dixie Rose"—and a number of clever short stories to her credit. "The Island" has an original setting and original characters—in fact, there doesn't seem to be anything about it that isn't original. Among the short stories, "The Amazon," by Julian Hawthorne, stands out prominently. This is a unique, not to say fantastic, tale of adventure in South America. John Reed Scott, who wrote "In Her Own Right." "The Colonel of the Red Huzzars," etc., contributes "The Affair of the Protocoe," a strong story of the Secret Service. Other notable short-stories are "Grimshaw's Apology," by Ellis O. Jones; "Why I Hate My Best Friend," by Mrs. Raymond Patterson; "The Four-Flushers," by Stanley Olmsted; "Homespun Romance," by Sarah Peary, and "The Token," by Edith Willett Smith. The "Short-Story Masterpiece" for November is Prosper Merimee's "The Taking of the Redoubt." As usual, there is an introduction by the editor.

NATIONAL MAGAZINE. You just feel as if you were "going out to Old Aunt Mary's" when you pick up the November National magazine. It embodies the sentiment of Thanksgiving hospitality and affection throughout from the very cover design, whereon the good old New England farmer, with fluttering "comforter" about his neck, is trudging joyously homeward with the indispensable turkey for the "Thanksgiving dinner." The National is a feast in itself, for every page seems to sparkle with characteristic up-to-date-iveness. Although "everybody is away" at Washington, the ubipuitous Joe Chapple finds plenty of interesting things to chronicle of November doings at the Capital city, even if the nation's solons are away, looking after their fences and eating of "talking turkey" for the nonce. An appreciative tribute to the Californian poet and scientist, Charles Keeler, is contributed by George Wharton James. A frank and unbiased judgment of "The American Theatre" is passed by Mr. Henry Kolker, the rising young star who is considered the logical successor of the late Richard Mansfield. The editor tells about "Making Laws in Holland," being an account of his late observations in the land of dunes, dykes and polders. The fiction for the month seems to have been selected with a special eye for the Thanksgiving season.

☞There is one man who has recently seen the value of printer's ink. He made his first venture in a Ledger ad the first of the week, starting in modestly, expending fifty cents, and claims to have received $6. worth of business from that little ad and possibly more. He renewed the ad and by this time is probably rushed to death with business. Moral avertise.

In making your purchases kindly mention Ledger ads.



Q.—Considering Paul's positive claim to be an Apostle, specially called of God, who saw Jesus, and that the choice of Matthias to be the successor of Judas, by the Eleven, was before the descent of the Holy Spirit on the day of Pentecost, are we to consider him (Paul) as the successor of Judas, remembering that there were to be but twelve Apostles, and that Matthias was not afterward heard of?

Answer.—It is evident from the Scriptural account that the Eleven were acting without due warrant and authority in selecting Matthias to be the successor of Judas. They had been instructed to tarry at Jerusalem and wait for enduement from on high by the holy Spirit at Pentecost, and it was during this waiting period and before they were endued with power, that they mistakenly cast lots and chose Matthias. The Lord did not reprove them for this undesigned meddling with His arrangement, but simply ignored their choice, and in His own time brought forward the Apostle Paul, declaring, "He is a chosen vessel unto Me." There can be no question but that the Lord arranged that there should be but twelve Apostles, and in evidence of this note how the Lord particularly chose those twelve, calling to mind the prominence of the number twelve in sacred things pertaining to this election; and we cap the climax by pointing to the symbolical picture of the glorified Church furnished in Revelation xxi. In the picture the statement is most distinctly made that the twelve foundations of the City are precious, and in them were written the names of the "twelve Apostles of the Lamb."—no more, no less.

DOINGS ON THE STAGE OF

LOCAL AND BOSTON THEATRES

THE BLUE BIRD.

Probably the most brilliant opening in several seasons was witnessed Tuesday evening when Maeterlinck's exquisite fantasy, "The Blue Bird" was presented for the first time in Boston, at the Shubert Theatre. The play received a tremendous ovation because of its elaborate spectacular effect, its beautiful scenes, but most of all because of the wonderful charm and humor of its lines. In its appeal to the tenderest in the human heart, the stage offers no play that rivals his spectacular drama of the pursuit of two children after the blue bird of happiness. To those already familiar with the play in book form, the New Theatre production will bring the exquisite atmosphere which is evolved out of the beautiful fairy-tale settings,—probably the most wonderful ever erected within a theatre. To those unfamiliar with the delightful drama of the adventure of the children Mytyl and Tyltyl there is the quaint humor of Milk, Water, Fire, Bread, Sugar, the Cat and the Dog, all turned into semi-human beings. Besides, there are the beautiful spectacles; the surprise, and the profoundly sympathetic philosophy. All the effects are enhanced by appropriate music from Debussy, Bizet and Massenet. Then, too, there are a series of unusually impressive dances woven into the dramatic texture making it more colorful than even the poet conceived. "The Blue Bird" is a lovely vision in dramatic form,—a fairy story about children, written for grown-ups. Its appeal first and foremost is to the mature mind. But since its philosophy is expressed in the adventures of children in a fairy realm, it addresses itself almost as vividly to childish imagination. It is a poet's excursion into glittering fields of pure fancy to bring home a bit of comforting philosophy. The wonderful transformations and effects in the piece have not been made for their spectacular appeal, but rather for the rare interpretation they give the author's lines. In all, ten scenes will be presented and about one hundred players, one third of whom are children.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE.

After a year's successful run at the Wallack's Theatre in New York, "Pomander Walk," Louis N. Parker's delightful comedy opens at the Plymouth Theatre, Boston, Monday evening for the first time in this city. The play scored one of the biggest hits in New York last season and there is every reason to believe that it will achieve as great if not a greater success in Boston. "Pomander Walk" is a cheerful, refreshing and delightful little comedy, that will surely please you, from first to last, or nothing on earth can please you. It is one of those plays that sends you out of the theatre thinking that, after all, life is worth living. It is an exquisite play full of quaint charm and humor. In fact it is almost impossible to convey to the reader an adequate idea of the magnetic charm of this delightful comedy. Pomander Walk is a crescent of six houses, built in the reign of Queen Anne, and facing a section of a canal leading into the Thames on the outskirts of London. It was there in the year 1805 that some very remarkable things happened, much to the amazement, consternation and ultimate joy of the dozen odd people who dwelt there at the time. It is this place and these people that concern Mr. Parker in his charming play. It is distinctly new in comedy and carries with it an abundance of personal charm. It routs you out of the busy today and sets you adream. If you would dwell in the land of happiness then see this play.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

Both as a play and as a novel, "The Right of Way" has gained no little celebrity. It is dramatized by Eugene Presbrey from Sir. Gilbert Parker's story of the same title, and it will be given by Mr. Craig at the Castle Square next week for the first time on that stage. The plot, as many will remember, deals with no little skill, with the progress of a man of talent from evil to right living. He is a brilliant lawyer, and through his folly he has involved himself and his family in misery and ruin. Going west he meets with an accident that distroys his memory, and for several years he leads a life of rural simplicity with the companionship of a devoted friend. The outcome of this situation is cleverly planned by the author, love and honor, happiness and moral responsibility being frequently at conflict with one another. These scenes have been transplanted by Mr. Presbery ingeniously to the stage from Sir Gilbert Parker's novel. He has made the best possible use of the incidents and characters, and in every scene and act it gives the frank appeal of plausible and life-like melodrama. The cast of "The Right of Way" is a long one, and the leading roles will be played by Mr. Craig and Miss Young, with the other roles carefully apportioned among the several members of the company.

MAJESTIC THEATRE.

The last week of Charles Klein's dramatic thunderbolt, which has aroused more discussion than any play of recent years, "The Gamblers" will begin at the Majestic Theatre Monday evening. The original engagement of "The Gamblers" at the Majestic Theatre was for six weeks, but next week will be the fifth and last because Mr. Klein, who looks with great favor upon Boston as a producing centre, having launched here such successes as "The Lion and the Mouse" and "The Third Degree" was anxious not only for a Boston and New England verdict on his latest play, "The Outsiders," which he has completed since living in that city the past few weeks, but wished to have it played by the same excellent company which is presenting "The Gamblers."

Charles Klein's play on finance and fashion and the adroit manner in which he has handled his theme, stamps him as a leader of our native playwrights, and his latest efforts equal in popularity his former triumphs in "The Music Master," "The Third Degree" and "The Lion and the Mouse." "The Gamblers" is not only the best indictment of get-rich-quick methods in Wall Street, that the stage has ever had, but is also a persuasive human document. It ranks far ahead of other business plays because it deals not only with figures and the ticker tape, but with human motives.

CORONATION PICTURES.

There will be nothing inauspicious in the 18th week of the Coronation pictures at Tremont Temple, which begins on Monday. Their record has been a remarkable one, but no less remarkable has been the pleasure the public has taken in them, and the manner in which they have responded to their appeal. These pictures are no ordinary motion picture display. They are the very latest outcome of science, and they show all the leading events, processions, ceremonies, naval reviews, etc., in colors and in motion exactly as in actual life. Many scientists have proclaimed them to be one of the wonders of the twentieth century. They will be given twice a day at Tremont Temple, with orchestral music, and a descriptive lecture by Eugene Farnsworth.

B. F. KEITH'S.

The genuine novelty of the theatrical season is promised for next week at B. F. Keith's Theatre, when Boston will get its first glimpse of Max Hart's new production, "Everybody." Like "Everywoman," its predecessor on the legitimate stage, "Everybody" is a modern morality play, all the characters in the story being symbolical, and while the locale is laid in New York City, it is applicable to a peculiar phase of American life found in every city, and is of intense human interest. In short, "Everybody" is nothing less than a complete dramatic production cut down and condensed into a twenty-minute playlet, the cast being one of the strongest and best balanced ever seen in vaudeville, and the production being unusually magnificent. Aside from "Everybody" the bill will have a wealth of novelties. Earl Reynolds and Nellie Donegan, the roller skating experts who have just completed a highly successful engagement at the New York Winter Garden, will appear in an original skatorial and terpsichorean novelty; Bixley Lerner, "The Caruso and Melba of Vaudeville," will appear in their musical comedy; Rose Royal and her beautiful horse will offer a splendid equestrian number, and other big features are Ed Morton, the singing comedian; O'Brien, Havel & Kyle, in their comedy dancing knockout; Dare Brothers, muscular marvels; and others yet to be announced.

BOSTON THEATRE.

With all of the opulent splendor of the Orient, the magnificence of Rome in her most glorious days, and the beauty of tropical settings, "Ben-Hur" will return to the Boston Theatre, Boston, on Thursday evening, November 2nd, for a limited engagement. Klaw & Erlanger, the owners of this most wonderful piece of theatrical property, have this season given it a production which in magnitude and spectacular grandeur will outdistance any production ever before seen on the American stage or perhaps in the theatres of any country. It had been the intention of Klaw & Erlanger to make this beautiful revival of General Lew Wallace's classic at their home playhouse, the New Amsterdam Theatre, New York, but the great success of the musical comedy, "The Pink Lady" at that house where it is now in its ninth month, makes it inadvisable to transfer that attraction and Boston will thus have the first opportunity to look upon the exquisite settings and the gorgeous pageantry of the new production. The magnitude of the scenic settings is of such a nature there are only four theatres in America with stages large enough on which to place the equipment. These theatres are the historic Boston Theatre in Boston, the New Amsterdam Theatre in New York, the beautiful Forrest Theatre in Philadelphia, and the great Auditorium Theatre in Chicago.

In selecting the cast to present the Wallace-Young drama in the midst of this superb environment Klaw & Erlanger have chosen Richard Buhler for the title part. Mr. Buhler is a young actor of great physical beauty, his type ideally fitting the role of the young Hur. William J. Kelley, one of the most popular of the New York leading men will be the Messala in the fine cast, and Oscar Adye, one of England's best actors, comes from London to enact Simonides. Other important players are Mark Price, Emmett C. King, J. Arthur Young, Marion Barney, who will be the Iras; Cecil Kern, Lillian Lawrence, an old time Boston favorite; Rose Beaudet and Alice Haynes. A chorus of more than 150 trained singers will render the special music written for "Ben-Hur" by Edgar Stillman Kelley, and an army of 400 trained supernumeraries will fill the scenes where crowds are necessary.

The engagement of "Ben-Hur" at the Boston Theatre is a limited one During the season matinees will be given on Wednesdays and Saturdays each week.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.

There are many remedies for that most common of all human ailments, the blues, but the best and most infallible cure is laughter. This ingredient in large and unmistakable doses is to be found in the latest three-act musical comedy, "Doctor Beans From Boston," presented by the famous Smart Set Company of colored players, dancers, comedians and funmakers; which will be next week's attraction at the Grand Opera House Boston. S. H. Dudley, recognized as the foremost mirth-provoker of his race, is the star of the troupe, and he is supported by a large company of talented people, including Mme Flower, "The Bronze Melba," and a capable chorus. The scenes are laid at Buckroe Beach, Va., and the atmosphere veritably breathes the humor and life of the sunny South. Mr. Dudley appears as a Darky who in need of ready cash, poses as a wonderful physician. He enlists the services of a pal, who is also down on his luck, and by borrowing sufficient money on a mule they purchase a drug store at Buckroe Beach, and for a time succeed in deluding people with their skill as healers of all sorts of diseases, but in the end their perfidy is discovered, and the many complications that ensue form the basis of an enjoyable and side-splitting entertainment.

SUNDAY CONCERTS.

The Sunday evening concerts at the Castle Square have started off with every promise of continued success. For the fourth one to be given next Sunday evening a program of unusual varied excellence has been prepared high class in every respect. It will appeal to all who are seeking refined diversion and it will include several specialty artists as well as a variety of new and unique motion pictures The entertainment continues two hours and a half, the overture beginning promptly at 8 o'clock.

MAXWELL CARS WIN

Defeat Seventeen Other Teams In the Glidden Auto Tour

Jacksonville, Fla., Oct. 27.—Three Maxwell cars composing the Tarrytown, N. Y., team won the Glidden tour which ended in Jacksonville, defeating seventeen other teams of three cars each in the most strenuous Glidden tour which has ever been conducted.

Driving like mad over a mere trail through the Florida pine forests and under a speed schedule which was supposed to be impossible, the Tarrytown trio made a whirlwind finish and arrived early enough to retain the only perfect score in the contest. This they have maintained persistently since leaving New York on Oct. 14.

SAYS EDNA GOODRICH FORGED HIS NAME

Charges by Nat Goodwin Create a Real Sensation

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 27.—The document filed by Nat Goodwin, in which he charges that Edna Goodrich forged a telegram to get the marriage portion previously considered in an agreement which the actor now wants set aside, and his statement to the effect that he had been victimized, created a real sensation, especially in theatrical circles.

Suit has been filed by Goodwin to invalidate the deed of trust by which he provided $500,000 in property, the income from which was to be enjoyed jointly by him and Edna Goodrich. The actor's attorneys claim that the original contract by which the actress promised to marry was illegal and void and that the plaintiff was not bound by the contract when the deed was finally executed.

"SI PERKINS" REPORTS DANCE

Something Doing Every Minute At Mr. Alpha's Hall

SLICKEST PARTY EVER

Thursday nite after the farmer boys had got the cows bedded down and the chores done and the gals had the dishes washed and put away, they put on their Sunday togs and went to Mr. Alphas hall where Manet encampment was having a barn show. Some of the boys had found time between milkings to decorate the hall sum, with corn stalks and pumpkins so that it looked real pretty. It was the slickest party the Odd Fellow boys have ever held in this township. It seemed as thou most everybody was there and the way they capered round the hall just showed they were having a good time.

Sum of the old folks were also there and they galavanted 'bout like a lot of young colts. Sime of the boys wore their overhals and some their store close and biled shirts. Farmer Goodridge, who said that he had not had a real barber shave since he got hitched, brought along some doughnuts and milk, in case he should get hungry before it was time to go home. The top of Ed. Carleton's head and an extra polish and shown like a new moon, so he stayed down stairs to look after the wraps and blankets.

Some of the gals wore sun bonnets, but these did not hide their bright eyes and rosy lips, which some of the boys found on the way home, and it would not be surprising if the parson got several jobs out of the dance.

There was rules for the boys and gals but when the young heffers get out it takes more than rules to hold them.

Farmer Barron's boy Charlie was what they called derecter and he felt prouder than a peacock and ordered the band round just so he owned them. Bill Wilson the leader of the band, looked real provoked several times, as Charlie holered for him to play, but he held his temper first rate and nothing hapened thou it was plane to see that if Charlie Harwood, our lion hearted constable had not been present, Billy would have sassed back.

The Barron boy had lots of help to keep things going rite, Char Woods, Bill Richards, Wal. Walker, Geo. Ela, Charlie Jones, Frank Foster, Herb. Gearware, Nate Emanuel and Father Badger. My didn't they feel 'portant.

Of course there were some of the city folks present, but while they were welkum they did not have much to say but lafed considerable and seemed to be having a real good time.

It was real fun to see how some of the boys shined up to the gals kind of bashful like and some of them got real stravagant when they took two gals to the fodder in the hall down stairs.

It was 8 o'clock when the tooters tooted their horns and Charlie Barron hollered out to begin tu dance. Most everybody got up and made a try, but it was noticable that some of the boys got their feet tangled up somehow and it was real laghable. It was all pretty lively at the start, but by and by they got kind of tired like and some of them yawned considerable, as though they would like to go to bed and get a little sleep before milking time. Some of the fellas in store close, acted kind of awkward like and as though would be glad when they could get them off and put on jumpers and overhals, which was much more comfortable.

The gals were all prinked up in great shape. Some had their hair in papers all day so to have nice curls like the borten ones. Then they put a lot of ribbon on and tied it up and some looked as though they wanted to be kissed dredfully. Guess some were on the way home.

Some of the boys had made ice cream and the girls had fried doughnuts and along bout 10 clock the band stopped playing while everyboty et the doughnuts and cream.

Bout 12 clock everybody seemed kind of tired like and as the man came round and begun to blow out the lamps it was time to go hum which everybody did. All said they had a good time and would come again.

ELECTED TO THE BOARD

Em. Sir A. W. Fay Honored By Grand Commandery

CHARTER GRANTED

Em. Sir. Albert W. Fay of Wollaston, was signally honored at the session of the Grand Commandery of Massachusetts and Rhode Island at the Masonic Temple, Boston, Tuesday, by being elected as one of the board of Grand Lecturers. Another item of interest to Quincy at the session was the granting of a charter to Quincy Commandery No. 47, U. D.

EM. SIR. ALBERT W. FAY
Grand Lecturer

Quincy commandery was instituted last April, since which time it has been working under a special dispensation of the Grand Commandery. This dispensation has now expired and as stated above the commandery has been granted its charter.

The question of jurisdiction has not been settled as yet, but will be determined by a special committee to whom it has been referred.

Quincy commandery will probably receive its charter before the next regular conclave in November, and it is anticipated that it will be delivered to the commandery in person by Em. Sir. Lafayette G. Blair, the new Grand Commander, elected at Thursday's session.

IMPRESSIVE CEREMONY

Funeral of Joseph L. Whiton Held Thursday Afternoon

BURIED AT MT. WOLLASTON

The funeral of Joseph L. Whiton, long a resident of Quincy, was held Thursday afternoon from his late residence on Washington street Quincy Point. The services were largely attended, many of the Boston dry goods trade, with which he had been actively associated for so many years were present, as well as delegations from the Masonic bodies with which he was affiliated, and numerous neighbors and friends. The flowers were many and beautiful. The services were conducted by Rev. Daniel Monroe Wilson, a former pastor of the First church. Rev. Mr. Wilson paid tribute to the worth of him who had gone before. He spoke of his upright character and of the many acts of charity which he was continually doing in a quiet and unassuming way. He was indeed a man who would be greatly missed.

During the services the Temple quartette sang, "We shall meet beyond the river" "I am a Pilgrim" and "Gathering Home."

The burial was in the family lot at Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

WAS BORN IN QUINCY.

Reports from Hampstead, N. H., announce the death of Charles H. Grover, aged 68, who claims Quincy as his birthplace.

Mr. Grover removed to Hampstead when a child. At the outbreak of the Civil War he enlisted in Co. E 11th New Hampshire Volunteers, and was detailed as provost guard at the headquarters of General Potter. He took a prominent part in the affairs of his late home.

SUBMARINE AT PORTLAND.

Following the trial trip about which so much has been written, the submarine Sturgeon arrived at Portland, Me., in charge of a builders' crew of six men. She took on fuel and will leave today for Portsmouth on the way to the yards at Quincy.

DEMOCRATIC RALLY

the most able, brightest and most eloquent men are enrolled in the Democratic ranks, and I esteem it an especial privilege to be able to present to you, a man who has created a most enviable national reputation, Hon. Joseph F. O'Connell."

Again there was great shouting and as the ex-congressman arose, his face was seen to assume a most beamy countenance and it could readily be discerned that he was thoroughly appreciative of the demonstration displayed in his behalf. In opening his remarks Mr. O'Connell, thanked those present sincerely for the cordial reception they had rejuited him and he thanked them all for the courtesy. Continuing he said in part:

"I have always been gratified in coming into an audience composed of West Quincy voters and I have always entertained a deep affection toward the voters of Ward Four, who so ably supported me in my previous campaigns, and whose loyalty to my cause was so noticeable, that they felt constrained to stand by me even when the returns from other sections, of the tenth district were making it evident that I was going down to defeat."

"I shall never forget that loyalty and in one particular instance I am especially grateful, and that gratitude I have recorded abidingly in the man who is now your candidate for the legislature." (Loud applause.)

The ex-congressman said that had two Democratic representatives been elected last year, that Henry Cabot Lodge would not have been elected United States Senator. He said that his election was won by two votes, and that the Quincy representatives, Messrs. Thomas and Langelier, were responsible for his election. He also spoke of other important matters of legislation that had been killed by the Quincy representatives.

He had just emerged into a discussion of the protective tariff when in came Hon. John F. Fitzgerald, mayor of Boston. The "little general" was given a great reception as he ascended the platform, yet the attention was well centered on Mr. O'Connell, who urged the election of the entire Democratic ticket and predicted an overwhelming victory for Governor Foss. He was given three cheers when he had finished speaking.

The mayor of Boston was next introduced. It is needless to say that he received a grand reception, the most conspicuous feature of which was the asking of him to render "Sweet Adeline." The Mayor was unable to respond owing to an engagement which he had billed in Hyde Park. Yet he was equal to the request, however, and started his speech in a jocosing vein, while paying a tribute to Mayor William T. Shea, whose only fault he declared to be his failure to get married. Mayor Fitzgerald referred to a celebration in St. Mary's hall, at which he was present a short time ago and at which the marriage question was put up to the local Mayor. He said that he had keenly watched his actions but felt sorry that Mayor Shea had bolted the desires that were expressed on that evening.

The mayor went at length into the great issues of the campaign. He took up the charges being made by the Republicans, and showed where Foss had more interests, from a business standpoint at stake, than any man who was aspiring for office on the Republican ticket. He praised the many present for the enthusiasm they had manifested, and said that when he ran for president, he would take fourteen special trains of West Quincy voters to act as his body guard.

He dwelt in full on the tariff issues as advanced by ex-Congressman O'Connell. He read some statistics from a banking journal and drew numerous instances showing the rate of dividends now in excess of those declared a short time ago. In so doing he dispelled the arguments advanced by some Republicans, stating that conditions would be worse if Governor Foss were elected. He took his audience in his speech through different parts of the world and made many comparisons on the conditions which existed in Europe and those which were prevalent in this country. Mr. Fitzgerld scored candidate Frothingham for his record while in the legislature on Beacon Hill. Mr. Fitzgerald read the record of Mr. Frothingham in full and gave the reasons why he himself defeated him for Mayor of Boston.

He took the Republican candidate to task for voting against a tuberculosis hospital, free text books in the public schools, a bill to compel railways to equip their cars with lifting jacks and showed where Mr. Frothingham had killed some bills by his own single vote. He showed also his affiliations with the corporation interests and said that there was not a man in the Massachusetts legislature who had a worse record than Lieutenant Governor Frothingham.

He then spoke of the different sweeping victories of Governor Foss and predicted that he would be overwhelmingly elected on November 7th. He was widely applauded when he had finished speaking.

The next speaker was Michael T. Sullivan, candidate for representative from Wards One, two and three on the Democratic ticket. He took up the same lines of argument as were advanced by the preceeding speakers and spoke on the methods that should be adopted in enabling the Democrats to win. He referred to his opponent several times, and paid high tribute to Candidate McDevitt and said that there was no doubt, judging from the sentiment that was around, but that he would be safely elected over the Ward Five aspirant.

Ex-Representative Thomas F. Fay, of Boston, who had been at a rally at Weymouth, dropped in and spoke in the interest of the State ticket. He highly commended Rednor P. Coombs Senatorial candidate, with whom he had served in the House.

ROOSTER COAL BRIQUETS

THE NEW ANTHRACITE COAL

ROOSTER BRIQUETS are made from the choicest small Scranton Anthracite coal mined in Pennsylvania, called TWENTIETH CENTURY CHESTNUT size

Just consider for a moment what we offer here in this 20th CENTURY CHESTNUT.

First, 2000 pounds of clean, pure, hard coal without a rock or a piece of slate.

Second, fuel that cannot form into a clinker, by any known method of firing, consequently the linings and grates last indefinitely.

Third, they are made in nut size, being equally convenient for furnace heaters, open grates, as well as stoves; therefore, only one storage bin is necessary.

Fourth, and very IMPORTANT, the quality of this fuel is the SAME EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR, not a good ton today, and nothing like it the next time, in other words, when you once learn how to regulate your drafts you have nothing more to learn about burning BRIQUETS.

Filth, no more sifting ashes these Briquets burn out clean. They require less wood to kindle.

Be sure to ask for "ROOSTERS" and get the Briquet made from pure Scranton Coal, from the largest Briquet plant in the country. They are better than coal, will last as long and cost less.

SYNOPSIS

Anna Granger, devoted mother of two small children, discovers that her husband is a weak character and that he has lied to her about a woman.

Posing as Miss Dale, she becomes stenographer to Burton Temple, through whose evidence her husband has been imprisoned. She thinks Temple is the guilty man and is acting the spy to clear her husband's name for his sake and that of her children.

Anna discovers that Temple was one of her girlhood's ideals. Thinking her a single woman, he tells her her husband was a liar and perjurer.

Temple has detectives on the trail of Brady, an accomplice of Granger, looking for evidence. Anna is searching for evidence against Temple, who becomes interested in her.

A bitter mood, however, could never endure long with Burton Temple. The boy in him would never be downed. He crossed to his pipe rack, extracted his favorite meerschaum and was soon leaning back luxuriously in his chair while Craven scratched away with his goose quill.

"You know, Craven," he said, "there's no use crossing a bridge till you come to it, and, somehow, I think my luck's beginning to turn. I've an odd idea that my new secretary is responsible. She infuses me with that indomitable quality called 'hope.'"

"She's a capable woman," agreed Craven grudgingly. "You'll miss her common sense and sane, businesslike ways when Miss Graham returns."

"Eh?" asked Temple, coming back from his space staring with a start. Then he laughed infectiously. "Oh, yes, I shall miss her common sense and businesslike ways"—puff, puff, puff, from his pipe. "Never married, did you, Craven?"

"Still sane, thanks," contemptuously, while the goose quill ran a race with the pipe puffs and outdistanced them.

"Pair of old fools, you and I"—puff, puff. "You know, Craven, that girl has a delicious voice. If she sang it would be a mezzo."

Craven looked up over his glasses in disgust. "What in thunder are you driving at?" he cried.

"Driving at?" laughed Temple. "I hope I'm driving at happiness. Craven, there's one thing I'll tell you straight. If this case turns out right and my honor's vindicated I'm going to marry, provided, of course, she will have me," he added tenderly.

Some few weeks earlier the grim lawyer would have stared, eyes and mouth wide open, at such an announcement. Some few weeks earlier he would have scoffed at the notion of such a thing coming to pass, and he would have demonstrated, reasonably enough, that it was impossible for Burton Temple, with his keen knowledge of the world, of the innumerable vanities and whims of womankind, ever to go the way of all flesh.

But the problem, like the puzzle of the Eleatic philosophers, had solved itself. "Achilles cannot catch the tortoise," but he does. It was impossible for Burton Temple to fall in love, but he had. So Craven only shook his head sadly and commiseratingly.

"Are you ready to dictate your letters, Mr. Temple?" Poising lightly near the threshold, a delicate uplift on her lovely brows, the lady of his visions waited. Craven frowned. Temple smiled. Craven left the room, and Temple rose.

"Letters," said he. "Oh, no, thank fortune, there are no pressing letters to dictate this afternoon; we can put them off till tomorrow."

"No?" said Anna quizzically. She bowed slightly and was retreating when Temple said in that humble, mesmeric way of his:

"I never knew before, Miss Dale, that you sang. I heard you in the music room a little while ago. How it would please my mother!"

It had been merely a simple little lullaby, full of pretty sarsenet chidings to a wakeful child, a favorite lullaby of her children. At the moment when she sang it she had felt the need of it somehow.

"Oh, I've no drawing room accomplishments," laughed she. "I had no early training. At home I used to mend the house linen and tie down the jellies." She caught her under coral lip with bewitching sedateness.

"Your little song gave me very real pleasure nevertheless," said he, smiling. "It had a bit of removed content about it, such as might have belonged to the enchanted palaces we were speaking about the other day. Remember? Sit down, won't you, and talk to me a little? I'm lonely."

Instead of sitting down Anna reached out her hands seductively to Cato, who came and pushed his big, honest nose confidingly into them.

"I dare say," smiled she apologetically, "these enchanted castles of ours were rather vague things wrapped in a good deal of rosate haze and of an architecture that could scarcely have been reduced to ground plans and elevations. This is a very practical age, you know, Mr. Temple."

"I know," said he, watching her with grave eyes. "Still, I'd like to hear a little about—about the prince of your enchanted palace. We hadn't got to that, you see. What must your ideal man be like, Miss Dale? Do sit down!"

"My ideal man!" echoed Anna, with never so faint a touch of surprise. Then, yielding to a mood of recklessness, she sank into a low ottoman and looked straight out before her. "Well, he must be like a buoy at sea, firmly anchored to the bottom, but taking the surface as he finds; swaying with waves, not braced against them and only seeming to drift. You understand? Never floating with the current, anchored. How's that?" she answered, with a fleeting dimple.

"That's good," he said earnestly, watching the slim, firm hands clasped round the woman's knees.

"And the princess of your enchanted palace, Mr. Temple? What must your ideal princess be?" Still she looked out dreamily before her.

"I think," said he slowly, "your definition of the prince would fit in with mine of the princess. A little lighter dancing on the surface, perhaps, a little less anchor rope, but pretty much the same."

"I thank you for my sex," she murmured softly, with lovely, melting eyes. "There does seem to be a good deal of the vixen about us often," she went on, "but one thing is sure, the man who calls for the ideal in a woman may be disappointed; but, at least, he'll get more than had been in her before. His calling for the ideal will create it. The woman will try to become what he thinks she is."

"Precisely," nodded Temple, "and I suppose that is why so many marriages fail—the man doesn't call for the best?"

"His business takes him in hand, that's all," commented Anna lightly. "It's the old truism about man and woman, I daresay. 'Her heart is a home, and his but an inn.' They come that way into the world, you know—the women, with the husband already in their hearts. Sometimes, in appearance, they are unfaithful to him, marrying some one else, but"—

"I think it's like that with some men, too," said he, seeing that her sentence had trailed off vaguely into silence. "There are some men who will wed only the prototype in their heart with which they were born. There are some of us who wait and wait until she comes."

HALLOWE'EN DECORATIONS

Used At Fair of Woman's Guild of St. Chrysostom's

PARTICIPANTS

The fair under the auspices of the Woman's Guild of St. Chrysostom's church Thursday afternoon and evening at Odd Fellows Hall, Wollaston, was very successful.

The different booths were most attractive with autumn leaves, most of them using the Hallowe'en scheme of decoration, including the Jack-a-lantern, witches, black cats, etc. At the flower shop were palms, ferns and cut flowers in charge of Miss Elizabeth Pennington; at the apron stall were the Misses Clean, Mrs. Arthur Stanley and Mrs. Vernon S. Brokaw. The baby booth was in charge of Mrs. Frank E. Cleveland, Mrs. Percy L. Davidson, Mrs. George D. Rundlett, Mrs. Horace W. Richmond and Mrs. Frederick H. Steenstra. The most adorable little articles of hand work for infants wear in dainty shades of pink and blue, and in white found ready sale.

At the household table were Mrs. Daniel C. Miller Miss Elizabeth Cook, Mrs. William J. Croucher and Mrs. John E. Walter, and here all kinds of useful articles as well as canned fruits and jellies were sold. The candy booth in charge of Mrs. Herbert H. Albee was trimmed with jack-o-lanterns and all of which found a ready sale as did the sweetmeats. The assistants were Mrs. George P. Parker, Miss Helen Croucher, Miss Robina Atkons, Miss Dorothy Brokaw and Miss Alice Hennigar.

At the mysterious grabs were Mrs. Frederick L. Waite and Miss Ruth W. Parker. Mrs. George A. Vibert was in charge of the miscellaneous table assisted by Mrs. Everett B. Goodrick, Miss Nettie A. Parlee, Miss Lydia G. Hennigar, Miss Louise A. Ross. The booth was done in lavender and white and filled with fancy work articles of all descriptions.

The linen table was an attractive booth in blue and lavender where exquisite hand embroidered articles were sold in charge of Mrs. John L. Hamilton and Mrs. William H. Spooner. Mrs. Sara Shultz and John W. Atkins served ice cream.

Mrs. Sydney J. Smith and Miss A. Maude Briggs were at a finely decorated table in orange and black where delicious punch was served.

Miss Isabel Campbell presided at the cocoa table, assisted by the Misses Dorothy and Marion Leach and Miss Rebecca Bird in pretty costumes and caps, sold the Wan-eta cocoa and chocolate, which was donated through William Cummings. Mrs. Charles Wood had a peanut grab and Mrs. David L. Jewell sold tickets.

A novel autograph quilt done in red and white made by Mrs. Frederick A. Northrop was on exhibition, which the Guild voted to present to Mrs. Steenstra. It attracted much attention.

An excellent supper was served from 6 to 7.30 in charge of Mrs. Edward F. Parlee and her able corps of assistants—Mrs. Hennigar, Mrs. Thomas, Mrs. Ellis, Mrs. Landry, Mrs. Taylor, Mrs. Poch, Mrs. Bean, Mrs. Allen, Mrs. Drew, Mrs. Northrop, Mrs. Wheelen, Mrs. Coleman, Mrs. Barham, Mrs. McTear, Mrs. Felt and Mrs. Wheeler and the attractive waitresses were: Miss Atkins, Miss Allen, Miss Bean, Miss Coleman, Miss Ketchum, Miss Parlee, Miss Purdom, Miss Pratt, Miss Wheeler and Miss Vogler.

LIVELY BLAZE THIS MORNING

Fire in House Corner of Union and Main Streets

LOSS $200

The alarm from Box 171 at 5.40 this morning was for a lively blaze in the house at the corner of Union and Main streets, owned by Ellen Griffin and occupied by William Taylor. The fire is thought to have been the result of an accident. A fire was built in the kitchen stove and it is thought that some of the sparks fell into a basket of clothing near the stove setting it on fire.

The fire worked in back of the casing and up through the roof. Chief Williams estimates the loss to be $200.

BRIEFS

The Unitarian Church Helpers of Wollaston hold a food sale in the vestry tomorrow afternoon.

Half a dozen candidates from Houghs Neck are seeking the nomination as Councilman from Ward One.

Councilman Parlee of Atlantic is to be a candidate for renomination to the City Council. Papers in his behalf are being circulated in Ward Six.

After a lapse of several days, due largely to bad weather, work has again been commenced guilding the clock dials on the First church.

Landscape gardners are making some great improvements to the estate of Dr. N. S. Hunting. The small hedge bushes on the front lawn have been removed and the grounds regraded.

Charles F. Strattard of Hersey place had the misfortune Thursday to have his right hand caught in the machinery while at work at the Fore River Shipbuilding Co. yard, losing three of his fingers.

The street railway company has commenced work building a turnout on the Norfolk Downs loop line. When completed it will do away with the waits on either end of the loop which have inconvenienced passengers so much.

SPORTING "DOPE"

By B. A.

Don't Knock, Just Boost.—B. A.

The McGregor football club will play a league game with the strong Cantons on the Water street grounds, Saturday, October 28th. The game is called for 3.30 and the line-up as follows: Haldane, Wilson, Rae, Cunning, Robertson, Meldum, Simpson, Vinal, R. McDonald, D. McDonald, Melrose.

The team has been playing first class ball so far this season and judging from the above line-up an interesting and exciting game may be expected.

From now until next Tuesday, when the Brockton High eleven comes to Merryomunt Park, Coach Staff will use every energy to round the local aggregation into the best possible shape. He will be assisted by a couple of former well known college stars and no stone will be left unturned to enable the local lads to repudiate the defeat suffered at the hands of the Brockton players last year. The game certainly will be a warm one and bids fair to be the best that has been seen at the local park this year.

McDonaldll, a well known local boy, may fill in for "Nedzo" Bennett at the coming Amory A. A. amateur bouts. Bennett had his hand injuerd while at work last week and as a result contracted blood poisoning. If McDonald is billed in his place there is sure to be something doing and he will make his opponent go the full limit.

Mrs. W. C. Johnson, of the Wollaston Golf club finished in ninth place in the handicap medal play held yesterday at the Oakley Golf club links, under the auspices of the Women's Golf association.

Harkins, a well known local lad, is holding down left guard for the strong St. John's "Prep" team of Danvers. This aggregation is conceded to be about as fast as any in interscholastic circles and thus far has a clean list of five victories to its credit.

E. T. Marceau of this city will compete in the coming "Tech" games to be held at Tech Oval mexe week.

NOMINATION PAPERS ARE CIRCULATED

Nomination papers for council from Ward One, are in circulation today for James Moorehouse, of 28 Curtis street. Mr. Moorehouse is prominently known in local circles and has been identified with the dairy busines for sometime. He is backed by a number of well known Republicans and will conduct a strenuous fight for the nomination.

An endeavor was made yesterday to get Charles C. Hearn, the druggist, to run but to no avail. William P. Thompson has been mentioned as another prospective candidate and it is not improbable that he will agree to run for the nomination.

On the Democratic side papers are in circulation for Daniel F. Forde, for re-election from Ward Four, in addition to those mentioned in yesterday's Ledger.

Frank O. Moses, the optician, formerly a resident here, was about today visiting his many friends.

PENNANT GOES TO ATHLETICS

Once Again the Baseball Champions of the World

THE GIANTS ARE HUMILIATED

Blow Up In Fourth Inning and Are Never In the Running After That, Their Opponents Scoring Seven Runs In the Seventh—Bender Pitches For Winners, While Losers Use Three Men

Philadelphia, Oct. 27.—The Athletics are champions of the world. They slaughtered the Giants, 13 to 2, yesterday, pounded three pitchers to all corners of the lot and gave McGraw's team the worst showing-up ever any club got in a world's championship game.

For two and a half innings the Giants, who were battling gamely against heavy odds, seemed as if they would win their way through to even terms by sheer luck. Ames was pitching desperately, but the Athletics seemed only to be sizing him up. Then in the third a pass and a long drive evened up the count.

And in the fourth New York broke. It was Ames who led the utter wreck of the Giants. But he broke after the Athletics had slammed into his fast ball twice and put men on first and third.

The Athletics were rampant and a perfect bunt broke up the game and series.

Ames reached the ball, hurled it wild, hit the runner, and Murray, heaving from the right field clear to the left field corner, let three runs home.

After that it was a farce and a humiliation for McGraw. The Athletics, rushing the attack and playing with their old confidence, fell upon Wiltse and in the seventh indulged in fungo hitting, banging out seven runs and seven hits.

Marquard was called in to try to quell the disturbance, but he, too, was an easy victim.

The Athletics merely played horse with the National league champions at the end and finally let Stuffy McInnis go to first to end it up and he got the final put out of the game.

BAN SHAKESPEARE AS AN IMMORALIST

High School Pupils Want Shaw and Ibsen as Standards

Chicago, Oct. 27.—Shakespeare has been rejected as "licentious, unclean and objectionable" by the youthful literary lights of the Hammond high school, and they are receiving the support of their teachers to have the author of "The Taming of the Shrew," "Venus and Adonis" and "Pericles" banished from the curriculum.

Beebon Amoss, in presenting the demand to the faculty, characterized the "Bard of Avon" as "a cheap grandstand player," "an immoralist" and several other similarly descriptive titles, and asked that Isben and Shaw be set as the standard.

$3 COFFIN FOR WIFE

Philadelphia Man's Request Leads to a Near Riot

Philadelphia, Oct. 27.—Because Samuel Prager, a tailor, ordered a $3 coffin for his wife, relatives of the woman stormed Prager's home, 5222 Girard avenue. The police were called to quell the disturbance. Prager and his wife had quarreled and she committed suicide.

While a deputy coroner was making an investigation the relatives of Mrs. Prager visited the house. Their denunciation became so violent that several hundred persons collected. The relatives said Prager had $4000 in bank and had asked a charity association for a coffin not costing more than $3.

John Adams Aerie Fraternal Order of Eagles Have Largely Attended Affair In Music Hall

Members Of Degree Team Give Artistic Drill

Music hall was fairly alive Friday evening with Eagles and their lady friends. It was the annual concert and ball of John Adams aerie Fraternal order of Eagles. The affair was very largely attended and proved to be a most enjoyable occasion.

From 8 to 9 o'clock there was a promenade concert by Monk's orchestra. The program was as follows:

March Bagley
National Emblem
Overture Suppe
Light Cavalry
Serenade for Cornet Missud
Mr. Mockler
Selection Strauss
Chocolate Soldier
Duo For Flute and Cello Titel
Messrs. Harding and Ogden
Finale Selected

At the conclusion of the concert the degree team of John Adams aerie marched on the floor and gave an exhibition drill, going through the various evolutions with a precision that called forth rounds of applause from the spectators. This over, the ball proper commenced the order of dances opening with a waltz. Save for a brief intermission at midnight dancing was in order until 2 o'clock.

The members of the degree team who gave the drill were Bernard Burke, conductor, Hugh McCloud, John Cahill, Augustus Tretter, Michael Boyle, John DeCoste, George Mitchell, Robert Muir, Frank Slavin, Edward Nicholson, William McPherson, Augustus McArthur and J. J. McDonald. The pianist during the drill was A. McDonald.

James J. Mellen was the floor director, and Bernard Burke, Hugh J. McLeod and John J. McDonald assistants. The aids were: Murdock Nicholson, Gus Tretter, Michael J. Boyle, Robert W. McLean, Archibald McDougall, William McPherson, Garrett Robinson, John A. McDonald George P. Woodman, Robert Muir, William McEwen, George Mitchell.

The entertainment committee of the aerie who had the affair in charge were: Henry J. Langelier, chairman, Michael J. Boyle, Hugh McLellen, Daniel McDonald, Murdock Nickolson, Adam Slavin, William Allen, John Bowden, William Childs, Frank Slavin, John J. Feeley, William J. Smith.

The committee of arrangements included the following: William J. Smith, chairman, John F. Larkin, James J. Mellen, William Inglis, John A. McDonald, George Mitchell, Charles Batson, Hugh J. McLeod, Harry Powell, Philip E. Palmer, George H. Burgess, Edward S. Welch, Robert W. McLean, John J. McDonald, Gus Tretter, William McPherson.

Guests were present from Boston, Hyde Park and Brockton and Hingham aeries and their wants were carefully looked after by the reception committee who were as follows:

Henry J. Langelier, chairman, James Mellen, Edward S. Welch, Joseph J. O'Brien, Joseph Keating, William Kelley.

READE FAMILY GATHERS.

An unusually large number of members attended the eighth annual reunion of the Reade Historical and Genealogical Association in the Fogg Library Building at So. Weymouth on Friday.

Following a social hour the meeting was called to order by Rev. James Reed of Boston. Gen. Philip Reade of Boston gave an address on the family associations, followed by short talks by other members.

At the business meeting the following officers were elected: Rev. James Reed of Boston, president; Hon. William A. Reed of Brockton, Gen Philip Reade of Boston, Edward F. Reed of Everett, John S. C. Blanchard of South Weymouth, Silas D. Reed of Taunton and Joshua E. Crane of Bridgewater, vice presidents; Henry B. Reed of South Weymouth, treasurer; Charles F. Reed of Brookline and Alanson H. Reed of Wellesley, secretaries; George E. Sturtevant of Boston, genealogist.

It was voted that the association place a suitable memorial to Asahel Reade of Sudbury, who lost his life at the battle of Lexington and who is buried in an unmarked grave in the Sudbury Cemetery.

At the close of the meeting the members went to the Reed Cemetery on Front street, where a memorial stone marker to William Reade and Avis Reade his wife, who came to Weymouth in 1651, was dedicated with appropriate exercises.

McDEVITT WOULD LIKE TO DEBATE

Offers To Meet His Opponent Any Time He Desires In Wollaston Hall

NEXT RALLY

A large gathering of voters, composed of employee's of thePhneumatic Scale Company, the Wollaston Foundry and the Robbins' Foundry, listened attentively to John J. McDevitt, candidate for representative from the sixth Norfolk district yesterday noon, for over a half hour, near the Norfolk Downs Depot. Mr. McDevitt was the principal speaker and he consumed the entire time in outlining the policies he had adopted in the campaign and the issues upon which he was basing his candidacy for election. He dwelt at length on the record of himself and his opponent.

Mr. McDevitt explained in detail the issues which he represented. He offered to hire Brasee hall, in Wollaston, any evening his opponent might care to appear. He said he would give Mr. Leslie the opening and closing of the debate on any question relative to the campaign upon which he might desire to speak and in this way hoped to be able to uphold his own good name and allow the voters of the district to render judgment, after they had been given an opportunity to consider the matter.

Concluding he said "I have presented my case before you as best I know how and I trust that you will not deem this a personal fight between myself and Mr. Leslie, or a biased contest between a republican and a democrat. I am willing to allow my record to stand for your closest scrutiny and from the assurances that I have already received I feel confident that I will be adjudged a winner by your verdict on the seventh of November."

Mr. McDevitt was warmly applauded when he had finished speaking. His next rally will be held Monday night at the corner of Hancock street and Billings road.

SPECIAL MEETING OF COUNCIL

Mayor Shea issued a call this morning for a special Council meeting to be held next Monday evening. The matters stated in the call are five in number: For act on an order for the municipal election and designating polling places for the same; to act on the matter of the acceptance of the act retiring employees of the county; to receive the appointment of election officers from the Mayor; to act on a communication from the Mayor relative to an appropriation for garbage and to act on Order No. 298 appropriating $1,000 for scavenger work.

HOSPITAL APPRECIATED.

Board of Trustees:

My dear Mr. Rice:—

May I say a few words of praise for the Quincy City Hospital, In April I was taken there for a critical operation and stayed three weeks in the beautiful new ward and I had ample opportunity to learn what a fine institution our Hospital is. My case reuired the greatest skill and care and to say that there was not the slightest set-back speaks volumes for those in charge.

Everything about the place pleased me, especially the food which was of excellent quality, well cooked and temptingly served.

I cannot speak too highly of the charming and clever nurses always ready and willing to be of service and of Miss Thayer whose splendid supervision makes our hospital so worthy of the greatest praise.

CONFERENCE AND BANQUET

Of No-License Workers Will Be Held Monday In Boston

AT FORD BUILDING

The fifth annual state conference and banquet of the No-License workers will be held on Monday, Oct. 30th, 1911, at the Ford building, State House park, Boston. The sessions are as follows:

Afternoon session, 2 to 6 P. M.
Banquet, 6 to 7 P. M.
Evening session, 7 to 9 P. M.

Although President Eliot is to leave a few days later on his trip around the world, it is of especial interest that he is to preside at the evening session. At that session there will also be Mr. Hearn and Miss Higgins, the heads of the Y. M. C. A. and the Associated Charities, as well as Mr. Robert A. Woods, perhaps the best known social worker in New England.

The committee is also pleased to state that Rev. Father Michael J. Doody, of Cambridge will be present and speak. This is particularly gratifying for he is one of the best known priests in the Metropolitan District and the successor of the renowned Father Scully.

The program as issued shows a list of most excellent subjects with particularly good speakers. All interested in this really important work should be on hand Monday prepared to remain throughout the entire session.

NOMINATION PAPERS IN CIRCULATION

Papers for School Committee at large are in circulation for Edward B. Marsh of Irving place. Mr. Marsh is a prominent business man and is well and favorably known in the city. He has scores of friends, who expect that he will conduct a strenuous fight for the seat against Arthur W. Newcomb, who is seeking re-election.

Papers are also in circulation for William J. Thompson of 42 Whitney road and James Moorehead of 38 Curtis street. Both men are aspiring for councilmanic honors from Ward One. There are, up-to-date, seven men in the field on the Republican ticket from the initial Ward.

HALLOWE'EN PARTY.

A very delightful Hallowe'en party was given by Miss Susan Tytler at her home on Trafford street last evening.

The house was approproately decorated with Hallowe'en fixtures and oak leaves and when the young people arrived they all seemed ready for a good time.

Tre first part of the evening was spent in playing games, Harry Nicholsan gave several piano selections, and some delightful solos were rendered by Miss Minnie Miller. A recitation by George Wilson and all joined in singing some of the popular songs until supper was announced, about 9.30 when all adjourned into the dining room to partake of the good things that awaited them.

The table was decorated with orange and black and beside each plate was placed a witch of the same colors which made it look very weird. After all found their places, which was marked by name cards, the following menu was served:

Corned beef, potato salad, cranberry sauce, cream o'tartar biscuits, squash and mince pie, banana fingers, ice cream, witches' cake, fruit, candy and coffee.

After supper, ducking for apples, roasting chestnuts, stringing doughnuts and such games were in order.

Among those present were Edith Elrick, Ruth Kemp, Margaret Michael, Helen Elrick, Ruth Tytler, Minnie Miller, Susan Tytler, Edward Jenkins, John McLay, George Wilson, Harry Nicholson, Leland Wallace, George Tytler, William Michael, John Tytler.

HALLOWE'EN DANCE IN ALPHA HALL

Under Auspices of the Literature and Library Extension Committee of Quincy Women's Club

The Hallowe'en dancing party held at Alpha hall last evening was without question one of the prettiest parties ever held in Quincy. The decorations o fthe hall were on a very elaborate scale and were very beautiful Quantities of orange and black crepe paper were used which with autumn leaves and hydrangeas transformed the hall into a fairy scene.

The chandeliers on the sides of the hall were incased in orange paper upon which the faces of the man in the moon appeared, while over the clock at the rear of the hall was a large tail of a black cat, completely hiding its dial, so that the merrymakers could not see when it was time to go home.

Suspended in front of the stage were long streamers of orange and black crepe paper, upon which were fastened the usual hallowe'en symbols, such as moons, black cats, the old witch with her broom and pumpkins. On the centre front of the platform was a large crepe paper pumpkin and on the front was the face of the man in the moon. This was illuminated by an electric light, that had been inclosed inside, forming a very grotesque picture. In addition to this there was a band of yellow paper which extended around the sides and end of the hall upon the face of which were painted black cats, witches, etc.

At the right of the platform was a huge bank of dried hydrangea blossoms which formed a fitting background for the matrons and was very effective. The matrons were Mrs. Eben W. Sheppard, Mrs. George E. Pfaffmann and Mrs. James H. Slade.

The ushers were Jessie I. Litchfield, James H. Slade, Delcevare King, George Brown and Albert Parker.

Pool's orchestra played, and several of the dance numbers were given in semi-darkness, the only light being that given forth by the side lights through the orange paper, pumpkins and jack-o-lanterns. These were very effective and created a kind of weird scene.

During the evening a painting in oil, furnished anyonmously, was sold to Mrs. Maurice Spillane.

The dance was given under the auspices of the Extension committee of the Quincy Women's club of which Mrs. John O. Short is chairman. Mrs. Short was assisted in decorating the hall by Mrs. Thomas Fenno, Mrs. Maurice Spillane, Mrs. William H. Kitson and Joseph Fenno.

So successful and enjoyable was the affair that there was a general demand that the dance be made a yearly affair, and doubtless next year will see a repetition of last evening's delightful time.

—Pedestrians are becoming more and more perplexed as to their rights on street crossings. The honk of the automobile is perhaps too commonplace now to be objected to, but the teamsters have acquired a disagreeable habit of whistling to people at a street crossing, instead of looking to their driving.—Somerville Journal.

MANY ATTEND RECEPTION

In the Vestry of the Wollaston Unitarian Church

THE COMMITTEE

Many parishioners and friends attended the reception in the vestry of the Wollaston Unitarian church, Friday evening. The receiving party consisted of Rev. Carl G. Horst, pastor of the church, and Mrs. Horst, Dr. Charles S. Adams, president of the parish and Mrs. Adams.

During the evening piano and violin duets by Mrs. Foster R. Wheeler and Arthur W. Rohn were enjoyed. Mrs. Mary Chandler West contributed several striking piano solos which met with hearty applause. Miss Winifred White accompanied by Mrs. West sang sweetly a number of selections.

Refreshments were served by a committee of young ladies consisting of Miss Mildred Polk, Miss Marion Browne, Miss Helen Browne, Miss Elsie Snow, Miss Clara Totman, Miss Caroline Sprague, Miss Margaret Hall, Miss Ninon Lacey and Miss Gertrude Lacey. Mrs. Charles Barker and Mrs. Everett Simmons poured. The decorations, consisting of autumn foliage and potted plants, proved attractive.

—One fellow put it right when he said: "The man who gets mad at what the newspaper says about him should return thanks three times a day for what the newspaper knew about him and suppressed."—Spencer Leader.

REPUBLICAN RALLY AND SMOKER

Was Held Friday Evening At Home of Councilman Sandberg

OTHER SPEAKERS

A largely attended and enthusiastic Republican rally and smoke talk was held Friday evening at the home of Councilman-at-large Edward J. Sandberg on Buckley street. Councilman Sandberg presided and spoke at length on the issues of the campaign urging his hearers to get out and work for the election of William J. Leslie for representative and George L. Barnes for senator. In fact they were urged to work for the whole Republican ticket from top to bottom.

Candidates Leslie and Barnes followed, both speaking briefly. Other speakers were Joseph Walker, Louis F. T. Langelier, Chairman of the Republican City Committee, Frank Shay of Wollaston and A. L. Whitman.

All of the speakers said that things looked very bright for their party and there was but little doubt but what there would be a ringing Republican victory at the coming election.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Poc Wiley favors woman suffrage. He no doubt believes that the hand that makes the pie should guide the state.

It is said that no Vassar graduate was ever divorced, but this may have been because two men were never found who would marry one of 'em.

The British tax payers are discouraged because a war ship that cost $930,000 twenty years ago has just been sold for $18,000, but that's about the percentage of shrinkage in five years on an automobile.

Attention is called to the many unhappy marriages among novelists. Our experience is that when a newspaper man becomes a journalist his morals suffer, and when he graduates into the novelist's profession, his downfall is complete.

Some newspapers say that an advertisement is an invitation. If that be so there are a number of Quincy merchants who are very exclusive and do not solicit trade. They are satisfied with themselves and do not offer any reasons why their stores should be patronized.

Don't forget to register. Don't forget to vote. Don't be a stay-at-home. Don't become indifferent as to who governs you. Don't allow yourself to be one of those who have no interest in national, state, county or town government. Be a man and exercise the privileges that are given to a man.

Quincy has been highly favored so far this campaign in the size of the various rallies and the calibre of the different men who have come out to do the speaking. Of course both sides are out with lots of talk that each will even, but the fact remains that some mighty good arguments have been made on both sides and whoever wins, no fear of a collapse of the Commonwealth experienced.

Street widening is in the air at present, two main thoroughfares being under consideration. Hancock street from the Ledger office to Elm and School streets; and Washington street from Temple to Chubbuck street. It is to be hoped they will both receive full consideration and the widening be of a permanent nature. Other streets badly in need of widening or at least of establishing a street line for future widening are School and Franklin. Something should be done to relieve the congestion on these streets and also to prevent building on the present street line, as it will be expensive in years to come to pay for their removal.

The way the young people of the city have responded to the appeal to assist in taking the Hospital collection deserves commendation. In one of the wards the young girls also are giving their time. Most of these young people are in the High school, and when there is studying to be done at home, it means the pleasures have to give way in order to make time for the work of collection. We want to make an appeal to the people whom these young people will visit, and ask them to remember their task is not an enviable one, and to please have the envelopes ready when they call the second time. Don't forget they are taking many steps to save you some, and their only remuneration is our courtesy and appreciation.

THE NO-LICENSE LEAGUE.

The No-License League of Massachusetts seems to be in a particularly flourishing condition and from the circulars issued by the executive committee of which our townsman Mr. Delcevare King is chairman, an exceptionally interesting conference may be expected on Monday.

Says a leading member of the league: "We find that often the mistake is made of confusing Temperance and Prohibition with No-License. No-License is solely a matter of public policy, and is a wholly different thing from Temperance which is solely a matter of personal policy. No-License is based on Local option—the deciding locally by the city or town whether or not it shall license the sale of intoxicating liquors, while the state has nothing to do with the decision. Prohibition is where the State decides that intoxicating liquors shall not be sold, and the local city or town has nothing whatever to do with the decision. Under Local Option, the unit is the city or town; under Prohibition, the unit is the state."

That's about as good an explanation as could possibly be given. An organization under the guidance of such illustrious men as this one has the honor to present is bound to succeed and a bright future for it may therefore be predicted.

HANDLING THE MAIL.

Postmaster Mansfield has appealed to the business men of Boston to mail their letters earlier in the day. The practice, it seems, is to give them to the office boy to post on his way home when the day's work is over and that clogs the post office in the rush hours. It is obvious that the handling of the mail would be easier and more efficient if it came along during the day rather than all in a bunch at supper time. In a great many places this will be remedied, merely a habit which can be easily overcome.

GETTING TOGETHER.

The long-pull-strong-pull-altogether spirit which was shown in the "night before" gathering of Republicans is significant of the new spirit which has come over the party since the signal triumph of Frothingham at the polls—for even the most intense partisans have conceded freely that the unexpectedly large Republican vote and the margin between the Frothingham total and that of his competitors are a good criterion of what is most likely to happen next month.

The indiffrence and apathy which have been typical of the state Republican party for the last few months have disappeared entirely. The Republican leaders and the man in the street are coming to recognize the importance of the eelction of November, both to the state and the nation.

Nobody realizes more keenly what it all means to him personally than Governor Foss. What of the vice-presidential ambitions if his own state goes against him as it is practically certain that it will? What as to his voice hereafter in the national councils of the party? The disgust, anger and hopelessness among a large number of influential Democrats, and the dawning light of better sense in Republicans who cast ballots for Foss in the 14th district and later in the gubernatorial campaign are all full of significance.

A clean man is leading the Republicans. He has obtained his present position by fighting fairly for it in an open field. He is young. He has ideals and ability. He is the embodiment of much that is needed in public life. He is a thorough student of politics, not merely of party politics. His deeds square with his words. His record is flawless. He has everything to commend him, not only to the older voters of the state, but to those younger men, especially, who are to cast their ballots for the first time and have been in doubt, perhaps, as to who is most worthy of their support.—Boston Herald.

TROLLEY FREIGHT.

That the man who "wants what he wants when he wants it" ought to be satisfied if he ships his goods or has his goods shipped by Electric Express, is the opinion of a big Boston shipper, who has been using the service ever since it was extended by the Bay State St. Ry. Co., into Boston from Brockton Sept. 11, connecting this section with the many other points in southeastern Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut and New York City.

The promptness, the frequency and the certainty of goods arriving at their proper destination in undamaged condition which are typical of this service has appealed strongly to shippers generally as is evidenced by the steady and rapid increase in the business from day to day. It has been proven that a case of loss or damage is a great rarity. There is no possibility of goods shipped to a city in Massachusetts finally landing in one of the same name in another state, or other annoying little incidents that in the past were apt to crop out occasionally.

The men who operate the express cars of the company are its own men. They are picked from the passenger service and from their records are known to be responsible and efficient. In every way efforts are made to made the service the best that it possibly can be made and further improvements will be made constantly as occasion arises.

Four trips a day are now being made in and out of Boston giving unexcelled facilities for fast and frequent shipment.

FINANCIAL NEWS.

(Special.)

Filing of the Government suit against the Steel Corporation was somewhat of a surprise, and caused a sharp break in the market for these shares. Its effect upon the market in general was comparatively slight. The separation of the ore and transportation interests from the company was a foregone conclusion, since these arrangements were of a clearly monopolistic character. In other respects, however, it will be difficult for the Government to prove that the Steel Corporation is a monopoly, and the drastic charges made in the petition not only serve no useful purpose but are unquestionably disturbing and will cause more or less distrust until settled. There is, however, no occasion for being unduly frightened. The Supreme Court is not going to sanction any confiscation of property, and the Steel Corporation is likely to continue in business in spite of Government suits and tariff changes.

The present depression in the iron trade is a vastly more important factor in the present low prices of steel securities than the anti-trust law. In steel products there has been a decline in prices of 27 per cent since the panic of 1907. These markets are still unsettled because the railroads which in good times take 40 per cent of the output, are not taking more than 20 per cent chiefly because of unsatisfactory financial conditions.

Another very important industry—the cotton trade—has adjusted itself to market conditions. For two or three years the cotton industry was in very unsatisfactory condition, manufacturers being hampered on the one side by high raw material and increased cost of production and on the other hand by inability to secure from either home or export buyers prices which would adequately compensate for increased costs. As a result profits on cotton mill properties diminished materially, and the whole trade suffered more or less depression. Relief has finally come in the form of cheap cotton, the most natural and most substantial form of relief that could be desired. The South has produced an enormous crop, so that it can afford to sell at a low figure and still realize large returns. Needless to say, the world's cotton trade will be benefited by this result, and that in the long run must react favorably upon the United States.

The money market plainly reflects business inertia. Money is abnormally plentiful and cheap. The demand for currency from the West is hardly a factor worth noting, for the reason that the interior banks possess sufficient funds to handle crops without drawing upon their Eastern balances. Some of our Western institutions have in fact been lending in Europe so abnormal is the present money situation.

We are now approaching the November elections, the outcome of which will be watched with intense interest, especially as the tariff is being hotly contested in some sections, particularly in New England, and the results of this struggle will also have an important bearing upon business activities. It is uncertainty that kills, not changes up or down in the tariff, and if the elections only show decisive tendencies of public opinion regarding the tariff, business men will be better able to forecast the future and adjust themselves to impending changes. The probability is that we shall see a great deal of fierce contention over the tariff, but few changes of importance, except the cutting down of the peaks in protection, and the removal of tariff props where not actually needed. It is doubtful if any important changes will be made during the next year that will seriously impair any American industry.

In the commercial circles there has also been an improvement in undertone. Unreasoning distrust has disappeared and confidence is gradually rising. The volume of business though somewhat less than a year ago, has not contracted as severely as at one time feared. Profits have been more or less impaired, and would in many cases have disappeared altogether had it not been for sharp retrenchment in expenses. This policy of economy is being carried out not only in business, but the consumer also is obliged to economize either becaus prices are too high or his buying powers have been impaired. This situation is working out its own cure and the process of readjustment to a lower level in the merchandise markets has already made good progress.

The investment market is much more satisfactory than at the beginning of the month. The financial situation abroad, which received such a severe shock from the Moroccan question, shows decided improvement. Confidence is rising in both Berlin and Paris, the chief points of unsettlement; and London too is displaying a more confident undertone. —Henry Clews, Banker, New York.

HOSPITAL COLLECTIONS.

Owing to the fact that through causes which could not be avoided, many of the collectors did not start in to canvass the city until the middle of the week. It has been decided to continue the Hospital collection during the coming week. By extending the time it is hoped that every one can be reached and be given an opportunity to contribute.

RED CROSS SEALS.

Direct approval of the campaign for the sale of Red Cross Seals has been given by the American Federation of Labor, according to an announcement made today by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis.

At the last annual convention of the American Federation of Labor, a resolution was adopted calling on all the members of the Federation to further the sale as much as possible. The resolution reads as follows:—

"Whereas, The American Federation of Labor has in every possible way aided the movement for the study and prevention of tuberculosis throughout the United States and Canada, and

"Whereas, The American National Red Cross has been in the past and is now making an especial effort, through the sale of Red Cross Christmas Seals, to secure funds to carry on the war against tuberculosis, and by means of the funds raised in this manner has been able to do much effective work in this direction, therefore be it

"Resolved, that the American Federation of Labor give its endorsement to the movement of the American National Red Cross, and encourage its members to further in every reasonable way the sale of these seals in their respective communities."

There are now four special methods by which consumptive workingmen in the United States are being cared for. In such cities as Albany, Elmira and Binghamton, N. Y., the unions support a separate pavilion or hospital. In cities like Hartford, New Britain and South Manchester, Conn., the workmen contribute towards the maintenance of a fund for the care of consumptives. The employers also contribute to these funds. There are also two national sanatoria for the treatment of tuberculosis owned and operated by labor unions; one by the International Typographical Union, and the other by the Printing Pressmen and Assistants' Union. In Massachusetts, Illinois, and elsewhere large corporations and manufacturers have agreed voluntarily to care for all their consumptive employes for a limited length of time.

"But as long as consumption kills one in every three workingmen between the ages of fifteen and forty-five," says The National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, "more education, better shop and home conditions, and more hospitals are needed. Red Cross Seals provide these things."

THE COCHATO CLUB.

The first number in the Cochato club course of winter entertainments was a pop concert last Tuesday evening.

There was a large number of club members and their guests present. Music was by the Mace Gay orchestra of Brockton. While enjoying the popular orchestral selection bridge whist was enjoyed and the young ladies who served were kept busy delivering orders from an attractive menu.

The enjoyment continued until about eleven o'clock. Saturday evening, Nov. 11, the Southern Jubilee singers and players will entertain.

The second week of the Men's bottle pin tuornament has brought forth good results. George H. Hamblett secured the high three string total of 541 and W. I. Arnold aviated to the highest altitude with a single of 208.

Furniture upholstered and repaired; mattresses made over; draperies and cushions to order. Highest class work at prices fair to pay. Henry L. Kincaide & Co.

HUSTLERS' CONTEST.

Only Eight Days Left in S. & H. Hustlers' Contest.

Boys and girls there still remains eight days in the S. & H. Hustlers' contest. Get out today and hustle for Ledger Votes and S. & H. Green Stamps and you never will regret hustling if you get one of those watches displayed in the window of the Quincy Department store. Hustle and get your name at the head of the list next Tuesday. Cast your votes early and often.

RELIGIOUS CAMPAIGN.

Details of the campaign for the Men and Religion Forward Movement, which is to be started in Greater Boston, were discussed at a meeting of the Committee of One Hundred Thursday night. It was announced that permanent headquarters had been established at 4 Ashburton place. Three plans were suggested for raising the fund, probably $15,000, for the campaign: To send letters to as many as possible; to have a nucleus made up of large contributions; to appeal to each of the 407 churches in Greater Boston.

These expert teams were announced as the leaders for the eight-day campaign in the Boston districts during January:

First team—Rev. Charles Stelzle, Fred A. Goodman and R. A. Waite of New York, Rev. W. E. Biederwolf, D. D., of Indiana, A. L. Bruner of Illinois.

Second team—James A. Whitmore of New York, Rev. W. R. Lane of London, W. C. Pearce of Chicago, Dr. I. G. Lansing of Washington, Charles R. Dresser of Syracuse.

Mr. Tupper, for the social service committee, said that the work involved three things: Information, cooperation, to forward which there would be a meeting of social workers within the next ten days, and survey, which would be the most thorough ever undertaken by the Christian church. H. W. Gibson, for the boys' work committee, reported that forty-one cities and towns have made reports and that cooperating committees of boys were being created so that there would be a total of 2000 boys working with 500 men. William P. Rich also spoke for the committee on evangelism. Executive Secretary E. W. Pierce described the growing interest in the movement all over the country—the eight-day campaign in Minneapolis including 146 crowded meetings, he declared.

For vice chairman Bishop Wiliam Lawrence, Rev. George A. Gordon, D. D., Bishop John W. Hamilton, Rev. Herbert A. Manchester, D. D., and Rev. Cortland Myers, D. D., were elected. Dr. George W. Tupper, immigration secretary of the executive committee of the Y. M. C. A., was appointed in charge of the "survey."

WINS HEIRESS BRIDE.

According to the Boston Post the marriage of Miss Mabelle F. Billings to Ira H. Lund is the culmination of a romance which started about a year ago.

Says the exchange: "The marriage yesterday was a surprise to their friends. Their intimate acquaintances knew there was a bond of friendship that appeared strong, but none looked for so quiet a wedding. Miss Billings is a talented singer and for five years was a member of the choir of the Church of the Ascenion in Boston. She graduated from the Quincy high school about two years ago. It is said she is the prospective heiress to a fortune of $30,000.

Q.—How does the manner of reckoning time in the age in which Moses lived compare with the chronological methods now in use, and if there is any difference would it not account for the great age of Methuselah as given in the Scriptures?

Answer.—The Jewish method of reckoning time which was in use in the days of Moses, was a combination of solar and lunar time. It was a simple, automatic self-adjusting system, which, so far as the final results were concerned, was as accurate as the present methods in use. The Jewish months were thirty days in length corresponding to the lunations of the moon. Ordinarily twelve of these made up the year of three hundred and sixty days. The discrepancies resulting from this method were rectified by the unique arrangement of starting the new year with the new moon nearest the vernal equinox. Some years by this method contained thirteen months instead of twelve. The length of years, therefore, in Moses' time was in the aggregate the same as today. The extreme old age of the antediluvians can reasonably be accounted for by considering the Bible narrative to the effect that originally the human race was perfect, and because of death entering into the world as the result of sin, the race began to deteriorate. In its more perfect state, the average length of life of the race would be far more than it is today after the past six thousand years of degeneration. This of course is in opposition to the theory of evolution, which maintains that the condition of the human race is gradually improving. However, no one has ever been able to advance a single proof in evidence of the truth of this theory, and those most advanced in scientific knowledge are now rejecting it.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

A BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET.

Hub's Free Art Route is Now Wide Open—Collegians Discover Lillian Russell's "Secrets of Beauty" Are Only Obvious Truths—Bay State Spinters Disagree with Brockton Shoe Maker Who Says American Young Men Too Anxious to Marry—New England Gardeners Chided with Neglect of Arnold Arboretum.

For continuous variety of picture exhibitions even Paris has little on Boston. The art season begins about Nov. 1 and lasts until the first of June. During these seven months not only do the museums vie with each other in special displays, but the numerous dealers' galleries along Boylston and Newbury streets keep open house. She who follows this great free art route needs no other traveling in pursuance of an education in esthetics. The pictures and sculptures of all cities and all nations sooner or later reach Boston. It's one of the privileges of living or visiting at the New England capital. Contrary to European custom, the Boston dealers and owners of private galleries make no charge for admission. If you see pictures in the window, just make for the gallery at the rear of the store, and you'll find still more pictures. Nine New Englanders out of ten, however, in the average walks of life, are still imbued with the mistaken idea that they would not be welcomed in the art galleries of dealers unless they intended to purchase works of art. This is unfortunate, for in no places in the city are they more welcome, and in no place can they spend odd half hours to more advantage and pleasure.

The ten principal secrets of Miss Lillian Russell's retaining her beauty have been sought by three girls of one of the Massachusetts colleges, representing a sorority interested in what every woman wants to know. They expected recipes; they got advice. The gist of it all was, as Miss Russell explained it, that the best way in the world to be beautiful is to be natural and not to worry about style. Style she accused of wrecking homes, breaking hearts and making a certain group of men rich. The surest way to retain one's beauty is not to worry about losing it and straining one's eyes looking for the first grey hair and deadly crow's-foot. To be natural and live a clean life were the principal mandates laid down to the three questioning girls, with the suggestion that if American women would wear what they liked and looked well in they would be happier and much money in. So that if the young ladies were looking for the proper recipe for cucumber cream and the name of the strictly top-notch brand of face enamel they must have gone back to their comrades with downcast mien. A few interesting, not to say sarcastic, remarks were made during the interview with regard to a congress of "style doctors" at Washington, the members of which have taken it upon themselves to decree that the fall styles shall be of the type to blend with the brunette beauty in color and fashion. If the "really swell" examples of gowning and millinery seen thus far are indicative one might say that they blend with nothing—not even themselves.

Has the vaunted Yankee enterprise again been proved a myth? Professor Charles Sprague Sargent, director of the Arnold Arboretum Harvard's museum of living trees, had some things to say about American nurserymen, park superintendents and landscape gardeners, in a statement addressed to President Farquhar of the newly formed Horticultural club of Boston. He says they differ from their European fellow professionals in not properly appreciating the Arboretum, which contains the largest collection of trees and shrubs in North America, and is well known and deferred to in Europe. Yet American nurserymen very rarely take advantage of its collections and few indeed of them are at all familiar with the scope of its field. While the heads of the principal national gardens in Europe have found it worth their while to cross the Atlantic simply to visit the Arboretum, only an occasional American nurseryman drops in to spend an hour in a superficial visit and goes his way. Professor Sargent cited numerous instances of persons having applied to the Arboretum for information as to where plants seen there could be purchased. In a shamefully large number of cases it was necessary to send the name of a European nurseryman, since American commercial horticulturists have failed to take advantage of their opportunities. The new Horticultural club, it has been suggested, will bring about a closer relationship between the commercial and scientific horticulturists, and at the same time fill New England parks and gardens with beautiful and interesting trees and flowering shrubs as yet unfamiliar to this climate.

Choke this Brockton shoe maker who accuses American young men of being in too great a hurry to marry. The doctrine he preaches, on his return from the far East, may be to the interest of American business, but it is plainly against the interests of thousands of Bay State spinsters and spinsterettes. This gentleman says that the bally Britishers and aggressive Germans hold the trade in China and the East indies because their stripling youths go out there to take commercial positions, expecting and intending to remain ten or fifteen years—and they stick to their posts. The Yankee boy, it is alleged, now and then gets a similar opportunity to push his country's manufacturers among the sad and sullen breeds of the world's other side. He takes leave of boy and girl schoolmates with fine enthusiasm for seeing the world and becoming a factor in its civilization. Arrived, however, in some ancient city of the orient he promptly fizzles. When he ought to be thinking only of his business his mind dwells continuously on the girl he left behind. He dreams night and day of living in a happily married state in a forty dollar a month cottage in a Boston suburb. Presently he can stand no longer the loneliness of life in a crowded eastern emporium of commerce, where he has only chance companionships. He throws up the job, and comes home to look for that veritable rarity, a New England salary on which a young man can afford to marry. His instinct in the matter every Massachusetts girl must applaud—at least until she finds herself trying to keep the wolf from the door on the salary he is capable of earning.

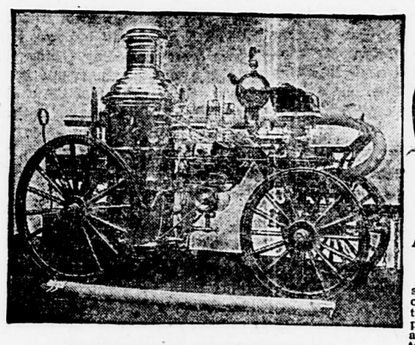
A Fire Fighter's Astounding Story
OF THE UNPARALLELED MERITS OF "BLOODINE"



ENGINE WHICH MR. CLAZIER RUNS.

HARRY A. GLAZIER
A Prominent Fireman of Malden, Mass., writes:
Mar. 28th, 1903.
Last winter I had a severe cold and it settled on my Kidneys, causing the most excruciating pain almost every time I attempted to move; I had tried everything imaginable to get relief, with no success, until I was advised to try "Bloodine," which to my great surprise, gave me relief almost from the first dose, and before I had taken one bottle I was completely cured. "Bloodine" is a wonderful, vitalizing tonic. If the blood is impure, complexion bad, appetite lost, strength gone, and the whole system is upset by an accumulation of humors, it is time to try "Bloodine" today.

Signs of Danger.
Backache, dizziness and headache, "specks before the eyes," irregular heart action and liver trouble. The severity of the early symptoms depending upon the amount of poisons which the kidneys have allowed to remain in the system.

SYMPTOMS.
Aching Pain Over Hips, Backache, Sediment or Deposit in Urine, Irritation of the Bladder, Pain in Urinating, Rheumatism (uric acid in blood), Sudden Stoppage of Urine, Highly Colored or Milky White Urine, Pass Blood or Mucus in Urine, Retention of Urine, Straining After Urinating, Thick or Sluggish Urine, Stone in the Bladder, Cystitis (Inflammation of Bladder), Catarrh of Bladder or Bowels, Puffiness Under Eyes, Voracious Appetite, Thirst, Gall Stone, Gravel, Pain in Uretha, Swollen Ankles, Dimmed Vision, Specks Before the Eyes, Scanty Urine, Frequent Calls, Mouth Dry, Biliousness, Dribbling, Lumbago, Weakness, Loss of Flesh, Irregular Heart Action, Ulceration of the Bladder, Skin Pale, Waxy and Dry, Bad Odor of Perspiration.

SIMPLE TEST FOR KIDNEY DISEASE.
Fill a bottle with urine; let it stand for twelve hours; if there is a sediment or cloudiness of any kind you have kidney or bladder trouble, and you should commence taking Bloodine to-day. Dont wait until the disease is too far advanced.
Bloodine costs 50c a bottle for the usual $1.00 size. Mail orders filled. Large sample bottle by mail 10c.

Gentlemen:—I received one of your books, yesterday. I have been a great sufferer for thirty-three weeks, passing bloody water, have been to the hospital, have had four different doctors. They called it most everything, and I got no better. Please send me a sample bottle of your Bloodine for which I enclose ten cents in stamps to pay for same. If it will do me any good I will take it the rest of my life.
Signed, MRS. OCTAVIA E. CARPENTER.

THE BLOODINE CO., Boston, Mass.
Gentlemen:—I received your trial bottle of Bloodine. That was not enough to do much for me, for I am very bad and weak, passing quite a lot of blood. Now, if you think that Bloodine will help me, you may send me one dollar's worth. I think by the time I take that I can tell if it will do me any good.
Signed, MRS. OCTAVIA E. CARPENTER.

Anty Drudge on Mending.

Mrs. Housewife—"I seem to do nothing but mend and darn all the time. Half the clothes are full of holes after a few washings."

Anty Drudge—"It's the boiling of your clothes in the wash that causes you all this work, Dearie. Boiling weakens them and makes them soft just as it does meat or vegetables. Use Fels-Naptha soap in cold or lukewarm water and the clothes will wear much longer."

Did you ever wear homespun? Probably not, but your parents did. Old-time clothes were coarse and tough, able to stand the boiling and rubbing and pounding of the old-fashioned way of washing.

The delicate fabrics of to-day won't stand it. Perhaps your clothes are boiled and rubbed hard, and that is why they get frayed edges, tear easily, and wear out before their time.

Fels-Naptha soap is the modern way of washing. It cleanses clothes thoroughly in cold or lukewarm water—no boiling, no hard-rubbing, little time.

Follow directions on the red and green wrapper.

ROOSTER COAL BRIQUETS

THE NEW ANTHRACITE COAL

ROOSTER BRIQUETS are made from the choicest small Scranton Anthracite coal mined in Pennsylvania, called TWENTIETH CENTURY CHESTNUT size

Just consider for a moment what we offer here in this 20th CENTURY CHESTNUT.

First, 2000 pounds of clean, pure, hard coal without a rock or a piece of slate.

Second, fuel that cannot form into a clinker, by any known method of firing, consequently the linings and grates last indefinitely.

Third, they are made in nut size, being equally convenient for furnace heaters, open grates, as well as stoves; therefore, only one storage bin is necessary.

Fourth, and very IMPORTANT, the quality of this fuel is the SAME EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR, not a good ton today, and nothing like it the next time, in other words, when you once learn how to regulate your drafts you have nothing more to learn about burning BRIQUETS.

Fifth, no more sifting ashes these Briquets burn out clean. They require less wood to kindle.

Be sure to ask for "ROOSTERS" and get the Briquet made from pure Scranton Coal, from the largest Briquet plant in the country. They are better than coal, will last as long and cost less.

SYNOPSIS

Anna Granger, devoted mother of two small children, discovers that her husband is a weak character and that he has lied to her about a woman.

Posing as Miss Dale, she becomes stenographer to Burton Temple, through whose evidence her husband has been imprisoned. She thinks Temple is the guilty man and is acting the spy to clear her husband's name for his sake and that of her children.

Anna discovers that Temple was one of her girlhood's ideals. Thinking her a single woman, he tells her her husband was a liar and perjurer.

Temple has detectives on the trail of Brady, an accomplice of Granger, looking for evidence. Anna is searching for evidence against Temple, who becomes interested in her.

He was looking down at her with that pathetically patient smile that always demoralized her. His voice, with the wonderful music in it, was upon her. She shivered and with a deliberate effort leaned forward so that she might catch a glimpse of the prison walls across the river.

"We shall know her when we meet her, don't you think?" the low, mesmeric voice went on. He had risen now and come close to the ottoman.

"Her?" She pretended to be mechanically following his words, her eyes still fixed resolutely upon the prison walls, the blood within her surging hotly. "Oh, the ideal princess? Why, yes, Mr. Temple, if she ever comes your way I hope you'll know her. But just think what a pedestal you've raised for her to stand upon!"

The strident little laugh, almost hysterical, jarred Temple's mood horribly. In patient amazement he lifted up his eyes. He crossed to his desk and, getting a pencil, began to sharpen it.

"It was only in a general way that I established the princess' qualities," he continued, with assumed lightness. "So it isn't fair of you to poke such fun at my standard, Miss Dale. Besides, your standard for the prince was just as high, wasn't it?"

"Maybe it was. But I don't believe in the prince any more; there's the difference, you see. He must have—oh, all sorts of impossible things."

Again that ringing laugh with a jerk in it. And the jerk snapped some odd thing in Temple's simple, honest heart.

"For example?" he said, in a quiet, kind way.

"Oh, honor, for example, and"—

A sudden understanding took him. He winced and hesitated.

"And?" he pursued steadily, laying the sharpened pencil upon the desk and closing up the knife slowly.

She was desperate. She was making her last tiger fight.

—"and a penknife."

"At least you will admit the penknife, Miss Dale."

The pain in his eyes, the gentle dignity of the man's bearing, struck home, making her heart cry out. She made a quick, restive, uncontrolled little move toward him.

"I—I beg your pardon. I was unwarrantably rude." An uncovernable little sob caught her breath.

"They should have gone to the Scriptures for your name, Miss Dale," said he with dry lips. "You should have been called Jael. I used to wonder what the woman could have been like who had the heart to kill that poor devil Sisera. She'd have done it looking just as you do now and have done it in just the same precise way. It was always a puzzle to me how she hit the nail so straight. Women mostly fumble on the heads. I know now. Jael could kill Sisera precisely and methodically without turning a hair, and I daresay when she'd finished she cried her heart out for the job that was put upon her. I daresay she protected that poor chap's body from the jackals for the rest of that day."

"I am horrible," she said brokenly. "And, oh, I would have you believe me I am sorry, sorry."

He looked at her again. It struck him of a sudden that there was something very childlike about her, very eternal and large.

"As for my honor, Miss Dale," he said to her in a low, concentrated tone that compelled her attention, "I have nothing to say at this moment. I hope I shall have soon. But if you could trust me now while it is dark, while the tide is all against me, you'd never regret it, never in God's world."

The last sentence was spoken quickly, passionately, the man's ordinarily calm voice quavering, never below the breaking point, dangerously near the edge of it at the close.

The wild jangling of the telephone bell broke the tension of their strained emotion. Anna, being nearest, took up the receiver.

"This is Esterbrook & Esterbrook," came an excited voice from the other end. "Get Mr. Temple to the phone at once without delay."

"Your attorneys," said Anna, handing Temple the receiver.

"Yes, it's I—Temple. What—indicted? You say I'm indicted?" He was trembling like an aspen leaf.

Rooted to the spot as in a dream the woman heard the agitated talk at Temple's end of the wire. She heard the particulars as he gathered them.

The grand jury, it appeared, had just returned an indictment against him for complicity in the matter of the wrecking of the Gotham Trust company and the overcertification of the check for $700,000 drawn by Cornelius Brady. A warrant had been issued for his arrest. She heard him arranging with Esterbrook over the phone for bail.

Bail! That word brought her to her senses. That word broke the spell. He, the big financier, would get bail. He would not know a prisoner's cell. He wouldn't even have to go to court until the time came to face his charge, and then—money again, and more, more money!

(To be Continued.)

FIRE ALARM LAST EVENING UNNECESSARY

The alarm from Box 612 at 5.35 Friday evening was entirely unnecessary. It was due to the hastiness of some excited individual. The fire, what their was of it, was in the automobile truck of Rice & Hutchins. The truck was coming up Hancock street and when near the entrance to the Boston Gear works plant, back fire started a slight fire in the pan under the truck. The driver of the truck did not get rattled and succeeded in putting out the fire with a few handfuls of mud and was somewhat surprised to hear the alarm sounding. When the department arrived the fire was all out and Engineer Nyhan promptly sounded the recall.

ANNUAL SALE.

The annual Christmas sale in aid of The Free Home for Consumptives, 428 Quincy street, Dorchester, will be held in Horticultural hall, Huntington avenue, Boston, Saturday, Dec. 16, from 10 A. M. to 10 P. M. Novelties and Christmas gifts may be purchased here at reasonable sums and besides securing the presents you wish for, you will aid a Free Home for poor consumptives. The affair is under the auspices of the Young Ladies' Charitable Association and the booths will represent the various parts of Boston and the suburbs.

MEMORIAL CHURCH, ATLANTIC.

The District School entertainment of Tuesday and Wednesday evenings netted eighty dollars for the china committee.

The competition between the china and useful committees is urging both committees to see which can by wit and effort accomplish the most for the organ fund. Little is being said by either committee at present as the time of the fair is drawing near when the committee which has worked the hardest will produce the largest sum.

All committees are working hard, and it is expected that the fair in November will be a record breaker in Atlantic.

The Sunday school has taken on new life since it has been graded, and officers, teachers and scholars are enthusiastic over new conditions. Reading tables have been purchased for each class.

Mr. and Mrs. N. B. Wells and family have come back to town and are living at 37 Webster street. The young people will appreciate Mrs. Wells' helpful counsel, and the church will be better for their presence.

From the tales of woe given by some of our captains of industry, the time is ripe to organize a Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Millionaires.

BRIEFS

The C. E. society of the First Presbyterian church is to have a Hallowe'en social on Tuesday evening.

John J. Mahoney of Ward Four and D. J. Seward McCurdy of Ward Two have taken out nomination papers for the City Council.

The annual meeting of the Quincy Charitable society is to be held Monday evening Nov. 6, with Mrs. G. G. Pratt of 1061 Hancock street.

S.T. MacQuarrie and family have given up their house on Bridge street and will board the coming winter months.

Lucien H. Thayer of Willow street, who last year held the post of teacher in the Wakefield High school has accepted a position as reporter for the Boston Globe.

Rev. Carlton P. Mills former rector of St. Chrysostom's church is to preach at the church Sunday morning at the 10.30 service. Mr. Mills is now secretary of the diocesan board of education.

The rehearsals of the Wollaston Glee club are well underway for the winter work. The high standard of previous years will be maintained and plans are materializing for the first concert to be held early in December.

Don't fail to be ready to give generously when the Hospital collector calls on you. It is a worthy cause and if you can only give a little, give it cheerfully and add your mite to swell the total receipts.

The alarm for fire Monday night was not a false one, but for a slight fire in a shed adjoining the house at the corner of Washington and Sumner streets owned by Thompson B. Crane. The fire was extinguished before the arrival of firemen.

AGREEMENT BROKEN IS SENT TO JAIL

Frank Mellow of South Quincy was arrested Friday afternoon by Inspector Goodhue for Deputy Probation Office Henry of Norfolk county. Mellow was in court last August and received a sentence of three months in the house of correction for drunkenness. Probation Officer Henry put him on probation in September, with the understanding that he should go to work, keep away from pool rooms and let liquor alone. It is claimed that he violated his probation and as a result he was arrested Friday and taken to Dedham jail.

BRIEFS

Eugene R. Stone is in Vermont on a business trip.

Next Thursday is the last day for filing nomination papers for the municipal caucuses.

A whist party is being held this afternoon at the John Adams birthplace by a committee of the Daughters of Revolution.

The lady clerks in the basement of City hall feasted on Smelts, Friday night, as a result of a good catch earlier in the day by Inspector Lennon.

A smoke talk in the interest of William J. Leslie, Republican candidate for representative will be held at the residence of Herbert F. Barker at Atlantic tonight.

Arthur P. Homer of Quincy was among the guests at the October meeting of the Newspaper club. The meeting was the first of the season, 31 members and guests being present. Some pertinent remarks were made by those in attendance.

At least nine of the members of the present City Council are not to be candidates for renomination and election. They are Councilmen Bolster, Branch, Bryant, Campbell, Gardner, Leslie, Nowland, Richards and Smith. There may also be others who will not enter the caucuses.

NO RIGHT TO KEEP BOATS AT FLATS

The case of Sarah F. Castor, against Annie E. Smith, both of Germantown, involving a suit to determine certain rights by easement in the use of flats at the Fore River bay, came up before the jury at the Dedham Court yesterday. The jury was out on the case about seven hours, and returned a verdict to the effect that the petitioner had no right to keep boats at the flats and had not acquired prescriptive rights, as was maintained had been the case, since a lapse of twenty years had been propounded as the sufficient cause.

Lynde Sullivan, F. H. Stevens and Storey, Thorndike, Palmer and Dodge upheld the petitioner, while George H. Tinkham was the attorney for the respondent.

NORFOLK COURT.

Among the cases at the Norfolk court at Dedham, verdicts for which were rendered recently, are the following:

Mary Ellen Butler of East Weymouth vs. Frank L. Brown of Boston Damages for personal injuries received at Hingham when automobilo struck carriage in which she was riding. Jury assessed damages at $500.

Patrick Butler against the same party. Damages assessed at $600 for expenses of medicines and care and loss of services of wife and minor children, and for damage to horse and team.

Suits against the same were also instituted with damages as follows: Mary Beatrice Butler damages $300, Edw. T. Butler, damages $50, William F. Shannahan, damages $50.

Thomas F. Brady of Weymouth against inhabitants of that town to recover a sum alleged to be due for labor as a fireman at the pump station of the water department of the town. Evidence unfinished.

QUINCY DEFEATS EVERETT

In the bowling matches of the Pattern Makers' League, held last evening in the Hub alleys in Boston, Quincy defeated Everett in a close and exciting contest by 15 points, the score being 1150 to 1135. Lee had the largest sum total for the three strings, being successful in attaining the 255 mark. He was also high single string man, his greatest roll being 92 in this respect.

NEW FEATURES IN EMPLOYEES' LIABILITY BILL

The outline of an employers' liability and workmen's compensation bill which the congressional commission will recommend for passage this winter was made public in Washington on Thursday last by Senator Sutherland, the chairman of the commission with the following features:

Compulsory and direct payment by railroads engaged in interstate commerce to employes, injured in the course of their duties. Cases of specified misconduct are to be exempted.

Employer to bear entire burden of payments, without any taxation of employes.

Law compulsory, without election by either employer or employe.

Remedies applied by this law to be exclusive of any obtainable under common or statutory law.

For disabilities continuing for two weeks or less, the employer is to furnish medical or surgical attention to an amount not exceeding $200.

Payments of compensation to be made periodically, and not in lump sums.

Amount of total payment to be limited to a maximum and a minimum and not to continue beyond a specified term of years.

Amounts of all payments to be based on a percentage of the employes' wages.

All claims shall be non-assignable and exempt from levy. In case of death, payments shall be made to dependents, including alien dependents.

SQUANTUM PROTESTS.

Wm. N. Kenyon, president of the Squantum Improvement Society sent a formal protest to the mayor of Boston on Friday against the establishment of a garbage incinerator on Long Island. They claim the presence of the plant on Moon Island is objectionable, and one on Long Island would be destructive to property values and the health of the inhabitants of Squantum.

SPORTING "DOPE"

By B. A.

Don't Knock, Just Boost.—B. A.

The Quincy A. A. football aggregation travels to Chelsea this afternoon, to encounter the Chelsea Y. M. C. A. team. The game was scheduled for last Saturday, but was postponed on account of rain.

All the admirers of the local High school evelen are eagerly awaiting the next game, scheduled to take place Tuesday afternoon at Merry Mount park with Brockton High. It will remembered that Brockton High was recently defeated by Somerville High, (the only team thus far to secure a victory over the much heralded Waltham High Aggregation,) by a small Park with Brockton High. It will be margin and in nearly every game in which the Brockton boys have participated, they have displayed championship form.

But the local lads need entertain no fear in this coming contest, for they have also taken the measure of some fast teams including Boston College "Prep" and High School of Commerce and if they can exhibit the same form as characterized their last game, they should be able to add another win to their list. Coach Staff is thoroughly conversant with the calibre of the Brockton players and claims that Quincy High is strong enough to take the measure of the football warriors who are to invade Merry Mount Park on this coming occasion.

Yesterday the local eleven was put through some strenuous practice and on Monday a gruelling test will be made of all players, in order that they may ably reciprocate the defeat that was administered to them last year. The game will be about the best that has been played by Quincy High this year and will afford a fine opportunity to test the efficiency of every player.

A fast and exciting roller skating race is billed for this evening at the Coliseum, where Burns and Hennessey come together in a one mile run.

W. P. G. CLU HAS HARVEST DANCE

The W. P. G. club of Wollaston held a very enjoyable dancing party at the Wollaston Yacht club Friday evening. The floor was in charge of the president Miss Fanny Wood assisted by Misses Dorothy Lavery, Helen Croucher, Merna Avery, Lydia O'Neill, Marie Lavery, Kathleen Wood, Helen Kechum and Robina Atkins. Paul Chamberlin of Allston and Kenneth Wood of Wollaston acted as ushers.

Guests were present from North Weymouth, Allston, Hopkinton, Somerville, Medford, Brighton, East Weymouth and Quincy. The matrons were Mrs. Frank Lavery, Mrs. B. Frank Wood, and Mrs. William Croucher of Wollaston.

The Famous Rayo Lamp

The Rayo Lamp is the best and most serviceable lamp you can find for any part of your home.

It is in use in millions of families. Its strong white light has made it famous. And it never flickers.

In the dining-room or the parlor the Rayo gives just the light that is most effective. It is a becoming lamp—in itself and to you. Just the lamp, too, for bedroom or library, where a clear, steady light is needed.

The Rayo is made of solid brass, nickel-plated; also in numerous other styles and finishes. Easily lighted without removing shade or chimney; easy to clean and rewick. Ask your dealer to show you his line of Rayo lamps; or write for descriptive circular to any agency of the

MILTON.

The annual meeting of the Men's club of the East Congregational church was held in the vestry Thursday evening. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: president—Louis V. Gosselin; vice president—Austin W. Greene; secretary and treasurer—Henry A. McCurdy; auditor—Elwood W. Pearce; membership committee— Howard P. Knox, Charles B. Hoxie and Josiah Babcock, Jr. The above constitute the Executive committee. Four new members were added to the membership list making a total of nearly eighty members.

Miss Abby Pierce, daughter of Chief of Police Maurice Pierce, is seriously ill at the Massachusetts General hospital to which she was taken early in the week.

Reginald M. Johnson, who is a member of the Milton special committee on pensions for town employes, and who as such drew up the perfecting amendments to the general old age pension law, spoke at Wells Memorial hall Thursday evening on the pension law before the Boston Bridge and Draw Tenders' Union.

Monday afternoon, Rev. Henry S. Huntington of Highland street, met with a painful accident, which came near being very serious. As he was taking leave of a friend upon whom he was calling in Roxbury, he made a misstep and fell backward down a flight of a few steps leading from the outer door to the sidewalk. It was at first thought that a rib was fractured, but it appears to be nothing worse than painful bruises and wrenching. He is making as rapid progress as could be expected toward recovery; but it will be some time before he will be entirely well.

CITIZENS OF HOUGHS NECK AGAIN CONSIDER SEPARATION

Some Opposition Was Placed On Record at Saturday Night's Meeting

Rumor That Paper Against Movement Will Be Circulated

About fifty men were in attendance at the second meeting, held at Pandora hotel, last Saturday, by the advocates of Houghs Neck Town government, to draw up plans to set the project in action. Many discussions waxed warm and practically the same arguments were advanced that had been put forth at the previous meeting. At the first meeting there was no opposition, while on this last occasion three men voiced their protests against the movement.

In the absence of chairman Oliver G. Fosdick, who had been detained on business matters, the meeting was called to order by Matthew J. Connors, one of the prime movers of the idea to have Houghs Neck divorced from Quincy. Mr. Connors outlined the policy that had been adopted by those who had been placed in charge of the movement and he presented the steps to be taken in bringing about the desired result. Mr. Connors reported that eighteen sets of petitions were already in circulation and that a large number had already consented to affix their signatures to the furtherance of the movement.

He said that Houghs Neck did not get a fair return for the amount of taxes that was accumulated from that section of Quincy and said that other sections of Quincy were deriving the benefit from the money that Houghs Neck people were putting into the city treasury. Mr. Connors said that with a tax rate of $9 per thousand, a town would be able to get along with the same concessions as were now forthcoming from the city of Quincy. He further stated that a tax rate of $16, which is considerably lower than the rate now imposed by the city of Quincy, highways could be maintained and other great improvements could be added to the Houghs Neck district.

Mr. Connors stated that a survey of the population, including Germantown, Adams Shore and Post Island, all under the combine of Houghs Neck, showed that there were 552 all year round families, whereas five years ago, there were but 42 families, thereby proving that the development of Houghs Neck has been exceptionally fast.

The chairman, Captain Oliver G. Fosdick, arrived at the time when Mr. Connors was bringing his remarks to a close and immediately assumed possession of the meeting. The captain, in his usual mood, explained the reason of his delay, but felt assured that Mr. Connors had ably presented the state of the case. The chairman called upon Mr. Connors to speak for a longer moment and the latter responded.

Mr. Connors, in concluding, took to task a local newspaper, not the Ledger, for the attitude it had displayed on the movement and for stating that the "affair had been framed up." Mr. Connors then went on to praise Captain Fosdick and asserted that he felt sure that no one present would believe that he would take part in any affair that was governed by an ulterior motive. He denied all that was said in the editorial and considered it a reflection upon those who had the interests of Houghs Neck at heart.

John J. Powers, the boat man, went on record in favor of the movement and deplored the conditions of many things as they existed at the present time. He felt that Houghs Neck was entitled to more consideration than it had received at the hands of Quincy and declared that the movement was worthy of the support of all the residents of the section.

James E. Wall was introduced at the gathering as the next Mayor of Quincy and all eyes were centered on him in order to weigh properly his arguments. Mr. Wall stated that it was placing him in a rather embarassing position to be called upon in such a movement and simply said that the movement was one well worthy of consideration and that he would be wiling to give it his suport provided it met with the approval of all residents of Houghs Neck.

John P. Moses gave a resume of the amount of taxes that were netted annually by the City of Quincy from Houghs Neck and stated that since Houghs Neck has been considered by the city officials as an inmubrance upon the city, it would be well to start the ball rolling towards town government at the earliest possible moment.

Daniel J. Maloney presented a number of facts, figures and statistics bearing upon the movement and showed where the project was a good one. He dwelt at length on the improvements that had been made and the trouble that had ensued in bringing them about.

Harry C. Pennington, candidate for the City Council from Ward One, was in favor of the movement and was loud in his censure of what little Houghs Neck had received in return for the money expended.

Henry W. French was then called upon and he lost no time in declaring to those present that it was the "most foolish and most idiotic project that had ever been undertaken by the people of Houghs Neck." He said that the time had not yet arrived for such a proposition and concluded by stating that he was opposed to it in every way and that the thought of it should not be tolerated by the intelligent men of the beach.

Thomas F. Phillips, a real estate man, also voiced his protest against the movement. He said that a Houghs Neck township would mean that taxes

PETERSON ANDERSON NUPTIALS

Reception In Colonial Hall Follows Wedding In Swedish Lutheran Church

AT HOME DEC. 1st

Mr. Albert B. Peterson and Miss Nanna C. Anderson were united in marriage Saturday evening at the Swedish Lutheran church in the presence of a large gathering of the many friends of the happy couple. Miss Emma Whiting played the wedding march and the ceremony which took place at 7.30 was performed by Rev. Axel Andria of Waltham. The bride was accompanied by Miss Freda Johnson and Miss Hilda Peterson while the groomsmen were Mr. Arthur Peterson and Mr. Englebrecht Anderson. The ushers were Mr. Niles Lindquist and Mr. Carl Carlson.

Following the ceremony at the church there was a very largely attended reception at Colonial hall which had been prettily decorated for the occasion. Quantities of red crepe paper was used which caused the lights to cast a glow that was very effective. In the centre of the hall was a long table in the centre of which was a massive wedding cake which was later cut by the bride. At the head of the table sat the bride and groom.

Brief remarks were made by the officiating clergymen as well as by Pastor Hokanson of Philadelphia, who has been called to become the pastor of the Swedish Lutheran church. There was also vocal and instrumental music. At 10.45 the bride and groom left in a shower of confetti and good wishes for a brief wedding trip, returning from which they will reside on Cranch street where they will be at home after December 1.

The bride was becomingly gowned in a white silk with lace trimmings. She also wore a tulle veil caught up with orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of bride roses. The bridesmaids were gowned in blue silk with picture hats to match and carried bunches of red roses.

ADDITIONAL CAMPAIGN EXPENSES

The following additional returns from candidates for nomination at the state caucuses have been filed with the City Clerk under the Corrupt Practice act.

William J. Leslie, candidate for representative $58.23.

Eugene H. Sprague, candidate for County Commissioner $604.83.

Walter E. Piper candidate for representative $66.90.

George A. Bolster candidate for representative $29.

Fred H. Lord, candidate for representative, nothing.

DECLARES DIVIDEND.

At a meeting of the directors of the Quincy cooperative bank Saturday evening a semi-annual dividend of two and three fourths percent was declared. It was also voted to transfer the sum of $50 to the quaranty fund and the sum of $209 to the surplus fund. The 46th series of shares was authorized to be issued Nov. 1.

BROTHERHOOD DEBATE ON LOWER FARE

Interesting Discussion About Important Question

MANY PRESENT

The discussion that there should be a five cent fare between Quincy and Boston was taken up with spirit by the Galahad Brotherhood of Christ church yesterday. John Spargo spoke strongly in favor while W. M. Spencer very pointedly opposed it. The discussion which followed was varied. While both the steam and electric roads were making a fairly good profit and since the electric railroads of greater Boston now come under one organization it is really an injustice to Quincy in forcing upon it the present rates for transportation, when the people of Newton, Everett, Malden, Arlington, Orient Heights and other places have better cars, run over a superior roadbed, making faster time and run oftener. These cities are as far from Boston and some farther than our own, yet they all enjoy the five-cent fare. The cost of living would be reduced here if the people were given better opportunity by means of a cheaper transportation to Boston. Competition would be keener and instead of the electric railroad carrying one person for ten cents they would be taking three at five cents apiece making a gain of five cents.

On the other hand it was claimed that on account of the long round about way by which we have to travel in order to reach Boston, and the maintaining of such, could not be carried out on a paying basis on a five-cent fare and that if the five-cent fare was installed it would be the employees that would suffer. Also that it would be injury to local merchants in giving the people an opportunity to deal elsewhere. The improvement could not be made under a losing proposition and that is what the five-cent fare would mean. The meeting closed with the question unexhausted.

DECORATIONS PRETTY AT HALLOWE'EN PARTY

A very enjoyable Hallowe'en party was held Saturday evening at the home of Miss Josephine Grignon on Hall place. The house and large barn, where the festivities were held were gaily decorated with jack-o-lanterns, pumpkins, etc.

In the house the program included vocal and instrumental music, games and refreshments. An adjournment was then made to the large barn where there was a husking bee. There was great rivalry on the part of the young people to find the red ears and it so happened that the three red ears found were all secured by young men, greatly to the disappointment of the young ladies. The husking over there was an informal dance until near midnight.

DELEGATE TO WASHINGTON.

Frank Fessenden Crane will attend the National Rivers and Harbors Congress to be held in Washington, Dec. 7, 8, and 9 as a delegate from this state. The meeting is to be held at the New Willard hotel and it is said every state will be represented.

MRS. COURTNEY DEAD.

Mrs. Minnie E. wife of Mr. Edmund W. Courtney passed away Sunday at her home 57 Putnam street after a brief illness. Mrs. Courtney was a daughter of Thomas Butler and enjoyed a large circle of friends who mourn her loss. She leaves a husband and one child.

Dr. Cook had to leave the lecture hall by the back door to escape the angry Danes. Some people never can take a joke.

MAN BADLY INJURED

Michael Haggerty Has Leg Crushed By Falling Stone

MAY HAVE TO AMPUTATE

Michael Haggerty of Grove street was seriously injured late Saturday afternoon at the quarry of Bishop Bros. He was engaged with other workmen loading a wagon with granite. In some way the chain holding a large block slipped and fell on him, crushing his left thigh and leg in a shocking manner.

Dr. Ash was summoned and found the thigh to be badly injured and the bone fractured in at least two places. A temporary plint was applied by the doctor and the man removed to the City Hospital. It is thought that it may be necessary to amputate the leg.

Mr. Haggerty resided with his father and mother on Grove street. His father is 90 years of age and his mother 80 years and he was their sole support.

BRIEFS

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Collins have returned from a ten days' southern trip.

Jeremiah Sullivan of Main street is at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., on a brief trip.

Auxiliary 5, A. O. H., are to hold a whist party and dance at St. Mary's hall, Nov. 13.

There seems to be a scarcity of candidates for Councilman-at-Large up to this noon there was no known candidate from Ward One for this office.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Bunton Baxter of Adams street, East Milton, are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter, born Friday. The little one will be called Katharine Frances Baxter.

Manchester Unity, I. O. O. F. Pride of Granite lodge holds a bazaar in Clan McGregor hall Wednesday and Thursday with whist parties both afternoons and concluding with a dance Thursday evening.

But a few days now remain for the local politicians to get their nomination papers signed. Nominations of persons to be voted for at the municipal caucuses must be filed before 7.30 Thursday night.

TODAY'S COURT.

Carl A. Hamilton was fined $25 for exceeding the automobile speed limit on the parkway.

Robert Carlson was fined $15 and John Lynch $5 for drunkenness at Quincy.

Charles J. Edwards was arraigned for violation of the City Ordinances by using indecent language at Quincy. Placed on file on payment of $1.70 costs.

Joseph N. Delory of Weymouth who was ordered to pay $4 per week for the support of his minor children and failed to comply with the order was brought into court and was ordered to assign a part of his wages to the probation officer for the support of his children.

Hugh P. Coyle and Daniel J. Callahan were arraigned for mutual assault at Weymouth. Callahan was also arraigned for drunkenness. Coyle was held $5 costs. Daniel J. Callahan was sent to the state farm on the drunk charge. He appealed and was held in $100. He was also fined $5 for assault. Appealed and held in $100.

—Senator Crane is quoted as saying that Massachusetts will elect a republican governor this year. That will be easy if republicans who last year kicked over the party traces return to their allegiance. Whether they will do so is the sole question involved in the coming campaign. Republicans elected Mr. Foss governor just as they sent him to Congress from the Cape district. If they like the way he has filled the office they may give him another term; if they don't, Senator Crane's prediction will be fulfilled, as it ought to be.—Lowell Courier-Citizen.

UNIQUE PARTY FOR YOUNG WOMEN'S CLUB

Was Given On Saturday Night At the Club House

THE COMMITTEE

Members of the Young Women's club were very pleasantly entertained Saturday evening at the club house, the occasion being a Hallowe'en party.

As the guests arrived they were greeted at the door by several ghosts, moans and groans being the only audible sounds, when they entered the darkened rooms.

When everyone had been admitted they were taken on "The Rounds." They were led through dark corridors up and down stairs, over hard and soft places and finally out over the lawns. In every corner, along the way, gobblins and ghosts appeared ready to pounce upon their unsuspicious prey. The shrieks of the party, as they met these uncanny creatures of this dark, old building, told how great was their fear.

On the return to the main hall, came the programme of the evening, which consisted of a Ghost drill, a Ghost song and dance by Miss Ruth Packard and Ghost stories. When the lights came on many of the old time Hallowe'en games were played.

Refreshments of apples, candy and popcorn were served, and a half hour of dancing closed the evening's pleasures.

The rooms of the club were decorated with autumn leaves and colored paper, and pumpkins furnished the light through grinning faces.

The committee in charge were—Chairman Mabel E. Lovejoy; Bertha Herne, Edith Fox, Gertrude Herne, Gertrude Burke, Helen F. Burke, Edith Lovejoy and Mabel Pratt.

BOYS BREAK WINDOWS IN SCHOOLHOUSE

A complaint was issued this morning to the effect that a number of young boys broke 10 windows in the new Wollaston schoolhouse, by throwing stones. The watchman chased the boys but was unable to ascertain the names of any of them. The matter has come to the attention of the police and a diligent watch will be kept up in an endeavor to locate the guilty ones.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Now that a New York woman has lost $4,000 out of her stocking, one's faith in the most standard methods of safe deposit are severely shaken.

Senator La Follette denies that he will go out for a campaign tour in November. He should know that the path to the presidency lies many a weary mile over the railroad ties.

Women teachers in New York now get equal pay with men. This is a long step toward the happy day when women shall provide the bread and butter for the family.

The only way our manufactures can continue to grow is by getting more foreign trade. We can never sell goods as long as we refuse to buy under a high protective tariff.

Mr. Taft has decided to extend his trip for two weeks additional. It looks very doubtful if he will ever again be satisfied to settle down and live the simple life in the White house.

The rains have filled up the springs so the farmers won't have to lug water next winter, but that is poor compensation for the national tension caused by the interruption of the world's base ball series.

Wall street men who have sold their automobiles say they wish they could sell their services as chauffeurs with the machines. Wall street always gets cold feet whenever the lambs show any disposition to hang on to their fleecy coats.

We note that the Mayor has issued a call for an extra session of City Council to be held this evening, among the matters to be considered, the important one of an appropriation of money to collect garbage. As the neglect of a matter of this nature would ultimately affect the health of the city, it is one that should and of course will claim the immediate attention of the city fathers.

Is there any one that makes your blood run hotter at all hours of the day than the man at the wheel on the auto? Why is it that the majority of drivers seem to think their responsibility ends with the blowing of the horn? How the people scurry when that horn toots! It does not matter whether they are on a street crossing and presumably have the right of way, it is all one, the horn toots, the auto does not slow down and every one dashes madly for some safe spot. And that safe spot where is it? It was only the other day that an auto climbed upon the sidewalk after one of our good citizens and worse luck caught him to. But in all seriousness does the average chauffeur think of the people on the street crossings as having a right to be there and to cross in comfort and safety, or as something to be hustled out of his way so that he won't have to slow down? We do not think the duty ends with the blowing of the horn. The driver should also slow down and not frighten to death those they avoid killing by sheer good luck.

Quincy and all Masachusetts cities, as well as the country at large, are interested in the celebration of "fire prevention day" which held the interest of the state of Vermont on Saturday.

This movement for designating one day annually for special emphasis, by practical cleaning-up methods and by exercises in the public Schools, upon which the need for and feasibility of prevention of fires, has made a worthy impression in many states, but this state has curiously failed to rise to the occasion. Consideration of this fact, with Nov. 9, the anniversary of the $65,000,000 Boston fire of 1892, close at hand, has led to the excellent suggestion that that date be established by some sort of an agreement as this Commonwealth's fire prevention day.

The first conspicuous effort towards marking such a day is understood to have been made in Illinois. Many western states have followed that state's example and taken the Chicago fire anniversary as the day for instruction and example.

Massachusetts should fall into step We have heard much agitation within recent weeks as to fire fighting by more improved apparatus, and fire prevention by extension of the city building limits in Boston, but neither of these lines of attack eclipses the desirability of making an annual public emphasis upon the possibilities for general lessening of the risks of fire. Such annual discussion so pointed, would provide each year a wealth of suggestions, from which some excellent and profitable results would follow. Let us all get together and push the movement along.

NEGLECTED HEROES.

The death of Mrs. Ida Lewis Wilson the famous woman light-house keeper of Lime Rock light in Newport, R. I., harbor, is a reminder of a group of people who assure the safety of public travel by patient self sacrifice.

During Mrs. Wilson's light-house career she has saved 18 lives, has received the thanks of Congress and many gold and silver medals.

The woman visitor to one of the lights of the sea shore of Great Lakes on a sunshiny day imagines the service as not unpleasant. The dustlessness of the water site makes possible a spick and span cleanliness which the landswoman envies, after her daily dust baths from the speeding motor cars. The glories of water scenery seem to envelop the light keeper's life with a sunshiny radiance.

But human nature with its wanderlust was not built for this intense devotion to a routine confined to so close a spot.

"Even when I am off duty," says Mrs. Kate Walker, who since her husband died 16 years ago has kept Robbins reef light in New York harbor, "I wake up every hour in the night to see if the light is all right. You get a thing like that on your mind. The light must be kept burning." Mrs. Walker for twenty years has not been farther away from her post than New York City or Brooklyn.

The story of the construction of our light houses is one both of engineering romance and heroic self sacrifice.

When Minot's ledge light was built off the Massachusetts coast, the men could work only three or four hours at a time, as the rock was mostly under water. Often they had to hold their breath and cling to the rock as the icy waves passed over them. Frequently boats could make no landing there, and the workmen had to seize hold of a rope, jump into the water, and be pulled into the rescuing boat like so many big fish.

In building the Tillamook head light, a mile off the Oregon coast, even greater difficulties were encountered. The water was so rough that most of the workmen were sent to the rock in a breeches buoy, and the rolling of the ship would at one moment duck them far beneath the water, and the next lift them 100 feet in air. For days they were without fresh water, they had no adequate means of heating, and were exposed to icy storms.

The traveller by one of the gilded and restful passenger ships of the pleasant day has little thought of the toil and pains that his safety has involved.

THE GYPSY MOTH.

If plans of the Bureau of Entomology of the Department of Agriculture carry, it will not be long before the forests of Massachusetts will be saved from the ravages of the gypsy moth. Experiments made near Methuen during the summer have convinced the bureau that it is working one the right lines and next summer the work will be carried forward on a more extensive scale.

Says Dr. M. O. Howard, chief of the bureau: In Eastern Massachusetts they have suffered less from the gypsy moth than they have for several years. One phase of this work was particularly gratifying.

"I refer to the experiments with the 'Schedius,' the Japanese egg parasite. In 1909 we imported these parasites and bred several generations. That summer we liberated them by millions and to our chagrin they disappeared. When the summer ended and we found only faint traces of them we were bitterly disappointed thinking we had made a complete failure.

"We will carry on the fight with the parasites andtanglefoot. We have discovered that for pine and chestnut tanglefoot is very effective. The young caterpillars, when they drop to the ground, cannot climb the trees and must rely on the underbrush for their food. By clearing away the underbrush most of them can be starved out. Those who survive until they are large enough to climb the trees are kept back by the tanglefoot."

WHO'S WHO IN QUINCY--WHY!

There are few more hazardous occupations than that of a sub-marine diver and in the years which Hiram W. Phillips has followed this occupation he has faced death many times and has had many narrow escapes. Many are the wonderful sights which his eyes have gazed upon far down below the surface of the water, and they are not all pleasant scenes by any means, for often is he called upon to descend beneath the surface of the sea to recover the body of some loved one who has been drowned.

Since he has followed this dangerous business he has been called upon many times to perform important work, not only in the recovery of bodies, but in the salvage of merchandise from the hulls of vessels that have floundered. Many will recall the sad fate of the steamship City of Columbus some years ago. This is but one of the many cases where his services have been called into use, and if he would, he could entertain for hours relating experiences.

Mr. Phillips was born in that part of Quincy, formerly known as the Neck, in 1850. At that time, however, it was a part of Braintree. He was educated in the public schools of Quincy and Pembroke and for the greater part of his life has made Quincy his home.

Politically he is a Republican, although it is a long time since he took an active part in politics. The last scene of his political activity was when he served his ward as a member of the City Council. Here he served his constituents faithfully during the years 1905 '06 and '07.

He is still actively engaged in the pursuit of his business as a submarine diver, and he resides on Washington street near the Fore River bridge. His reputation as a diver in an enviable one.

TARIFF PENALTY.

A Plea for a More Liberal Exemption of Personal Effects.

Apparently the autumn elections are to turn in large part not upon higher or lower tariff, but upon the method by which reductions in the tariff are to be made. There seems to be a general acquiescence that the country at the last election declared for lower duties.

Meanwhile, it must be borne in mind that the burdens of the tariff bear most heavily, not upon the rich, nor directly upon the poor, but upon people of moderate means—salaried and professional men, owners of small houses with a little money in bank—who constitute the bulk of the consumers of the country. Among these is a large proportion of the vast and increasing number of those who, to their great benefit, now and then travel abroad. "What is it that makes you Americans so fond of your country?" an English lady recently asked. "Seeing other countries," was the reply. This was not meant to be invidious, but it suggests one advantage of inter-national travel, the comparison of manners and customs.

We believe that one of the first steps in the direction of relieving the consumer should be an increase in the amount of the exemption allowed at the custom house to returning citizens. We believe, moreover, that this could be accomplished with a much smaller loss of revenue than would at first appear.

We have official authority for stating that the amount collected at the port of New York on all merchandise other than passengers' baggage from May 1, 1910, to May 1, 1911, was $206,034,744 while the duty collected on passengers' baggage for the same period was $2,210,759, being an average of about 1 per cent. of the total receipts. Since New York is the great port of entry for American passengers, the figures for the entire country would probably show a still smaller percentage.

At the present time the amount of exemption is a beggarly $100 for each passenger. Should this amount be raised to (let us say) $500, the loss in revenue would be much less than the 1 per cent, mentioned since all imports over the sum of $500 would still continue to pay duty. The rich, as they can and ought, would continue to bear the main burden. The point to be made is whether the compensation for the (let us say) one-half of 1 per cent of total receipts would not be found in the relief which would be granted to people of moderate means in the freer admittance of the incidental purchases which a traveler makes during a short stay in Europe. Certainly nothing is more exasperating to the average American citizen than to find himself, almost under the shadow of the Statue of Liberty, confronted with the pettiest form of inquisition as to small purchases, which, not being for sale, are not in any fair sense of the word in competition with the manufactures of this country.

The 60 per cent, exacted for most of such purchases is so great a hardship upon professional men as to deter many from undertaking so agreeable and instructive an outing as a trip to Europe. The returning school teacher who has had her first trip abroad and has been able to buy a few souvenirs or a few gifts, or perhaps even a gown or two for herself, may well be considered exempt from the operation of the theory of the tariff which, even from the point of view of the protectionist, is directed toward importations in bulk. That such purchases as a hat, an umbrella, cravats, and other clothing that has been worn, or a lens that has been put in the frame of an eyeglass, or a piece of antique ornamental ware, should pay duty is outrageous, since it is in the nature of a fine for going abroad at all. One must declare such trifles, for the customs regulations threaten with confiscation and imprisonment any omission or false return!

The least that can be done to mitigate the terrors and annoyances of the custom house is to afford a reasonable margin for the ordinary purchases of travelers. After that it is worthy of consideration whether, in the interest chiefly of milliners and tailors—many of them residents but not citizens of the United States—fines are to be retained upon Americans who buy personal clothing abroad, and , if so, whether a similar system of fines should not be etsablished in the interest of other businesses. Fancy the American Medical society demanding that patients returning from Carlsbad or Nauheim should be fined a certain percentage of the fees there paid for treatment? Or the publishers of American books and periodicals demanding an impost on all knowledge acquired from other sources? Were the system worked out on a consistent basis it would be such a reductio ad absurdum of trade inhibtion that the country would rise up in wrath and, in the spirit of the Boston tea party, set fire to every custom house in the country. Let us put aside the folly of taxing knowledge and taste and experience and make up the loss if necessary by an extra 2 per cent internal revenue on whisky.

Another argument for a more liberal treatment of returning travelers is that the expense of collecting revenue from the source is five times that connected with importations in bulk. At the port of New York during the fiscal year June 30, 1910, to June 30, 1911, there was collected on general merchandise the sum of $209,100,803.59, at an expense of $4,154,042.01, or .0198 cost per dollar. During the same period there was collected on passengers' baggage $2,305,562.20, at a cost of $275,058.33 or .119 per dollar. It is interesting to know that before the administration of Collector Loeb, not more than one-fourth of this amount was collected on passengers' baggage, and that purchases by Americans abroad have fallen to one-fourth of former totals.—Editorial in the November Century.

PRES. BRYANT MAKES STRONG DENIAL

President Bryant of the City Council takes exception to the allusion made to him in a local paper relative to his attitude toward the candidacy of Councilman Leslie for representative from the sixth Norfolk district. He states his position clearly in the following letter:

Editors of Ledger:

I notice in the Oct. 21st Telegram it makes certain references in regard to how I stand on the representative fight in the Sixth District. I want to distinctly state I was not asked to preside at any rally in the interest of any candidate in the Sixth District, that I have tried to make it plain to various newspapers in Quincy that this year I declined to be a candidate for any office and so consequently it seems to me that the newspapers ought to let me alone, and not bring me into the political situation in any way, shape or manner, as I am absolutely out of anything pertaining to politics at the present time, and the way I feel at the present time I am out of politics forever.

Yours very truly,
Charles M. Bryant.

Quincy, Oct. 28, 1911.

CORRECTION.

Editor of Ledger:

In the edition of your paper of Oct. 25, your correspondent no doubt unintentionally misquoted me at a rally held in my interest Oct. 24 at Atlantic. What I did say in regard to Mr. Barne's vote on election of U. S. Senator by the people happened on May 5, on tabling resolution in favor of direct election of U. S. Senators by people, House Bill 3091, he is recorded yes. I did not mention the 54 hour bill in such manner. On the eight hour bill, May 2, on ordering to the eight hour bill to a third reading (H 205) he voted no. Thanking you for corrections.

I remain sincerely,
John J. McDevitt.

SUNDAY IN OUR CHURCHES

Topics and Anncuncemens For Coming Week

SUNDAY SCHOOLS

ST. CHRYSOSTOM'S.

The Rev. Carlton P. Mills for ten years Rector of the church was the preacher at the morning service. At present Mr. Mills is secretary of the diocesan Board of Education.

The other services of the church were held as usual.

Wednesday being All Saints' Day there will be two celebrations of the Holy Communion, viz.: 9 and 10 o'clock. Members of the Alton Guild are reminded that all who can are expected to be present as a Guild.

Archie Briggs a prominent factor in the work among the boys of the parish gives assurance that as absence is only temporary and that through the winter months he will be on hand as usual and is looking forward to an evening a week spent with the boys. Definite announcement of the reorganization of a boys' club may be expected within a fortnight.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH,

The usual services were held, Mr. Matheson preaching at both services. At the morning service he took his text from Acts 20-28. "Take heed therefore." As the new elders and deacons were to be installed he spoke on the duties of these officers and their obligations to the church and at the close of the sermon the elders and deacons were then installed and ordained by a very impressive service.

Atthe close of the morning service the Bible school Brotherhood and Ladies' class met at the usual hour.

The C. E. service at 6 P. M., was very well attended and was led by Miss Margaret McIntosh.

The C. E. society are to hold a Hallowe'en party on Tuesday evening.

The regular mid-week prayer service will be held on Thursday evening at 7.30 P. M. The Young People's service at 7.

The monthly business meeting of the C. E. society will be held at the close of the prayer service.

FIRST CHURCH.

Rev. Peter H. Goldsmith, D. D., of Yonkers, N. Y., one of the most eminent divines of greater New York, occupied the pulpit at the First church and preached a masterly sermon before an unusually large congregation. His subject was "The two fellowships." Dr. Goldsmith also conducted the opening service of the Sunday school session which immediately followed the morning service.

The Fragment society hold an all day meeting in the chapel Wednesday.

The Junior Alliance held a cake and canday sale in the social rooms Saturday from 3 to 6 o'clock. There was a good line of home made cake and confections which met with a ready sale.

The Quincy Young People's Religious Union has charge of the flower table at the seventh biennial bazaar to be held at Hotel Vendome, Boston, Nov. 9, 10 and 11. Contributions for the table may be sent to Miss Minnie Packard, Chestnut street.

WOLLASTON UNITARIAN CHURCH.

Our church will send a large delegation to the annual meeting of the Norfolk conference of Unitarian churches which meets with the Third Religious Society in Dorchester, Wednesday, Nov. 1, from 10 A. M. to 4 P. M.

The program includes addresses by Mrs. Susan Whiting Ives of Andover, N. H., Rev. Wm. R. Lord of Dover, Mass., Ernest S. Meredith and Abraham M. Rehbany. An address will also be made by Rev. John Baltzly of Hudson. The subject being: How to strength our churches through the conduct of Public Worship.

The Wollaston Y. P. R. U., has charge of the doll table, (Miss Almira Simmons, chairman) at the seventh biennial Bazaar of the National Young People's Religious Union at the Hotel Vendome, Nov. 9-11.

Sunday evening, Nov. 5, at 6 o'clock the Y. P. R. U. will hold a neighborhood meeting to which the Quincy, Braintree, Neponset, Hyde Park and the five Dorchester Unions are invited. The address will be given by the Rev. A. M. Sihbany of the Church of the Disciples, Boston.

The annual collection for the Unitarian Sunday school society will be received by four young misses at the morning service of worship next Sunday.

The fifth annual conference and banquet of No-License workers of Massachusetts is held in Ford Hall this afternoon and evening.

Rev. Carl G. Horst conducted yesterday the morning worship in the Unitarian church of Winchester and addressed the Y. P. R. U. of the Balfinch Place Church, Boston, in the evening.

The Earnest Workers Lend-a-Hand Club will meet Tuesday, Oct. 31, at 3 P. M. with Miss Ednah Sanborn, 162 Warren avenue.

The Women's Alliance meets in the vestry, Thursday Nov. 2, at 2.30 o'clock. Topic: "Our Parish and Its Needs." Speakers Charles S. Adams, M. D., President of the Wollaston Unitarian Church, and the Rev. Carl G. Horst.

CHRIST CHURCH.

Services were held in the church at the usual hour. In the evening the rector continued his lectures on Confirmation.

Celebration of the Holy Communion will be held on All Saints' Day at 10 o'clock.

On Tuesday at 3.45 o'clock there will be a meeting of the Junior Auxiliary. Wednesday the junior confirmation class will meet at 4 and the senior at 8 o'clock. St. Margaret's guild will meet on Friday at 7.30.

The regular meeting of the Reapers' circle will be held at Mrs. Osborne's on Friday evening at 7.45.

THE REDISTRICTING PLAN.

The plan was prepared says the Transcript by a Massachusetts Republican acquainted with political conditions in each of the fourteen existing districts and familiar with State politics as a whole. In the compilation of the plan the desires of no one have been consulted. The task was undertaken some three or four months ago with an eye to remodeling two or three districts along certain lines. It soon became apparent, however, that no plan could be framed intelligently unless the whole State was laid under the new allotment, giving sixteen representatives to the State where fourteen are now provided for. As a result the individual district scheme was laid aside and the State considered impersonally as a whole.

In the belief that the interests of the State are conserved by the retention of sitting members as long as they can be induced to remain in office, the new lines have been so drawn that every present member is retained in his old district, subject only to some changes, most of them slight; while two new representatives who may run without opposition from the sitting members, are to be chosen.

The two new districts fall in the eastern part of the State. They could not well be assigned otherwise, for obvious reasons. Under the old apportionment and the figures of the Thirteenth Census the present districts all are top-heavy. The problem in all parts of the State is to reduce the districts to conform to the new unit of population. Urban has been much more rapid than suburban growth, and the great New England cities of Worcester and Springfield show much less proportionate growth than cities along the Atlantic seaboard. In the process of revision and compression the eastern lines of the present districts naturally move west, the movement being much more noticeable in the eastern than in the western part of the State, as a glance at the map will show.

The first of the new districts to be numbered Six, is made by dividing Essex County by means of a line running northeasterly from the Atlantic Ocean to the New Hampshire line at Methuen, all the towns north of which are used to form the new district. These include Gloucester, Haverhill, Newburyport and Lawrence, as the large cities, and the towns of Rockport, Essex, Ipswich, Rowley, Newbury, and W. Newbury, Amesbury, Salisbury, Groveland, Merrimac and Methuen. This arrangement unfortunately throws Georgetown, which is a political neighbor of Haverhill, into the Lynn district, but it hardly could be avoided.

The second new district, the thirteenth, would be composed of one ward of Boston and the cities and towns of Cohasset, Hyde Park, Milton, Quincy, Canton, Randolph, Holbrook, Braintree and Weymouth in Norfolk County; Brockton, Abington, Whitman, Scituate, Hingham and Hull in Plymouth County. An error in tracing the map was made which include Rockland and Norwell in the new district; they belong in the Harris district, as before. It will be seen at a glance that this arrangement removes Milton and Quincy from their uncomfortable political neighbors.

MEETING AT Y. M. C. A.

Of Those Interested In Forward Movement Held Sunday

JAS. L. RAND CHAIRMAN

The entering class of the evening law school connected with the Boston Y. M. C. A. is one of the largest that has ever entered the school. Many of the men are from Quincy and vicinity. For sometime it has been in the minds of some of these men to organize a Quincy club.

Saturday evening upon invitation of the local association a goodly number sat down to a spread. At the close of the repast J. James Floyd called the men to order and explained the object of the gathering. He also introduced J. A. Sedgwick who commended Dr. Sherman and Mr. Hayward was appointed to select the place at which the meetings are to be held.

At this point C. W. Rich a member of the Survey committee of the Boston committee of One Hundred addressed the gathering upon the importance of the survey. Many of the men had the feeling that the survey was not of much importance. After the address of Mr. Rich all saw the great benefit that may be derived from this important feature of the program.

The interest is increasing in the movement in ratio to the knowledge that the men acquire of the real object of the movement.

The District officers will need endeavor to perfect the organization of the towns in their district.

J. A. Sedgwick called the men together yesterday who represented the churches in the Quincy District in the Men and Religious Forward Movement yesterday afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. Dr. C. T. Sherman was elected secretary of the meeting. Each of the towns in this group was represented. The district comprises, Braintree, East Milton, Quincy and Weymouth.

The first item of business was the organization of the district representatives. This was perfected by the election of Mr. James L. Rand as chairman and General secretary Bromley as secretary. This being disposed of the place for holding the Eight Day's Campaign in January was decided upon. The place chosen was Quincy. A committee consisting of the object of the club. Mr. Sedgwick is a graduate of the school.

It was voted to organize the club. A committee consisting of Messrs Floyd, MacDonald and Tirrell was appointed to perfect the organization.

ALL SAINTS DAY.

Wednesday is All Saints Day one of the greatest festivals in the church calendar. On this day the church commemorates, not only all the known and unknown departed martyrs and confessors and the great army of valiant and faithful souls in every age and clime, but also those dear to us by ties of kindred and affection. Around this day cluster richly tender memories of our beloved dead and earnest expectation of our joyful reunion.

Nervy Mariner Shoots Niagara Rapids In a Motor Boat

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Oct. 30.—Captain Klaus Larsen of Detroit made his second trip on the Niagara river from the cataract to Lewiston in a motor boat, completing the six miles of stormy water in twenty-five minutes, and coming through without a scratch. But he is through with Niagara adventures.

"No more for mine," he said, as he stepped out of the boat at Lewiston. "The trip was worse than last year. The water was above normal, and the wind added to my troubles. There wasn't a minute I wasn't working for all I was worth.

"But next year I will make a trip across the Atlantic in the Niagara. Any boat that can take me through the rapids and whirlpool can take me to Europe."

ONLY SIX DAYS LEFT OF CONTEST

Boys and girls, today we start on the last lap of the S. & H. Green Stamp Hustler's contest. This means a lot of work for you if you intend to be in the race at the finish Saturday night. Remember the stamp parlor and voting booth is open every day and Monday, Friday and Saturday nights. Begin tomorrow, Tuesday, a list of the contestants will be published every day in the Ledger. Come boys and girls hustle for Green Stamps and Ledger votes and be one of the leaders. Do not forget to vote the Ledger coupons to be found on page 2 every day. Watch for the list tomorrow and every day this week. Contest closes Saturday.

TRAINING BIG BROTHERS.

Comprehension of what and who are the Boy Scouts is slow to filter into the public mind. The consequence has been misconception and a little hostility. The organization can be explained by its purposes, and its purposes are expressed in the course of twelve lectures for the instruction of scout-masters, announced for the Wednesday evenings of the next three months. Scout-masters must be men of twenty-four or more years with the qualities of leadership and moral responsibility necessary for handling the liveliest young animal known to science.

Briefly, the lecturers and their topics are: Mr. Samuel F. Batchelder, on Seamanship; Mr. Arthur A. Carey, on Chivalry and Discipline; Captain Harry G. Chase, on Signaling; Mr. Edward Howe Forbush, on Birds; Mr. H. W. Gibson, on Campcraft; Mr. Martin A. Kenealy, on Fire Drill; Mr. Joseph Lee, on Play; Mr. C. J. Maynard, on Animal Life; Mr. Samuel A. Moffat, on Organization; Prof. R. B. Perry, on How to Make Virtue Interesting; Mr. F. W. Rane, on Forestry; Dr. David D. Scannell, on First Aid and Public Health; Judge Arthur P. Stone, on Scouting as a Cure for Juvenile Delinquency; Mr. William Lyman Underwood, on Hunting; Mr. Arthur Wardell, on "Personal Touch; Its Possibilities" and Dr. Robert M. Yerkes, on "Mental Traits and the Boy Scout."

This list makes it clear that the training, which is to be transmitted from scout leaders to the boys, provides a kind of discipline and instruction which fits closely to the natural tastes and development of the average boy. The gang spirit is harnessed and put to work, and without destroying the spirit of play. All the wholesome instincts of savagery which lure a boy out of doors and into warpaint and feathers are met and utilized.

It will have occurred to many that the spell of life in the open has not relaxed on the spirit of many a grown man. Such are the ordained scout masters. It is no more than fair to ask them to pass on the joy they rad in the out-of-doors to their young brothers, especially as the enjoyment of doing so becomes very soon an end in itself. So these lectures, while instituted for the scout masters, have been thrown open to anyone interested, on the condition of registration and a nominal fee. That is to say, such themes discussed by these lecturers promise to be edifying for their own sake, while they provide a prologue to the work by which the listener may decide for himself whether he desires to enter it.

Invariably the vitality of a new organization may be guessed by the readiness of others to use it for their own propaganda. The Boy Scouts have been more embarrassed by certain of their many friends than by their few enemies. "We indorse you. But we note with surprise and pain that you have no anti-chewing- gum clause in your constitution;" "We applaud your work; now let us suggest that you join us in our anti-slang campaign." The virtue of an organization like the Boy Scouts is that it assumes all these things, and by so doing avoids propaganda, which boys abhor. Wisely, the Scouts, or their leaders, are declining to bestride hobbies. The movement is not a fad, and it is avoiding fads. Moveover, organized labor is beginning to see that its distrust was misplaced and a trifle ludicrous, and this country, as England has already done, is welcoming the Scouts as a national asset, not military but social.

Meanwhile, the idea takes hold, and a probable one-sixth of all the available boys in America are already enlisted. The organization started last February.—Boston Transcript.

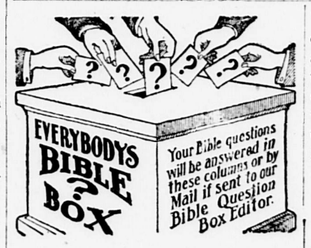
C. PATCH & SON, Inc.
Office, 1422 Hancock Street, Quincy



Q.—Can you explain the first three verses of the sixth chapter of Hosea?

Answer.—These verses, doubtless, refer to Israel's judgments and their final repentence and reconciliation. The three days we understand to be the days of the larger week, one thousand years to each day. In this larger week the seventh day will be the seventh-thousand-year period—the Sabbath of rest from sin and Satan. Recognizing time from this standpoint and applying to each thousand years the parallel day of the week, we find that, as over four thousand years had passed and the fifth thousand had begun at the time the Jews had experienced the judgments of the Lord in the destruction of the city of Jerusalem, it was therefore at a time corresponding to the fifth day of the lesser week, namely Thursday, the first day of the three mentioned, Friday the second day, and Saturday (the seventh-day Sabbath) the third, in which the Israelties will be revived and raised up to Divine favor and life. It is to be early in the morning of this third day—the thousand years of Messiah's reign—that "all Israel shall be saved" —Romans xi, 26. Then will be the seasons of refreshing which shall come from the presence of the Lord as indicated in the "rain" mentioned in the third verse and referred to by the Apostle Peter.—Acts iii, 19-21.

Q.—What is the unpardonable sin?

Answer.—The unpardonable sin is a sin which God declines to pardon or forgive—a sin, therefore, which must be unished, must be expiated by the sinner. There may be said to be different degrees of unpardonable sin, however. An unpardonable sin is one that is committed against light and knowledge. All sins for weakness and ignorance are pardonable, because God has made provision for the pardon of these in the death of Christ. Since all of our weakness and ignorance came to us through the fault of our Father Adam, and since Jesus redeemed the world from that transgression and all of its hereditary taint, therefore, every sin attributed to that fall alone is a pardonable sin.

There are, however, what might be termed mixed sins in which a measure of wilfulness, knowledge and intelligence combine with a certain measure of ignorance and weakness. For such sins there would be forgiveness to the extent of the weakness and ignorance, but punishment would be required to the extent of the knowledge and wilfulness. A wilful sin against full light and knowledge would be a sin against the holy spirit of God. Such, knowingly committed, would bring the sinner under the sentence of the sin; namely, the Second Death.

HOUGHS NECK MEETING

would go up and that conditions would be far worse than they are at the present time.

Captain Fosdick then took it upon himself to respond to Messrs. French and Phillips, by asserting that every argument they had advanced was purely speculative and that the facts and figures that had been presented were sufficient to attest to the logic of the movement.

It was then argued that a town government could be maintained on $20,000 taxes a year, provided the people were willing to feel satisfied with the present state of affairs.

Other speakers were A. T. Baker, John A. Souther and Neil J. Regan, all of whom advocated the proposition. Charles W. Hall was also in opposition.

Harry C. Greenlaw and Michael C. Coughlan were called upon, but both declared that they wanted further time in which to watch developments before stating their positions on the matter.

A bill petitioning the legislature for the separation of Houghs Neck from Quincy has already been drafted and about forty-nine names were secured at the meeting. It was voted to send the petition to the legislature and a committee was selected to look after this work.

The gathering adjourned shortly after ten o'clock, to Associates' hall, to partake of the supper that had been scheduled under the auspices of the Houghs Neck Associates. An enjoyable time was spent and the meeting resolved into a mock trial, similar to one which took place at a town meeting. All present took part with Neil Regan, Henry W. French, Archie Baird, Thomas Phillips and Peter Healey shining forth in the all star role. Another meeting will be held this week to determine the progress that has been met with and to advance other ideas that will further the project.

There was a rumor this morning that a meeting of those opposed to the movement was held yesterday and that all present voted against the project of separation unanimously. As far as can be learned there is no credence to be placed in such a report, but there will be in circulation, within a few days, a paper, which will be signed by those who are opposed to the new movement.

It is claimed by those who do not favor separation, that the men who are agitating the measure are to a great degree but mere poll tax payers and that the debt would be incurred as a result of separation would be such that the tax rate would be considerably increased.

HALLOWE'EN DANCE OF BONITA CLUB

Electa hall was the scene of a very happy gathering last Saturday evening, when about 75 couples, composed of residents of Weymouth and South Quincy assembled in a pretty Hallowe'en party under the auspices of the Bonita club. The hall had been prettily decorated for the occasion and the variety of electric lights that were in evidence added a touch of lustre to the event.

Hallowe'en dances of all descriptions were on the order and the entire event was in charge of a committee composed of Miss Beatrice Jones, Miss Gertrude Jacobs, Miss Alice Connell, Russell Mannix, John Joyce and James Leary.

BRIEFS

Special meeting of the City Council will be held tonight.

Mrs. Harry Gale of Winthrop, Me., is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Penniman of Revere road.

Rev. and Mrs. Armstrong will give a Hallowe'en party to the boys of the Sunday school in the rectory on Tuesday evening at 7.30.

The annual meeting of the Sunday School union of the Episcopal church, Diocese of Massachusetts will be held in the Chapel of Emmanuel church, Boston, on Wednesday, Nov. 8th at 11.30 o'clock.

The Norfolk conference of Unitarian and other Christian churches will hold the annual meeting at Dorchester on Wednesday, Nov. 1st, with the Third Religious society, corner Dorchester avenue and Richmond streets.

Several members of Maple Lodge K and L of H are to attend the "Jolly Glide" party given by the grand lodge officers of Massachusetts at Unity Lodge room, 730 Washington street, Boston, on Friday evening. A grand good time is looked forward to.

Maple Lodge K and L of H 313, entertains the deputy and suite, the board of grand officers, and other members of the order at their regular meeting in Protection hall, Wednesday evening. An enjoyable time is looked forward to, as the entertainment is in the hands of an able committee.

BAY STATE GRANITES.

Furnish Wide Range of Economic Uses, According to United States Geological Survey—Rust Stained Granite in Vogue for Carving.

Many thousands if not millions of years ago the present surface of New England was covered with an enormous thickness of sedimentary rock—thousands of feet of sandstones, slates, and other of the softer kinds of rocks. In the course of time dynamite agents pushed upwards into this sedimentary rock crust great masses and jets of molten material—the liquid magma from the earths interior. Probably none of this material was forced entirely through the heavy sedimentary cover, but the molten masses gradually cooled and crystallized within the older rocks, forming granite. Then at the rate of perhaps an inch or more in a thousand years, these softer rocks were eroded or worn and washed away, leaving the granite exposed in many places, as it is found in Maine, Massachusetts, and the other New England States today.

The United States Geological Survey has been making a detailed study of these granite rocks of New England, and the latest contribution is a report on the granites of Massachusetts, by T. Nelson Dale, just published by the Survey. These granites, according to Mr. Dale, are of such variety as to lend themselves to a wide range of economic uses. Those most notable for their adaptation are the massive constructional granites of Milford, Fall River, New Bedford, and Rockport; the hard paving granite of Rockport; the polish granite of Quincy; the gneisses of Monson, Westford, Fitchburg, and Uxbridge, used for bridges, base courses, curbing, and sills; and the aplite of Hingham used for seam-faced work and for structures in which unusual crushing or transverse strength is required.

Are Found in Many Colors.

Ths Massachusetts granites vary greatly not only in texture but also in color and shade—some are pink; others pea-green, olive-green, gray of various shades, from light to very dark, besides grays of slight bluish, purplish, or greenish tinge; one kind is brown.

Among the more notable works of Massachusetts granite are the Pennsylvania Terminal in New York and the McKinley Memorial at Canton, Ohio; the Boston and Baltimore post offices; the Army and Navy training stations at Newport, R. I.; Bunker Hill Monument; the large polished balls at Rock Island, Ill., and Fairmount Cemetery, Newark, N. J.; and the Whitney monument at Woodlawn Cemetery, New York.

Of special economic interest, says Mr. Dale, is the utilization of the extremely hard, almost sheetless aplite of Hingham, which is full of limonitic headings. For a number of years there has been a demand in the vicinity of Boston for rusty, seam-faced granite for the exterior of buildings, and quarries were opened in Hingham to supply such stone. It is now proposed to transform these ordinary obstacles to granite quarrying into things of beauty by carving bas-reliefs of leaves and garlands on the iron-stained joint faces. This is done by cutting away the sap or rusty part which is usually one-eighth to one-fourth inch thick, so that the leaves in brown project on a light-grayish ground. Blocks thus worked can be utilized in ornamental bands on exteriors.

Utilizing the Waste at Quarries.

A noticeable feature at many of the Massachusetts granite quarries is the recent addition of a stone crusher for turning the small waste into material for concrete, and even the "dust" from the crushers is in demand. Most of the waste in now consumed in paving blocks and crushed stone.

The production of granite in Massachusetts in 1910 was valued at $1,567,754.

A copy of Mr. Dale's report (in Bulletin 470-G), as well as Bulletin 354, by the same author, "The Chief Commercial Granites of Massachusetts, New Hampshire, and Rhode Island," may be had free on application to the Director of the United States Geological Survey, Washington, D. C.

FOR THE SIMPLE LIFE

Millionaire Lumberman to Take Bride at Age of Seventy-Five

Minneapolis, Oct. 30.—H. C. Akeley, 75, millionaire lumberman, is to marry Mrs. Clara R. Royce. Akeley took steps before his departure to wind up his business affairs with a view to making his home in California.

Just before his departure Akeley said he was seeking the "simple life." It is said the romance began when the capitalist, talking with Mrs. Royce, discovered that she was the niece of S. D. Clough, one of his intimate boyhood friends, and that the two families were more or less closely associated in Vermont more than a half-century ago.

WEDDED AT ROXBURY

Miss Alice M. Hay Becomes Bride of Chas. L. McDonald

GROOM QUINCY MAN

A very pretty and attractive wedding ceremony was performed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander F. Hay, 19 Alberta street, Roxbury, Wednesday evening, when their daughter Alice Mary, was united in marriage to Charles Leslie McDonald, of Maple street, Quincy.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. L. H. Austin of Roslindale, the former home of the family. Miss Jessie Barney played the wedding march from Lohengrin. The bride wore a gown of white messaline with veil and carried a bouquet of bride roses and lilies of the valley. She was attended by her sister Miss Flora Hay as maid of honor, who wore a gown of blue messaline, trimmed with pink rose buds, and carried a bouquet of pink roses. Alexander Stratton of Vermont a cousin of the groom was best man. Miss Evelyn Isabelle Hay, the little sister of the bride acted as flower girl and master Robert G. Adie as ring bearer and the ribbon bearers, were Misses Alice Bruce, Helen Marr, Christina Adie, Bella Thompson, Charlotte Hay and Mary Hay. The bride was given away by her father. At the close of the ceremony a large white bell under which the bride and groom were standing opened and showered them with confetti amidst the hearty congratulations of their friends.

The guests were many, and came from Vermont, Attleboro, Quincy, Dorchester and Boston. The gifts were many, handsome and useful, among those displayed being a burnt wood box with the name, containing $50 in gold, in recent coin of one, five and ten cent pieces, from the employes of the Arthur E. Dorr Company of Boston, where Mr. McDonald is bookkeeper.

A collation was served, including a delicious and handsome wedding cake, a gift of Mrs. George Stratton, an aunt of the groom from Vermont. The decorations were beautiful and attractive and were by Crarles E. Grassick.

After a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. McDonald will go to housekeeping on Bellevue avenue, Roslindale.

Mr. McDonald is the only son of Mrs. Sarah McDonald of Maple street, this city.

SHUT-IN SOCIETY ANNUAL.

The annual meeting of the Massachusetts branch of the Shut-In society was held in Park Street church vestry Boston, Oct. 27. The reports showed an encouraging gain in membership and a large increase of work done. Several wheel chairs and lifters have been added, so that now there are about fifteen belonging to the branch in use by the members in the State, besides a number owned by the central organization of the society.

The regular correspondence with and visits to the members the sending of gifts at Christams and birthdays, the distribution of reading matter, materials for work, etc., constitute the chief work of the society.

The following-named officers were elected: Rev. John McGaw Foster, honorary president; Mrs. Frank Basil Tracy of Wollaston, president; Miss Miriam B. Means, vice president; Mrs. A. F. Hamnett, secretary; Mrs. John H. Sturgis, treasurer; Mrs. C. L. Farrar, chairman of the helping hand committee and of the committee on juniors; Mrs. F. W. Crocker, chairman of the committee on visiting and entertaining; Miss Mabel Adams, chairman of the committee on birthdays, and A. A. Coe, in charge of the men's work.

IN VIRGINIA.

The roses nowhere bloom so white
As in Virginia;
The sunshine nowhere shines so bright
As in Virginia;
The birds sing nowhere quite so sweet
And nowhere hearts so lightly beat,
For heaven and earth both seem to meet
Down in Virginia.

The days are never quite so long
As in Virginia;
Nor quite as filled with happy song
As in Virginia;
And when my time has come to die,
Just take me back and let me lie
Close where the James goes rolling by
Down in Virginia.

There is nowhere a land so fair
As in Virginia;
So full of song, so free of care
As in Virginia;
And I believe that Happy Land
The Lord's prepared for mortal man
Is built exactly on the plan
Of old Virginia.

JOSEPH PULITZER
Famous Publisher Dies on Board Private Yacht

GREAT FIGURE IN JOURNALISM

Passes on With the Death of Joseph Pulitzer

EXPIRES ON PRIVATE YACHT

Charleston, Oct. 30.—Joseph Pulitzer, one of the foremost of American journalists, died aboard his private yacht, the Liberty, in Charleston harbor Sunday afternoon. The immediate cause of death was heart failure, although he had been in ill-health for some time. However, the end was as a severe shock to those around him as his acquaintances in Charleston, for there was no suspicion on their part that his condition was serious.

Mrs. Pulitzer, with her youngest son, Herbert, was at his bedside when death came. Joseph Pulitzer is now en route to New York from St. Louis; one daughter will come from Colorado. Ralph Pulitzer is en route to Charleston.

A dominant figure in American journalism for thirty years, Joseph Pulitzer was in many respects a remarkable man. Born near Budapest, Hungary, on April 10, 1847, his father was a man of education, intelligence and fortune. When young Joseph reached his sixth year his physical condition was such to preclude the belief that he would attain his majority. As a child he was restless, impatient and precocious, alive to the affairs of the world. He was a voracious reader even as a child.

At the age of 14 years Joseph was cast upon his own resources. His father had died some time previously, but it developed that the fortune had been wasted by the careless and improvident methods of the elder Pulitzer, so that little remained. Forced to make a living for himself and mother, and fortified by an excellent education, he went to Paris and thence to London.

In 1864 his eyes turned to America. He detested slavery and he resolved to come to the United States and fight for the union and the freedom of the slaves. On reaching New York he enlisted in the First New York cavalry and was assigned to a squadron made up almost exclusively of German speaking foreigners like himself. The regiment was attached to Sheridan's command in Virginia and served until the close of the rebellion.

Mustered out of the service in the summer of 1865, Pulitzer returned to New York in the hope of finding and adopting a congenial career. But the prospects were not brilliant. Without having any definite plans in mind, he went to St. Louis, arriving there without friends and practically penniless.

His first occupation was the care of sixteen government mules at Jefferson barracks. At the end of four weeks he returned to St. Louis and performed odd jobs about town. Until the summer of 1866 he led a hard life, and meanwhile learned with difficulty the English language. In winter he worked as a stoker on a ferryboat.

By the aid of a lawyer Pulitzer obtained a commission as notary public. He later joined the staff of the St. Louis Westliche Post as reporter, then became editorial writer and later managing editor and part owner of the paper.

Naturally a fighter, Pulitzer drifted into politics. He was sent to the state legislature, then in 1875 to the state constitutional convention, in which body he strongly opposed all efforts to take from the people of Missouri the right to amend their constitution.

Going to Europe about this time, Pulitzer found rest in travel, but he was a constant contributor to many of the leading American newspapers during his sojourn abroad. On his return to St. Louis, he bought several small afternoon newspapers and consolidated them under the name of the St. Louis Post Dispatch. This venture made the name of Joseph Pulitzer famous in newspaperdom, and throughout his career in the western city he fearlessly fought the cause of the people.

ROOSTER COAL BRIQUETTES
NO SLATE NO CLINKERS
ROOSTER COAL BRIQUETS
THE NEW ANTHRACITE COAL
ROOSTER BRIQUETS are made from the choicest small Scranton Anthracite coal, mined in Pennsylvania, called TWENTIETH CENTURY CHESTNUT size
Just consider for a moment what we offer here in this 20th CENTURY CHESTNUT.
First, 2000 pounds of clean, pure, hard coal without a rock or a piece of slate.
Second, fuel that cannot form into a clinker, by any known method of firing, consequently the linings and grates last indefinitely.
Third, they are made in nut size, being equally convenient for furnace heaters, open grates, as well as stoves; therefore, only one storage bin is necessary.
Fourth, and very IMPORTANT, the quality of this fuel is the SAME EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR, not a good ton today, and nothing like it the next time, in other words, when you once learn how to regulate your drafts you have nothing more to learn about burning BRIQUETS.
Fifth, no more sifting ashes these Briquets burn out clean. They require less wood to kindle.
Be sure to ask for "ROOSTERS" and get the Briquet made from pure Scranton Coal, from the largest Briquet plant in the country. They are better than coal, will last as long and cost less.

Why is the soda cracker to-day such a universal food?

People ate soda crackers in the old days, it is true—but they bought them from a barrel or box and took them home in a paper bag, their crispness and flavor all gone.

To-day there is a soda cracker which is the recognized staple — Uneeda Biscuit.

Uneeda Biscuit are the most nutritious food made from flour and should be eaten every day by every member of the family from the youngest to the oldest.

Uneeda Biscuit—soda crackers better than any ever made before—made in the greatest bakeries in the world—baked to perfection—packed to perfection—kept to perfection until you take them, oven-fresh and crisp, from their protecting package.

SYNOPSIS

Anna Granger, devoted mother of two small children, discovers that her husband is a weak character and that he has lied to her about a woman.

Posing as Miss Dale, she becomes stenographer to Burton Temple, through whose evidence her husband has been imprisoned. She thinks Temple is the guilty man and is acting the spy to clear her husband's name for his sake and that of her children.

Anna discovers that Temple was one of her girlhood's ideals. Thinking her a single woman, he tells her her husband was a liar and perjurer.

Temple has detectives on the trail of Brady, an accomplice of Granger, looking for evidence. Anna is searching for evidence against Temple, who becomes interested in her.

Despite herself, Anna becomes fond of Temple, although determined to convict him for the honor of her boys. Temple's detectives discover Rose Fanchon, the woman for whom Granger was a thief.

Temple desires to marry Anna. She rebuffs him, questioning his honor. Temple is indicted for the crime for which Granger is suffering imprisonment.

CHAPTER VII.

THE BURNED LETTER.

THE picture of Robert, her husband, came up before her vividly. Robert, the gentle little man who always failed; what a difference between his case and the case of this other, the man who had set him there behind bars! And she had been listening to this Temple! She had been stirred and moved by him! Oh, it was shameful—shameful!

But, thank God, that telephone bell had rung in time to save her. She could still be the tigress for duty's sake; she could spy upon him and watch a little longer.

Temple's changed manner when he had hung up the receiver with a bang assisted her materially. It was no longer the prince that she saw. It was a fighter, bitter, determined. Every one who knew him knew what it meant when his lips met in that hard, straight line; when that red gleam lay level in his eyes.

"Well, Miss Dale," he said abruptly, "you'll have a chance to see now whether or not I am a thief. They're going to put me in the dock, confront me with that dirty little scoundrel Granger, set my record for honor and honesty in the balance against the word of a thief, make me face that liar Brady."

"When—when will they do this?" the woman asked. Her voice was strangely hard, metallic, but in his agitation Temple did not notice it.

"I don't know, but it can't be long delayed. And to think that's what she'll be coming home to, my blessed little mother!" His eyes involuntarily sought the portrait over the mantel. "Can a man work, slave, struggle uprightly all his life long, for no other reward than this? Because a sneaking little thief lies about me must I go down to a prisoner's dock, for the time being disgraced, to fight, a felon in the public eye, for the honor I have never tarnished?"

Craven swept in like a veritable whirlwind. His eyes were scintillating, his teeth snalling.

"I've just been indicted, Craven," said Temple before the elder man could speak.

"Indicted!" The lawyer laughed a sneering laugh of triumph. "Humph! Much we care now for an indictment. Come on, old boy, come on! Crane's outside, and he's got the goods!"

"You don't mean"—

"Yes, exactly; that's what I mean. He's got 'em, boy; he's got 'em!" Clapping his arms gleefully about his friend's shoulder, together they left the room.

In a moment Craven came back. The ordinarily cool, collected lawyer was in a state of huge excitement. He paced up and down the room, muttering to himself, now and again rubbing his lean hands with joy unconfined.

Anna watched him furtively, puzzling, wondering, fearful. What had happened? She knew instinctively that something momentous was occurring outside between Temple and this newcomer, whoever he was, but just how it affected her and her work she couldn't even guess.

"Mr. Craven," said she abruptly, leaning forward over her desk, the better to hear his solution, "what does 'got the goods' mean?"

"A lot," snapped he. "In this case it's everything. It's the case itself! Eh, Cato?" He gave the mastiff, who was enjoying himself before the first grate fire of the season, an affectionate dig.

Then Temple came in. His face and his bearing told her more plainly than words that he had just won a great victory.

"Miss Dale, you won't mind, I'm sure? Mr. Craven and I have some important private business to discuss." When she had gone, Temple turned to Craven.

"It's all right, Craven; it's all right. It's Granger's own letter. See!" He held out a letter whose torn fragments had been neatly pieced and pasted together on another sheet of paper.

"By Jove!" ejaculated the old lawyer, tremblingly grabbing the letter.

"Well, wait a minute," cried Temple, boyishly clutching him by the shoulder. "Let me explain first what a narrow escape we've had. Crane came across it just this morning in an old file. He was looking over Brady's shoulder, Brady, reading it, with an oath, tore it up. Then Crane told him somebody wanted him on the phone outside"—

"Go on; go on," exclaimed Craven, grinning delightedly.

—"and when Brady went Crane grabbed the pieces, bless him, and hurried out of the office, never to return again, I dare say."

"Hang it all, as if I cared what he does now!" Craven read aloud from the letter, fiercely exultant:

"Dear Mr. Brady (Brady himself, you see, Temple!)—Your letter in regard to certifying check for $700,000 to be drawn on Gotham Trust company received; also your proposition to writer noted"—

"Guess that's plain enough," laughed Temple.

Craven, with a nod, pursued:

"If Temple refuses to certify an old friend's check I won't. I'll accept your proposition. I will certify the check. You are to make good with the funds by the 28th, and I am to receive for said services the sum of $100,000. Send the check in the morning and it will go through O. K. in spite of Temple. Very truly yours,
ROBERT GRANGER.

"Measly little villain! We've got him! We've got him!" cried Craven, with fierce gladness.

"What a fool, what a beastly little fool, he was to put that all down in writing," was Temple's only comment.

"Huh?" said Craven reflectively. "Oh, I don't know. Pretty slick, I think. That agreement covered in writing, you see, did the job, made him sure of getting his money. Well, we won't need that information about the New York Central stock now, will we, old boy? The woman in the case and all other such little things are superfluities now, eh?"

"Sure they're superfluities," agreed Temple, smiling. "There's no call to rub it in on the poor villain."

"Temple, lock this gilt edged precious thing up at once," said Craven, handing him the letter. "Can't take any chances with this. Your good name, your honor, is there, there, understand?"

Temple crossed with the letter over to his big safe, then paused.

"Hang my memory!" he said. "If I haven't forgotten the combination, as usual! Call Miss Dale."

When Anna Granger entered, calm, businesslike as ever, neither of the men got a hint of the way in which her nerves were tingling nor of the volcano of emotion raging back of those quiet gray eyes.

"Awfully sorry to disturb you again, Miss Dale, but, you see, once more that pesky combination's clean escaped me. We must lock up this letter; it's of vital import."

She bowed, not trusting herself to speak, and, walking over quietly, unlocked the safe. Temple put the letter in and locked the safe himself.

"We win, Miss Dale, we win!" he cried like a joyously excited boy. Then his voice became tender and grave. "I want to talk to you a little later," he said. "Will you mind waiting for me here? Come, Craven, Esterbrook's man is outside and we have to sign some papers to send down by him."

BRAKEMAN LEAVES SIDING SWITCH OPEN

Express Runs Into Freight and Twenty Lives Are Lost

Cheyenne, Wyo., Oct. 30.—Twenty were killed and more than thirty injured in a head-on collision of the Atlantic express and a west-bound freight train at Rock River, eighty miles west of Cheyenne.

Among the dead are Hans Bangs and Joseph Spencer, engineer and fireman of the express.

The freight had backed in on the siding to permit the express to pass. Robert E. Lee, head brakeman, neglected to close the switch, and the express, running fifty miles an hour, rushed on the siding and into the freight. The siding is on a curve and Bangs was unable to see the freight until right upon it.

PIERCE MARRIAGE VOID

Man Who Married Mrs. Chapman Is Freed by Annullment

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Oct. 30.—Supreme Court Justice Morschauser annulled the marriage of Roy Pierce to Mrs. Bessie F. Chapman Pierce. The suit was brought by H. F. S. Edgar as next friend of Pierce, who is a son of H. C. Pierce, the Standard Oil millionaire.

Last year Pierce followed Mrs. Chapman to Paris, where she threw Baron J. O. Rothschild over for Pierce, and the two were married in this country Nov. 14, 1910.

Annullment was sought on the ground that Pierce was incompetent to enter into a marriage. His father and brother, Thomas F. Pierce, described him as a profligate and a victim of the excessive use of drugs and liquor.

REPUBLICAN RALLY

son, secretary and Neil Carlson, treasurer.

The meeting was then thrown open for the political aspirants who were present and a fine rally was in order. Councilman Ericson started in by saying that the issues of the campaign would be clearly expounded by the speakers. He urged all to get out on election day in order to give the Republicans a handsome vote.

The first speaker of the evening was Walter E. Piper, candidate for representative from Ward One. He said that he esteemed it a great privilege to be present at the meeting of Scandinavians, because a number of them were residents of his neighborhood. He advocated the election of the entire Republican ticket from top to bottom.

He spoke upon the candidacy of Councilman Leslie, and also touched upon the record of Senator Barnes. He spoke in favor of having Quincy placed in a Republican district, if he is elected to the legislature. In conclusion he said, that in the event of his election, he would thank his supporters, and do all in his power to aid in the interests of his district. He said he would always act in a conscientious manner upon all measures and had nothing to say with regard to his opponent.

Councilman William J. Leslie was the next speaker. He is a candidate for the House from the sixth Norfolk district. He said he felt very much pleased to be present on the occasion and brought his auditors back to his youthful days in Quincy.

Councilman Leslie said that he started to work in the quarries as a tool boy, and finally succeeded in learning his trade as a granite cutter. Mr. Leslie said that the prospects in this line did not seem as bright as in another field, so he abandoned the trade within a course of two weeks. He said he did not see why he could not be classed among the working men, for he realized just what granite work meant.

He spoke on the candidacy for re-election of Senator Barnes and hoped that his modesty would not forbid him from telling the good things he had done while in the Senate. In conclusion Mr. Leslie spoke of the redistricting bill which was to come before the next legislature and said that he would vote to have Quincy placed in another district.

Senator Barnes was next introduced and advocated the election of Louis A. Frothingham and the entire Republican ticket. He said that it was important that Quincy should send two Republicans to the legislature this year, as matters of vital importance were to come up.

He then spoke on a few measures that he had voted on during the past year. He said that it had been misstated that he voted against the eight hour bill, the fifty-four hour bill and the election of United States senators by the people. Mr. Barnes said he was a staunch advocate of all these bills. In explaining his attitude on the nine hour bill for street car men, he said that he had been forwarded a number of petitions from railway men, requesting that he vote against the bill.

He then gave the reasons why it would be a disadvantage to railway men to have such a bill passed. He also told of the bill by which between $40,000 and $60,000 had been saved as a result of the United States government deciding to build magazines at the Weymouth Back River.

Representative Louis F. R. Langelier critized the administration of Governor Foss. He spoke of the merits of Senator Barnes and also urged the election of Councilman Leslie and ex-Councilman Walter E. Piper.

Councilman Sandberg also spoke along the same lines, as did Arthur W. Newcomb, candidate for school-committee-at-large.

The surprise of the evening came when ex-Representative Peter T. Fallon, a Democrat, was asked to speak. Mr. Fallon came forth and raked the record of Governor Foss in grand style. He spoke in the same strain as Representative Langelier and in conclusion, urged those present to vote for Senator Barnes.

Otto Gelotte, Andrew Johnson and Neil Carlson also spoke for the Republican candidates.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

BRIEFS

The Ladies Aid will hold a chicken supper Wednesday night.

Mrs. White of the anti-cigarette league spoke very forcibly before the Epworth League.

Miss Margaret Brown sang at both morning and evening services to large audiences at the Wollaston M. E. church. Mr. Harry Brooks led the praise service at the E. L. and evening service.

Have the Hospital collectors called on you? Fill up the envelope and have it ready for their next call. Collecting contributions in this way is no easy task and if each one does his or her part, it lightens very materially the duties of the collector.

A rally in the interest of William J. Leslie for representative will be held tonight at the residence of Herbert F. Parker at Atlantic. It is also said that the Councilmen from Ward Six will be called upon to give an account of their stewardship during the past year.

Telephone subscribers will be glad to know that Miss Kitty Walsh who has been confined by illness to her home for several weeks was able to resume her duties this morning at the Quincy exchange. Her cheerful voice and quick response has been missed all these weeks.

FOUR DEAD FROM GAS

Woman Had Threatened Tragedy If Her Son Was Taken Away

Bridgeport, Conn., Oct. 30.—Four dead bodies in the morgue here are the grim sequel to a mother's threat, uttered in the city court last Thursday, that she would kill herself if her only son was taken away from her and sent to the reform school.

The court committed the boy despite his mother's wild protests. Sunday the woman, her husband, and two other residents of the house were found dead of gas asphyxiation.

The victims are Mrs. Annie Harchaick; her husband, John Harchaick; her nephew, John Prevansnak, and a boarder, John Kepesar.

LIVE SPORTING EVENTS

QUINCY WINS AT CHELSEA.

The members of the Quincy A. A. football eleven travelled to Chelsea last Saturday and encountered the strong Chelsea Y. M. C. A. combination in a fast and exciting contest. The game resulted in a 6 to 0 victory for the local team.

Quincy A. A. made its touchdown in the third period on a tackle rush by Gerstel. Hunter kicked the goal. The home team tried out many players in an effort to tear through the Quincy line, but all such efforts were to no avail, for the local players played their best game of the season. The work of Boyle, Gerstel and McDonald featured for the winners.

The summary:

LAST MATINEE ON SATURDAY.

There was some good trotting Saturday afternoon at South Weymouth park at the last matinee meet of the season of the Old Colony Gentlemen's Driving club. Four of the events were carried to split heats. The best racing was in class C, with Teddy Bingen winning the first heat. Young Bayard captured the second and third heats. In class A, Altro L. made the best time, being made to go in 1.09 in te second heat in oder to win from Oswego Boy. The winners in the several classe were as follows:

ClassA, Altro L; class C, Young Bayard; class E. Duffy's Malt; class G. Starling; class F. Fayne Jennings; class H. Jeff McKeron; class I. Chatiwa. Special race to beat 1.25 1-4 Life Line, time 1.24.

GREAT TIE GAME.

The best soccer football game of the season was witnessed by a crowd of 200 last Saturday on the grounds of the Fore River Association, when the Fore Rivers and Boston Americans played to a standstill, with a 1 to 1 tie to their credit. The Boston American's were the first to score.

This goal was made when Clarke contributed a long drive that deceived Malcolm, the goal keeper for the Fore River team. The Fore Rivers scored in the second half on a pretty drive by Dunlop.

BULLET IN HER ABDOMEN

Little Girl Accidentally Shot by Son of a Neighbor

Keene, N. H., Oct. 30.—Olive MacKenzie, 13, is in a critical condition as a result of a "didn't know it was loaded" accident.

The little girl, with her brother, was playing at the home of a neighbor, John Loveland, 16, when a revolver in the hands of Loveland was discharged. The bullet entered the girl's abdomen, and physicians were unable to locate it.

The police have taken no steps in the case, being apparently satisfied that the shooting was purely accidental.

WANTED ADDRESSES OF "LIVELY GIRLS"

Man and Woman Arrested on White Slave Charge

New London, Conn., Oct. 30.—As a result of her request in a letter to the postmaster at St. John, that he refer her to "lively girls" who wished to make from $40 to $50 a week, Mary Johnson and Frank Johnson were arrested here, charged with being engaged in the "white slave" trade. They pleaded not guilty, and, in default of $1000 bail each, were locked up for hearing.

The couple came to New London from Canada several weeks ago. The postmaster at St. John notified the local police of the woman's request.

CAPPS IS DISPOSED OF

Not In Position to Oppose Meyer's Naval Reorganization Plan

Washington, Oct. 30.—Chief Constructer Capps, who opposed the Meyer plan of reorganization in the navy and later was succeeded as chief of the bureau of construction and detailed to the Philippines, it is now said, will not be able to appear before any of the investigating committees at the next session of congress should the reorganization question be reopened.

Naval orders just issued grant him leave of absence for four months, beginning Dec. 5 next, with permission to go abroad. It is understood he is going to Europe. He is authorized to apply for a five months' extension of the four months' leave if he cares to do so.

THROWS AWAY OPAL RING

Woman Holds It Responsible For Auto Plunge Into Lake

Greenwich, Conn., Oct. 30.—Mrs. R. A. Goerwitz, wearing her gift of an opal ring for the first time, was running her racing auto through the William L. Marks estate at Sound Beach, when she met a touring car at a turn near the lake.

There was not room on the curve for both. Mrs. Goerwitz chose the lake. The machine plunged in and turned over, submerging itself and the owner. Passersby rescued her.

The first thing she did was take off the opal ring and throw it into the lake. It was her first mishap, and she blamed it on the stone.

RED HATS COME TO AMERICANS

Three Are Designated For Elevation to Cardinalate

D'CONNELL IS AMONG THEM

Boston Archbishop, Whose Rise Has Been Rapid, the Youngest Among Large Number Honored by Pope—Farley and Falconi Will Bring Number of American Prelates In Sacred College Up to Four

Rome, Oct. 30.—Most Rev. William H. O'Connell, archbishop of Boston; Most Rev. J. M. Farley, archbishop of New York, and Mgr. Diomede Falconio, apostolic delegate in the United States, are among a large number of prelates who will be created cardinals by Pope Pius at the consistory to be held Nov. 27. Sixteen other prelates will receive the red hat at the same time.

Both the announcement of a consistory and the names of those who are to be elevated to the cardinalate caused much surprise here. The intentions of the pope were kept entirely private, the general absorption in the war aiding materially to maintain the secrecy.

The selection of the new cardinals is the subject of interesting comment, owing chiefly to the recognition the United States has received. That country has been granted three red hats, which will gradually become a kind of acquired right for the American episcopacy. Mgr. Falconio is an American citizen, and with Cardinal Gibbons and Archbishops Farley and O'Connell will bring the number of American prelates in the sacred college up to four.

The elevation of Farley has caused a generally excellent impression because, besides his eminent qualities, he is head of one of the most important Catholic centres of the world.

Archbishop O'Connell, who is very popular in Rome, is the youngest among the new cardinals.

It is stated that soon the American cardinals will be further increased so as to give the west a representative in the senate of the church. For the first time since the rupture with France cardinals have been selected from that country. The four named; added to the three already existing, make a full complement for France.

Portugal, on the other hand, has not been recognized, Mgr. Bello, patriarch of Lisbon, having failed to receive the red hat, indicating that the pope considers that the rupture of the concordat with that country must have a retroactive effect. Bello, who was patriarch before the rupture accurred, was mentioned as a probable cardinal owing to his official position. Mgr. Tonti, papal nuncio at Madrid, has also been passed over.

It is remarked that only five Italians have been chosen, but it is believed that before the consistory is held two or three more will be added to the list.

From priest to cardinal in sixteen years—such is the career of Archbishop O'Connell, a career probably without equal in the annals of the Catholic church.

Leaving a little Boston parish to be rector of the American college at Rome; returning to America six years later a consecrated bishop; the second non-Italian papal envoy of modern times, and while envoy archbishop coadjutor; then archbishop, and now, or very presently, cardinal—the promotions have come in quick sequence.

Archbishop O'Connell was born in Lowell Dec. 8, 1859—his consecration as cardinal will find him still in his 52d year—the youngest of the eleven children of John and Bridget O'Connell.

NEWSPAPER OF 212 PAGES

How Davenport Times Celebrates Completion of New Building

Davenport, Ia., Oct. 30.—To celebrate the completion of its new building, The Times of this city issued a special edition of 212 pages, said to be the largest newspaper ever issued in the United States.

The next largest was a special edition of the Dayton (O.) News, issued last year, and previous to that the record had been held by the New York Times, with 204 pages.

Dies After Winning Legacy

Leominster, Mass., Oct. 30.—George S. Pierce, 71 years old, did not live long to enjoy the estate bequeathed to him by his wife, and which was awarded to him a week ago after litigation lasting more than a year. He slipped and fell to the ground while at work on the roof of his house here, breaking his neck. He is survived by a brother.

William Winter Honored

New York, Oct. 30—William Winter, the dean of dramatic critics, was guest of honor at the dinner of the Lotus club in commemoration of his 75th birthday. More than 200 other prominent members of the literary and theatrical profession were present to pay him honor.

SUNDAY IN OUR CHURCHES

WOLLASTON M. E. CHURCH.

Rev. Wesley Wiggin said, "the churches are not full because the people are not there to fill them. The people are not there because they are drifting. They are drifting because of the loose ideas," last night at the Wollaston M. E. church.

"You don't need a drawing minister as you do a holding church. You ask why churches are not full, here are a few answers from people I know. One man said, "There is such a change in the business world today that I need the rest for tomorrow and the rest of the week," and yet, said Mr. Wiggin, "if that was a week day he would be to work at 7 and remain all day. Another one says "I had to go to church too much when I was young. My parents compelled me to go." That man ought to be proud he had a father and mother that would train in the right way.

The real reason men do not go to church today, is they are drifting. They don't want to. They are taking the chance.

Drifting is caused by their loose ideas in business and politics. Men sell the same flour under different names. Different brands of canned goods are sold from the same pile.

People have loose ideas concerning the Bible. They have loose ideas concerning virtues and towards reverence in the church. A little tact and common sense will bring great results to the church.

WOLLASTON BAPTIST CHURCH.

Sermon by Rev. Guy C. Lamson. Following the morning service Rev. Guy C. Lamson addressed the Walther and Rand mens classes, 96 men being present.

The Junior Endeavor met at 3.30 in the chapel. Miss Ethel M. Campbell in charge. Y. P. S. C. E met at 6, in the chapel Preparatory Prayer service at 5.45. Subject: "Missions in Europe." Meeting in charge of the Missionary Committee.

Evening service at 7 in the auditorium. Sermon "Men Who did Things." Subject: "The Man Who Dreamed."

Tuesday evening, the regular church social will be held in the chapel. At 6.30 a supper will be served to which all members of the church and congregation over 15 years of age are cordially invited.

Wednesday evening at 6.30 the Men and Religion Banquet for our district will be held in the Stoughton St. Baptist Church, Upham's Corner, Dorchester, Rev. Dr. W. T. Stackhouse will give the address.

Friday evening at 7.45 the monthly Covenant Meeting of the church will be held in the chapel. Subject: "His Compassion."

Thursday, Nov. 9, is Donation Day for the Baptist Home, Cambridge. There are thirty-three aged people besides necessary help to provide for. Eight thousand dollars is required annually to carry on the Home.

PANIC AMONG MANCHUS

Government Says Three Thousand Rebels Were Killed at Hankow

Pekin, Oct. 30.—The situation in Pekin is becoming worse. A veritable panic prevails among the Manchus, and the Manchu women are adopting Chinese dress. The trains that are leaving the capital are, for the most part, drawn by two engines, so heavily are they loaded. Officials are seeking asylums for their wives and children among the foreigners.

From Wuhu, the nearest telegraph station working with Hankow, comes reports that in a battle in and around Hankow 3000 rebels are dead. The rebels are retreating to Wu-chang.

Prior to the revolution the newspapers frequently cried out against the presence of foreign soldiers, but the natives in Pekin are now fleeing to them for shelter. One report fixes tonight for an outbreak, but the presence of 15,000 Manchu troops, against 3000 Chinese, insures the safety of the capital for the present.

KILLED WITH OWN GUN

Believed That Doctor's Foot Slipped While Driving His Auto

Penacook, N. H., Oct. 30.—Dr. M. F. Blodgett, 28 years old, accidentally shot and killed himself while driving in his automobile to Bradford, Vt.

He was carrying a gun between his knees, and it is believed that in going over the rough part of the road his foot slipped and discharged the weapon, its charge penetrating his throat.

American Consul Kills Self

Ceiba, Honduras, Oct. 30.—Allan Gard, who was relieved last week as American consul here, committed suicide by shooting through the head. He had been despondent.

Traitors In French Crew

Toulon, Oct. 30.—Vital parts of the machinery of the battleship Mirabeau have been tampered with and three of the crew were arrested and placed in irons.

SPORTING "DOPE"

By B. A.

Don't Knock, Just Boost.—B. A.

Tomorrow Quincy High will play its most important game of the season. It will take place at 3.30 P. M. and will show Quincy High and Brockton High contending for the honors of superiority. It is expected that a large following will accompany the visitors, and not to be outdone, the students of the local institution are using every effort to make the occasion a gala one.

Brockton High is Quincy High's keenest rival and the feeling which exists between both aggregations, should make the game a warm one from every point of view. Brockton has been going at a good pace this season, but the work of the local eleven during the past few games would be hard to excel.

Coach Staff has made a survey of the strength of the Brockton aggregation and in the practice work of the past week he has done everything to round the local boys in the shape necessary to enable them to win.

Captain Johnson feels confidently certain that his team can turn the tables on the visitors and claims that his team mates will more than make up for the unfortunate defeat suffered last year at the hands of the Brockton players.

The Quincy A. A. eleven seems to be of the same calibre as the combination that wore the colors of the Wollaston A. A. last year.

—A magazine man says it is possible to make a million dollars honestly. That isn't the answer most men want. They would like to know if it is possible to make a million dollars, and if so how.

THE QUINCY DAILY LEDGER

LARGEST GUARANTEED CIRCULATION IN THE CITY

Vol. 26 No. 251 QUINCY. MASS., TUESDAY EVENING, OCTOBER 31, 1911 PRICE TWO CENTS

MAYOR APPOINTS ELECTION OFFICERS AT THE SPECIAL MEETING OF CITY COUNCIL

Order Adopted For Placing Retiring Act For County Employees On The Ballot At State Election

Appropriations Referred To Finance Committee

A special meeting of the City Council was held Monday evening to act on the matter of calling the city election, designating polling places, placing the question of accepting the act retiring county officers, on the ballot, acting on a communication from the Mayor relative to an appropriation for garbage and scavenger work.

Councilmen Gardner, Richards and Sodergren were absent.

President Bryant read the call.

Councilman Smith offered an order designating the polling places for the city election. Adopted.

Councilman Smith offered an order calling the city election. Adopted.

Councilman Smith offered an order placing the question of accepting the retiring act for county employees on the ballot af the state election. Adopted.

ELECTION OFFICERS.

A communication was received from the Mayor appointing the following election officers.

Ricard Prout as deputy inspector Ward Three, precinct two in place of Daniel F. Tinney.

Albert G. Farham as deputy clerk Ward Four, precinct one in place of William Trask.

Joseph A. Monahan as inspector Ward Four, princinct one in place of Lewis A. Pendis.

Thomas J. Dunphy as warden in Ward Five, precinct two in place of Charles R. Sherman.

John T. Cain as deputy warden, Ward Five, precinct two in place of C. Thatcher Baker.

John E. Simmons as deputy clerk Ward Five precinct two in place of John T. Cain.

George Bennett as deputy inspector Ward Six, precinct one in place of Albion Hart.

John Hilderbrand as deputy inspector Ward Six, precinct two in place of Frederick Dent.

These appointments are made by reason of resignations from the various officers named.

Confirmed.

GARBAGE WORK.

A communication was received from the Mayor calling attention to the necessity of an appropriation for garbage work.

Councilman Branch offered an order appropriating $1,900 for garbage transferring the same from unappropriated city receipts. Referred to Finance Committee.

SCAVENGER WORK.

A communication was received from the Mayor urging action on the order appropriating $1,000 for scavenger work.

Councilman Branch offered an order appropriating $1,000 for scavenger work transferring the sum from unexpended city receipts. Referred to Finance Committee.

Adjourned at 7.45.

CONSIDERING CALL.

The society of the Washington Street Congregational church voted unanimously Friday evening to extend a call to Rev. Edward A. Chase of the Wollaston Congregational church as its pastor. The call is an extremely flattering one but to date has not been accepted by Rev. Mr. Chase. Should he decide in favor it would be a distinct loss to the community and the church he represents.

NOMINATION PAPERS CAUSE SURPRISE

Number In Circulation Mean An Interesting Fight

SUPERIOR CANDIDATES

Several interesting things in regard to the coming municipal caucuses came out Monday night after the meeting of the council when nomination papers began to be circulated for signatures, bringing out the fact that there were a number of candidates in the field for nomination who had not been mentioned.

In Ward Three there are at least seven seeking the nomination for the three positions as councilmen. They are Robert B. Craig, seeking renomination, Charles A. Ross, Ruben Grossman. William A. Smith, William Farquharson, George Gouthier and William J. Spargo.

Councilman Craig was also circulating papers nominating Councilman John R. Richards as Councilman at Large.

In Ward Six, Councilman Parlee, Jenkins and Sodergren are seeking renomination. Here there is another surprise for Councilman Sodergren was circulating papers for ex-Councilman, and President of the Council Ralph W. Hobbs as a candidate for Councilman at Large.

In Ward Five papers are being circulated for some exceptionally good men and in their case it is said to be a case where the man is not seeking the office but the office the man for it was only after earnest solicitation that the gentlemen consented to run.

They are Charles W. Bailey of the Boylston National Bank, seeking renomination, Charles L. Gilliett, president of the Robbins Iron Foundry Co. Irving L. Shaw of the state Tax Commissioner's office, Horace W. Richmond, Charles E. Barker.

Councilman at Large, Albert N. Murray, president of the Murray & Emery printing Co.

School Committee at Large, James L. Rand, manager of the Associated Press.

In Ward Two papers have been taken out by Harry G. Studly for renomination.

Ward One, which has been lacking a candidate for Councilman at Large, is now on the list as papers have been taken out for ex-Councilman George W. Abele.

Councilman Charles A. Ericson who is seeking the nomination and reelection as Councilman from Ward One paid a visit to his constituents on Merrymount road Saturday evening for the first time since he succeeded in getting the order passed appropriating $1,700 for the resurfacing of that street. Judging from tre readiness with which they signed his paper, the people down there have not forgotten his efforts in their behalf.

This morning Secretary Kittredge of the Republican city committee reported the following additional papers as having been taken out.

Councilmen at Large, James Grossman, Ernest W. Branch.

Councilmen Ward One, Alfred H. Gilson, James Moorehead, Harry Pennington, William P. Thompson, Charles E. Decker, William J. Nott.

Councilmen Ward Six; Herbert Beeman.

MRS. BRYANT DIES SUDDENLY

Mrs. Sarah A. Bryant, wife of Emery H. Bryant, for many years road master on the Old Colony railroad, died suddenly at her home in Braintree, Monday evening. She had been out automobile riding during the evening and returned apparantly in the best of health. Shortly after she was taken with a shock and died soon after. She was 67 years of age.

HALLOWE'EN BAZAAR

Of Quincy Chapter 88 Order Eastern Star Opened Monday

THE TABLES

The Hallowe'en Bazaar, under the auspices of the Quincy Chapter, No. 88, Order of Eastern Star, was opened under most favorable conditions at 5 o'clock Monday evening in Electa Hall. It continues Wednesday till 11 P. M., and will be in order today from 2.30 P. M. to 11 P. M.

The hall presented a very picturesque appearance with the varied colors strewn about the different booth and the general artistic look of the entire affair enabled the hall to present a picture of the rarest appearance.

From six, until eight o'clock, a supper was in order, followed in turn shortly after eight by an entertainment, which was given by Mr. Erastus Osgood, who was assisted on the piano by Miss Jennie Gibbs. The entertainment was a most delightful one and enraptured the many present from beginning to end.

This afternoon up to 5 o'clock, no tickets will be required for admission. This evening the affair will conclude with dancing. The principal feature on both occasions will be the presence of a witch, who will give out some stirring information to those who interrogate her.

Following is the list of those who were in charge of the various booths:

Junior Table—Mrs. George Smith, Miss Alice Dafia, Mrs. Della Bessie, Mrs. Mildred Dahl, Mrs. Augustus Johnson, Mrs. Addie M. Lane.

Lemonade and Ice Cream Table—Miss Eleanor Files, Miss Margaret Lester, Mrs. Josephine Schools, Miss E. W. Ross.

Domestic Table—Mrs. Albert Willis, Mrs. George Rindlett, Mrs. Edward H. Bushnell, Mrs. William C. Hart, Miss Grace Turner, Mrs. Chas. Shea, Miss Anne Gordon, Miss A. L. Bliss, Mrs. Charles Gilleat, Mrs. Barnabus Baine.

Domestic Extension—Mrs. Matilda Pearson, Mrs. Annie Griffis, Mrs. Elizabeth Morey, Mrs. Thomas Roberts, Mrs. Robert Williams, Mrs B. H. Bean.

Flower Table—Mrs. Thomas Pegler, Mrs. Gertrude Stone, Mrs. Walter Bemein, Mrs. Eliza McCleod, Mrs. Celinia Thompson.

Fancy Table—Mrs. James M. Gibb, Mrs. G. W. Carter, Mrs. J. Emil Johnson, Mrs. Alexander Russell, Mrs. John F. Roach, Mrs . William Patterson.

Candy Table—Mrs. James Milne, Miss Laura Jones, Miss Alice Deacon, Miss Bessie Laing, Miss Jennie Laing, Miss Margaret Milne, Mrs. George Call, Miss Mary Mankur, Miss Harriett Griffith.

OPENING SOCIAL

The opening social of The Thursday Evening Study Club was held at the home of Mrs. Levi H. Turner, 463 Hancock street, Thursday evening, Oct. 19. The program, which was in charge of the president, Miss Isabel Moir was most interesting, consisting of vocal and instrumental music, and a very entertaining game. At its close refreshments were served, and plans made for the approaching season.

As the study of France is to be continued this year, it was unanimously voted that Bulwer Lytton's Richlieu be taken for special work, in addition to papers and selected readings from various authors by individual members.

The next meeting will be Nov. 9 at the home of Mrs. Joseph Ripley, 115 Billings road, when Mrs. Ripley will present a paper "Portrait Study of Famous Men of France" and Mrs. F. A. Bartlett will give readings from "French Abbeys."

CAMPAIGN ONE OF GREAT IMPORTANCE

Says Speaker At Barnes-Leslie Rally In Atlantic

CANDIDATES LAUDED

A rally and smoker in the interest of William J. Leslie for representative and George L. Barnes for senator was held at the residence of Herbert F. Barker, Hancock street Monday evening. The meeting was held in a building on the estate and was largely attended by those interested in Ward Six politics.

Mr. Barker presided and called as the first speaker Ex-Representative Louis E. Flye of Holbrook. Mr. Flye confined himself to the state issues and urged the election of his friend and neighbor Senator Barnes.

Mr. Barnes, he said, is one of the closest advisers of the next executive to be Louis Frothingham and should be elected for another reason that it is becoming the universal sentiment that Senator Barnes is the strongest candidate for the presidency of the senate.

He referred to the present campaign as one of the most important in 50 years and one in which a vast amount of enthusiasm had been aroused. He was heartily applauded at the close of his speech.

Discussing his candidacy Senator Barnes refuted the claims of his opponents who claimed he was with the interests. He had always tried to tread the middle ground and vote with the one that was right.

Of the 9 labor measures before the Legislature last year he had voted againts two—the 9 hour in 11 bill and the eight hour bill. The former because he believed it injured the employe and the latter because the fifth section was unconstitutional.

Referring to his vote on several other matters he said it would be a surprise indeed if out of the 2240 bills passed last year he agreed with the individual opinion of his constituents on all. He asked a survey of his record as a whole.

William J. Leslie candidate for representative, defended his vote against the half holiday bill for city laborers by the reason that it would add just so much more to the taxes of the city. If he had been playing politics he would have voted for the measure. He gave a resume of the measures he would advocate if elected.

Louis F. R. Langelier held the 8 page pamphlet of Governor Foss, claiming benefits obtained by him, up to ridicule. He took up the claims item by item and termed the present executive a "fourflusher."

Frank Shay of Wollaston and Samuel Woods of Atlantic both spoke on the situation and urged the election of candidates Barnes and Leslie.

Councilman Sandberg scored McDeavitt for his belligerent actions in the city council. The meeting closed with a few words from the father of Ward Six politics, Frank L. Badger and three rousing cheers for the local candidates.

"JOKER" CAUSES SURPRISE AND CONFUSION IN WARD FIVE POLITICAL CIRCLES

Nathan G. Nickerson Appears As Progressive Democratic Candidate On Sample Ballots

Will Issue Statement In Few Days

The sample ballots for state election which have been posted today, gave some people quite a rude shock for upon them appears the name of Nathan G. Nickerson of Ward Five as the Progressive Democratic candidate for representative from the Sixth district.

Perhaps no one was more surprised than was Mr. Nickerson himself. Mr. Nickerson was a candidate in the caucuses for the Republican nomination, but was defeated by William J. Leslie, and he supposed that was all there was to it.

It seems however that on the Democratic Progressive ballot some voter, possessing a funny bone, wrote in the name of Mr. Nickerson as the candidate for the office of Representative. As his name was the only one in the district for that party candidate he became the logical but unsolicitated candidate.

No one gave the matter a thought and it was not until the sample ballots came out that it was seen that his name appeared on the official ballot as the candidate of the Democratic Progressive party.

John D. Smith, chairman of the Democratic City Committee thinks that the appearance of Mr. Nickerson's name on the ballot is due to a piece of political trickery on the part of some wicked Republican. However to do the trick, if such it was, would have necessitated the Republican to become registered as a Democrat Progressive.

Chairman Smith in an interview with a representative of the Daily Ledger, Monday night said:

"In my opinion, the giving of Mr. Nickerson the Democratic Progressive nomination, is one of the smallest pieces of tricky politics that I have seen in my short experience in Quincy politics. I am glad to be able to think that Mr. Leslie himself is not responsible for this work, but the effort on the part of some person in Ward Five to confuse the mind of the Democratic voter in the Sixth District, will prove to be one of the heaviest boomerangs ever launched in the political field in this city."

When Mr. Nickerson was asked over the telephone late last evening concerning the matter, he stated that he little realized that his name was to appear on the ballot as democratic progressive candidate for representative from the sixth Norfolk district. He was interviewed on the Houghs Neck car at 7.45 this morning by a Ledger reporter and stated that he would give the matter careful consideration and would issue a statement for this paper tomorrow; after he had made due deliberation. Mr. Nickerson was on his way to Houghs Neck, to go smelt fishing, when interviewed this morning

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Seems the joker has been at work in Ward 5. What's up? All parties, however, claim there is nothing to it so we will wait and see whether the affair "fizzles out."

Canada is grieving because they have 900,000 less people than they expected. It is evident that they do not know the elementary principles of the art of census taking up there.

A Montclair, N. J., minister is fitting up his church with moving pictures. If this is generally done, progressive pastors will not find it necessary to stand on their heads to get an audience.

In view of the attendance at the world's series games at Philadelphia, it is evident that quite a number of Quaker Cityites have missed their afternoon naps for several days running.

New York is stirred over the murderous hat-pin nuisance. Recollecting how we used to handle fish hooks in our boyhood, why not require the end of every hat-pin to be stuck into a big piece of cork?

Those from Quincy who visited the the No-License League, in Boston on Monday congratulated themselves upon seeing one of its leading citizens as chairman of the important meeting. Unnecessary to say that Mr. Delcevare King was the man for the position and conducted the affair in his usual dignified manner.

GOOD POLITICAL TIMBER.

Some mighty good political timber was unexpectedly sprung around the Hall Monday evening, when papers were circulated seeking endorsement for nominations at the coming caucuses. In a number of cases it was stated that it was only with considerable persuasion that the parties consented to go in the fight. As all of them are men with many business responsibilities they are to be congratulated. Another thing to be remembered this election is this, with the present president of Councils out of the fight an important office is to be filled. It is therefore necessary to see that superior candidates are in the field from which a proper executive for the important body may be selected.

THE PONY EXPRESS.

Said a delegate to the No-License League meeting on Monday, you have no saloons in Quincy, thanks to that respected citizen, Henry H. Faxon, but you have the pony express and along the lines of eliminating that your efforts should be directed. It is a fact that too many cases of drunkenness appear each week in the local court. Allowing that many are the results of trips to Boston, some check should be placed on the distribution of the intoxicants delivered in the city. There is a way to go about it and it is easily accomplished. The matter is an important one would be very helpful to the local authorities and should have the attention of those interested in order that the liquor laws may be carried out to the letter in this city.

RECENT CIVIC IMPROVEMENT.

We do not know of any improvement in our city in recent years that has given more general satisfaction or done more for civic beauty than the way in which Hancock street was widened from Saville to Dimmock streets.

The street is widened by several feet; none of the trees were sacrificed and a broad grass plot and wide granolithic sidewalk gives one the impression that the street is much wider than it is.

In previous years when the subject of widening this thoroughfare has come up there has been a storm of protest because the trees would have to be sacrificed. Quincy certainly owes a debt of gratitude to Henry M. Faxon whose property abuts Hancock street that he solved the problem so satisfactorily and was able to present such acceptable plans for consideration at the public hearing on the matter that there was not a dissenting voice against the widening.

This improvement shows what can be done in other parts of the city if one has civic pride and interest enough to take hold and do.

"DRESS SUIT" SPLITS A TOWN.

The social and sartorial questions that have long connected themselves with the "dress suit" are again brought to public attention by an incident of Mr. Taft's homeward journeyings. At Aberdeen, S. D., a weighty protest was made against the requirement that the "claw hammer" be worn at the dinner given the president.

One of the "reactionaries" took it so much to heart, that he bought up a lot of the $10 tickets, and circulated them among farmers and others lacking socially correct evening clothes, so that the "Progressives" were compelled to modify their requirement that the swallow-tail should be requisite for this function.

Persons who live in large cities where the "dress suit" is invariable for formal evening functions do not quite realize that this fashion is as yet adopted by but a small minority of our people. There are something over 15,000,000 voters in the United States, but we seriously doubt whether a census of "dress suit" owners would show 500,000.

Well do we recall the flurried searchings of heart that took place in a certain country town where the writer once spent a number of years, by the arrangements for a fashionable wedding. As the bridegroom and best man who hailed from metropolitan surroundings were to wear "dress suits," the ushers, a band of local patriots, felt that they must be equipped with these wedding garments.

As they could forsee no future occasion requiring these expensive habiliments, it seemed the only sensible thing to repair to a second hand dealer in a neighboring city, and acquire such second hand swallow-tails as could be made to approximate to their figures, which was done. The time, trouble, expense, and worry were well compensated for by the hush that fell over the assembly when these sons of the soil marched up the aisles clad in their unwonted finery.

The young man who aspires to social elevation in cities of any size needs a "dress suit" now-a-days, and as it remains fairly well in style for years, it may save him money in the long run.

In less metropolitan surroundings it is quite a question whether it is worth while for a few fellows to introduce any such custom.

A growing center like Aberdeen, S. D., may be pardoned for taking pleasure in its dress parade. But in the host of little communities where a few dudish fellows are aping Broadway, it should be realized that certain forms suited to the glare of urban conditions are out of place under the stars in God's country. When city people come out into more rural life they feel this distinction and are apt to leave their swell clothes at home.

SMALL BOY'S BIRTHRIGHT.

A small boy of our acquaintance living on the outskirts of the town, when his parents made some objection to the Hallowe'en practices current among the younger fry, remarked: "What's Hallowe'en for, anyway?"

Vainly did Mamma strive to lure him from his heart's idols by promise of more refined joys indoors. There would be a nice little party, with all the boys and girls in their starchy clothes. The orthodox games of the season would be played. The little girls would go out in the garden and pull up a cabbage, and the amount of dirt clinging thereto would tell them when they would get a husband.

However alluring such inducements might seem at other seasons, they have little effect to divert the modern youth from the joys of Hallowe'en. The impish freedom of the cool October night fills his veins. At no other date in the year do his kinky heels fly up so far. The July 4 fire crackers are exploded under matter of fact sunlight, but Hallowe'en is celebrated under cover of darkness, when every bush shelters a witch or hobgobblin. Then there is the well known historical fact, familiar to the older children, that on this occasion the Lord of Death calls together all the wicked spirits who within twelve months have been condemned to dwell within animals.

The same spirit that prompted Patrick Henry when he said "Give me liberty or give me death" stirs in the heart of the Small Boy on Hallowe'en. Foregleams ofthat Canaan where he shall be his own master, able to sit up to 10 P. M. any night he wishes to, stir through his soul.

But it is not enough for him to retire to the shades of the garden wall and celebrate this feeling of freedom in isolation, of mere intellectual communion. His freedom does him little good unless the world knows of it. Therefore the rain of corn on the windows ofthe neighbors, the nail stuck in the door bell producing a continuous alarm.

If Mamma looks with the eye of the true philosopher into the heart of the Small Boy, she has seen that it takes very heavy satisfactions, reaching far down into the stomach and filling many large voids, to bribe him to give up this strenuous independence.

ELECTRIC SPARKS.

In the McNamara case the testimony so far adduced indicates that the jury will be found guilty and sentenced to condign punishment.

It is astonishing how accurate is the aim of the amateur hunter when he mistakes a fellow creature for a deer.

Eugene Zimmerman paused to shed a tear for the poor millionaires one of whom he is unfortunate to be. The plaint of this sad Cincinnati railroad magnate and father-in-law to nobility is that the common people refuse to love millionaires. This is not to be wondered at when we think how little of his time the busy millionaire as a rule has devoted to loving the common people.

Admiral Schley's monument should be worthy of the man, worthy of the nation.

A son of the late Steve Elkins is going to marry an actress. This will make it unnecessary for Miss Katherine to wed Abruzzi. The going of the Elkins millions is now fully arranged for.

Great things, these railroads. They lower rates in order to get people to live in the country and then raise 'em 'cause suburban traffic "doesn't pay."

A New York actress refused to appear in tights, and was discharged by the manager without any salary. She must have been in bad shape.

The tariff on raw sugar is 78.87 per cent. The tariff on diamonds is ten per cent. This may encourage some home industry, but it doesn't help much with lowering the cost of home eating.

NEVER DONE.—"My wife is all tired out and broken down."

"Social activities?"

"No; she has been trying on fall hats for three weeks now, working eight hours each day."

CHARGED WITH FRAUD

Women's Missionary Societies May Not Get Trust Fund

Topeka, Kan., Oct. 31.—Charging that both missionary societies were organized for fraudulent purposes, Attorney General Dawson has filed quo warranto proceedings asking the supreme court to forfeit the charters of the Women's Home Missionary society of the Methodist Episcopal church of the Kansas conference and the Women's Home Missionary society of the Kansas conference of the Methodist Episcopal church.

Dawson charges that the two societies were organized for the sole purpose of securing the trust funds left by the late Mrs. Fannie Murray to the Unorganized Methodist Episcopal Church Missionary society.

New York Teachers Get Higher Salaries After Long Fight

Albany, Oct. 31.—Declaring that he believes in the theory of equal pay for equal work, Governor Dix signed the Grady bill, equalizing the salaries of the school teachers in New York city. The enactment of the bill is a victory for the women school teachers of New York, after years of endeavor.

The increased cost of the schedules of salaries proposed by this measure for the elementary schools is estimated at $3,134,940, and the increased cost of equalization in the high schools at $372,480.

BRIEFS

Nomination papers are being circulated in the interests of Charles E. Barker of Fayette street, Wollaston for councilmanic honors.

Rev. George W. Wells of Hingham addressed the Sunday school teachers of Christ church in the rectory on Monday.

Quincy friends of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Sutermeister of Westfield street, Westwood are extending congratulations on the birth of a daughter born to them on Monday, Oct. 23.

Mr. Bestgen and family have moved into a cottage on Webster street, from Botolph street. It will be remembered that Mr. Bestgen purchased the estate belonging to Daniel McGrath last spring, but he has now sold it to Mr. and Mrs. Plagemann who will occupy.

A dignified rector of a metropolitan church was preparing his sermon in his study against the coming of Sunday, when his little daughter decided to visit him. Taking a gladly accorded place on his knee, and, casting a critical eye over the pages of manuscript scattered about, she asked.

"Papa, did God tell you what to write?"

"Certainly, my child," was the devout reply.

"Then what makes you scratch so much of it out?" she asked, and wonders why she never had an answer.

COMMODORE'S PURCHASE

Portland Yachtsman Buys Cabin Boat, Brunhilde

AN IDEAL BOAT

The fifty foot cabin power boat Brunhilde, owned by S. R. Dow of Boston, which is now hauled up for the winter at John Stuart Co., plant at Wollaston beach, has been sold to Commodore E. A. Clark of the Portland, Me., yacht club where she will be taken in the early spring.

The Brunhilde is fifty foot over all, 9 feet beam and 3 foot draft. She is equipped with a four cylinder 25 horse power Stuart engine and is capable of developing a speed of from 10 to 12 miles per hour.

Her frame is of white oak and she is planked with hard pine and white cedar, copper riveted. Her interior finish is mahogany and very handsome. The engine room is located on the aft port side. At the right of the engine room is a passage way leading forward. Amidship on the port side is a private or owner's state room while on the starboard side is a well appointed lavatory. Forward is the main cabin, which is divided by a curtain and fitted with extension berths so as to provide sleping accommodation for eight persons. There is also a toilet room aft for the crew. She carries a mahogany tender.

There is wheel in the main cabin forward and one on the after deck.

The Brunhilde was built by the John Stuart Co., ten years ago and has participated in many races in Massachusetts and Maine waters during the past few years. She is an ideal cruising boat.

TURKS RECAPTURE TRIPOLI

London Hears That Italians Have Met With Serious Reverses

London, Oct. 31.—The startling intelligence that the city of Tripoli has been recaptured by an army of Turkish and Arab soldiers was received here in letters from Rome which escaped censorship through having been sent by post. These letters do not state the fate of the 15,000 Italian soldiers of the expeditionary army which occupied the city.

Earlier letters had stated that the situation of the Italian army in Tripoli was desperate and that only the rigid censorship maintained by the military authorities in northern Africa and at Rome prevented the outside world from learning the true conditions. They stated that the native hordes outside the city were being daily strengthened and that nightly attacks were draining the strength of the army of occupation.

COHENS SENTENCED AS WHITE SLAVERS

Woman Given Five Years, Man Two Years and $5000 Fine

New York, Oct. 31.—Mrs. Lena Cohen, who was found guilty of conspiracy to violate the laws of the United States prohibiting the shipping in interstate commerce of girls for immoral purposes, was sentenced in the United States circuit court to serve a term of five years' imprisonment in the women's prison at Auburn, N. Y.

Morris Cohen, who was convicted with her, was given a two years' term at Atlanta, Ga., and fined $5000.

FAREWELL RECEPTION

Was Tendered Young Men At Meeting of Delta Sigma

CANDIDATES PRESENT

At the meeting of the Delta Sigma club held at the home of Miss Edna Thomas of Moscow street, Atlantic Monday evening a farewell reception was tendered S. Corless Berry and George Stone of Quincy. The young men leave in a few days for a trip of several months duration throug the Western states and a large number of young people attended to speed them on their way.

The evening was pleasantly passed with games and other amusements, a dainty collation being served. The presence of Senator George L. Barnes and Councilman William J. Leslie who attended during a portion of the evening added greatly to the pleasure of the occasion.

Among those present were: Miss Dorothy Packard, Miss Nettie Pote, Miss Ruth Parker, Miss Mildred Lawton, Miss Bessie Brooks, Miss Daisy Brooks, Miss Ednah Rhodes, Miss Iva Briggs, Miss Grace Thomas, Miss Edna Thomas, Gordon Jameson, Lawrence Pope, Malcolm Hinckley, Stanley Churchill, Harold Marsh and Charles Hull.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES.

The first match in the inter-association bowling league will be rolled off on the local association alleys tonight. Brockton will oppose the Quincy team and a close contest is looked for. Among the prominent candidates from whom the Quincy team will be picked are: Brooks, Elder, mgr., Thomas, Corthell, Beane, Burns and Morris. The match will begin at eight o'clock and all will be welcome as spectators.

The Senior basketball league was organized with the following teams and captains: Columbia, Wilson, capt. Navy, Melville, capt. Tech, Newcomb Capt., Brown, Childs, capt.; Carlisle, Thomas, capt.; Cornell, Rich, capt.; Michigan, McArdle, capt.; Penn, Tirrell, capt.; Yale, Dineen, capt.; Dartmouth, Trask, capt.; Army, Holmes, capt.; Harvard, Parker, capt.;

The Junior teams for group games: Princeton, Falconer, capt.; Dartmouth, Bates, capt.; Brown, Shaw, capt.; Harvard, Osberg, capt.; Yale, Oronberg, capt.; Carlisle, Johnson, capt.

These teams wil contest among themselves throughout the season and the winners in each division, Seniors, Employed boys and Juniors will get appropriate trophies. The first contest will be held next Saturday, Juniors playing in the morning.

The matches in the Senior league will be: Yale vs Navy, Tech vs Army and Harvard vs Michigan. The first game will be called promptly at 7.45.

Schedules for the entire season are being printed and will be distributed among the players and spectators on Saturday.

The All Year Round Bible class will meet Wednesday afternoon at 4.30. The Normal Training class will meet for the first time on Friday at 4.30.

The Saturday morning meetings which met with such popular favor last year among the younger boys will be continued this year and the first one will be held on Saturday morning. Mr. Don S. Gates, Boys' Work Director of the Boston Y. M. C. A., will give his intensely interesting lecture entitled, "Abroad by cattle steamer." Every boy in Quincy will want to hear Mr. Gates give his personal experiences illustrated by 75 fine lantern slides. Enthusiastic singing will also be a feature of this first meeting which starts at 9 o'clock in the morning.

The Boy Scouts are beginning to do things. A troop has been formed of boys from Quincy Centre, and others will be organized in Wollaston and South Quincy in the near future During the month of November, steps will be taken toward the formation of a local council of business men who will co-operate with the Scout commissioner in making scout work of the city more efficient than it could otherwise be. The scouts have arranged for an entertainment which is to be held in Y. M. C. A. hall on November 17. The proceeds will be used in equipping the troops.

FUNERAL OF MRS. COURTNEY

Solemn High Mass This Morning At St. John's Church

BURIAL AT MT. WOLLASTON

The funeral of Mrs. Minnie E., wife of Edmund W. Courtney was held this morning from her late residence, 57 Putnam street and was followed by a solemn high mass of requiem at St. John's church at 9 o'clock. Rev. John J. Coan was the celebrant, Rev. John Casey deacon, and Rev. Patrick J. Scannell sub-deacon. The Gregorian mass was sung by the regular choir under the direction of John Mohan organist. At the offertory Miss Angelina McCarthy sang "Pie Jesu."

There was a very large number of flowers, including set pieces from the employees of the National Cash Register Co. Mr. Courtney being the manager of the Lynn office of that company.

The burial was in the family lot at Mt. Wollaston cemetery. The bearers were John Keniley, Edward Larkin, John Buckley and William Callahan.

Mrs. Courtney leaves a husband and three children, two daughters and a son.

PREPARED FOR "NEWLYWEDS"

House On Pleasant Street Ready For Reception

SIGNS GALORE

That Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Nightingale will be surprised when they return tonight from their honeymoon trip there can not be much doubt, for during their absence friends have seen to it that he who passes through Pleasant street may know that the house numbered 72 is to be occupied by a pair of newly weds.

The wedding which was a quiet affair took place last week, since which time the happy couple have been away. They are due home tonight and in order that they might know that their friends had not forgotten them their new house has been decorated from roof to cellar with old shoes, placards, etc., in such a manner that there is scarcely a space that has not been covered.

The wording of the signs are such that they can not help but cause a smile to linger on the face of he who sees them. One reads "We have been married and are gone." Others read "Love in a cottage," "Welcome," "Why not," with a picture of a funny baby in the centre. Still another reads "She was a friend of mine." In all there are upwards of 25 signs and quantities of old boots and shoes. A serenade is promised later.

Q.—I read in I Timothy vi, 16, that the Apostle Paul speaking of God says—"Who only hath immortality." In the same chapter, 19th verse, the brethren are exhorted to good works, "that they may lay hold on eternal life." And the only place I find the word "immortal" is in I Timothy i, 17, which also refers to God, and in Romans vi, 23, the Apostle says—"The wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord." Then again Romans ii, 6, 7, shows that the gift has to be sought for—"By patient continuance in well-doing." Therefore if immortality or eternal life is the gift of God as a reward to those who faithfully fulfill His desires, from whence is the authority derived by those who teach that man is now in possession of immortal life?

Answer.—This is a question that is frequently asked these days by those who are not content to accept a mere assertion without a "thus saith the Lord." There is but one statement to be found inthe Scriptures which could be construed as teaching that man was in any sense immortal; that he would not and that he could not die. This is found in the third chapter of Genesis, the fourth verse. However, we suggest that before any one accepts this as due authority they read the passage and note carefully who it was that made the statement!

Q.—Please explain why the Scriptures refer to God's special care over the fatherless and the widow and says nothing about the widower and the motherless? It seems to me that where the wife and mother is taken away it is much sadder than where the husband and father is removed from the family circle.

Answer.—In many places in the Scriptures the expression "fatherless," in the original language in which the Bible was written, has the significance of bereaved or orphans. The thought is that the Lord's special care and compassion are over the weak, helpless and the bereaved ones, and not that He has less consideration for the motherless than for the fatherless. We read "The Lord is gracious and full of compassion; slow to anger and of great mercy. The Lord is good to all; and His tender mercies are over all His works. The Lord raiseth them that are bowed down: the Lord loveth the righteous, and preserveth the stranger; He relieveth the fatherless and widow; but the way of the wicked He turneth upside down"—Psalms cxlv, 9. 10; cxlvi, 8, 9. Again we read —"A broken and a contrite heart, O God, Thou wilt not despise." (Psalm li, 17.) All those who are mourning and sorrowful, who will draw nigh unto God through Christ, will be comforted whether they are motherless or fatherless; widowers or widows.

RED CROSS CHRISTMAS SEAL.

The announcement is made today that the American Red Cross have appointed the Boston Association for the Relief and Control of Tuberculosis, 4 Joy street, Boston, agents for the sale of the Christmas Seals in Massachusetts.

The Boston Association will appoint the tuberculosis associations located in different sections of the state, and a few nursing associations and other organizations doing tuberculosis work as sub-agents. These sub-agents will be allowed to attain, as usual, a large percentage of the proceeds of the sale of the Seals for their local tuberculosis work, Seals and advertising matter being furnished them free of charge.

An effort is being made to secure the consent of merchants throughout the state to sell these Seals over their counters, returning the entire proceeds to the local tuberculosis organization or to the Boston Association when there is no local organization. Merchants willing to lend their aid to the tuberculosis campaign in this way can write the Boston Association.

Last year over one million Seals were sold in this state. This year if all those interested in stamping out this dread disease will purchase the Seals in large or small quantities the total sales should be greatly increased,

"JOKER" CAUSES SURPRISE

and therefore was not in a position to give out anything definite.

He did state however, that he thought the act had been done by some one who was antagonistic. Mr. Nickerson sail that he was notified some time ago by the secretary of state relative to the fact that he had received the democratic progressive nomination for the office already referred to, and in answer, communicated with the secretary in turn, informing him that he sought the nomination on the republican ticket, but was defeated. "I thought, continued Mr. Nickerson, that nothing further was required and that my name could be stricken from the ballot on the democratic progressive ticket."

When informed that a number were of the opinion that he was in the fight to help defeat candidate McDevitt, Mr. Nickerson simply ridiculed the idea and said that were he to enter the fight he would have done so as a republican independent, as many of his friends had urged him to do. He thinks that the committee is responsible to a great degree for this unfavorable result and says that he will make a thorough investigation of the matter before he renders an opinion. Mr. Nickerson said he never thought for one moment that his name was to appear on the ballot.

Evidently, according to his opinion, the name was written in by some party intentionally, and one, too, who knew just what course to pursue in order to have the name placed legally on the ballot. In conclusion, Mr. Nickerson regretted that such an occurrence should take place at this time in the campaign and assured the Ledger reporter that the responsible parties would be held amendable, if he can once find out the cause of this strange coincidence.

The time has now expired for him to withdraw his name, and the only way he could have done so was to appear personally before the secretary of state and declare to him that he did not want the democratic progressive nomination. The affair is still commanding the attention of the politicians of the city and great anxiety has been expressed as a result with regard to the outcome.

REWARD FOR KINDNESS

Woman Leaves Estate Valued at $10,000 to Her Nephew

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 31.—In return for his attention, care and kindness to Mrs. Mary E. Murray, late of Wayland, John F. Burke, her nephew, of the same town, will receive practically her entire estate, valued at $10,000, according to the terms of her will filed in the probate court here.

In leaving the estate to Burke, Mrs. Murray says in her will: "In making this last bequest to said John F. Burke, I have well in mind that I have heirs now living. The attention, care and kindness of the said John F. Burke to myself and late deceased husband has been such that he is deserving of the bequest I have made to him."

ARCHBISHOP O'CONNELL

Red Hat of Cardinal Will Go to Boston Prelate Soon.

VATICAN SENDS FORMAL NOTICE

Cardinals-to-Be Preparing For Their Trip to Rome

FLOOD OF CONGRATULATIONS

Boston, Oct. 31.—Archbishop William H. O'Connell received a cablegram from the Vatican at Rome officially confirming his appointment as cardinal. He at once began preparations to sail for Europe to be in Rome on Nov. 27, when the consistory will be held, at which O'Connell, with sixteen others, will be created a cardinal.

The archbishop has been busy receiving congratulations since the news was flashed over the world Saturday night that he had been selected to be one of the three new cardinals for America to be chosen at the next papal consistory.

When the Boston prelate returns to Boston a brilliant ceremony will take place in the Boston cathedral. Plans are already being made for this ceremony.

Immediately after the proclamation of the princes of the church at the consistory has been made by the pope, the new cardinals will prepare at once for their return to their homes. No time has been set for O'Connell's return, but it is expected that it will be about Christmas time.

Mgr. Falconio, papal delegate to the United States, in Washington, received an official announcement from Cardinal Merry del Val, papal secretary of state at Rome, that Pope Pius had chosen him as cardinal. Falconio also was notified that Archbishop Farley of New York and Archbishop O'Connell of Boston would be elevated to the same dignity.

The papal delegate, while refusing to give out any official statement, expressed himself as greatly pleased with his elevation.

"Naturally it is gratifying to me that I am to become a member of the sacred college," he said. "The honor was unexpected and at first I hardly believed the news from Rome.

"It is also pleasing to me that Archbishop Farley and Archbishop O'Connell have been elevated at the same time. This will give the United States four cardinals.

"I will leave here about Nov. 10 for Rome in order to be present at the consistory on Nov. 27. Mgr. Ceretti, auditor of the legation, will act as charge d'affaires until a new delegate is appointed."

GREAT NAVAL SPECTACLE

Armada Illuminates Manhattan Island as Never Before

New York, Oct. 31.—With searchlights incessantly flashing and hulls and rigging outlined in myriads of incandescent lights, the vessels of the great fleet assembled here for presidential review presented a picture of marvelous beauty last night. The Hudson river, where the warships lie in triple column stretching out nearly two-thirds of the length of Manhattan island, was illuminated as never before by night.

IS 109 YEARS OLD

New Hampshire Man Still Active Despite His Great Age

Nashua, N. H., Oct. 31,—John Burnham, 109 years old, observed the anniversary at his home in this city. His wife, although fifteen years her husband's junior, brings the combined ages of the couple up to more than 200 years, making them one of the oldest married couples in the country.

The couple are both active, doing chores and household work. Burnham had three children by a former wife.

SURVEY IS ORDERED

rawford Notch to Be Taken by Granite State Authorities

Concord, N. H., Oct. 31.—Acting in accordance with an opinion handed down by Attorney General Eastman, Governor Bass and his counsel last night took the first steps toward the acquisition of Crawford Notch as a public preserve when they ordered a survey of the territory.

The legislature voted in favor of the proposition at the last session, but through an error on the part of a clerk the copy of the act submitted to the governor and signed by him did not have an amendment which had been passed providing for an unlimited appropriation.

Last night Eastman gave it as his opinion that the governor and council has full authority to complete the taking of lands required by the payment of damages from any moneys in the treasury not otherwise appropriated. The council immediately ordered the survey.

TANK STEAMER BLOWS UP

Chief Engineer Killed and Captain May Die of Injuries

Newark, N. J., Oct. 31.—A big steel tank steamer owned by the Pure Oil company was blown to pieces in the Passaic river by an explosion of gasolene. Albert Angler, the chief engineer, was killed.

Captain Dowe, who is assistant manager of the company's fleet of oil boats, had both legs broken and may die. The remaining three men aboard were hurled into the river, but escaped without serious injury.

The steamer, which was known only as No. 5, arrived a few days ago with 150,000 gallons of fuel oil and 47,000 gallons still were in the tank. The explosion occurred, it is supposed, when a spark reached leakage from the tank used to run the gasolene engine.

ADMITS POSSIBILITY OF BEING DEFEATED

But Taft Declares That He Will Be Loyal to Winner

Chicago, Oct. 31.—President Taft surprised a large audience at the dinner of the Hamilton club by what most of his hearers construed as an admission of the possibility of Republican defeat in the coming national election when he said:

"I am hopeful that the good people of the country have only chastened us in an off year, in order that we may be better hereafter—but with no intention of shifting from shoulders that are fitted to bear them the burdens of the present problems and carry them to a successful solution, to those which are untried and which have new theories of action that we do not believe in, and that we don't believe the people believe in.

"However, if so be it that they desire to make a change, we shall loyally support the new government under any condition, with the hope it will inure to the benefit of the country, but with the consolation that if after one trial the people think they ought to go back to the old party that has served them so well in the progressive days of the nation, they will do so—we can bear that."

VERDICT FOR SON-IN-LAW

Millionaire and Wife Must Pay Injured Man the Sum of $25,000

Seattle, Oct. 31.—Charles Ross, millionaire Alaskan, and his wife, Miriam, must pay $25,000 to C. H. Kealiher, their son-in-law, $10,000, for alienating the affections of Kealiher's young wife, and the remainder for physical injuries. Kealiher alleged that after winning his wife's affections away from him her father suddenly became friendly with him and tried to sell him a half interest in his mines. He inspected the property and charged that when he signalled to be pulled up Ross threw on the speed clutch and he came up so fast he did not stop on reaching the ground level, but was whirled around until the bucket was smashed and he suffered injuries that required the amputation of his leg.

BASHFUL RAILROAD MAN

Declines Kisses of Pretty Girls In Exchange For New Depot

Guthrie, Okla., Oct. 31.—C. W. Kouns, general manager of the eastern lines of the Atchison and Santa Fe railroad system, was offered kisses by twenty of the prettiest girls of Perry, Okla., in exchange for a new depot, when he arrived there on an inspection trip.

Kouns declined to enter into the trade, but it is said that word has gone to headquarters recommending a new station for Perry.

Lawyer Slashes His Throat

Newton, Mass., Oct. 31.—While his household goods were being removed from his home here under a process of ejectment, Edwin C. Lewis, a former Boston lawyer, now under disbarment, attempted his life with a razor, slashing his throat from ear to ear. It is thought he may recover.

IN GAY NEW YORK.

Fashions, Whims and Vagaries—Practical Suggestions for Clever Dressers.

All the world of womankind is especially interested in dress at this time of year when great demands are sure to be made upon every garment in one's wardrobe. A new suit, hat or coat is sure to be needed and it's just as easy to make a satisfactory selection as a poor one if only one can arrive at a definite idea of what one wants.

HAT WRINKLES.

Say it's a hat that won't be too dressy to go with one's tailormade but good-looking enough to go to the theatre with the prettiest frock in the outfit. Buy a velvet hat of the style that suits face, figure and pocketbook best and insist first on having the hat of good quality and well shaped, making the trimming a secondary consideration as such a hat trims itself and never needs much additional garniture. Black is the best all round color since it goes with anything and is universally becoming in velvet, though trying in other fabrics. Let the trimming be nice of its kind not poor ostrich or imitation anything but a fresh, stylish bit of color or prettiness that serves to augment the elegance of the velvet.

Is the hat for general, all round wear? Get a rather trim close fitting shape in fur, felt or beaver with a wing or fancy feather, or a knot of the right colored velvet nestled in its soft surface or have a hat made of the same material as your suit or coat this season, when cloth hats are modish, trimmed after similar fashion. This hat will go for all ordinary wear but for dress occasions something more ornate will be needed. Perhaps some of the cap or little bonnet shapes that are extraordinarily popular. Some in little poke shapes, some like mob caps with crowns of velvet, or procade, or satin, with frills of lace about the edge and a few small roses, or buds tucked into the frills where they are most effective. Perhaps in silver or gold tissue overlaid with lace and with a velvet band and bow for a finish. Or a Dutch bonnet with flaps at the side of old brocade that needs little other trimming. These are especially pretty where made up to match the material of the evening wrap.

THE LACE WAIST AND SIDE FRILL

Lace waists to wear with the suit of velvet or cloth are again smartly endorsed, and one can bring out old finery of the sort and furbish it with touches of colored trimming, velvet or chiffon or anything that brings out the lines and gives a touch of color, for one seldom sees a waist without a little contrasting trimming. Waists all of Brussels net are good style and side frills of various lengths and widths are very desirable additions, both those attached and the lingerie sort with a touch of Irish lace that come out endlessly renewed after careful laundering.

Veilings of chiffon over silk are still liked for waists but veiling with fine Brussels net is newer and keeps fresh longer under the coat.

A PRACTICAL NOVELTY.

A novelty shown at all the up-to-date stores here is the new Gilberta flounce for trimming petticoats. Taese come in circular form, beautifully cut and made in many attractive styles, in silk, satin or cottons of various colors and weaves, and are adjusted to any top by means of a small drawing string. They trim a new skirt or renew an old one smartly and at small expense and as contrasts are especially fashionable just now, one can select either a match or a contrast when trimming with these ready-to-wear flounces.

TRIMMING DETAILS.

Beads are used in profusion and fringes and ornaments of beads and silk and tinsel are notable fads of the moment. Lace of all kinds is unusually fashionable. The heavy Macrame lace that only the older women remember is in once more. Puffings and all the variety of made trimmings familiar in the 70's are reckoned smart and pretty. Some of the new fancy scarf and muff sets are of changeable taffeta, the soft weave kind, with trimmings of fur. Hats to match are often en suite. Fringed silk ruchings, the ravelled kind, are on hand at all the trimming counters, and buttons galore trim everything. Upholstery wool fringe bought in the upholstery department trims hats, waists and gowns, and brocades from the same source are extensively used. Bands of hair replace the ribbon bands so long used on the head, and are decidedly prettier though most people have to buy these at the shops since their own outfit is too limited to answer this demand.

THE LONG SHOULDER.

The long snouider line made familiar by the kimono sleeve continues modish, though many sleeves are now sewed in. Trimmings that start at the collar and go down the sleeve over the shoulder conceal the joining and the effect is about the same as with the sleeve cut in one with the bodice. Knitted flowers and foliage are a curious novelty much employed in millinery and going well with the heavy wool embroideries in Bulgarian styles that are so much used by dressmakers and tailors.

NEW BELTINGS.

A new belt with attached peplum comes by the yard in satin and velvet and helps to make a passe' frock modish.

Lucy Carter.

New York, Oct. 18, 1911.

The surest and safest means of regaining lost tone and vigor is a thorough course of Beecham's Pills. BEECHAM'S PILLS as is widely known, are the finest medicine for dealing with stomach and liver troubles and the ill-health and often serious complications that accompany them, so if at any time you happen to be the least bit "off-color," never neglect to take Beecham's Pills. You can depend upon it that they

An Innovation in Oil Heaters

The Perfection Smokeless Oil Heater, with its drums enameled in turquoise, is an ornament to any room, whether in the country or city home.

No home is quite complete without a Perfection Oil Heater. It is a necessity in the fall and spring, when it is too warm to start the regular heating apparatus, and too cool to be without heat. In the midst of winter it is often convenient as an auxiliary heater, as there are always some cold corners in a house.

The enameled heater always presents a nice appearance, as the enamel will not tarnish or burn off. It is not an "enamel paint," but it is the same as the enamel of your cooking utensils.

The Perfection is the most reliable and convenient portable heating device you can find. An automatically-locking flame spreader prevents turning the wick high enough to smoke.

SYNOPSIS

Anna Granger, devoted mother of two small children, discovers that her husband is a weak character and that he has lied to her about a woman.

Posing as Miss Dale, she becomes stenographer to Burton Temple, through whose evidence her husband has been imprisoned. She thinks Temple is the guilty man and is acting the spy to clear her husband's name for his sake and that of her children.

Anna discovers that Temple was one of her girlhood's ideals. Thinking her a single woman, he tells her her husband was a liar and perjurer.

Temple has detectives on the trail of Brady, an accomplice of Granger, looking for evidence. Anna is searching for evidence against Temple, who becomes interested in her.

Despite herself, Anna becomes fond of Temple, although determined to convict him for the honor of her boys. Temple's detectives discover Rose Fanchon, the woman for whom Granger was a thief.

Temple desires to marry Anna. She rebuffs him, questioning his honor. Temple is indicted for the crime for which Granger is suffering imprisonment.

When the door had closed behind the men Anna stood for a second stock still, the pupils of her eyes blackening strangely. Of vital importance! Temple's words rang in her ears. It probably meant her husband's freedom, her children's inheritance. Should she? Could she? Wasn't this just what she had come for? "I'll get it for you, Robert," she said.

Throwing back her slender shoulders, as a strong swimmer to breast the waves, she dropped on her knees beside the safe and rapidly worked the combination. She drew out the letter. Still kneeling, she raised it so that the light from the window fell across it.

At first Robert's well known chirography danced so that she could not read his words, but all too soon the dancing steadied itself, and the words stared out in deadly lines of damning guilt.

Twice, thrice she read it, drawing her fingers sharply across her eyes as if to ward off the lightning. Then a gasping cry rent its way out from her very heart.

It was all so plain now! Her husband was not only a liar, but a thief.

"I'LL SAVE YOU, BOYS—SAVE YOU IN SPITE OF YOUR FATHER, IN SPITE OF MYSELF!"

And her children, her little innocent children, would be branded through life as the children of a thief—oh, God!

Cato yawned. She looked toward the fireplace and started. An impulse came to her, a fierce, swift impulse such as red Indians have. The tigress was awake in her—the tigress fighting for her offspring.

And like a very tigress, too, agile, swift as an arrow, she glided to where the little flames beckoned and held the letter close down to them. The paper writhed and curled as the fire caught it adroitly.

"I'll save you, boys—save you in spite of your father, in spite of myself," she breathed, the breath coming hard through her open, dry lips.

It had a will of its own, this paper, and fought the inimical flames bravely as they encroached upon its territory. The woman, her fingers scorched brown, held it until it fell away in charred, glossy scraps, watching it with a sort of charmed, awful interest.

With an effort she raised herself to her feet. The gaping doors of the opened safe stared at her. Mechanically she crossed over, closed them and locked the combination.

Then, inevitably, her eyes sought the fireplace. The mocking, dancing flames stung her like so many scorpion tongues. Was it wild fancy or was Cato really watching her with that dumb, awful reproach in his eyes?

God in heaven! What had she done? If she had destroyed the proof of Robert's guilt she had also destroyed the proof of Burton Temple's innocence! Of that she had not thought; she had not had time to think.

The telephone bell rang. In her dazed, distorted condition it seemed far away. She did not move to answer it at once.

"I'll take it—I'll take the message, Miss Dale," called Temple cheerfully, blowing into the room at this second. His face wore an unclouded look of lightness as he picked up the receiver.

"Hello! Yes. What's that you say? Esterbrook, the district attorney, wants me on the wire? All right. Tell him to step up; here I am." And then to the district attorney:

"You want to see that Granger letter personally tonight? Yes, where? At your home. Very well. I'll fetch it down myself tonight. Goodby."

"Miss Dale," he said, turning to his secretary, "I think if you'll get me that letter out of the safe I'll take the next train for New York."

The room seemed to be darkening. She made a few steps toward the safe, tottered and fell upon the divan. With a long shudder that relaxed all her young limbs her senses left her.

"Poor little woman, she's been working too hard! I ought to have thought." Temple rang the bell for Mrs. Mason, then bent above her in a tender absorption, speaking to her as he might have spoken to a child, calling her, comforting and rousing her. His deep voice had an enchanter's sweetness, and gradually it wooed her back to life. She did not know what he was saying to her, but she responded. Her white lids fluttered; she moved; a deep sigh lifted her breast.

At that moment the door in Mrs. Mason's hand escaped her and swung to.

"Mrs. Mason, is that you?" said Temple, without looking around. "Will you come here? Poor child, I'm afraid she needs your care."

Anna raised herself by an effort. Her first half conscious impulse was to throw herself into the arms of the woman standing by her. Then as she perceived Mrs. Mason clearly, as her reason came back and her gaze steadied, the impulse died.

"That was a dowdy sort of thing to do," said she apologetically, with a faint smile. She rose to her feet. "Did I turn up my eyes to heaven, wabble once and overwhelm you, Mr. Temple? I've seen it done like that on the stage; it looks melodramatic. I'm sorry." She was talking frivolously against the awful blackness of despair in the background of her mood.

"Now, Mrs. Mason," Temple said, with big kindliness, "help Miss Dale to her room, lock her in if need be, and don't let her show her face until tomorrow at noon. Strict orders, you understand," he added smilingly. "She's overworked. Oh, and Miss Dale, I'm so sorry to trouble you, but just one moment before you go. Would you mind giving me that combination so that I can jot it down?" Suiting the action to the words, he pulled out a book of memoranda.

"I"— In very bewildered, pathetic fashion Anna Granger's hands went up to her heavy masses of hair. "It's my dizzy, dizzy head, Mr. Temple," said she. "I—I'm afraid I can't remember the combination just now."

"Well, never mind," returned he gently. "There's a later train I can take, and when it comes to you just send it down by Mrs. Mason. Good evening, and sleep well tonight. I've lots to say to you tomorrow, Miss Dale," he called after them in downright boyish fashion. His burden of months had been lifted, and he was coming to his own again.

[illegible] CAUSES PANIC

[illegible]es of Women Faint as Manholes in Boston Blow Up

Boston, Oct. 31.—When Edward [illegible] Currant, an employe of the New England Telephone and Telegraph company, started to climb down into a manhole on Tremont row, leading to the conduit, a lighted lantern in his hand, a terrific explosion, caused by leaking gas, hurled him back into the street with blazing clothing shortly before 9 o'clock last night. Two other steel manhole covers between Hanover and Brattle streets shot into the air in a blaze of fire.

Thousands of people were thrown into consternation by the explosion and the riotous scenes that followed. Scores of women fainted and were lying on the sidewalk or being carried into neighboring stores by their escorts.

Yelling with terror, Currant fled along Tremont row, his clothing afire, until a patrolman stopped him and rushed him to a hospital. His injuries are not serious.

HAS MUCH TO BE THANKFUL FOR

Nation Should Observe Nov. 30 as Day of Thanksgiving

PRESIDENTIAL PROCLAMATION

Country Has Been Blessed by Rich Harvests, Thriving Industries, and Is Free From Pestilence, Famine and War—Sense of Our Own Rights and Concession of Rights of Others—Festival Is Fully Warranted

Chicago, Oct. 31.—President Taft has issued the 1911 Thanksgiving proclamation setting apart Thursday, Nov. 30, as the day for rest and public worship and praise. The proclamation follows:

The people of this land, having by long sanction and practice set apart toward the close of each passing year a day upon which to cease from their labors and assemble for the purpose of giving praise to Him who is the author of the blessings they have enjoyed, it is my duty as chief executive to designate at this time the day for the fulfilment of this devout purpose.

Our country has been signally favored in many ways. The round of the seasons has brought rich harvests. Our industries have thriven far beyond our domestic needs, and the productions of our labor are daily finding enlarged markets abroad. We have been free from the curses of pestilence, of famine and of war. Our national counsels have furthered the cause of peace in other lands and the spirit of benevolence has brought us into closer touch with other peoples, to the strengthening of the bonds of fellowship and good will that links us to our comrades in the universal brotherhood of nations.

Strong in the sense of our right and inspired by as strong a sense of the rights of others, we live in peace and harmony with the world. Rich in the priceless possessions and abundant resources with which the unstinted bounty of God has endowed us, we are unselfishly glad when other peoples pass onward to prosperity and peace. That the great privileges we enjoy may continue and that each coming year may see our country more and more firmly established in the regard and esteem of our fellow nations, is the prayer that should rise in every thankful heart.

Wherefore, I, William Howard Taft, President of the United States of America, designate Thursday, the 30th day of November next, as the day of Thanksgiving and prayer, and I earnestly call upon my countrymen and upon all that dwell under the flag of our beloved country then to meet in their accustomed places of worship to join in offering praise to Almighty God and devout thanks for the loving mercies He has shown us.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the city of Chicago, this 30th day of October, year of our Lord, 1911, and independence of the United States of America, the one hundred and thirty-six.

By the President,
P. C. Knox, Secretary of State.

HELD IN $45,000 BAIL

Alabama Man Charged With Fraudulent Use of the Mails

Boston, Oct. 31.—Emmanuel C. Drew, arrested by federal officers just as he was about to sail for Europe, was held in $45,000 bail by Commissioner Hayes for his appearance before the United States circuit court of Alabama.

Drew was arrested as a fugitive from justice, it being alleged that he was about to leave the country after he had been indicted in Alabama on charges of using the mails in a scheme to defraud in connection with the flotation of stock of the Fort Paine Fuel and Iron company and of using the mails to promote a lottery.

SOLD HIS YOUNG WIFE

Charge In Washington Indictment Against St. Louis Man

Washington, Oct. 31.—The grand jury returned an indictment here against Robert Davidson of St. Louis on charges of selling his 19-year-old wife to a white slave gang.

The prosecution is the result of activity by the department of justice, which has begun a systematic effort to stop the traffic. Agents of the department testified that Davidson made a deal in New York, whereby his wife was sent to a Washington resort.

Another Cut In Sugar Prices

New York, Oct. 31.—Another cut, the second in a week, was made of 10 cents a hundred pounds in the prices of refined sugar by the American, Howell and Arbuckle companies.

Dismembered Body In Barrel

Rochester, N. Y., Oct. 31.—The dismembered body of a man was found in a barrel behind a power house on the outskirts of this city. The police are investigating.

ROMANCE OF A GOLDEN SPIKE.

A story of the Fall of the Last Frontier Before the Advance of the Telegraph and Railway.

When people of the East think of Oregon they think of Portland or possibly also the Willamette valley. Although they may read in their atlas that the state is 360 miles from east to west there is only a hazy idea of the nature of the country from the Cascade mountains to Idaho on the east. This haziness is natural, for very few people have ever visited the state south of the Columbia river.

When Lewis and Clark took their memorable trip to the coast, it was the swirling water of the Columbia that carried them towards the sea. They had no time to explore the country which might lay over the banks of the river. So when the settlers came later they followed the river because it was easiest, and the railways later did the same thing. The Pacific slope of the mountains was also settled because it was level and easy of access up and down the Willamette river which flows into the Columbia.

Cities grew up along these rivers just as cities first grew up along the rivers of New York state and of Ohio and all the other states of America. But at last the railway has come to this country, comparatively unexplored, and the fact that the railway is there speaks volumes for the products of the country, for in these days across the level land of the western prairies it costs $30,000 a mile to build and equip a railway and the directors of no road are taking long chances in risking their capital in enterprises which will prove unprofitable.

It was on Oct. 4, near midnight, that the hills of central Oregon echoed with the shriek of the locomotive whistle and the first train pulled into Bend, a town of 1,000 people, with two banks, a high school, two hotels, a public library and other necessities of a modern city. Until it has been 135 miles from the railway along the Columbia. The coming of that first train means that the stage coach will go out of business. For years it has hauled freight and passengers on the long journey up the Des Chutes river or over the Cascade mountains to the coast line.

With James J. Hill, the creator of the Great Northern system, wielding the mall, the golden spike marking the progress of the road to Bend, was driven. Telegraph communication with the world was begun and the doors of a wonderfully productive country were opened to the world. Mr. Hill says that the Oregon Trunk line, just completed to Bend, has been the most expensive road he has ever built. The canyon of the Des Chutes river, the only approach to the center of Oregon, has presented unexampled engineering difficulties. The road has been blasted from the side of the hills for miles. It has cut across the river on high bridges to find a more advantageous way on the other side, but it now out of the canyon and will be pushed to Medford, in the southern part of the state, as soon as the amount of freight available will warrant the extension.

Mr. Hill himself made a thorough trip over the country tributary to the end of the road and drove the spike which has been symbolic of the finishing of so many railway projects in the history of the nation. The driving of the golden spike on the Union Pacific when connection was first made across the American continent was an occasion of much importance when parties of business men made the trip from New York to be present at the ceremony in Wyoming.

Oregon has been settled by people who have not been deterred by the long overland journeys. They have persisted in reaching the rich agricultural lands which are embraced in the territory along this railway, which is allied to the Hill roads; a territory twice as large as the state of New York. The county of Crook, 130 miles wide, through which the road runs for some distance, is as large as Rhode Island, Connecticut and Delaware rolled into one, and the adjoining county of Harney has as many acres as the whole state of New Jersey, with soil of infinitely better quality.

Ithastaken seven days to go by team from Portland to Central Oregon. The coming of the railway cuts this to seven hours and the barriers of mountains on the west, north and south are no longer serious to the settler. Already a number of energetic towns, most of them less than ten years old, are scattered over this newly opened territory. In spite of the fact that there are about 68,750 farms of 160 acres each owned by the government and waiting to be given away to settlers, the number of farmers has been comparatively small up to the last year or two.

The fertile valleys of the coast with good train service, the equally fertile fruit country of Washington on the north with its train service have attracted the seekers for health and wealth, although the free homesteads are going fast.

Some of the best timber in the country is still to be found in the vast stretches of country lying on the east slope of the Cascade mountains which go to make up a portion of these tremendously big countries of Central Oregon. This will furnish the material for the development of the country following the coming of the road.

Contrary to the men attracted to the mining camps in the early days of California, the settlers of these agricultural districts, although on the last frontier, are the pick of the east. Most of them have been educated in the East and have pushed to the euable climate and fertile soil of this sheltered region for success—and they are finding it in great abundance. Schools and churches have been established and something of culture prevails.

Despite the large portion of Oregon bottled up by lack of railways, the farms of that state by the last census increased in value 214 per cent per acre andthe value of land and farm buildings increased 243 per cent. The corresponding figure for the older state of Wisconsin is 75 per cent. The population increase for Oregon in ten years was 62 per cent, and the development of industries has kept pace, the capital invested having increased 102 per cent.

ROOSTER COAL BRIQUETS

THE NEW ANTHRACITE COAL

ROOSTER BRIQUETS are made from the choicest small Scranton Anthracite coal. mined in Pennsylvania, called TWENTIETH CENTURY CHESTNUT size

Just consider for a moment what we offer here in this 20th CENTURY CHESTNUT.

First, 2000 pounds of clean, pure, hard coal without a rock or a piece of slate.

Second, fuel that cannot form into a clinker, by any known method of firing, consequently the linings and grates last indelinitely.

Third, they are made in nut size, being equally convenient for furnace heaters, open grates, as well as stoves; therefore, only one storage bin is necessary.

Fourth, and very IMPORTANT, the quality of this fuel is the SAME EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR, not a good ton today, and nothing like it the next time, in other words, when you once learn how to regulate your drafts you have nothing more to learn about burning BRIQUETS.

Fifth, no more sifting ashes these Briquets burn out clean. They require less wood to kindle.

Be sure to ask for "ROOSTERS" and get the Briquet made from pure Scranton Coal, from the largest Briquet plant in the country. They are better than coal, will last as long and cost less.

LAD'S FIRST IMPRESSION.

A little lad of two-and one-half years visited Quincy centre for the first time Monday. He enjoyed every minute of the two hours' outing, and returned with a very much enlarged idea of the size of the world. He rode on the electrics going over, and came home on the "choo choo" train which was his choice of methods of travel.

The Pop Corn man on the street delighted him but best of all were the Hallowe'en novelties in the various stores and windows. Really his eyes were twice their normal size when he looked at so many faces. It was very amusing to by-standers to hear the boy's exclamations.

The little chap has never been into the shopping district of a city before and truly he is better off at home in his own play yard day after day, but the first trip will never be forgotten, either by the child or the one who accompanies him, and it is a question which of the two gets the more pleasure.

—The temperance movement has taken hold of China, and the advanced thinkers hold that China is being ruined by gambling and drunkenness. The drink sellers give a credit of a year, and at the end of that time take from their unfortunate victim his house, land and even his furniture and clothes. Something has to be done to stop this, and the reformers are becoming more numerous and insistent upon stringent laws of repression—Washington National Tribune.

Couple Arrested at Quincy Station By Lt. McKay

HUSBAND NOTIFIED

A man answering to the name of Sydney Gordon and a woman said to be Mrs. A. C. Granshaw, were apprehended by Lieut. McKay at the Quincy depot this noon as they were about to board a train for Boston. The woman was placed under arrest at the request of he husband, who says that she ran away with Gordon.

The woman's husband who lives in Roxbury, came to Quincy, Monday afternoon, and applied to the police to get them to help find his wife who he claimed had run away with another man.

Lieut. McKay was assigned to the case and this noon found the couple at the Quincy depot. They were both placed under arrest and taken to the police station. The man claims to live at Youle's hotel, Quincy Point. The woman's husband was notified and is expected to come to Quincy for his wayward spouse this afternoon.

SPORTING "DOPE"

By B. A.

Don't Knock, Just Boost.—B. A.

"Eddie Reagan," the well known local boxer, will be carded against "Yankee Evans" at the Armory A. A. bouts this evening, "Eddie" has filled in the place made vacant by "Nedze" Bennett, kho was scheduled to contest with the "Yankee," but who has been compelled to refrain from entering fistic arena for sometime owing to an injury sustained to his hand while engaged in work about two weeks ago.

Reagan will fight at 135 pounds and if his experience in the past can be taken as any criterion, we can rest assured that his many followers will be favored with a good exhibition of boxing in his bout with Evans this evening. Reagan is a fast, consistent and aggressive fighter, and though his opponent is much bigger, "Eddie" is sure to give him the tussle of his life and if he can succeed in landing a victory his many friends will then have a chance to rest satisfied that the prediction of his rounding out into an enviable boxer has at last come true.

A number of local fans will attend the bout and all will root hard for the local boy in the hope that he may prove his superiority over the man he has taken on in two days notice.

The strong Orient A. A. eleven will be the next opponent of the Quincy A. A. combine. The game will take place Saturday at Merrymount Park, and if the contest of last year is to be taken into account, this coming contest should be a struggle for blood.

"Bob" Gerstel, another well known local boxer, is doing some hard training these days preparatory to a number of bouts which he has scheduled for this winter.

MEMORIAL.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Forbes have returned to their home at 231 Newport avenue after an absence of fifteen months. Mr. Forbes has been engaged in the construction of a memorial church in South Willington, Conn. and Mrs. Forbes was with him. The church is of Weymouth seam-faced granite and was built by Gardner Hall, Jr. of South Willington in memory of his daughter, the church being called the Clara Hall Eliot Memorial church.

FOOTBALL DANGER IS ON DECREASE

Old Time Players Believe Injuries Less Liable Than Before.

REMEMBERS NEWELL'S STUNT

Former Harvard and Cornell Coach Taught Tackling by Heroic Measures—Changes In Play Make Different Game.

Old time football players maintain that the game has shown a marked decrease in unavoidable roughness since their day, and they believe, too, that the actual work of learning the game has ceased to be drudgery. Ten or fifteen years ago the coaches paid little attention to the trainer, keeping their men at work when they were thoroughly fagged. The coaches used to say that they could teach a tired team better than a fresh one and that the men ran less risk of injury when they were practically exhausted. All that has been changed, and some of the best conditioned teams are those that have had short periods of work. So many different types of men get into the game nowadays that the team is constantly freshened in practice and the men do not become mentally or physically as tired as they used to.

The interest of the linemen, who have to do the heavy work, is kept up nowadays by the simple process of teaching them generalship as well as the backs. The up to date coach expects his forwards to be letter perfect in the plan of campaign, to know just what play ought to be made in a certain part of the field, as well as the quarterback who is running the team. Every man on the team has a chance to study the generalship diagram, which is supplementary to the blackboard talks, and the guard on one of the big teams can tell you every detail of the grand tactics. The team, every member of which measures up to the quarterback in all around knowledge of the game is the ideal eleven.

Another thing that has improved the game is the abandonment of the heavy, hard and dangerous "armor" and the leather tackling bag with the heavy stuffing. Many a player has been badly hurt as a result of being hit by the old fashioned bag. The one Newell used when he was coaching at Harvard and later at Cornell was harder than any player, no matter how rugged the latter might be. An old player who learned his tackling under Newell—he was one of the best ends in the country in his day—said the other day that Newell's tackling bag had a wooden core. The bag certainly felt like the trunk of a tree.

In those days the bag did not come down with the tackler, but kept on swinging, and the player was expected to hang on until the coach let him go. Newell's tackling bag had a heavy shield that hit the player on the head if he did not tackle low enough to get under it. Newell's teams were hard tacklers, for after a session with the bag the men feared nothing on two feet. It was heroic treatment, not the kind necessary nowadays, but it was effective in the old, excessively rough game.

CHINESE TEAM MAY COME.

Orientals Plan to Meet American Ball Players Next Spring.

Word received in San Francisco from the orient states that a Chinese baseball team will come to this country next spring. The team, which is now in the Philippine Islands, will sail from Honolulu March 1. It will be in charge of Bill Settley, the old time Pacific coast umpire. It is Settley's plan to have the Chinese team meet the big league teams in the south during their training season. After that he will take the slant eyed players around the country to meet the big college teams. Also it is planned to arrange games with minor league teams.

Pittsburg to Use Forbes Field.

The University of Pittsburg will play all their home games this fall against the visiting football elevens on Forbes field, the home of the Pittsburg baseball club.

They may also give in their votes "Yes" or "No" in answer to the question, "Shall Chapter 468 of the Acts of 1911, 'An act to extend the provisions of the Civil Service Act to Chiefs of Police of certain cities and towns,' be accepted by this City?"; and their votes "Yes" or "No" in answer to the question "Shall the proposed amendment to the Constitution authorizing the use of Voting Machines at all elections be approved and ratified?" and their votes "Yes" or "No" in answer to the question "Shall the proposed amendment to the Constitution, increasing the power of the Legislature to authorize the taking of land and property for highways or streets, be approved and ratified"?; and their votes "Yes" or "No" in answer to the question "Shall an Act passed by the General Court in the year 1911, entitled 'An Act authorizing the Counties of the Commonwealth to establish retirement systems for their employees,' be accepted?"

The proposed amendments to the Constitution are as follows:

RESOLVES OF 1911—CHAPTER 75.
Article of Amendment to the Constitution Authorizing the Use of Voting Machines at all Elections.

Voting machines or other mechanical devices for voting may be used at all elections under such regulations as may be prescribed by law: provided, however, that the right of secret voting shall be preserved.

RESOLVES OF 1911—CHAPTER 91.
Article of Amendment.

Article ten of part one of the constitution is hereby amended by adding to it the following words:—The legislature may by special acts for the purpose of laying out, widening or relocating highways or streets, authorize the taking in fee by the commonwealth, or by a county, city or town, of more land and property than are needed for the actual construction of such highway or street; provided, however, that the land and property authorized to be taken are specified in the act and are no more in extent than would be sufficient for suitable building lots on both sides of such highway or street; and after so much of the land or property has been appropriated for such highway or street as is needed therefor, may authorize the sale of the remainder for value with or without suitable restrictions.

Attest:

CHARLES J. McGILVRAY,
City Clerk.
